Spending ceiling set at $375.6 billion

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate has voted for a ceiling of $375.6 billion on federal spending during the current fiscal year, ending June 30, 1976. That's $8.6 billion more than Congress agreed to last March.

The resolution, approved Thursday by a vote of 69-23, binds Congress under a law enacted last year to appropriate no more than that amount.

The resolution contemplates a deficit of $74.8 billion. The administration has requested, pending totaling $59.2 billion. The House has passed a resolution calling for spending of $73.8 billion.

Debate centered chiefly on an effort by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., to commit the Senate to approve $1.5 billion in tax reforms. The House has voted in principle to commit itself to $1 billion worth of additional taxes through reform.

Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, argued that "tax reform" is a misnomer because it means different things to different people and always winds up cutting, rather than increasing, government revenues.

Long made his point with doggerel: "Don't tax you, 'Tax the fellow behind that tree." Kennedy's amendment was defeated 76-21.

Police to report on baffling Bolton murder

HARTFORD (UPI) — Connecticut State Police will issue a major announcement early next week concerning the unsolved 1969 murder of University of Connecticut graduate student Paget Weatherly. United Press International has learned.

State Police Commissioner Edward Leonard said late Friday the department would issue a statement in the baffling case "perhaps on Monday, but most probably on Tuesday."

The commissioner declined comment when asked by UPI if the announcement could mean the case has been solved or if an arrest would be made. "Any further comment would jeopardize the case," he said.

She was shot three times in the chest. She was last seen three days before her death when she walked out of the Campus Restaurant on the University of Connecticut campus in Storrs.

Police believe she started to hitchhike back to a Willington apartment she shared with a UConn coed. It was believed the crimes may have been committed by the same person because of an unusual type of bullet used in the slayings.

State police said the bullets used to kill Miss Weatherly were a Swedish-made .32 caliber-type. The bullets, copper coated and steel jacketed over a lead base, are rarely sold in the United States, they said at the time.

Miss Weatherly, a graduate of St. Lawrence University in Canton, N.Y., was studying regulatory physiology.

Two years after the murder, murders the girls were probably hitchhiking, were part of a college community and were transported for some distance before their bodies were abandoned on the side of a road.

Blizzard kills eight

A three-day blizzard that claimed eight lives in its sweep across the Plains and upper Midwest was rated by officials in at least one state as the worst in 10 years.

The heaviest reported snowfalls were 20 inches at Verdugo, Neb., and 18 inches in northern Wisconsin.

The storm also dumped heavy snow on Michigan's upper peninsula. It created 20-foot winds on Lake Superior and wild winds from the storm center over Lake Huron lashed Lower Michigan, wrecking mobile homes, damaging barns and houses and tearing down trees and power lines.

Juan Carlos takes oath as king

MADRID (UPI) — Juan Carlos de Borbon was sworn today as Spain's first king in 44 years, succeeding Generalissimo Francisco Franco.

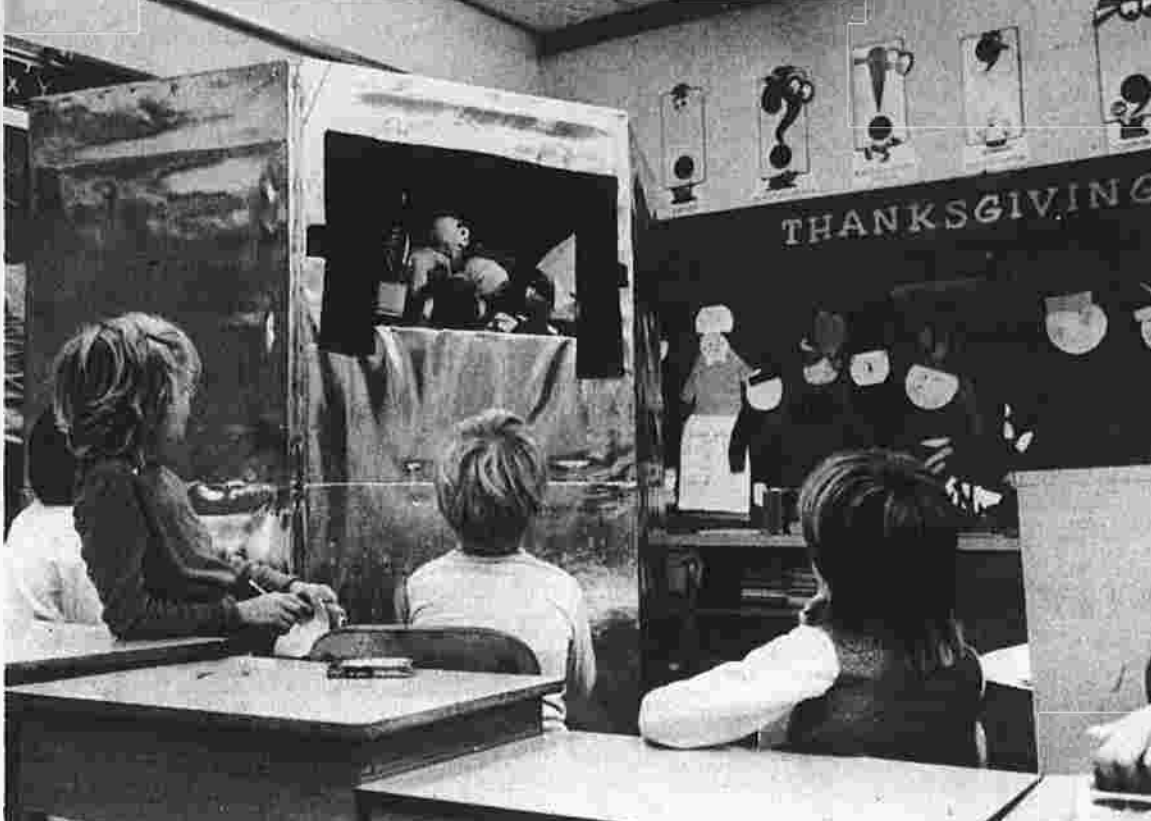

"Long live the king," shouted witnesses to the brief oath-taking before the Cortes (parliament) in downtown Madrid.

Wearing the uniform of commander-in-chief, Juan Carlos took the oath from the president of the Council of the Regency, the three-man body that has governed Spain since Franco's death Thursday morning.

Juan Carlos I, as he chose to be called, received a standing ovation as a military band played the national anthem.

He began his inaugural address with a salute to Franco and government leaders and beribboned generals broke into loud applause.

With his wife, Queen Sophia at his side, Juan Carlos said he wanted no one without work for Spaniards that will dignify them.

Gov. Grasso to give proposals for cutting deficit Tuesday

HARTFORD (UPI) — A special session of the legislature appears certain next month to deal with proposals Gov. Ella T. Grasso will make public Tuesday night to reduce a $77 million budget gap.

