News summary

Compiled from United Press International

State

GROTON — Lobster fishermen and Navy submarines are getting in each other's way in the crowded waters of eastern Long Island Sound and both are coming out losers. Navy and Coast Guard officials and lobstermen were to meet today to re-establish a channel for free submarine passage.

STRATFORD — Police were looking for two men today in the death of Andrew Fetko, 34, a Bridgeport cab driver, who was shot and killed in an apparent holdup attempt Saturday night.

Regional

BOSTON — The Federal Reserve bank of Boston reports the region is continuing its slow economic recovery.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. — Fifteen newly elected mayors went to school this weekend to learn how to do their job. While at Harvard University they agreed their biggest problems were lack of money and jobs in their cities.

WALTHAM, Mass. — A wiretapping and bugging school for law enforcement officers has been operated by a company which also sells eavesdropping equipment to agencies which legally can't use it, the federal wiretap commission has reported.

National

WASHINGTON — Postmaster General Benjamin Bailar is considering dropping Saturday mail deliveries and special delivery along with cutting back on employee overtime and closing of some small, unprofitable post offices. He said the service is losing $200 million a month and the rate increases starting Dec. 28 will wipe out the deficit but not reduce its accumulated debt of $1.5 billion.

NEW YORK — The site of the long-awaited John F. Kennedy Library, successfully opposed by Cambridge, Mass. environmentalists, but eagerly sought by a variety of groups, is to be decided today.

ATLANTA — President Ford asked Alabama Gov. George Wallace to speak in support of American foreign policy during Wallace's two-week tour of Europe in October, the Atlanta Constitution reported today.

WASHINGTON — President Ford will meet during the day with U. N. Ambassador Daniel Patrick Moynihan, whose outspokenness has drawn criticism from numerous U. N. delegates. Moynihan has also told friends he is upset by lack of support from the White House.

International

PRIOLO, Sicily — The U. S. guided missile cruiser Belknap, its superstructure sheared off in a mid-sea collision with the carrier John F. Kennedy late Saturday, lumbered into port today under tow. Four men, three from the Belknap and one from the carrier, were killed and 45 others hurt. Four Belknap crewmen are missing in the Ionian Sea.

LISBON, Portugal — President Francisco da Costa Gomes defied radical threats today and summoned the Revolutionary Council into emergency session to discuss a new compromise aimed at ending the five-day-old anarchy strike by the government.

Rikers Island inmates demanding reforms

NEW YORK (UPI) — Inmates at the Rikers Island Mens House of Detention today released two of five hostages seized to back demands for prison reform.

Hundreds of inmates armed with metal spears, mop handles and brooms overpowered their guards and seized five of the facility's seven cell blocks Sunday night.

The only injury was to Warden Louis Greco when a tear gas shell exploded in his hand. The inmates made no threats against the hostages.

The inmates still held three other correction officers in two separate cell blocks under their control.

One of the released correction officers, Richard Sealey, describing his capture by inmates, said, "They put a blanket over my head — took me up to the cell and locked me in."

One of the demands of the prisoners was to meet with Bronx District Attorney Mario Merola. He arrived at the facility at 7:30 a.m. and immediately began informal talks with the inmates who are demanding amnesty, an end to overcrowding, better food, elimination of mice and roaches, better medical attention and other changes.

There were conflicting reports on the number of inmates actually taking part in the seizure. The estimates ranged from 600 to 1,600. The 42-year-old facility located in the East River between Laguardia Airport to the south and Bronx County to the north currently houses about 1,900 inmates.

The house of detention is used to hold prisoners awaiting trial and others already convicted and awaiting transfer to state prisons.

Extreme precautions were taken to prevent a breakout. Helicopters circled overhead while police boats patrolled the waters around the island. The only bridge leading to the island was sealed off.

The Correction Department massed hundreds of police and correction officers near the prison with shotguns, bulletproof vests, gas masks, helmets and nightsticks, prepared to storm the facility if necessary.

Syria adds conditions to renewal of mandate

By United Press International
U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim briefed Israeli leaders today on "concrete" Syrian suggestions on the Middle East situation and possible renewal of the U.N. peace-keeping mandate on the Golan Heights.

Israeli diplomatic sources said Waldheim informed Israeli officials that Syria was attaching a number of conditions to renewal of the mandate and that these conditions were unacceptable.

The sources gave no details on the Syrian conditions, but said they concern the Palestinian question and possible negotiations about further peace moves in the region.

Shortly before Waldheim's arrival, high level Israeli government sources said the United States has secretly pledged not to pressure Israel for any more than cosmetic concessions in possible talks with Syria on a Golan Heights accord, high level Israeli government sources said.

Diplomatic sources said the 90-minute meeting between Waldheim and Foreign Minister Yigal Allon began with "unpleasantness" but later got down to the business of the mandate renewal.

The U.N. peace-keeping mandate expires Nov. 30.

One government official said that at the beginning of the meeting Allon told Waldheim in a frank manner that Israel would limit itself in the talks to the renewal of the Golan mandate.

The official also said Allon expressed disappointment that Waldheim had met in Damascus with Yasser Arafat, chief of the Palestine Liberation Organization, especially because the meeting had come within three days of an Arab guerrilla attack which left three persons dead at an Israeli settlement in the Golan. The diplomatic sources said Waldheim replied that he had dissociated himself from acts of terrorism but that U.N. resolutions bound him to maintain contacts with the PLO. They said Waldheim admitted, however, that the timing of the Arafat meeting was unfortunate.

Town Counsel Broneill declines reappointment

William M. Broneill, Manchester town counsel for the past two years and assistant town counsel for the two years preceding, has declined reappointment for another two years.

He wrote in a letter to Mayor Matt Moriarty Jr., "The pressures of my private practice and the demands upon my time by recent and pending business investments make it impossible for me to devote the amount of time necessary to that position."

William M. Broneill

When the Board of Directors meets Tuesday night to make its appointments to a variety of offices, it is expected to name Victor I. Moses town counsel for 1975-77. Moses has been assistant town counsel for the past two years. The name of the new assistant hasn't surfaced and the appointment may be delayed. Broneill and Moses are Democrats.

The town counsel receives $11,000 annually and the assistant $7,000. Both positions are considered part-time.

In his letter to Moriarty, Broneill notes, "The burdens of the town counsel's office have increased greatly in the past several years and I would urge the Board of Directors to give further consideration to my suggestion that the staff of the office be increased, either by way of one additional part-time assistant or by the creation of a full-time position."

He concludes, "I would be happy to do whatever might be necessary to aid my successor and the Board of Directors in making the transition go as smoothly as possible and I would be pleased to serve the town in some capacity in the future as time and the situation might permit."

Broneill, 35, is a Manchester native and is in private practice, with a law office on Main St. He is a 1958 graduate of Manchester High School, a 1963 graduate of the University of Connecticut and a 1966 graduate of UConn's School of Law. He and his wife, the former Nancy Niles of Yakima, Wash., live at 51 Princeton St.

State seeking revocation of jai alai promoter's bond

HARTFORD (UPI) — The state goes to court today to ask the $25,000 bond for jai alai promoter David Friend — convicted of refusing to answer a grand jury's questions — be revoked.

Chief State's Attorney Joseph Gormley said Sunday he would appeal Superior Court Judge Harold Dean's decision Friday freeing Friend, 39, a former Florida banker and a central figure in state and federal investigations.

A one-man grand jury investigating the granting of a Connecticut gaming permit to Friend's firm was expected to hear more testimony and conclude its activities at the end of the day or later in the week, UPI has learned.

Statewide organized crime investigators say Friend told them he paid $250,000 in cash to the late John M. Bailey, a former Democratic national chairman, for help in getting the permit. Bailey's family and former law partner have disputed Friend.

Meanwhile, with the state gaming commission giving no word on when it may decide to revoke the license for the fronton, some stockholders may try to get Friend to step down as president of the jai alai firm.

The Hartford Courant reported Sunday that some of the 18 stockholders of Connecticut Sports Enterprises, Inc., believe the firm will have a better chance of retaining its gaming permit if Friend is out.

New Haven teacher strike ends

NEW HAVEN (UPI) — New Haven teachers late Sunday night voted to end a two-week walkout and accept a two-year contract with small pay raises and reductions in the size of classes.

The vote ratified a tentative agreement by union leaders reached earlier in the day in weekend negotiations with the school board. The vote was 431-101.

In addition they passed a resolution condemning the school board for placing the children's safety in jeopardy by not closing schools immediately. They also condemned the board for recommending the jailing of teachers.

They called the board's actions "deplorable, irresponsible and inexcusable."

"Although economic gains were not as high as we hoped, the potential of the teachers has been revealed," a union spokesman said of the agreement.

Although the strike ended, schools will not open until Tuesday, said Superintendent of Schools George A. Barbarito.

Seventy-eight teachers jailed Tuesday for defying a court order to end their strike must pay their fines and agree to return to work in order to be freed. The 12 members of the union negotiating team must also go through the courts to go free.

"Many teachers have said they would not go back to school while the others are jailed," a spokeswoman for the teachers said.

Both the jailed teachers and the New Haven Federation of Teachers have been under heavy fines which must be paid. Superior Court Judge George A. Saden fined individual teachers $250 a day and the union $5,000 a day for defying his injunction.

Specific terms of the agreement include a 1.6 per cent pay increments in the first year plus a $200 raise. Teachers at the 16-year maximum pay level will get a $300 one-time bonus. The second year provides an across-the-board increase of 4 per cent.

Class sizes will be limited to 31 pupils this year except in those classes that already have more than 31. Next year there will be a maximum of 29 pupils in kindergarten through second grade classrooms and no more than 30 in grades three to 12.

There is also a dental insurance program in the second year.

Teachers had asked for a three-year contract with higher pay provisions and a maximum class size of 25 pupils.

The settlement appeared to head off a threatened sympathy strike called for Tuesday by 30,000 union workers of the Greater New Haven Central Labor Council.

Vincent Sirabella said leaders of the council's 92 unions voted unanimously Friday to stage a rally on the New Haven green if the strike was not settled and the teachers released from jail.

Share with needy

Food and money to be used for Manchester residents in need are being brought to the altar at South Unite Methodist Church by some of the more than 720 people attending the ecumenical Community Thanksgiving Service Sunday night. More than 12 boxes were filled with food, which will be used to stock Manchester's Emergency Pantry. The gifts of money will go to the annual Seasonal Sharing Appeal to assist those in need during the holiday season. (Herald photo by Dunn)

NYC anti-default plan faces tough going

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — State legislative leaders today still were trying to get President Ford to change his mind and back federal aid for New York City. Their chosen path — $205 million in increased city taxes.

It was not proving an easy road. The leaders spent the weekend dealing with an impasse they hoped to resolve when the legislature resumed at noon today.

To complicate things, New York City banks, holding $500 million in short-term city debt, were reported pressing for increased state taxes as well.

The banks were said to feel that their agreement not to press for immediate payment of the notes had been voided by Gov. Hugh Carey's decision to separate proposals for state and city tax hikes. But a Carey spokesman said Sunday night, however, he was unaware of any specific ultimatum.

