News summary

Compiled from United Press International

State

MERIDEN — The Connecticut Judicial Review Council has agreed to examine Meriden Record president Carter H. White's complaint that a teenager's manslaughter sentence was too lenient. The newspaper publisher charges a two-to-four-year suspended sentence of Ronald A. Sarasin was "a travesty of justice." The review has been tentatively set for Nov. 24.

HARTFORD — The Connecticut Citizen Action Group and Connecticut United Auto Workers Union have urged three Connecticut congressmen to support a federal consumer protection agency bill. Asked to back the Senate-passed bill in the House were Reps. Ronald A. Sarasin and Stewart B. McKinney, both Republicans, and Christopher Dodd, Democrat.

Regional

BOSTON — Preliminary agreement has been reached on a $2.9 billion budget package which will cut Massachusetts state spending for the first time in 35 years but still will require $325 million in new taxes. The compromise announced Monday night was coupled with a warning of imminent default on $131 million in housing notes.

BROCKTON, Mass. — Rita Warren says the Supreme Court gave her the "brushoff" and she wants a hearing on her suit to allow recitation of prayer in school buildings during class hours. She was to leave for Washington today to try to meet with Chief Justice Warren E. Burger and get the court to reconsider its refusal to hear her appeal from an adverse lower court ruling.

National

NEW YORK — President Ford's over-all standing with the American public dropped 3 per cent from the previous month in the latest Harris Survey, giving him an over-all negative rating of 56 per cent to 41 per cent positive. The rating is the lowest since last April.

WASHINGTON — The U.S. Treasury plans to issue next April 13 225 million $2 bills with Thomas Jefferson's portrait and will have another 400 million ready for release before the nation's Bicentennial birthday, July 4.

SACRAMENTO, Calif. — Lynette "Squeaky" Fromme's trial on charges of trying to assassinate President Ford began today. U.S. District Court Judge Thomas McBride said he hoped a jury could be selected by Thursday.

LEWISVILLE, Ky. — Several hundred antibusing demonstrators, some shouting "get the buses," set fires and threw rocks and bottles at police Monday night, forcing officers to use tear gas to break up the disturbance.

International

MADRID — Generalissimo Francisco Franco overcame what a doctor called 100-to-1 odds today and snapped back from the emergency surgery that saved him from bleeding to death. His condition improved from very grave to grave.

BEIRUT, Lebanon — For the first time in two months Lebanese poured into Beirut's streets today while security forces enforced the 12th ceasefire called in the two months since the latest round of violence. An estimated 1,200 are dead and more than 3,000 wounded in the religious warfare.

Ford names his 'guys' to top security posts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford has decided two former congressmen, an Air Force general and Henry Kissinger will make a better national security team than the old one — an expert on nuclear war, a spy, and Kissinger.

"These are my guys and the ones that I wanted," said the President, emphasizing that the major rearrangement in his cabinet and top level advisers were his personal selections and that the administration would keep seeking detente with the Soviet Union.

At a Monday news conference, Ford introduced the team: Kissinger, still secretary of state; his White House chief of staff, Donald Rumsfeld, becoming secretary of defense; his ambassador to China, George Bush, heading up the Central Intelligence Agency, and Kissinger's old White House deputy, Air Force Lt. Gen. Brent Scowcroft, becoming presidential assistant for national security affairs.

James R. Schlesinger is out as secretary of defense and Director William E. Colby will leave the CIA. The usual formality of a resignation was not mentioned.

The President declined to expand on another of Monday's startling announcements, that Nelson A. Rockefeller did not wish to be his 1976 running mate. In a letter, Rockefeller told Ford he did not want to complicate the President's political decisions as the campaign drew closer. Many Republicans said Rockefeller's departure would help Ford with the conservative wing of the GOP.

Ford hinted that Bush and Rumsfeld might come under consideration as his running mate.

Almost as an aside, Ford announced another change: that Elliot L. Richardson, the Boston Brahmin who left the Nixon administration in the last big shake-up, the "Saturday Night Massacre" of 1973, would become secretary of commerce, replacing Rogers C.B. Morton, who, sources said, would assume "a major role" in Ford's campaign.

Richard Cheney, Rumsfeld's assistant, will run the White House staff. The President said: "Secretary Kissinger will have the dominant role in the formation of our foreign policy."

That statement may resolve uncertainty over Kissinger's efforts to reduce tension between the superpowers, to get an agreement to stop the nuclear arms race. Schlesinger and other Pentagon officials have said that despite detente, the United States must strengthen its national security and increase arms spending.

But, Ford told the reporters, recent acrimony between State and Defense was not a factor.

He said, "I wanted a change in the Defense Department because I wanted, in that case, a person that I have known and worked with intimately for a long period of time, a person who is experienced in the field of foreign policy and who has served in the Department of Defense as a naval aviator."

Republican leaders still like Rockefeller

HARTFORD (UPI) — Rep. Ronald A. Sarasin, R-Conn., says Vice President Nelson Rockefeller could still be on the 1976 Republican ticket despite his decision to drop out of the presidential race.

Sarasin said Rockefeller's decision Monday leaves the possibility that Rockefeller might secure the nomination for vice president at the GOP national convention.

Connecticut Republican State Chairman Frederick K. Biebel said Rockefeller is so well liked in the state that he would have been a strong asset as President Ford's running mate.

Biebel said he doubts the vice president has any intention of trying to wrest the nomination for president from Ford.

House Majority Leader William O'Neill, D-East Hampton, Biebel's Democratic counterpart, said Ford's reluctance to give New York City federal aid may have helped convince Rockefeller to drop out.

"I think it might have had a great bearing on it," O'Neill said. "Rockefeller is the former governor of New York. He personally made a pitch for help for New York City, and the President has apparently turned his back on the city."

Biebel said he believes Rockefeller's decision will have a "unifying effect on the Republican party."

"Since his selection as vice president, he and his philosophy have, deservedly or not, become controversial subjects," Biebel said. "His decision not to run removes this potentially divisive situation."

Sen. Abraham A. Ribicoff, D-Conn., called James Schlesinger's removal as defense secretary "disturbing." He blamed the ouster on Secretary of State Henry Kissinger.

Chief Lannan announces departmental changes

James McCooe, a Manchester policeman for 18 years, today was named community relations officer for the local police department. He succeeds Russell Holyfield, recently promoted to detective.

In another department change announced by Chief Robert Lannan today, Patrolman James Mott was reassigned to the detective division. Mott, still classified as a patrol division officer, will work on fraud cases. McCooe formerly handled that job.

McCooe, a native of Manchester and graduate of local schools, joined the police department in October 1957. He lives at 110 Hamlin St. He and his wife, Josephine, have two children. He is a member of the Army-Navy Club, the Veterans of Foreign Wars, and the Manchester Rod and Gun Club.

Mott, his wife, Diana, and daughter Jennifer live at 268 Oak St. A Manchester native and graduate of local schools, Mott joined the police force in October 1970. He is firearms instructor for the department and is attending Manchester Community College.

As community relations officer (a position created about two years ago), McCooe will prepare and present programs to the community. He'll speak to community groups and help develop a new burglary prevention program in town.

Sixth Graders have election, too

Going through the actual mechanics of the American voting process, sixth graders at Martin School elect class officers using a voting booth made from a refrigerator carton. From left at the table are Brad Jones, voter; Nancy Berggren, election worker; Andy Danahy, election worker; and Bill Badaeu, moderator. The project was in conjunction with a study of the election process by Mrs. Margery Bialeck's social study class.

Voter turnout moderate

By SOL R. COHEN
Herald Reporter

As of noon today, six hours after the polls opened and under comfortable, though cloudy weather conditions, a total of 5,909 voters had cast ballots in the town's 10 voting districts — for 22.4 per cent of those eligible. The polls close at 8 p.m.

The noon total averages out to 985 an hour. If the same average is held to 8 p.m., a total of 13,790 or 52.3 per cent of the electorate will have voted when the polls close. However, mid-afternoon voting usually is light. Heavy voting is expected again from about 5 p.m. on.

Estimates for today's turnout ranged from a low of 50 per cent to a high of 66.7 per cent. Both party headquarters are offering rides to the polls and both have workers manning the phones — to get out the vote. The Democrats' number is 647-1661 and the Republicans' 643-2427.

Today's noon count is comfortably ahead of the one during the 1973 municipal election, when 5,292 had voted by noon. Only 54 per cent of those eligible cast votes by 8 p.m. then.

Last November, in the state election, 8,066 had cast ballots in Manchester by noon. In 1972, for the national election, it was 10,671 by noon and in 1970, also a state election, it was 8,126.