The governor's proposals were expected to include cuts in current operating budgets and possible layoffs or reduction of wages for state workers, a move already condemned by union leaders. He has said she will not recommend an increase in taxes.

Mrs. Grasso told newsmen Friday she wants to put "into full perspective" the state's financial difficulties in a statewide broadcast beginning 7:30 p.m. from her offices at the State Capitol.

A special legislative session would be necessary to enact spending cuts to balance the $1.67 billion budget.

The governor has met with state employe union leaders to discuss several alternatives for reducing the deficit including layoffs, a longer work week with no pay increase or a shorter work week at less pay.

Earlier this year, she approved a round of higher business taxes which have been strongly criticized as stifling the state economy.

Michael Ferrucci, head of Council 16, American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, said all three proposals are unacceptable.

"I would dismiss them out-of-hand, based on the reaction of my members. We cannot be made the victim of something that isn't our fault," he said.

Ferrucci said he told the governor she should consider a tax reform package that would not include increased taxes.

Mrs. Grasso said "The suggestion he had to look into tax reform just will not provide us with sufficient revenues."

Alphonse Marotta, president of the Connecticut State Employees Association, said most state employe feel they have borne the brunt of the financial burden imposed by the legislature.

The governor has already cut spending increases in the current budget to the lowest level in a decade and has reduced the state work force through attrition.

Those backing Ford, in addition to Evans and Holshouser, include Govs. Christopher S. Bond of Missouri, Otis Bowen of Indiana, Robert Ray of Iowa and Robert Bennett of Kansas.

Jobless rate in town declines as state's does

Following a statewide trend, estimated unemployment rates in Manchester towns declined slightly from mid-September to mid-October, the state Labor Department has reported. In Manchester, the estimated unemployment rate for mid-October was 7.5 per cent, compared to 8.7 per cent in mid-September. The higher rate for the Hartford area indicated that towns outside the Manchester vicinity had more unemployed workers. In the Labor Department's estimates of unemployment are those receiving unemployment compensation benefits, those whose benefits expired or were ineligible, and persons who were entering or re-entering the labor force.

The Press and the American Revolution

American Antiquarian Society. In the fall of 1775, Americans were increasingly uncertain of their loyalties. Fighting had erupted and the terrible carnage of Bunker Hill was fresh in memory. At this very time the invasion of Canada was underway. How would these events take us? How long would our traditional loyalty to the British crown continue?

Hope for reconciliation was not entirely gone. On July 5, 1775, the Second Continental Congress adopted the "Olive Branch Petition" (written by John Dickinson of Pennsylvania) expressing American loyalty to George III, and asking the king to provide for negotiation of differences.

The next day, however, Congress adopted the resolution drafted by Thomas Jefferson and Dickinson called the "Declaration of Causes and Necessity of Taking up Arms." Rejecting independence, the authors asserted that the colonists were determined to fight for "the preservation of our liberties; being with one mind resolved to dye Free-men rather than Live Slaves."

One British policy that particularly angered the colonists was the decision to hire German soldiers to suppress the American rebellion. What a horrible thing—throwing mercenaries against free men struggling for their rights! Even the great Edmund Burke deplored using the "sword of German brutes and vassals" against Englishmen whose only crime was fighting for freedom.

Colonial newspapers not only reflected the growing indignation of many Americans, but they also helped to prepare the popular mind for more revolutionary steps. Editors sought to convince readers that their resistance to British rule was both just and practicable. In all but very few places the papers condemned Britain's oppressive policies, and denounced royal officials.

The Williamsburg Va newspapers, safely out of reach of the royal governor, accused Lord Dunmore of "poisoning the minds of the people," leveling plantations along Chesapeake Bay and inciting a slave insurrection. Up north in Rhode Island, Solomon Southwick of the Newport Mercury told readers that their city faced "ENGLISH tyranny, oppression and plunder."

few effective spokesmen, and it was increasingly dangerous to say anything hostile to the Patriot cause. The few Tory newspapers that continued in operation soon found they were fighting a losing battle. Prominent conservatives like Joseph Galloway of Pennsylvania and Isaac Low of New York declined to serve in the "Second Continental Congress." Shortly these Loyalists would flee to the British and be condemned as traitors by Patriots who confiscated their property.

Towards the end of 1775, very interesting signs of changing views could be seen. George III, who had generally been held above the fray, now began to receive criticism in the press. How could he support a ministry responsible for a ruinous colonial policy? More and more Americans came to feel that the King himself was responsible for their troubles. In January 1776 an engraver wrote in the New-England Chronicle exclaimed wildly, "King George the third adieu!"

The King in a nutshell, was much of the meaning of the American Revolution. An effective trick of colonial propagandists was to intercept British letters and use damaging statements to further arouse the people. Sometimes they embellished the letters a bit for better effect, the New-England Chronicle, (May 12, 1775) for example, published a letter allegedly written by one of George's soldiers. This rather grim piece charged that the Americans were "as bad as the Indians for SCALPING AND CUTTING DEAD MEN'S EARS AND NOSES OFF."

God save the people

WATER TOWN: Printed by Benjamin Edw, Printer to the Honorable COUNCIL, and House of REPRESENTATIVES, M^{DC}CXXV.

In the fall of 1775 with American affairs so uncertain, many colonists did not know where their basic loyalties lay. No doubt a majority still wanted to preserve the connection with Britain, but a growing number were thinking in terms of independence. This is made graphically clear in the portions of Thanksgiving broadsides reproduced here. In Connecticut the proclamation that was issued followed conventional lines, as did many others at this time, by using the customary expression "God save the King." Nearby in Massachusetts, however, the Thanksgiving proclamation ended with the revolutionary call, "God Save the People." (Courtesy, American Antiquarian Society.)

Victory for people

To the editor:
Now that Eighth District expansion vote is history, I would like to commend the residents of the district that voted.

WINGS OF EVENINGS

What would happen if we changed our annual day of Thanksgiving to one in which we are urged to put out all our grumpies? Instead of grumbling every morning about the food, the cost of living, the boss, the president, the wife, the minister, the children—complaints would be concentrated in one day. What a halo of cursing and complaining would burn up the country on the fourth Thursday of November! The implication of this is that the rest of the year should be one of "Thanksgiving," in gratitude for all of our blessings. If we concentrate on finding causes for gratitude we will become aware of many that we take for granted or entirely overlook.