The city tax package is intended to demonstrate to Ford that New York is doing its best to solve its fiscal problems. But it ran aground in the legislature Saturday when Republicans, liberal Democrats and black and Hispanic lawmakers jumped ship.

There were few visible signs that Carey or assembly speaker Stanley Steingut, both Democrats, had made much progress in clearing the roadblocks.

A group of 150 visitors to Connecticut from its sister state, Paraiba in Brazil, arrived at Bradley International Airport Saturday for a six day stay. At the airport the guests were matched up with their host families. Several are staying in Manchester and surrounding towns. The visitors, most of them in professional occupations, are here to learn whatever might be of value to them in the development of pioneer territory in their state in northeastern Brazil. (Herald photo by Pinto)

MCC plans to offer special courses

College credit is available in an intensive winter intersession at Manchester Community College. MCC, through the Community Services Division, is offering the intersession beginning Dec. 29 and ending with exams Jan. 16. Each of the nine credit courses being offered will meet three to four hours a day. It will be the first time the special session is offered but the idea is not new.

Union leader alleges ARC made profit

HARTFORD (UPI) — A leader of unionized blood collection workers striking against the Hartford area Red Cross charged the non-profit organization showed almost a 12 percent profit in fiscal 1974. Albert Casale, representative for Council 4, American Federation of State County and Municipal Employees, said Sunday the Greater Hartford Red Cross was violating its legal obligation to submit a financial report for the year ending June 30, 1975. "The report, which was due not later than Oct. 1, 1975, as required by the State of Connecticut Charitable Organizations Act, has yet to be filed," Casale said. Casale said the striking workers were demanding the Department of Consumer Protection act to enforce the law and compel the Red Cross to report.

Board of Education to tour Illing School

Manchester's Board of Education will meet at 7:30 tonight for a tour of Illing Junior High School and a half hour later the board will open its meeting with a comment session for taxpayers. The tour and comment sessions are conducted the fourth Monday of each month in one of the town's public schools. After the comment session, the board's agenda includes: Reports from School Supt. James Kennedy on junior high school curriculum and a proposed policy on freedom of information. Reports from school board committees: Buildings and sites, curriculum and instruction, and personnel and finance. Action on proposed policies dealing with employee conflict of interest, physical examinations for prospective employees, and administration of medicine to students. Approval of the Bentley School intercom system and approval of wachout accounts for vocational education and Head Start programs. Personnel actions, including one leave of absence, one resignation, and three appointments.

Manchester recitalist given standing ovation

fulfillment of the requirements for her Bachelor of Music degree from the university's Hartt School of Music. After intermission, she sang "Concordia" in a cappella, from Il Trovatore by Verdi, and three selections from Les Nuits d'Éte by Hector Berlioz (1803-1869), accompanied only by her pianist, Mark Niewirth. She wound up her formal program with the works by modern composer Robert Fleming, The Confession Stone from Songs of Mary. Miss Paups received a standing and prolonged ovation and sang an encore—a Latvian folk song. The applause brought her out for another encore—a Latvian folk song. Then, in answer to list another standing ovation, she came on stage with her guitar and called her father and brother from the audience. Both accomplished singers, they joined her in harmony in a light folk song that had the audience applauding throughout. Illa Paups' recital Saturday night was to be reported as a tremendous success. It would be wise to keep tabs on her singing career.

Personality spotlight: Ronald Reagan: Presidential candidate

By United Press International
Ronald Reagan first caught the political bug in 1966 at the age of 55, after 29 years in Hollywood movies and on television. On his first time out, he went for California's top job — the governorship — and won by a landslide plurality of more than one million votes. Two years later, in 1968, he caught presidential fever and challenged Richard Nixon for the Republican nomination. There he had less luck. Nixon swamped both Reagan and Nelson Rockefeller at the convention. Political pros said then that Reagan started his campaign far too late. The same word was heard this year — that Reagan hesitated too long in making a formal declaration while Ford nailed down commitments among GOP leaders. But Reagan has been far from idle since he left the governor's mansion in January. He has made hundreds of speeches across the nation in the past 10 months. He has a daily radio program, carried by more than 300 stations, on which to give his views on everything from gun control to the Russian economy. He also has written a weekly column for more than 200 newspapers. Reagan has been acknowledged one of the most polished speakers among modern American politicians, going back to the days when he first supported Barry Goldwater for president and lambasted big government. Today, he laces his conservative viewpoints with generous dollops of humor. "Federal researchers have learned what makes people happy," he said recently. "They learned that young people are happier than old people. People with money are happier than people without and people who are well are happier than people who are sick — a $249,000 grant to learn that it's better to be young, rich and healthy than old, poor and sick." During his acting career, Reagan appeared in more than 50 movies. Many were Grade B affairs, but he was praised for his performance in "Dark Victory" with Bette Davis and his role as a young man whose legs were amputated in "King's Row." In his early years Reagan was a Franklin Roosevelt Democrat and militant union worker for the Screen Actors Guild. In the early 1960s he changed parties and went on to become a favorite of the GOP's conservative wing. Reagan married actress Jane Wyman in 1940. They were divorced eight years later. They had two children, Maureen and Michael. In 1952 he married Nancy Davis, an aspiring actress and daughter of a wealthy Chicago surgeon. They have two children, Patricia and Ronald II.

IT'S OUR POLICY

By Ray Tanguay, C.L.U. CERTIFIED INSURANCE CONSULTANT
Sure, there's a good strong lock on your front door. But what about windows and sliding doors? How are they protected?

A bromeliad or metal rod in the track of your patio sliding door will keep it from opening, even if a burglar should pick the lock.

A large bolt or nail in a slanted hole will keep sliding doors closed. A few extra holes enable you to open the door up to 90 degrees for ventilation. Same idea works for windows, but keep opening smaller.

Screen placed in upper track of patio door will keep frames from fitting the door off. Use this idea for sliding windows, too.

Door hinges makes a locking hole that will hold a sash window shut. Screw it to edge of window — open hinge fast to open window, hold it to keep shut.

Arabs can't buy U.S. sympathies

The Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith has revealed a $45-million-a-year Arab "master plan" for an "anti-Israel and anti-Jewish propaganda and lobbying offensive" in the United States aimed at such "key targets" as legislators, the mass media, business, labor, college campuses, churches and the black community.

Arab governments are putting $30 million into the pot, says the league, with the other $15 million annually slated to come from Arab petroleum exporting companies. Supplementing Arab overseas funds being spent here is support from a "complex array" of pro-Arab organizations, publications, U.S. oil companies, an estimated one million Arab-American and other individuals.

"The American people should be made aware that so much money is being used by Arab governments to try to indoctrinate them," says B'nai B'rith national chairman Seymour Graubard.

Indeed they should be, especially if there is (as the league seems to imply there is) something deceitful or underhanded about the campaign and it is designed (as the league claims it is) as a sophisticated new form of warfare against the Jewish state rather than as a legitimate effort to put forward the Arab side.

How much money the pro-Israel lobby has spent in the United States over the years — and to call it a lobby is by no means to denigrate it — is anybody's guess. Maybe not as much as the Arabs plan to, but then the pro-Israelis have had no competition up to now.

One would like to think, however, that America's support of Israel is not the result of indoctrination but is simply due to the fact that most Americans believe that Israel's cause is just and that the continued existence of this tiny oasis of democracy surrounded by enemies is a very important matter.

Actually, the very lop-sidedness of American sympathy for Israel may be more of a potential threat to her interests than any Arab "master plan" of propaganda. A lot of Americans have lately begun to realize that they have never really heard the case for the Arabs.

Maybe the Arabs don't have a case, or very much of one. We believe they don't. Had they, with only a modicum of goodwill, accepted the partitioning of Palestine back in 1948 instead of immediately launching a military drive to extinguish Israel, the dispossessed Palestinians they profess so much concern about would have the homeland they clamor for and Israel would not now be occupying territories it seized in self-defense in a series of wars.

We believe that the goal of Arab governments in general, and of Palestinian activists in particular, remains, purely and simply, the destruction of Israel. So let them lobby all they want. We are confident Americans will not fall for any propaganda line — from whatever source — no matter how subtle or attractively clothed.

Not that there is not danger. One of B'nai B'rith's worries is what it perceives to be growing "acceptance of the PLO (Palestinian Liberation Organization) message and development of a pro-PLO movement on college campuses."

College students, of course, and not a few of their teachers, are famous for their capacity to swallow anything, so long as it is contrary to "establishment" opinion, is critical of democracy or capitalism or has a tinge of lost-cause romanticism to it.

For them, as well as the propagandists of an Arab or anybody else's "master plan," something Jefferson said in another context would seem to be applicable: "Let them stand undisturbed as monuments of the safety with which error may be tolerated where reason is left free to combat it."

Keith kicks about pension 'kicker'

ANDREW TULLY

WASHINGTON — Pass a cigar, one of those dollar jobs, to former Rep. Hastings Keith, a Republican from Massachusetts. Keith says it's "scandalous" the way his federal pension keeps going up.

Testifying before a House subcommittee, Keith reported that his pension at retirement was $1,560 a month — not exactly peanuts — but in two-and-one-half years the pension has increased to $2,095 as a result of automatic cost-of-living increases. That boost, by the way, is nine percentage points higher than the increase in living costs during the same period.

How come? Keith blames the so-called "kicker" provision in the pension adjustment formula for retired federal employees. Under this provision, retirees not only get periodic pension adjustments upward for increases in the cost of living, they also get an extra 1 per cent to compensate for the time lag between living cost increases and the date of pension adjustment. This, as perceptive readers probably guessed, results in an increasing overcompensation for cost increases. Keith, who is 59, said he would receive about $76,000 more than required to stay abreast of 6 per cent inflation if he collects his pension through 1990. Keith will be only 74 in that year, which is relatively calm in New England.

Nor is Keith one of the higher paid federal pensioners. He served 14 years in Congress and had six years of military and other service. There are jokers collecting a lot more of the taxpayer's dough than Keith — who thinks he's getting too much.

Well, I won't disagree with the man. If inflation continues at about 6 per cent a year — a likely possibility — Keith's pension will nearly triple to $6,000 per month by 1990. Let's see, I think that comes to 72,000 claims a year. You can, as Casey Stengel used to say, look it up in your trusty arithmetic book.

Already, the 1 per cent pension "kicker" has cost the taxpayers more than $10.5-billion because it went into effect in 1969 when Richard Nixon was supposed to be simultaneously conquering Lyndon Johnson's inflation and reducing government spending. House mathematicians don't need slide rules to figure out that the cost will be higher every year on account of 1 per cent of a high figure is bigger than 1 per cent of a low figure.

Therefore, part of the scandal Keith speaks of is that the "kicker" if unresolved will contribute in large measure to the inflation with which it is intended to cope. Keith proposes that pensions which have increased faster than the cost of living since a federal employee retired should be frozen until the cost of living catches up with the amount of the pension increase.

