

Rockville revitalization major committee concern

BARBARA RICHMOND
Herald Reporter

Andrew Tricarico, chairman of the Rockville Area Chamber of Commerce Development Committee, is determined to revitalize the center of Rockville. "We have to make it work," Tricarico said as he outlined committee plans. His committee is working with members of the original Committee for the Revitalization of Rockville, formed last year. He said he has also sought the expertise of local business leaders and John Loranger, town planner. A survey of the Rockville retail section he did shows that of the total 315,476 square feet of retail space, 69,144 square feet is vacant space. Vacant are the former Woolworth and Popular Market areas in the Rockville Shopping Plaza and Grant's in the upper shopping area; the former Administration Building (soon to be occupied by the Court of Common Pleas); some office space in the new professional building; offices in the First Federal building and some offices on Park Place.

In his report Loranger noted it was expected that the Grant's store would close but added that even a more stable chain would have trouble maintaining the use in downtown Rockville today. He cited as two basic reasons, accessibility and age. "The construction of I-86 in the 1950's and its provision of easily developed, accessible land, particularly at its interchanges, spelled the ultimate end of Rockville as the retail center it once was," he said.

Loranger said that no amount of improved access to Rockville will make it more desirable than the easily accessible land near I-86. He said the second factor of age creates a problem because the American public has been led to believe that "good" equals "new." He said this makes it difficult to sell products from an old-fashioned setting.

He advised that Rockville shouldn't look much beyond the immediate neighborhood for the basic support of its retail space because it has to compete with the LaFayette Square area and the Rt. 83 shops.

Because he feels immediate action should be taken he plans to contact property owners to determine their intentions, get their ideas, and other concrete information concerning the properties.

He also suggests that Rockville stores be given new paint jobs, sidewalks be repaired, parking lots be further landscaped and such. Commenting on the traffic flow, Loranger said Rockville has a problem but added that major construction in this area cannot be expected in the immediate future due to the high cost. He did, however, suggest a review of the parking problem which is "certainly a contributing factor to the over-all traffic flow problem."

Tricarico said the businessmen have to be the catalysts to get the ball rolling. He said the committee will investigate all parking possibilities. He also suggested a possibility of the widening of Union St. from Ward to Elm St. which he termed a bottleneck right now.

The committee also discussed the possibility of setting up a "farmer's market" in the shopping plaza parking lot, and also some sort of small spot where one could purchase coffee and a bun in the early morning hours.

A. Bernard Crowl, executive director of the chamber, said the committee is laboring under a terrible burden as it has to be careful it doesn't endanger any of the existing businesses or industries. With all of the problems, the original revitalization committee did not ignore the fact that Rockville has many assets: Significant pre-20th century architecture; natural beauty of terrain and river; vital local residential area and pride of vested home ownership; the availability of state and federal funds to improve some of the more serious problems; and the availability of local investment to back possible citizen involvement.

One of the suggestions that the committee made was construction of a multi-level parking garage to the rear of the Memorial Building. The chamber committee is also eyeing this possibility along with several others.

The list of plans and possibilities is lengthy but the committee of the chamber plans to go ahead with a full action plan which will be a distillation of all the studies of the various groups. Chamber president William Tedolito has set a Feb. 1 date for this report on what to do and how to do it.

Fish club honors Dowgiewicz

Stanley Dowgiewicz of Rockville was named this year by the Polish American Citizens Fish Club at the 48th annual banquet of the club Sunday. He was presented with a trophy and his name will be inscribed on the permanent gold club trophy along with previous champions. The championship award is presented each year to the club member who catches the largest number of prize-winning fish during the season. Dowgiewicz catches included: a 1 lb. 12 oz. calico bass; 3 lb. small mouth bass; 1 lb. 11 oz. calico bass; and a 2 lb. 12 oz. pickerel.

Other winners in the various fresh water fish categories were: Dominic Robert Suddell, 5 lb. 15 oz. calico bass; Ed Heck, 3 lb. 11 oz. trout; Robert Heck, 2 lb. 5 oz. trout; and George Gracie, 1 lb. 15 oz. trout. Three prizes were awarded for each specie of fresh water fish, $5, $3, and $2.

Robert Bailey, 3 lb. 10 oz. pickerel; Anthony Cyrkiewicz, 3 lb. pickerel; Danny Hayden, two 6 lb. 10 oz. large mouth bass; and Sam Dowgiewicz, 1 lb. 4 oz. bullhead.

News summary

Compiled from United Press International

State

HARTFORD — The Connecticut Lung Association Friday said a proposal to increase the sulfur content for fuel burned at selected electric generating stations was a potential health hazard. Two major utilities are seeking Department of Environmental Protection approval to burn oil with a higher sulfur content that could save consumers $21 million annually.

STORRS — Trustees at the University of Connecticut have imposed new fees ranging up to $600 a year despite a campus protest by an estimated 500 students. The fee hikes affect dormitory and dining hall rates and law school tuition.

WATERBURY — A Superior Court judge has rejected a motion to move to Stamford the trial of New York City stockbroker Murray R. Gold, charged with the slayings of his former mother-in-law and father-in-law Sept. 26, 1974. Mr. and Mrs. Irving W. Pasternak were killed in their Waterbury home after returning from Yom Kippur services.

Regional

BOSTON — Sen. Edward W. Brooke, R-Mass., mentioned President Ford Friday as a potential running mate, says he can best serve the country as a senator, not as vice president. Ford said Brooke "certainly is a person that ought to be considered for the Republican vice presidential nomination."

BOSTON — The New England Telephone Co., accusing the Department of Public Utilities of "numerous errors of law," has filed a state Supreme Court appeal to a DPU rejection of a $200 million rate increase request.

National

WASHINGTON — Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., predicts President Ford will win the Republican nomination next year and will defeat Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota in the general election.

INKSTER, Mich. — Ransom money paid at a clothing store has led to the arrest of two men in connection with the kidnaping of 13-year-old Timothy Stempel, son of a General Motors executive. A considerable portion of the $50,000 ransom was recovered also.

WASHINGTON — Conservative and liberal legislators are locked in a Senate battle over whether the United States should unilaterally dismantle its single $6 billion anti-ballistic missile site at Grand Forks, N. D. The site has been operational since Oct. 1 and on Oct. 2, the House voted to dismantle it.

WASHINGTON — President Ford is seriously considering U. S. Solicitor General Robert H. Bork, who carried out former President Nixon's orders to fire Watergate Prosecutor Archibald Cox, as his first selection to the Supreme Court. He is expected to name a successor to retired Justice William O. Douglas in about three weeks.

International

MADRID, Spain — Spanish newspapers questioned for the first time today the extraordinary medical effort to prolong Generalissimo Francisco Franco's life. The 82-year-old Spanish leader spent the night under sedation in the gravest crisis of his four-week ordeal.

BEIRUT, Lebanon — The Lebanese cabinet met today in a new attempt to forge a Christian-Muslim compromise on political reforms to bring peace to the Mideast nation.

Economic summit begins in Paris

PARIS (UPI) — President Ford and the leaders of France, Britain, West Germany, Japan and Italy gathered Saturday for a weekend at a Napoleonic castle to see if they can cooperate in saving their peoples from recession, inflation and other economic ills. Ford's press secretary, Ron Nessen, told reporters aboard Air Force One en route from Washington to expect no "momentous announcement" from the summit. But he indicated "practical" headway could be made against money problems. "The idea is for the six leaders of the great industrial democracies to get together to share views on what the world economy looks like," Nessen said. "The process that they are participating in could have practical effects in energy, trade, inflation and other matters."

Ford, accompanied by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and Treasury Secretary William E. Simon, scheduled meetings through Monday at suburban Rambouillet Castle with the other world leaders.

Judge refuses to free teacher strike leaders

NEW HAVEN (UPI) — Twelve teachers refused to accept a proposed three year contract that included no wage increases in the first year. It was the city's third teacher's strike since 1970.

School officials, who obtained an injunction at the start of the strike, have kept the schools open for the past week. The school board met earlier after the teachers were jailed and turned down by a 3-3 vote a community leaders' request to seek the release of the union leaders.

Jai alai promoter called a liar

NEWINGTON (UPI) — A lawyer for the estate of the late John M. Bailey says Bridgeport jai alai promoter David Friend was "lying" when he claimed he paid the former national Democratic chairman $250,000 cash for helping him win a Connecticut gambling permit.