CLIFF SIMPSON

day I found a poem in a newspaper which has brought me comfort and challenge ever since.
The words are by Frank Wright.
"The rite in the chest of a mountain,
The twists in the trunk of a tree,
The water-cut cave in the hollow,
The rough, rocky rim of the sea—
Each one has a scar of distortion,
Yet each has a sermon to sing,
The presence of what would deface him.
"Whom from our mother's arms,
Hath blessed us on our way,
With countless caves in the hollow,
And still our our today."
How could such noble words of thanksgiving issue from such horror? No wonder that this hymn was sung when the great Cathedral of Cologne was finished in 1887, and for the Diamond Jubilee of Queen Victoria in 1897. How triumphant is the second stanza:
"O my this bounteous God,
Through all our life be near us,
With ever joyful hearts,
And blessed peace to cheer us;
And keep us in His grace,
And guide us when perplexed,
And free us from all ills,
In this world and the next."
The tune of this hymn, sometimes

I guess the next bit of news is that Monday will be the final day to bring in canned goods or donations for the needy, because we will deliver all we have on Tuesday morning.
With Thanksgiving on Thursday we will be closed on Friday as well, which will make for a nice long weekend. How about that?
Next important thing to remember is that on Thursday, Dec. 4, we will have our super big Craft and Food Fair here at the center. There is going to be some simply super merchandise for sale, most of which is handmade by our members. We still could use more items, and also lots of homemade goodies such as cookies, candy, cakes, bread, etc. If you have any of these items, please bring them in by the end of the week.

ALMANAC

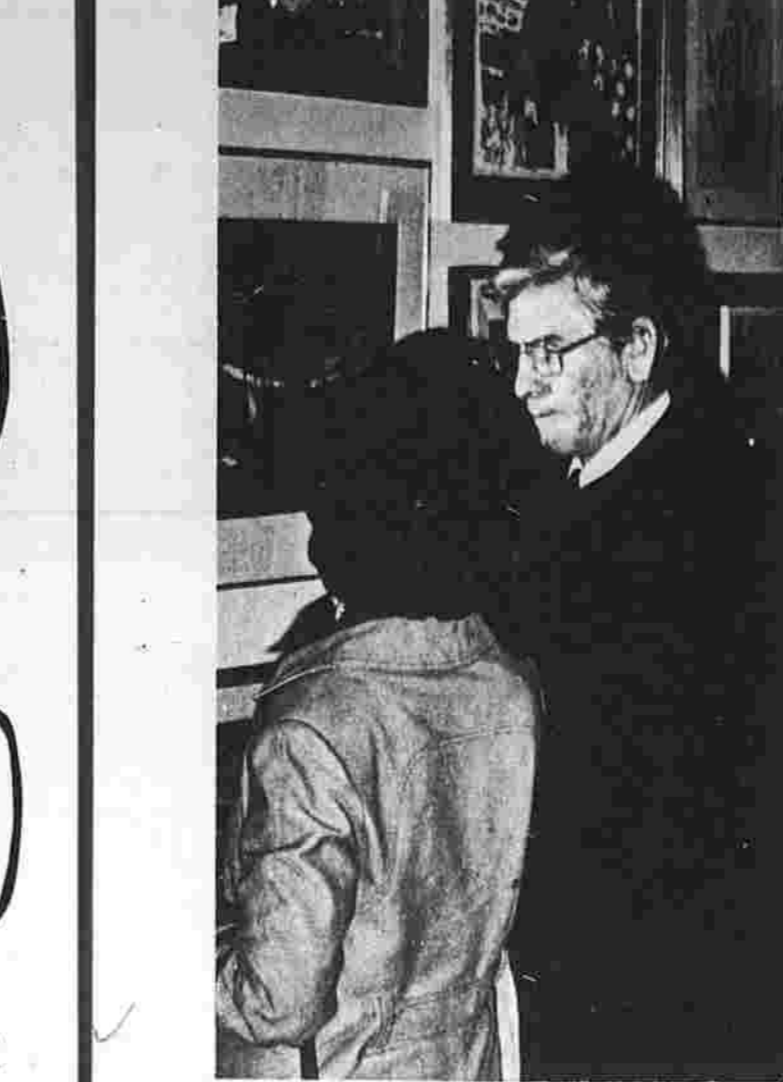

By United Press International
Today is Saturday, Nov. 22, the 326th day of 1975 with 39 to follow.
The moon is between its full phase and last quarter.
The morning stars are Mercury, Venus, Mars and Saturn.
The evening star is Jupiter.
Those born on this date are under the sign of Sagittarius.
French statesman and military leader Charles de Gaulle was born Nov. 22, 1890. American composer Hoagy Carmichael was born on this date in 1899.
On this day in history:
In 1950, a wreck on a Long Island Rail Road train as it pulled out of a tunnel from New York City killed 79 persons.
In 1960, the U.S. Navy launched the "Ethan Allen," at that time the most powerful nuclear submarine in the world.
In 1963, President John F. Kennedy was assassinated in Dallas by Lee Harvey Oswald. Vice President Lyndon Johnson was sworn in as the nation's 36th chief executive a short time later.
In 1974, President Ford arrived in Vladivostok for talks with Soviet Communist party Chairman Leonid Brezhnev.
A thought for the day: Union Civil War Gen. William Tecumseh Sherman said, "I am tired and sick of war. Its glory is all moonshine. It is those who neither fired a shot nor heard the shrieks and groans of the wounded who cry aloud for blood, more vengeance, more desolation. War is hell."

In anticipation of foreign contacts and alliances the Committee on Congress, on Nov. 29, 1775, appointed a five-man, Committee of Secret Correspondence, (which was to become the State Department), to investigate the possibility of obtaining foreign aid. The Committee decided on Mar. 3, 1776, to send an agent to France in the guise of a merchant and investigate the possibilities of French aid and political support. Silas Deane was selected for the assignment by the Congress. The World Almanac recalls.

—probably the last I should have devised — it came!
But Judson had prayed for entrance into India and had been compelled to go to Burma; he had prayed for his wife's life, and had buried both her and his two children; he had prayed for release from the King of Ava's prison and had lain there months, chained and miserable. Scores of Judson's petitions had gone without an affirmative answer. But Judson always had been answered. He had been upheld, guided, re-inforced; unforeseen doors had opened through the very trials he accomplished not in his way but beyond his way.
"All praise and thanks to God..."
I hope you have an opportunity to sing this hymn tomorrow or sometime during this Thanksgiving season.
An amazing instance of thanks to God
Many of you are familiar with Harry Emerson Fosdick's book "The Meaning of Prayer." Those of you who have experienced the power of God in the midst of pain, disappointment or disgrace, will understand the assertion quoted in this book. Adoniram Judson said, at the close of his life:
"I never prayed sincerely and earnestly for anything, but it came; at some time — no matter at how distant a day — somehow, in some shape the flock be cut off from the fold and there be no herd in the stalls, yet I will rejoice in the Lord,

I will joy in the God of my salvation." (Hab. 3:17)
Paul, who experienced God's grace and power, wrote to the Philippians: "Rejoice in the Lord always; again I will say rejoice. Have no anxiety about anything but in everything by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known to God. And the peace of God, which passes all understanding, will keep your hearts and your minds in Christ Jesus." Phil. 4:4-7
Hunger Awareness Week
If you wish to express your thankfulness by contributing to our Manchester World Hunger Council (PO Box 773), or to Care (660 First Ave. NYC, 10016), or to Church World Service (110 Pleasant St., Longmeadow, Mass. 01028) you will be expressing "thanksgiving" as your share with those in need.