This makes sense, which is why it probably doesn't have a chance. First, the government employees' lobby has enormous political clout. Second, members of Congress are future retirees, too, and they have not been famous for taking money out of their own pockets. It is much more fun and politically profitable to inveigh against New York City's fiscal irresponsibility — without, of course, mentioning that the city's pension program is a major reason for its financial plight.

Still, it is good to hear from a Hastings Keith who can be appalled by government's free spending even when his own pocketbook benefits. It suggests that morality, in some neighborhoods of the country, may be more than just a television joke.

Noble, naive and a shade Neanderthal

TOM TIEDE

WASHINGTON — When President Ford's election campaign staff was assembled last spring it immediately began to compile a list of potential successors to the unwanted vice president, Nelson Rockefeller. Largely, the list was an accumulation of Ford cronies, party hacks and weary warriors from old wars. One exception, though, was the name of Jack Kemp, age 40, three-term workhorse congressman from Buffalo, and clearly one of the truly interesting, even appealing, young conservatives in the shaky Republican establishment.

Mostly dismissed as a novelty when he came to Washington in 1971, a representative who represents and a comer in a party that desperately needs attractive faces.

He won't be Jerry Ford's vice presidential choice next year and he knows it, but there are decades of time to contemplate. "I don't want to be like (Bob) Mathias or (Vinegar Bend) Mizell," he says, referring to other jocks who come and go in politics; his philosophy, "absolutely," is one of upward mobility. His philosophy is also outdated, in some respects, or at least according to conventional political wisdom and tendencies. A one-time Californian of the Richard Nixon persuasion, once describing himself as "to the right of Attila the Hun," he has moderated his ideology in Congress, but only somewhat. Of Nixon he now says, as do so many, "I was deceived," and he has voted at times for trimming the military budget, for consumer protection legislation, and against direct corporate campaign funding. Still, he's considered steady. "He's got," explains one liberal, "the look of Ron Zeigler about him."

For his part, Kemp seems torn between images. The sign on his office door demands that Vietnam MIAs be accounted for, a leftover from his nearly unqualified support for that embarrassing war, but in his untidy office, under a huge picture of old adversary Ernie Ladd, Kemp insists he is a "constructive" conservative, that is, pro-people in a way that transcends rhetoric.

He voted against the emergency jobs legislation of last summer, he says, not because he is against jobs, "to the contrary," but because he is against deceitful jobs: "What we must do is create permanent jobs, not by handouts but with solid jobs." Now he is out of his chair, warming to the subject, his finger poking his visitor for attention. What needs to be done, he says, in more words than necessary, is "to reduce the confiscatory burden on the productive sector of the nation." Can Ernie Ladd pronounce confiscatory?

Never mind, Kemp points out that jobs creation costs money, as much as $40,000 apiece these days, and that in order to create the number of jobs that will be needed in America in the next decade, business will need more than $4 trillion in capital. That means profits, that means tax relief, that means a free enterprise renaissance. No doubt excessively theoretical, and a mite innocent, Kemp's bill nonetheless puts him in a corner of the progressives. He does his job, he creates, he has some vision. Small wonder the people of his district re-elected him last year with 73 per cent of the votes cast.

As for the vice presidential talk, at second glance it is not so preposterous. Kemp's house seat is safe, he is warmly accepted by party elders, he is in the Jerry Ford tradition — a chap who rises alongside his friends rather than over his enemies — good credentials for advancement. He is energetic, enthusiastic, bright and ambitious. Slightly naive, no doubt, and perhaps somewhat out of touch, it could mean White House regulars would not have to break him in.

But the heritage of Jefferson's love affair with nature was devastating. It meant opening the continent and its resources to the stripping of timber and coal, the waste of oil, the erosion of the soil, the pollutions of water and air. For "higher law" of natural rights gave the individual — and corporation — a freedom from state intervention. It meant that a government is best which governs least — and therefore doesn't have to guard the natural environment. It also meant that since nature's laws govern our lives, nature can also take care of itself, without man stepping in to conserve the web of relation between man and environment. The illusion of inexhaustible

Whitesell gives impressions of strife-torn Bangladesh

Editor's Note: The following article was written by William C. Whitesell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Chadwick Whitesell of 91 Bretton Rd. He now lives in Arlington, Va., and the story relates his impressions of a visit to Bangladesh in his capacity as an official of the World Bank. He says the views expressed are solely his own and not necessarily those of the World Bank.

Picture for yourself a busy city street: A dirt road near the port at Dacca, the capital of Bangladesh. Cows and goats and bicycles and push carts and vendors jostle and vie for position, a few cars and jeeps honk and threaten their way through the crowds. Here and there dirty patches of cloth lie spread out on the road — the sole possessions of those who have no other home. Half-naked, unwashed beggars, sour and pitiful, stretch out their hands. Stagnant air smells of rotting refuse and the noise and movements and sights assault the senses.

There, towards the side of the road, next to a mud brick wall, a three-year-old boy squats staring into a puddle of garbage and sewage. But for a ragged remnant of cloth around his neck which can serve no more than a symbolic function — he is naked. The boy's eyes are fixed avidly vacant, his face void of expression. For twenty minutes you stand there and watch him. He never moves. As long as you watch him, he continues staring blankly into that sewer three feet in front of him. He has lost any curiosity towards all that goes on around him. What greater tragedy can there be than an environment which so snuffs out the spark of life in a three-year-old boy?

The poverty of Bangladesh is unlike that anywhere in its severity and ubiquitousness. One cannot travel from one office to another in Dacca without being accosted by beggars. A foreigner riding in a car attracts several beggars at a time — old men and women, children, the crippled and physically deformed, often a young mother with her several children. Homeless people, without incomes; many of them will starve to death. One gives to the outstretched hands and even more hands appear.

Bangladesh has few known natural resources, and not enough foreign currency to import even the clothing and soap needed by its people. As a result, even the working poor are dressed in tattered, filthy rags. Added to these difficulties are severe social problems. The country's government and business institutions are administered by the few per cent of its people which constitute its educated class. Many of these individuals have been educated abroad and have acquired a taste for a lifestyle unattainable by the vast majority of its people. To promote a more even distribution of wealth, major industries in Bangladesh were nationalized soon after its independence — without, of course, having been kept too long.

Despite the starvation, disease, and filth, even in the midst of the most debilitating poverty in the world, there are examples of men in Bangladesh who have denied despair, and who are working to bring themselves and others a better standard of living. Illiterate farmers who reclaim their few acres of land from the ravages of war, cyclones, and floods, and yet still trust enough to try for the first time new seeds, fertilizer, pesticides, and new cultivation practices; factory workers who, on one meal a day, finish their eight hour shift and then spend another four to six hours pedaling the elite around the cities on bicycle rickshaws; entrepreneurs whose businesses have been expropriated by the government, but who have invested in and learned to manage new industries; civil servants who have resisted the temptation of corruption in an environment where corruption become difficult to obtain permission to emigrate, and some of the elite have turned to corruption to supplement their salaries. Smuggling is thought to be common. It has been rumored that even rice has been smuggled out of Bangladesh, an act of extraordinary callousness when one's countrymen are starving in the streets.

On Aug. 15, Bangladesh's President, Sheikh Mujibur Rahman was assassinated in a bloody coup. Western newsmen have since been expelled from the country, and events since then have been shrouded in obscurity. Recently there have been several reshufflings within the new government which is dominated by the military.

It remains to be seen whether the latest government will have any more success than its predecessors in solving the country's problems. One thing is certain, though: Bangladesh needs help from abroad. Of course, the United States, other countries and international institutions like the World Bank are providing assistance. Some have argued, though, that Bangladesh is a basket case, helpless and hopeless. They maintain that giving aid to such a country is a waste. But this view displays a callousness on an international scale which is completely inappropriate in our interdependent world. For 80 million Bangalis and their progeny, the only alternative to hope is death, disease, illiteracy, and minds crippled by malnutrition. The world cannot ignore this nation, now just four years old, as it struggles to secure the basic necessities of life.

And it does have potential. But its fertile soil and abundant water resources have not yet benefited from the application of modern agricultural technology. Aside from a few natural gas and forest industries, its industrial resource base is unexplored and undeveloped. Bangladesh is now conducting a desperate and perhaps futile search for oil — the only chance it has for a material future. ## Manchester Bicentennial Medal design approved by committee

The Manchester Bicentennial Committee has approved the design of a Manchester Bicentennial Medal, which will be available about mid-December.

The face of the medal portrays the four signers of the Declaration of Independence from Connecticut — Samuel Huntington, William Williams, Roger Sherman and Oliver Wolcott, all members of the Continental Congress. Their signatures, as they appear on the Declaration of Independence, and authentic writing instruments are also depicted on the coin.

The obverse side pictures some contributions Manchester has made during the 200 years of our independence — a Minuteman pouring gunpowder, the first Cheney Silk mill, a Pioneer parachute, a horn of plenty and the Pitkin Glassworks. The Minuteman pouring gunpowder reminds us that even those who stayed at home, both men and women, did their part in the struggle for independence by the manufacture of gunpowder at Manchester mills owned and operated by the Pitkins. The importance of this role is highlighted by the fact that George Washington detailed both Capt. Timothy Cheney and Lt. Richard Pitkin home to supervise the manufacture of gunpowder and gunpowder sieves.

The first Cheney mill, built in 1838, rests opposite a Pioneer parachute, providing a sharp contrast of the growth and importance of the silk industry to both Manchester and America. The horn of plenty contains tobacco, apples, potatoes and other products available in Manchester then and now which helped earn Connecticut the name "Provision State" during the War of Independence. The Pitkin Glassworks, whose ruins are an historical site today, serves as a constant reminder of our contributions to America in the glass industry.

Encircling the coin is the joining of hands of Orford Parish (Manchester's name prior to the town's incorporation in 1823) and Manchester, Connecticut. The coins will be in a clear plastic display stand that is removable if the owner so desires. The medals will be distributed through local banks — a notice will be given to the public when the coins arrive at the banks. The coins will be sold on a first come, first served basis, and no limit will be placed on the number of coins purchased by an individual.

After the first of the year, all coin orders will be totaled and a last order will be placed with the mint with instructions to destroy the die after the order is filled. To protect the value of the coin, papers have been filed with the town and state to protect the coin or either of its sides from being reproduced without permission of the Bicentennial Committee. The coins will be cast in both .999 silver and bronze. The silver medal, serially numbered, will cost $19.75, and the bronze medal, $3.50.

Restaurant owner faces charge of murder

HARTFORD (UPI) — A Hartford restaurant owner has been charged with murder in the shooting early Sunday of a 15-year-old boy in his North End restaurant. Police said Edgar "Dino" Jones, 34, owner of Dino's Open Pit Barbecue, was held on $100,000 bail in the slaying of Charles Nelson of Hartford, who was shot once in the chest with a small-caliber handgun. Jones, Nelson and another youth preceded the shooting at 12:30 a.m. Jones believed the youths, members of the "Family Connection" street gang, had taken money from the cash register.

