HARTFORD — Frederick Milano, 52, a Waterbury truck driver, won the $100,000 Connecticut State Lottery prize Friday night. The winning number was 48-green-323.

STRATFORD — A father and son, Henry and Warren Watson, waded ashore to safety after their light plane crashed in three feet of water on Long Island Sound Friday when the engine stalled. They suffered minor injuries.

Regional

BOSTON — Arson has been declared the cause of a five alarm fire which injured three firefighters and caused an estimated $150,000 damage to one of Boston's oldest schools Friday. The fire broke out about 5 p.m. in Dudley School in the city's Roxbury section and was visible at least five miles away.

BOSTON — Thirteen persons had died accidentally in New England as the long Thanksgiving holiday entered its third day. The toll included seven in Connecticut, three in Maine and one each in Massachusetts, Vermont and Rhode Island.

National

A storm packing heavy snows strengthened its grip on the West today while the Midwest continued to dig out of a Thanksgiving eve storm that left 15 dead. Up to two feet of snow fell in the Southern California mountains Friday stranding hundreds of motorists.

MINEOLA, N.Y. — Maryjane Dahl's death will not be probed by a grand jury although the district attorney says there is "circumstantial evidence" her mother or her aunt turned off the girl's life-sustaining respirator. He said he would close the case because he could not provide evidence to back a medical examiner's ruling that the girl's death was a homicide. She was suffering from Hodgkin's disease, meningitis, kidney failure and a heart condition.

DETROIT — Preliminary studies of tapes indicate the near-collision Wednesday of two jumbo jets over southern Michigan may have come about because of a possible mistake by the Cleveland air control center. The tapes and other data were reviewed again today and a spokesman for the federal investigators said, "it's too early to tell exactly what happened."

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. — The Security Council called a private meeting today hoping to renew the U.N. peacekeeping mandate on the Golan Heights despite complications involving the Palestine Liberation Organization, which seeks equal footing in peace talks in Geneva.

International

REYKJAVIK, Iceland — Icelandic officials said today Britain must make a new diplomatic move in a dispute over North Atlantic fishing rights for Iceland may resign from NATO and close a key U.S. base.

MADRID, Spain — Government sources say right-wing Prime Minister Carlos Arias Navarro will resign in a few days, setting up a crucial test for King Juan Carlo's promise to liberalize the Spanish government.

Pacific peace goal of visit to China

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford, departing on a 10-day trip to China and other Far East points today, called his mission a commitment to America's "undiminished interest in the security and well-being of Asia" and peace in the Pacific.

The President, accompanied by his wife Betty and daughter Susan, 18, and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, said in a departure ceremony at Andrews AFB that he was making the trip "to consolidate the peace" that has followed the end of the Vietnam War and to "strengthen our new relationship" with China.

The first leg of Ford's trip takes him to Fairbanks, Alaska, and from there to China. The homeward leg includes stops in Indonesia, the Philippines and Hawaii. In Fairbanks, he planned to don boots and a parka to inspect the new trans-Alaskan pipeline scheduled for completion in 1977. His agenda for the overnight stay included a birthday party for Sen. Ted Stevens, R-Alaska.

In his remarks, Ford said: "Three times in our generation, wars in Asia disturbed the peace of the world and drew America into conflict. On this Thanksgiving weekend, we give thanks that America — and Asia — are at peace. Today, I begin a mission to Asia to consolidate that peace and to visit our two newest states — Alaska and Hawaii — which are most mindful of the importance of peace in the Pacific.

"I am traveling to the People's Republic of China to strengthen our new relationship with the great nation from whom we were isolated in mutual suspicion, for almost a quarter century."

But in apparent reference to the heavy Chinese attack on the U.S.-Soviet "detente" policy in recent months, Ford added, "We will stand for our own views, as we always have. But we will seek — in the American tradition — to foster mutual understanding."

He noted that he would be visiting "two important friends in Asia: the Philippines, one of our oldest partners, an ally which indeed symbolizes America's historic link and commitment to Asia — and Indonesia, a nation of 120 million people, a good friend of the United States, and a country of tremendous potential and importance."