"But what is it?"

It happened in 1961
Floyd Patterson KO'd Ingemar Johanson for the heavyweight championship of the world. Astronaut Alan Shepard spent a historic 15 minutes in space. And President John F. Kennedy met with Chairman Nikita Khrushchev to talk things over in the city of Vienna. Each moment Michaels entered the import markets for the first time, journeying to far off places to buy cultured Pearls directly from Japanese pearl farms, Opals from Australia, Jade from Hong Kong and cultured gems from Ceylon and Thailand. This was also the year of Michaels' first Estate Sale, an event in which the public was afforded an unprecedented opportunity to purchase estate and antique jewelry at impressive savings. Today Michaels Estate Sales are among the most eagerly awaited events for jewelry buyers in its many locations.

Area's insurance firms push buses, carpooling

Nearly half of Greater Hartford's 25,000 insurance company employees are riding to work in buses and carpools each day.
The Insurance Association of Connecticut reports that ongoing promotional programs have increased bus and carpool participation to 14,689 — some 42 per cent of the total of 35,000 employees.
Ridership has jumped from 12,000 in January of 1974 to 14,689, an increase of 22 per cent. Twenty-two months ago, there were 6,400 employees using carpools while another 5,000 were riding buses. Today, there are 8,394 in carpools and 6,305 riding buses to work.
Each of the major insurance companies has instituted a promotional program. Carpool drivers are offered preferential choices of parking areas.
At Phoenix Mutual Life Insurance Co. employees are reimbursed $1 per day for each day they do not drive to work.
The Travelers is offering discounts on the purchase of monthly bus tickets. Some Travelers employees have chartered their own buses to and from Southington, Old Saybrook and Tolland. Travelers reimburses the amount of the discount given each bus commuter. Travelers also reimburses carpool drivers the amount paid in parking fees.
Aetna Life & Casualty, The Hartford Insurance Group and Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance Co. subsidize passengers using buses.
Connecticut General Life Insurance Co. operates four city buses — one from Wethersfield and three from Hartford. The company also operates five commuter buses to Enfield, Windsor Locks, Vernon, Winsted and Torrington.

Yale and Harvard in N.E. headliner

BOSTON (UPI) - New England college football, which began in obscurity more than two months ago, held its last big drama today, with Harvard and Yale in the spotlight.
Of the seven games involving the region's collegians only Harvard and Yale were playing for a title. The Crimson 72-0 overall and the Elis, 4-1, were both 5-1 in Ivy League play, Harvard leading into the game at Yale. The game was rated a tossup.
This was what we've been working for all season a chance to win our first title," said Joe Yukica, whose Crimson have shared four Ivy crowns. Yale has won three and shared three.

Hold on there fellows...and they did Earl Monroe and John Havlicek (center) lock arms

Celtics continue to master Knicks

—BOSTON (UPI) — Eventually John Havlicek will slow down from old age and, just as assuredly, the New York Knicks will win a road game. Neither was the case Friday night though, as the 36-year-old Havlicek scored 28 points and the Knicks dropped their eighth away game of the season, 110-101.

Elsewhere in the National Basketball Association, Philadelphia pasted Portland 131-111, Kansas City downed Chicago 107-99, Phoenix upended Houston 107-92 and Los Angeles whipped Milwaukee 116-104.

In the American Basketball Association, the New York Nets topped Denver 128-116 and Virginia put away Utah 106-98.

Kevin Porter scored 10 points in the first six minutes of the closing period to spark Detroit into the NBA playoff race.

Nate Archibald led a balanced attack for the Celtics, scoring 27 points and leading the team to a 117-100 victory over the Knicks.

Earl Monroe kept New York in the game, while fellow guard Walt Frazier netted 19 of his 27 in the final 24 minutes.

"We had a lot of errors in the beginning of the game and we weren't getting back on defense when we saw the ball change hands," said Coach Red Holzman, whose team felt behind by 15 points in the first period and trailed, 56-39, eight minutes into the second quarter.

"Then after we closed to 88-87 (early in the fourth period on three straight Haywood baskets) the Celtics' defense was good. We had to use a lot of the clock to get off a shot."

Oklahoma reputation on line against undefeated Nebraska

NEW YORK (UPI) — Today is the day Oklahoma has been anticipating for two years. The questions is: Once the day is over will the Sooners feel the same way?

Oklahoma was put on NCAA probation two years ago; due to previous television commitments it was allowed to have its games televised last year but was forbidden to appear this season. Included in the prohibition was a two-year ban on going to any bowl games.

This game ends the penalty imposed on the Sooners, 11-0 last season but prevented from going anywhere, and Barry Switzer's team eagerly has anticipated going to the Orange Bowl as the Big Eight Conference co-champion.

But Nebraska has other plans—and has the credentials to think so.

Course record in golf

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Commissioner Pete Rozelle of the National Football League acknowledges that teams haven't suffered serious financial losses from anti-backout law but he still stands by it.

Rozelle appeared Friday before a Senate Commerce subcommittee to have had serious financial losses.

Only 14 of the entries broke par over the Lochmoor Country Club course Friday.

Miss Haynie, who finished sixth in the event last year, said she had "a remarkable round" in which she used "only 27 putts."

Tied in second place behind her with 68 were Jane Blacock, Pat Bradley and Millie Keefe.

Rozelle nevertheless urged deferral of the extension, noting a decrease of 150,674 season tickets since 1973, the year the anti-backout laws went into effect.

Pittsburgh goalie stars on return from minors

NEW YORK (UPI) — Michel Plasse, who has spent half this season in Hershey, Pa., the "Chocolate Capital of the World", brought a sweet mood to the Pittsburgh Penguins upon his return to the National Hockey League.

The Penguins had been winless in their last six games, managing only a 6-8 tie against the hapless California shutout Washington 2-0.

Rick Kehoe earned a shot off Atlanta defenseman Larry Carriere's skate and Pierre Larue, on a power play, broke the Penguins' goalless streak.

Plasse also scored in the second period, increasing Pittsburgh's lead to 3-0 and Lowell MacDonald closed out the Penguins scoring 3:21 after Curt Bennett tallied his 10th goal.

Vic Hadfield's 35-footer in the second period increased Pittsburgh's lead to 4-0 and Lowell MacDonald closed out the Penguins scoring 3:21 after Curt Bennett tallied his 10th goal.

In the WHA, rookie Mark Napier's goal with 16 seconds left gave Toronto its win over East Division leader Cincinnati after the Toros beat a five-goal lead — John Scella, Larry Lund and John Tonelli scored first goals.