MACC news

Nancy Carr Executive Director

Hunger — What is it — dull and hollow eyes looking almost as big as my fist, staring at me from the face of a little child, whose emaciated limbs dangle from a grossly protruding stomach; an aged Indian, impossible to determine sex, huddled fetus-like against a building, or a pleading mother holding a rice bowl toward the camera lens.

Hunger! It's hard to really think of hunger when your stomach is full. But today there are more hungry people in the world than ever before and the gap between the well-fed and the hungry, the rich and the poor, widens steadily. At least half of the world's population suffers from nutritional deficiencies. Almost half a billion of these suffer from acute, chronic malnutrition, and 40 per cent of them are children. Some experts estimate as many as 10,000 deaths a day are due to starvation or hunger-related diseases.

At home, millions of Americans go without adequate nutrition, housing, and medical care. Here in Manchester, we have taken steps to provide a source of emergency food so that no one of our neighbors or his children need involuntarily go to bed hungry. Your generosity has filled the shelves of the Emergency Pantry and will, I am sure, continue to provide food for the hungry here. Your concern has reached further. You have said, "Yes, I will" to eyes that have met yours from the pages of your magazine or TV screen. The Manchester Council on World Hunger has been one of your yeas. There have been others! There will be more.

National Day of Fasting Today, Nov. 24, has been set aside as the National Day of Fasting. Americans from Texas to Maine will be fasting in order to set aside that day's food money to send to the starving of the world.

Here in Manchester, many of us also will be fasting. We will join this evening for the final program of the "Manchester Hunger Awareness Week" at the old Gelco store on W. Middle Tpk. with a celebration of hope for the world and bring money or canned goods to the center as an offering.

We need your presence this evening as we lock hands in an outpouring of gratitude for what we have and a firm determination to reach out toward our brothers. "The Right to Food" The U.S. Congress has before it a resolution on the right to food. It asserts the right of every person to a nutritionally adequate diet and asks for the first time that this right become a cornerstone of U.S. policy. It is a right that is grounded in the value God places on human life and in the belief that "the earth is the Lord's and the fullness thereof." The Manchester Council on World Hunger urges you to write your congressman: the Honorable William C. Catter, U.S. House of Representatives, Washington, D.C. 20511; and one or both of your senators: the Honorable Abraham Ribicoff and the Honorable Lowell Weicker, U.S. Senate, Washington, D.C. 20510.

Urge them to pass the right-to-food resolution (H. Con. Res. 383) in the House, and S. Con. Res. 66 in the Senate. Write your own letter. Address and stamp the envelope and put it in the collection basket as you attend church on Thanksgiving or Thanksgiving Sunday as your own personal act of gratitude — or mail it directly.

Educate yourself on the hunger question. There is a hunger awareness shelf at the Mary Cheney Library this week. Look it over. A permanent pamphlet file on hunger awareness has been started at the library (thanks to Jim Hyland and Karen Laski). Check the current books and journals on the subject. From a study group; urge your local club to have an evening's hunger awareness presentation.

Just April (East Catholic faculty) has put together an excellent and moving slide presentation on the whole program of world hunger. Show this to one of the many other excellent films at your civic or community club. Organize a Hunger Banquet or Fast to underscore the food gaps that exist here and elsewhere. Reach out your hand — feed your brother. Join us tonight at 7 p.m. — let us celebrate our hope in each other.

Chaplin-Fields films to be shown Dec. 6

A film festival featuring Charlie Chaplin and W.C. Fields will be presented Dec. 6 at 8 p.m. at South Catholic High School, Campfield Ave. at South St., Hartford. Proceeds from the event will go to the Kids, Inc. Building Fund. Refreshments will be served after the program. More information may be obtained by calling 646-8643 in Manchester, 742-6879 on Coventry and 688-5952 in Windsor.

Proposed military manpower alarming to Schlesinger

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former Defense Secretary James Schlesinger says that during discussions on the Pentagon budget that led to his firing one proposal brought up would have cut 200,000 servicemen from active duty.

That particularly worries Schlesinger because, as he said Sunday in a broadcast interview (NBC's "Meet the Press"), the Soviet Union has "very powerful ground and attack forces" in Europe and elsewhere along Russia's borders.

Schlesinger, fired by President Ford earlier this month, criticized national defense policy, saying: "We as a nation are indulging in an ostrich syndrome, burying our heads in the sand and not observing what is going on."

"The Soviets have increased their military establishment to over four million men. Today they have twice as many men under arms as we have. The fiscal 1977 defense budget — Schlesinger and Ford apparently parted company over it being prepared now.

Ford held an unusual Sunday meeting with budget director James Lynn and national security adviser Brent Scowcroft. There were indications more cuts are being considered.

Sources said that at an earlier meeting, late in October, Schlesinger objected to White House proposed budget cuts that would leave the Pentagon somewhere in the neighborhood of $97 billion instead of an expected $115 billion.

Because personnel costs are already about 60 per cent of the defense budget, a manpower reduction of at least 200,000 would be necessary, he said.

"I trust that the administration will not make such a decision ultimately. We are not going to be in a position to cut manpower procurement year after year and hope that through a miraculous rise in productivity we can maintain a defense establishment equivalent to that of the Soviet Union..."

Graham ailing

ATHENS, Greece (UPI) — Evangelist Billy Graham has a serious intestinal infection and may have to abandon his world tour, according to a spokesman.

The Rev. Walter Smyth of the Billy Graham Evangelist Association said Graham, who arrived Saturday from Cairo, was "under treatment involving heavy doses of antibiotics and some sedation because of fever, stomach cramps and exhaustion."

Graham flew to Egypt last week after a two-month tour of the Far East and Middle East. Smyth said the 57-year-old evangelist's schedule would depend on his health.

"If he is unable to continue his tour, he plans to fly to the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn. for treatment," he said.

Dodd gives support to completion of I-84

WILLIMANTIC (UPI) — Rep. Christopher Dodd, D-Conn., has come out in favor of completing Interstate 84 across the eastern half of Connecticut to the Rhode Island line.

Dodd said Sunday the economic benefits to the region could be "significant" in increased employment and industrial and commercial development.

He announced his support of the project at a town meeting in Willimantic, which is on the route and would be a chief beneficiary of an interstate link-up.

Dodd answered environmental critics by saying he would demand safeguards for construction and impact be maintained. He also said each town along the route should have the chance to decide by referendum if it wants an interchange.

"I think we need this highway for the future economic growth of Eastern Connecticut," Dodd said. "But I firmly believe that we must take every step necessary to protect our environment in reaping the benefits from this project."

Franco buried in the Valley of the Fallen

MADRID, Spain (UPI) — The new king of Spain looked down for a moment at the grave of Generalissimo Francisco Franco, the man who gave him the crown, then squared his shoulders and turned to face the world and his problems alone.

Juan Carlos, in his first full day as ruler, led hundreds of thousands of Spaniards in saying farewell Sunday to the man who chose him as his successor but refused to share his one-man rule until his death.

Now, at last, with the 82-year-old Franco in his tomb, the regime of King Juan Carlos I of the Borbon Dynasty could begin in earnest.

A few hours later, the king conferred with Jose Antonio Giron, leader of the right-wing Falange movement that provided the ideological spearhead for Franco's forces in the Spanish Civil War.

Over 100,000 Falangists gathered in disciplined ranks at the Valley of the Fallen, 36 miles north of Madrid, to stage a dramatic, emotional farewell as their idol was buried.

Wearing their traditional blue shirts, the Falangists shouted, sang, saluted and waved battle banners and flags. They made it clear they would resist any effort to turn Spain from a one-party state to a more democratic regime.

Later at Zarzuela Palace, Giron presumably talked to Juan Carlos about the king's inaugural address Saturday in which he seemed to hint at democratic reforms.

A report of their conversation said Juan Carlos praised the "glorious veterans" and said with his loyalty he would "march with determination forward on the road already marked out, perfecting and completing the work that Franco accomplished."

Spain buried its leader of 36 years with great outpourings of people. Officials said some 300,000 persons — many weeping, some fainting — passed before Franco's coffin during 47 hours of lying in state at the Royal Palace.

A crowd estimated at 200,000 gathered Sunday morning in the palace square for an open air mass. Then, as Spaniards waved white handkerchiefs in farewell, the shiny mahogany coffin topped with the general's baton was taken in a flatbed truck to the Valley of the Fallen.

There was a brief Catholic burial service in a church, cut into the granite mountain, which Franco had selected both as a memorial to the civil war dead and as his last resting place.

Mrs. Franco and her daughter, the Marquesa de Villaverde, did not attend although they were at the Madrid ceremony. Franco's granddaughter, Carmencita, wept as did most other Franco family members.

Blue-coated workmen removed the red and gold flags from the coffin and lowered it into the grave before the high altar. They covered it with a simple granite slab inscribed: Francisco Franco.

TODAY'S THOUGHT

Much has been written about hunger in the world today. Spiritual starvation is not as easily detected but is more devastating because poverty of the soul is involved.

Independent physical life begins at birth and the natural, healthy result is growth. Spiritual life begins with birth also, as Jesus said in John 3:3 "...except a man be born again he cannot see the Kingdom of God."

When we have been born anew by acknowledging and accepting Jesus Christ as our Savior, the Lord wants us to grow up in Him. If Peter 3:18 says to grow in grace and in the knowledge of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ.

Church studies housing needs

Andover
DONNA HOLLAND
644-0375
A committee consisting of members of the Andover Congregational Church is investigating the need for housing for elderly residents.

The second week in January the committee plans to send a detailed survey to all residents.
In the meantime the committee is seeking the help of anyone who has any suggestions of property that could be used for the above purpose.
The group is thinking in terms of 24-unit housing development which, by Andover zoning regulations, would require a minimum of 4 acres if drainage were optimum.
Anyone having suggestions is asked to contact Mrs. Gordon Macdonald, Lakeside Dr.

The Parent's Choice Speakers' Bureau is presently conducting a series of meetings with school staffs and town residents.
Andrew Esposito, co-ordinator, recently stated "We feel we have to reach as many people with as much information as possible because of the impact that implementing the study would have on East Hartford."
The Speaker's Bureau is using an audio-visual presentation explaining the project to many of the town's parent's groups.
The bureau is also holding informational and discussion sessions most weekday evenings at the Parent Advice Team office at 700 Burnside Ave.
Two coffee hours are scheduled for Monday and Tuesday of this week. To learn more on these meetings

School notes
David Kravot, principal of Andover Elementary School, told parents that "no school" announcements will be made on radio stations WTIC, WDRG, WTOP and WCXN.
Co-chairmen of the fair are Gem Marston and Clara Ursin. The fair will feature children being able to wear boots in school all day.
He urged parents to label coats, jackets, sweaters, sneakers, rubbers and boots. He advised parents to write the family name on children's lunch boxes.

Richard M. Grant and Jack Baker were unanimously re-elected chairman and clerk respectively of the Board of Finance at last week's meeting. They will hold these offices for two years.
The board has a Democratic majority membership.
This was the board's first meeting since the Nov. 4 municipal election. Serving with Democrats Grant and Baker are Democrats Edward Williams and Carlman Frankel, both beginning six-year terms and Republicans Jeffrey Odell filling a four-year vacancy and Roger Terranova, filling a two-year vacancy.

