you can't take it with you

Oh sure, it's just a little lamp or picture, or a small chair...that's easy. But how about a 96" sofa or a pair of expensive, velvet covered love seats — What then? Or how about a full-size dining room suite — Even if you have your own truck and somehow manage to get it home and in place you're going to spend a fortune having all the scratches, dents, dings and chips removed by a furniture refinisher — kind of silly, isn't it?

On the other hand, if you shopped Watkins you wouldn't think of trying to "save-a-buck" by trying to do the impossible with your furniture. At Watkins, we pride ourselves on having super quality home furnishings at the lowest prices. (Smart shoppers know that means value.)

At Watkins you won't see an additional "delivered price." Unless it's something you really can take with you and you really can save money by taking it home yourself. Smart shoppers already know that our gentle delivery, our service par excellence and satisfaction doesn't cost extra... it's one "heck you" great bonus!

JFK's daughter unhurt

Bomb explodes near home of Miss Kennedy

LONDON (UPI) — A bomb, possibly planted by the Irish Republican Army, exploded today outside the London residence of Caroline Kennedy, daughter of the late President John F. Kennedy.

One man was killed and six persons were hurt but 17-year-old Miss Kennedy escaped unhurt.

The bomb went off under the automobile of Miss Kennedy's host in London, Hugh Fraser, a conservative member of Parliament, only minutes before he was to drive her to an art course at Sotheby's Park Bernet downs.

Fraser told reporters he would have left the house earlier with Miss Kennedy had he not received a telephone call from a member of Parliament to discuss a new British trade agreement with Saudi Arabia, signed Wednesday.

So powerful was the blast that it flipped Fraser's car onto its back, with flames shooting 50 feet high.

The dead man was identified only as a passing motorist, 300 yards away, who was shaken. But none of the injured was seriously hurt.

This latest in a series of bombings in London shattered windows throughout the Fraser home and knocked him off a chair. Miss Kennedy was said to have been in her bedroom. Fraser's wife, Lady Antonia, wasn't believed to be at home.

Cheney Tech boosters alarmed over consolidation suggestion

By JUNE TOMPKINS
Staff Reporter

State legislators and parents of students at Howell Cheney Regional Vocational-Technical School met Wednesday night at the school in a surprise confrontation on an act concerning a master plan for vocational and career education.

Invited to the school to tour its facilities, the legislators were taken by surprise after the opening remarks in the auditorium when Andrew Tomko, president of the newly formed Parent-Student Organization, asked if anyone had any questions.

In defense of the technical schools' present system, Glassman said, "I personally do not like the idea of dismantling the present technical school training." He urged those present to participate in future public hearings on the matter.

Rep. Timothy Moynihan, of East Hartford, also a member of the education committee, said there were 40 different educational bills submitted in the legislature. The Master Plan was passed unanimously by both sides of the House, Moynihan said.

Grasso wants more funds for special probe unit

HARTFORD (UPI) — Gov. Ella T. Grasso Wednesday called for increased funding and manpower for the special state police squad that uncovered the Bridgeport jail scandal.

Mrs. Grasso also said she doesn't believe the scandal will damage the reputation of the state.

"I feel the public image of Connecticut as being a clean state can and will be sustained," she said.

The governor said the Statewide Organized Crime Investigative Task Force, conducting the jail inquiry, will need more funds and agents to carry out investigations of all other parimutuel gambling operations in Connecticut.

Maj. Orlando Ragazzi, head of SOCTIF, said his men would begin the investigations immediately.

Mrs. Grasso said she is pleased with the investigations after the state gaming commission and SOCTIF revealed jail owner David Friend, of Hollywood, Fla., had "admitted" giving $200,000 cash to the late John M. Bailey, former national and state Democratic chairman, in return for help in getting a gambling license.

Mrs. Grasso also said any member of her administration subpoenaed to appear at a Nov. 6 hearing into the jail scandal will be required to testify. No members of her administration have been subpoenaed to the gaming commission hearing.

The governor answered with only a "yes" when asked whether there are pockets of corruption in the state as opposed to widespread corruption.

Meantime, with the Bridgeport scandal in mind, the gaming commission Wednesday placed a moratorium on the consideration of future parimutuel licenses until the SOCTIF investigations are completed.

Commission Chairman Paul Silvergeld said he believed investigators would begin first with the Plainfield greyhound racing track and the Hartford jail scandal, the facilities nearest completion.

The commission has subpoenaed two front officials to the Nov. 6 hearing on whether the commission should revoke Bridgeport jail owner David Friend's license. Friend and William Moy, also of Hollywood, the front's concessionaire, were handed the subpoena papers as they left a day-long session with the commission Tuesday.

Vernon ready to serve lien on rail owner

Armed with a stop-work order and a tax lien, Vernon officials waited by the Penn Central railroad tracks on Washington St., Vernon this morning to serve them on a Brooklyn, N.Y. contractor.

Removal of the tracks has been of concern to local officials since removal equipment was spotted by Mayor Frank McCoy a few weeks ago.

The towns served tax liens on Penn Central in an effort to delay action on removal of the rails until the State Department of Transportation could come up with some way to solve the problem.