Kilmer's shoulder hurts as 'Skins await Raiders

NEW YORK (UPI) — Leave it up to George Allen to try and win two games on the same day.

Allen's Washington Redskins trail the first-place St. Louis Cardinals by a game in the National Conference East.

Reserve guard Don Freeman erupted for 16 points in the final period to lead Los Angeles over Milwaukee, 128-116.

Learning what building is about

Manchester High School students are on top of the job as they observe the total construction process of a new house by U&R Construction Co. Students in the foreground are being told some of the details involved in the building project. These were among about 135 MHS students who spent one day recently exploring the functions of various businesses and industries in the community. Most of the students were seniors who plan to enter the labor field after high school. (Herald photo by Pinto)

Who better than young girls and boys can play young girls and boys?

Members of Manchester High School's Sock 'n' Buskin Drama Society are giving their best in "I Never Saw Another Butterfly" playing at the high school.

The play is based on a book of memories recorded in verse and drawings by children who passed for a time in Terezin, a concentration camp in Czechoslovakia during the second World War. Of several thousand children who passed through on their way to Auschwitz, only a few hundred survived.

The story is enacted through the recollections of Raja played magnificently by Sheila Boushee. It isn't long after her first few lines that a lump rises in your throat and stays there throughout the performance.

The amazing thing about this group of young actors is that every one has been honed to portray the effect of tragedy in their lives—the patience they learn, the tragedy they bear that shows in their faces, old, but too young for tears.

What director Lee Hay has so successfully achieved is the timing of their words and lines which are so slow and unhurried, difficult I would imagine considering the natural energy of youth.

Performed on thrust staging on the Bailey Auditorium stage, the action takes place on three vari-level platforms, bare except for a few props that are set up only for a particular scene. A few strands of crooked wire suggest the barbed compound barrier.

As Raja remembers, a voice over a loudspeaker announces the names, wages and dates of those who perished in imprisonment. Her delicate features quiver as she listens.

Other boys and girls, clutching their pouched possessions, pass through in huddled fearful groups, stopping awhile long enough to make friends, play some games, learn a little schooling and write their verses and draw pictures.

Their teacher is Irena whose responsibility is to give comfort, try to instill courage, and promote hope. Her quiet example is a bulwark for Raja. But one day, the teacher, too, is taken to Auschwitz. Playing a beautifully mature Irena is Birgitte Svendsen, MHS's American Field Service exchange student from Sweden.

There are some poignant scenes of Raja's family life before they were separated, particularly of the Sabbath meal when the mother played by Loyola Brannick lights the candles and blesses the meal.

There's another of a wedding between Raja's brother done by Dave Smith and the girl he meets in the camp.

Accompanying Raja's reminiscences at times, slides of appropriate scenes are flashed on the back wall along with slides of children's drawings expressing their life in Terezin.

These young people are perhaps not all that far away from their immediate childhood that they can acutely suppose what the real children of Terezin felt.

When the last character walks off the stage, the portent of the drama hangs there in dim light until you realize the play is finished. There are no curtain calls.

There is Jeff Smith who plays Honza, the boy with whom Raja falls in love and works on a small camp newsletter, and there are many others in the story who do superb performances of their singular or several lines in the intense human drama.

Tonight's final performance begins at 8. The door opens off the teacher's parking lot at 7:30 p.m.

Actress Claire Bloom as Emily Dickinson reads and recites a selection of poems and letters during a taping session in the studios of Connecticut Public Television in Hartford.

Claire Bloom visits area to tape poetry program

By JUNE TOMPKINS

British born actress Claire Bloom was in Hartford recently taping a program on Emily Dickinson, the poet.

A guest star appearing with The First Poetry Quartet, Miss Bloom appears in programs now in production for "Anyone for Tennyson?", the first national public television series devoted to poetry.

Among the distinguished personalities appearing in the series with Miss Bloom are Richard Kiley, Cyril Ritchard, Ruby Dee and George Plimpton.

The half-hour programs will premiere early in January on the Public Broadcasting Service (PBS) including Connecticut Public Television, Channel 24, Hartford.

Featured in The First Poetry Quartet are Paul Hecht, Jill Tanner, Cynthia Herman and George Backman. Jill Tanner is cast as Emily Dickinson's sister, Lavinia, in "The World of Emily Dickinson." Cynthia Herman plays her cousin, Louise Norcross, and George Backman is Thomas Higginson, the writer from whom Emily Dickinson sought advice on her poetry.

Miss Bloom made her debut at 15 with the Oxford Repertory Company playing juvenile leads. Just two years later, she played Ophelia in Paul Scofield's "Hamlet" at Stratford-upon-Avon followed by two London successes. Since then, her fame has carried her beyond the stage to movie, television and recording fame.

Commenting on her characterization of Emily Dickinson, Miss Bloom said "One is always so dissatisfied fearing not to look like the character, but always oneself."

Physically small, this great actress granted an interview during a recess of the taping session in Hartford wearing a colonial gown of a pale off-white brocade material with a fringed shawl drawn casually about her shoulders.

"I love Emily Dickinson's works and felt I would like to characterize her," said Miss Bloom.

Of the 1,775 poems Miss Dickinson wrote, the actress said she doesn't have a favorite. "There are so many beautiful ones."

The television presentation tries to present Miss Bloom as Emily Dickinson within the confines of her own household. From the study of her poetry and writings, Miss Bloom observed that Emily Dickinson "was terribly intelligent."

Among future roles, Miss Bloom would like to play the sister in "Cherry Orchard." She sees acting as "deeply therapeutic," and said if you don't lose yourself in a role, it's no fun.

Although she said she will soon be off to Hawaii to do a film, she hasn't definitely planned anything in the next year or so, because "it's so difficult to find a good new play, and so one returns to the classics."

The petite lady graciously drew her interview to a close and to a background of standing admirers, she quietly left the room to resume her taping session.

Stamps and coins

Gibraltar issues due soon

By RUSS MacKENDRICK

These Gibraltar Christmas stamps will be out Wednesday the 26th. They will be se-tenants, and all the same value — six pence. The designs show children: Girl praying with candle, boy with clinging tois, angel with lute, singer with guitar, a boy and lamb, and a boy with a little birdie.

Also just announced is the first gold coinage of the Rock. There will be a limited issue of three values — 25, 50 and 100 pounds. The largest will weigh 31.1 grams, .916 fine gold, price $272. They are to be struck by the Royal Mint and marketed by Spink & Son of London. If you purchase one of each, you will get the Gibraltar coat of arms dating from Ferdinand and Isabella, the Lady of Europa, and the traditional Lion with Key.

