HARTFORD —Gov. Ella T. Grasso, her husband, and several friends leave today for a 12-day visit to the land of her forefathers. She said last week she hoped to meet with an Italian silk manufacturer to discuss the possible location of a plant in Connecticut.

HARTFORD —Education-Instruction, a social activist group, has charged that 28 towns in the Hartford area have failed to actively recruit minorities and women and therefore it will seek to block distribution of federal revenue sharing funds until the towns' work forces represent the racial mix of their residents.

Regional

JERICHO, Vt. —Eric Schuppin has suffered a nervous breakdown and his wife, Elizabeth, faces a possible 20-year prison term; but their only regret is that the attempted abduction of their daughter, Tamara, in Windsor, Conn., Sept. 4 failed and she remains "enslaved" by a religious sect.

BOSTON —The Boston School Committee chairman says so many whites are fleeing integration, a new plan will be needed to maintain racial balance in Boston's public schools. John J. McDonough claims attendance since school began last Monday under a federal order to bus 25,905 pupils showed schools more segregated than previously.

National

SACRAMENTO, Calif. —Lynette Fromme returns to court Friday to enter a plea to a charge of attempting to assassinate President Ford and to ask that she be allowed to act as her own attorney.

NEW YORK —Attorneys for billionaire Howard Hughes term "absurd" and "bizarre" a move to have his client declared legally dead. Hughes is being sued for $100 million by AirWest airline stockholders.

WASHINGTON —New Hampshire's John Durkin was sworn in as U.S. Senator today by Sen. Norris Cotton, R-N.H., who retired last year and was named interim senator after the Senate failed to resolve last fall's election and ordered the run-off won by Durkin Tuesday.

WASHINGTON —Israeli Defense Minister Shimon Peres says Israel will guarantee it will not attach nuclear warheads to any weapons it gets from the United States. Peres is here trying to convince Secretary of Defense James Schlesinger to supply Pershing missiles and other weapons on a $2 billion shopping list to Israel.

International

MONTREAL — Union workers at eight pulp and paper mills in Ontario and Quebec have served notice they will strike Friday, a move which will cut by 42 per cent Canada's total daily production of 28,500 tons of newsprint. The basic issue is a demand for hourly pay increases and a cost-of-living clause.

LISBON, Portugal —Portugal's military rulers summoned political leaders to new talks today, indicating that the political deadlock blocking formation of a new government may have been broken. A new cabinet might be named today or early Friday, a residential spokesman said.

Hurricane Eloise hits Cuba with heavy rains

MIAMI (UPI) — Hurricane Eloise hit eastern Cuba with torrential rains today after leaving 34 dead and nearly 12,000 homeless and causing more than $50 million damage in Puerto Rico and the Dominican Republic.

The storm began to weaken after sloshing ashore on the Communist island and at 9 a.m. the National Hurricane Center said Eloise was becoming disorganized as it moved over land. The weather agency said hurricane force winds of 75 m.p.h. "remain only in a few squalls."

At last report, the storm was located near latitude 20.3 north, longitude 76.0 west, and moving west of 12 m.p.h.

Havana radio, monitored in Miami, said Eloise was dousing eastern Cuba with heavy rains this morning, but there was no mention of injuries or property damage. The center of the twister passed less than 20 miles north of the U.S. Naval base at Guantanamo Bay.

Hurricane warnings remained in effect for eastern Cuba and the Ragged Islands in the Bahamas. A hurricane watch was in effect for the Exumas and Long Islands.

"Heavy rains will continue over eastern Cuba today and spread over the remainder of Cuba and Jamaica later today and tonight, posing the treat of flooding," hurricane forecasters said.

"The longer the hurricane remains over land the weaker it will become, and it could be downgraded to a tropical storm later today if this trend continues," the 9 a.m. advisory said.

Eloise hammered the northern shore of the Dominican Republic Wednesday and gingerly skirted Haiti before heading for the mountainous eastern tip of Cuba.

A Dominican government spokesman said early reports indicated "extensive damage with considerable loss of life from Cape Engano almost to the (Haitian) border."