Vote registration
There will be a voter registration in Andover Dec. 1 from 7 until 9 p.m. in the Town Office Building.
Applicants must be 18 years of age, a resident of Andover and, if foreign born, a naturalized citizen.

or schedule a further meeting, call PAT members at 528-9174 or the Parent's Choice office at 289-7411, Extension 338 or 386.
Eleven afternoon sessions are being held to discuss how Parent's Choice may affect the professional staff if the board votes to implement the study or any part of it.
The Parent's Choice project is a study of the possible use of vouchers or educational scholarships.
These vouchers would be given to East Hartford parents who could send their children to any eligible school in town where seats are available.
Parents could continue to send children to their neighborhood school.
The study is funded by a $387,371 grant from the National Institute of Education.
The board is expected to take action on the project in January.

Fair plans
The First Congregational Church of Andover will hold its "Christmas in the Country" fair Dec. 6 from 10 a.m. until 3 p.m.
Co-chairmen of the fair are Gem Marston and Clara Ursin. The fair will feature children being able to wear boots in school all day.
He urged parents to label coats, jackets, sweaters, sneakers, rubbers and boots. He advised parents to write the family name on children's lunch boxes.

This was the board's first meeting since the Nov. 4 municipal election. Serving with Democrats Grant and Baker are Democrats Edward Williams and Carlman Frankel, both beginning six-year terms and Republicans Jeffrey Odell filling a four-year vacancy and Roger Terranova, filling a two-year vacancy.

The board approved their 1976 meeting schedule. They will meet the fourth Wednesday of each month commencing with the 1976 calendar year unless otherwise notified.
There is no scheduled meeting in December except at the call of the chairman.
The board transferred $1,000 from the contingency account to the unemployment compensation account.
Grant read a letter from Regional Board of Education Chairman Frank Shannon. Shannon told the board because of the 75-76 teacher negotiation agreement, the district will need $7,785 more with Hebron's share being $3,821.

However, no more money need to be raised by the town because Shannon suggests the $3,821 be withheld from the $32,768 surplus scheduled to be returned to the town. This surplus was from the 1974-75 budget.
A copy of a letter from School Supt. David Cattanch was read by Grant informing the board that the town will receive $352,592 in per pupil grants or $92 more than was estimated in the 1975-76 budget.
This total grant sum includes $1,592 adjusted aid for the early closing of Rham High School in June of 1974.
The board approved the payment of $1,500 to the William Reynolds Co. of Hartford, for the 1974-75 audit report.

Community service
The Community Thanking Service will be Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. at St. Peter's Episcopal Church.
Family advent programs have been planned by both the First and Gilead Congregational Churches Sunday.
The Board of Christian Education of the Gilead Church is planning an advent wreath making program starting at 4 p.m. Persons having wreath frames and candles are asked to bring them as well as any greens they can obtain. There will be some of these items available.
Persons coming should bring a sandwich supper. Beverages and dessert will be provided.

Victory party
A Democratic Victory Party will be sponsored by the Democratic Town Committee Dec. 5 beginning at 9 p.m. at Hemlocks on Jones St.
Music will be provided by Frankie Knick and the Country Knights. Refreshments will be served.
Deputy sheriff
Howard Porter, a town committee member has been appointed a deputy sheriff for Tolland County by Tolland County Sheriff Francis Curran.

style doctors and fad enthusiasts who often do harm by their imagined medical knowledge. This certainly is a boost for people entrusted with providing daily special food for themselves," says Dr. Nelson who is associate professor of nutrition in the department of internal medicine.
Dr. Nelson further says, "Food that is safe to eat, food a patient can enjoy, diets that are made up largely from regular supermarket items can now look forward to Joyce Daly Margie, a 'meal' rather than a collection of items that either bores or becomes almost inedible. That is why I actually am happy over these new developments. Today, the special know-how of the physician, nutritionist and dietitian are all being used together and the patient can continue his hospital diet in his own kitchen."
The Mayo Clinic Renal Diet Cookbook recently has been published by Dr. Nelson and three other specialists at the Mayo Clinic.
When you consider that eight million people in the United States have some form of kidney disorder, the need for this book is obvious. Beside Dr. Nelson, the authors are Dr. James C. Hunt, Dr. Carl Anderson and Joyce Daly Margie, a research nutritionist formerly with the department of nutrition and nephrology of the Mayo Clinic. Dr. Anderson's specialty is renal (kidney) diseases. Dr. Hunt is chairman of the department of medicine. These specialists spent 18 years compiling The Mayo Clinic Renal Diet Cookbook.
The book is designed to educate patients under the direction of their physicians and dietitians to cope with their own dietary problems at home. In other words, to prepare food that is scientifically correct and still tastes good.
This 212-page comprehensive cookbook for kidney patients was developed in accordance with Mayo Clinic guidelines. Certain special products are used as well as common every day foods. The result is menus and recipes often available to the entire family.

FOOD FOR AMERICANS

Bicentennial boiled dinner

By Aileen Claire NEA Food Editor

Proud New Englanders won't mind if we borrow their popular boiled dinner and offer it as a Bicentennial treat. This is a hearty meal that goes a long way in the meat department since the leftover corned beef makes very tasty sandwiches. Serve with Boston brown bread and a steamed pudding.

BICENTENNIAL BOILED DINNER

- 4 to 5 pounds corned beef
- 6 carrots
- 6 medium potatoes, peeled and halved
- 1 medium yellow turnip, cut into 1-inch cubes
- 1 head green cabbage, cut into 8 to 9 wedges
- 2 buttered squash, peeled, seeded and cut into slices
- 1/4 cup butter or margarine
- 1/4 cup flour
- 1 tablespoon Angostura aromatic bitters
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- 1/4 cup chopped parsley

Cover beef with water in a large kettle. Simmer gently for 1 hour. Pour off water and replace with fresh water. Simmer gently for another hour. Pour off water and replace with fresh water. Simmer gently until beef is easily pierced (about another hour). Add vegetables and cover tightly. Continue simmering until vegetables are tender, about 30 minutes. Place beef on a board and cool for 10 minutes, then cut into paper-thin slices with a sharp knife. Place beef and slices on a platter and surround with vegetables. Keep warm. Boil juices in kettle until you have 2 cups. Mix butter and flour into paste and drop into simmering juices. Stir over low heat until sauce bubbles and thickens. Stir in bitters, lemon juice and parsley. Simmer while stirring for 5 minutes. Serve sauce with corned beef and vegetables.

The TRANSCENDENTAL MEDITATION program. WHAT IS IT? Transcendental Meditation, or TM, is a simple, easily learned technique for gaining deep rest and relaxation. The TM program is not a philosophy or religion and involves no change in life style. WHAT DOES IT DO? The relaxation gained during TM relieves stress, strain and tension. Research at the Harvard Medical School has found that the level of rest gained during TM is twice as deep as the deepest part of a whole night's sleep. WHAT ARE THE BENEFITS? TM gives increased calmness and energy throughout the day. Health improves. High blood pressure is reduced 10% of the people who start TM are recommended to the program by their doctor. TM increases mental clarity and psychological well-being. Family and social relationships also improve from the TM program. HOW MUCH TIME DOES IT TAKE? TM is practiced twice a day (once in the morning and once in the evening) for just 15-20 minutes. HOW DO I KNOW IT WORKS? The benefits of the TM program have been verified by scientific research at over 200 universities and research centers. (All studies and sources available at the TM center.) If you know a mediator, that you know it works. CAN ANYONE LEARN? Yes. The technique of TM is so natural and the course is so complete that anyone is able to learn in a few short sessions over four days. HOW DO I LEARN? The first step to finding out more about the Transcendental Meditation program is to attend a free introductory lecture on TM. FREE INTRODUCTORY LECTURES THIS WEEK THIS WEDNESDAY NOVEMBER 26th * MANCHESTER, 7:30 P.M., TM Center, 63 East Center Street, Suite 305B * Glastonbury, 7:30 P.M., 1st Federal Savings, 2510 Main Street. Untraditional turkey

By Aileen Claire NEA Food Editor Turkey is more than a holiday eating experience these days. Yet, at Thanksgiving there always is the perplexing quandary of what to do with the bird. As family size diminishes and fewer sit down to eat, the turkey is no longer a golden stuffed turkey with all the trimmings. It is time to grace this very special meal with a different turkey dish. Why not try glazed turkey legs, or turkey roll en croûte, or curried turkey over braised bananas? Turkey now comes in rolls, breasts and legs, so casseroles, soups and other different turkey dishes no longer require the previous roasting of a whole 12- or 24-pound bird.

Roast turkey roll as label directs. Cool slightly, remove strings. Remove skin, if desired. Fry bacon and onion until brown is crisp. Pour off half of drippings. Add cranberries and cook until cranberries are soft, about 5 minutes. Stir in bread crumbs. Cool. Mix pie crust mix and poultry seasoning, then prepare as label directs. On a floured surface, roll three-fourths of crust into 16 by 12 inches oblong. Spread pie crust with cranberry mixture. Place turkey roll on pie crust and roll crust around turkey roll to enclose completely. Seal all edges. On greased cookie sheet place turkey roll, seam-side down. Brush pie crust with beaten egg. On floured surface roll remaining pie crust. Place pastry covered roll on baking sheet. Bake in preheated 400-degree oven for 20 to 25 minutes or until pie crust is browned. Place on heated platter and surround with a harvest of cooked vegetables. Makes 6 servings.

Sprinkle turkey legs with salt, pepper and poultry seasoning. Brush turkey with one-half cup melted butter. Place legs on a rack in single layer in a shallow baking pan. Roast in a preheated 350-degree oven for one and a half hours, turning legs once, until legs are easily pierced. While turkey is roasting, combine cranberries, cranberry juice and lemon in a saucepan. Bring to a boil, lower heat and simmer for 15 minutes. Stir in one-fourth cup melted butter until smooth. Beat in brown sugar. Spoon mixture over turkey legs and roast another 20 minutes. Serve garnished with parsley. Serve with succotash made with combining equal parts cooked kernel corn and baby limas. Toss with butter and salt. Makes 8 servings.