"There is no truth to what he (Friend) claims," said Attorney Edward Hennessy. "He is lying." Hennessy said Friday in an interview following his appearance before the Commission on Special Revenue. The commission is considering revoking the jai alai permit because of alleged financial irregularities and alleged organized crime connections. The Teamsters pension fund is financing the $4 million facility.

Bork, who carried out former President Nixon's orders to fire Watergate Prosecutor Archibald Cox, as his first selection to the Supreme Court. He is expected to name a successor to retired Justice William O. Douglas in about three weeks.

Electric Boat talks resume in Boston

BOSTON (UPI) — Informal talks were scheduled to resume for a third straight day today between the Metal Trades Council and the Electric Boat Union of General Dynamics. Chief federal mediator William J. Usery said some progress was made in lengthy talks that ended Friday night on the remaining issue of money.

More than 10,000 workers struck the nuclear submarine building facility in Groton, Conn., July 1, affecting production of 21 nuclear submarines, including three of the Navy's new Trident submarines. Usery said at the outset of the current talks negotiations would be switched to Groton next week if enough progress was made in the formal talks.

New York City federal aid showdown next week

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Friends of the city of New York City from default say they expect President Ford to give the signal early next week which will permit federal intervention to rescue the city from insolvency.

The House agreed to take up a loan guarantee bill Monday and vote Tuesday — leaving only three days until the gambling permit was issued in March, 1974.

Former Democratic Tax Commissioner John L. Sullivan testified he introduced a bill, for a total of $5,000, about one month before the permit was issued. Hennessy said Lazarus saw very little of Bailey in the last years of the chairman's life. "Lazarus was not on good terms with the Bailey law office," the lawyer said. "He used to drop by the Bailey home uninvited and hang around."

Eighth District votes Monday on Buckland annexation bid

SOL R. COHEN
Herald Reporter

Eighth District residents who are registered voters (on the town voting lists) and who have resided in the district for at least three months are eligible to cast votes in Monday's Eighth District referendum.

It is on the question "Shall the district extend the present boundaries and furnish fire protection to the Buckland area as described in the call for the Special Meeting of the District?"

The referendum Monday is the special meeting and is in answer to a validated petition signed by more than 50 per cent of Buckland area property owners. It requests the Eighth Utilities District "to extend the boundaries of the district to include the town of Buckland." The referendum is from noon to 8 p.m. in the Eighth District Firehouse, Main and Hilliard Sts.

A sign of the times Herald photographer Steve Dunn caught this last leaf falling from a tree in Manchester. It symbolizes the end of Indian Summer this past week and the cold winds of the past two days are ominous signs of winter to come.

Christmas craft mini-course offered to Vernon adults

A five-session mini-course entitled "Creative Christmas Crafts" will be sponsored by the Vernon Adult Evening School starting Nov. 24. Classes will be Mondays and Wednesdays except Nov. 26. Hours are 7 to 9 p.m. at the Vernon Adult Education Center, Elm St., Rockville.

Adults attending will make a wide variety of items including door and table runners, Christmas cards, and other items. The registration fee is $4 for Vernon residents and $6 for non-residents. Students must supply their own material for their projects. Registrations are being accepted at the adult education office, 875-8471 or 875-1950.

The Rockville Public Library will have a booth at the Joyce Arts & Crafts Fair scheduled for Nov. 22 and 23 at the Vernon Middle School. Library card holders may take out arts and crafts books at the fair. Vernon residents who do not have a library card may obtain one at the fair upon showing proof of residence.

A special committee of the Vernon Junior Women's Club is sponsoring the Parent's Group for the parents of children with learning disabilities. The program is headed by Peggy Marchetti, national project chairman.

News for Senior Citizens

Hi! We still have about 5 seats left on our third bus for our Christmas party at Restland Farms Restaurant, in Northfield, Thursday, Dec. 11. It all adds up to an exciting day away from home, and will feature a full course dinner and lots of fun and laughter. So give us a call if you would like to join the gang, and better still stop by and let us tell you more about it.

The action around the center started with our Senior Bowling League which did bowl despite the holiday, with the following results: In the men's Class A group, Clarence Peterson won both the high triple with 520, and the high single with a 225. In the Class B group, John Rice and Edward Straus tied for the high triple with a 442, and Edward Straus won the high single with a 177. In the women's Class A group, Mary Chaves won both the high triple with a 406, and the high single with a 158. In the Class B group, Edna Christensen won the high triple with a 327, and the high single was won by Violet Deauph with a 128.

On Wednesday morning we had nine tables for our pinocle games with the lucky winners being: Josephine Schuetz, 616; Bess Mirman, 607; Michael Desjardins, 598; Clara Hemingway, 600; Rene Maires, 588; Paul Schuetz, 582; Alfreda Hallin, 581; Lyla Steele, 569, and Cecil Benson, 568.

Along with that, our crewel embroidery class had its final session until after the holidays or around the first of the year. The class had themselves a little party and are already looking forward to the start of the next session. On behalf of the members and our staff we wish to thank Mrs. Lynn King, the teacher, for doing such an excellent job of instructing the class and also the Adult Education Department of Manchester for making this class possible. In the afternoon we had a nice turnout for our arts and crafts class. While Gloria kept one group busy making various Christmas articles, 1 had others busy making outdoor mats. Some of them for themselves and others for our up and coming craft fair.

Meanwhile upstairs we had five tables for bridge with the lucky winners as follows: Irene Foisy, 5-320; Marjorie McLain, 5-270; William Lucas, 5-230; Marjann Herdic, 4-970, and Rose Friedman, 4-250. Then came Thursday, and in the morning we had another fine turnout for our pinocle and setback classes. After a delicious baked hamcock dinner we moved upstairs for our Fun-Day program.

Our guest speaker, Sid Bauld set up a display on a number of locks and other means of securing our homes against thefts. He explained how helpful the items could be, and gave a nice presentation enjoyed by all. Gloria's corner: Just think, only 18 days till the Fair. We are getting some nice articles in, and we need many more. We also need some paper bags as we will be using quite a few. Helen Flavel, the food chairman, asked me to remind you to get out your favorite recipes and whip up a few.

The menus for next week are: Monday, homemade baked beans, steamed frankfurters, brown bread with whipped butter, chilled peach halves, and a beverage. Wednesday, vegetable beef noodle soup with crackers, Italian gringer, chewy brownies, and a beverage. Friday, 10 a.m. to noon, kitchen social games, one extra canned food for the needy. # The Press and the American Revolution Arnold's march to Quebec

By Dr. Francis C. Walett
Worcester State College
Copyright 1975
American Antiquarian Society

The rather short and stocky, ruggedly handsome officer hurried about Robert Colburn's boatyard at Gardinerstown on the Kennebec River in Maine. Col. Benedict Arnold was not pleased with what he saw that day in late September 1775. Two hundred bateaux had been built but many were smaller than specifications called for. Most of them had been poorly built out of green lumber and they were bound to leak or break up on the rugged voyage ahead. But Colburn had been given only three weeks to build the boats, and it's a wonder that he got him ready in any form.

In the days ahead Arnold and his men often cursed Colburn and his bateaux as they failed to stand up. But on night after night what boats wouldn't have leaked and broken up under the pounding they took? Up the Kennebec, along the Dead River, and across the height of land in the awesome wilderness of Maine was the route Arnold would take. Once in Canada the small army would follow the Chaudiere River down to the St. Lawrence.

Canada was like a magnet drawing the attention of Americans in that year of revolution, 1775. What a prize if colonial forces could take it! And what a blow to British power!

Accordingly, an army of about 1,000 men was organized in New York under Gen. Philip Schuyler. It was to move up Lake Champlain and into Canada to take Montreal; from there it would march down the St. Lawrence to attack the great stronghold, Quebec City. When General Schuyler became ill the command of this campaign fell to Gen. Richard Montgomery. Gen. Washington (in his headquarters at Cambridge, Massachusetts) gave his approval for the Maine expedition, which was enthusiastically supported by Benedict Arnold. The commander-in-chief evidently thought Arnold was the dashing and courageous leader that this campaign required.