Six drowning deaths were reported in Santo Domingo when the Ozama River, which cuts across the city, overran its banks in a slum area. Winds knocked down power poles and uprooted trees in the capital.

Pedro Justiniano Polanco, director of civil defense, said his organization was sheltering at least 6,000 persons left homeless by flooding.

Further flooding was expected in the Dominican Republic and possibly Haiti today from continuing torrential rains.

Officials said they feared crop damage in the farm-rich Cibao region of the northern Dominican Republic would run into millions of dollars.

In Puerto Rico, hit hard by rains and floods Monday and Tuesday, officials set the casualty toll at 28 dead, 275 injured and 5,430 homeless.

A civil defense spokesman tentatively set property damage at $50 million.

On Oct. 4, 1963, Hurricane Flora killed an estimated 4,000 persons on Haiti's southeastern peninsula, then began a four-day skip in and out of Cuba, claiming another 1,000 lives there.

Lebanese factions agree to another cease-fire

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — The government announced today that warring political factions have agreed to a new cease-fire to end bitter block-to-block fighting that has paralyzed Beirut.

At least 26 persons were reported to have died in combat with mortars, bombs, and machine gun fire between leftists and right-wing militiamen, police sources said.

Beirut radio broadcast a government statement that agreement had been reached by all parties for a cease-fire at 4 p.m. (11 a.m. EDT).

Several previous attempts at arranging a truce have broken down in renewed fighting.

A joint committee has been formed to implement the cease-fire as a result of talks between Premier Rashid Karami and all political groups, the announcement said.

The government gave no details of who would serve on the joint committee.

In the past, joint Lebanese and Palestinian committees have tried to end the conflict between Moslem leftists and right-wing Christians.

Both sides threw bombs, rockets and mortars into the battle which erupted soon after midnight.

Karami, who has opposed the use of troops, formed a "conciliation committee" Wednesday night to help halt the conflict.

It did not have time to meet before the latest outbreak began.

The announcement of a new cease-fire followed an emergency cabinet meeting called by President Suleiman Franjeh.

The meeting was delayed while Karami met with Moslem leaders to discuss alternatives to army intervention.

Kennedy to evaluate state gaming laws

HARTFORD (UPI) — J. Walter Kennedy, former commissioner of the national Basketball Association, will assess Connecticut's gaming laws and assess how well they have worked, Gov. Ella T. Grasso said today.

Kennedy, also former mayor of Stamford, will re-examine existing legislation authorizing horse and dog racing, jai alai, off track betting and the lottery, Mrs. Grasso said.

"Kennedy will assess all of the state's special revenue operations to determine how well they have worked," Mrs. Grasso said.

Kennedy, 62, has no prior involvement in the Connecticut gaming operations, she said.

"He can therefore approach this re-evaluation with no preconceived notions or commitments," she said.

Kennedy's appointment comes at a time when:

— The licensing of the state's first horse race track at Wolcott has become bogged down with environmental and traffic problems as well as public opposition.

— Senate Leader Joseph J. Fauliso, D-Hartford, says the market for horse racing is declining and Connecticut couldn't compete with well-established tracks and maintain quality racing.

— The Harness Horsemen's International is filing a suit challenging the state's plan to beam telecasts of New York horse races to off track betting theaters in Connecticut.

— Questions and confusion have intensified about the Connecticut lottery.

— Allegations of illegals in the operation of so-called "Las Vegas Nights" have been made. Their operation, however, is not under the jurisdiction of the Commission on Special Revenue.

After-tax profits bounce back indicating economic recovery

By LEONARD CURRY
UPI Business Writer

Manufacturers' profits soared 34.4 per cent after taxes in the April-June quarter, the Federal Trade Commission reported today.

After-tax profits, which had dipped 43 per cent to $9.3 billion in the first quarter, bounced back to $12.5 billion — another indication the economy is recovering from its worst recession in 30 years.

The FTC said in Washington the biggest gains were made in rubber, glass and textiles. Despite lagging auto sales, after-tax profits swelled 800 per cent from a low $114 million base for transportation industries.

The financial improvement for manufacturers helps account for widespread job gains for furloughed factory workers since June.