In 1974, the turnout was 75.3 per cent for the 14 hours of voting. It was 87.4 per cent in 1972 and 86.1 per cent in 1970.

In the six voting hours tabulated today (from 6 a.m. to noon), 767 had voted during the first hour, 832 the second hour, 915 the third, 1,226 the fourth, 4,914 the fifth, and 5,509 the sixth.

A total of 26,382 voters are eligible to cast ballots today — 10,519 Democrats, 8,262 Republicans and 7,601 unaffiliated. The registration figures are about 800 below those of a year ago and about 900 below two years ago. In 1972 Manchester boasted 28,700 eligible voters. It was 23,238 in 1970.

Being elected today are all nine members to the Board of Directors, six to the nine-member Board of Education, a town treasurer, all three members of the Board of Selectmen and seven constables.

There is only one referendum question on the voting machines. It is for a $2,373,000 appropriation for additions and alterations to Bentley and Washington Schools and for replacing the West Side Rec with a new building. The construction, if approved, is still contingent on state aid — to bring the town's cost share to a maximum of $1,400,000.

The Democrats, who swept the 1971 and 1973 elections and won all municipal offices available to them under minority rule, are shooting for an unprecedented third straight win. They've never been able to do it in Manchester's 152-year history.

The Republicans are working hard to prevent it and are conceding nothing, pointing out that the 2,257 Democratic lead means little when voters split their tickets and when the unaffiliated vote is considered.

The Democrats have been running on their record, pointing with pride to their accomplishments and to their low tax rate. The Republicans are stressing the lack of accountability by the Democrats and claim they can service the town better with available funds. Several Republican candidates have injected extraneous issues into the campaign, which the Democrats have labeled "smears."

Both town committees are holding "Win-Lose-or-Draw" parties tonight — the Democrats at their Hartford Rd. headquarters, the Republicans in the American Legion Hall.

And, as to be expected, both party chairmen are predicting victory — Ted Cummings for the Democrats and Nathan Agostinelli for the Republicans.

An innovation this year — believed to be a first in the state — is a modified voting machine in each of the 10 voting districts, for use by wheelchair occupants. It was designed by the registrar of voters' office, with some consultation with the public works director and town clerk, and was adapted by Cheney Bros. engineering department. The machine can be lowered to the desired height when a wheelchair occupant enters the voting booth.

The Herald will provide a telephone service on the results of the election. The number to call is 643-2711. Callers are asked to wait until close to 9 p.m. before placing their calls — to permit tabulation of the results from all 10 voting districts.

Municipal elections today

HARTFORD (UPI) — Voters in 157 cities and towns in Connecticut today elect local officials to govern them for the next two years.

In at least four of the state's six largest cities — Hartford, Bridgeport, New Haven and Waterbury — Democrats were expected to win mayoralty races. In New Britain and Stamford, where registered Democrats outnumber Republicans, the mayoralty races seemed too close to call.

In 95 of the cities and towns, Democrats are now the mayors, first selectmen or hold legislative control. Republicans prevail in the other 62.

GOP Chairman Frederick K. Biebel Jr. urged voters to send a message of their "disenchantment" with Gov. Ella T. Grasso, a Democrat, by voting for Republican candidates.

Democratic Chairman William A. O'Neill said, "There will be some surprises in store for those who think Democrats aren't going to vote like Democrats. When the chips are down, the overwhelming majority of Democrats come through."

Since 1974, voter registration has declined in the state but Democrats still outnumber Republicans. Of the state's 1.5 million voters, 37.1 per cent are Democrats, 26.5 per cent are Republicans and 36.3 per cent are unaffiliated.

In eight cities, voters will decide whether to approve the controversial

City and Town Development Act aimed at helping municipalities attract new industry and retain existing industry by providing subsidies through local revenue bonds.

The act gives communities the power to grant tax relief, construct buildings as inducements to industry, and sell bonds. Those cities voting on the act were Hartford, Bridgeport, New Haven, Waterbury, New Britain, New London, Norwich and West Haven.

The polls were open for 14 hours, beginning at 6 a.m.

Bridgeport, New Haven, Waterbury and New Britain will have new mayors. Here are some highlights of the mayoralty races:

— In Bridgeport, Democratic candidate City Clerk John Mandanici has the edge over the Republican nominee, former State Sen. Richard S. Scalo. Former Mayor Nicholas A. Panuzio resigned to take a job with the General Services Administration in Washington.

— In New Haven, Democratic Alderman Frank Logue opposes John

Esposito, the Republican candidate, and Communist party candidate Joelle Fishman. Logue defeated three-term Democratic Mayor Bartholomew Guida in a primary earlier this year. Esposito ran against Guida two years ago, losing that election by 7,000 votes.

— In Waterbury, three candidates are running against Democratic candidate Edward D. Bergin Jr., whose late father was the city's popular mayor a decade ago. Bergin defeated incumbent Victor Mamburno in the primary. Bergin's opponents are Salvatore Terezo, Citizens Party; Republican Francis G. Brennan; and former state Sen. William J. Verrier, an independent.

— In Hartford, Democratic Mayor George Athanson was expected to win against Republican Shirley J. Scott. The Democratic edge in registration in Hartford is about 5 to 1.

— In New Britain, the Republican mayoral candidate, Paul Manafort, has accused Democrats of making political hay out of his family firm's connection with the embattled Bridgeport jai alai fronton. His opponent is Matthew Avatible, a lawyer and Democrat.

Voter turnouts were not expected to set any records in Connecticut because of lackluster campaigns throughout the state and a weather forecast calling for occasional rain.

N. Main St. rezoning draws opposition

Citing traffic congestion and commercial encroachment of residential areas, N. Main St. residents opposed rezoning of land near theirs at a Manchester Planning and Zoning Commission (PZC) public hearing Monday night.

The hearing dealt with an application to change the zone on two lots, with a total of about two acres, from Residence A to Business 2 Zone. The PZC reserved decision.

The land, owned by Thomas Hackett and other members of the Hackett family, is split by an access road to the Georgia Pacific industrial warehouse on the south side of N. Main St.

Atty. Vincent Diana, representing Hackett, said the applicant has no specific plans for the property but intends to lease or sell the land for a service-type business.

The other owners, represented by Atty. David Keith, favored rezoning. Diana said rezoning would be a logical extension of commercial uses in the area, and he called on real estate appraiser Alfred Werber, who testified that Business 2 Zone would allow the most appropriate use of the land.

Opponents speaking at the public hearing were Anthony Dzen of 744 N. Main St., Leon Cieszyński of 744 N. Main St., Frederick Peck of 758 N. Main St., and Barbara Senjivny of 1023 Tolland Tpk.

Dzen, Cieszyński and Mrs. Senjivny all complained of traffic problems in the area. Peck said rezoning would not be fair to residential property owners.

In other business Monday night, the PZC unanimously approved subdivision of a large lot at the southeast corner of Porter St. and Butternut Rd. The land, owned by E. Theodore Bantly, was split into two lots.

Two other zone change applications on the PZC agenda were withdrawn before the hearings. They were Allen F. and Jane B. Behnke's petition to rezone from Residence A to Residence C an area from Hamilton St. to Harrison St. on the south side of E. Center St., and an application to change 73 acres off Vernon St. from Residence AA to Residence M, sought by Philip Bayler, trustee.

The Manchester Gilbert & Sullivan Workshop is a non-profit organization in which edgerton donates proceeds from its annual production to a local charity.

"Princess Ida" was last produced by the Workshop in 1962.

One man has been arrested and Manchester Police are still investigating a burglary into Potterton's Inc., 130 Center St., in which five television sets were stolen Monday.

Jonathan L. Hargrove, 26, of Hartford is being held on a $5,000 bond, charged with first-degree larceny and third-degree burglary in connection with the early morning break-in.

Manchester Police detectives said Hargrove was taken into custody shortly after the burglary was reported by a passerby at about 5 a.m.

When police responded to the call, they found an automobile parked in an alley behind the retail store and several television sets were on the ground in the alley. The burglars apparently broke in through a basement window and were removing the sets when the burglary was discovered. Still missing from the store are five color TV sets valued at a total of about $1,750.

Coventry board revises school use policies

MONICA SHEA
 742-9195

The Coventry Board of Education is revising its policies on custodial overtime and rental charges for use of school buildings.

There will be no rental charges for the use of school facilities by recognized teacher or school personnel groups or student organizations under the proposed policies.

No rental charges will be made to qualified local organizations which permit free attendance to programs and functions.