"As I did last year on my visits to Japan and the Republic of Korea," Ford said, "I will reaffirm America's undiminished interest in the security and well being of Asia. That vast region is vital to us and to the world."

"I will bring to the people of Asia the good wishes and friendship of the American people."

Ford already has signaled that he expects no major diplomatic breakthrough during the four-day stay in Peking, but he expects to continue the dialogue begun by his predecessor in 1972 and said the trip is of "great significance" in expanding relations between the two countries.

Meantime, Kissinger told a news conference Friday that no major decisions will be made on the touchy status of Taiwan during the Ford visit.

The President is expected to be received by the ailing Mao Tse-tung, 82-year-old legendary Chinese revolutionary leader and founder of the Peoples' Republic of China, but most of his "substantive" talks will be conducted with blunt-speaking Teng Hsiao-ping, vice chairman of the PRC and acting premier.

Kissinger indicated to reporters that he expected Chinese officials to rip into U.S.-Soviet "detente" during Ford's visit, but he also made it clear that the United States will not allow Moscow or Peking to dictate its relations with Communist countries.

Kissinger said he expected to hear the same Chinese condemnation of detente that was heaped on him a few weeks ago when he went to Peking to set up Ford's visit.

"We will not try to convince them of our point of view," he said. "We agree that domination of the world by military force should be prevented."

Ford will leave most of the sightseeing to the women in his family.

New peril faces moose

BOSTON (UPI) — A love-sick, wandering moose who's looking for a winter mate is also risking his life.

The 850-pound moose, believed suffering from a worm disease that affects his navigational ability, drifted south from Maine about two months ago.

All he's got on his mind is finding a lady moose. After all, it's rutting season. But starting Monday, it's also deer-hunting season — for six days.

"Even though it's illegal to hunt moose in Massachusetts, we're worried this guy is going to be mistaken for a deer," state Fisheries and Wildlife Division spokesman Richard Cronin said Friday.

Some 60,000 hunters will be out to bag a deer during the brief season which ends next Saturday. Wildlife officials are concerned the loose moose might accidentally be killed.

"He's miraculously made it this far, but with the deer season coming up we'll just keep our fingers crossed that he'll be left alone and not endanger the public," Cronin said.

"As for attracting females down here," he added, "in this case he's got a hopeless task, and maybe that's made him even meaner."

Union tax proposals rejected by Gov. Grasso

HARTFORD (UPI) — Gov. Ella T. Grasso and state employe unions appeared heading for a major confrontation next week over Mrs. Grasso's attempt to put muscle into her campaign for economy in government.

The governor met with the Connecticut State Employees Association for about three quarters of an hour Friday to discuss her plans to lengthen the work week for state employes from 35 to 40 hours.

The public employes are threatening a strike unless their demands are met.

Mrs. Grasso, who says the longer work week will help close a projected $80 million budget deficit this year, rejected proposals by the union to increase cigarette and liquor taxes to raise money to reduce the deficit.

The governor called a special legislative session for Monday to implement her budget-trimming proposals. The lawmakers will hold public hearings Tuesday on the proposals and committees will draft the proposals Wednesday for consideration on the floor Thursday.

The CSEA is conducting a strike vote among the state's 40,000 employes and expects to have the results complete by the time the economy package hits the floor of the legislature.

Union president Alphonse Marotta said the CSEA informed Mrs. Grasso at the meeting that her plan was unacceptable.

Union officials from CSEA and Council 16, American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, AFL-CIO, said they have received favorable response for their recommendations among lawmakers they have contacted.

Richardson fears deficit spending

PARIS (UPI) — Elliot Richardson, U.S. ambassador to Britain nominated for Secretary of Commerce by President Ford, said Friday the United States faces "national bankruptcy" if it does not restrict its deficit spending.

In a luncheon speech to the American Club of Paris Richardson said continued U.S. deficit spending would lead to "national bankruptcy on one side or vast, complete cynicism on the other."

At the same time, Richardson said the United States should give more help to poor countries.

"In my own view we ought never to have allowed to develop a situation that even brought into question the sincerity of our long-term determination to help close the gap in living standards between the developed and developing worlds," he said.