Job opportunities continued to improve in the last week of August, when requests for unemployment benefits dipped to the lowest level since February, the Labor Department said.

The Commerce Department said a record $5.4 billion increase in factory payrolls in August gave the nation's private sector income its biggest one-month boost in 16 years.

Personal income from both private and government sources increased 1.5 per cent to $1,257 trillion.

The government also reported the balance of payments bulged to a record $4.06 billion in the second quarter.

But the housing industry lagged in August. The rate of increase in housing starts slowed from 14 per cent in July to 1.7 per cent. Building permits dipped 5 per cent, and mortgage interest rates rose to the highest level in four months.

Interest rates for used homes increased from 9.08 per cent in July to 9.14 per cent in August, the biggest one-month increase since late 1974, the Federal Home Loan Bank Board said. Mortgage interest rates on new homes moved up to 8.91 per cent from 8.89 per cent in July.

The average price of a new home increased $1,100, to $45,200, but older home prices dropped $2,200, to an average $38,900.

Services sales tax repeal sought

HARTFORD (UPI) — Saying the 7 per cent sales tax on services and rented and leased equipment is driving businesses out of the state, Republican lawmakers Wednesday renewed their call for a special session to repeal it.

House Minority Leader Gerald F. Stevens, R-Milford, and Senate Minority Leader Lewis B. Borne, R-Bloomfield, said the tax is having an adverse impact on the job climate.

"They said there is a potential loss of 10,000 jobs in Connecticut due to businesses that are considering moving their operations out of the state because the tax has made their products uncompetitive. 'We're in the crisis stage,' Stevens said. "It is no longer idle talk." The leaders said the $25 million loss in revenue could be made up by cutting back on state spending. They said there is no support in the legislature for implementing an income tax to boost revenues.

Under the expanded sales tax, the Republican leaders said, business is paying 47 per cent of the revenues raised by the sales levy, compared to 23 per cent previously.

Instead, they said, Connecticut should take a cue from New York City, where the city has been on the brink of default for several months, and look closely at the spending side of government. The leaders distributed a list of 20 firms they said already have left or are planning to leave the state because of its tax structure.

They praised the Connecticut State Labor Council, AFL-CIO, for recognizing the problem and calling for repeal of the levy. However, the leaders said they do not endorse the labor group's proposal for a state income tax.

The Industrial Development Research Council has given Connecticut its lowest rating for the cooperation the state gives to industrial developers, the leaders said. "They consider Connecticut to be anti-growth in the area of industrial development," they said.

Discuss campaign strategy

Democratic Town Chairman Ted Cummings, left, discusses campaign strategy with Lt. Gov. Robert Killian, as State Treasurer Henry Parker listens in. Killian and Parker helped Manchester Democrats open campaign headquarters Wednesday night. A crowd of about 100 was on hand.

Town Democrats set goal of three victories in a row

By SOL R. COHEN
Herald Reporter

Manchester Democrats were in high spirits Wednesday night as they formally opened campaign headquarters and as they launched their campaign to return 17 incumbent Democrats to office. About 100 people, mostly town committee members and other party workers, were on hand for what turned out to be a giant pep rally.

As Democratic Town Chairman Ted Cummings told them, "You're all going to be a part of history in Manchester. The Democrats here never have won three municipal elections in a row. We're going to do exactly that this year."

Democratic headquarters again is at 445 Hartford Rd., in the former Norman's Consumer Sales Store.

On hand for the campaign kick-off were Lt. Gov. Robert Killian and State Treasurer Henry Parker, along with the local Democratic candidates.

It was Parker who set the pattern for the high spirits when he said, "They did it in New Hampshire, you'll do it in Manchester in November and we'll do it in Washington in 1976. A pleasant wind is blowing in from New Hampshire, and it's settling over Manchester."

Parker was referring to the 27,000-vote victory Tuesday in New Hampshire for Louis C. Wyman, elected in a run-off to the U.S. Senate. And, he was referring also to the 1976 election for president.

Offering his services to Manchester Democrats in this year's campaign, Parker said, "I'm grateful and I say 'thank you' to Manchester voters for helping in the statewide victory last November."