Meanwhile, the contractor has been

DeMartino bid low for walk repairs

VERNON
The contract for this year's sidewalk reconstruction program in the Rockville area has been awarded to DeMartino Bros., the low bidder at a price of $46,187.75.
Mayor Frank McCoy said the reconstruction of Rockville sidewalks for this year will be in the areas of Orchard St., Main St., and Prospect St.
He said Orchard St. work was started under the previous fiscal year's funding and the Main St. project will be in front of the commercial area. The mayor said in view of the fact that $55,000 was budgeted for sidewalk reconstruction in the Rockville section, that he is asking Councilman Morgan Campbell, chairman of the subcommittee on sidewalks, to talk with Town Engineer Leonard Szczesny and with the contractor, to see whether the balance of the budgeted item, about $14,000, can be used on an additional commercial section on Main St. and portions of Union St., leading to Rockville General Hospital.

Sidewalks being replaced are cement to match up with the original ones. Walks have already been replaced in the Ellington Ave. area.

Benoit says administration not responsive

VERNON
Speaking at a meeting of the League of Women Voters Wednesday night, Thomas Benoit, Democratic candidate for mayor, said his door-to-door campaign has shown him there is widespread concern about the lack of openness in the local government.
He said there is concern about the insensitivity of an administration which after years in office feels secure and un-touchable by the electorate which no longer cares, except about its re-election each two years.

Benoit is running against Mayor Frank McCoy who is seeking election to a fourth term.
Our residents see an annual budgetary process marked by bitterness and chaos which stems from a failure of leadership in providing an atmosphere of cooperation between the Town Council and Board of Education; they see our town becoming a center for scores of boarded up businesses and buildings; they witness adjacent towns securing millions in assistance under federal programs while Vernon's share is but a token grant.

They see the continued deterioration of Rockville in terms of economic and safety needs. They see these things and express their concern because they realize that these problems are not inevitable, that they are occurring not because of an unfavorable geographic location or the departure of a major industry, but because our local government operates from day to day, hour to hour, without a plan for tomorrow and without anticipating Vernon's needs in the future," Benoit said.

He said that no candidate can foresee and solve all of the problems. "A perfect government does not exist. What does exist, however, are open government which listen to the people and which involve them in the decision-making process," Benoit said.

He expressed the desire to return Vernon to that category of outstanding towns in the campaign he advocated a citizens' forum at council meetings to be set aside for citizens to voice their opinions. He said Mayor

ZBA Denies DOT requests

VERNON
The Zoning Board of Appeals has denied requests for two variances made by the state Department of Transportation (DOT) in connection with the proposed widening of I-86 in Vernon.
The state wishes to purchase two parcels of privately owned property, but not the complete parcels. The owners are Ralph Galato of 31 Tunrod Rd. and Almira Edson, 37 Bolton Rd. both roads which the DOT intends to widen to four lanes in connection with the highway expansion project.

The owners contend that it would be better for the state to buy each parcel in its entirety. The variances were for under-sized lots and insufficient road setbacks.

The Zoning Board of Appeals, in its denial, said that the DOT had not shown sufficient hardship. The DOT officials will take another look at the project with an eye toward revising landscaping plans so that no variances will be necessary or toward purchasing the two entire parcels.

Opinions asked on I-84 impact

BOLTON

The state Department of Commerce requested a barometer of local opinion in conjunction with a study it's conducting concerning the impact of the proposed I-84 corridor.

It asked the Board of Selectmen to respond to the narrower question of whether the highway will enhance the potential for economic development in Eastern Connecticut.

It said they could conclude with a final position either in favor of or against the proposal. The request came from Joseph Byk, economic analyst, division of economic development.

David Dresely, first selectman, said he didn't think it would enhance the economic development in Bolton because local zoning doesn't lend itself to economic development in the commercial or industrial sense and the topography of land suitable for commercial and industrial business is minimal.

The board will answer — "While we don't think there will be substantial enhancement of the economic development of the town we feel it will be advantageous in Eastern Connecticut in general."

Church events
This Sunday at United Methodist Church will be canvas Sunday. The church is in the midst of its annual pledge drive.

Its goal this year is $25,000, of which $9,000 has already been pledged. Ronald Gross is chairman of the drive.

The annual meeting of the United Methodist Women of the Southern New England Conference is scheduled for Wednesday at 8 p.m.

The Bolton Ecumenical Council will meet Thursday at 8 p.m. at the St. Maurice Church parish center. Girl Scout council executives have been invited to participate.

Lamprey Pie
Sea lampreys, abhorrent to most people, were considered delicacies for centuries. The parasitic fish was a favorite dish of Roman Emperor Vitellius. A medieval French recipe called for stewed lampreys marinated in wine and England's King Henry I reputedly died from eating too much lamprey pie.

Rivers to retain classified position

BOLTON

Leon River, lone Democrat on the Board of Selectmen, may continue as selectman until the end of his term and may keep his present job.

Several weeks ago River's job status was questioned by Virginia Butterfield who said there was a law that said people holding a classified job couldn't be a candidate for political office.

Aloysius Ahearn, state representative, said his initial interpretation of the law was correct.

Rivers began a classified job after he was elected selectman. Town Counsel John Mabon agreed with Ahearn.

However, both agreed Rivers won't be able to be a candidate for office in 1977 if he is still working in the classified position.

Candidates speak

Democratic Director Jack Goldberg said today, "In view of the misunderstanding that developed surrounding the initial petition, public hearing and finally the assessments of Kenney St. sanitary sewer installations and in order to avoid similar confusions in the future, I request the following from the town manager."

"That the town manager instruct the public works director to prepare a pamphlet in condensed form which outlines all the procedures, town policies and reduces to understandable terms the obligations to the homeowner arising from sanitary sewer installations."

"The pamphlet can be used effectively in advising the residents of their rights and options. If they elect to defer payments, it would spell out those terms and conditions."

