Ready to go to the fair

"Come to the fair," is the message to all Manchester residents from, left to right, Clarence Brown, Louise Cronin and Harry Reinhorn, as they get ready to make the trip in a 1925 Franklin. The fair they're talking about is the third annual Republican County Fair, Saturday, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. at Mt. Nebo.

Legal action by the Town of Manchester against Abraham Druckman, owner of the deteriorating Jaffe & Podrovo Building at 811-821 Main St., was stalled for several months so the town could save money on court costs.

Town Council William Bronelli told town directors Tuesday night he delayed filing a tax foreclosure action, waiting for enactment of a state law which could save the town hundreds of dollars.

Charter Oak parking lot plan rejected by board

By SOL R. COHEN, Herald Reporter. It took the Board of Directors only four minutes Tuesday night to reject a state proposal for a 247-space commuter parking lot in Charter Oak Park.

By its unanimous action, the board accepted the recommendation by the advisory Board and Rec Commission, also unanimous.

The commission, in a formal report to town directors, said the DOT hadn't convinced them that the commuter parking lot had to be at Charter Oak Park.

The directors, in rejecting the state proposal, agreed with the advisory commission that an alternate site should be explored.

Town Manager Robert Weiss said Tuesday night the town will proceed with improving the Spruce St. entrance to Charter Oak Park.

By SOL R. COHEN, Herald Reporter. The Board of Directors Tuesday night authorized sanitary sewers for a portion of Linwood Dr. and allocated $28,000 for their construction.

In a companion action, however, the board tabled action on assessments against 32 property owners for sanitary sewers already installed in Erie St., Garden Grove Rd. and a portion of Keeney St.

The tabling action was in the wake of a report from Director of Public Works Jay Giles, acknowledging he had promised some of the property owners their assessments would be deferred.

The board will try to settle the dispute when it meets Oct. 7. Approval for the Linwood Dr. sewers came on the third try. Last year, the board rejected a request for sewers on the whole street and another for sewers on half the street.

State's natural gas supply said adequate

HARTFORD (UPI) - State and federal energy officials said today Connecticut should have an adequate supply of natural gas this winter despite nationwide shortages.

Connecticut energy chief Lynn Alan Brooks told a State Public Utilities Commission hearing that the foresightfulness of the state's natural gas distributors has assured sufficient supplies.

Robert W. Mitchell, head of the New England office of the Federal Energy Administration in Boston, said he doesn't expect Connecticut or New England to face a gas shortage to the extent expected in other areas of the nation.

The commission called the hearing to determine whether the state has a sufficient supply of natural gas for the coming winter and for the next five years.

Town directors apprehensive about school bond referendum

By SOL R. COHEN, Herald Reporter. In a brief discussion which lasted only minutes, the Board of Directors indicated Tuesday night it is having second thoughts about a school bond issue referendum it had authorized for November.

The school administration had estimated the state would contribute about $800,000 toward the cost.

State officials said it is unlikely anything further can be done until at least February, when the General Assembly convenes for its 1976 session. They said, also, there is no assurance the present formula of 50 per cent of construction cost to be paid by the state) would continue. They hinted it might be reduced.

The board's brief discussion Tuesday night was precipitated by a report given the directors at 8, when their meeting started. It was from Supt. of Schools James Kennedy and it concerned the state bonding situation.

Druckman, an elderly man who lives in New York City, owes the town a total of $30,435, representing taxes, lien fees, and interest through September. The tax collector has attempted to collect the money several times, and although payment was promised it was never received.

The taxes first became overdue in 1973. The Jaffe & Podrovo Building was occupied by the W.T. Grant Co. until about five years ago. The structure was purchased by Druckman in 1961, about 60 years after it was built.

Inspections of the building by various town officials showed that the structure is well beyond the state's bonding problem, nor is it susceptible to accidental fires.

Francis Conti, acting building inspector, reported there is surface deterioration of ceilings and floors, but the building is structurally sound.

Deferred sewer assessment action tabled by directors

By SOL R. COHEN, Herald Reporter. The Board of Directors Tuesday night authorized sanitary sewers for a portion of Linwood Dr. and allocated $28,000 for their construction.

In a companion action, however, the board tabled action on assessments against 32 property owners for sanitary sewers already installed in Erie St., Garden Grove Rd. and a portion of Keeney St.

The tabling action was in the wake of a report from Director of Public Works Jay Giles, acknowledging he had promised some of the property owners their assessments would be deferred.

The board will try to settle the dispute when it meets Oct. 7. Approval for the Linwood Dr. sewers came on the third try. Last year, the board rejected a request for sewers on the whole street and another for sewers on half the street.

operating the sewer treatment plant stems from sewer department funds only and not from the General Fund. Mayor John Thompson, noting the effect of deferred assessments could have labeled it "fiscal insanity."

His report acknowledges he had made the promise - but, because of a misunderstanding of the statute and inadvertently. As he points out in his report, the value of deferred assessments now could reach $52,858. The original estimate was $13,340.

State's bonding problem outlined by Sen. Beck

By SOL R. COHEN, Herald Reporter. "Is school construction at a time of declining enrollments the highest priority for the state's money?"

This is the question raised by State Sen. Andrew P. Beck, D-Manfield, Senate chairperson of the Joint Committee on Finance in a letter to The Herald in which he outlines the state's bonding problem.

The issue came to a head recently when it was announced the state had committed all of its authorized bonding capacity for school construction projects.

In Manchester, a referendum is on the November ballot for renovations and improvements to Washington and Bentley Schools and a new West Side Recreation building totaling $2.37 million of which the state would, if bonding authority were available, assume a major portion.

Beck's letter in essence cites the state's problem of being able to handle about $200 million in bonds annually or $950 million over the four-year period. However, she notes, only $238 million of the $800 million is uncommitted for the next 3 1/2 years for new projects.

Washington (UPI) - The Congress has completed work on a bill to restore Nov. 11, the day the armistice was signed after World War I, as Veterans Day. The President is expected to sign the measure.

A vote of thanks

To the editor,
 A vote of thanks and appreciation should be extended to the PAC Club for donating their labor and money to repair the broken fireplace at Henry Park in order to use it for their annual picnic.
 The recreation department, whose responsibility it is, "didn't have time for it."
 I hope the PAC members think about this when the candidates gather round to shake hands and smile. Remember what they promise they "won't have time for" once elected.
 Thanks again to the PAC for a wonderful picnic and a usable fireplace.

Let's save the postage

The state seems to want all the money it can get even to the extent of coming up with new gimmicks to get us to play the lottery more often and with more dollars.
 The latest device is cars and cash bonuses to those who might have the lucky color and then have their stubs picked from several hundred thousand others of the same color for that week.
 By buying four tickets, you are assured of having one of the stubs the right color to be eligible for the drawing for a car and $1,000 check.
 The gamble of tempting a two-ticket weekly buyer to four tickets a week has been heard but the big rumble is the requirement that you mail in your lucky color stub and thus contribute another dime to the Postal Service coffers.

Scene from here

Hope springs eternal

I've just entered my latest sweepstakes — this one for a $100,000 first prize.
 All I had to do was paste the address label (the one with nine prize numbers assigned exclusively to me) on the left side of this huge post card — an official Entry card is what they call it.
 But, as usual, I didn't order the magazines.
 Maybe that's why I never win anything, because I always mark my entry "No."
 Come to think of it, however, the two times I used the "Yes" side I didn't win anything either.
 I'm a sucker for these sweepstakes. I hate to think of losing for the lack of trying.
 I particularly fall for the ones that tell me that only Mr. So-and-So and Miss You-Know-Who, in addition to me, were the ones chosen from my town to enter the sweepstakes. Almost always, the other two have last names starting with the same letter as mine.
 And I'm always impressed to hear that over 69,850 winners already are enjoying the prizes they won and that I can send for their names and addresses if I'm curious enough to check into it.
 Always, the accompanying letter tells me the awards have nothing to do with whether I use the "No" envelope or the "Yes" envelope, or whether I put an X in the "No" box or the "Yes" box.
 Every entry, I'm told, is a potential winner.
 My problem, I've found out, is that some are more potential than others.
 I'll never forget the first and only time I won a sweepstakes — a valuable gift certificate from an Illinois mail order house.
 I remember how it all started — an entry in the mail with all the instructions.

SOL R. COHEN

How the entry got to me I don't know to this day. All that was right about it was my last name, the town and the zip code number. It had the wrong first name and it had the wrong street. Hurrah for the post office for figuring out it was for me.
 To get on with it. Following the instructions, I rubbed away the dried ink on a box and, lo and behold, it told me I was eligible for a sweepstakes prize. So, I invested in a stamp and mailed my entry to Illinois, making sure my name and address was corrected.
 Oh yes, I put an X in the "No" box. They wanted to know if I wanted to order something from the sample booklet of their products they had sent me.
 I erased the whole thing from my mind. I knew from experience nothing would change and nothing would come.
 But, what do you know? Something did change and something did come.
 What came was this over-size manila envelope. On it was printed, "Valuable Contents," and "Here is the Gift Certificate you won in our recent Sweepstakes." On the other side was printed, "Winning Certificate," and "You are a winner in Gift Certificate Sweepstakes."
 Inside was the certificate. It was for $1 and redeemable toward the purchase of anything in the 82-page catalogue I found in the over-size manila envelope.
 I've always wondered what I'd have received if I had put an X in the "Yes" box.
 Any day now I expect to hear of someone starting a drive to ban X-rated Sweepstakes.