Killian, a frequent visitor to Manchester, was introduced by Cummings as "a symbol of unity to the Democratic party in the state and a first-class gentleman."

"Coming here, my friends, is like not even leaving home, and you all know that. We're privileged to be here. There's a mutuality in politics that exceeds all other aspects of life. If you support me for office, how can I do other than come to Manchester and support you?"

Praising Manchester for always insisting on excellence in its public officials, he said, "Your organization and leadership and your dedicated workers aren't exceeded, nor even matched, in other towns in the state. You choose your candidates wisely and then you support them. This is one town that's sensitive to the needs of all its citizens."

Noting the New Hampshire vote as a Democratic trend, he said, "Registering voters is the secret of political success, and you're doing it here in Manchester."

Town Treasurer Roger Negro said in brief remarks, "This New Hampshire thing certainly has given us all a shot in the arm. The Republicans wrote off Durkin as they once wrote off Harry Truman. They proved that complacency is the enemy."

Eleanor Coltman, representing the candidates for the school board, said, "If anyone can be said to be a born Democrat it's me. I can't imagine working or voting for anyone but a Democrat. The Democrats have a good team and all are worthy of support."

Mayor John Thompson, representing the candidates for the Board of Directors, cited all Democratic officeholders for "their sensitivity and responsiveness to the people."

"We run as a team, and we're indeed fortunate to have the candidates we have," he said.

Thompson listed some of the accomplishments by Democrats. He said they include sidewalks, hot meals for the elderly, buses for the elderly, additions to Illing and Bennet Junior Highs and removal of ninth graders from Manchester High School, recreation improvements, acquisition of Case Mt., acquisition of the Manchester Water Co. and its open space holdings.

Cummings concluded the rally with a prediction of victory for the Democrats in November and a call "for all the hands and all the warm bodies and all the help we can get for the campaign ahead."

Anti-abortion proposals rejected by subcommittee

WASHINGTON (UPI) — After 18 months of hearings, a Senate subcommittee has rejected all proposals to overturn the Supreme Court's decision legalizing abortion on demand. It effectively ended the emotional right-to-life debate — at least for the current Congress.

Eight proposed amendments to the Constitution, ranging from a flat prohibition on all abortions to versions giving each state the power to pass its own abortion law, were stricken down by the panel Wednesday.

The closest vote was a 4-4 tie on a proposal to let the states set laws on all issues involving life, including abortion and euthanasia.

Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., chairman of the Senate constitutional rights subcommittee, said after the votes, "I think the committee has spoken at least for the duration of this Congress."

He added it would be "highly unlikely" for the full Judiciary Committee to ignore the subcommittee action and renew the debate.

The votes followed hearings involving 86 witnesses and 125 hours of testimony that aired all aspects of the "right-to-life" issue.

The Supreme Court ruled on Jan. 22, 1973, that the decision on abortions must be left to the woman and her doctor — without state interference — during the first three months of pregnancy.

The majority decision said that during the second trimester the state can regulate the abortion procedure only in ways that are reasonably related to health.

During the final three months of pregnancy, the opinion said, the state can outlaw abortions except to preserve the mother's health.

Opinion

Manchester has spirit as well as charm

It is easy to get into a rut these days. It seems that for every obstacle overcome two more arise. And while most of us can without hesitation find something to gripe about nationally and on a state level, a lot of times we are most critical of the things which seem to go wrong in Manchester.

The closer something is to us the harsher our judgments are apt to be, and likewise the bigger impact our criticisms are apt to have on our local officials.

This is not to say that we should not point out any shortcomings that become apparent in our community. To do so would be to ignore reality. But this is a good time of the year to reflect on the things which are good in Manchester.

We have an excellent school system. True, it has problems like almost every other public school system in the state and nation; but anyone honestly looking at the educational opportunity in Manchester's public schools must admit we are more fortunate than many other communities. To maintain this favorable balance will require patience, understanding and continued communication between the citizenry and the educators.

Supplementing our public schools are the parochial schools, Howell-Cheney Tech and Manchester Community College, plus an enviable geographic location that puts Manchester in the center of a net of education institutions ranging from UConn at Storrs to the east and Hartford's many fine schools to the west.