"The installation of sewers are a benefit to all the people of Manchester and in most cases a vital necessity. From the town's point of view, health hazards are eliminated. I believe a pamphlet such as I describe will make life a little more enjoyable for all."

FROM YOUR NEIGHBOR'S KITCHEN

By VIVIAN FERGUSON

When you carve that hollow pumpkin, don't throw the seeds out. Freshly toasted pumpkin seeds are ever so much better than any you can buy. Crunchy, crispy, they have a wholesome, nutty flavor and are good for you. The secret in crispiness is slow baking at a low heat.

Traditionally, the Murphy family of 131 N. Lakewood Circle carve three jack-o-lanterns, one for each of the three offspring, every Halloween after school. Carole and Monica made an early batch to share with you.

The two girls, Carole 14 and Monica 12, like to fuss about the kitchen. Monica takes after her dad, Richard, and is the breakfast maker. She observed her Dad making pancakes for years and has followed suit. French toast and bacon is another favorite.

Carole likes quick and easy desserts, or Italian food like spaghetti and meat sauce. She follows the maternal pattern since her mother, Anita, is of Italian descent. Carole's apple foam is light, easy, delicious and nutritious.

Brother Frank 16, looked about for the short-cut fudge. That would be an after-dinner project. It's just about fool-proof, no beating necessary — and can be made in minutes. It can be cut into traditional squares, or simply dropped onto paper-lined cookie sheets. Then again, it can be formed into various shapes to keep the children busier a little longer on a rainy day.

All three recipes are excellent for young people. They're not time-consuming, are fun, and tasty besides.

Pumpkin seeds
Cut top off pumpkin and scoop out seeds. Place seeds in a colander and wash them. Drain well and place on a lightly greased cookie sheet. Salt to taste. (The Murphys like theirs very salty but tastes will vary.) Bake at 250 for one hour, tossing occasionally.

Apple foam or ice-cream cake
2 cups cold apple sauce
1 egg white, beaten stiff
1/2 cup stiffly beaten cream
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
Sweeten apple sauce to taste. Fold in cinnamon, beaten egg white and whipped cream. Spoon into complete glasses and sprinkle with nutmeg. For ice-cream cake, use alternate layers of graham cracker crumbs and apple foam. Top layer should be crumbs.

Short-cut fudge
Melt a 12-ounce package chocolate morsels over hot water in a double boiler. Remove from double boiler and stir in:
2/3 cup sweetened condensed milk
1 teaspoon water
1 teaspoon vanilla
Do not beat. Spread in a greased 8x8x2 pan or drop by teaspoons on waxed-paper-lined cookie sheets. Chill. Variations: Shape into logs, balls, rectangles. Decorate with nuts, coconut or almond slivers.

people, especially young children. A student at East Catholic High School, she is considering tutoring elementary school children on a voluntary basis.

Monica, who is a Herald paper girl, has become involved in various sports. She took the championship for youngsters 12 and under for singles, doubles and mixed doubles in the SAM tournaments. Last winter, she took a second position in the skiing contest sponsored by the Manchester State Bank.

Candidates speak

Clarence (Bud) Brown, Republican candidate for the Manchester Board of Directors, said today, "By resorting to party politics, Mayor John Thompson has tried to cloud the real issues raised by me in my letter to him. In that letter, I pointed out several examples of how the cost of government in Manchester has skyrocketed over the past five years."

"First, the mayor tries to have us believe that three of the five budget years in question were under Republican dominated boards, which is inaccurate. Starting with the current '74-'75 year, the Democratic Board has been in control for the past three budget years, and the Republicans, the two before that."

"Next, the mayor tries to move my figures around, so that it appears that more or less of the demonstrated increases should be attributed to one political party or the other. What does this prove? Nothing! The board is made up of individuals, not political parties. The board has a collective responsibility to control and manage the taxpayers' money. I am running for office as a Republican and am proud to do so. But, I am also running as a concerned individual, a taxpayer and businessman of the Town of Manchester."

"I did not send my letter to the mayor, as he seems to feel, to criticize the Democrats. In fact, I never mentioned the Democrats in my letter. But he is apparently so sensitive to criticism, that he jumped to their defense without considering the real issue I raised. That we are paying far too much money simply to run our local government. We have too many employees that are costing us too much. They have too many passenger-type vehicles at their disposal (regardless of who the mayor tries to characterize them). At no time did he, nor can he deny that the town payroll alone has nearly doubled in five budget years, and yet, the manager today is begging for more employees. Where is this going to end?"

Defeated decontrol delays exploration

"The petroleum industry is the most maligned and misunderstood economic entity in America today, primarily because it is the victim of the most totally biased information. "I do not wonder that the American people are confused about the country's energy problems because so many of our elected representatives have for two years been pointing accusing fingers at the industry, attempting to punish the industry and make it the scapegoat for problems caused primarily by policy — or I should say, nonpolicy — failures of government."

The complaint is not that of an executive of one of the oil giants but of C. John Miller, president of the Independent Petroleum Association of America, representing 4,000 of the nation's 10,000 independent drillers, who account for 90 per cent of current domestic exploration.

Let anyone think he is being picky with Congress, Miller notes that 33 congressional committees, 65 subcommittees and one joint panel have jurisdictional claim on the energy issue.

Almost 1,000 energy-related bills have been introduced in the 94th Congress, but of all these final action has been taken only on the 55-m.p.h. speed limit, repeal of the depletion allowance and extension of price controls (voted by President Ford but later extended by compromise to Nov. 15).

The latter two bills are highly counterproductive to our declared purpose of restoring relative energy self-sufficiency, Miller says.