Gibraltar is not an island but a point of land jutting out from Spain. It vies with Pitcairn for being the smallest British land area having stamps. Contrary to TV impressions, the Rock is not being handed out in pieces by an insurance company. It remains intact since 1713 as a crown colony and a naval base.

But don't ever say "as solid as the Rock of Gibraltar" because it has been compared to a mammoth Swiss cheese and has 78 caverns and 30 miles of tunnels. One cave has a stage and seating for 1,000 in the audiences.

On one side of the Rock is an amazing water system — acres of galvanized iron sheeting laid to catch the rainfall and direct it to cisterns, for the use of the 30,000 residents.

The place is famous for its Barbary apes, golden-brown tail-less monkeys first left by the Moors centuries ago. These creatures are numbered, given pet names, and allotted sixpence a day for food. They are a national mascot, like the rocks at the Tower of London, and during the war Churchill had a few more slipped in to sweeten the pot.

There have been over 300 stamp issues, starting in 1886, with pictorials since 1930. One good set is the 1967 ship series with 15 designs. They show a Moorish xebe, an atomic sub, Nelson's flagship, and end with the high value being the ghostly Mary Celeste.

This last was a brigantine that left New York for Genoa in November, 1872. It was found abandoned but still seaworthy 300 miles off Portugal the following month. It was brought to Gibraltar by sailors from a passing vessel. No trace was ever found of the captain, Ben Briggs, his wife, Sarah, the child, Sophia, or the seven crewmen — one of the great mysteries in the annals of the sea.

A disappointment
The old Ike dollar has been a disappointment; they even had to melt some down. It is so unfamiliar in circulation that when a toll collector got four of them at once he took the guy's license number and reported the incident ("Sump'n funny going on here!")

The new Bicentennial Types I and II will be easy to tell apart. Type II will have a larger hole in the "O" in "One" and a shorter tail on the last "S" in "States." Coin World has pictures of this.

Vibrant starfish
Complaining that the eagle looked like a wounded quail, Mr. Rockefeller redesigned the vice-presidential seal. Now it looks like a vibrant starfish.

Society meeting
The Manchester Philatelic Society will meet at Mott's Community Hall, 7 to 10 p.m. on Tuesday, Nov. 25. Circuit books are always available and visitors are welcome. A program schedule is being set up for the rest of the season.

19th Century works in show at Atheneum

In the middle of the 19th Century French artists began to take a fresh look at the world around them. Formal, conventional portrayals of the social scene and a reliance on mythology for subject matter gave way to views of real life in the natural world and at all levels of society.

The Prints and Drawings Gallery at the Wadsworth Atheneum in Hartford now has on display a selection of 20 19th Century French drawings and watercolors by some of the most illustrious and influential of these artists, including Daumier, Cezanne, Courbet and Renoir. All are from Atheneum collections and the exhibition was organized by Mark Rosenthal, the Atheneum's assistant curator of paintings.

It was during this period of change that artists began to be regarded as rebels and outcasts. Prior to that and, to some extent, well into the late 19th Century, artists of the French academic tradition had faithfully recorded society as it wished to see itself.

Artists also began to exhibit the quick sketches and preliminary drawings that were mandatory in academic training but not previously thought to be of exhibition quality as "finished" works. Now, artists such as Daumier presented drawings and watercolors as completed works, revealing the basic elements of art — line, shape and color — in a direct way that enchanted some viewers and enraged others.

Among the acknowledged masterpieces in this small but elegant exhibition are Courbet's "Self-Portrait," "Mountebanks," by Daumier, "Bather" by Cezanne and Renoir's study for his great bather painting. While some of the other works are not as well-known as these, they are nevertheless gems of the genre and include works by Guy, Gericault, Delacroix, Millet and Boudin.

The Atheneum's Prints and Drawings Gallery presents small exhibitions from Atheneum collections for period ranging from three to six months and is located in one of the alcoves adjacent to Tapestry Hall.

Museum hours are Tuesday through Saturday from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. and Sunday from 1 to 5 p.m. The museum's voluntary admission policy suggests fees of $1 for adults and 50 cents for those aged 12 to 18.

What has happened to the old-fashioned, spine-tingling whodunit is a mystery to me after reading five of the latest.

Since the group includes Agatha Christie's "Curtain" written during the 1940s but never before published, perhaps it's not a question of age but quality.

Satisfaction, of course, depends upon your definition of a good mystery. If the book is one of a series incorporating a personality-detective (and all of these are), then the author is on the line for a good puzzle, interesting situations and characters, and what ought to pass for a reasonably unexpected but credible solution.

It is disappointing not to be able to recommend the company of the most recently issued Hercule Poirot, Guy Silvestri, Travis McGee, or Simon Templar books. Henry Tibbett proves more reliable, if not particularly exciting.

If you're considering picking up an Agatha Christie whodunit for the first time, you should certainly not begin with "Curtain," the much-heralded last case of Hercule Poirot. The book, which finds Poirot and his old friend Hastings back at Styles Court, where they solved their first case together 55 years ago, is a fizzle.

BLACK WIDOWER, by Patricia Moyes (Holt, Rinehart & Winston, 212 pages.)

CATCH THE SAINT, by Leslie Charteris (Doubleday & Co., 153 pages.)

CURTAIN, by Agatha Christie (Dodd, Mead & Co., Inc., 238 pages.)

OPERAT ON ALCESTIS, by Maggie Rennett (Prentice-Hall, Inc., 244 pages.)

THE DEEP BLUE GOOD-BY, by John D. MacDonald (J. B. Lippincott Co., 200 pages.)

The reader is unfairly misled from the beginning, and her obligatory postscript — Poirot's deathbed letter explaining all — is unconvincing. As usual in a Christie mystery, you'll be wrong. But this time it is not YOUR little grey cells at fault, "mon ami."

The book fails because Poirot's last case is based on the "insight" that each of us is both a potential murderer and a victim. Although Dame Agatha succeeds in making her psychological point, her vehicle is weak. The reader feels cheated because the book is unsuccessful as a mystery and because it is at odds with the career and character of Poirot, established for over half a century.

In short, "Curtain" is recommended only for long-time Poirot fans with a strong sense of duty to see him to the end.

Detective Lt. Guy Silvestri, an introspective, college-educated cop, makes his second bow in "Operation Alceste" by Maggie Rennett. Instead of a puzzle, we have a complicated, onion-like plot that begins when a counter-culture wife decides to take the rap for her husband's part in a raid on a conservative biology professor's home.

Enter New York drama critic Herkimer, ex-anthropology instructor, friend of all and the book's main narrator. Prodded by Silvestri, Herkimer unravels enough of the goings-on to free the wife and unveil the presence of several government agencies.

The author has fun taking us through a maze of action, women, sex, and violence delivered in short, punchy sentences reminiscent of "See Dick run." The action is interspersed with comments and observations by McGee, who has the personal philosophy of a world-weary 19-year-old.