Portugal's military rulers blame Reds for rebellion

LISBON, Portugal (UPI) — The military today purged another of its top leftist officers and for the first time openly attacked the Communist party, blaming its militants for siding with Portugal's abortive military rebellion.

President Francisco de Costa Gomes said in a statement that "the Communist party of the north has badly served the revolution by putting itself at the side of the counter-revolutionary rebels."

Costa Gomes statement, blasting a Communist rally Thursday in the northern city of Oporto, marked the first time the military government has openly attacked one of Portugal's major political parties.

The president also announced the resignation of Adm. Antonio Rosa Coutinho, the pro-Communist assistant navy chief who served on the military's policy-making Revolutionary Council.

Coutinho's ouster followed similar moves against Military Security Chief Gen. Otelo Saraiva de Carvalho and Army chief Gen. Carlos Fabiao.

Government sources said the resignations represented a polite way of firing the officers.

The Portuguese government Friday purged leftist workers from eight major newspapers and has imprisoned scores of military men, cracking down on far left dissidents in an effort to get Lisbon back to normal after the military revolt.

Prime Minister Jose Pinheiro de Azevedo, whose cabinet ended its nine-day-old walkout Friday night, said martial law and the midnight-to-dawn curfew in the capital would be lifted soon.

The cabinet went on strike because of what the ministers called inadequate security conditions, but in a television broadcast Friday, Azevedo announced that "conditions exist for the sixth provisional government to resume its activities."

Meanwhile, thousands of Lisbonites deserted the capital for a three-day holiday weekend marking Portugal's independence from Spain in 1640.

Azevedo said they should use the holiday to celebrate the government's victory over the short-lived rebellion.

Four persons died and four others were injured in a two-day revolt by leftist troops at five airbases across Portugal.

New utility agency starts work Monday

HARTFORD (UPI) — The Connecticut Public Utilities Control Authority, product of a campaign promise by Gov. Ella T. Grasso, becomes an official state agency Monday.

The authority replaces the Public Utilities Commission, which is being drummed into oblivion as an agency no longer relevant to the consumer-oriented 1970s.

Mrs. Grasso made soaring electric and gas bills a key theme in her 1974 election campaign and promised to abolish the PUC and replace it with an agency more attuned to the public.

Although she didn't promise her new agency would lower utility bills, she left the public with the impression that the agency would be able to stem the rise in gas and electric bills.

The PUC wrapped up a series of pending decisions this past week to clear the way for the new agency. Only a handful of decisions were left before the agency closes up Monday, Chairman Howard E. Hausman said.

The five-member authority was sworn in during State Capitol ceremonies Friday.

Two members of the PUC will serve the new agency. They are Albert J. Kleban of Easton, expected to be the chairman of PUCA, and Gerald J. McCann of Bristol.

Also serving the authority will be Miam B. Butterworth of West Hartford, Richard O. Jones of Woodbridge and Thomas K. Standish of Hartford.

President picks legal scholar for Supreme Court opening

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Judge John Paul Stevens, President Ford's choice to succeed William O. Douglas on the Supreme Court, is regarded by the legal profession as an excellent law scholar who should fit comfortably on a court which tends to lean toward judicial conservatism.

In announcing the selection Friday of Stevens, 55, a five-year veteran on the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Chicago, Ford described him as "held in the highest esteem" by legal professionals and said he expected him to "bring both professional and personal qualities of the highest order" to the high court.

Ford's choice was somewhat of a surprise. Stevens had no national reputation, although Chicago-area lawyers, judges and law school professors called him an excellent choice to succeed Douglas, who resigned from the court Nov. 12 because of rapidly declining health.

In choosing a man of high professional recognition and bypassing more public persons with known political associations such as Sen. Robert Griffin, R-Mich., Ford appeared to sidestep potential controversy over the prospect of an unelected President asserting political power that will endure long into the future.

Ford said Stevens' name would be submitted to the Senate Monday for confirmation, and he urged the Senate to put top priority on approval

"in order that the court may be at full strength in considering its current calendar."

The Senate reconvenes next week after a Thanksgiving recess, but has scheduled a Christmas recess to start Dec. 19. There was no word from Chairman James Eastland, D-Miss., whether the Senate Judiciary Committee would attempt to pass on Stevens before next year.