When an additional custodian is needed because of a function, a charge of $3.50 per hour will be charged for community groups using the buildings.

The rental charges for Robertson and Coventry Grammar Schools will be $20 for gym; $10 for a single classroom; $15 for the kitchen, and $15 for the library.

Rental charges for the Coventry High School and Capt. Nathan Hale School would be $20 for the auditorium, showers, and library; $10 for a single classroom, $15 for the cafeteria, kitchen or large group instruction room; and $35 for the gym.

There will also be a charge of $35 to lay the gym floor cover at the high school.

The board also discussed the possibility of hiring a building services aide who would work at the high school for no more than 15 hours per week at a rate of $2.70 per hour.

The person in this position would be taking the hours that are usually assigned to the regular custodians at an overtime rate of time-and-a-half.

The board acknowledged that this could result in serious labor discomfords and postponed action until a job description could be written.

Dick Galinat, maintenance supervisor, reported that heatolators still haven't been installed at the Robertson Grammar School. The contractor had promised them for the last two months and it is now expected they will be delivered to the school by the end of next week.

The heating contractor has agreed to install a different type of heater at his expense and it is estimated that all rooms will have heat this week.

The board appointed the negotiating committees for the coming year. The teachers negotiating committee will be chaired by Joan Lewis and will include Dr. Richard Ashley and Fran Morrone, and Tom Gillung.

The negotiating committee for the administrators will be chaired by Tom Gillung and will include Fran Morrone and Jake Wisenall.

The secretaries' committee will be chaired by Jake Wisenall and includes Sue Brainard and Vince Morley.

The custodial negotiating committee will include Dr. Richard Ashley as chairman and Sue Brajard, Fran Morrone, and Vince Morley.

HEBRON
EVELYN CROSTON

First Selectman Aaron "Steve" Reid, Andover First Selectman David Yeomans and members of both the Hebron and Andover Bicentennial Commissions walked the boundaries between Andover and Hebron Saturday.

The project was a Bicentennial activity.

Also it was in compliance with a law which states, "One in each five years the selectmen must appoint and pay two more persons to perambulate the boundary lines and renew the boundaries monuments."

This law applies to boundaries with other towns and with a city or borough in the town or in an adjoining town. Any town which neglects to do this must forfeit $15, according to Section 714 in the Handbook for Connecticut Selectmen.

The selectmen and commission members began their trek at 10 a.m. and completed the chore at 4 p.m.

Ambulance service
 Reid and Selectman Robert Craig said they were pleased about the ambulance service the town has received. They like the fine work of the volunteer fire fighters, emergency medical technicians (EMTs) and first aiders are doing, they said.

Reid said the selectmen have had many compliments from residents about the men. The town has one of the best, most well-equipped ambulances around, said Reid.

Selectman Aime P. Dallaire, who is also an EMT and fire fighter, concurred.

Reid said the voting machines have been moved to the Hebron Elementary School for today's election.

The selectmen will not meet Friday unless called by the First Selectman. Next meeting is scheduled for Nov. 14 at 4:30 p.m. at the Town Office Building.

Leaf pickup begins

East Hartford
SHEILA TULLER
 289-4283

The townwide leaf pick-up program will get under way this week. The collection program has been scheduled according to the town's voting districts.

The leaf pick-up crews will work the streets in Districts 1, 2-B, 2-A, 3-A, and 3-B this week.

Streets in voting districts 4, 5, 6-A, and 6-B will be covered the week of Nov. 10th. There will be no collection on Veteran's Day, Nov. 11.

During the week of Nov. 17, leaves will be collected from streets in Districts 7, 8-A, 8-B, and 9.

Public Works Director Arthur J. Mulligan suggests residents rake leaves just prior to their scheduled pick-up.

Mulligan also suggested property owners deposit raked leaves in long windrows in the tree belt area along the frontage of their property. In this way, there is less danger of children playing unseen by motorists and collection crews.

It will also expedite the collection. Residents are also requested not to deposit leaves in the street.

If possible, residents are urged to cover leaves to prevent them from blowing.

If residents prefer bagging their leaves, the bags can be left out with their regular rubbish collection. Second collections will be conducted where needed.

Reactor insurance fires nuclear debate

Nuclear power, the bright dream of the 1960s, has only recently surpassed firewood in its contribution to the nation's total energy supply, noted one authority not long ago.

Well, it may be a little better than that. According to figures compiled by the Atomic Industrial Forum, an association of companies involved in the nuclear field, as of the end of 1974, 45 nuclear power plants were in operation, accounting for some 8 per cent of the electricity generated nationwide and saving consumers $700 million on their electric bills. This is what it would have cost, says the Forum, to produce the same amount of power using coal or oil.

In addition, firm commitments for more than 200 nuclear power plants have been made by the industry and it is projected that by 1987, nuclear power should be supplying more than 35 per cent of the nation's electricity.

Nevertheless, the future of nuclear power remains clouded with uncertainties, especially concerning the safety of reactors. The continued orderly development of nuclear power, says the industry, hinges on renewal of the Price-Anderson Act, which since 1957 has insured the public against financial loss from nuclear accidents and is due to expire in 1977. H.R. 8631, a bill to extend the act for 10 years, was the subject of hearings before the Joint Committee on Atomic Energy in September.

At present under Price-Anderson, nuclear plants are insured by a private pool up to $125 million. In case of an accident federal indemnity payments would supplement this to an upper limit of $560 million.

Opponents of nuclear energy claim such an amount is pitifully inadequate, that a major catastrophe could cause billions of dollars worth of property damage, not to mention loss of life. Sen. Mike Gravel, D-Alaska, has flatly stated that nuclear power is "uninsurable" and that the only sure way to protect the public is to stop building reactors.

The industry counters that the record speaks for itself: No member of the general public has ever been injured as a result of nuclear power reactor operation, and no claims have ever been filed under Price-Anderson. A government-commissioned study puts the chances of a "worst case" accident on the order of once in a million years for every 100 reactors in operation.

Moreover, it is argued, the public is further protected because Price-Anderson bars such technical legal defenses as contributory negligence or a statute of limitations. It is a no-fault system in which a claimant need only show that he suffered damages.

This would no longer be true if the system were allowed to revert to individual state tort or statutory law, says Martin Victor, vice president of Babcock & Wilcox, a supplier of nuclear reactor components and fuel. Price-Anderson has resulted in significant contributions to the nation's welfare, he contends, and will continue to be important until the available amount of private insurance reaches the $500-million level. Under the extension bill, government indemnity would be phased out as more nuclear plants came on stream and contribute to the insurance pool.

To the argument that Price-Anderson is no incentive to safety because it allegedly eliminates private financial risk, Victor points out that the very likelihood that nuclear power would be curtailed in the event of an accident is itself an incentive to safety, even if the industry were not — as it is — "strongly committed to protection of the public health and safety."

The debate over nuclear power continues. In the meantime, domestic fossil fuel resources continue to decline and foreign fuels continue to soar in cost. Each 1,000-megawatt nuclear plant that becomes operational generates power equivalent to a fossil fuel plant consuming about 10 million barrels of oil a year.

These realities alone lend increasing weight to the argument of those who say that nuclear power is the keystone to an adequate energy supply for Americans in the coming decades.

Punishing the sinner not the answer

MAX LERNER

NEW YORK CITY — It is hard to recall a punitive sentence that was delivered with greater unctious than President Ford's speech to the National Press Club, condemning New York City to bankruptcy proceedings in a federal court as the only way out of its financial sickness.

Someone had finally done a skillful job of writing a speech for him, and Mr. Ford read it with brio rather than with the more frequent sense of conveying of stumbling over wooden blocks. There were the expected pieties about the "wonderful people of New York" and about "this great center of human civilization." Yet none of it (as he said) because he didn't weeks ago, lifted the tent flap on how Mr. Ford feels about New York City when he spoke of it as "a junkie hooked on federal aid."

The real thrust of Mr. Ford's talk was punitive. The effort to separate the people from those whom they had been electing to govern, then for years was too transparent to be taken seriously. The wonderful people would have to suffer, and the great center of human civilization would have to atone for its sins.

That's what the speech was about — sinners and atonement. It could have been Jean Calvin thundering from his pulpit in Geneva at the predestined damned and glorying in the predestined elect. It was a tour de force of Calvinism one got from Mr. Ford, and it came with scant grace from one who had pardoned another sinner, called Nixon, and who had done it (as he said) because he didn't want to administer "justice without mercy."

One can't escape the sense that, in the tangled skein of political economy, Mr. Ford's approach to the New York City problem remains more political than economic. He has much to gain, in terms of political interest, from taking a harsh stance toward New York.