CRANBERRY TURKEY ROLL EN CROûTE 1 frozen turkey roll, 4 pounds 6 slices bacon, diced 1/2 cup onion, chopped 1 cup fresh cranberries 1/2 cup dry bread crumbs 1 package pie crust mix 1 teaspoon poultry seasoning egg, well beaten spoon gelatin over roast, covering it completely with a thin layer. Decorate top of roast with thinly sliced radishes, cucumbers and carrots arranged in a pretty pattern in gelatin. Chill roast for 10 minutes. Carefully spoon cranberry sauce over roast and decoration. Chill again until firm. Continue spooning gelatin and chilling until roast is completely covered but not with such a thick layer that the pattern on the top is obscured. Chill remaining gelatin. Place roast on a platter. Chop remaining gelatin and drippings then spoon around edge of roast. Seal roast with thin slices with some of the chopped gelatin added to each serving. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

A glorious new kind of pumpkin pie

Pumpkin Caramel Crunch Pie is a brand new version of the traditional holiday pumpkin pie — one so luscious you may well want to serve it often throughout the year. Unlike the solidity of the custard in ordinary pumpkin pies, this recipe bakes to a lighter, creamier consistency. The surprise of rich caramel crunch comes from a layer of brown sugar and crispy California walnuts spread over the crust before the filling goes in. With the harmonious flavors of walnuts, brown sugar and pumpkin, the results are just about the best you ever tasted. There are many shortcuts to getting this delicious pie ready for the oven. Besides the ready-to-use canned pumpkin, your markets have unbaked pie shells if you don't want to make your own from scratch. And you can buy walnuts already shelled and kept nectar-crack-fresh in their special clear-film bags. The 1-pound (4 cups) package is an economical buy when you compare your per ounce cost, and it will give you plenty of these golden kernels for all the good holiday treats you make. Put in a supply of them now while the crop is plentiful in the markets. And don't forget to stock up on the in-shell California walnuts for your holiday nutpops and decorations. Pumpkin Caramel Crunch Pie 1 unbaked 9-inch pastry shell 1/2 cup walnuts, finely chopped 2 cups brown sugar, packed 2 tablespoons soft butter or margarine 3 large eggs 1 cup canned pumpkin 1/2 teaspoon salt 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon 1/2 teaspoon mace 1/2 teaspoon ginger 2 cups whipping cream 1/2 cup light rum (or 1 teaspoon rum extract) Prepare pastry shell. Combine walnuts with 1/4 cup of the brown sugar (packed) and the butter; mix well. Pat firmly over bottom of unbaked pastry shell. Beat eggs with pumpkin, remaining 1/4 cup sugar, salt and spices. Stir in 1 1/2 cups of the cream and the rum. Pour carefully into pie shell. Bake below oven center at 400 degrees F. for 10 minutes. Rest thermostat to 350 degrees F. and bake about 40 to 45 minutes longer, just until filling is barely set in center. Cool thoroughly. Beat remaining 1/4 cup cream to stiff peaks to decorate pie, using a pastry tube. Top the decoration with additional chopped walnuts. Makes one 9-inch pie. Pastry shell: Combine 1 1/2 cups sifted all-purpose flour with 3/4 teaspoon salt. Cut in 1/4 cup shortening until particles are size of peas. Sprinkle with 3 to 4 tablespoons cold milk, adding just enough to make a stiff dough. Roll out on lightly floured board to an 11-inch circle and fit into 9-inch pie pan. Fold edge under the flute, building up a half-inch rim.

Roast turkey roll as directed on package, sprinkling with salt, pepper and crushed rosemary. Cool and chill, then carefully remove strings and skin. Pat roast on a rack in a shallow pan, refrigerate. Soak gelatin in one-half cup of the cranberry drink for 5 minutes. Put over low heat, add pickling spice and stir until gelatin is dissolved. Stir in remaining cranberry juice and lemon juice. Cool and strain. Chill until the consistency of unbeaten egg whites, then

Top turkey slices with cheese, trimmed to the same shape as the turkey. Top with pineapple spears. Cut cranberry sauce into fingers and place a finger next to the pineapple spear. Roll turkey and cheese around the pineapple and cranberry sauce. Fasten rolls with a toothpick. Chill. Combine cranberry juice, bay leaf, chill until mixture is the consistency of unbeaten egg whites. Place turkey rolls on a rack and spoon gelatin mixture evenly over the rolls. Chill until firm. Rolls may be coated a second time for a thicker glaze. Serve rolls garnished with stuffed olives, tomato wedges, parsley and sweet pickle fan. If desired, Makes 6 servings. GLAZED TURKEY ROLLS 12 thin slices turkey breast 12 thin slices Swiss cheese 12 drained canned pineapple spears 1 can (8 ounces) bottled cranberry sauce 1/2 bay leaf 1/2 teaspoon salt 1/2 tablespoon vinegar 3 package (3 ounces) lemon flavored gelatin

Greatest challenge in life facing Kevin Hurst Catholic griddier who suffered broken neck

By LEN AUSTER
Herald Sportswriter

There will be no greater challenge in the life of Kevin Hurst than the one facing him right now.

One day will always loom large in his life. The date is Sept. 22, 1975 in West Hartford when the 15-year-old East Catholic sophomore was playing in a jayvee football game against Northwest Catholic. Trying to block a Northwest player coming in on his quarterback, Kevin hit head on with the opponent and went down.

What happened to the strong-willed youngster was a broken neck. He was taken to St. Francis Hospital in Hartford where it was learned the fifth vertebra in the neck was smashed.

The damage was substantial. He has regained movement of his arms, the right arm the strongest, but finger control is limited. He can feel knee but can't move his legs. But don't shed any tears. What this courageous young man with wisdom beyond his years doesn't want is sympathy.

"When the doctors told him of the situation he cried for about three minutes. His courage is outstanding," his father, Jim Hurst, stated, "Kevin is a realist. He understands what the doctors are saying. We talk regularly about the possibility of him not being able to walk. Statistically, they tell him most are unable to walk after the kind of injury he sustained.

Early in his road to recovery, right after the surgery, one of his lungs collapsed and he spent a week in St. Francis' respiratory care units. But his excellent physical condition from being an all-around fine athlete helped him overcome this setback and today marks the third week Kevin has been at Newington Children's Hospital where he is undergoing therapy. He gets in a wheelchair three times a day along with his therapy sessions.

"He's a tremendous kid. The way he is taking it is inspiring," the Rev. Robert Saunders, principal of East Catholic who has been a daily visitor to Kevin Hurst. Dom Fulco, president of the school's Parent's Club, said other fund raising projects are also planned. But that's not the story. The story is of Kevin's unswerving courage, courage many of us never find.

Hundreds of cards and letters have poured in from school friends and those who didn't know him. Of all the victories that Hayes' clubs have achieved over the years, none could be more rewarding than Saturday's.

For three and a half quarters, Michigan pushed Ohio State all over the field—holding the powerful Buckeyes' offense to no first downs in a span of 36 minutes.

Those victories figure to earn each school in the neighborhood of $1 million for their post-season futures.

Ohio State, reaching the Rose Bowl for the fourth straight year, had to score two touchdowns in the final three minutes and 19 seconds to defeat fourth-ranked Michigan, 31-14, and win the Big Ten Conference while Oklahoma turned five Nebraska turnovers into touchdowns and crushed the previously undefeated Cornhuskers, 25-10, to capture the Big Eight Conference crown.

In each case, the victories were marked by the ability of senior-laden teams to perform better under pressure than their younger and more inexperienced opponents.

Ohio State, for example, refused to fold when it fell behind 14-7 with only 7:11 remaining. Led by senior quarterback Cornelius Greene, the Buckeyes marched up the field to tie the score, then took advantage of Michigan's inexperienced quarter-

Packers annihilate Giants as Eric Torkelson features

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Milestones sometimes come easy for veteran quarterbacks in the National Football League.

Maybe that's why Green Bay quarterback John Hadl preferred to talk about his young teammates and his coach Sunday. Hadl, a 15-year veteran, had thrown for 275 yards and two touchdowns to key a 40-14 Packers win over the New York Giants.

The performance put the 35-year-old quarterback into third in yardage among the all-time NFL leaders. He now has 32,275 yards passing and 237 TD passes.

It was only the second victory in 10 starts for the rebuilding Packers and fourth in touchdown passes among the all-time NFL leaders. He now has 32,275 yards passing and 237 TD passes.

Hadl and Coach Earl Staley felt this might have marked the time when the team came of age.

"This might be a turning point," Staley said. "It was a big win for a very young team, quite a few weeks looking for it."

Hadl was more impressed with the Packers rolled up 508 total yards — their best offensive output since the final game of the 1969 season when Don Horn passed for 410 yards and the team picked up 530 in a 45-28 win over St. Louis.

Eric Torkelson, out of the University of Connecticut, was an unlikely hero.

Torkelson, though outstanding on special teams, has been a second or third team halfback all year. Sunday he came off the bench to score one touchdown, set up another with a 21 yard run and set up a field goal with a 29 yard scamper. He also forced one fumble and threw several key blocks, including one on Marty Smith's 53 yard touchdown run in the fourth quarter.

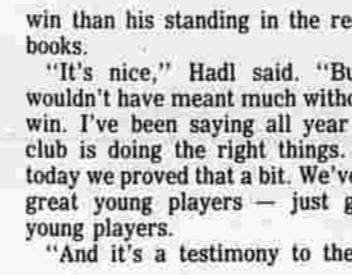

He led all rushers with 78 yards in 10 carries.

Rookie Will Harrell was another standout. He ran for 55 yards, caught passes for 45, scored one touchdown and passed for another. Plankner Ken Payne caught four passes for 103 yards.

The Packers dominated the game throughout, leading 24-0 at the half.

Hadl and Coach Earl Staley felt this might have marked the time when the team came of age.

ERIC TORKELSON

Bart and his staff have been doing. Nobody got down during the tough times. As a veteran, I have a certain role in that. But mainly, it's Starr and his staff that do the job."

The list of young players Hadl talked about was a long one.

Hadl was more impressed with the Packers rolled up 508 total yards — their best offensive output since the final game of the 1969 season when Don Horn passed for 410 yards and the team picked up 530 in a 45-28 win over St. Louis.

Eric Torkelson, out of the University of Connecticut, was an unlikely hero.

Torkelson, though outstanding on special teams, has been a second or third team halfback all year. Sunday he came off the bench to score one touchdown, set up another with a 21 yard run and set up a field goal with a 29 yard scamper. # Tarkenton passes Unitas mark while Vikings remain undefeated

NEW YORK (UPI) — Fran Tarkenton, the scrambler, is No. 1 and Johnny Unitas, the classic quarterback, is No. 2.

The much-discussed and often-criticized Tarkenton surpassed Unitas and became the National Football League's all-time passing completion leader Sunday when he led the Minnesota Vikings to a 28-13 victory over the San Diego Chargers.

It was the 10th straight victory for the unbeaten Vikings and assured them of at least a tie for the NFL's Central Division title.

Tarkenton completed 24 of 32 passes for 201 yards raising his 15-year completion total to 2,941, 10 more than the previous record held by Unitas. Tarkenton threw a 16-yard touchdown pass to Ed Marinaro and set up two of Chuck Foreman's three touchdowns runs with passes.

With 285 touchdown passes, the 34-year old former Georgia star is now only five shy of another all-time Unitas mark — 290 career touchdown passes.

"It's a great compliment to me and to my team for my breaking Unitas' completions record," said Tarkenton. "But I'll let everybody else do the counting and talking about the records. I've got one and the rest will come in time."

All I can say is congratulations," commented Minnesota coach Bud Grant. "Fran is the greatest quarterback there is."