Without land reform it's unrealistic

WASHINGTON — There is growing evidence U.S. economic aid is largely wasted in those underdeveloped countries where farmers don't own their own land.
 Yet, strangely, it is precisely for such countries that the bulk of individual U.S. aid is currently earmarked — lands like India, Pakistan and Bangladesh.
 Moreover, there is no evidence that pumping multi-millions in assistance to such nations encourages effective change. Unlike trends in the U.S., Japan, Taiwan and South Korea, the rich get richer and the poor poorer, and infant mortality remains at alarmingly high rates.
 Our aid to countries lacking reform seems to fail, even when we directly and indirectly pump in millions for dams, roads, electricity, currency support, cooperatives and for agricultural improvements — where land reform is missing.
 Some of the countries with the worst showing, in fact, are those in which, with fanfare, we introduced major new strains of rice — as a part of the green revolution. The escalation in oil prices, blamed by many, applied to most underdeveloped countries and therefore does not explain away the startling contrasts between those which made major strides and those which did not.
 Listen to Dr. Roy Prosterman, of the

RAY CROMLEY

University of Washington, who, with colleagues, has recently completed a comparative study of land reform, infant mortality and other factors which, statistically at least, correlate with increasing agricultural productivity and self-sufficiency in underdeveloped countries: "...technology, without motivation, is not enough, and the tenant farmers and landless laborers of countries like India and the Philippines have shown — in every single country, every one — that they will not make the vital on-farm improvements, such as new drainage and water systems and land leveling, that are crucial to producing a good first crop and absolutely prerequisite to producing any second or third annual crop. Non-workers will not make these or other essential agricultural improvements."
 According to Prosterman's data, the three nations in East Asia which have done best in increasing rice production in the past quarter century — Japan, South Korea and Taiwan — ended their landlord systems before 1953.
 By contrast, increases in rice output per acre in India, Pakistan and the Philip-

New York City is unique

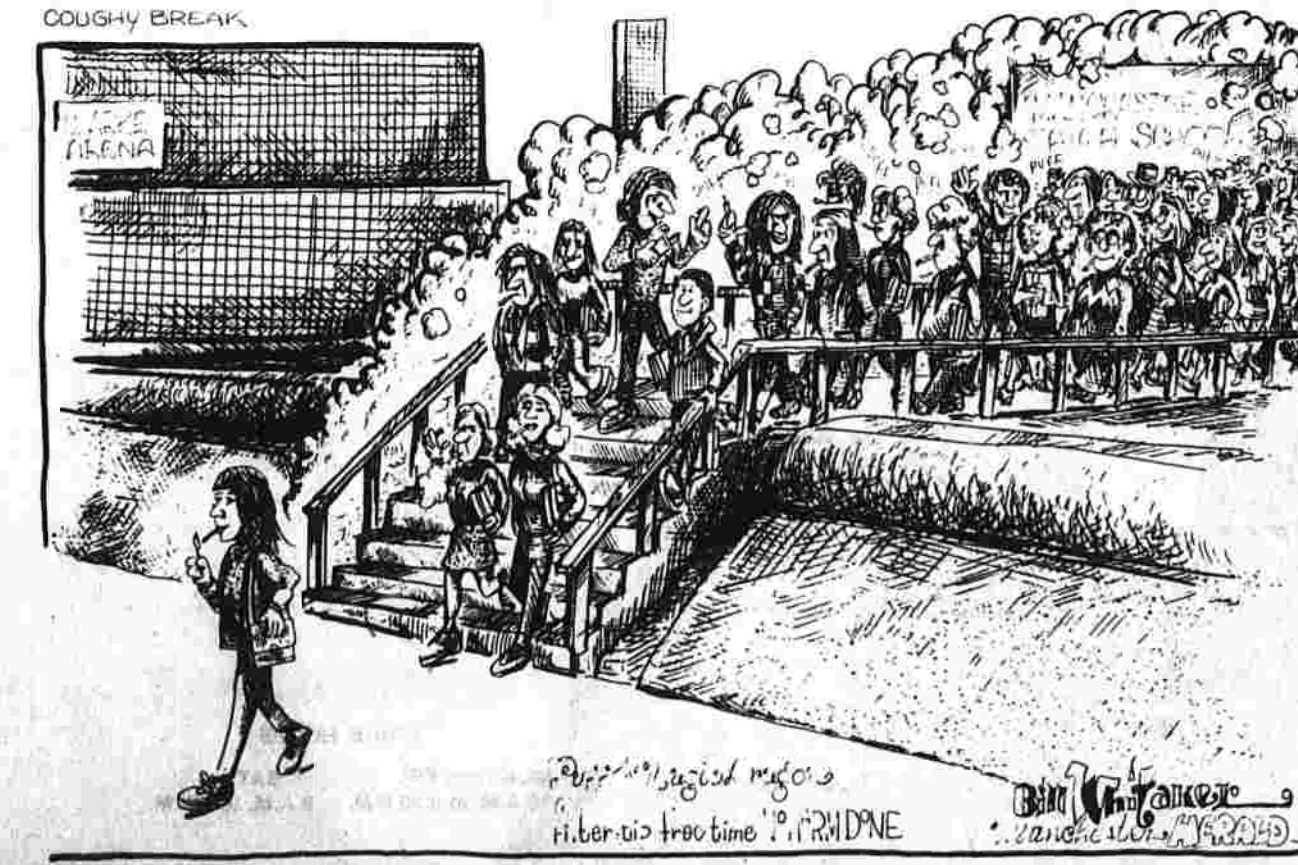

NEW YORK — In his lower Fifth Avenue apartment, my friend served good brandy and a point of view, to wit, that it is in the nation's interest to save New York City from financial extinction.
 "My argument is simple enough for you Washingtonians to understand," he said with his crooked, streets-of-Manhattan smile. "New York is unique. It is still the country's business, financial and cultural capital. If you people in Washington let it go to hell, every other American city will go to hell. Washington takes more from New York and gives back less than it does with any other city."
 It was not a new argument. New York's mayors have been making it for more than 20 years. But New York is indeed unique. It's the only New York we have, just as Paris is the only Paris France has, and London is the only London England has. Countries need their New Yorks and

ANDREW TULLY

Paris and London, simply because they are national expressions of uniqueness.
 Even today, I pursue a personal love affair with New York. Its streets are filthy and unsafe and some of its people belong in zoos, but it remains vibrant and alive, buzzing with the energy that makes things happen in business, in the arts and in finance. New York is still where the people act is.
 One has only to look at the people to know this. The faces in the streets are lived-in and varied. They are the faces of people who live their own lives, who still cling to their individuality. Some of the faces are ugly, of course, and many of them these days are vicious, but few of them are uninteresting.
 "The politicians..." my friend started to say.
 No, that's a cop-out. New York didn't suddenly go bankrupt. All these smart people in this town have known for a decade that the city was using gimmickery instead of revenues to pay its obligations. Don't tell me those who make up "the country's business, financial and cultural capital" didn't know what was going on in the City Hall. The bankers, the businessmen, the actors and painters, the cab drivers — all those bright people — did nothing. Strike that. They did something. They averted their gaze and went on with the fun of being interesting people.
 New Yorkers, I still love you. You also have my sincere sympathy. But you've been too busy playing all these years to wonder where the money was coming from for the champagne. Now the state has taken over the fiscal affairs of your town. There was no alternative; you needed a keeper.

Vernon voters reject fire funds, margin 125 votes, 7.5% turn out

BARBARA RICHMOND
 Herald Reporter
 In a 628 to 503 vote a request for an appropriation of $725,000 was defeated in a referendum held Tuesday in Vernon. The money was to implement recommendations of a Fire Protection Committee to improve fire services in the town.
 The total of 877 voting was about 7.1 percent of those eligible to vote. The town has about 13,000 registered voters and anyone who owns property listed for the 1974 Grand List valued at $1,000 or more was eligible to vote if a citizen of this country.
 Donald Edin, chairman of the study committee, and a member of the Town Council, expressed disappointment in the defeat of the question. He said, following the tally of votes, "The council, because of the vote, and the smallness of the vote, will just have to believe people were not interested."
 Edin said he felt the fire study report was well-done and well-documented. The report covered the present and future fire protection needs of the entire town which is served by two separate departments.
 The chiefs of both departments had made requests for additional expensive equipment when the budgets were put together in the spring.
 It was the recommendation of the study committee that no money be placed in the current budget for the purchase of a ladder truck, a snorkel truck, or any additional building facilities.
 The $725,000 was to go for the following: $300,000 for an addition to Vernon Fire Co. 1, $125,000 for a 100-foot aerial ladder for the Rockville department; $150,000 for an 85-foot aerial ladder platform for Vernon Department; $30,000 for purchase of land for a new firehouse in Vernon in the RL 83 area; $60,000 for a new pump for the Rockville department; and $10,000 for a changeover in the communications system.

 Edin said he felt the way the referendum question was presented, as an entire package, was wise. He said if the question had been divided then the lowest priced items would have been passed and are needed the least.
 He attributed the small turnout to voter apathy, noting that the referendum had been well-publicized by the newspapers.
 "I don't know what the alternative is, we can't change what is a need because the people said no," Edin said.