OPEN FORUM

Bible ruling criticized

To the editor: This evening (Monday, Sept. 15) the chairman of the Zoning Board of Appeals with the consent of the other board members present in a public hearing in the Municipal Building in Manchester, ruled that any quotation from the Holy Bible was out of order in the meeting. I appeal to you, and all of my fellow Americans, citizens of the Town of Manchester, to be concerned about such a ruling. Is this freedom of speech as guaranteed by the United States Constitution and Bill of Rights? How can a people who worship God and love His Word not be influenced and governed by the same in public as well as in private? No doubt all of us have listened to the President of the U.S. quote some Scripture passage in the course of his speaking to the American public. And, it is not uncommon for men to quote the Bible in the halls of Congress.

When the reading of a Scripture verse seems appropriate and relevant to the subject at hand, should the quotation be forbidden in a public meeting in the Town of Manchester or in any town, U.S.A.?

Who are we afraid of? Is it some protesting agnostic or atheist who we fear might be offended by the reading of one little verse from the Bible? Or, is it possibly the authority of the Word of God man seeks to avoid?

Nevertheless, the issue stands. How free are we to speak our mind and our sincere convictions? When moral issues and social problems concern us, can we divorce the Bible from all discussion? Should we note what men in Bible history have stated?

It seems good to me that we be reminded of statements made by former Presidents of our nation concerning the Bible. Thomas Jefferson said, "The Bible is the cornerstone of liberty." George Washington, "It is impossible rightly to govern the world without God and the Bible." William McKinley, "The more profoundly we study this wonderful Book and the more closely we observe its divine precepts, the better citizens we will become and the higher will be the destiny of our nation." Also, a quote from Ulysses S. Grant. He said, "Hold fast to the Bible as the sheet anchor of your liberties; write its precepts on your heart and practice them in your lives. To the influence of this Book we are indebted for the progress made, and to this we must look as our guide in the future."

Finally, I wish to express my respect for the elected and appointed officials of the fine community. Dedication and hard work on their part is often not appreciated as it should be. I have malice toward none.

Sincerely yours,
 Kenneth L. Gustafson, pastor

Extended family and summer's end

Here we are at summer's end, a season that has passed too quickly, but with the right mixture of work and sun and play. Also of family reunions. If you wait long enough even the two-generation family, whose children have peeled off and gone their own way, becomes delightfully — if too briefly — a three-generation extended family. The children have wooed and mated and found work, and some have children of their own. They bring their families back to the family center, for holidays and visits and family events, to drink from the old springs, still welling up. This was our experience through August. Joany and Peter Townsend came from London, where Peter works, with their children — Pamela and John. Michael and Leslie came from Bolinas, Calif., where they work with neurologically damaged adolescents, and of course they brought Joshua with them. Steve came from his Vermont hilltop house. Adam, too, came from a year spent in California, most recently from a meditation workshop in the High Sierras, to get ready for entering Amherst. There were 11 of us at the table as we celebrated Jennie's birthday.

Don't discount what families learn from each other. From Peter and Joany we learn about the British crisis, and energy, and the Indian crisis, too, since they were stationed in India earlier. Mike and Leslie fill us in on nutritional theory and therapy, where I start at scratch. Steve talks engagingly about his world travels and about the Vermont soil communities, which delights the children. Adam has a medley of learning experiences to talk about, during his precocious wander-year. Jenny talks of her work and many things. And the paterfamilias? Strange to say, he mostly listens, making mental notes for his writing, content to get joy from the visible growths and flowers.

It is good for everyone, this flowing together again in reunion. It is a form of renewal for the older generation. It gives the middle generation, standing between the late and early energies, a sense of the eternal recurrence of life forms. It is especially good for the children, since all children need more than anything a sense of human connections. At one point my sister, Silvia Williams, joined us with her three children and a brood of grandchildren. Pam and John, at 9 and 7, were agog with delight, filling in all the relationships: Who was who, who kin, who belongs with whom?

I don't delude myself into thinking this is genuinely an extended family. Certainly not in the sense that applied to the Old Testament families, or to the early American republic, held together by love, children, kinship, and by the rhythms and necessities of daily life.