Much of the nation has long suspected New York to be another even while perforce he continues to follow it. The New York City syndrome is a heaven-sent chance for him to put on another suit of protective armor against the charge of having succumbed to the New York and Washington sickness.

Purely as political footwork this is pretty good. As long as he had no plan of his own he ran the danger of being blamed if and when New York defaulted, and the Democrats in Congress would have posed as would-be rescuers of the city. With his new plan President Ford gets associated with a salvage operation of sorts. Thus he has it both ways.

Actually the proposal to solve New York's problems by punishing its sins is no longer realistic. It isn't news any more than New York has sinned. Mayor Beame knows it, Gov. Carey knows it, the people of the city and state know it, the other cities know it. If Congress were to pass the kind of bill which the Senate subcommittee tolled over, guaranteeing the New York's indelible status as the barest necessities of city existence, it would serve as deterrence enough against a spread of the New York disease to other cities.

Nor does it make sense to take the problem away from Congress, where it belongs, and give it to the overburdened federal courts, where it doesn't belong. A city is not like a small business firm — or even a big one — that has tripped up and might as well settle with its creditors, with only a few faint ripples rippling. New York is part of the whole organism of the nation and the world economic community. Handling it over to the court-appointed referee or receiver, as if it were an offending railroad, isn't the way of economic statesmanship.

President Ford keeps insisting that New York doesn't have to default but when he commits himself to vetoing any relief bill Congress may pass, how can the city avoid default? The President gives us a punitive and moralistic theology and asks us to call it hard common sense. It won't wash.

OPEN FORUM

Cheney Tech boosters praised

To the editor,
May 1 comment on the attendance noted at several area forums by the regional media. Some political get-togethers have as few as 20 people, including participants. One extremely controversial hearing attracted 45 interested people.

Most commonly blamed was the "seventh game of the World Series." On that same evening well over 200 people attended a Parents/Student Club meeting at the Cheney Technical School. This figure does not include the seven area legislators that appeared as guests. Just another indication of the deep concern and pride that Cheney Tech people have in the school and its future.

THOUGHT

Stripes suggested for Richard Nixon

To the editor:
In reference to your Opinion of Oct. 27, 1975.

Stripes, but not a pin-striped suit, would be appropriate attire for Richard M. Nixon, in my opinion. I was appalled to see him on the cover of Newsweek and in a large pictorial layout in Time magazine. As millions of Americans live in poverty this man lives in luxury financed by our money.

A personality such as Mr. Nixon must revel in the belief that many Americans would still enjoy reading about him and maybe even sympathize with him. I find it incredulous that the publishers of our country's most widely read news magazines know that they can sell the American people by putting on their covers such maladjusted people as "Squeaky" Fromme and Richard Nixon.

Betty's Notebook

By Betty Ryder

If you have a hearty appetite, always wanted to taste something different, and don't mind taking the trip, I have just the place for you — Bradford, Vt.

The United Church of Christ in Bradford will once again conduct its 19th annual Wild Game Supper on Nov. 22.

This event drew over 1,100 visitors to the small 100-year-old Congregational Church last year to feast on many varieties of wild game.

Two new varieties of meat have been added to the 1975 menu — buffalo and woodchuck. The old standbys of venison, moose, pheasant with rice, coon, rabbit, wild boar and bear will be available.

The 2,000 lbs. of wild game will be prepared by the parishioners in many forms, such as roasts, steaks, meat loaves, hamburger, pies, and sausage which means that approximately 20 different dishes appear on the buffet table. Color-coded toothpicks will help guests remember just what they're eating when they arrive at the long church tables where potato, vegetables, salad, and bread are served family style. All this will be topped off with a luscious dessert of gingerbread from local Vermont whipped cream.

This Wild Game Supper was nominated by Official Travel Directors of the 50 states and U.S. territories and selected by Discover America Travel Organizations as one of the top 20 U.S. travel events for November, 1975.

Mrs. Eris Eastman, co-chairman, points out that "Our church is small, game is limited, and time is a real factor. All meats are served from a buffet table and only so many people can go through the line in an hour; thus, we have to limit the reservations in order to accommodate our guests."

As it is now, No. 1 ticket holder will start through the buffet line at 4 p.m. and the No. 1,100 holder, hopefully, will go through around 10 p.m.

I did hear of one couple who went trick or treating with wine glasses in their hands.

At last count (or I should say when last they were able to speak), they had had wine; a grasshopper, a sombrero, and a small sip of cognac, and they hadn't gone halfway down the street.

By the time they made it to the corner, they didn't know which (pardon me) way they were going.

Rodeo

I went to the rodeo at the Hartford Civic Center and really enjoyed it, well most of it.

There were some tense moments when those big cowboys lassoed those small calves, or jumped off their horses and wrestled them to the ground.

When the bronco busting came on, that was a horse of a different color! Those cowboys had hang on for dear life, and in most instances they didn't, and you could hear the "thud" as they hit the turf. The coliseum's ice rink was covered with 10 inches (600 cubic yards) of dirt to provide the proper stage for the rodeo.

The Brahma bulls were really tiggerish (like Merrill & Lynch) and many a cowboy went flying into the air (without a trapeze), picked himself off the floor and hobbled to the arena gate.

Oh, guess who was there all duded up in his steer roping outfit? Dan Lutkin — the first head of the Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) in Connecticut. He's from Newtown, and has been riding and ranching for years, but it didn't help a bit. He and his fellow cowpoke were disqualified just as their calf broke through the gate. I believe the call was because they started a race or so before the calf did. Heck, it was such a small calf, it's only fair it should get a head start. It was a fun night — not like the rodeos at Madison Square Garden or those shown on Wide World of Sports, but it was presented very well, and was a real crowd pleaser.

Unusual relish from eggplant

The purple eggplant bakes beautifully in its skin like a potato. The peel and dice it ready for this unusual relish.

- Eggplant Relish
- 1 large eggplant
- 4 green onions, finely chopped
- 1 large tomato, chopped
- 1 tablespoon parsley
- 1 clove garlic minced
- 2 tablespoons white wine vinegar
- ¼ cup olive oil
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon oregano
- Freshly ground pepper
- Mediterranean-style olives

Bake whole eggplant in a shallow pan for 50 min. at 375 degrees. Dip in cold water, dry and peel off skin. Dice into small pieces. In a bowl mix lightly eggplant and all ingredients, saving the olives for garnish. Chill several hours for flavors to blend. Mound into pyramid and ring with olives. Serve with sesame crackers. Serves 6-8.

Eggplant, the delight of cooks in many lands, Greece, is used in a tasty combination of chopped meat, layers of eggplant and cheese sauce for Moussaka. French make Ratatouille, and in India cooked chunks are served in a curry sauce.

Gardeners have a new appreciation for this distinctive beauty. Over thirty varieties including a hen-sized, white eggplant and a long cylindrical one grow best where there are warm summers. Some kinds mentioned in the new Ortho book "When the good cook gardens" have done well in cool season experiments in Canada.

Whether you grow them or buy them, best quality fruits of eggplant should be young, from 1 1/2 to 2 1/2 their mature size. Skin should feel firm and have a high gloss. Can be stored in a cool, humid place for up to one week. Eggplant by itself is not a good freezer, but precooked and combined with casserole ingredients the entire dish can be frozen without loss of quality.

SLEEP-AID DRUGS... Potentially dangerous... and Don't Work!

Millions of Americans are taking the "over-the-counter" patent medicine sleeping tablets and capsules such as Somnax, Excedrin-PM, Sleep-eze, Quiet World and Quibabe. According to the doctors, who are testifying before a Senate subcommittee, they are ineffective in the doses that are recommended and are potentially dangerous if a person takes them in increasingly larger quantities, in order to fall asleep.

In addition the manufacturers have had over 13 years to prove their effectiveness and have not done so.

All these sleep aids found in supermarkets, discount stores, drug stores and department stores all contain the basic ingredients of METHAPYRILENE, which is an antihistamine, and Scopalamine.

Methapyriline has a slight sedative effect and Scopalamine acts on the parasympathetic nervous system, at the central cholinergic brain centers! The natural tendency to increase the number of pills when one finds he gets up at night can cause serious ill effects if they are taken in excess according to Dr. Greenblatt.

"Excessive quantities can cause excitement, hallucinations, delirium, psychosis and dangerous elevation of blood pressure." Interestingly enough, Scopalamine is very similar to another derivative of the U.S. government is using in their experiments in poison gas, called "BZ."