 He said he could not say what the council's next action will be and added, "Maybe the voter action will force the council to take another look at the consolidating departments."
 He said there is no question but that the economic situation had something to do with the defeat but "that doesn't change the need nor make the conclusions of the report any less valid," he said.
 The subcommittee voted 3-1 against consolidating the departments and Andrew Myer, the one dissenting vote, filed a minority report citing many reasons why consolidation would be wise.
 The two departments each have a chief deputy chiefs and other officers and each has its own budget and is responsible for maintenance and repair of its buildings, apparatus and other equipment.
 Each has its own rules, regulations and fire fighting operational procedures, each is totally independent of the other. But they do have a sort of mutual aid agreement in the event of a major fire in either section of town. All men are volunteers.
 The only district in which the question passed was District II, with the vote being 103 yes and 97 no, but the question lost by only 125 total votes.
 Voting in other districts went as follows: District I, 70 yes and 97 no; District III, 62 yes and 69 no; District IV, 70 yes and 103 no; District V, 121 yes and 163 no.

ON SECOND THOUGHT

By JAN WARREN

There's a hole in our house

Yesterday our oldest son went off to college — and despite the fact that there have been times during the past 18 years when I'd gladly have given him to the wild bidders — I MISS HIM!

Some of the things that I miss make me question my sanity. For example, I actually miss his yells at his sisters, roughhouse with his brother, and laugh at Hogan's Heroes. I miss his wisecracks and corny jokes and his booming "What's for dinner?"

And I miss the clutter about him. His size-12 sneakers on the living room floor, his bathing suit dripping on the porch, the chaos of his bedroom with its wild posters, Indian spread, asparagus fern, and chairs piled high with junk. (Today his room is so clean, I've closed the door so I don't have to look at it.)

I miss having him underfoot in the kitchen, drinking milk, and making three-decker ham sandwiches.

I miss our political debates at the dinner table, I miss talking books with him and the way he explained Tolkien to me, as if no one of my advanced age could possibly understand a Hobbit.

I miss having him around to carry in the groceries, to open jars with light covers, to change light bulbs, and to fix my toaster.

"When do you think we'll get our first letter?" I asked my husband tonight.

"Gosh, if he's anything like his old man he won't write till he has a wife to do it for him."

"You're probably right," I sighed, "and that's the way it will be. First college, then marriage, pretty soon we'll have an empty nest."

"Oh c'mon! Tom is only an hour's drive from here and three children is hardly an empty nest. Think positive!"

"I can't think positive," I said, swallowing hard.

"Well, I can," he grinned. "With Tom gone, the car will get a much needed rest. No one will steal my tennis balls. And didn't I hear you say that you fed the whole family on one pound of hamburger tonight?"

South Windsor parish accepts order on method of receiving Communion

SOUTH WINDSOR

Judy Kuehnel
644-1364

Many of the communicants of St. Margaret Mary's Roman Catholic Church in South Windsor have expressed "sadness and regret" over Archbishop John F. Whealon's recent order that they stop receiving Holy Communion in the palm of their hands.

According to Father McGrath, he and Father Schick were called to the office of the Archbishop a few weeks ago where they were told, "If you cannot stop this practice then I will send priests who will."

Father McGrath, who admitted that they had "jumped the gun" in allowed communicants to receive Holy Communion in their hands said the order "will be obeyed."

Rev. William McGrath and Rev. Joseph Schick, co-pastors of the church located on Hayes Rd., passed the order on to their parishioners Sunday, ending a practice which began in 1973.

The practice was introduced at St. Margaret Mary's as an optional way to receive Holy Communion.

Of the 1,400 communicants each Sunday, over 90 per cent chose to receive the Host in the palm of their hands.

Those who preferred the more traditional manner continued to receive Holy Communion.

with the priest placing the Host on their tongue.

About a year after the practice began, an anonymous complaining letter was received by the Archbishop to which he responded with a letter to the co-pastors ordering it stopped.

Many communicants however—strong in the belief that this was a proper and more personal way to receive Communion—continued to receive with one hand cupped in the other, the Host being placed in the palm.

Many members of the church which is described as "somewhat liberal and exceptionally involved and friendly" reacted with "sad resignation and obedience" to the Archbishop's command as they receive Communion in the traditional manner on Sunday.

"It's too bad," said one parishioner. "If the practice of receiving in the hand wasn't forced on anyone, I thought it made Holy Communion so much more meaningful. My hand is as pure as my tongue."

According to some sources it quite possible that receiving the Host in the hand will be accepted by the Roman Catholic Church in the near future.

It is first necessary for a two-thirds majority of the American Bishops to vote in favor of the practice. A petition is then sent to Rome and permission granted.

At present although a majority have voted in favor, there has not been the necessary two-thirds vote.

Residents of two roads petition against sewers

SOUTH WINDSOR

Judy Kuehnel

It is likely that Miller Rd. and Barber Hill Rd. will be eliminated from the list of South Windsor streets slated for sewers.

Residents of the streets — recently added to the $8.7 plan which will go to referendum in October. The plan would eliminate petitions opposing sewers at the Sewer Commission meeting last night.

Robert Martin, president of South Windsor Association of Citizens (SWAC) and a resident of Miller Rd., presented an opposing petition signed by 12 of the 14 homeowners.

"This road and a series of other adjoining roads are undoubtedly remote low-density population areas. I feel we should only be considering high density areas," said Martin.

Martin reminded the Sewer Commission that "approximately three years ago, this section of the road (Miller Rd.) was completely resurfaced at a cost to the town of over $125,000. Installation of sewers would incur additional repetitive expense."

A petition opposing sewers on Barber Hill Rd. — a rural area off of Miller Rd. — was presented by Robert F. Kuehnel. The petition unanimously opposed the installation of sewers by all of the six residents affected.

Barber Hill Rd. extends from South Windsor to East Windsor and was included only after sewer installation was suggested for adjoining Miller Rd.

Most of Barber Hill Rd. consists of tree and potato farms.

Senate campaign moves into border communities

CONCORD, N.H. (UPI)

The battle for New Hampshire's voter-rich southern border communities intensified today as candidates in the rerun Senate election centered efforts at the towns crowded by Boston-oriented voters.

Six days before election day in the runoff, both Republican Louis C. Wyman and Democrat John A. Durkin reach for support in the fastest-growing section of New Hampshire, the string of bedroom communities nestled against the Massachusetts border.

Durkin has a $20,000 advertising campaign underway on five television stations, including two Boston outlets, in an effort to sway voters in the state's three populous southern counties.

And Wyman hopes to trigger voter interest in his campaign with the free publicity gained from appearances by former California Gov. Ronald Reagan and President Ford in counties holding 57 per cent of the state's population.

"They are bringing the President in there," said Durkin campaign chief Joe Grandmaison. "We're using Boston television."

Wyman's appeal to southern New Hampshire opens tonight when Reagan lends star quality to the former congressman's senatorial campaign, addressing a "victory rally" at a 3,000-capacity arena in Manchester, the state's largest city.

As Reagan leaves the state Thursday morning, Ford lands in the liberal college community of Keene and starts a 120-mile motorcade across southern New Hampshire, stopping at 13 communities in seven hours.

Residents of Saganaw — located off Foster St. Ext. — voted in favor of sewers.

The Sewer Commission faces a difficult decision regarding the inclusion of Greenfield Dr. A survey conducted by a resident of the street showed 20 owners in favor of sewers and 20 opposed.

Residents of Saganaw — located off Foster St. Ext. — voted in favor of sewers.

Schools to battle slang

SOUTH WINDSOR

In a report to the school board Dr. Robert Goldman said, "I, as well as others, have become aware of the need to examine, as a school system, the teaching of language and general usage of language by our students and staff."

Expressions like "Yea" peppered with the term "you know," which have become quite common in the adolescent vocabulary, is the target the school administration is zeroing in on this year.

meaning as well as the level of communication among teachers and students.

The administration is asking faculty members to pay attention to written and oral communications used by students, and each principal had discussed this theme and its emphasis at opening assemblies or over public address systems.

The Tolland County Art Association has changed its meeting place for this season. Meetings were previously conducted in the Rockville Library and have been changed to larger quarters at the Lottie Fisk Building, Henry Park.

Mrs. Ginny Gingras, newly elected president, said the schedule of programs for the year has been planned in order to benefit each member, personally, as an artist and an art appreciator.

The first program scheduled for Sept. 16 will deal with the basics of beginning art. Peter McLean, associate professor at the University of Hartford, will discuss the ways of getting started on a painting.

Starting Sept. 20 the association will conduct morning workshops each Saturday at the Lottie Fisk building from 9 a.m. to noon. Members may sign up for the workshops at regular meetings only.

The Sept. 16 meeting will start at 8 p.m. Other officers elected for this season are Robert Sheppard, vice president; Lois Munitte, corresponding secretary; Claire Olson, recording secretary; and Erna Honigman, treasurer.

Entrants are to register by calling Mrs. John Rivers, 872-4440, before 3 p.m. or Mrs. James Hannan, 875-0000, after 3 p.m., at least five days before the show.

Crime Prevention Bureau offers help to residents

EAST HARTFORD
Sheila Tuller
289-4283

Because of the sharp increase in house breaks and burglaries, East Hartford Police Chief Clarence Drumm is reminding all East Hartford residents of the services offered by the Crime Prevention Bureau of his department.

To help safeguard property and reduce the possibility of a burglary in your home, the Crime Prevention Bureau urges residents to take advantage of "Operation Identification."

The Police Department has video engravers available at the Crime Prevention Trailer located in the rear of the Police Department at 497 Tolland St.

These engravers are loaned to residents for three days to mark and record valuables. Stickers stating your valuables have been marked by the engraver are given to engraver borrowers.