Backed so prestigiously, Arnold gathered 1,100 volunteers at Cambridge, marched them to Newburyport, and from there took them by boat to the Kennebec. By Sept. 22 the entire army had reached Gardinerstown. Although advance scouts and Indians warned of the dangers ahead, no one foresaw the hardships that the men would face as they hurriedly set out from Ft. Western (present site of Augusta).

Arnold organized his small army into four companies, one of which was made up of Virginia and Pennsylvania riflemen, led by that born leader and versatile Goliath, Capt. Daniel Morgan. Other courageous and hardy men there were, too—Lt. Col. Christopher Greene of Rhode Island, Maj. Return Meigs of Connecticut, Maj. Timothy Bigelow of Worcester, Mass., and young Aaron Burr of New Jersey, among others.

The onrush of autumn notwithstanding, the daring march into the wilderness began. Soon the men got their last good work—carrying the 400 pound bateaux over the numerous portages. Near Norridgewock they struggled onward as the river fell some ninety feet within a mile. By this time the bateaux (despite repairs) split at the seams and leaked badly; salt pork, beef and fish, dried peas, biscuits, and other provisions were spoiled. But the men pushed on. Bothered by a "prodigious fall of rain," the army struggled over soggy, swampy portages to reach Dead River in late October.

Supplies were short, food almost gone and the men weary. After a council of war, they determined to go forward, however. Arnold's fourth division under Lt. Col. Roger Enos of Vermont decided to turn back to safety and oblivion. The remainder—about 700 in all—plunged ahead, half starved, worn out, and often ill. Stumbling over the Height of Land (the spine of the Appalachians) some got lost and nearly perished in this uncharted wilderness.

Eventually most of the ragged army crawled and staggered out of the woods in the snow and down to the Chaudiere River. Completely exhausted, and often unable to lift their fallen comrades, they looked more like a group of skeletons than a fighting force. They were somewhat revived by food obtained by Arnold, who had rushed ahead to outlying French settlements. And now they trudged through the snow to Point Levis (opposite Quebec) on the St. Lawrence, which they reached Nov. 8, 1775.

Arnold hastily collected whatever boats he could find but bad weather prevented him from crossing the wide river until Nov. 13. Then the Americans (using Wolfe's path) climbed to the Plains of Abraham outside the walls of Quebec. Their demand for the surrender of the city was ignored. Unable to lure the British out of Quebec and too weak to assault it, Arnold withdrew to join forces with Gen. Montgomery who was advancing from Montreal. But the latter had only about 300 men.

Although they were too few in number (less than 1,000 in all), the combined forces began the assault on Quebec in the early morning of Dec. 31, 1775. Montgomery led an attack on the west wall while Arnold struck from the east.

It ended disastrously for the Americans—Gen. Montgomery was killed and his force retired in confusion. While Arnold fought his way into the lower town he was wounded and had to be carried back. Despite savage and bloody fighting by men under Daniel Morgan, the Americans were repulsed.

Almost 100 attackers were killed or wounded and over 300 (including Capt. Morgan) were taken prisoner. Arnold maintained a weak siege of Quebec in early 1776, but by spring the Americans had to retreat up the St. Lawrence River.

With little opportunity to get news, contemporary papers carried only brief reports of the events described here. Twenty-seven of the soldiers who marched with Arnold in 1775 left accounts, journals, and diaries describing their experiences. Most of them were published in later years. Kenneth Roberts reprinted and analyzed many of these accounts in his "March to Quebec" (New York, 1938).

The general conclusion one reaches is that Benedict Arnold's expedition through the Maine wilderness was one of the most rugged marches in our military history.

Benedict Arnold's courage and resourcefulness shown in the arduous march to Quebec in the winter of 1775 attracted considerable attention. This rather quiet contemporary portrait was done by an unknown English artist. It probably does not do justice to the vigorous and determined Arnold of 1775. ### Urges voters to cast ballots

To the voters of the Eighth District, On Monday, Nov. 17, between 12 noon and 8 p.m., voters will have an opportunity to decide if the Eighth District will accept a petition from the residents of the Buckland section of Manchester. The petition requests that the Buckland area be added to the Eighth District. This means that the district would almost double in size geographically, would increase its number of inhabitants by approximately 1,000 and would be responsible for providing fire protection to the Buckland residents and their property.

This requested incorporation of Buckland could possibly be the most important action taken by the Eighth District over its long history. I therefore implore all voters of the district to seriously consider the question, then cast their ballots Nov. 17, and I urge that these ballots be in the affirmative.

An enlarged district will be a stronger and more viable district, in that there will be the talent and treasure of an additional 1,000 people to enhance the operation and opportunities of the district. The added costs incurred, be they administrative or for fire protection, will be far outweighed by the approximately $28,000 in tax revenues generated by the Buckland area.

Also as you make your decision in the voting booth, I ask you to keep in mind that these people, these residents of Buckland, have approached us to request that they be included in the Eighth District.

For the integrity, security, and vitality of the Eighth Utilities District, I implore you to vote "yes" Monday.

Sincerely yours,
Thomas R. Moore Jr.
38 Strong St.
Manchester

Mayor thanked

To the editor:
We in Manchester have been very fortunate to have had a mayor such as Jack Thompson for the past four years. Let us put partisan politics aside and give credit to the man who has manifested excellent leadership and dedication beyond what the mayorship called for. He has always thought of making Manchester better place to live in. If you compare the number of hours this man gave unselfishly for the progress of Manchester, he was grossly underpaid and perhaps even lost money in the process.

Jack was sincere, honest and fair to all who came in contact with him. Too many times in our lives we fail to say thanks to an individual for the important action taken by the Eighth District over its long history. I therefore implore all voters of the district to seriously consider the question, then cast their ballots Nov. 17, and I urge that these ballots be in the affirmative.

Sincerely,
David Eusden

Vote urged

(The following letter is reprinted here because a typographical error made it appear the writer was advocating a "no" vote in the Eighth District referendum. She is, in fact, urging that those qualified to do so exercise their right to vote.)

To all Eighth District voters, I myself am not a citizen of the United States and therefore do not have the privilege of voting, but in recent years I found that I wish I did have that right, especially now on this particular issue, since it affects me personally.

I urge you all to get out and vote Nov. 17 at your Eighth District Firehouse. Use your right as a citizen and bring back the voice of the people; your vote counts.

Sincerely yours,
Mrs. P.M. Mullen
77 Main St.
Manchester

Urges yes vote

To the editor,
In the early 1960s we determined that a bill should be introduced into the State Legislature, clarifying the boundaries in the area we served. This was to be an enabling act permitting the district to take over any area within its boundaries upon petition of those involved.

The picture has changed since that time, especially since our zoning board favored New York interests by rezoning the 580-acre Hartman tobacco farm, for a proposed new city. This despite formal objection by the vast majority of people speaking at the public hearing, who feared that a new city within our boundaries with its millions of square feet of retail space, apartment complexes, housing for thousands of new residents, would be against the best interests of the town, environmentally, economically, and let me add, to the owners of the farm and the New York developers while creating a tremendous tax burden for all residents in Manchester, with catastrophic effects on the established business community. The State Department of Transportation would be forced to expand its highway (now proposed for 8 lanes). The town would have to build roads and streets to handle gigantic traffic build up, new and enlarged sanitation facilities, large increased in highway maintenance expense, new schools, increased public service of all kinds, including a new firehouse to begin with. This could let us double our tax rate, already so astronomically high that we are losing many of our desirable taxpayers to other more economically sound communities in the state and country.

Both of these questions are headed for the courts. I don't blame the Buckland residents for wanting to come into the district for fire protection. The district can serve them at a considerable tax saving.

Vote yes to accept them on the 17th.
Burton Pearl
former commissioner
Eight Utilities District

Manchester week in review

The Manchester Board of Directors marked this week — waiting for Monday, when it will be sworn into office, and on Tuesday, when it will conduct its first business meeting of its 1975-76 term.

Monday's ceremonies will be at 8 p.m. at the Senior Citizens Center with Chief Justice Charles S. House of the State Supreme Court the main speaker. Judge of Probate William Fitzgerald will give the oath of office to the directors and State Sen. David Barry will give the oath to those school board members elected to the 1975-76 term.

Matt Moriarty Jr. is expected to be named mayor, John Thompson deputy mayor and Pascal Prignano secretary.