If one has a real problem sleeping, for a long period of time, it might be the result of an underlying DEPRESSIVE STATE, and could be a serious medical problem. Professional help should be sought!

It is normal at times not to be able to sleep. However, the public is so bombarded by TV ads that one thinks he is abnormal if one has some anxieties and sleepless nights.

A very simple remedy has been found very helpful at a research sleep clinic. A warm glass of milk taken at bedtime does wonders. The rationale is that milk contains calcium and an amino acid called tryptophan, which is converted to Serotonin in the brain. Serotonin effects the central adrenergic brain system and brings on sleep. Calcium is a natural relaxant. Strangely enough, when tryptophan is taken alone it does not work, however, when mixed with other proteins in the proper natural proportion it brings on sleep.

Take sleeping pills only under the direction of your doctor and seek help if you have serious problems sleeping!

The TRANSCENDENTAL MEDITATION program

WHAT IS IT?
Transcendental Meditation, or TM, is a simple, easy-to-learn technique for gaining deep rest and relaxation. The TM program is not a philosophy or religion and involves no change in life style.

WHAT DOES IT DO?
The relaxation gained during TM relieves stress, strain and tension. Research at the Harvard Medical School has found that the level of rest gained during TM is twice as deep as the deepest part of a whole night's sleep.

WHAT ARE THE BENEFITS?
TM gives increased calmness and energy throughout the day. Health improves. High blood pressure is reduced (10% of the people who start TM are recommended to the program by their doctor). TM increases mental clarity and psychological well-being. Family and social relationships also improve from the TM program.

HOW MUCH TIME DOES IT TAKE?
TM is practiced twice a day (once in the morning and once in the evening) for just 15-20 minutes.

HOW DO I KNOW IT WORKS?
The benefits of TM program have been verified by scientific research at over 200 universities and research centers. (All studies and sources available at the TM Center.) If you know a mediator, then you know it works.

CAN ANYONE LEARN?
Yes. The technique of TM is so natural and the course is so complete that anyone is able to learn in a few short sessions over four days.

HOW DO I LEARN?
The first step to finding out more about the Transcendental Meditation program is to attend a free introductory lecture on TM.

NFL active in trade market
During the 1973 trading period, National Football League teams made 127 trades involving 152 players and 130 draft choices. The New England Patriots were involved in 14 trades, the New York Giants a dozen and the New York Jets nine. This year's total of 127 deals is 15 less than a year ago. The all-time high was 164 in 1973. Playing time rates have been reduced all across the board at the Manchester Racquet Club. There are 16 indoor clubs in the Greater Hartford area comprising 102 courts. With excellent weather Sunday for outdoor play, there were vacancies during prime time at area indoor tennis courts. On the other hand, with the weather unseasonably mild, outdoor tennis courts were jammed and golf clubs did a heavy business. Following Kar Yastrzemski to live in Florida during the off-season is Boston Red Sox teammate Rico Petrocelli. It's getting pretty expensive to be assessed with a technical foul in NBA this season. For the first T, it's an automatic $75 due the league office and a second will cost the guilty party $150. It used to cost a player, or coach, $25 for any technical called by the officials. Proceeds will enter the scholarship fund of the Hartford, New Haven and Waterbury Colleges Alumni Clubs. Nick Carlo, owner of Golf Cars Sales & Rental Co. in Bolton, received a special request for the use of two golf carts last week at a Tarrytown, N.Y., course. The carts were dispatched to the New York site and were used by Vice President Nelson Rockefeller and Secretary of State Henry Kissinger. NBC checks in with the information that 71,000,000 viewers watched the seventh game of the 1973 World Series, the greatest audience ever to watch a baseball game. When UConn failed to pick up a single first down and wound up with a minus 18 yards rushing, and minus 11 yards total offense for the first half against Rutgers last Saturday it marked a new low in futility for the Huskies. Powerful Rutgers had just too many guns for the UConn and went home with an easy 35-8 win. The wolves were out en masse after Coach Larry Naviaux' scalp, the same ones who were leading the cheers two years ago when his squad fashioned an 8-2-1 record. UConn stands at 1-6 today with four games left and the team will be underdogs in at least three. Manchester Middle Football League will hold its annual banquet Nov. 12 at the Army & Navy Club. Making a big contribution to the Eastern Connecticut State College record this fall has been sophomore Werner Cacece of Manchester, a starter the past two years. Band Day alone was worth the price of admission last Saturday at UConn. Only four members of the New York Jets' Supper Bowl championship squad of 1969 remain. Joe Namath, Winston Hill, Randy Rasmussen and Emerson Boozer all helped the underdog Jets upset the Baltimore Colts.

Indian kickers blank Bristol

BY LEN AUSTER
HERALD SPORTSWRITER

Maybe it was the usual infection of first game jitters but 23rd-ranked Bristol High had to struggle before subduing 13th-ranked Bristol Eastern, 1-0, yesterday in Bristol in a State Soccer Tournament Class AA Division playoff round test.

"That was one of our poorest efforts," remarked 29-year Indian Coach Dick Danielson. "We didn't play soccer at all. We were just playing kickball."

The victory moves the 8-5-2 Silk Towners into Wednesday's first round against top-ranked 10-1-1 Hamden High at Quinnipiac College's field in Hamden. Manchester has faced Hamden twice in tournament competition, winning in a 1973 semifinal bout, 3-0, and losing in 1968 on penalty kicks. Eastern, making its first tournament appearance ever, bows out with a 4-2 ledger.

The only goal came at 7:47 into the second quarter off the foot of senior left winger Tony Barrett, his sixth of the season. The scoring play originated on the right side of the field on a long throw-in by Bruce Ballard. The ball whirred its way towards Barrett on the left side who kicked it into the goal.

Lancer goalie Dan Burns was in proper position but the ball deflected off the back of fullback Bob LeGere and came to rest in the near corner of the net.

The lancers pressed the attack in the third quarter with Spec Monaco hitting the crossbar with Tribe goalie Brian Beggs dangerously out of his net. Eastern continued on the attack in the final canto against a somewhat disorganized Manchester defense but couldn't get the equalizer. His final chance by Glenn Ricardi with less than a minute left went high over the net.

Manchester outshot Eastern, 17-11, but didn't have that many good scoring opportunities overall.

"Against anybody we're going to have to play a lot better or we're going to be watching from the sideline. But the first game is always the toughest," Danielson stated. That first hurdle has been accomplished.

While in high school, Kahn lettered in both tennis and cross country and for several years was an active participant in the annual Five Mile Road Race in Manchester on Thanksgiving.

Illing, Bennet booters in scoreless deadlock

Playing to a 2-2 tie yesterday were Illing and Bennet Junior Highs in soccer action at Charter Oak Field.

Illing scored first with Dave White heading the ball into the twine but Bennet came back with two goals before the end of the first half by Jim Gluhosky and Jack Metzela.

The Rams knotted it just over a minute left in regulation time with Bill Frattaroli scoring on a breakaway. Two overtime sessions couldn't produce a winner.

Illing is now 7-2-2 for the season and Bennet 8-1-1.

Area schools soccer winners

Three area soccer teams involved in State Tournament action yesterday all came away winners and advanced to first round play Wednesday.

Fifteen-ranked Rockville High blanked 25th-ranked Newtonton C play.

High, 3-0, in Class AA Division play, 12th seed South Windsor High whitewashed 19th-ranked Ledyard High, 2-0, in Class A competition and 15th-ranked Bolton High got past 20th-ranked Portland High, 3-1, in Class C play.

Tom Brown, Larry Kelly and Kurt Schumey scored for Rockville, now 8-4-2, which now must face third-ranked 11-1 Staples High in Westport. Newtonton bows out with a 6-6-2 ledger.

Illing field hockey team in deadlock

Battling to a 3-3 tie yesterday was the Illing Junior High girls' field hockey team with Timothy Edwards of South Windsor. Scoring for Illing were Liz Neubelt, Mary Neubelt and Sue Roth. Carol Bishop scored two for Edwards and Holly Kenyon one.

Playing well for Illing were Lisa Schwartz, Beth Smith, Deb Dawson and Ann Morrison.

"I may be dumb but I'm not completely stupid," says van Breda Kolff. "I knew we weren't winning with what we had and it was obvious we weren't going to win with the same players."

COACHES' CORNER

By JOHN LAFONTANA
East Catholic

The first thing I have to do this week is to confess to the responsibility for our field goal attempt that backfired and almost put us into a tie with Putnam (16-14 win).