Yet families remain crucial, however mobile and shifting their forms may be. What are we as a society? We are mainly three clusters of relationships. One is the family clusters, held together by love, children, kinship, and by the rhythms and necessities of daily life. One is the cluster of work and school groups, and the looser groups banded voluntarily for common aims. A third is the friendship groups, fleeting or long-range, for breaking bread and for exchanging experiences and ideas.

Thus far the strongest of the three has been the family, as a sanctioned frame bond, a form of social positioning, a frame within which children grow up. If the family becomes a prison — as Philip Aries calls the nuclear family in a recent issue of Psychology Today — then nothing about the family will truly work, and the children, too, will suffer. If the family gets broken too badly, coming apart, the children will find the broken connection hard to patch up, until finally they can replace them by forming families of their own.

I agree with Philip Aries that the nuclear family form has often proved too stifling for true personal development for any of its members, and that new, freer and more extended family forms are already developing. They are emerging as changes within and alternatives to the traditional family.

Meanwhile our best bet is to keep the family, whatever the form, as vital and joyful as we can. At the same time every family member can get added strength from the work and play groups, the schooling and friendship groups, without which he cannot be a full person.

NOW comes on too strong for many

WASHINGTON — Chatting with a reporter recently, a liberal Democratic Presidential candidate was asked if he would seek endorsement by the militant National Organization for Women (NOW). "For God's sake, don't quote me," he said, "but as of today the answer has to be no. I have an awful feeling about the national electorate, including women voters, is not quite ready for NOW. In fact, one of my staff says I should reject NOW endorsement, if proffered." The candidate has to be looking squarely at the same quandary: NOW is articulate, determined and growing in membership. But it is not universally beloved by other feminist organizations or individual women voters. The impression among many skewed political operators is that NOW endorsement of a Presidential candidate would bring him more enemies than friends.

For example, officials of the National Women's Political Caucus (NWPC) will tell you anonymously that "NOW runs around talking like it represents ALL women — all feminist causes," said one NWPC leader. "Those dames think they own the women's liberation movement. Well, they don't. Here at NWPC, we're opposed to a lot of the things NOW wants, its whole approach to the feminist campaign. If NOW endorses a Presidential candidate, we're going to take a hard look to see if there's anything wrong with him."

This is not strange. Women, after all, are human beings — if a touch prettier and at one time more equal to men — and when it comes to politics they behave like male politicians. That is to say, they form blocs and cliques and engage in struggles for power, personal and organizational. Some feminists hate other feminists as fiercely as John Kennedy-hated Richard Nixon, and vice versa.

So far, NOW has endorsed only one candidate. It came as no surprise that she was a woman — Rep. Bella Abzug, D-N.Y., who wants to challenge Sen. James Buckley, Cons.-R-N.Y. next year. NOW was showing off its political coloration: Mrs. Abzug is a member of the radical set of the Democratic Party's liberal wing.

Naturally, Mrs. Abzug welcomed NOW's endorsement. She and NOW are in almost complete political agreement. But its value is questionable. Even in New York state, there are liberal feminists who can take Mrs. Abzug, but not NOW, the sincere and/or conservative feminist — even in New York state — is not a Bella Abzug fan, and NOW's endorsement of the feisty legislator with the big hair will harden that woman voter's opinion that Mrs. Abzug is not her dish of tea.

HERALD YESTERDAY'S

25 Years Ago With 12 new voters taking the oath, there are now 10,869 Republican, 4,777 Democrat and 4,000 independent registered voters in Manchester.

In 1851, the New York Times published its first edition. In 1928, it was estimated that 4,000 persons were killed and $30 million damage caused by a devastating hurricane that lashed Florida and the West Indies for five days.

In 1961, U.N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld was killed when his plane crashed in Northern Rhodesia. A thought for the day: American poet Walt Whitman said, "Once fully enslaved, no nation, state, city of this earth ever afterward resumes its liberty."