Thursday night, at an informal get-together, the directors agreed that communications is an area that needs improvement. They agreed to aim for improving communications between the board and administration and between the administration and the public.

Referendum Arrangements were completed for Monday's noon to 8 p.m. referendum on a proposal to extend Eighth District boundaries into the Buckland area. The vote will be when it will conduct its first business meeting of its 1975-76 term.

Sedrick Straughan, moderator, explained that those eligible to vote must be registered voters (on the town's voting lists) and must have resided in the Eighth District for at least three months prior to Monday's referendum.

Conit appointed Francis Conti, acting chief building inspector since July, was named Manchester's chief building inspector, effective Nov. 2.

He had finished first among the 12 top qualifiers, narrowed down from an original list of 32 applicants.

School priorities Manchester School Supt. James Kennedy this week released his list of school improvement priorities for the 1976-1977 fiscal year. He proposed 22 new or expanded projects which would cost up to $279,000.

Kennedy asked the Board of Education to adopt the improvement priority list by Dec. 8. Completion of the school board's proposed budget is scheduled for mid-February 1976.

Less than a week after Manchester voters heeded the call to add a cafeteria to Bentley School — "the only school in Manchester without a hot lunch program" — Kennedy proposed a makeshift hot lunch project for the school. Bentley School parents are being surveyed to determine if they want the program, which would truck prepared food from Manchester High School to the elementary school on Hollister St.

In other school board news this week, Kennedy proposed a number of new school policies to be considered by the board soon. Among them: Rules on employe conflicts of interest, student records, and suspension and expulsion of students.

Stolen goods recovered More than $1,000 worth of furniture was reported stolen Sunday from Manchester's Second Congregational Church, but three days later town police announced the goods had been recovered — in a barn just 30 yards from the church. An arrest is expected soon, detectives said.

Fratrotoli paces leaders in Kacey bowling league

Paced by high average roller Mario Fratrotoli, Pilloramo Construction captured first place honors in the Knights of Columbus 10 Pin Bowling League with a 35-10-5 record. Fratrotoli averaged 183 in the A Division. His teammates were Roger Luce, Rudi Wittke, Ed Miller and Mark Sullivan.

Final round standings: Pilloramo 33.5-10.5, Nassiff Camera 29-15, Farr's Camping 26-18, Nassiff Sports 24-20, Manchester Lumber 22-21.5, Johnson Insurance 22-22, Giardin Builders 21-23, Moriarty Bros. 21-23, Audet Bros. 21-23, Fogarty Bros. 18-26, Harriman Realty 17-27, Sullivan Co. 9-35.

Flames going full blaze after starting as ember

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Atlanta Flames started the season as only an ember but now are going full blaze. The Flames lost their first four National Hockey League games this season, including three on their home ice. Friday night moved within one game of the 500 mark when they defeated the Washington Capitals 4-1.

Atlanta scored all of its goals within eight minutes and 20 seconds, with Bill Flett knocking in a pair and the victory left Coach Fred Creighton with an optimistic feeling about the future of his club. "We have to go one step at a time and we are well aware that 500 will get us nowhere in our division," said Creighton.

The victory raised Atlanta's record to 7-8-1, far behind Philadelphia and the New York Islanders in the Patrick Division, but respectable considering the team's start. "We opened with two at home and lost both despite playing well," said Creighton. "We lost our first four games and three of them were at home, and that's a pretty big hole to dig yourself into. Things look like they're starting to go pretty well now."

Bowl bids on line

NEW YORK (UPI) — The final pairings for the Rose, Sugar Orange, Cowell and Fiesta bowls all are contingent on the outcome of major conference races, and this will delay completion of the final holiday lineup after Thanksgiving. Nevertheless, fifth-ranked Alabama, ninth-ranked Notre Dame and No. 12 Colorado all are expected to receive invitations if they win today. Alabama is being eyed by the Sugar Bowl and probably will earn a New Year's Eve trip to New Orleans by beating Southern Mississippi, a team it clubbed 52-0 last year. Although the Crimson Tide is a heavy favorite to repeat as Coach Bear Bryant sound his weekly warning that the Golden Eagles are an improved team and could cause trouble.

Notre Dame would appear to have a lock on a Cotton Bowl berth if it can overcome a tough obstacle against Pittsburgh. The Irish are favored by only three points on the road, and Pittsburgh, although a loser in two of its last three outings, still is hoping for a bowl invitation itself with victories today and next week against Penn State and Wake Forest. "I believe our team has an immense amount of pride and character," said Coach Johnny Majors said. "They have the capabilities to bounce back."

Colorado, with a 7-2 record, including a one-point loss to Oklahoma, would seem in line for a bowl bid regardless of what happens today against a tough Big Eight rival, Kansas (6-3). The Buffaloes probably will wind up in the Astro-Bi-Tech Bowl with another victory.

The Jayhawks, though, knocked off Oklahoma last week to move into 19th place in the ratings and are favored at home by one point over Colorado. Ohio State, the top team in the country, and fourth-ranked Michigan, both unbeaten, battle next Saturday at Ann Arbor to decide the Big 10 championship and a berth in the Rose Bowl. The Buckeyes warm up today against Minnesota, a key game for the Wolverines are picked by 19-1 over Illinois. The other half of the Rose Bowl pairing will be determined until Nov. 28. Stanford, which takes on No. 17 Southern California, The Bruins, with a 4-1 record in Pac-8 play, are favored by 25 points to beat Oregon State today and move into a tie for the lead with California. Cal, ranked 13th, has a non-conference meeting with Air Force today.

NFL weekend schedule

NEW YORK (UPI) — shoulder against the Giants, could be ready to much about his club. When his Washington Redskins report to practice Friday to prepare for their Sunday battle with the St. Louis Cardinals, the National Conference Eastern Division, Allen had injured quarterback Bill Kilmer throw a few passes. He then announced only that he was "leaning" toward sub Randy Johnson as his starter Sunday. Allen apparently wants to give the Cardinals just a little more to worry about since Johnson and Kilmer are so different in style. Kilmer suffered a slight shoulder separation last Sunday and touchdown drive and rally the Redskins to a 21-13 victory over the New York Giants.

OBITUARIES

Joseph F. Kirby, 90, of Branford died Nov. 6 in New Haven. He was the father of Donald J. Kirby of 88 Plymouth Lane. He is also survived by another son, Philip H. Kirby of Acapulco, Mexico; five grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren.

The funeral was Nov. 10 at the W.S. Clancy Memorial Home, Branford. Burial was in East Lawn Cemetery, East Haven.

Mrs. Gladys R. Jobert

Mrs. Gladys Russell Jobert, 76, of 185 Maple St. died Friday at Manchester Memorial Hospital less than two days after the death of her daughter, Mrs. Clifford (Marion A.) Sault of Phelps Rd.

Mrs. Sault died Wednesday night at Manchester Memorial Hospital. The funeral was this morning with burial in the veterans section of East Cemetery.

Mrs. Jobert, the widow of Maurice Jobert, was born June 1, 1899 in Manchester, daughter of the late Ralph and Mathilda Robinson Russell, and had lived here all her life. She was a member of South Union Methodist Church.

She is survived by a brother, Ralph Russell of Manchester; three sisters, Mrs. Anne Young, Mrs. Margaret Therrien and Mrs. Evelyn Jobert, all of Manchester; five grandchildren, Ralph J. Barber, Louis C. Barber, Miss Marilyn L. Barber, Mrs. Marsha Danahy and Alan Sault, all of Manchester; and nine great-grandchildren.

The funeral is Monday at 1 p.m. at Holmes Funeral Home, 400 Main St. The Rev. Dr. George Webb, pastor of South United Methodist Church, will officiate. Burial will be in the veterans section of East Cemetery.

Friends may call at the funeral home Sunday from 2 to 4 and 7 to 9 p.m.

Mrs. Madge N. Muisener

Mrs. Madge Nixon Muisener, 92, formerly of Hartford, died Thursday at East Douglas, Mass. She was the mother of James K. Muisener of Manchester and widow of Hugo B. Muisener.

Mrs. Muisener had represented the state Republican Party at several national conventions. She also organized the first women's fan club for the former Hartford Braves baseball team.

She is also survived by 2 other sons, 2 daughters, a brother, 19 grandchildren and 14 great-grandchildren.