Despite the contrary advice of my offensive coaches, I chose to go for the field goal not so much to add three points to the score but for the chance for our field goal kicker Brian Foley to add to his experience in kicking field goals since this might be an important weapon in our last three games. Ironically, this was the only time this year that I chose to meddle with offensive affairs by calling an offensive play. I am usually too busy running the defense and leave the offensive strategy to the offensive coaches.

Every single football play that is run is a gamble with odds of success or disaster varying with the circumstances. Also, as is the case in any sport endeavor, if you gamble and win, your are a hero — if you fail then the fans are screaming for your head.

The reason I chose to kick was based on three things — we couldn't lose the game since we had an eight point lead at the time, secondly we had used our field goal team three times in the afternoon and each time it had done the job well, including a 30-yard goal by Foley. The third consideration was the fact that there was only one second left on the clock when we lined up to kick and I also had faith in my team enough to know that if Putnam did score, they would do their damndest to stop the extra point.

With these things going for us, I then had to stand there in horror and watch a Putnam man take the blocked kick 80 yards and score with no time on the clock. We held against the extra points to preserve the 16-14 lead, but it turned me into an even more conservative coach who will not experiment with anything risky unless I have a 50 point lead with no time on the clock.

As far as the game itself went, we had a poor first half, but came back with three scorers drives in the second half which featured some good inside running by Cephus Nolen and Kevin Shorey. The defense allowed only 52 rushing yards and eight points but we had a lot of interceptions if it were not for the crazy wind on Saturday. Sometimes the ball would be up for grabs near three or four of our people but the wind would snatch the ball out of our outstretched hands and leave our backs looking foolish.

Our opponent this week is Glastonbury, a team that always gets sky high when they meet us. We have met two previous times and split. This will be the rubber match, and we will have to stop a tough Delaware Wing-T if we expect to win.

We worked hard this past week to improve the offense and there was some improvement especially in the line play. I hope we will for Glastonbury.

Runners qualify for state meet

Putting together its best effort of the season, the Manchester High cross country team qualified for Friday's Class A Finals with a sixth-place finish at yesterday's Class A Northern Sectionals at Eastern Connecticut State College.

The Indian harriers totaled 187 points to wind up sixth out of 22 schools entered to qualify for Friday's finals which will be at Timberline Golf Course in Berlin.

Powerful Xavier High ran away with the sectional with 43 points with top third-year Dave Boraks the individual winner. Manchester junior Captain Glen Flosdorf took 14th place, sophomore Wes Fedorchak 30th, senior Bruce Bayles 32nd, junior George Trian 51st and Eric Randall ran the best race of his career to take 59th spot.

Following Xavier in the team standings were Waterford, CCL member Simsbury, Norwich, and Fitch and behind Manchester were East Hartford and Rockville. These eight move onto further competition.

Eagle runners third in section

Showing good balance, the East Catholic cross country team qualified for Friday's Class B Finals with a third place finish at yesterday's Class B Northern Sectionals at Eastern Connecticut State College.

Winham won the sectional with 76 points with E.O. Smith taking next spot with 90 points. The Eagles totaled 105 points to place third with Northwest Catholic, Farmington, St. Bernard, Montville and South Catholic following in order. All eight teams qualified for the B Finals which will be held at Timberline Golf Course in Berlin.

Only seventeen seconds separated the first five Eagle finishers with junior Luke O'Connor leading the way with a 12th place finish. Joe

Butch van Breda Kolff doesn't quit easily

NEW YORK (UPI) — When the basketball people get together and start telling stories on themselves, someone generally remembers how Butch van Breda Kolff had a rule with the Los Angeles Lakers whereby none of his players were permitted to eat anything during halftime.

One night the clubhouse boy brought in three hot dogs swathed in mustard and a bottle of orange soda Elgin Baylor robbed him of his pop during intermission. Van Breda Kolff spotted the contraband immediately.

"Who's that for?" he barked. The clubhouse boy had no intention of standing there and lying.

"For him," he said, pointing to Wilt Chamberlain, waiting impatiently for his groceries.

Realizing full scale confrontations have resulted from far less, and there still was another half to be played, van Breda Kolff looked at the three hot dogs and then said to Chamberlain, "well, eat 'em fast."

In the ability to adjust is a sign of intelligence, and sociologists agree it is, then van Breda Kolff is anything but stupid.

When he found the combined egos of Chamberlain, Jerry West and Elgin Baylor robbed him of his pop during intermission, van Breda Kolff spotted the contraband immediately.

Next stop was Detroit and van Breda Kolff left there after a little more than two seasons because he felt the home fans were persecuting the Piston players, after which he coached the Phoenix Suns for seven games, long enough only to determine he couldn't possibly motivate their players. Then came a hitch with the ABA's Memphis Tams, owned then by Charlie Finley.

Finley never interfered with the Memphis operation. That was one of the troubles. Evertime van Breda Kolff tried to reach him on the phone, he couldn't. Finley simply wasn't that interested and the team finished last.

The ABA took over the Memphis franchise and van Breda Kolff eventually found himself out of a job again. You'd think that would've cured the 52-year-old New Jerseyite of coaching professional basketball teams, especially last-place ones, but more due to the New Orleans Jazz, losers of their first 16 games, offered him the coaching job a year ago after firing Scotty Robertson, he thought it over only one day and accepted.

Van Breda Kolff knew right quick this team wasn't going to be easy. He had a collection of veterans and kids plus Pistol Pete Maravich, whom the Jazz had given so much in return for that the Atlanta Hawks were accused of perpetrating "The worst rape since the Louisiana Purchase."

"I may be dumb but I'm not completely stupid," says van Breda Kolff. "I knew we weren't winning with what we had and it was obvious we weren't going to win with the same players."

Van Breda Kolff made changes, adding Nate Williams, Henry Bibby and Olio Moore, dropped by the Pistons. He let go Neal Walk, Jim Barnett and Otis Hanson.

"We played young kids," says van

Breda Kolff. "They don't care what your record is. All they care about is just let's play."

New Orleans still finished last in the NBA's Central Division with a 23-59 record, but the big thing was that became the team was 18-17 in its last 35 games.

Now with a new season under way, the Jazz are on top in their division. They lost the first game and won the next five. Last season they didn't register their fifth victory until Jan. 17. Playing in the new Superdome in New Orleans, the Jazz have suddenly become the new "darlings" of the city.

Van Breda Kolff is primarily responsible for the drastic change in the team although he insists it's far more due to the players. He pays particular credit to Moore and Olio Maravich, who worked hard during

Top three gridiron machines out front

NEW YORK (UPI) — Ohio State, Oklahoma and Nebraska continued to outdistance the rest Tuesday, occupying the top three positions in the ratings of the UPI Board of College Football Coaches for the second consecutive week.

The Buckeyes, now 8-0, had considerable difficulty Saturday in beating Indiana, 24-14, after being rated a 45-point favorite, but the coaches still gave Ohio State 34 of a possible 42 first-place votes and 409 points.

Oklahoma and Nebraska, atop the Big Eight with perfect 8-0 records, each drew four No. 1 votes and engaged in a fairly close battle for the runner-up spot. The Sooners, 27-7 winners over then 15th-rated Oklahoma State, pulled 366 points, only 17 more than the Cornhuskers, who throtted Missouri, 30-7. Last week the margin between the two Midland powers was 36 points.

Southern Cal had been engaging in a back-and-forth struggle with Nebraska for the third spot in the rankings. No longer. The Trojans were upset by California, 28-14, a day after USC's John McKay announced this season would be his last as a college coach, and the defending national champions dropped from fourth to ninth.

This upset allowed last week's fifth through ninth teams to each move up one notch. Texas A&M, idle this weekend after their scheduled game with Arkansas was moved back to Dec. 6 for national television, is now fourth at 7-0, followed by Alabama at 7-1. The Crimson Tide overcame Mississippi State 21-10 Saturday night and, like the top three schools, was named on every coach's ballot. The Aggies missed this distinction by one vote.

Michigan, 6-0-2, also had trouble getting past Minnesota, 28-21, for the Little Brown Jug to move into sixth. Texas, another power to experience difficulty as a fair favorite, held on for a 30-22 victory over SMU and moved into seventh at 7-1. Penn State, now 8-1, squeezed past Maryland 15-13 to take over eighth. Florida, a convincing 31-14 winner over Auburn, held fast to the last spot in the top 10 at 7-1, while bidding to tie for the SEC title with Alabama.

The UPI Board of Coaches top 20 college football teams with non-loss records and first place votes in parentheses.

Anthony Davis to Canada with lucrative contract

TORONTO (UPI) — Former All-American Anthony Davis, the World Football League's brightest star, has signed a five-year, $1 million contract with the Canadian Football League Toronto Argonauts.