The Baltimore Colts upset the Miami Dolphins 23-17, the Oakland Raiders defeated the Washington Redskins 26-23, the Cleveland Browns surprised the Cincinnati Bengals 35-23, the Kansas City Chiefs shaded the Detroit Lions 24-21, the Los Angeles Rams routed the Chicago Bears 39-10, the Green Bay Packers defeated the New York Giants 49-14, the Dallas Cowboys topped the Philadelphia Eagles 27-7, the St. Louis Cardinals ripped the New York Jets 37-6, the Buffalo Bills outscored the New England Patriots 45-31, the Miami Falcons downed the Detroit Lions 24-21, the Denver Broncos 35-21 and the San Francisco 49ers scored a 16-6 triumph over the New Orleans Saints in Sunday's other games.

yard plunges and Lydell Mitchell ran 32 yards for another TD as the Colts scored their fifth straight win. It was the third loss in 10 games for the Dolphins who may also have lost the services of star quarterback Bob Griese. Griese tore a tendon in his right big toe in the second period and may undergo surgery which would sideline him for the season.

Raiders 26, Redskins 23
Steve Bartkowski recovered from a poor start to throw two touchdown passes and lead the Falcons to a score and on the next possession, Hart marched St. Louis to the one and Metcalf drove over.

Then came the 74-yard bomb to Gray behind the befuddled Jet secondary. The Patriots beat and Bakken traded field goals. Hart threw 20 passes and led the Colts to a 23-17 victory over the Oakland Raiders.

Raiders their win. The game-winning field goal came after Ken Stabler moved the Raiders into scoring position with a 26-yard pass to Fred Biletnickoff and an 18-yarder to Cliff Branch. The Raiders lead Kansas City by three games in the West Division.

Browns 35, Bengals 23
Mike Phipps completed 23 of 36 passes for 288 yards and two touchdowns and Greg Pruitt gained 120 yards rushing and scored two touchdowns enabling the Browns to score their first victory of the season. Ken Anderson of the Bengals passed for two touchdowns before leaving the game with a bruised chest in the third period with his team leading 23-16. The Steelers can take a one-game lead over the Bengals in the AFC's Central Division by beating the Oilers Monday night.

Chiefs 24, Lions 21
Jan Stenerud's 28-yard field goal at 6:44 of the overtime period gave the Chiefs a victory which ended the Lions' three-game winning streak. Earl Edwards had 100 yards and two touchdowns and Greg Pruitt gained 120 yards rushing and scored two touchdowns enabling the Browns to score their first victory of the season. Rams 38, Bears 10
Larry McSpadden sparked the Rams' romp over the Bears with a 43-yard touchdown run with only 6:14 gone in the first period. The Rams led 14-3 at the end of the first period, 21-3 at the half and 31-3 after three periods.

Cowboys 27, Eagles 17
Preston Pearson ran for one touchdown and set up two more scores with screen-pass receptions as the Cowboys repeated a game behind the Cardinals in the NFC East. It was the Eagles' eighth loss against two victories over the Redskins.

Fans level blasts at Shipp and Jets

NEW YORK (UPI) — Ken Shipp made his debut as the New York Jets' interim coach Sunday and only a quirk in the scheduling and the mercy of St. Louis Coach Don Coryell kept it from being a complete embarrassment.

The Cardinals scored three touchdowns in the first period, led 36-6 at the half and then pulled most of their regulars early in the second half en route to a 37-6 triumph.

Home court no help

Celts come from behind and roll over Cleveland

RICHLAND, Ohio (UPI) — If there is a so-called home court advantage, someone better tell the Cleveland Cavaliers, for that matter the Boston Celtics, who played as though they were in Boston Garden. The Cavs Sunday night dropped their fourth game in five home contests when the Celtics wiped out an early 14-point Cleveland lead and rolled to a 105-90 victory. Jo Jo White was the big man in the Boston victory as the veteran guard hit on 13 of 26 shots, good for 27 points, including 12 in the third period. "I really missed some wide open shots early in the game and even though I was missing I kept looking for those percentage shots and kept on shooting," White said. "Most players who are having a bad night keep on shooting, but they force many shots they shouldn't take." Cleveland had a 30-16 lead with 1:33 left in the first period, but the Celtics bounced back to outscore the home club 23-7 in the next 7-39 and took a 51-49 halftime advantage. "I wasn't too worried about being down 14 points early in the game," said Boston captain John Havlicek. "It's when we are down 20 points going into the final quarter that I start worrying. When you get behind you just have to keep going what you know how to do. Both teams battled on even terms in the third period before unanswered baskets by Charlie Scott, Don Nelson and Glenn McDonald opened up a 87-76 lead for the Celtics with 7:56 left in game. The Cavs, who canned 15-of-23 shots in the first period, hit on only two field goals in the first eight minutes of the second quarter when the Celtics made them some ear plugs. "Our defense has been good and we have been executing well, but our shooting has been atrocious," Fitch said. "The team has been listening to the crowd too much. They expect us to score a 12-point play in three seconds and it seems to have affected the players. Maybe I should get them some ear plugs." The Cavaliers also found the foul line a little rough as they dropped in only 12-of-28 charity tosses, while Boston converted 11-of-16 free throws. Scott added 16 for the winners, while Dick Snyder, who hit on his first six shots, topped the Cavs with 21 points. Four NBA teams on sidelines year ago now setting hot pace

NEW YORK (UPI) — Four teams who sat out the playoffs last season are now leading or tied for the lead in each of the National Basketball Association's divisions. At this point in the season, however, team standings in the NBA probably mean as little as a first quarter rally. It doesn't matter if you're leading 15-3 after two minutes; all that counts is the final score. Similarly, a half-game lead or even a five-game division lead in November is hardly cause for celebration. "See me in May," says the knowledgeable NBA fan, who realizes the second season — the playoffs — is the only thing that really matters in pro basketball. But on this November morning, you can't blame a few young teams for feeling particularly chirpy. Atlanta was getting a good start on a 31-51 season this time last year while Philadelphia was on its way to a 34-48 campaign. Today they are leading, respectively, the Central and Atlantic Divisions by a half-game each. Los Angeles was worse than either of those teams last season, finishing dead last in the Pacific Division with a 30-52 record but it, too, is getting some first place exposure. The Lakers, now featuring Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, have a 12-6 record and are only percentage points behind defending champion Golden State, 10-4. Detroit, another non-playoff team last season with a 40-42 record, holds a three game edge over Milwaukee, which finished behind the Pistons in the Midwest Division. In Sunday's action, Atlanta scored a 115-111 victory over Philadelphia in a nationally televised game to put the Hawks just ahead of the faltering Washington Bullets; Los Angeles kayoed Houston 110-99, Boston ripped Cleveland 106-90 and Seattle beat Milwaukee 112-104. The New York Nets dominated Utah 113-106 and Kentucky defeated St. Louis 93-85 in the two NBA games. Hawks 115, 76ers 111 Atlanta's Tom Henderson almost ran out of time before tossing in a spectacular 22-foot jump shot with just three seconds left in the game. The game was tied at 111-111 with 26 seconds left. Atlanta then took the ball and went into a freeze while the seconds ticked away. "We wanted penetration for the last shot," said Hawks coach Cotton Fitzsimmons. "But Henderson wasn't able to make it and when (John) Drew fed the ball back out to him, he had no choice but to shoot it at the last moment." After Henderson's game-breaking shot, Philadelphia failed to get its inbounds pass to forward George McGinnis and the ball bounced out of bounds untouched. The Hawks retained possession and Henderson made two final free throws for the margin of victory. "We had McGinnis blocked out by several people," Fitzsimmons said. "I believe John Brown held him up and he never made it to the ball." McGinnis and Drew were the high scorers with 33 points each. Nets 113, Stars 106 Julius Erving notched 33 points and forward Tim Eassett grabbed 17 rebounds to lead New York Rookie Kim Hughes scored 16 points for the Nets, while Brian Taylor added 15. Ron Boone led the Stars with 24 points. Colts 93, Spirits 85 Artis Gilmore scored 29 points to lead Kentucky. The Spirits again played without their leading scorer, Marvin Barnes, who has been in Providence, R.I., for trial of a civil assault suit filed against him by a former college teammate.

He did many things on impulse Ruby's brother: 'Jack acted alone'

By Ira Berkow For at the heart of those doubts is the unlikelihood of the inability of men calling themselves rational to accept the capricious malice of chance. The world knows full well the details of that night of November 24, 1963, when the bullets of a Dallas police station, Jack Ruby slipped through police guard to shoot Oswald at point blank range before an international television audience. "You still feel it in a lot of ways — what people consider the unanswered questions," said Earl Ruby recently. "Like not long ago my daughter comes home from school. She's concerned. She says, 'Daddy, friends at school have been saying that you and your brother Jack were involved with the government in a conspiracy.' And I told her, 'You tell those people, honey, that your uncle was not in the CIA, not in the FBI, not involved in any way.'"

Reagan campaign gathers momentum

GOP heading for a big split

WASHINGTON (LENS) — Nelson Rockefeller's 1976 nomination for vice president has failed to quell the internal Republican challenge to President Ford. In fact, the net effect of Rockefeller's exit and the cabinet shakeup has been to strengthen the rival bid for the Republican presidential nomination rather than discourage it.

When Ronald Reagan announced his candidacy on November 20, he began the most serious challenge to an incumbent Republican president since Theodore Roosevelt opposed William Howard Taft in 1912 and there opened wounds not yet healed.

Beside overestimating the beneficial results of Rockefeller's withdrawal, the President's political managers' great error was to underestimate the damage done by sacking James Schlesinger as Secretary of Defense. Through his persistent and often eloquent calls for higher defense spending, Schlesinger had built for himself a political base of support on the right-wing of the Republican party that was wholly unappreciated in the White House.

What the recent events did produce was Reagan's first direct criticism of Ford. In an interview with Time magazine, Reagan not only expressed his dismay at Schlesinger's dismissal, but was also surprisingly blunt in downgrading Ford's ability to lead and suggesting that he was powerless in the clutches of Secretary of State Kissinger in the Reagan administration.

This lack of respect for the incumbent President shocked some of Ford's political counselors, who have consistently misjudged just what Reagan was up to. Until quite recently, the President's most experienced advisers, including Melvin Laird, were informing him with dead certainty that Reagan never would make the race. Even today, the Reagan candidacy is viewed at the White House as a nuisance rather than a threat to Ford's nomination.

That may be because there is inadequate realization at the White House, as elsewhere, of how much the Republican party has changed since Sen. Barry Goldwater and the right-wing captured the national convention in 1964. With the party growing ominously smaller (only 18 per cent of the voting population) and composed of proportionately far fewer young people and liberals, a right-wing conservative position has a considerably greater appeal in Republican primary elections than it did a decade ago. Nor is Reagan's conservative appeal fully counteracted by the allure of incumbency, since Ford is the nation's first president not to have been elected to national office.

Even so, Ford's campaign organization has signed up so many important Republicans that, if the game were played by the old rules, the President would have no trouble at all being nominated. But the game is very much different. Thanks to the new rules for selecting national convention delegates forced through state legislatures, largely as a consequence of Democratic party reform, what matters now is not so much signing up prominent party figures as winning delegates through some 30 primary elections.