Crime Prevention Officers Walter Kehoe and Robert Thayer also suggest security surveys. Both home and business surveys are conducted by appointment. The Crime Prevention Bureau will attempt to point out vulnerable areas and possible corrections.

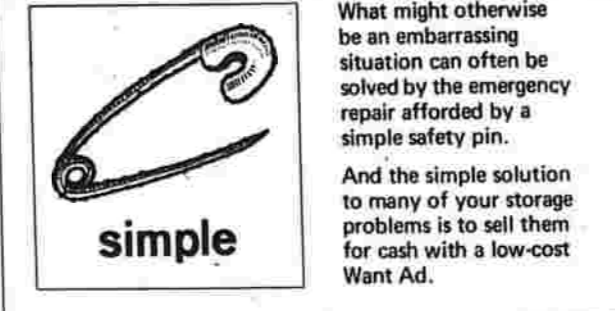

Officer Kehoe and Thayer will answer any questions concerning these services Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. The Crime Prevention office is open to the public or calls may be directed to the officers at 528-9780.

we love your sweater knits - Mother Nature (we wouldn't fool you)

It's no lie. It's as real as the changing Fall foliage - but even more beautiful...our soft and supple sweater knits from "Mother Nature" by Arpeja. The V-neck tapestry-type "Monet" pattern evokes an impressionistic theme...truly romantic in new terms of wit and imagination. 6-gore skirt, tie-waistline, multi-colored beauty in acrylic and nylon. Embroidered flowers brighten the easy 2-piece sweater-skirt set. It's such an appealing contrast - the simplicity of cream colored knit with multi-colored crew-type flowers. 100% acrylic. S-M-L.

Blackstone, Ravalese debate issues, Democrats make choice tomorrow

EAST HARTFORD
Sheila Tuller
289-4283

The second scheduled debate between incumbent Mayor Richard H. Blackstone and Harry Ravalese, mayoral candidate for the Democrats for Open Government, took place last night at Penney High School.

The first debate last week at East Hartford High. Last night, Ravalese took the stand that he was a successful businessman and he would be a successful mayor. He strongly advocates more open government for the people of East Hartford as his party banner indicates. Ravalese also thinks East Hartford should have a Board of Finance.

Mayor Blackstone feels the Town Council is a board of finance and his administration is based on a policy of strong fiscal stability. The mayor cited for the gathering, which was slightly smaller than last week's audience, accomplishments of town departments since he became mayor. Among these was the establishment of the Emergency Medical Service and the Tolland St. drainage project which is nearing completion.

Blackstone, Ravalese, and their respective slates will go before the Democratic Party voters in a townwide primary election tomorrow. The polls will be open from noon to 8 p.m.

HEW cites Ms. Dellafera

Ms. Heidi Dellafera has been cited by the secretary of the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare.

The special citation was awarded in recognition of her extraordinary and invaluable services in the development and drafting of the department's regulation establishing maximum allowable costs for drugs (MAC) in programs funded by the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare.

The citation reads: "As a young attorney in the Office of General Counsel, Ms. Dellafera was assigned the difficult and exacting task of drafting the MAC regulation which demanded legal services of a high order, including analysis of complex statutes and regulations, consideration and analysis of over 2,600 comments received in response to the proposed regulation, identification and resolution of a number of difficult legal and policy issues, and drafting not only the basic regulation but also a comprehensive preamble responding to the comments on the proposed regulation. These truly effective legal services were rendered on a daily basis during the past year and a half, including nights and weekends over a period of several months."

The proclamation of the MAC regulation constitutes a major departmental initiative which is likely to have far-reaching effects. The department and indeed the public are indebted to Ms. Dellafera for her efforts.

Ms. Dellafera graduated from Manchester High School in 1966, from LaSalle College in 1970, and from Georgetown Law School in 1973.

She was admitted to the Washington, D.C., bar in 1974. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis P. Dellafera of 142 Lakewood Circle.

Lack of base hits plague Red Sox

CLEVELAND (UPI) — It doesn't mean a thing if you don't have it swing. The Boston Red Sox hoped to recover their lead in the 10th inning after dropping two straight to the red hot Cleveland Indians.

The Indians, who have won five straight and 10 of their last 12 games, whipped the Sox 3-2 in the 10th inning Tuesday night as Alan Ashby singled in George Hendrick with the winning run.

"We are just not hitting," said Boston manager Darrell Johnson. "We are not scoring runs the way we are capable of doing. I thought Bill Lee pitched a great game and the reason I had no one warming up is because I think Lee is the best double-play pitcher in the major leagues."

After Hendrick led off the 10th with a double, Charley Spikes fanned and Buddy Bell was given an intentional walk. Ashby worked the count to 2-2 before he gave up a home run to Boog Powell's double.

Lee, who fanned eight and was tagged for 10 hits, failed for the fourth time to gain his 18th victory and is now 17-9. Boston's pitchers totaled at home are Reggie Cleveland (11-9) and Roger Moe (12-3). Detroit is going with Vern Riffe (11-10) and David Lemanczyk (25-1).

NEW YORK (UPI) — "We've got our sights on third place now (1 1/2 games separates them from the New York Yankees in the American League East) and we're going to win it," said manager Tom Post.

As late into the season as July 29, Robinson's Cleveland Indians were in the American League East cellar along with the lowly Detroit Tigers. And had Frank Robinson been anyone other than Frank Robinson—baseball's first black manager to start his first season as a big league pitcher—he'd have undoubtedly been fired. Instead, Indians General Manager Phil Seghi is doing the usual "Frank's doing the best job under the circumstances" vote of confidence and Robinson, who everyone knew wouldn't be fired anyway, remained.

Bobby Bell and Boog Powell drove home the other two Indians runs. Orioles, 3-1, won 4-2. Home runs by Bobby Grich and Dave Duncan backed the four-hit pitching of Day. Alvin Dark of Baltimore closed to within five games of Boston in the East. Lee May's two-run single highlighted a four-run third and Grich added a solo homer in the sixth.

A's, 2-1, Royals 1-0. Billy North's two-out 14th inning single scored Bert Campanaris with an unearned run to give Oakland a victory over Kansas City and stretch the A's lead in the AL West to seven games. Campanaris reached safely when shortstop Fred Patke booted the ball to first. He then stole second and scored easily on North's hit.

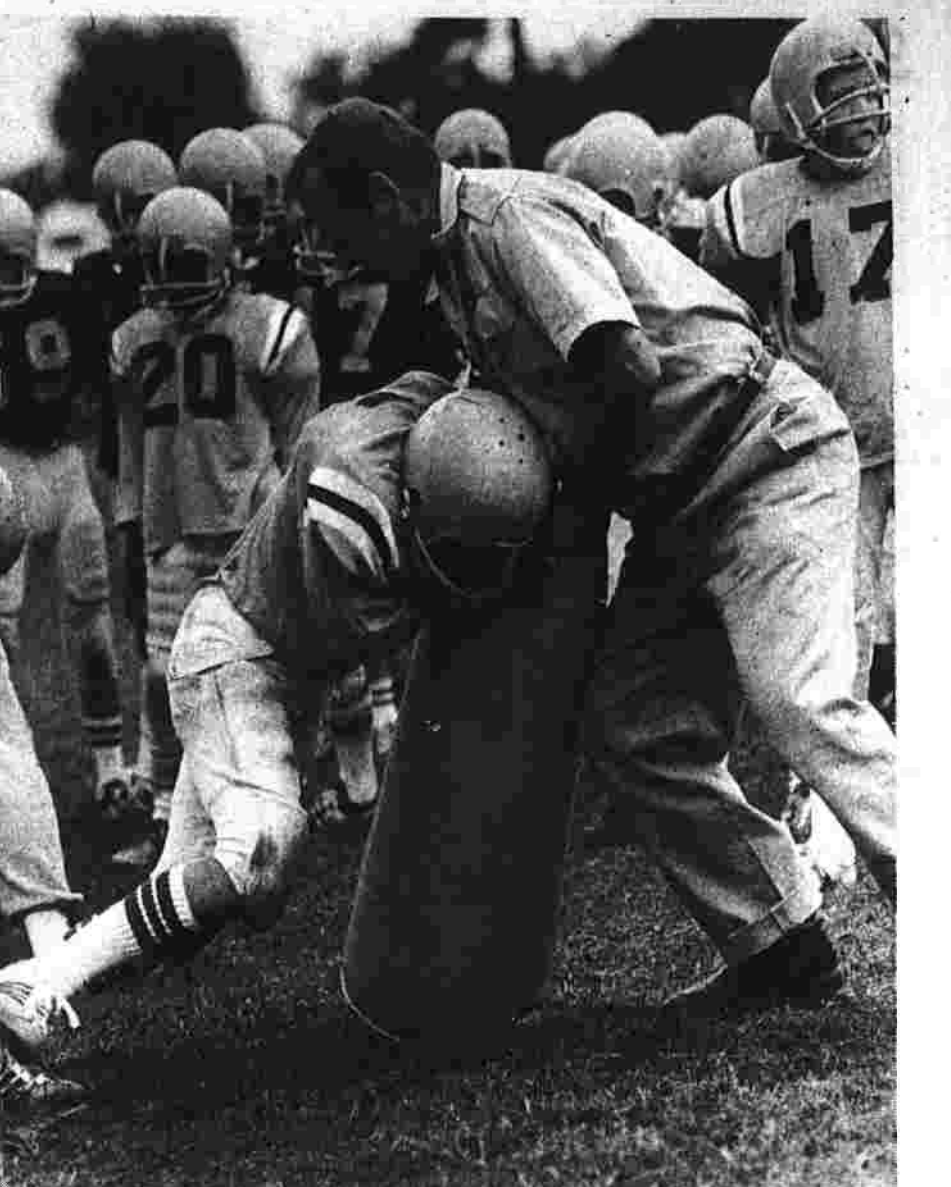

Angels, 5-1, White Sox 4-1. Mike Miley, batting just .184, drove home two runs with a single and sacrifice fly as California handed Wilbur Wood his 19th loss. Miley helped the Angels snap a 1-1 tie and go ahead to 3-1 in the eighth when he singled home one run and later scored. Ed Figueroa (13-12) was the winner.