Percentage depletion applies to more than 100 domestic minerals, and 42 of these still receive the 22 per cent rate that formerly applied to oil and natural gas. But in a "punitive action," Congress repealed depletion only on oil and gas, thereby removing more than $2 billion yearly that otherwise would have been available to find and develop new petroleum reserves.

"The ship went from the Tonkin Gulf to a seaport outside Tokyo," explained Moore, "and not one part of the details of this operation ever leaked, although there were already 5,000 men on that ship. Today I don't think that would happen because young people are brought to testify before Congress and tell them what an idiot their country is. They are encouraged to do this kind of thing."

Moore, 63, emphasized that his irritation over the "leaking" of national security information to the media extends to military officers as well as American society as a whole. "I'm not blaming the press at all for printing it," he said, "I'm saying that the breakdown in the attitude of all American citizens as to what damages the U.S. government — and hence damages them — today has changed from what it was in 1965."

"I know what people leak data out of the Pentagon, and it's very difficult to get them punished. I think it's a very dangerous situation myself."

The Admiral took the media to task, citing specific examples of what he saw as inaccurate reporting of important military operations ranging from U.S. involvement in the Dominican Republic under President Johnson to various phases of the war in Vietnam.

"A situation like My Lai was probably bound to occur in Vietnam," said Moore. "The situation was this: You had a mixture of enemy and friends in the jungle. The women were carrying hand grenades in their brassieres and their babies' diapers. So you had an identification problem that was nearly impossible."

The Admiral added that "this was never really explained to the American people, and the young captain and lieutenants that were put out in those jungles under those circumstances had, in my view, the most difficult assignment of any men in uniform."

Moore said that, at one point during the war in Vietnam, he discussed with the New York Times editorial board that paper's coverage of the conflict. A "gentleman" on the board, he added, told

Admiral Moorer takes media to task

WASHINGTON — "I doubt seriously whether in 1975 President Eisenhower could conduct the cross channel (Normandy) operation without being told 'rather before the operation was initiated.'"

Adm. Thomas R. Moorer, who was the nation's senior military officer until his retirement from active duty in July 1974, was giving vent to his frustrations — he says he doesn't believe it "anger" — in working with the press. Moorer alluded to the 1944 Allied invasion of Europe, in a meeting with a group of Washington newsmen, to illustrate what he calls a "very dangerous situation" today in the United States.

The former Chief of Naval Operations and Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff from July 1970 until his retirement reviewed the past decade of media coverage of U.S. military operations. Moorer was on the aircraft carrier Kitty Hawk, in the Gulf of Tonkin, when the first American reconnaissance plane was shot down by North Vietnam. The plane had taken off from the Kitty Hawk in what was then a secret operation.

"The ship went from the Tonkin Gulf to a seaport outside Tokyo," explained Moore, "and not one part of the details of this operation ever leaked, although there were already 5,000 men on that ship. Today I don't think that would happen because young people are brought to testify before Congress and tell them what an idiot their country is. They are encouraged to do this kind of thing."

Favors mayor

To the editor:
How fortunate we are as citizens of the Town of Manchester to have a man as concerned about this community as Jack Thompson. Time and time again over the past four years, he has demonstrated his leadership ability and straightforwardness. Mayor Thompson is not the typical hollow politician. He does not always say what people want to hear, but is honest about his convictions and not afraid to express them.

This is the time of the year all politicians come out of the woodwork to feed the electorate the moon. We have had four years of Jack Thompson's leadership, why change? The Republican opposition have nothing to offer at this point without increasing our taxes substantially. There is no such thing as a free lunch. Let us continue the good government that good people like Jack Thompson are providing.

Willhide praised

To the editor:
We hope you are all enjoying the beauty that is autumn. The glorious reds and oranges of Maple trees and the gold and brown of Ash and Oak. Oh, the beauty of it all! Yes, the beauty of it all is the peace of mind in knowing that the leaves will be picked up this fall — thanks to the initiative and determination of Paul Willhide.

We want to thank Paul for his decision not to contaminate and clutter Manchester with the positioning of Republican political posters all over town. What a refreshing change! A refreshing change is just what Manchester needs, a change to responsible government responsive to the voice of the people, and we are confident Paul Willhide will listen to that voice.

Sincerely,

DeLeo backed for school board

To the editor:
Nov. 4th is Election Day. It is also a day of personal triumph for Gertrude DeLeo whether or not she is elected to fill a Republican seat on the Manchester Board of Education.

Gert walks especially proud these days. The honor of being asked by her party to represent them in such a vital area recognizes her 30 years of teaching experience, acknowledges her concern for the children of the town where she has lived for 20 years, and affirms a fact she has known all her life...blindness is no barrier to becoming a useful human being.

Left sightless by a childhood fever, Gert graduated from the Oak Hill School for the Blind in Hartford and went on to earn her teaching degree at the University of Connecticut working part time to defray expenses.

In 1945, she began teaching both blind and sighted children at Mansfield State Training School. Until her retirement in 1974, she nurtured and led the nationally recognized Blind Cause, a unique accomplishment with the mentally retarded.

Perhaps your readers would rejoice in this human interest story. There's much more to it. There's Happy, Gert's guide dog, plus Shat and Gay, canine comrades; Kelly, a very verbal parrot and other bird friends filling the warm home on Faulkner Dr. where Gert admits she would "rather do carpentry jobs than cook."

And there's the miracle of the Optacon, an electronic device that translates the printed word into tactile images felt by one finger. Gert's mastery of this unique instrument opens a new world to her. Imagine her joy at being able to read her mail, or her discovery that the telephone book is printed in columns.