Police report shady schemes used at Las Vegas nights

By ED BUTLER HARTFORD (UPI) — State police organized crime investigators say they have uncovered a multitude of shady schemes at Las Vegas gambling nights around Connecticut. The investigation shows the big winners are mostly professional gamblers or gaming equipment concerns which, for part of the take, run the affairs for charities, churches, fraternal organizations and other non-profit groups. The sponsors are often left with scant profits and tarnished reputations, and sometimes even lose money, according to a confidential report prepared by the Statewide Organized Crime Investigative Task Force.

At one gaming event last year, the Senior Reassurance Center of Waterbury, a federally funded agency for the elderly, lost $13,000 in one evening, according to the report obtained by UPI.

The big loss of federal dollars, which the director said was made up with a personal bank loan, "apparently" resulted from gamblers smuggling bogus chips into the game and exchanging them for gift certificates or cash at the end of the evening, the report said. Task force Lt. Walter Scholtz said Wednesday applications for Las Vegas permits declined following a summertime raid on a gaming night at the Terra Mar resort complex in Old Saybrook. "But they're up to the old level of three or four a week now," Scholtz said. "The organizations make a very small cut in this," he said. Las Vegas nights present a double-edged risk for charities because of dangers in hiring professional gaming operators or, instead, using trusted but usually inexperienced organizational members to run the tables, the report said. The notices "have fallen prey to the methods and tricks of the professional gambler, card shark and 'mechanic' who frequent Las Vegas nights in substantial numbers, on a regular basis," the report said. And when professionals are hired, according to the report, "the operators of tables often are professional gamblers themselves, whose loyalty to the equipment dealer far

DEAD MAN

WETHERSFIELD (UPI) - Police today sought the identity of a man found apparently shot to death on a back road in Wethersfield. Two women picking berries came across the body Wednesday just west of Wethersfield. The police ordered an autopsy of the body which bore several bullet wounds of the head.

Barn fires probed

GLASTONBURY (UPI) - Authorities are investigating two mysterious tobacco barn fires that occurred during hours of each today, doing an estimated $175,000 damage. The first fire broke out at 4:45 a.m. in a barn on Old Maid Lane filled with tobacco. Damage was estimated at $150,000. The second blaze was reported at 5:04 a.m. in a barn on Oakwood Drive, but no injuries were reported in either blaze. The possibility of arson is being investigated.

Hospital planning fall lecture series

Several visiting professors will be coming to Manchester Memorial Hospital to make rounds and give lectures this year. Visitors and their topics will be Dr. Howard Pearson, chief of the pediatric department at Yale Medical School; Dr. Arthur Blank, formerly technical director of the Poison Information Center of the Connecticut State Department of Health; and Dr. Robert Bent Brigham Hospital in Boston and now chairman of the section of clinical immunology at the University of Texas Medical Branch in Galveston. "Approach to the Patient with Serum Protein Abnormalities"; Dr. Richard Quintillani of the infectious disease department at Hartford Hospital; "Antibiotics in Urinary Tract Infections"; Dr. James Foster, chief of surgery at Hartford Hospital; "Chronic Pancreatitis"; Arthur Blank, formerly technical director of the Poison Information Center of the Connecticut State Department of Health will give a series of four lectures this fall on "Acute Poisoning"; Dr. Achilles Pappano, associate professor of pharmacology at the University of Connecticut School of Medicine, will lecture during October and November on cardiovascular drugs.

Hospital reaccredited

ROCKVILLE - General Hospital has been reaccredited for another two-year period. The reaccreditation is the result of an on-site survey made by field representatives of the Joint Commission's Hospital Accreditation Program. Accreditation indicates that the facility has chosen to operate according to standards set by the Joint Commission and that it has met all of the standards. Robert C. Boardman, administrator of the hospital, said the standards set forth excellent achievable goals of excellence against which a facility can measure itself and be measured by the commission's surveyors which was conducted last May.

Circling Birds waiting for Red Sox to collapse

BOSTON (UPI) - Baltimore's baseball team is named after the wrong bird. They call themselves the Orioles but they're more like buzzards, hovering over the Boston Red Sox waiting for a carcass. The buzzards, who appeared dead themselves just 24 hours earlier, flew back into the American League pennant race Wednesday night with a 5-2 win over the Red Sox. The victory left the circling birds from Baltimore 4 1/2 games away from the sporadic Sox with another game in hand.