Rangers, 3-4, Twins 0-2. Dave Nelson singled home two runs to cap a three-run ninth inning in the nightcap after Jim Umberger hurled a four-hit shutout for Texas in the opener. The Rangers battled back from a 2-1 deficit in the second game when Tom Grieve led off the ninth with a double and scored on Danny Thompson's wild throw to first trying to nail Mike Cubbage. Lennie Rendell walked and Nelson then singled to score both runners. In the first game, Umberger, backed by five double plays and Roy Smalley's two RBIs, struck only 28 men.

Baseball meeting NEW YORK (UPI) — Baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn said Tuesday a major league owners meeting is scheduled for Kansas City on Sept. 24 to hear reports from the franchise and player relations committees.

Kuhn "flatly denied" a story published in a Toronto newspaper that the meeting was called to hear a franchise committee discussion on moving of the Minnesota Twins franchise to Seattle or the San Francisco Giants going to Toronto.

Hot, cold Carlton wins on six-hitter

NEW YORK (UPI) — There are still times when Steve Carlton ranks among the best pitchers in baseball. Unfortunately for the Philadelphia Phillies, those times were too few and far between.

Carlton, a former Cy Young Award winner whose career has been extremely erratic, pitched the Phils back into second place in the National League East Tuesday night when he beat the St. Louis Cardinals 5-2 on a six-hitter. He also contributed a two-run double during a four-run sixth inning.

But while there are times like Tuesday night when the 30-year-old left-hander resembles the pitcher who won 27 games for a last place club in 1972, there have been too many times this year when he has looked more like a batting practice pitcher. His victory Tuesday night was his first since Aug. 9 and he had gone six starts without a victory.

Carlton, who has only a 12-13 record, blames much of his poor showing this season on a sore left elbow. "My elbow has bothered me but I felt fine for the past month," Carlton said. "I feel I could have had a good year if it wasn't for the arm miseries. We have a good young ball club and we'll be contenders for many years. There's untapped potential. We have strong arms, good defense and power. If not this year, this team will be winning pennants soon."

In other NL action, Chicago nipped Pittsburgh 6-5. Montreal edged New York 2-1. Atlanta topped Houston 4-1. San Diego routed Cincinnati 11-2 and Los Angeles downed San Francisco 8-3. Cubs 6, Pirates 5. Andy Thornton, who homered earlier, singled in Marty Perez, Mike Lum and Dave May homered to lead Atlanta over Houston. Adrian Devine, recently recalled from the Braves' Richmond farm club, pitched six innings of shut ball to gain the victory.

Padres 11, Reds 2. Willie McCovey drove in four runs, to spark San Diego's run of NL West Division champion Cincinnati. McCovey and Johnny Grubb each had three hits as the Padres pounded three pitchers for 15 hits. Johnny Bench has a two-run homer, his 27th, for the Reds.

Dodgers 8, Giants 3. Pinch-hitter Ken McMullen's bases-loaded ground rule double and Steve Yeager's two-run triple highlighted a five-run eighth inning that carried Los Angeles over San Francisco. Steve Garvey also had a run-scoring triple while Dwyer led off the 10th with a single off reliever Bob Apodaca and Jorgensen doubled to score Dwyer.

Towing amendment tabled

By SOL R. COHEN Herald Reporter Action was tabled by the Board of Directors Tuesday night on proposed amendments to Manchester's parking ordinance — to provide the police chief with the authority to tow and impound vehicles declared parked illegally.

However, the tabling action wasn't because of opposition. It was for reviewing the proposal and for including cost limits for towing and impounding.

By a 5 to 3 count Director Robert Price was out of town and didn't attend the meeting, the board defeated a proposal to limit the police chief's authority in interpreting the regulations.

Close to personal goals

Chambliss, Medich pace Yankee win

NEW YORK (UPI) — For the New York Yankees, it's come down to a question of personal pride. The Yankees, 1 1/2 games behind the front-running Boston Red Sox in the American League East, already have fouled the traditional "wait til next year" call and watch the days of September dwindle down to a precious few.

But although the Yankees are out of contention, the rest of the season still represents a chance for personal glory to reach personal goals established before the season's start.

Chris Chambliss and Doc Medich, experiencing contrasting seasons in this year of disappointment and frustration, both moved a step closer to their personal goals Tuesday night.

Chambliss collected five hits, drove in three runs and scored twice to pace a 17-hit New York attack as the Yankees scored goals to triumph over the Detroit Tigers. Medich improved his record to 13-16 despite allowing 11 hits and five runs in the six innings he worked.

Chambliss, who figured to be a spot player in spring training, upped his average to .297 with his five hits. After a succession of injuries to key Yankee personnel, Chambliss proved he could handle the job of first baseman in the wake of the Yankee bright spots this season.

"I've had four hit games before but I really don't remember a five hit game," Chambliss said. "The only secret tonight was concentration. At this point in the season we're really getting ready for next year. I guess personal goals figure into that. To be hit to hit .300. My previous high was .292."

East Catholic coach and captains

Four seniors have been named captains of the 1975 East Catholic High football team which kicks off its season Saturday at 1:30 against Crosstown Manchester High at Memorial Field. The Eagles' coach is John LaFontana and captains are (l-r) Cephus Nolen, Kevin Kehoe, Brian Foley and Steve Whitham.

East soccer team out to snap jinx

Looking for better things in 1975 is the East Catholic soccer team. The Eagles, 0-12-1 a year ago, open the campaign Friday at MCC's Cougar Field against Rham High. "The key to the season is the first three games," cited second-year Coach Tom Malin. "We haven't won a game in two years (0-9-3 in 1973) and a victory in one of the first three would instill the needed confidence."

Many of the booters attended summer camp or played in one league or another and did well. This is an encouraging sign to Malin. "One thing which I've noticed is that we've had better communication on the field than before. Hopefully we're becoming a little bit more skilled," voiced Malin.

As it stands now, Geoff Blackwell, a junior, will open in the nets for the Eagles. He was a backup next to a year ago but went to soccer school during the summer and has shown vast improvement according to Malin.

The fullback line will find senior Co-Captains Tom Neiswanger and Tim Moriarty anchored there. Seniors Chip Sander and Mike James and sophomore Tom McCurry are the starting midfielders with senior Greg Kelly, juniors Bill Traynor and Jack Neiswanger and sophomores Fred Nasiff and Kevin Williams in the forward line.

Malin indicated that some alterations might be made in the alignment depending on where East needs help. Junior Bob Legier and sophomore Don Martin are top reserves and sophomore Dung Tran, a transfer student from South Vietnam who came here five months ago, could break into the starting line-up by the third or fourth game.

"The players are a year older. Towards the end of last year we improved considerably and I feel we'll have a decent season," Malin opined.

The Eagles have a 14-game slate with seven at home at MCC's Cougar Field.

Opportunity

FOXBORO, Mass. (UPI) — Neil Graff became a somebody today. After more than a season as Jim Plunkett's understudy, the second-year quarterback from University of Wisconsin walked into rehearsal at Schaefer Stadium to honor up for the starting role in the 1975 production of the New England Patriots.

Graff, 25, moved into the spotlight after Plunkett suffered a separated left shoulder in last Sunday night's preview performance against the San Diego Chargers. Plunkett will watch from the wings for an estimated two months.

Like any bit player given a golden opportunity, Graff was humble but eager heading into his biggest professional moment.

"It was a bad break for Jim and a bad break for the team but, at the same time, it's a chance for me," said the native of St. Louis Falls, Mo., who led the Patriots through their first practice today since Plunkett was hurt.

HEMPSTEAD, N.Y. (UPI) — The New York Jets, who ranked next to last in the American Football Conference in rushing last season, made another move Tuesday to strengthen their running attack.

The Jets, who earlier this season acquired Bob Gresham from Houston and Steve Davis from Pittsburgh, dealt Mike Adams to the Chicago Bears Tuesday for Carl Garrett, the Rookie of the Year with the then Boston Patriots in 1969. He went to Chicago two years ago.

Buoniconti out for season, NFL clubs pare rosters

NEW YORK (UPI) — Their names read like a "who's who" of National Football League players but for the most part this year they'll just be spectators.

National Football League clubs had to cut to 46 players Tuesday and many of the names involved were in the all-pro category.

The injury-ravaged Miami Dolphins placed middle linebacker Nick Buoniconti and safety Dick Anderson on injured reserve, meaning they must sit out the season.

Cornell Green, long one of the top safeties in the NFL, announced his retirement from the Dallas Cowboys and Jim O'Brien, a national hero when his field goal in the final seconds gave Baltimore a Super Bowl victory, was cut by the New York Giants.

Coaches made like jugglers as they trimmed and traded to reduce their rosters. They'll have to go through it one more time, too, since the 48-man limit for the regular season goes into effect next week.