In these days of so much "bad news," here's some good news. A warm, in-

Favors Republicans

To the editor:
Voters of South Windsor beware of those who say, "There is only one way." And the solution involves spending your hard earned pay.

Nov. 4 will be here, and soon you can say, "The Democrats have tried real hard to spend my pay."

Can you recall, not so long ago, when the Democrats told us the only way to go was to spend over $5,000,000 of our dough?

Architects, engineers, and lawyers must have jumped with delight. If the Democrats had their way, the following is what it would be like today:

- ...a new library, with at least one school building to spare.
- ...an addition to the high school, with more than 30 classrooms to spare.
- ...a Plum Gully Park, with neighborhood play areas and ballfields neglected.
- ...a higher tax rate.
- ...an empty pocketbook.
- ...Let's exercise our collective voice...

Vote Nov. 4th.
Republican, is my choice.

Connally emerging as a 'spoiler'

WASHINGTON — A decision President Ford made last summer not to offer former Texas Gov. John B. Connally the post of Secretary of State could have an adverse effect on Ford's campaign to win four more years in the White House.

This space reported in July that Ford was considering Connally for an important Cabinet post, including the State job. According to White House sources, the President did offer to appoint Connally Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, but the Texan turned him down. Connally, it is said, would have taken the State portfolio, but Ford told him it wasn't up for grabs.

Now Connally politely threatens to play the role of a wrench in the Ford campaign machinery. He is saying that although he is now a Republican he is his own man and may even join up with a third party movement led by William Rusher, publisher of the conservative National Review.

"Of Rusher's project, Connally says it's 'a good idea that could perform a very useful service.' At the same time, he thinks former California Gov. Ronald Reagan's primary challenge to Ford is "a very good thing" because the Republican party has not experienced enough "excitement and debating" since the party's presidential candidate is revealed in his remarks on a Ford-Reagan contest. He says simply he hasn't decided what he will do about taking sides. "I might wind up supporting neither of them," he adds. Meanwhile, he just might run as a favorite son in the May Texas primary, and elsewhere, "but if I do I'll do it on my own. I wouldn't be running as a stand in or as a surrogate for anyone."

In short, while Connally is not now a candidate, he is standing out there in the open to give lightning a chance to strike. His complaint that Ford has "got to be more imaginative, more aggressive and more innovative on the issues" has the sound of the politician who is confident he has got the qualities he claims Ford lacks. He's warning up the Connally bandwagon, just in case.

proach to major league politics. After all, he is a national figure in his own right, and he has everything to win and nothing to lose by qualifying his support of Gerald Ford. There is no law that says Connally has to throw in with Ford at this early date, and there is enough difference of opinion in party ranks so that Connally runs no risk of being ostracized for postponing an all-out endorsement of the President.

Connally's view of himself as a potential presidential candidate is revealed in his remarks on a Ford-Reagan contest. He says simply he hasn't decided what he will do about taking sides. Today is Thursday, Oct. 23, the 296th day of 1975 with 69 to follow.

The moon is in its first full phase and last quarter.

The morning stars are Venus, Mars and Saturn.

The evening stars are Mercury and Jupiter.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Scorpio.

The French actress Sara Bernhardt and American talk show host Johnny Carson were born on Oct. 23, she in 1845 and he in 1925.

On this day in history:
In 1915, an estimated 2,500 women marched in New York City demanding the right to vote throughout the United States.

In 1942, the British 8th Army launched an offensive at El Alamein, Egypt, starting a campaign that was to sweep the Axis forces out of North Africa.

In 1947, the state of Maine was declared a disaster area as forest fires caused damage estimated at $30 million.

In 1955, Ngo Dinh Diem was chosen to take over the South Vietnamese government in the country's first free election. He later was assassinated.

A thought for the day: American writer Carl Sandburg said, "Time is a sandpile we run our fingers through."

He was elected a trustee of the medical staff whose function is to foresee future needs and bring in plans to implement them and an estimate of costs.

Boston fans celebrated day early

BOSTON (UPI) — Boston Red Sox fans celebrated a day too early. Buoyed by a 7-6 come-from-behind win in the sixth game of the World Series, a jubilant and expectant crowd celebrated in Fenway Park and in nearby streets Wednesday morning. When the seventh game ended Wednesday night, the Cincinnati Reds were 4-3 winners and world champions. For a few minutes, many in the Fenway Park crowd were silent. They seemed stunned.

Jubilant fans welcome Reds

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Thousands of jubilant Cincinnati Reds roared began partying in the heart of downtown Cincinnati late Wednesday and early today. The throng, estimated at about 10,000 began converging on Fountain Square within minutes of the Reds' 4-3 victory over the Boston Red Sox in the seventh and deciding game of the World Series.

More than 100 policemen, many wearing hardhats, tried to keep the crowd, made up mostly of teenagers and college-age persons, from becoming too unruly. About 25 persons were arrested, mostly on disorderly conduct charges — in the first two hours of the celebrating. Several young persons jumped into the large, lighted fountain in the center of the square, while others perched in trees.

The official victory celebration, organized by the Chamber of Commerce was to begin at noon today. The airport early today was closed off to the general public for the Reds' arrival from Boston, but the entire team was to assemble at Riverfront Stadium shortly before noon and ride in convertibles along a parade route to Fountain Square.