The Red Sox got a run back in the seventh when Fred Lynne tied a record for doubles by a pitcher in his 45th at-base hit. Fisk singled him in.

NEW YORK (UPI) - With the number of striking teams boosted to five Wednesday, representatives of the National Football League Players Association and the NFL Management Council met through the night to find some agreement that would put off the strike into action this weekend.

Dear Abby
By Abigail Van Buren
DEAR ABBY: My daughter Prissy had been going steady with Jonathan, a charming young man she met at college. I expected her to come home with a diamond ring.

Prissy's Mom
DEAR MOM: Even if Prissy had been more understanding, I think the high school sweetheart would have won out.

DEAR ABBY: I have a relative who is quite old but by no means senile.

MANCHESTER, CONN., FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 19, 1975 - VOL. XCIV, No. 208

When one knows that the population of Hartford was only 14,221 in 1800, and even in 1900 was only 23,219, it is easy to realize what great changes have occurred in just one life time. It must not be easy for a young person to visualize how things were then. All those employees at the big Pratt and Whitney Machine Tool plant are working on the site of the old Charter Oak Park with its race track and space for the fairs and circuses, running races. There was also a Gentlemen's Driving Park for harness racing. Horse racing was quite popular. Even in winter when the streets were not skinned bare, Washington St. was the scene of many cutter races, as was also the Connecticut River in the front of Hartford. Could be the river water is too filthy now to freeze so solid as it did then. There were double horse car tracks in Main St. but outside the downtown area only single tracks were laid with switches for cars to pass in opposite directions. One horse pulled each car and the driver was the crew. The horses were not very good looking or lively. They were always tired. There were some larger buses for longer hauls. They had two or more horses depending on loads and distances. O.C. remembers well one time his mother took him on a bus up to Rockville to the county fair at the old Hyde Park. Buses also went to Stafford Springs. They were high wheelers which were said to be pulled more easily.

The Argentine government has banned the sale of aviation gasoline for use in automobiles, as of June 1. The measure rules out the use of the high-octane fuel in racing cars, sports cars, motorcycles, powerboats, and all other uses except for aircraft. The new law is designed to limit imports of the fuel.

State

HARTFORD - Connecticut will back $53.8 million in 198 school building projects although it doesn't expect to have the borrowing capacity available until the next legislative session. Finance Commissioner Jay D. Pepper said the state has made a formal commitment for its share of the projects already approved by the Department of Education.

Nation

WASHINGTON - Revised reports on the Gross National Product and corporate profits show the nation recovering from the recession faster than most economists predicted. But Treasury Secretary William Simon and other administration officials say renewed inflationary pressures are a concern.

World

BEIRUT, Lebanon - Christian and Muslim militias battled with bullets, rocks and bombs from street to street today, but fighting appeared to die down by morning, raising hopes of a new truce.

Region

BOSTON - Six hundreds National Guard military police were detailed today, but officials declined to detail any plan for cutting back the force.

Patty wants to return home

Newspaper heiress Patricia Hearst (right) and Emily Harris clench fists as they leave San Francisco's Federal Building after their arraignment. They were picked up by the FBI Thursday, ending one of the most intensive manhunts in the nation's history.

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) - The FBI said today it cracked the Patty Hearst case with "very diligent, painstaking" detective work by agents across the nation. The fugitive newspaper heiress held a jailhouse reunion with her parents and said she wanted to go home.

Profile: Heiress became a radical

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) - She is the granddaughter of newspaper titan William Randolph Hearst. She turned that wealthy and privileged background around to become one of the most famous radicals in American history.

Dispute stalled town's road grant

The dispute stems from an agreement to build sanitary sewers in Spring St. from Gardner St. to Dartmouth Rd.

Parachutist owes her life to a tree

Raylene Wilson, 24, of East Hartford, a member of the Connecticut Parachute Club, can perhaps owe her life to a tree in Ellington.

Cartier due here to open quarters

Former Georgia governor Jimmy Carter will be in Manchester Wednesday morning to participate in the official opening of his Connecticut campaign headquarters.