Attorney General Edward H. Levi, another native Chicagoan, and White House counsel Philip Buchen reportedly were those most involved with Ford in coming up with a nomination.

"John Paul Stevens has been a strong and most able judge," Levi said. "For the many who know Judge Stevens and for those who will get to know him I am sure it will be realized that the nomination is a commitment to excellence."

In Chicago, Stevens told reporters he would "do everything in my power to render the best possible judicial service of which I am capable." He said he would "discharge the responsibilities of the new office in a manner consistent with the finest traditions of a great institution."

Prof. Philip Kurland, of the University of Chicago Law School, called Stevens "a first-rate lawyer, a first-rate judge and a first-rate person. More than that you can't ask for."

The White House released a list of about a dozen opinions Stevens had written which it called "representative." They tended to show that Ford's choice will reflect a moderately conservative view and will frequently line up with the four conservative justices appointed by former President Richard M. Nixon.

The opinions showed that Stevens favors restraining court intervention in the affairs of state and local governments, a view which will find favor in the current high court after years of judicial activism fostered under the late Chief Justice Earl Warren.

WINGS OF EVENING

It is almost time

Thanksgiving is over and it is almost time for Christmas. The excitement mounts for the child who is counting the days. The anxiety mounts for the harried adult who is worried about the long shopping list still waiting. So much still to do — and so little time! In the excitement of "what will I get?" and the worry over "what will I give?" it is too easy to overlook the real meaning of Christmas. Advent begins tomorrow. This is the season of preparation for Christmas as Lent is the preparation for Easter. During this time we are looking forward to the birth of the Babe of Bethlehem, getting ready for His coming.

CLIFF SIMPSON

Beyond this was the preparation of the mind and heart for there was a deep religious hunger that found little satisfaction in the rather impersonal state religions. The "mystery religions" of that day sought a more personal relation with "the gods." They demanded personal commitment, initiation, acceptance into a preferential group, the sharing of secret knowledge. But even this failed to satisfy the hungry heart. Jesus came in the fulness of time.

"In the fulness of time" The Bible says that Jesus came in the fulness of time. We have only one word for time — the Greeks had two: "chronos" which is the measurement of time hour by hour (our word chronology comes from this) and "kairos" which describes the right time. An idea struggling to be born suddenly emerges when the "kairos" has come. When we count the days until Christmas it is "chronos."

When the Bible says that Jesus came in the fulness of time it is "kairos." "When the fulness of the time was come, God sent forth His Son..." (Galatians 4:4) The way had been prepared for the great event. Rome had established peace in all the Mediterranean world, the "Pax Romana" so that when the emissaries of the Gospel went as missionaries they had freedom of movement. In the fulness of time, in addition, the Roman roads which had been built primarily for military purposes, helped the early Christians to travel over the Roman world. In the fulness of time.

In the sense that God used the Roman Empire for His holy purpose, so He used the Greek world. The Greeks had established a common language the "koine," which enabled merchants and travelers to converse. Without this it would have been difficult to preach the Gospel. Once again — the fulness of time.

evidence of his faith, and asking for $100 as soon as possible. He sealed it, stamped it, and dropped it in the mail box at the post office. The post office had never had a letter addressed to God before, so the postmaster opened it. He showed it to the other employees, suggesting that they toss in some cash so that he could answer the request. When the donations were counted they came to $42.50. He generously rounded out the amount to $50, put it in an envelope, and mailed it to the immigrant.

Several days later another letter came, addressed to God. It expressed thanks for the prompt assistance, and a request for the other $50, closing with this warning: "Don't send it through the mail — the post office took half of it."