Outside, some shouted "wait till next year." But that left a sour taste. "Next year, hell," shouted a disappointed youth. Mounted police and Tactical Patrol Forces lined the sidewalks of Kenmore Square, near the ball park. Bathed in brilliant neon, cars and pedestrians flowed through the square, often at odds with each other. Disgruntled fans took shortcuts over the hoods of the stopped autos. Other pedestrians banged their hands on autos.

"You'd be wise to wait until it's over," a neatly dressed man advised the driver of a yellow sports car as it edged into the fringe of traffic. "Boston, Boston, Boston."

A lot of young people rode piggyback and performed antics for television cameras, waving and shouting, "We're No. 1." Balm temperatures in the high 50s brought a lot of people, and some came with cans of beer. Others drank stronger stuff from bottles in brown paper bags. A post-midnight traffic jam developed on several downtown streets as cars packed with more celebrants slowly made their way to the center of the city.

For those partying at home, a television station replayed video tapes of the final pitches of the game and the Reds' clubhouse champagne party.

hunched. "Yeah," said his companion. "Well, at least they were good sports," he said of the Reds.

Police said they arrested 1,518 persons, most for being drunk and disorderly. Further away, the normally boisterous Boston night seemed subdued. There were few cars tooting their horns and no noisy crowds of youths which normally people the streets of the downtown area.

"They're all washing the loss down with a lot of beer," said a bartender at one pub. Two young men walked down nearby deserted Charles Street far from Fenway, hands thrust into pockets and shoulders hunched.

Zoning procedures termed a shame

COVENTRY
MONICA SHEA
742-9495

Richard Babcock, author of the "Zoning Game," told those attending last week's planned growth seminar that zoning regulations must not only be fair but must appear to be fair. Babcock spoke on the importance of fair process in the procedures of dealing with zoning changes.

Babcock said, "If you assume that Devo's is a thing of the past, you still have to face the fact that it is not important to a potential developer what the current zoning is, but what the attitude of the Planning and Zoning Commission will be to an application to a zone change. The name of the zoning game is change. The zoning laws are written with the expectation of change. Provisions are made for amendments and variances. If change is built into the law then it seems to me you start with the assumption that the process of change is critical. Is this process fair and predictable?"

"The irony of this is that the whole history of zoning has shown that the whole process has been a shame, a municipal scandal," he said. "There has been a failure of local boards to state in writing the reasons for denial. They just reiterate the state statutes. They have decisions on information that is not part of the record, like staff reports. The courts have shown a nervousness about not having openness during public hearings," the writer said. "If you don't have a fair process in the zoning decisions then attempts to revise regulations will be aborted by dissension and mistrust," he said. Babcock suggested that commissions used policy statements in their zoning regulations to indicate just what it would allow in the way of variances and zone changes.

New rules limit bond obligation to Coventry's share of project

MONICA SHEA

Frank D'Ercole, bonding counsel for the Town of Coventry, recently told town officials that new regulations allow a town to place on a referendum ballot only that portion of a bonding issue that would directly relate to that town. Under the old regulations it would have been necessary for Coventry to put the entire $12 million on the referendum for a regional sewer system. With the new regulations Coventry would only have to place its actual share of the bonding issue, $2.5 million on the ballot.

Coventry's requirements for the sewer system are only about one fifth of the proposed package with the remainder to be used by the Town of Mansfield, UConn and Both towns must approve the referendum passed in Coventry but failed in Mansfield.

Police protection and taxes key issues in Crystal Lake

ELLINGTON

Police protection and increases in mill rate seem to be the prime concerns of many Ellington residents, the Ellington Republican selectmen candidates said, after canvassing in the Crystal Lake and Woodside Acres areas of town. Everett Paluska, seeking protection with the new schedule being announced just before election, "they said. Paluska and Pagan said people also expressed concern about the two mill increase in the current budget noting that the apparent conflict between the selectmen and the Board of Finance has raised fears that no one is really 'on top' of the town's entire fiscal picture. "In previous administrations, the selectmen's office, in cooperation with other boards, maintained an accurate picture of the town's finances," the Republicans said.

They feel this policy should be re-instated for the benefit of taxpayers as well as officials. A financial inventory of every city and town in the state is being conducted. Mayor McCoy said, "The coordinated effort, initiated by State Treasurer Henry E. Parker, offers the key to orderly municipal financial markets in the months ahead." He said the data will help the conference and the state determine what will help each town or city.

McCoy asks all town heads to fill out forms

VERNON

The Connecticut Conference of Municipalities headed by Vernon Mayor Frank McCoy Wednesday issued an appeal to all mayors, first selectmen and town managers. Complete and return municipal indebtedness survey forms sent out by the conference and the state treasurer.

A financial inventory of every city and town in the state is being conducted. Mayor McCoy said, "The coordinated effort, initiated by State Treasurer Henry E. Parker, offers the key to orderly municipal financial markets in the months ahead." He said the data will help the conference and the state determine what will help each town or city.

The survey will identify all municipal borrowing needs for the next 12 months. Existing short-term indebtedness, expected refinancings and new borrowings, and other borrowings which are already authorized but are unissued, all are being inventoried. Parker, State Finance Commissioner Jay Tepper, and a special finance committee of the CCM will determine whether any extraordinary action by the state will be necessary to assure continuing ease of borrowing at reasonable rates by Connecticut's cities and towns.

McCoy said that a Parker-initiated task force has determined that Connecticut's banks will be able to meet local government needs during the unsettled months which would follow a default by New York City. He said, however, that it was also determined that a detailed financial inventory is needed to make suitable longer-term arrangements, and the CCM-Parker survey is being done for that reason.