The funeral is Monday at 1 p.m. at Taylor and Modeen Funeral Home, 136 S. Main St., West Hartford. Burial will be in Cedar Hill Cemetery, Hartford.

Friends may call at the funeral home Sunday from 7 to 9 p.m.

The family suggests that any memorial gifts may be made to the Shriners Hospital for Children, Springfield, Mass., or to the Newington Children's Hospital.

Theodore H. Milkie

VERNON — Theodore H. Milkie, 61, of 381 Tunnel Rd. died Friday at his home. He was the husband of Mrs. Celeste Burns Milkie.

Mr. Milkie was born in Hartford and had lived there most of his life before coming to Vernon 13 years ago. Before his retirement in 1974, he was employed for four years at Reis Paper Co., Rocky Hill, previously being terminal manager at Adley Express Co., East Hartford, for 35 years. He was an Army veteran of World War II and a member of the Vernon VFW and American Legion Posts.

The funeral is Monday at 10 a.m. at the Richard W. Sheehan Funeral Home, 1084 New Britain Ave., West Hartford. Burial will be in Rose Hill Memorial Park, Rocky Hill.

There are no calling hours.

Man seeks police aid as police seek man

Curtis G. Willey, 20, of 112 Elizabeth Dr. went to police headquarters today at 2:15 a.m. to report his 1968 Volkswagen missing. He left the Green Tavern on E. Middle Tpke. to get his car and it was gone.

After police took Willey's complaint and sent out a description of the car over police wires, they told Willey they had a rearrest warrant for him stemming from the charge of allowing a dog to roam in a May 16 incident. The warrant was lodged when Willey failed to appear in court on the assigned date, police said.

Willey could not post the $75 surety bond and was held at headquarters until later this morning. Bond was then posted and his court date is Dec. 1.

Other arrests included: • Floyd P. Agosta, 18, of 11 Durant St., arrested today at 12:55 a.m. on W. Middle Tpke. and charged with second-degree larceny.

The charge stems from the theft of a $900, two-way radio from a Moriarty Bros. truck on Center St. moments earlier. Police apprehended Agosta after a man stopped him nearby.

• Richard L. Oeser, 16, of 41 Irene Dr., Vernon, arrested Friday at 9:30 p.m. at East Catholic High School and charged with third-degree criminal mischief. He allegedly bent a mirror on a school bus at the time. • A 15-year-old youth with him was referred to Juvenile Court. Court date is Dec. 1.

referred to Juvenile Court. Court date is Dec. 1.

• Ronald F. Strano Jr., 24, of 13 Union St., was arrested Friday on a court warrant charging him with third-degree burglary and second-degree larceny.

The charges stem from the Sunday morning theft of about $1,000 worth of furniture from the Second Congregational Church on N. Main St. Court is Dec. 1.

• Martha L. Butcher, 55, of East Hartford, arrested Friday at 7 p.m. at the Shop Rite store on Spencer St. and charged with fourth-degree larceny (shoplifting). Court, Dec. 1.

• Walter Green, 51, of Hartford, arrested Friday at 3:18 p.m. at the K-Mart store on Spencer St. and charged with fourth-degree larceny (shoplifting). Court Dec. 1.

Florence E. Randal, 56, of Columbia and Roslyn A. Gramb, 18, of Lebanon were both injured in a one-car accident Friday at 4:23 p.m. on W. Middle Tpke. near Congress St. They were taken by Manchester Memorial Hospital where they were treated for minor injuries and released. The car was driven by Ms. Randal off the right side of the street and it hit a utility pole. The car was towed.

A Sycamore Lane apartment was broken into Friday and $600 in small items was taken.

'Odd Couple' team tops in junk tycoon story

By JUNE TOMPKINS Staff Reporter

If you remember the great team of actors Ted Kowaleski and James Brennan as Oscar and Felix, respectively, in the Little Theatre of Manchester's production of "The Odd Couple," it will please you to know they are teamed again in the Glastonbury Players' presentation of "Born Yesterday."

Kowaleski plays Harry Brock, a vulgar egotistical man who has made a fortune on junk. He goes to Washington to enlist the political aid of a U.S. Senator in a crooked deal.

He settles in a posh pad at one of Washington's swankiest hotels with his girl friend who is the beautiful but dumb Billie Dawn, an ex-chorus girl.

A newspaper reporter is hired to refine the blonde's manners and English, a modern version of Professor Higgins and Eliza Doolittle in "My Fair Lady." Playing the reformer is Brennan.

Ray Gardiner, another player familiar to Manchester audiences, aptly fulfills the role of the compromising senator.

Kowaleski shares starring roles with Nancy Zimmerman who appears as Billie Dawn.

Billie Dawn has not mimicked Judy Halliday, the actress who brought fame to the original movie role. She has given it her own interpretation which is none the less outstanding and individualistic.

Well cast as Harry Brock's accountant is Allen Tibbetts in the role of Ed Devery. His resemblance to Archie Bunker is remarkable. Also illustrious in the cast is Danny Coyle as Eddie Brock, Harry Brock's cousin, who is general handyman, front man, errand boy, bar tender, doorbell answerer, and what have you. A typical yes-man, he swaggers in and out of his cues usually with a jaw full of gum and a jaunty set to his Fedora.

One of the most enjoyable scenes is a card game between Harry Brock and Billie Dawn. For several minutes, the audience kibitzes a conversationless game of gin rummy in which the players' actions speak louder than words. Miss Dawn proves she's quick at cards.

The dialogue is fast and clever. At no time does anyone on stage not do something, even if it's to follow the action with a look.

The play is successfully directed by James Pendergast, another name familiar to this area, and rolls up as one fine package of entertainment.

In supporting roles as hotel personnel and the senator's wife are Bernie Shanley, Emily Mucklow, Jamie Keithline, Susann O'Connell, Peter Kenny, Candi Bushnell, Lynn Keithline, Linda Dufford, Lee Zimmerman, and Harriet Calano.

The Glastonbury Players, Inc., is a revived community theater group that went defunct several years ago. "Born Yesterday" is their fourth production in two years. They have evidently pulled themselves up by their certain cords and appear to be going full speed ahead.

This timely entertainment plays its final performance tonight at 8:30 in the Gideon Welles Junior High School auditorium in Glastonbury. Tickets are available at the door.

Journal protests Courant's buying of Hartford Times

HARTFORD (UPI) — The Journal Inquirer of Rockville-Vernon-Manchester has confirmed it is protesting to the U.S. Justice Department the proposed purchase of the Hartford Times by the Hartford Courant.

A spokesperson for the competing suburban newspaper Friday confirmed an earlier report by local radio station WFSB that a statement filed in Washington claimed the merger would violate anti-trust laws. The statement also requested the government to prevent the sale.

At the request of an unidentified party, the Justice Department is conducting a business review of the Courant-Times deal to determine possible illegalities if such a sale was made.

The Courant, Connecticut's largest newspaper, acknowledged it has discussed buying the rival Times, but no settlement has been reached.

AREA POLICE REPORT

Vernon

State and Vernon police arrested Carroll J. Gardner, 32, of 23 Brooklyn St., Rockville Friday at 1:15 p.m. on a Tolland County Superior Court bench warrant charging him with first-degree arson.

The charge stems from the Dec. 13, 1974 fire at 21 Brooklyn St., Rockville, police said. The fire caused $4,600 in damages, police said. Gardner is the owner of the burned building.

Gardner appeared in superior court Friday afternoon where bond was set at $15,000. He failed to post it immediately and was being held for the next criminal session of the court.

Allen Brousseau, 16, of 92 Merline

Dr. Vernon, was charged with tampering with a motor vehicle Thursday.

Police said Brousseau was apprehended by the owner of the car, Jon Simler of Tolland. Court, Dec. 10. A juvenile was turned over to juvenile authorities.

Emil Parrish, 48, of 5 Quarry St., Rockville, was charged Thursday with operating under suspension and failure to drive right in connection with a one-car accident on Windsorville Rd. Court, Dec. 10.

Philip Loudfoot, 19, of East Hartford, was arrested Thursday on a warrant charging him with illegal possession and use of stolen credit card.

He was held overnight and then turned over to Wethersfield Police.

No court date was set.