To my amazement the other morning in my reading I came across the essence of this story in "A Letter to God" written by Gregorio Lopez y Fuentes of Mexico. It was selected as one of the "Great Short Stories of the World" in a recent collection. One who became aware of the "Hunger Awareness Week" in Manchester. An example of "becoming aware" is cited in the book "Bread for the World" by Arthur Simon: "Ernest F. Hollings is a concerned Christian who had seen a lot of poverty, but he believed that the poor could climb to prosperity all by themselves if they just tried. 'I was a victim of hunger myopia,' he admits. 'I can't say that I really saw hunger until I went traveling with a Catholic nun, Sister Anthony, in January 1968. Though Hollings was an active Protestant, Sister Anthony thought he meant well and could learn, so she invited him to visit some families in a Charleston, S.C., slum. On a cold and rainy day they went visiting. According to Hollings: 'Before we had gone a block, I was miserable... I began to understand... that hunger was real, and it existed in hundreds of humans in my own city. I saw what all America needs to see. The hungry are not able-bodied men, sitting around drunk and lazy on welfare. They are children. They are abandoned women, or the crippled, or the aged. What makes this story a bit different is that Ernest F. Hollings was (and still is) a U.S. Senator from South Carolina. As governor of South Carolina he had refused to admit that the state had a hunger problem.'"

A Maslin William Feather writes: "Often an unfortunate experience on a by-path is just what is needed to keep us on the main road."

TODAY'S THOUGHT

Paul tells us in I Corinthians chapter ten, that the Old Testament writings are written for our admonition. God provided food for the children of Israel in the wilderness. The food, which they called manna, was to be gathered fresh each day, except on the sixth day they could gather enough for the Sabbath. This is symbolic of the fact that God wants us to enjoy fresh spiritual food each day.

The Press and the American Revolution Dunmore expelled from Virginia

By Dr. Francis G. Walett Worcester State College Copyright 1975 American Antiquarian Society The British landing party headed for the print shop of John Holt, publisher of the Virginia Gazette or Norfolk Intelligencer, carried off the type, part of the press and two journeyman printers. Holt himself barely escaped. Some in the colony thought that Norfolk Patriots should have resisted, but, overawed by the cannon of British frigates, they merely watched.

By this raid of Sept. 30, 1775, Lord Dunmore, the last royal governor of Virginia, silenced one of his most daring critics. Holt had been running disparaging articles about the governor right under the guns of the British fleet where Dunmore had taken refuge. Now the governor had his own press and from offshore he sporadically issued a newspaper or proclamations. Royal authority in Virginia had been virtually destroyed by this time. It was partly due to the ineptness of Governor Dunmore and partly because of the growing Patriot protest against British rule.

The previous year the House of Burgesses had been in session when news of the Boston Port Bill reached Williamsburg. Patriots led by Thomas Jefferson, Patrick Henry, and Richard Henry Lee planned a fast for the day when Boston was to be closed. Although fasting was not fashionable in Virginia, the excitement of the time enabled the Patriots to push a protest resolution calling for the fast through the legislature. Lord Dunmore was so shocked that he dissolved the assembly May 23, 1774. But some members adjourned to the Apollo Room of the Raleigh Tavern where, in an unofficial meeting, they adopted some revolutionary proposals.

While the governor sat in the chair the Patriots made plans for Virginia to send delegates to a general congress at Philadelphia in September. They also called for a boycott of English goods. Other rebellious measures were proposed, too — closing courts and stopping payment on British debts. While the governor sat in the Palace at Williamsburg his power began to evaporate. Throughout Virginia, meetings were held and committees were formed to enforce the boycott and to close courts. At the Fairfax County meeting, George Washington presided. Virginians fully concurred with the actions taken by the First Continental Congress that September, and during the winter of 1774-1775 military preparations were made throughout the colony.

In March 1775 the House of Burgesses met as a convention without the governor or the council at Richmond. Here firmer enforcement of the boycott and stronger military measures were planned. It was at this time that Patrick Henry — in one of his magnificent speeches — asked, "If life so dear, or peace so sweet, as to be purchased at the price of chains and slavery? Forbid it, Almighty God! I know not what course others may take; but as for me, give me liberty or give me death."