The 23-year-old running back, who broke all of O.J. Simpson's records at the University of Southern California, became a free agent when the NFL collapsed in financial ruin two weeks ago.

"I had to play in New York, I'd play in New York. I play here. I play here. The money's not the main thing. I just like football," Davis said he would have played in the CFL playoffs had Toronto qualified by beating the Hamilton Tiger-Cats Saturday. The Argos lost 26-10 to finish last in the CFL east with a 5-10 record.

"But I'll be back next season," said Davis. While at USC, Davis had more than 100 yards rushing in 17 games, scored 52 touchdowns and scored more points than anyone in USC's illustrious football history. He broke all the records set by pro football's premier running back, O.J. Simpson of the Buffalo Bills.

Rams' Cullen Bryant looks for running room

Jerry Logan of Philadelphia moves in to make tackle

Rams demolish Eagles, McCormack on hot seat

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Los Angeles Rams coach Chuck Knox right back to work today after a 42-0 rout of the Philadelphia Eagles Monday night, but Eagles' coach Mike McCormack is not so sure he can say the same thing.

"I wouldn't be surprised at anything," a dejected McCormack said when asked if he might face dismissal after the embarrassing loss.

"It's in every coach's mind when you're going through adversity," said McCormack, whose Eagles are now 1-6.

Eagles General Manager Jim Murray said there would be no coaching changes now. "But there will be changes in the lineup," he warned.

Bianchi fired

NORFOLK, Va. (UPI) — The Virginia Squires have fired Al Bianchi as their head coach, naming Jack Calvin as interim head coach.

"The owners and management of the club felt a change was necessary," General Manager Jack Peterson said Monday night. "We will begin to search immediately for a successor."

Calvin took over coaching duties immediately.

The Squires, 1-6 so far this season, finished last year with a 15-69 record.

Bianchi had been head coach since the ABA Squires were formed in 1969. He put together a 185-235 record, including an Eastern Division Championship in the 1970-71 season.

He was previously head coach of the Washington Capitals, forerunner of the Squires, and served two years as head coach of the NBA Seattle Superstars.

Bianchi also played professional basketball with the Syracuse Nationals and the Philadelphia 76ers. His pro basketball playing and coaching career spans 18 consecutive years.

Lambert's scores pamb Canadians

MONTREAL (UPI) — Montreal forward Yvon Lambert scored the tying and winning goals in the Canadiens' 3-2 win over the Buffalo Sabres Monday night, and no one was more surprised than Lambert.

It was the only NHL game Monday. Lambert scored the tying goal at 16:44 of the final period. "When I got that goal I knew how lucky I was and I certainly wasn't thinking about another one," he said.

"I had the puck in front of the Buffalo net and I was just trying to pass it when I hit Jerry Korab's stick and went in."

Bruins not scoring

BOSTON (UPI) — The latest National Hockey League scoring statistics have been released and...hey Where's Phil Esposito's name?

There it is, down in the middle of the page along with three others tied for ninth place.

Ninth place? In the past seven seasons, the only player ever to beat him out for the scoring title has been Bobby Orr.

Then, where's Orr?

He's out on the practice ice trying to skate his left knee back into shape. It was the subject of surgery in September for the fourth time.

Well, if Esposito only has 16 points in 41 games and Orr hasn't even played, who's doing the bulk of the Bruins' scoring?

No one, really. That's why they're in third place in the Adams Division, already well behind the Sabres, whom they play Wednesday night in Buffalo. In 11 games, the Bruins have scored 37 goals for less than a 3.4 average, as opposed to a 4.3 goal-per-game mark last season. And thus far they've given up one more goal than they've scored. Last season, their goals-against average was barely over 3.0.

Fenway wall to be padded; electric scoreboard ordered

BOSTON (UPI) — The Boston Red Sox can expect even greater defensive plays from outfielder Fred Lynn next season, after a thick padding is installed around Fenway Park's concrete wall.

Told Monday that plans called for a six-foot-high pad to be attached from the left field foul pole to the right-center field corner, the Red Sox' Rookie of the Year said, "I like it. It definitely will be safer now."

Lynn, who bruised his tailbone against the wall while chasing a liner in the sixth game of the World Series, added, "I'll go back and run into it all day."

The news of the Green Monster's softer touch also was welcomed by Red Sox left fielder Jim Rice. Lynn's autograph-signing partner at the International Auto Show.

"Maybe you'll see a lot of fantastic catches now; it's a good idea," said Rice. "The wall — the way it is now — is something you don't play with."

The padding, to be completed before the start of next season, had been suggested by Boston center fielder Dom DiMaggio more than 30 years ago.

The decision to install the two-inch-thick pad was made last summer, long before Lynn lay helpless at the base of the 379-foot mark after missing the fifth-inning drive by Cincinnati's Ken Griffey.

Red Sox General Manager Dick O'Connell, who also announced an electronic scoreboard would be installed above the center field bleachers, said the pad will begin 1 1/2 feet from the base of the "Green Monster" and rise to 7 1/2 feet all along the wall. The remainder of the 37-foot-high concrete wall already is in the process of being resurfaced with a metal alloy that will replace the present green tin covering.

"I'm sure it will change the bounce of balls hit off the wall but it's for the player's protection," said O'Connell, who added that new drainage and sprinkler systems have been included in the 63-year-old park's facilities. Other improvements include new seats in certain areas and a glass enclosure around the pressbox behind home plate.

A smaller protest by about 40 students was also staged at Penney, the city's other high school, police said.

Smoking is banned at both schools but students want areas outside the building designated as smoking areas. The demonstrators returned to classes after three students met with principal John Callahan who told the students to attend a Nov. 10 Board of Education meeting to air their complaints.

O'Connell said the scoreboard "will protrude over the last 10 rows and will be able to transmit pictures. There are no plans for instant replays but I'm told it has the capability of doing that too."

"But there'll be no fireworks or other craziness that scoreboards have in some other parks."

Aaron expected back as player

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Home run slugger Hank Aaron indicated Monday night he may be back for another year as a player, but still wasn't sure whether it would be as a manager also.

"I haven't been offered the job yet," Aaron said during a brief interview on the National Football League Monday night national telecast.

Aaron was referring obviously to the vacant job as manager of the Milwaukee Brewers. The job opened when the Brewers first Del Grandall on the last day of the 1975 season.

Aaron has been rumored as a replacement.

Aaron, however, made it apparent he probably would be back as a player, but not as a manager, in answering two direct questions.

Asked about being a manager, Aaron gave the "haven't been offered" answer, but when pressed added he had said earlier he would not be a manager. Pressed further, Aaron said he had a contract for two years—one that includes 1976—and intended to honor that contract.

Today the locals felled Berkshires Community College at Holyoke, Mass.

Report cards

Report cards were distributed today. School will be distributed early Wednesday, Thursday and Friday for parent conferences.

The first modern safety pin, patented in 1849, evolved in three hours one afternoon as Walter Hunt sat twisting pieces of wire in his New York shop. He sold all rights to the pin for $400.

George Scott happy with $150,000 pact

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — For a guy who had just signed a new one-year contract somewhere in the neighborhood of $150,000, Milwaukee Brewers first baseman George Scott was trying to keep the conversation realistic.

"There's been a lot of speculation in the last month about me being traded and I can't fault the Brewers for looking for a deal for me," Scott said Monday shortly after club officials announced he had signed his 1976 contract.

The terms weren't announced, but it was assumed Scott got a healthy raise over the estimated $138,000 he received for the 1975 season.

Scott's 1975 performance was his best ever. He tied Reggie Jackson for the American League home run title with 36, led the American League in runs batted in with 109, and was the club's pacesetter in runs, game-winning hits and slugging percentage.

Team physician Dr. Phillip J. Marone said an examination of the knee showed that the catcher's problem could be cleared up. "There was exercise and medication. There was no evidence of any surgical problem," Dr. Marone said.

"I really don't expect to be (traded), either," Scott said. "The fans and the people in the front office were extremely good to me. I like to feel I can bring this ball club to the top."

Surgery out

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Philadelphia Catcher Johnny Oates' injured knee will not require surgery, Phillies announced Monday.

Team physician Dr. Phillip J. Marone said an examination of the knee showed that the catcher's problem could be cleared up. "There was exercise and medication. There was no evidence of any surgical problem," Dr. Marone said.

DEAR ABBY: My husband is either the world's biggest liar, or he must have something I'm not aware of. George said he was through driving either home because he just won't leave him alone. He claimed the last one - a 10-year-old girl - practically attacked him in the car. (She's a Young Achiever. Can you believe that?)