Buoniconti was extremely unhappy about the move. He broke his wrist in several places last week and must wear a cast all season. He would have been unable to play for a month.

"I think the owners have put themselves into a corner with this rule," Buoniconti said. "There's no room for a guy who is not out for five or six weeks. They did it as an economy move but I don't think they used good judgment. The rule makes it more difficult for the players, too, because you'll see guys trying to play who might not be recovered from an injury.

"But it's not the end for me. I'm not going to retire. I just don't feel like I should. My caliber of football doesn't warrant retiring. I feel good mentally and I feel strong."

Green, who like Buoniconti is 35, said he felt he could no longer put up with the rigors of pro football.

"I thought about retiring last year," said Green, who will work with the Cowboys' scouting department. "I said I would come back this season and would stay if the young players did not come through. Once training camp gave Baltimore a Super Bowl victory, was cut by the New York Giants.

The lighter side: High court juggling another hot potato

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. Supreme Court no stranger to judicial juggling, may soon have another hot potato on its hand.

Under a show-cause order growing out of a lawsuit in New York, Howard Hughes must appear in court in Manhattan on Sept. 17 or risk being declared legally dead.

Being declared legally dead is not exactly the same thing as being sent to the electric chair. Given a choice, most persons would not hesitate to choose the former.

Nevertheless, declaring Hughes legally dead would, in a sense, elevate failure to appear in court to a capital offense. So the question arises as to whether the court will violate the Supreme Court's limitations on the death penalty.

In previous rulings, the court has found capital punishment unconstitutional except in a narrow range of cases. Failing to appear in court was not one of them.

Ordinarily, the worst thing that happens to a no-show is a contempt of court rap.

If Hughes were declared legally dead, the seldom seen billionaire almost certainly would appeal, putting it up to the Supreme Court to decide whether his case came under the constitutional ban on cruel and unusual punishment.

Up to now, the court's power to declare a person legally dead has been but sparingly applied. In some states, a woman whose husband waxes five or more televised football games on a given week end may have him declared legally dead. Mostly, however, the courts refrain from presuming an individual deceased if there is some chance he is still among the living.

What, then, would ensue in the Hughes case if the Supreme Court refused to resurrect him? One possibility is that states that declare a person legally dead are executed under old capital punishment laws will now start sentencing them to be declared double jeopardy.

Nobody could be declared legally dead twice for the same offense.

The Battle of Moores Creek, North Carolina, was the opening engagement of the Revolutionary War in the south, and is often called the Lexington and Concord of the south. Here on Feb. 27, 1776, a force of 1,500 loyalist militia attacked a patriot force of about 1,000 men under Col. James Moore. The patriots turned back the loyalist assault and subsequently captured or dispersed the entire loyalist command. The British, moreover, abandoned their plans for conquering the southern colonies and did not resume major operations in the south until late in the war, the World Almanac notes.

Harris ends first tour in camper

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Democratic presidential candidate Fred Harris, who has toured the country, ended his first tour in a camper on Monday.

Harris, who has raised almost three times as much money in California the week after his tour than he did in the previous four.

"It is clear you can raise money from large contributors without the war as an issue," said Harris aide Frank Greer, who accompanied the former Oklahoma senator on the California portion of his tour.

The tour ended with weekend trips to Albuquerque, N.M., and El Paso, Tex., and a jet flight back to Washington Monday.

Greer, however, said the camper trip was not designed primarily to raise money, while Harris' day in California was to raise money. He said the tour, to let Harris meet "average Americans on the main street and filling stations of America," was to be self-sufficient financially. He said money collected from passing a gasoline can around at each rally and picnic would pay the estimated $7,000 cost of the trip.

Actually, Greer said, the trip raised about $9,000 from Washington, D.C., to Pleasanton, Cal., and another $24,000 in California after Harris turned in the rented camper at San Francisco and made a series of personal appearances there and in Los Angeles before groups of rich liberals.

Although federal law limits individual contributions to $1,000 — a fact Harris says "cuts the rich folks down to our size" — those to whom Harris appealed last week are valuable because they "have the ear of other" (big contributors) around the country, Greer said.

Rosary Society
installs Monday

St. Bridget Rosary Society will have its installation banquet Monday at Willie's Steak House. The event will begin with a social hour at 6:30 p.m., followed by dinner at 7:30.

Joseph McDonough, deputy commissioner of consumer protection, will be the guest speaker.

For reservations, call Mrs. Chester Parick, 648-4411, or Mrs. Frank Vucic, 643-9675.

NEWS FOR SENIOR CITIZENS

By WALLY FORTIN

Howdy! I guess the big news you've been waiting for is that our Food Program starts this coming Monday noon. Lunch will be served on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, from noon to 12:30 p.m. They will consist of homemade soups, sandwiches, dessert and a beverage for 50 cents.

On Thursdays we will be served from noon to 12:45 p.m. at 1 per meal. Look for the menus in Saturday's column.

Speaking of our food program we are happy to say that our good friend, Nancy Lattuca, will be back in charge of the program, while hubby Frank is returning to college for additional training. Marion Keegan will be back also along with Julia Patalak who helped us out a few times last year.

We can't overlook our students who are anxious to get back with us. This program, labeled Senior Citizens Food Service and Training Program under the auspices of the Manchester Public School System.

Bob Hope Show
Well, we started registering for the Bob Hope Show, and to my surprise we still have a few seats left on the first bus. I thought for sure more of our members would be anxious to see him in person, and he really has a terrific show planned. So here's hoping that we can pick up at least ten more people so that we can take the bus. We also keep our good name and credit at the Civic Center for reserving seats in advance.

Gloria's corner
Next week starts our big season, and here in Gloria to tell you what to expect.

The important item on the agenda is our shuffleboard tournament going on the week of Sept. 15. Please come in to sign up, for the more the merrier. The Jayces are sponsoring this tournament so let's go all out to show them our appreciation.

The week of Sept. 15 also starts our craft classes. On Tuesday at 10 o'clock my friend, drickson will teach oil painting again, the requests that all beginners be present for the first meeting. Tuesday morning we will also register for ceramics.

On Wednesday morning our crew embroidery classes will start downstairs. On Wednesday afternoon we are going to start a multi-craft class to be held downstairs also. We are going to use our new sewing machines to make articles for our fair, and of course one for yourselves.

Because of the shuffleboard tournament, the ceramic and craft classes will not start the week of Sept. 15. We will have registration for them only. I do have a job that needs doing, though. We have 6,000 envelopes that need to be addressed. Any senior who likes to write will be welcomed to help us with this task.

Setback results
Our activities start last Friday when we had 59 players for our setback games with the following winners:
Josephine Schuetz, 139; Ernesta Donnelly, 132; Ann Demko, 131; Alice Shorette, 129; Felix Jesanis, 126; Al Chellman, 125; Roy Duray, Claire Comins and Tom Murphy, 124; Edward Scott, 120; Eva Lutz 118; John Gottschalk, Louis Weber and Wilfred Meister, 117.

Here's a bit of news for someone who might be interested in a little part-time job. A person is looking for a long-range, part-time employee as a child supervisor for two boys ages 8 and 11. The hours would be with the school schedule. The work could be so arranged as to have more than one person interested to share the number of days.

Square dancing
On Tuesday morning we started our square dance lessons here at the center. We had our good friend Happy Vanden Putte on hand to do the calling and there were 20 members present. This class is open to all Manchester seniors, and anyone interested should drop by next Tuesday morning at 9, which is an hour earlier than last year, so make a note of this. Beginners are welcome, and it's a great opportunity to have some fun.

Many problems face pollution fighters

By PATRICK A. MALONE

COLUMBIA, Mo. (UPI) — There's a major stumbling block in the fight against environmental pollution: Scientists can't agree on how much is harmless and how much is dangerous.

It's even hard to find agreement on how much pollution is in the air, water and soil.

The problem is twofold — some people can absorb high levels of hazardous elements, such as lead, and show no ill effects, while others are poisoned at much lower levels.

And a person whose blood is tested for lead is likely to be given different results depending on who makes the test.

Dr. James Pierce, director of the University of Missouri Environmental Trace Substances Center, said the problem of inconsistent results is well-known to analytical chemists but not to the public. Different laboratories analyzing the same material come up with different answers.

"The situation is the same for any element being analyzed," Pierce said. "We're on solid ground with the inorganic samples we analyze, but biological samples contain so many substances that their complexity masks our ability to analyze them accurately."

Pierce said chemists are working hard to find the source of error in their analysis of biological samples, but he said one problem has been the government's unwillingness to pay for such research.

"Every time such a proposal is submitted, the feds reject it — 'pedestrian,' they say — not real research," Pierce said.

But it's fundamental research. In my opinion, some major progress is being blocked until this problem is solved."

Pierce said the lack of consistency in analyzing samples is making government pollution standards meaningless, especially considering the varied response people show to environmental poisons.

Pierce recently attended an international conference in Yugoslavia. A number of reports explored the problem. Toxic Tech researchers, for example, measured a group of children in El Paso living in the city's "Smeltertown" district where lead exposure was high. They were compared physically, intellectually and psychologically to non-exposed children and were found healthy in every respect.

Insurance courses at UConn

The University of Connecticut—recognizing that Connecticut is the Insurance State and Hartford is the Insurance City—will offer a variety of insurance courses this fall.