But at Williamsburg, Gov. Dunmore decided he had better take some action. On April 20, 1775, acting on the governor's orders, a squad of marines seized the colony's gunpowder in the magazine at the capitol and carted it off to the Magdalen lying in the James River. The infuriated Patriots gathered at Fredericksburg and other muster places, planning to march on Williamsburg. As conservatives worked to prevent violence, Governor Dunmore promised to pay for the gunpowder. Peace was preserved for the time being and the militia dispersed. Still unaware of the strength of the revolutionary movement in Virginia, the governor called a meeting of the House of Burgesses for June 1, 1775. He hoped to reopen courts and to restore his authority, but feelings were running so high against him that one member suggested hanging the governor. At this point Dunmore decided to take his family to Yorktown where he boarded the "Powey". The disgruntled Burgesses, many of whom were anxious to preserve old governmental forms, sent a message to the governor protesting his absence and then finished their business. It was the last meeting of Virginia's colonial assembly. Lord Dunmore made his way to a ship in the Norfolk area where there were some traders who supported him. And nearby at the village of Gosport he began gathering soldiers, hoping that he would be able to re-establish control over the colony. There were a handful of British regulars, a few marines, some Tories, and about 200 runaway slaves. All in all, it was a rather pathetic force. As the Patriots were organizing two regiments of militia to move against Dunmore, British vessels sailed about Chesapeake Bay plundering plantations and carrying off Negroes. During one of these chicken-stealing raids, a tender was driven ashore at Hampton by a storm. The exasperated citizens of the two made off with the guns aboard and burned the boat. When Capt. Spier of the Otter tried to recover some of his property, the townspeople drove him off with guns.

Shortly the governor, in a futile move, declared martial law, and on Nov. 17, he unwisely issued a proclamation promising freedom to all slaves who would join him. This rash act turned the entire planter class against Dunmore. Affairs came to a head in December 1775 when American militia under Capt. William Woodford routed the governor's mixed force at Great Bridge a few miles from Norfolk. Dunmore hastily fled to a warship. Not long after he retaliated by setting Norfolk afire. When the Americans occupied the town in February 1776 they completely destroyed, making it useless as a military base. Although the governor doggedly tried to exert some influence, he was completely discredited. His offshore press had issued papers and proclamations from time to time, but its circulation was very limited. It disappeared completely in early 1776 a short while before Governor Dunmore left Virginia shores. The Constitutional Gazette of New York, Sept. 30, 1775 summed up feelings about the governor in these terms: "In a late hurricane at Virginia, it seems Lord Dunmore fared but indifferently, as by some accident or other, occasioned by the confusion in which the sailors were, his lordship fell overboard, and was severely ducked. But according to the old saying: 'Those who are born to be hanged, will never be drowned.'"

"Maybe if we don't look, it won't hurt!"

Guest editorial National Bible Week

By Don Shoemaker Editor of The Miami Herald Whether the Bible is the full and true word of God, as many Christians believe; or it is the history of a religion, as all scholars acknowledge, or whether, finally, it is to be held simply as great literature, as agnostics and writers agree, it is to all mankind a universal gift. No other book has been translated into nearly every language and dialect. No other book appears, in one version or another, in so many homes and inns and even hovels. The Bible's very antiquity, which stretches back in the Old Testament to some date between the 15th and 8th centuries, is at once mysterious and electrifying. In the main the "preservation" of the hundreds of sacred manuscripts which were in fact lost in a strange triumph of the perseverance of the human heart and mind. To think, further, that the Bible is the first typewritten history of man, surviving natural catastrophe and the collapse of civilizations, which one may hold in his hands must make the senses tingle. It is a universal book, yet 66 books in all, from Genesis to the sermons from the "Preparation of the Old Testament," according to the fabulous encyclopedia, the Scofield Reference Bible, to the "Consummation of the Apocalypse."

As such the Bible is the human story, in its scope a chronicle of the family of man as awesome and compelling as an historical novel. The intense study of it, as Samuel Taylor Coleridge wrote, "will keep any writer from being vulgar in point of style." But we miss the majesty of this book if we regard it only as a book and anything less than the consensus of man as related to God. James Cardinal Gibbons found it in all candor "full of obscurities and difficulties not only for the illiterate, but even for the learned." Pope Leo XIII thought that its "sacred writers" could have made mistakes but they "render in exact language, with infallible truth, all that God commanded, and nothing else."

In keeping, then, with both scripture and man in the flesh the Bible is a book of both comfort and despair, of romantic love and voluptuousness, of the nobility of the human mind and of its crass brutality, written in a manner which both contents scholars and challenges them to try to improve — vainly I think — on its language. It is a very part of the vernacular of the last 20 centuries. Anyone who can be without it, through ignorance of its pageantry or scorn of its religiosity is sorely deprived.