Jack Marozas, 49, of 32 Park Place, Rockville, was charged Thursday with third-degree assault on complaint of Carol MacNamara of 110 Snipic St., Rockville, and Bruce Smith of 9 Linden St., Rockville.

Police said the alleged offences occurred on Park Place. Marozas was held overnight for court Friday.

Bolton

The car driven by Richard Agostinelli, 28, of Hamden struck a four point buck on I-84 in Bolton Thursday at 9:35 p.m., said state police.

The car was heading east when the deer crossed his path. The impact killed the deer. The car was towed away.

Clothing drive

The annual Catholic Bishops' Thanksgiving Clothing Collection begins Sunday and usable clothing and blankets may be left at Manchester area Catholic churches through Nov. 22.

Light-weight clothing is again the top priority for this year's appeal with infants' layettes, children's outfits and men's work clothes the items in greatest demand. Blankets of any weight are also needed. Light-weight clothing is suggested as most of the articles go to warm or tropical countries in South America, Africa and Asia.

The slogan for this year's appeal is "You Can Make A Child Smile," and that's exactly what happens when the clothing is distributed in South America, according to Richard Redder, who recently returned to the United States after serving as program director for Catholic Relief Services in South American countries.

"You can't really appreciate the poverty stricken in South America unless you really see them. For example, there's rarely a such a thing as 'Sunday best outfit' as the poor wear the same clothes day after day. It's the only outfit they have. Right now, the economic situation in Chile, where the cost of living had skyrocketed over 400 per cent in the last year, has drastically affected everyone. The poorest of God's poor have been hit the hardest; they could never afford" to purchase new clothing," Redder said.

Unitarians to hear Watt

Author, historian and rare book specialist Donald Watt of Coventry will speak at the Unitarian Universalist Society: East meeting Sunday, at 10:30 a.m. at the Community Y, 79 N. Main St.

His talk, "A Universalist Preacher Revisits His Old Friends in 1819," is Russell Streeter's narration of 70-year-old William Farwell returning to visit friends he had started preaching to 30 years before. His visit was marked by a severe January blizzard that closed the meetinghouse and became the setting for a memorable and historical Sunday morning.

Watt, a founding member of the Unitarian Universalist Society: East, wrote the history of the West Hartford Unitarian Universalist church. He is currently doing research for another book about the beginnings of Universalism in New England.

A professional librarian, Watt is a rare book specialist at the research library of Sturbridge Village.

Hunger Awareness Week begins

Manchester Council on World Hunger will sponsor a Hunger Awareness Week beginning Tuesday and continuing through the National Day of Fasting on Nov. 24.

Council Chairman Ronald Fournier, has announced that special events are being planned each evening during the observance from 7 to 9 at the storefront Awareness Center, the former Geleo toy store, 283 W. Middle Tpke., next to the Bonanza steak house. The public is invited to attend any of the scheduled programs or to come and visit the various displays and learn how the money the council has received has been distributed.

Tuesday evening, there will be a slide program, music and discussion of "Hunger: What Is It?" Wednesday is School Day and visitations by students and teachers are planned from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. and 6 to 9 p.m. and resource materials, teaching aids, films, and books will be available.

Thursday will be observed as OXFAM Day of fasting, and a local nutritionist will speak on what goes into Manchester meals and other things from 7 to 9 p.m.

Friday evening's program will feature self-help projects and show what is being done around the world to help people help themselves.

Saturday from noon to 2 p.m., an international luncheon will be available at the Awareness Center and proceeds will go to World Hunger.

Sunday, the Manchester Area Conference of Churches will have its annual communitywide Thanksgiving Service at 7:30 p.m. at South United Methodist Church.

On the National Day of Fasting, the council asks Manchester residents to "join us in a celebration of hope for the world and bring money or canned goods to the Awareness Center, as an offering." Council Chairman Fournier said.

Jay April is chairman of the week's events. Dr. and Mrs. Abraham Kurien are in charge of Saturday's international luncheon.

Scooping Superman

Lois Lane, star reporter for the Metropolis Daily Planet, is coming to Manchester.

As we all know, Lois is the reporter who, for years, has been outscoping mild-mannered reporter Clark Kent, alias Superman.

Miss Lane, otherwise known as Noel Neill, will appear at Manchester Community College Thursday. The public is invited to her 8 p.m. talk at MCC's main campus auditorium.

Noel Neill started her career as a real reporter, working for her father, news editor of the Minneapolis Star-Tribune. Her newspaper career was short-lived; Bing Crosby "discovered" her and signed her as a singer in a nightclub he owned.

She went to work in several movies for Paramount Studios before doing the Superman serial for theaters and television.

The original "Superman" TV program airs on WHYN-TV (Channel 40, Springfield) Sundays at 6:30 p.m.

Noel Neill as Lois Lane and the late George Reeves as Superman.

Tensions mounting

Tensions mount between mother (Anne Shropshire), seated, and daughter (Anne Lynn) as they keep a nervous deathwatch in "All Over" playing at the Hartford State Company, Hartford, through Dec. 7.

Off Broadway offers nostalgia

NEW YORK (UPI) — Scott Joplin, Brendan Behan, Jesse James and Belle Starr are the latest subjects (victims?) of theatrical nostalgia off Broadway.

Joplin fares best, in an off-off-Broadway showcase production of "The Ragtime Blues," a musical based on his life and music, at the AMAS Repertory Theater. The show has been optioned for possible Broadway presentation later this season, though it might do better off Broadway.

"The Ragtime Blues," with book, lyrics and musical adaptation by Mitch Douglas, played to standing room only during its 12 performances at AMAS.

But this may have been due as much to the continuing interest in Joplin's music as to the actual merits of the show.

The orchestration is good, the lyrics less so since ragtime tends to turn all lyrics into doggerel, and the book stolid and sentimental, the scenes divided with almost mathematical precision to make way for song and dance numbers.

David Freeman's "Jesse and the Bandit Queen," the latest off-Broadway production at the New York Shakespeare Festival's Public Theater, purports to tell in flashback the love story of Jesse James and Belle Starr.

The play is a fish of another color and

Albee at Hartford Stage... ...not particularly exciting

By JUNE TOMPKINS

"All Over," a play about waiting out death, is as sombre as its subject.

The Hartford Stage Company in Hartford is showing the Edward Albee play that describes a family waiting out the death of its patriarch.

The cast comprises the wife, the daughter, the mistress, the doctor, the son, the best friend, and the nurse.

In a setting of muted mauves with costumes of the same intensity, only personalities emerge from this plotless play. The characters play out their emotions as they engage in reminiscences while waiting endlessly for the inevitable outcome. The play is an episode, one which draws on the bowstring of taut nerves.

As the deathwatch draws out, so does the play. One wonders along with the characters when the old man will, if ever, die.

Only through the reactions of the various characters under the pressure of the situation do we get an insight as to their personality.

The wife appears callous. Maybe she and her husband really cared for each other once, but it was so long ago. Anne Shropshire is over dramatic at times in her vocal delivery, but otherwise most effective.

Anne Lynn's daughter role exhibits some emotional and temperamental outbursts which are extreme in a couple of instances. Perhaps they seem extreme in contrast to the morbid atmosphere. Her clashes with her mother's brittle bearing are sharp.

Pirie MacDonald gives the son a marshmallow interpretation which fits the accusation made more than once by the dying man's best friend, that the son never did amount to much. The son's makeup is intensified when he returns from his father's dressing room and breaks down in sobs at seeing all his father's things just as he always used them.

The nurse played by Margaret Thomson provides the few humorous lines which lighten the dense drama.

Although not particularly strong parts, the other men's roles played by David O. Petersen as the doctor and Humphrey Davis as the best friend do manage to supplement the women's roles.

The interest among the characters eventually and subtly centers around the mistress. Myra Carter gives her role a sort of tongue-in-cheek portrayal as she remains unruffled at the rantings and accusations of the others. Myra Carter makes the mistress real.

Nothing is said to describe the dying man, but a waiting press for the final details suggests the importance of the man. A screen blocks off an alcove where the doctor and nurse attend the dying man on a hospital bed which does not even have a shape under a sheet to suggest a form in the bed.

Directed by Paul Weidner, the play is well designed and moves along as well as it's supposed to under the weight of words. But it is not particularly exciting.

In fact, one is relieved to hear the final words, "It's all over," and the play ends.