The nomination, therefore, will be won or lost in the primaries, and particularly two early ones — New Hampshire on February 24 and Florida on March 9 where Ford is not particularly strong. As President, he can scarcely desert Washington for incessant campaigning in those states, which may be all to Ford's benefit, considering his ineffectiveness as a speaker. Reagan will pretty much have the field to himself with 15 days of campaigning in each of the two states. Although Ford probably has a substantial lead in New Hampshire today and a slimmer one in Florida, Reagan's advisers believe his actor's skill on the campaign platform will readily close the margin against a President whose popularity is in decline.

To fall in New Hampshire or Florida probably would mean the effective end of Reagan's challenge and the effective nomination of Ford. Should Reagan win these states, however, Ford probably would not drop out but instead would look ahead to victories in Illinois, Wisconsin and New York, where for reasons both procedural and political it would be difficult for Reagan to win.

But a Ford defeat in New Hampshire might well generate new candidates, on the argument that Ford was finished and Reagan could not win.

John Connally, believing that his acquittal on bribery charges reopens his political career, hungrily eyes what probably is his last chance for the presidency. Sen. Charles Mathias (R-Md.) wants to be the candidate of the party's liberal wing and by brazenly saying so has stripped attention from the much better known Republican liberal.

Sen. Charles Percy of Illinois, Sen. Howard Baker of Tennessee, who always manages to position himself squarely in the middle of the party, is fiercely ambitious. Nor can even Rockefeller be ruled out totally. The utter failure of the cabinet shakeup has fanned all their ambitions, and perhaps rightly so.

County and hospital officials agree the woman has been the victim of a legal mixup. But so far, nothing has been done to allow her to leave the hospital.

The retired Niagara Falls elementary school teacher's problems began when she was taken to the hospital for treatment of Parkinson's disease Sept. 20, 1974. She was ready to leave the hospital a month later, doctors said.

But they also said she needed additional care and supervision that could only be provided in a health-related facility, such as a nursing home. Before she could be transferred, her court-appointed attorney had to submit a report on her finances to the hospital.

But that report was never submitted.

"We couldn't place her anywhere else because we couldn't tell how her bills would be paid and her lawyer would not give us the information we needed," says Barbara Demerest, a hospital social worker.

"We couldn't just put her out in the street because she needed care and supervision," Miss Demerest added.

Before Mrs. Fitzpatrick was admitted to the hospital, she lived in a boarding house and the attorney had served as her "committee," managing her finances, which are based on a monthly pension check of $300.

Patient victim of legal mixup

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI) — One year ago Saturday, Mrs. Florence Fitzpatrick, 72, began what doctors say is an unnecessary stay at Buffalo's Meyer Memorial Hospital.

Today she still lives in a four-bed room in the hospital's neurology unit. Her hospital bill now totals $67,410 while hospital officials await word on how she will pay.

Mrs. Mary Barthel, director of social services at the hospital, says it's "the most flagrant case of exploitation of a patient" she's ever encountered.

County and hospital officials agree the woman has been the victim of a legal mixup. But so far, nothing has been done to allow her to leave the hospital.

War by proxy Is Angola the next Vietnam?

BUENOS AIRES (LENS) — Before slipping almost furiously out of Launda on a Portuguese frigate last week, Admiral Leonel Cardoso, Portugal's last high commissioner in Angola, declared he was handing over sovereignty to the "Angolan people." There was not an Angolan present to hear his words. Within the next day, Angola had two presidents and two governments, each committed to defeating the other in battle. It was a sorry end to nearly 500 years of the Portuguese presence in Africa.

Admiral Cardoso said he left with his head held high; indeed, he had the blame for the thousands of deaths in Angola over the past few months on the powers which were giving arms to the rival movements. The Portuguese government may feel it has made a point of sorts in slipping to the date, November 11, on which it promised to give Angola independence. But in its determination to get out as quickly as possible it has not fulfilled its responsibilities either to the 400,000 Portuguese settlers or to the black Angolans who stay behind.

The departing high commissioner was on surer ground in pointing to the fact that foreign states have been supplying increasingly sophisticated weapons to the rival Angolan nationalist movements. The war Portugal has left behind — between Dr. Neto's People's Republic based in Luanda and the People's Democratic Republic led by Holden Roberto and Jonas Savimbi with his seat at Huambo (Nova Lisboa) — is no longer a matter of skirmishing between badly armed guerrilla groups.

The Soviet Union first, and now the United States and the other backers of the Roberto Savimbi regime, have changed that. The untrained Angolans on both sides have no idea how to use many of the weapons that have come in, so foreigners have had to be brought in too. Angola has become a proxy battlefield between the major powers.

In his speech on independence day Dr. Neto made it clear that his party would follow a non-aligned policy in foreign affairs. This is the real test. The massive military support the Soviet Union and its Communist allies have given to the Popular Movement was responsible for the progress its forces had made until the past three weeks.

There are other African independence movements which have received Communist aid and yet have not subsequently invited the Russians to establish bases on their territory. But Angola's strategic position on the Atlantic coast, and its good harbors near the Cape Shield and the black African continent, put it in a special category. The Russians would certainly try hard to establish their influence in a Marxist Angola.

This is the fear which has prompted both China and America to back Dr. Neto's opponents. Nor is it surprising that South Africa is at least turning a blind eye to the help in supplies and trained men that is coming to the Neto side over the South West African border. Angola will be a hot spot for a month or so, as the two sides detente between South Africa and the black African continent, and a government under Dr. Neto would be unlikely to help that detente.

Yugoslavia fears Soviet intentions

BELGRADE (LENS) — The Yugoslavs have now pointed an explicitly accusing finger at Russia as the backer of anti-Tito plots. For a month senior Yugoslav leaders, from President Tito downward, have been denouncing local Stalinists, code named "cominformists," for attempting to overthrow Tito and install a party leader, for the first time openly linked to Russia with their activities. The Yugoslavs have also let it be known that they are to push Yugoslavia back into the Soviet orbit. Now some of these men are to be put on trial and last week Mr. Kurucovic, a party leader, for the first time openly linked to Russia with their activities. The Yugoslavs have also let it be known that they are to push Yugoslavia back into the Soviet orbit. Now some of these men are to be put on trial and last week Mr. Kurucovic, a party leader, for the first time openly linked to Russia with their activities.

An open denunciation of Soviet intrigues would go down well in Yugoslavia. Most Yugoslavs have feared and mistrusted the Russians since the Tito-Stalin break in 1948. An anti-Soviet campaign might not only revive the defiant anti-Soviet spirit of that time but would also serve to educate the younger generation who know little about the dark side of Soviet policy because of the ban on polemics in recent years.

And the current attacks on Stalinists in the Yugoslav party would be all the more convincing if these men could be represented as unapologetic agents of an aggressive foreign power.

President Tito still seems to hope to come to some arrangement with Russia. But his chances are not good. During a brief stopover in Moscow last weekend Stanke Dapcevic, the secretary of the Yugoslav party's politburo, had what he described as "useful, frank and friendly" talks which means no progress. The foreign minister, Mr. Mincic, may do better when he goes to Moscow soon.

Industrial chemical ban requested

CHICAGO (UPI) — A top federal fish and wildlife official says industrial chemicals known as PCBs should be banned because they are destroying wildlife resources and threatening the nation's health.

Nathaniel P. Reed, assistant secretary of the interior for fish, wildlife and parks, reported his weekend "our rivers and streams are sick" and vast food and wildlife resources already have been contaminated by PCBs.

Reed, addressing a national conference on PCBs hosted by the Environmental Protection Agency and other federal agencies, said polychlorinated biphenyls, or PCBs, could wipe out fishing in such areas as the Great Lakes within a generation.

"Nothing short of immediate drastic action will enable us to raise anything better than lakes full of eunuchized fish," Reed said. "With the present preponderance of PCBs, the lifespan of the Great Lakes fishery will be limited to a single generation."

PCBs have been widely used as insulating fluids in certain electronic transformers and in hydraulic fluids. Lubricants, heat transfer fluids, and as plasticizers in adhesives, sealants, printing inks, coatings and waxes.

Environmentalists said the PCBs have made their way into streams and lakes and have been found to cause reproductive defects and death in fish, birds and mammals.

Rockville area people plant trees

In Vernon, six, 12-foot linden trees were planted last week, two at Talcott Park, one at Central Park, one at the Hale Street Mall, and one at Rockville High School.

The plantings were done by the Beautification Committee of the Rockville Area Chamber of Commerce, assisted by the public works department, Conservation Committee, and Mr. and Mrs. Everett Gardner.

The chamber's Living Memorial Program, for Vernon, Tolland, and Ellington, is a continuing one. Additional plantings will be made next fall from Memorial funds donated from now until that time.

Mrs. Ann Humphrey is chairman of the chamber committee. This year donations were augmented by earnings from the "Flower Power" project conducted by the chamber last spring.

In Tolland, four large linden trees were planted at the new town garage. In Ellington, two linden trees were planted at Brookside Park, one sugar maple near the Little League field, and five crimson burning bushes on the south side of the field's tennis courts. Another sugar maple was added to an existing row in front of the town garage.

The following donors and the names of those for whom the plantings were made in Vernon: Tom and Lyne Benedict for Joseph Gill, Mr. and Mrs. George Schwarz for Cpl. William Schwarz and Staff Sgt. Clayton Weber; Vernon Democratic Town Committee for John Snydal, Peter and Ann Humphrey for Leonard Lipman; Mr. and Mrs. Jean Boucher Sr. for Mrs. Yvonne Boucher.

Tolland: Evelyn Parizek for Shirley Hastings and Donald Soucier; Mr. and Mrs. Richard Rose for Donald Morgan-son; Mr. and Mrs. Laurence Small for Dean Yost.

Ellington: Evelyn Parizek for Minnie Fluckiger; the William Summers family for Minnie Fluckiger; Mr. and Mrs. Laurence Small for Joan Whitmore and Gordon Getchell.

Anyone who wishes to participate in the living memorial program may do so by donating $10. Further information is available by calling the chamber office.

A permanent record of the donation is inscribed on a page inserted in the Memorial Book which is on display at the chamber office.

Hebron swim program a success

swimming program which the commission took over this past summer.

Mrs. Murphy ran the program for the commission. She also suggested programs on water safety given to the schools.

The Junior Women's Club will conduct a communitywide inquiry of local leaders and citizens today through Saturday to determine their attitudes on crime problems and solutions.

The survey is the first step in "Hands Up," a national volunteer campaign to reduce crime.

The American Revolution Bicentennial Commission in Connecticut (ARBC) has announced plans to honor immigrant citizens of the state as "Twentieth Century Pilgrims."

John Sibon, Hebron's commission chairman has been asked to submit names to the ARBC.

Many took the basic class. But not many were in the more advanced courses, she told the commission.

She recommended the commission consider having separate sessions of three weeks each next year. Also they should consider classes for adult and five-year olds as well as older children and adults.