WETHERSFIELD — Former Republican State Chairman J. Brian Gaffney and about 40 others, including many Democrats, may be required to testify under oath in connection with a widening investigation of possible corruption at the $14 million, Bridgeport Jai Alai fronting.

HARTFORD — Richard M. Nixon implied his guilt in the Watergate coverup when he accepted a presidential pardon, former Special Watergate Prosecutor Leon Jaworski told the Connecticut Bar Association. Nixon was "tremendously grateful" for President Ford's pardon, the Houston attorney said Thursday.

HARTFORD — A police report has disclosed President Ford's limousine was struck lightly from behind by a Secret Service car after another car plowed into it at a downtown intersection Oct. 14. Meanwhile, White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen said a Secret Service report on the accidents answers all the questions, but the report won't be made public.

HARTFORD — Seven persons, including two executives of United Technologies Inc., have filed a suit for more than $20 million claiming they were lured by $182,000 in a beef cattle investment deal. The suit was filed against the accounting firm of Peat, Marwick, Mitchell & Co., and three Texas cattle firms.

BOSTON — The Government Accounting Office has been asked to examine enrollment records of the city's federally desegregated public schools. Rep. James Burke, D-Mass., asked for the audit in Washington because of alleged inflated attendance figures supplied by the city.

WASHINGTON — Chairman Arthur Burns of the Federal Reserve says Congress should let New York City default on its debt and enact legislation to facilitate the big city's bankruptcy. Burns' advice Thursday night damaged the city's case for a congressional rescue effort to avoid default in December. Another blow came from Sen. James Buckley, D-N.Y., who called for an investigation of possible misconduct in the way city bonds were kept.

SAN FRANCISCO — Patricia Hearst will receive "emergency" psychiatric treatment in jail. An urgent request by her lawyers was approved Thursday by Federal Judge Oliver Carter.

WASHINGTON — A reluctant former Atty. Gen. John Mitchell has been called to testify publicly before the Senate Intelligence Committee on what role, if any, he played in the illegal opening of mail.

MORRISTOWN, N.J. — The physical condition of Karen Anne Quinlan, in a coma for six months after combining drugs and alcohol, is "almost too gross to describe," a physician said Thursday.

WASHINGTON President Ford's tax-cut-spend ceiling plan never stood a chance before the House Ways and Means Committee. The committee Thursday rejected the Ford plan and then approved a Democratic concept of extending lowered tax levies through 1978.

LONDON — Police tightened security for British politicians today, fearing the bomb blast that narrowly missed Caroline Kennedy may be the start of a wave of assassination attempts against members of Parliament.

BEIRUT, Lebanon — A total curfew in Beirut's most embattled districts today halted most activity in the capital, shattered by six weeks of fighting between Moslems and Christians.

LISBON — The government declared a nationwide military alert today in response to the apparent opening of a right-wing bomb campaign and rumors of an impending coup attempt by the far left.

MOSCOW — A Soviet spacecraft hurtled toward a weekend rendezvous with Venus today, nearing the end of a 187-million-mile space voyage that began June 14.

Cummings mulls lawsuit against GOP candidate

By SOL R. COHEN

Democratic Town Chairman Ted Cummings is considering legal action against Edward Wilson, Republican candidate for the Manchester Board of Directors, "for insinuating wrongdoings by Manchester Democrats."

Cummings, who is also state representative from the 12th Assembly District, made his disclosure at a public hearing Thursday night in the Municipal Building Hearing Room. It was called by him to clear the air of what he called "smear charges" by Wilson.

In a press release Tuesday, Wilson said "a substantial amount of money" had been donated to the Democratic Town Committee by Arthur Fischer of New York, head of MAP Associates, who plan to construct the multi-million Backlund Commons in the southwest part of Manchester.

Wilson wanted to know "what favors, if any, were promised by the Democratic leaders of Manchester" for this New York money?

He said, "If favors were extracted, at the expense of Manchester, the guilty parties should attend and asked that the three tickets be given to people who wanted to attend. Cummings said he did so."

"That," said Cummings, "was the extent of the hundreds of dollars the Republicans speak about."

Cummings said the Backlund Commons developers were granted two zone changes by the Planning and Zoning Commission in March 1974 and that Fischer bought the tickets for the 1974 Democratic dinner in May or June.

He said the commission's approval for one zone change was by a 4 to 1 vote, with three Democrats and one Republican voting "yes" and one Democrat "no," and that its approval for the other zone change was by a 3 to 2 vote, with two Democrats and one Republican voting "yes" and two Democrats "no."

In declaring that he is consulting with attorneys, Cummings said, "The insinuations and allegations are so damaging as to impugn the credibility and, in fact, injure the character of people. I realize that in politics the limits for charges are greater, but I believe in this instance the limits were over-stepped. You can bet your life, if I decide on the law suit, I'll scrape up the dollars I'll need for it."

He insisted, "A greater damage still is the damage done to the democratic process and to government in general."

He emphasized, "There was no wrongdoing. Nothing was done in secret. The record shows the money. No favors were given. We don't do business that way. We have a free record — we make our contracts and we pay our bills. This talk of out-of-town money is hogwash."

Then, he ticked off the number of out-of-town builders and out-of-town interests with holdings in Manchester.

Democratic Town Committee treasurer Paul Phillips explained that all tickets sold to Democratic functions were listed individually on campaign financial reports and were public knowledge. He said that a $25 dinner ticket actually meant about $5 among those who owned no guns. Harris said, 83 per cent favored registration of all guns, 13 per cent favored no gun ownership, 19 per cent were opposed. That compared with a 68-30 per cent ratio in 1971, he said.