Another time, the minister's wife called and offered me some home-grown cucumbers. She said she had more than she could eat, so I sent George over to get some.

When he came back he said the minister's wife tried to get him to "relax" on a mattress in her basement. Then she "begged" him to try some of her pineapple upside-down cake. He also claimed that to prolong his stay, she handed him one cucumber at a time more time-consuming than he. He's always telling me how women can't resist him. Believe me, Abby, he's nothing special.

DEAR WIFE: If George is making up these stories, he must feel the need to convince you and perhaps himself that he's desirable. If you call him a liar, you'llstrate him. Give his ego a boost instead, and he won't have to lie.

DEAR WIFE: I am a 14-year-old boy, and I'm in the 10th grade. I gave my girl friend a wrist watch for her birthday, which caused her parents and mine (especially hers) to become very angry.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 14-year-old boy, and I'm in the 10th grade. I gave my girl friend a wrist watch for her birthday, which caused her parents and mine (especially hers) to become very angry.

DEAR ABBY: Five years ago our daughter was hostess to her high school club, and the parents were invited. To. She entertained them in her home on a Sunday afternoon.

DEAR TIMELESS: The "gentleman" who took your clock home is obviously for the birds. Contact him and tell him you're coming by to pick it up - if he hasn't already done the coop. T.L.

Town Democrats make clean sweep

By SOL R. COHEN

Manchester Democrats completely swept the municipal election Tuesday, retaining control of all offices available to them under majority representation, returning all of their 17 incumbents to office, and making history by their unprecedented third consecutive election victory.

Moriarty is expected to be named Manchester mayor Nov. 17, when the new board is sworn in. Thompson has indicated he will accept the post of deputy mayor, if it is offered to him.

Differences brushed aside

Campaign differences are brushed aside for the moment as Democratic chairman Ted Cummings laughs uproariously at a remark by Republican chairman Nathan Agostinelli.

Democrats score wins in state's big cities

By United Press International
Democrats were in control of Connecticut's major cities today as already weak Republicans managed only one big-city victory in Tuesday's statewide municipal elections.

The Republicans, dealt a resounding defeat only a year ago when swept from the State Capitol and the legislature by Democratic Gov. Ella T. Grasso, made some gains in the smaller communities. But their only major win occurred in Stamford and that was an upset over the incumbent Democrat who may have lost the margin of victory to a third candidate.

Democratic mayors were elected in Hartford, New Haven, New Britain, and Waterbury while turning out Republicans in Bridgeport and Meriden.

In Stamford, Republican challenger Louis Clapes won over incumbent Democrat Fred Lenz with an unofficial tally of 13,401 to 12,288. Lenz undoubtedly suffered from the candidacy of independent Lillian Pilardo, who had sought the Democratic nomination. She polled an unofficial 5,422 votes.

Former New Britain Republican Mayor Paul J. Manafort lost a return bid. He was defeated by Democrat Matthew Abtable.

New Haven Democratic Alderman Frank Logue, a liberal, won a close election. An unofficial tally showed Logue 21,006 to 18,653 over John Esposito, a school principal who made the strongest Republican run in recent years.

Bridgeport City Clerk John Mandanici put that city back into the Democratic column for the first time in four years. He beat Republican John Scalo by a 2-1 margin.

Mayor George A. Athanson, a Democrat whose party enjoys a 5-1 registration edge in Hartford, won easily over Republican Mrs. Shirley Scott, a black.

Democrat Edward Bergin Jr., the 32-year-old son of the late former Waterbury mayor, turned back Salvatore Tereno, an independent, former state Sen. William Verrier, a Democrat, and Francis Brennan, a Republican.

Former Democratic Mayor Abraham Grossman of Meriden succeeded in a comeback bid and ousted Republican incumbent John Quine and Edward Piatek, an independent.

Henry Wojusik, who wrested the Bristol Democratic nomination from incumbent Mayor Frank Longo, defeated Republican challenger J. Harwood Norton. Both Wojusik and Norton are former mayors.

Anthony Marino, a Democrat making his second attempt to become Middletown's mayor, defeated Republican Sebastian Carafalo. Incumbent Mayor Lester Gowin, an independent, trailed a third time.

Carroll's victory gave him the Louisville area, where federal court-ordered busing became an issue in the state campaign.

The national lineup of governors before Tuesday's balloting was 36 Democrats, 13 Republicans and one independent. The Democrats won the only other 1975 gubernatorial race last weekend, when Gov. Edwin Edwards was re-elected in Louisiana.

Despite the close race at the top, Mississippi voters gave Democratic Secretary of State Theima Stovall Evelyn Gandy a big victory over Republican Bill Patrick in the contest for lieutenant governor. And Kentuckians elected Democratic Secretary of State Thelma Stovall lieutenant governor over her male Republican opponent, Shirley Palmer-Ball.

The Boston race also was close, but White won a third term over State Sen. Joseph Timilty after a campaign in which both candidates deplored court-imposed school busing but agreed they had to be enforced.

In other statewide balloting, Ohio voters rejected a $4.4 billion bond issue package, the largest ever presented to any state in one election, and Texans turned down a new state constitution, which was five years in the drafting.

Manchester School Supt. James Kennedy, pleased with voters' action Tuesday, said today there's little that can be done until the state legislature considers local school construction grants next year.

Kennedy said he'll suggest that the Town Building Committee begin the architect selection process despite the financial uncertainties.

After the disclosure by state officials of the condition of the grant funds, Kennedy said he wasn't sure the projects would be approved by Manchester voters.

But numerous talks given by school officials in October showed that townspeople recognized the need for the project, Kennedy said. "That was encouraging," he said.

Here is a district-by-district tally of the vote on the referendum question:

District	Yes	No
1	518	438
2	703	519
3	512	370
4	667	511
5	782	639
6	543	489
7	478	407
8	724	528
9	500	354
10	380	382

Education and to the Board of Education for the 1978-79 term were incumbent Democrats Carolyn Becker and Paul Greenberg and newcomer Republican Verna Hubbard. Mrs. Hubbard will replace incumbent Republican Elinor Hashim, who decided not to seek re-election. Losing in a bid for the 1978-79 term was Gertrude DeLoe, who received 215 less votes than Mrs. Hubbard.

All four incumbent Democrats were re-elected — constables — Clarence Foley, Paul Phillips, Joseph Macri and William Desmond. Incumbent Republicans Sedrick Straghan and Joseph Swenson Sr. also were re-elected. The third Republican elected constable is Marion Mercer. Losing out was Republican Henry (Bud) Michalak with 204 fewer votes than Mrs. Mercer.

Mrs. Mercer, who is believed to be the first woman constable in Manchester history, succeeds Republican Robert Meek, who ran for selectman and lost.

Incumbent Democrat Irene Pinesh and Chester Byeholsti and incumbent Republican Mildred Schaller were re-elected to the Board of Selectmen. Mrs. Schaller received 218 more votes than Meek.

A disappointing 54 per cent of eligible voters were checked out at the polls — 14,867 of the 26,362 on the voter lists. The count included 413 absentee ballots. Estimates had ranged from a low of 50 per cent to a high of about 67 per cent.

The turnout was 75.3 per cent in 1974 and a low 54 per cent in 1973. It was 87.4 per cent in 1972 and 86.1 per cent in 1970.

Winners have some apprehensive moments

By SOL R. COHEN

They began arriving early at Manchester Democrats' headquarters election night—the candidates, their families, their campaign workers, the party faithful and the well-wishers—joining those party workers who had been at their tasks since daybreak.

And, they didn't stop coming until after 10 p.m., when the results, slow coming in at first, came rushing in and indicating the conclusive fact—a Democratic sweep and a history-making third consecutive term of municipal government control.

Before it was all over—the results, the speeches, the liquid refreshments, the cold cuts and the potato chips, pretzels and cheese—over 200 people were milling around, speculating, listening to the returns and being apprehensive.

Apprehension appeared to be the key word. Although confidence prevailed, it was a troubled confidence. Many of the candidates and other top Democrats were uneasy about the effect on the voters of what they labeled a "smear" campaign by some Republicans. They were apprehensive (there's that word again) about the effect of what they insisted were last-minute "scurrilous" newspaper ads.

When the first results were announced (from District 9, Keenev St. School), showing Democrats the winners there right down the line, cheers went up. However, louder yet was the roar that went up when Edward Wilson, GOP candidate for the Board of Directors, was declared a loser.

The roars continued each time results were read. There was cheering and great applause when