Dr. William Fisher, assistant dean of UConn's School of Insurance, said the first term's curriculum includes courses leading to professional designations of Fellow of the Society of Actuaries, Fellow of the Casualty Actuarial Society, Chartered Property Casualty Underwriter, and Chartered Life Underwriter.

Fisher said the courses are offered to meet the educational needs of the more than 40,000 employees and agents in the insurance field in the area.

Registration dates for the UConn insurance programs are as follows:

- * FSA and FCAS registrations, through Sept. 15.
- * CPU and CLU courses, Sept. 15 to 19.

Course schedules and flyers will be mailed on request. Additional information is available by calling the School of Insurance in Hartford, tel. 527-2149.

Jobless benefits boosted

HARTFORD (UPI) — Unemployment benefits in Connecticut will rise to a maximum of $10 a week on Oct. 5, according to state Labor Commissioner Frank D. Santaguida.

The new maximum only involves new claims filed by the unemployed who draw the funds from the state's already bankrupt unemployed compensation fund. The state is a major debtor in hook to the federal government for $170 million in loans.

There are presently 146,446 unemployment claims on file in the state, with recipients eligible up to 65 weeks. The federal government pays for about half of that time.

The benefit rate, which increased the maximum $8 a year for the past four years, has drained the fund that is supported by businesses, which were assessed a larger payroll tax by the 1975 legislature.

The higher tax is expected to add about $40 million to the present income of $125 million a year. The benefit rate is computed annually on the basis of average factory earnings which rose by $10 last year over the $177.86 per week average in 1973-74.

In Arizona

Dr. Bertram E. Feingold, formerly of Manchester, has moved to Scottsdale, Ariz., and has opened an office for the practice of orthopedic surgery.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold I. Feingold of 19 Crosby Rd., and is married to the former Betty A. Foster of Manchester. They have two children.

Dr. Feingold is a graduate of Manchester High School and received his B.S. degree from Trinity College. He obtained his medical degree from the University of Rochester School of Medicine and completed internship and residency requirements in Rochester, N.Y.

From 1970 to 1972, Dr. Feingold served in the U.S. Air Force Medical Corps as a major. He received the Air Force Commendation Award.

BUSINESS

Iron range is booming

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — Business is booming again on Minnesota's iron range after years of low employment and stagnation since rich open pit iron ore ran out after World War II.

A survey by United Press International shows steel companies are investing or planning to invest more than $1 billion in new or expanded plants for handling taconite — lower grade iron ore — in northeastern Minnesota.

This is expected to create more than 4,000 new permanent jobs, 9,600 during construction.

Taconite is produced by applying extreme heat, cold and magnets to the rock containing the ore. The end result is martite sized iron pellets.

Figures for May, the last month for which complete figures were available, showed unemployment in St. Louis County excluding Duluth — most of the iron range — at 3.0 per cent. This compared with 5.6 per cent in Minnesota as a whole and with the national unemployment rate of 8.3 per cent.

Why all this expansion at a time of economic recession?

Francis Geisenoff, industrial economist with Minnesota's department of economic development, gave several reasons. The taconite process has proved itself, he said. It is producing high grade usable ore, easy to ship because of its high iron concentration, and there's demand for it both in the United States and abroad.

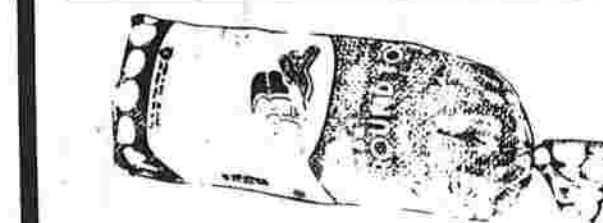

"It looks like the iron range is playing its full role," Geisenoff said.

For many years the range provided an average of 60 per cent of the United States' iron. But the natural ore on the range was exhausted after World War II and "the range's future looked kind of grim," he said.

Now, after a period of imbalance during construction, Geisenoff expects the range to move into an era of prosperity, prompted not only by taconite expansion but also by the timber industry and tourism.

Richard Patton of Hanna Mining Co., president of the Hibbing, Minn., Chamber of Commerce, was even more explicit.

"It's a boom," he said, calling the current taconite expansion "the largest construction project in the world."

Fifth column now surfacing in Vietnam

(Alan Dawson was until last week UPI bureau manager in Saigon. He was asked to leave the country by the government there after having covered events in the country, including the Communist takeover, for the past five years. Following is another of his stories about events there.)

By ALAN DAWSON
BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI)

— Only now can it be seen in South Vietnam just how riddled with Viet Cong were the ranks of the pro-American administrations in that country. Familiar names and faces pop up daily. Some of the most fanatic anti-Communists, it seems, were working all along for the other side.

My personal seavair of Vietnam is one of those pill helmets worn by combat troops of North Vietnam and the Viet Cong.

It is personally autographed by the military police commander who gave it to me. He worked for years inside the South Vietnamese Central Intelligence Agency headquarters while waiting for the Viet Cong victory.

A new province chief today is a Viet Cong lieutenant colonel who also holds rank in the North Vietnamese army. His former job was chief translator and interpreter for U.S. CIA agents in his home province.

The day Viet Cong forces captured his home province, he was with the American adviser there. He was considered by all Americans who knew him to be a dedicated anti-Communist who likely would have his head chopped off by any North Vietnamese troops who captured him.

An American still in Vietnam recently did a survey of the 20 Vietnamese who had worked in his architect's office before the Provisional Revolutionary Government took over the nation April 30.

Card-carrying members of the PRG included the chief surveyor — who was in charge of drawing plans for highly classified ammunition storage sites and bases — and an office maid who emptied the trash every day.

The surfacing of these long-time Communist agents is an education in security and intelligence. It makes it clear the Communist side had good security and intelligence, while the American side had little or none.

Names of men in the Communist hierarchy, totally unknown to sophisticated agents of the American CIA, pop up almost daily.

Miss Heemstra, a former Prairie City High School sprint star, has been rejected for jobs as a police officer in Des Moines, Ames and Newton. Officials say she is too small.

She claims her 5-foot-3 1/2, 125-pound stature should not be allowed to stand in the way of her obtaining a policeman's job.

"I've been trying without luck to get a police patrol job for the last two years," she said.

"Iowa towns are backwards when it comes to law enforcement. We have these old fuddy-duddies who think you have to be a big man to be a police officer. In many other states, they do hire women."

But she's had no luck, so she's working as a matron. "I push a lot of papers and I'm just a glorified secretary now. I would rather be on a police patrol."

OVER 5 MILLION PRESCRIPTIONS SAFELY COMPOUNDED
ARTHUR DRUG

THE FAMILY LAWYER

"Jump! I Dare You!"
Melvin, out walking during a storm, came to a ditch filled with rushing waters. As he gazed at the torrent, a man on the other side shouted:
"Jump! I dare you!"
Melvin jumped, fell short, and was swept away to his death.

In due course Melvin's family filed a damage suit against the other man, charging him with legal responsibility for the tragedy. But a court rejected their claim, saying Melvin had "assumed the risk" by jumping. The court noted that he was an adult in full possession of his faculties, well able to make the choice.

By and large, the law holds each person responsible for his own safety. He courts danger at his own risk. Even if he was not aware of the danger, his legal position is no better than if—as a prudent person—he should have been aware of it. Thus:
A young man, out hunting with a companion, chose to ride through a swampy field in the back of an open truck. During the ride he was jounced out and injured. Demanding damages later, he claimed he had not realized the danger. But the court held him bound by the assumption-of-risk rule because he should have been able to foresee trouble.

On the other hand, the risk may be so obscure that the victim cannot be expected to have foreseen it.
When a woman sought damages for scalp burns she suffered in a beauty shop, the manager pointed out that she had asked him to finish her hair in a hurry. "By making that request," he said, "she assumed the risk of a burn."
But the court said the woman neither knew nor should have known that a speeded-up bleach could be dangerous. Upholding her claim, the court said this was not the sort of hazard that the average customer would recognize without being warned.

Encephalitis epidemic appears over

CHICAGO (UPI) — A rare epidemic of mosquito-carried encephalitis in Illinois appears to be petering out — but it may take a spell of cold weather to wipe out the last of the infected insects.
Meanwhile, health officials said, there could be a few more scattered reports of the virus. In all, 175 confirmed, probable or suspected cases of St. Louis encephalitis have been reported in the state, most of them in Cook County, including Chicago.
Five deaths were reported — three among persons with confirmed or probable cases of encephalitis and two among persons with suspected cases. Officials of the Illinois Department of Public Health report the worst appeared to be over.

"After a thorough review of current data and an analysis of the epidemic curve," Dr. Mark Lepper, director of the department's encephalitis task force, told a news conference. "Lepper said some new cases probably will occur until all the virus-carrying mosquitoes die in cold weather. He urged communities to continue mosquito abatement programs."

Prices effective thru Sat., Sept. 13, 1975.

Police matron wants to be real cop

DES MOINES, Iowa (UPI) — Kristen Heemstra, 31, says she's tired of "pushing a lot of papers" in a job she describes as nothing more than a "glorified secretary."

She is a police matron in the Polk County sheriff's department, she wants to be a full-fledged police officer in Iowa — and she's gone to court to press her demands.

Miss Heemstra, a former Prairie City High School sprint star, has been rejected for jobs as a police officer in Des Moines, Ames and Newton. Officials say she is too small.

She claims her 5-foot-3 1/2, 125-pound stature should not be allowed to stand in the way of her obtaining a policeman's job.