If you like adventures, but shy away from those such as McGee, who get their information by scalding people in shower booths, you'll be happy to know that Simon Templar, the popular Saint of yesterday's books and today's television, has been resurrected in "Catch the Saint." In the book's two stories, the insouciant Saint matches wits with a fraudulent art dealer in London and a syndicate boss in Philadelphia. The writing is nothing you'd want to linger over; the characters are underdeveloped, and the running commentary on the Saint's good looks and wit is annoying. But that's been true since the Saint became a hit 40 years ago, and his readiness to pursue justice at any cost is still appealing. Let's welcome him back to better books.

Operation Alceste" is complete with murky diagrams of who-stood-where-when, and a convoluted style that is an instant turn-off for those of us who like to unravel plots and not language.

A more classic whodunit, Patricia Moyes' "Black Widower" brings Scotland Yard's Chief Superintendent Henry Tibbett to Washington, D.C. He has been asked to solve the murder of the wife of the Tampacan ambassador who's renegotiating U.S. rights to a naval base located on his Caribbean island. Moyes skillfully blends personalities and politics as the plot jumps from Washington to Tampa and back to Washington for the denouement. As in previous Tibbett volumes, there are some delightful characters, and it's nice to have the comfortable Henry and his wife Emmy back in action.

From classic detectives, we move to two popular adventurers. John D. MacDonald's "Travis McGee makes the Florida scene again in a newly issued hardback edition of "The Deep Good-by." As usual there's lots of action, women, sex, and violence delivered in short, punchy sentences reminiscent of "See Dick run." The action is interspersed with comments and observations by McGee, who has the personal philosophy of a world-weary 19-year-old.

In the book's two stories, the insouciant Saint matches wits with a fraudulent art dealer in London and a syndicate boss in Philadelphia. The writing is nothing you'd want to linger over; the characters are underdeveloped, and the running commentary on the Saint's good looks and wit is annoying. But that's been true since the Saint became a hit 40 years ago, and his readiness to pursue justice at any cost is still appealing. Let's welcome him back to better books.

The author has fun taking us through a maze of action, women, sex, and violence delivered in short, punchy sentences reminiscent of "See Dick run." The action is interspersed with comments and observations by McGee, who has the personal philosophy of a world-weary 19-year-old.

If you like adventures, but shy away from those such as McGee, who get their information by scalding people in shower booths, you'll be happy to know that Simon Templar, the popular Saint of yesterday's books and today's television, has been resurrected in "Catch the Saint." Collecting: 'Milk glass' is misused

By JEAN BARNES

Covered bowl in opaque white glass is typical of whimsical designs used during the Victorian era. Stark white, lustrous appearance and lacy border added to its beauty. (NEA photo)

Browsing through a friend's collection, watching her pull one treasure after another from cabinets, is educational and a fun way to spend an hour or two.

Susie L. is a collector whose interests are variegated. Although her pieces range from Egyptian artifacts to illuminated manuscripts, it is evident that milk glass of the Victorian era is her special favorite.

Milk glass is a white opaque glass, probably originating as an imitation of Chinese porcelain. It has been produced since the early 19th century and was especially popular in the 1870s and 1880s when it was produced commercially on a large scale.

The term "milk glass" has been greatly abused and is often used to describe various colors of opaque glass. There is no such thing as blue milk glass or black, green or yellow milk glass. For clarity it would be wise to use the term "opaque white" glass.

If opaque white glass was made in great quantity in the Victorian era, it has been copied in equal proportions today, my friend pointed out. "So much of it has been reproduced with such faithful quality that it is often difficult to tell the old from the new."

The beauty of this glass is to be found in its rich, satiny appearance. Its charm lies in its whimsical designs—barnyard animals, patriotic motifs and unusual shadows.

Various pieces placed side by side will show the "coloring" of opaque white glass. Some of it will have a thin, creamy color, others may have a hint of pink or blue. It is the stark, dead white which is considered the finest quality, however.

Road Race

Amby Burfoot, course record holder, defending champion and winner of six Five Mile Road Races in the past 12 years - fresh as a daisy after 1974 triumph.

Manchester will be the scene Thanksgiving morning of New England's largest road race when more than 700 men, women and children will set out to conquer the field in the 39th Five Mile Road Race.

Sponsored for the 25th year by Nutmeg Forest, Tall Cedars of Lebanon, the race starts at 10:30 on Main Street and a crowd of between 10,000 and 12,000 is expected.

Many of the country's leading long distance runners will compete, including defending champion Amby Burfoot, Billy Rodgers, winner of the Boston Marathon last spring, and John Vitale. All are likely 1976 Olympic team members.

All proceeds will enter the Muscular Dystrophy Fund, national objective of the Tall Cedars.

The best areas to view the race: Main St., opposite School, which is the starting and finishing point; top area on Highland St., East Center St., and at the Center near the library on Main St.

More comedy and cops in sight for '76

NEW YORK (UPI) — NBC is trying to cure its television rating ills by switching doctors and adding cops and comedy.

The network is planning to drop both "Medical Story," one of the few anthologies left on television, and "Doctors Hospital."

Never fear, medical help remains near. Danny Thomas returns to the small screen as a crusty, kindly doctor in a new series called "The Practice."

Another new NBC entry is a police show with Jack Warden in the starring role of "Jigsaw John," based on a Los Angeles Police Department investigator called John St. John.

The latest from the Norman Lear funny factory sounds like Lear is putting the industry on and laughing all the way to the bank. It's called "The Dumpings," starring James Coco and Geraldine Brooks as a couple who operate a luncheonette in New York City. Norman Lear also has a new CBS show coming up — "One Day at a Time," about a woman and her two children living in an apartment in Indianapolis.

Also bowing in will be "The Rich Little Show," a weekly variety program.

ABC is expected to come up with new season announcements later this week. As of now, here's how NBC and CBS HAVE JUGGLED THEIR SCHEDULES:

Monday: CBS stands pat on its night of highest rating, with NBC coming in with the Rich Little show from 8-9 p.m., Eastern time, followed by "Joe Forrester," switched over from Tuesdays, ending up with "Jigsaw John." The new schedule goes into effect Feb. 2.

Tuesday: CBS moves M-A-SH back to Tuesday, in the 9-9:30 spot on Dec. 2, with the new Lear sitcom following, and "Switch" switched to 10 p.m. NBC is leaving Tuesday night alone, except for the 10-11 spot, with a yet-to-be-announced program rumored to be a police plot.

Wednesday: NBC moves "Chico and the Man" from Thursday to 9 p.m., Wednesday and follows it up with "The Dumplings" on Jan. 28, knocking off "Doctors Hospital." CBS has one previously announced change — "The Blue Knight" takes over for "Kate McShane" as of Dec. 17.