...a meaningful production

By PETER B. GRAM

Family drama has always preoccupied the young American dramatist Edward Albee.

While "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf" is a high-pitch battle between husband and wife, in "All Over" the tempo is slow, the dialogue moody and even morbid and most personal interaction is reminiscences of the past.

Virginia Woolf's father, alluded to but never seen, is nevertheless a source of jealousy and controversy. In the current play, the main character is dying behind a screen, but is never seen. The audience learns a lot about him through the accounts given by the members of the mourning party.

The protagonists are his wife, long abandoned in favor of the mistress, lately having fulfilled all of the wealthy man's needs. Both women are in love with him, each in her own capacity, each offering her own special virtues.

The early animosity between them gives way to tolerance and understanding as the end approaches. It is almost a reconciliation, but never love between them.

Both these actresses give an excellent performance. Their stage deportment is restrained, their speech precise and clear to all, their personalities well suited to their roles. Their only contrast lies in each one's background and theatrical education. Anne Shropshire, the wife, is American-trained, but the mistress, Myra Carter, British.

The two children are well cast as the disturbed, unhappy offspring of an omnipotent father and a devoted, but weak mother. Pirie MacDonald's performance brings out strongly the "castration fear" that he must have experienced and Ann Lynn's Electra-complex hysterics are within the boundaries of surging emotions before her father's demise.

Margaret Thomson's portrayal of the nurse, truly the only sane character in the play, was refreshing and very live.

David Petersen, as doctor, pronounced the end: "All Over," but his best line came when he was asked when he planned to retire. "I cannot retire now. I am well 15 years past my retirement date."

H. Davis as "The Best Friend," the family lawyer, was impeccably professional.

The backstage staff, under Paul Weidner's over-all direction, accomplished a meaningful production, with special commendations to Marjorie Kellogg for her austere sets.

Stamps and coins

Noting Norway's birthday

By RUSS MacKENDRICK

The Seafaring Tradition 10-cent envelopes came out last month at Minneapolis. They showed a silhouette of the sloop "Restaurationen" that brought the first Norwegian settlers over to this country in 1825. They were designed to mark the sesqui of the event and the present King Olav was there at the ceremonies.

Fifty years ago at their centennial they went whole hog with this commemorative medal plus the two stamps.

Although not a legal tender coin (no value is shown), it was authorized by the Congress of the United States and minted at Philadelphia. This silver piece, in the shape of a rambling, (or poetic) octagon, is eagerly sought for by collectors of the U.S. commemorative half dollars.

The obverse shows a well-thewed handsome Viking stepping ashore from a boat (no Hagar the Horrible, he). The title says "Norse American Centennial...1825...1925."

The reverse has the Congress inscription and a larger boat, and then "A.D. 1000" for the approximate date of Lief the Lucky colonizing in Newfoundland. The tiny lettering at the stern reads "Opus Fraser" for the designer.

These dragon boats showed up everywhere in the early centuries. They had one large square woolen sail and as many as 20 banks of oars (Seven on this one). They were two-ended affairs that did not have to turn around to get out of a tight place like a narrow river or bay.

The total issue of the medal was less than 40,000. There were thick and thin ones of this size in silver, then a hundred smaller in gold and 75 three-inch bronzes.

The two stamps came out May 18, 1925. There is that famous sloop again on the two-cent, and on the other apparently a Viking boat. Actually though, it is a depiction of a replica built by popular subscription in Norway and sailed over here by a 20-man crew for the Columbian Expo in 1893. They rigged it with the addition of a couple of non-authentic jibs to speed their voyage.

Hard-nosed philatelists will murmur in their beards about the canceled two-cent stamp being shown with a mint five—and a straight-edged at that! So sorry, all we had at hand.

The medal needs no apologies—it is a beautiful uncirculated piece, loaned for the occasion by Sheldon Adler, Su-Deb Coin Co., Main St.

Watch for good ones

The Type I Bicentennial Ike dollar should be in just about all the banks today. Watch for good specimen of this because there were only some 15 million minted before they reworked the design. Type II will come out as two or three hundred million.

The 1975 proof coin sets have gone from $7 to away over $25. Where else can you get a 1975 cent with an "S" mintmark?

Exhibits and bourse

Also for coin people—tomorrow at the Polish National Home, Pulaski Plaza, Hartford, the Southern New England Coin Dealers' Association (the SNECDAs) will put on a show with many exhibits and a bourse. Time: 10 to 6. Free admission.

MANPHIL tomorrow

And for stamp collectors—the annual MANPHIL from noon to 5 tomorrow at Manchester High School. This is the hosting of the Connecticut Philatelic Society by our club. There will be an auction, 25-dealer bourse, U.S. post office, and a special pictorial cancel, cachet, and souvenir card.

Majolica warms kitchens

By JEAN BARNES

A kitchen decorated with American majolica is more than just colorful. Jan S. believes that it makes food taste better. Her kitchen with its plate rails, open shelves and wall arrangements contains about 250 pieces of majolica. It is a warm and inviting place to visit.

Majolica, a thin-glazed earthenware, dates back to the 14th century. It wasn't until the mid-19th century that this colorful ware was produced in the United States. The American product is distinctive from that of European origin.

The first was made by Edwin Bennett in Baltimore, Md., in 1850. Later, the New York City firm of Carr and Morrison produced majolica between 1858 and 1860.

Etruscan majolica was the main product of Griffin Smith & Co., formerly the Phoenixville (Pa.) Pottery. Large quantities were purchased by the Atlantic and Pacific Tea Co. to be used as premiums with baking soda. This is the most common of American majolica.

Jan's patterns in the Etruscan line include a tea set with plates in cauliflower, shell and seaweed, palm leaf, alligator hide, begonia and maple leaf designs. Strawberry and crabapple were also popular.

D.F. Haynes & Company's Chesapeake Pottery of Baltimore, Md., made "Clifton Ware," a type of majolica. They produced mostly vases and art pieces for only a short time about 1880.

Morley & Co. majolica was made between 1879 and 1885 at their pottery in Wellsville, W. Va. It has a much harder body and glaze than Etruscan ware.

Facts and figures do little to describe the whimsey and color which designers used to craft the pieces being sought today. The fish with curving tail is a pitcher. A leaf with green and brown shadings is a condiment tray. A head of cauliflower is a teapot.

Pieces are lined with a solid color glaze. Pink or lavender is highly prized by collectors with green a close second. Yellow or cream is the most common.

Wright to read at MCC

Charles Wright, author of six volumes of poetry and a professor at the University of California, will read from his work at Manchester Community College Tuesday (Nov. 18).

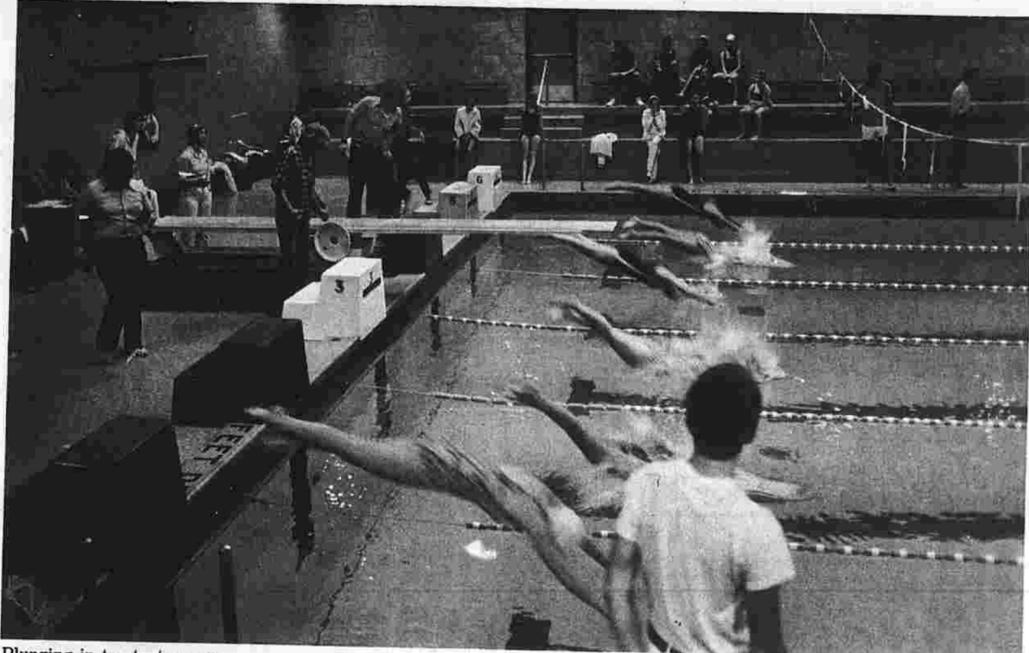

The poetry reading is scheduled at 8:30 p.m. at the college's Student Center. The public is invited.