Tax receipts as of Aug. 31 to Manchester's General Fund (two months into the 1975-76 fiscal year) equaled 51.5 per cent of 12-month estimates, a report by Collector of Revenue Ernest James Turek indicates.

He reports $7,619,789 collected against $14,796,594 estimated. The figures are for current and prior years' taxes.

Receipts for current taxes only equal 52.3 per cent of 12-month estimates, with $7,574,924 collected and $14,431,594 estimated from that source.

Program will seek Bicentennial Seniors

"Bicentennial Seniors," a $112,000 scholarship program for high school seniors who will graduate with the Class of 1976, is being launched this month by the National Association of Secondary School Principals.

Complete details are available at the guidance office at Manchester High School.

One national winner will receive a $10,000 scholarship and 102 state winners will receive $1,000 scholarships under the program.

Winners will be selected first locally, then on a statewide level.

Each of the 102 state winners will receive an all-expense paid trip to Williamsburg, Va., in January to attend seminars on educational and social issues and a current events examination emphasizing issues and events from the past year.

Competition will include preparation of a minute-long television script patterned after the CBS television network's 200 years ago today "Bicentennial Minutes," a commentary discussing the relevance of the "minute" for today and the lessons it contains for the future; and a current events examination emphasizing issues and events from the past year.

The program is administered by the National Association of Secondary School Principals and is funded by Shell Oil Company. Applications must be filed by Oct. 6.

Veto fight won

Ford seeks compromise on oil price controls

WASHINGTON (UPI) — With his veto fight won in the Senate over oil price controls, President Ford today sought a quick compromise to prevent suddenly raising gasoline and other prices for consumers.

He also pressed Congress to enact a package of legislation to lessen the impact of the end of controls in case there is no compromise — a situation that would cost Americans $5 billion in higher fuel costs in one year.

Senate Democrats and the House Commerce Committee were holding separate meetings Tuesday to consider a compromise.

The Senate voted 61 to 39 Wednesday to override Ford's veto of a bill extending oil price controls for six months, six votes less than the two-thirds majority needed to override.

The result is the controls, which expired Sept. 1, are now off. That opens the door for prices to more than double on 60 per cent of the oil produced in the United States — rising from $5.25 per barrel to the world market price, currently about $13 a barrel.

This in turn would raise gasoline prices by about three cents a gallon and increase prices of other goods in which fuel is part of the cost.

Neither Ford nor congressional Democrats wanted such a sudden end to controls. It grew out of their confrontation over energy policy. Ford wanted to remove controls gradually.

Administration officials said Ford now is pressing for a compromise in which Congress would reimpose controls for 45 days, then pass another bill phasing them out over 39 months.

In case there is no compromise, Ford Wednesday sent Congress a series of legislative proposals to soften the impact. He called for:

- Removal of the $2-per-barrel petroleum import fee, thrown out by the U.S. Court of Appeals but appealed Wednesday to the Supreme Court.
- Passage of a windfall tax on oil companies.
- A rebate system to give farmers six cents a gallon from the windfall tax and other consumers roughly half that amount.
- Legal and administrative safeguards for independent oil refiners and marketers, and for operators of small service stations.

Weicker vote draws fire

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Anthony Moffett, D-Conn., Wednesday had harsh words of criticism for Sen. Lowell P. Weicker, R-Conn., the only New England senator to support President Ford's plan to abandon oil price controls.

Moffett, who noted the area's heavy dependence on imported oil, said Weicker's vote Wednesday to sustain the result of the vote and predicted higher prices for six months was "the most anti-New England, anti-consumer vote ever cast by a Connecticut senator."

The Democratic-controlled congress fell six votes short of overriding Ford's veto.

Meanwhile, Rep. Christopher J. Dodd, D-Conn., said he was disappointed by the result of the vote and predicted higher prices for everything from gasoline to medicine.

Dodd urged the House leadership to quickly introduce another measure extending oil price controls for at least 60 days.

Moffett, a freshman lawmaker, said Congress' failure to override Ford's veto will result in Connecticut homeowners spending at least another $300 a year for energy, and some industries will see their profits reduced.

Proposed law could penalize state's natural gas users

HARTFORD (UPI) — Natural gas users in Connecticut could be penalized by the federal government under proposed federal legislation if a nationwide shortage occurs. The president of a major distributor says.

Robert Willis, president of Connecticut Natural Gas Co., said a mandatory allocation program could take reserves away from such firms as his which have planned for possible shortages.

Willis, who appeared before a Public Utilities Commission hearing Wednesday on the adequacy of gas supplies for this winter, said states which have failed to watch their gas supplies would be able to tap those of thrifter states.

The proposal was introduced in Congress this week, he said.

Connecticut Energy chief Lynn Alan Brooks said the state faces minimal gas curtailments because of the foresightfulness of the state's distributing firms in developing back-up supplies of manufactured and liquefied gas.

Testimony at the hearing showed that Connecticut faces a probable 2 to 3 per cent curtailment this winter. About 9 per cent of the state's total energy needs is supplied by gas.

Willis said he supports another bill before Congress, however, which would allow states with extra supplies of natural gas to shift them to the state's with those in need.

Under the 180-day moratorium proposal, the surplus gas could be sold at current market levels, he said, rather than the federally imposed price of 55 cents per one thousand cubic feet.

Rockville General to launch first public fund drive

BARBARA RICHMOND
 Herald Reporter

Tieing in with the "Horizons '78" theme of the Bicentennial celebration, officials of Rockville General Hospital announced Wednesday it will initiate its first public fund drive since the facility's inception in 1920.

Robert Boardman, administrator, said that Howard Wolgast of Tolland will head the drive which will get under way Oct. 27 and close Nov. 21 in the tri-town area of Vernon, Tolland, and Ellington.

The drive will be run in cooperation with Donald Eden, chairman of the Bicentennial Commission. Eden, commenting on the tieing in of the drive with the "Horizons '78" theme said, "I can think of no more meaningful way in which the citizens of Vernon and surrounding towns can acknowledge their proud heritage by helping to provide an improved quality of life through the vehicle of expanded and improved health care facilities and services."

Eden explained that the heritage theme, medical environment vital to attracting commissions throughout the United States to concentrate on, calls for the commissions to take on some projects that will have meaning to future citizens.

Boardman said that the funds raised through the drive will go toward buying updated equipment for the hospital. "The hospital has to have cash up front to purchase equipment," Boardman explained.

"Many pieces of equipment are medically outdated before they wear out," he said.

Boardman added that the budget presented for 1975-76, to the Hospital Cost Commission, had in it about $125,000 for equipment. He said if the fund drive does not raise the money then only about one-half of this could be expended. The state does not give the hospitals any money but it does have to approve the budgets.

Marcus Mason, who heads the hospital's Development Fund, established a year or more ago, said with the tie-in with the Bicentennial celebration he would like to have the people have the same feeling that existed when this country was born and that is that people have to get together and help themselves. "I feel this is a wonderful approach," he said.

Mason, asked if any goal had been set for the proposed drive, said they had no standards to go by as this is the first such drive and therefore no goal had been established.

Boardman, asked why he had after these years that the hospital had to ask the public for funds, said there is a vast increase in the need for equipment and the cost of it. He said a hospital is not run like any other business in that it is not in business to make money.

Mason explained that equipment depreciates due to the very rapid improvements in technology.

Charles Chibberg, chairman of the public relations committee of the Board of Trustees, reminded those present that Rockville General with its 4.5 rate increase had the lowest increase of any hospital in the state.

He said he feels this was due to the efficient manner in which the plant is run. He said the hospital is trying to continue to promote and give services second to none and "it's time for the townspeople to participate."

In past years the hospital has received private gifts through wills and such. Eden said, "For years the Rockville-Vernon area has been blessed with the presence of a few exceedingly generous philanthropists who have almost single handedly supported the existence and growth of our fine hospital. Times change, however, and we as a community and a region must now be prepared to shoulder some of the financial responsibilities of this vital facility."

Wolgast, who retired a few years ago as manager of the Burroughs Corp. in Tolland, commented, "The need for an annual drive for hospital development has long been recognized as the most viable way of financing new equipment and services. This type of funding is contrasted with operating expenses normally supported by patient revenue and capital

Discuss upcoming hospital drive

Plans for Rockville General Hospital's first public fund drive were discussed yesterday at a press conference. Violence virtually nil in Boston, Louisville

By United Press International

School attendance in Boston and Louisville, Ky.—both involved in heavy court-ordered busing programs—is below 75 per cent, but rising.

Violence was almost nonexistent in both cities Wednesday.

After nearly a week of desegregation and heavy police contingents, Boston schools Wednesday reported 68.4 per cent of its projected enrollment in classes, and Louisville had 73 per cent.

Arrests for the first week stood at 103 in Boston and about 550 persons in Louisville.

In Louisville, antibusing demonstrations, unlawful since last weekend when protesters and police clashed, are legal again and certain city-approved gatherings could occur as early as Saturday.

The city banned demonstrations after 628 National Guardsmen were activated following a violent weekend outbreak by 10,000 rock-throwing demonstrators.

Although guardsmen were still on duty Wednesday, Mayor Harvey Sloane lifted the ban against assemblies.

"I want to allow free exercise of constitutional rights as long as citizens respect laws of the city and rights of fellow citizens to peace and security of life and property," Sloane said.

Antibusing demonstrators were protesting the court-ordered school desegregation plan involving 22,600 Louisville and Jefferson County students. Wednesday, $1,328 of an expected 124,194 students were in class.