Thursday: NBC airs "Grady," a "Sanford and Son" spinoff, on Dec. 4, followed by "The Cop and the Kid," about a policeman who takes under his wing a black juvenile delinquent. On Jan. 22

"Medical Story" is out in favor of NBC Thursday Night at the Movies. CBS is following "The Waltons" with "Hawaii 5-O" at 9 and "Barnaby Jones" at 10 p.m., as of Dec. 4.

Friday: NBC's only change is "The Practice," to go in the 8:30-9 p.m. slot, while CBS is going with a Friday night movie.

Weekend: Saturday remains unchanged while Sunday picks up NBC's "Ellery Queen" in the 8-9 spot, and CBS is adding a Sunday edition of the weekend news from 6:30-7, followed by "60 Minutes" from 7-8 p.m.

The big picture on the small screen is that out of 17 new shows this season on CBS and NBC, 10 have been canceled and seven are hanging on. That isn't even 500 ball.

Ask Kleiner

By Dick Kleiner

DEAR DICK: I am curious about Kate Smith, as I am a staunch fan of hers and always will be. Is she married or has she ever been married? — MRS. EMMA CHAVEZ, Pueblo, Colo.

Kate welcomes your staunchness. Performers need all the staunch fans they can get. Miss Smith is still a bachelor girl; she has never been married.

DEAR DICK: Could you please tell me where I could purchase a tape of the theme from S.W.A.T.? And could you tell me please if Mark Shera is really Italian, and is that his real name? — A READER, Noblesville, Ind.

The theme from S.W.A.T. has not been recorded, so purchasing it will be tough. As for Mark Shera, that's his real name and he's not Italian, he's Jewish.

DEAR DICK: Could you please tell me what became of Buford Pusser's children? How old are they now? I mean his real children. Where are they living now? — C.A., Mobile, Ala.

The late, great lawman left two children. His wife had others by another marriage, but I assume you mean just Buford's. His son, Michael, is 20, married and off on his own somewhere. His daughter, Dwana, 14, is living in Adamsville, Tenn., with Buford's parents.

DEAR DICK: I want to become a fashion designer and go to college for it. But I have designed something for Cher. I don't know how to get it to her. Could you tell me how? — JANINE RANELIN, Steubenville, Ohio.

Don't aim so high so fast. Cher has a platoon of professional designers, headed by Bob Mackie, who turn out her outfits. Design, rather, for yourself and your friends first. And, of course, fulfill your plan and go to college and then see what happens.

DEAR DICK: Whatever happened to Alberta Grant and Alan Feinstein, who played Liz and Jim Fields on Edge of Night? Are either or both of them expected to return to the series? — A FAN, St. Albans, Vt.

Both of them, according to CBS, left the show to pursue their own careers. Miss Grant is working in New York and Feinstein came to Hollywood. He did a pilot (Super Cops) which didn't sell. The characters they played were not killed off, so they may be brought back with other actors.

DEAR DICK: A few years ago, there was a western on TV with Walter Brennan and Dick Rambo. It was about a boy searching for his father, an outlaw. Could you please tell me the name of the show? — GUY PRICE, Dixon, Ill.

That was The Guns of Will Sonnett.

DEAR DICK: Was there ever a movie called "The Diary of Anne Frank?" If so, who played Anne Frank and what year was the movie made? — IRITA TEW, Mobile, Ala.

Yes, there was a movie called "The Diary of Anne Frank" and it was a good one. Millie Perkins played Anne Frank in the '59 film.

DEAR DICK: Could you tell me if the man who plays Steve Austin on The Six Million Dollar Man is married and, if he is, who to? — KRISTIN MEYERS, Lethbridge, Alta., Can.

Yes, Lee Majors, who plays Austin, is married. His wife, model-actress Farrah Fawcett, now calls herself Farrah Fawcett-Majors. (If she had married Dr. Leakey, would she be Fawcett-Leakey?)

Atheneum has Yule exhibits

The annual holiday season exhibit in the Hartford Wadsworth Atheneum's "Christmas in the Goodwin Parlor" opens Friday and will continue on view through Dec. 29.

The Goodwin Parlor, located on the first floor of the museum, was originally the parlor in the Goodwin mansion on Woodland St., Hartford, which was demolished in 1939. The parlor with all its furnishings was then brought to the Atheneum and is the scene of changing exhibitions of Victorian costume throughout the year.

City to view classic film

The American Film Institute has announced Hartford is one of 12 cities selected as sites for showings of film classics during 1976.

The tour is being financed by a grant from Exxon Corp. and will feature new 35mm prints of scenes from 24 feature films in three programs.

The dates of the AFI tours and locations of the screenings will be announced soon.

Coming to Vernon

Dorothy Silverherz, a former Ellington resident and graduate of Rockville High School, will be the lead dancer when the Connecticut Regional Ballet Company performs Dec. 4 at the Middle School in Vernon. The Girls' Athletic Activities Club of Rockville High will sponsor the event. Selections will include, "The Graduation Ball," and "The Fast Pas de Deux," with partner Larry Ensign. Miss Silverherz, during her junior year in high school, appeared on Broadway in "Me and Juliet." She has also played solo parts with the William Burdick and Martha Myers Concert Companies, the City Center Opera Ballet, and toured with "Oklahoma." She is co-director of the Connecticut ballet. For ticket information call 875-7007.

Senior recital planned

Mrs. Barbara Glenister of Vernon will perform Monday at 8:15 p.m. in a senior student piano recital in Von der Mehden Recital Hall at University of Connecticut in Storrs. The event is free and open to the public.

Mrs. Glenister is a music education major. A piano student of Professor Leonard Seeber, she has also played bassoon in the Concert Band and flute in the Campus Community Band. She has performed in several student recitals and teaches private piano in Vernon.

Season program set

Music by Carr, Chadwick, Tchaikovsky and Koussevitsky will be featured Monday when the Hartford Civic Orchestra begins its 1975-1976 season. The concert will be held at The Hartford Insurance Group Auditorium in Hartford. Further information is available by calling 246-2588.

Other concerts scheduled this season: Feb. 21, music by Beethoven and Stravinsky; and May 13, music by Mozart, Rossini and J.S. Bach.

Taped for collection

The Hartford Stage Company production of Edward Albee's "All Over," directed by Paul Weidner, has been recorded on videotape by the New York Public Library's Theatre Collection at Lincoln Center.

The tape was made during a matinee performance earlier this month.

The New York Public Library is one of the main repositories of Albee's papers and materials. Its collections are available to theater researchers, students and professionals.

Gallery talks planned

The New Haven Colony Historical Society and the Antique Arms Collectors Association of Connecticut have scheduled a series of gallery talks at the historical society's museum, 114 Whitney Ave., New Haven.

Among docents involved in the project is Tom Reilly of Manchester.

Tours are conducted 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday through Friday and 2 to 5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday. Admission is free. The museum is closed on Monday.