Wright is giving readings at colleges throughout Connecticut under the auspices of the Connecticut Poetry Circuit, which will sponsor poet John Hollander in a similar tour next April.

A Tennessee native, Wright received his M.F.A. degree from the University of Iowa and has been a Fulbright Scholar in Rome.

His books include "Hard Freight."

Plunging in to start a race...

Bearded Coach Dave Frost and his team man the decks and lend encouragement to the girl swimmers.

Their first season

Splashing into varsity competition this fall was the Manchester High School girls' swimming team. Originally the Indian maidens were going to undertake just a club schedule but Enfield High dropped out of the CCIL and the Silk Towners assumed the vacated schedule.

Although the team didn't fair as well as some expected with a 2-6 won-lost record, Coach Dave Frost's crew with many graduates from the Manchester Rec swim program should do well in future seasons.

What hurt the tankers most was lack of depth as the scoring system is based on the first five finishers. But with growing interest in girls' athletics, far faster than in past decades, more promising prospects should be joining the ranks shortly and making this a successful venture.

Peacock bites the dust

NEW YORK (UPI) — NBC will celebrate its 50th birthday by knocking off its famous peacock and reshaping its logotype as part of a new program of corporate identity.

Gerald Rowe, NBC vice president for advertising, sounded almost rueful when asked about the peacock.

"It's been phased out for the last several years," he said, "but you know it never was our corporate identification mark or logo."

"The peacock was a device used in the beginning of color television when most programs were still in black and white. It went on at the start of a program to say that 'the following program is brought to you in living color.'

"As all television turned to color, it was absurd to keep using it. I think originally ... it was for people with color sets to use in adjusting their color — like a test pattern."

"It's a very well known mark and everyone likes it. There just isn't a heck of a lot of point to it any more."

Don Rickles stars in his own CBS-TV special Wednesday at 10 p.m. on Channel 3.

Grand marshal

Kate Smith, who has been described as the personification of America, will be grand marshal of the 87th Pasadena, Calif., Tournament of Roses. She will be the third female grand marshal in Tournament history.

During her 44-year career, the popular singer has introduced more than 700 songs, including "God Bless America," with which she is closely identified.

The other women grand marshals were Mary Pickford in 1933 and Shirley Temple (then 10 years old) in 1939.

Viewers shun regular shows

NEW YORK (UPI) — The national Nielsen ratings indicate that the television viewing public prefers watching almost anything this season except the regular schedule.

There remain some truly popular shows, of course, with "All in the Family" the national favorite.

But the network that led all the rest this week was ABC, and that was in part because it's airing of the movie "Walking Tall," (not a television debut, incidentally) took over the number two spot on the list with a 28.6 rating and a 46 share of the audience in its Sunday night time slot.

When NBC was the winner in recent weeks, it was the enormous interest and excitement generated by a whale of a World Series that put the network on top and, in fact, gives it a narrow edge over the other two for the first nine weeks of the new season.

CBS, whose programs occupied five of the top ten shows, still came in third in this week's ratings average. Helping to drag CBS down are the three CBS shows that came in dead last on the Nielsen list. All three — "Big Eddy," "Three for the Road" and "Beacon Hill" have been canceled.

If viewers are watching television less and enjoying themselves more, one reason might be that a steady diet of comedy and c ps leads to malnutrition of the brain. If you find yourself rooting for one side or the other in a kitchen towel commercial, you know you're in trouble. The cure is to read two books or watch three shows on PBS.

Of the first ten shows on the Nielsen list, six were situation comedies and only one show was new — if you can call a spin-off such as "Phyllis" new. There's more comedy in the second ten, and the cops start to shoot their way onto the scene.

At first glance, which soon can turn to glassy stare, the audience seems to be voting for just those two categories — cops and comedy. But no one seems to realize that they have been offered little else except on occasional doctor, and the only one of those in good health is Marcus Welby, but then father always did know best.

Diane Keaton upsets the Hollywood image

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — Diane Keaton is confounding Hollywood. In the first place, they can't pigeon-hole her. And, in the second place, she doesn't behave like a normal almost-star should behave.

Consider that first place. Here is a girl who does a fine job in the two "Godfather" films, as Al Pacino's wife. OK. So you figure she's a good dramatic actress. Then she turns around and does all those Woody Allen pictures. And that automatically makes her a comedienne.

What is she? "I'm an actress," she says, simply. To her, that explains it all. She's willing to try anything, but she realizes that she has limitations.

"I have no inflated views of my own importance and beauty," she says. "I know I'll never get a sex image part because I just don't look the type."

She says she's ambitious,

Diane Keaton

but her style of ambition is not the usual kind of Hollywood ambition. "I'm not the clawing sort of person," she says. "I'm more the dreaming sort, I guess. All I really want is to work and do good things. I'm persistent — but I'm not a fighter."

That, in itself, is very un-Hollywoodish. She is considered a strange girl here — strange but eminently likable — for several reasons.

First, she doesn't like to look at herself on the screen.

She has also stunned the studio publicity department by not demanding that she see every still photo taken.

Diane's local girl, born and raised in Los Angeles, the eldest of four children. "I always wanted to perform," she says. "I guess what I was after was attention. All through junior high and high school, I did all those things — sang, danced, acted — and I'm ashamed of it now."

"The I went to junior college in Santa Ana, but I only acted. I knew then what I wanted to do."

She still lives in New York, when she isn't making a movie somewhere.

Puerto Rican culture in Atheneum exhibition

An exhibition which explores some aspects of Puerto Rican culture has opened at the Wadsworth Atheneum in Hartford. "Image of Puerto Rico" has two parts: A display of santos and milagros figures from the collection of Teodoro Vidal of San Juan, Puerto Rico; and photographs of the Puerto Rican experience both on the island and in New York City by artist Geno Rodriguez.

Santos and milagros figures have been an integral part of Puerto Rican religion and culture for hundreds of years, and their origins may be traced to ancient Greece, Spain and West Africa. Santos are carved wooden figures of the Virgin Mary and the saints, while milagros are small votive figures, usually made of silver or other metals.

Because of the difficulty of competing with mass production techniques, the craft of carving santos is a dying art. Thus, the traditional statues have slowly been disappearing from altars in homes and churches and have assumed a new role as examples of Puerto Rican art.

One of the most popular customs in Puerto Rico is the offering to God, the Virgin Mary and the saints of small votive figures, the milagros (miracles), and they are frequently hung from the larger, carved wooden santos figures. About 15 santos and 100 milagros figures from Sr. Vidal's collection are being shown in the exhibition.

Geno Rodriguez, a Puerto Rican photographer, has close ties to the island of Puerto Rico, as do many Puerto Ricans living here. His photographs are of the landscape, city streets and people of the island and of city life of transplanted Puerto Ricans in New York.

His deep, intimate knowledge of his people is reflected in his work, showing individuals in brief moments of repose, sadness and joy, and capturing the serene loveliness of Puerto Rican countryside.

The Atheneum has worked closely with members of the Puerto Rican community in Hartford and with the Hartford school system's Bilingual Resource Center to develop bilingual services and programs for the exhibition. Included are bilingual tours and written material and plans are underway for workshop and other programs in the schools.

"Images of Puerto Rico" will be open to the public through Jan. 11, and museum hours are Tuesday through Saturday from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. and Sunday from 1 to 5 p.m. The museum's voluntary admission policy suggests fees of $1 for adults and fifty cents for those aged 12 to 18.

'Funny Girl' playing

"Funny Girl," the long-running Broadway musical comedy that recreates the early life and career of Fanny Brice, will be performed by the Queens Company of St. Joseph College, 1678 Asylum Ave., West Hartford, Thursday, Friday and Saturday in the college auditorium.

For reservations, call the college switchboard at 232-4571.