Hunt tells of methods the CIA used abroad

By SOL R. COHEN

Providence, R.I. (UPI) — Attempts by the Central Intelligence Agency to drag people abroad included techniques such as coating the steering wheel of an intended victim's car with chemicals that would be absorbed through the skin, according to an interview with convicted Watergate conspirator E. Howard Hunt in the Providence Journal-Bulletin today.

Hunt said he was told about the methods by a spy agency doctor when he was ordered by former Nixon aide Charles Colson to explore the feasibility of drugging columnist Jack Anderson.

The Washington Post has reported that three sources have said Hunt told them he had been ordered to make Anderson in the Journal-Bulletin interview. Hunt denied that murder was his mission and that Colson only ordered him to find a way to "smoke Anderson" "incoherent" during one of his radio broadcasts.

Hunt said he never mentioned Anderson's name to the doctor. Hunt said the doctor was "simply responding to my question of what his agency's experience abroad had been with the clandestine administration of unspecified substances."

"We were talking about the range of hallucinogens to disorient people," Hunt reportedly said.

"We simply listened to what CIA officers were saying. I was not asked to provide drugs or substances."

Hunt declined to name the CIA doctor who told him of the methods used to drug people. He said he contacted the doctor for information after he received the Colson order. He said he did not ask the names of the victims abroad or how many had been drugged.

According to the newspaper Hunt said his meeting with the doctor took place sometime in December of 1971 or January of 1972 and that fellow Watergate conspirator G. Gordon Liddy sat in on the discussion.

Franco's health said improving

MADRID (UPI) — Generalissimo Francisco Franco, 82, gravely ill after a massive heart attack Tuesday, is showing signs of improvement, an official medical bulletin said today.

The bulletin, released at 2:35 p.m. (9:35 a.m. EDT), was signed by the same 11 doctors who issued a first medical bulletin Thursday evening.

Franco suffered a relapse Thursday and he was reported so gravely ill that the cabinet drew up the necessary papers to transfer power to Franco's designated heir apparent, Prince Juan Carlos de Borbon. Franco was unable to sign them.

When Franco's health apparently improved this morning, the cabinet canceled a scheduled meeting. Informed government sources said any action toward transferring power to Juan Carlos would be postponed until sometime this weekend.

Government sources said Franco spent a relatively quiet night and that his condition had not worsened this morning.

Under the constitution the powers can be transferred in three ways — by Franco's death, his resignation or his incapacity.

In the latter case the constitutional procedure is that the cabinet must decide by a two-thirds majority of its 50 members that it wishes to act.

It then must inform the Council of the Realm, the highest-ranking consultative body. If two-thirds of the council's members support the cabinet's opinion, the matter is submitted to the Cortes (Parliament) for a vote. Again a two-thirds majority is needed to declare Franco's incapacity.

The council of the Regency then would act for Franco until Prince Juan Carlos can be sworn in as the new chief of state. Sources close to the government said the transfer will be carried out without delay in order to end the present state of suspense.

Americans armed more than people elsewhere

WASHINGTON (UPI) — More Americans own guns than smoke cigars, drink alcohol or own dishwashers, a new survey shows, pollster Louis Harris told Congress today.

In testimony prepared for a Senate subcommittee on gun control, Harris said that 60 percent of those polled believe that the easy availability of guns contributes to violence.

Among those who owned no guns, Harris said, 83 per cent favored registration of all guns, 13 per cent favored no gun ownership, 19 per cent were opposed. That compared with a 68-30 per cent ratio in 1971, he said.

Nearly half — 47 per cent — of American households surveyed reported a gun in the house. Only 41 per cent reported them in 1968 at the height of the urban riots, Harris said.

Harris said he based his statements on a just completed survey of 1,500 adults, including gun owners and those who own none.

Outgoing mayor is roasted

By JUDY KUEHNEL
Herald Correspondent

There's only one way to honor an outgoing mayor for his time, effort and dedication to a community. Roast his head off.

That's exactly what South Windsor Democrats did to their retiring mayor Thursday night when they roasted Robert J. Smith, a six-term councilman who spent the last two years as mayor.

His "friends" picked on everything from his soft speech, "mumbly, fumbly Bob," to his commanding leadership. "He's inspired new emotion in South Windsor — apathy."

Smith's crew of honoring cronies included: • Roastmaster Vincent Callahan, "We all know Bob... he's a shnook."

• Smith's brother, Brian: "Bob has a way with girls... he once told a girl for a person you don't sweat too much."

• Smith's son, Robert: "My father's favorite phrase is, 'When I was a boy your age I didn't watch TV on Saturdays.' What

Thursday night, friends presented Smith with a plaque praising him for his dedication, integrity. "He did nothing, but he did it honestly," said Callahan and the numerous hours he put into a job that pays nothing.

Earlier this year, Smith cited the length of those hours, as well as business pressures, as his reasons for not seeking another term.

Uncertain as to whether he'll participate in politics again, Smith said he'd like to take the next year off.

• Bill Young, former Democratic town chairman: "Bob was a talking dummy for the local football team."

• Former Mayor James Thrope: "Bob wants my job. Thrope is now chairman of the Sevier Commission."

• John Mitchell, the only Republican to speak: "The Republican prospects of winning this year look a turn for the worse when Bob announced his intentions not to run again."

For more than an hour, Smith took it on the chin from friends and relatives. Unbeknownst to the roasters, Smith came prepared with a barrage of rebuttals that defused into practically everybody's faults.