'Butterfly' praised

The weekend of Nov. 14, I did not see the play "I Never Saw Another Butterfly" by Celeste Haspani because of a power failure. When I finally did see it, I was treated to a powerful play, definitely not a failure.

The play centers around a Czechoslovakian ghetto named Terezin which held a large number of prisoners, mostly children of whom only about 100 survived. The script is based on the actual drawings and poems of the children who entered Terezin and consequently were transferred to the Auschwitz death camp.

The play is presented as a series of flashbacks and memories of a Jewish girl named Raja, one of the few who survived Terezin. Her story is one of how she and the other children once again saw beauty in life, even under these most terrifying circumstances.

A unique feature of the play was its use of multimedia effects. Slides were projected on the backdrop, and recorded sound effects and voice-overs were used along with the action of the play.

At first, I was skeptical of these effects but only moments later, was amazed at how they recreated the mood of the scene, and added realism.

Without a doubt, the most striking element of the production was the consistently superb acting. Every move, every line given gave off the atmosphere of the scene.

The audience could feel the bewilderment and fear of the children entering Terezin. We could feel the trapped feeling underlying the scene of the Jewish family forced into the ghetto. The transitions from Raja's narrative to her flashbacks were smooth, effective, and exploit throughout, due to the fine work of director Lee Hay and excellent delivery of actress Sheila Bosshack.

Every actor and actress was very confident and polished, but especially noteworthy was the performance turned in by Birgitte Svendsen, AFS exchange student from Norway. Birgitte's portrayal of the woman Irena was greatly expressive, sincere, and genuinely moving.

The script, the directing, the acting, the special effects, all combined perfectly. Congratulations to all who participated in this outstanding portrayal of the Terezin Camp. — Dave Nelson

I shall never forget "I Never Saw Another Butterfly." This play was one of the most beautiful things to come out of MHS. I wish to express my admiration and deepest emotions to those who made the production such a moving experience for me, and many others. I'm sure, they

The words that best express the exquisite poignancy of the sensitive performance given are those words from the play itself: "He doesn't know the world at all, who stays in his nest and never goes out. He doesn't know what the birds know best, or what I want to sing about — that the world is full of loveliness." — Christine Jaworski

Skaters win

As all of you know, the hockey team had a fine showing on Nov. 19 in their four short scrimmages. One against Platt and East Catholic and two against Maloney. Goals were scored by Mike and Bernie Hebert turned away everything thrown at them. Dave Kershaw, Clark Brown, and Bryan Woodhouse provided the firepower, with Dave collecting goals and Clark and Bryan each getting one. Manchester had a total of ten players for the scrimmage.

Students aid peers

We are happy to announce that a Peer Communications Program will be available as a regular service to high school students. This is an unusual service since the counselors are students wishing to help fellow students who would prefer to deal with a peer rather than an adult.

Initially, the counselors, under the supervision of the school social worker Pat Hughes, will be working with new students, helping them to adjust to their new surroundings.

Later, they hope to serve any student who needs direction or a sympathetic ear. One meeting, and you'll know why. The small vocal minority seem to be starting campaigning for next spring.

The whole purpose behind student government has been lost. We are not there to see who knows the most about parliamentary procedure or to ask constitutional limits. We do not go to bolster ego or grab power. The purpose is to benefit the student and help him anyway we can.

We are there to listen, not only to ourselves, but to others as well. If we are to make changes we must concentrate on what really matters, the problems. The way the problems are presented is not important, their discussion and possible solution is. — Dave Maloney

As for his other LPs, George's classic "All Things Must Pass" is a find nothing on it to complain about. "Dark Horse," containing fine songs like "Ding Dong, Ding Dong," is also a fantastic record. His newest "Extra Texture," deserves no less credit. Too bad "Living in a Material World" couldn't have been up to these standards. — Mark Otter

Rock review: George Harrison

George Harrison is a great artist. In my opinion, he's the only ex-Beatle to be great after their unfortunate divorce. The other three are doing good work, but fail to shine with absolute genius like Harrison's. Of his three post-Beatle albums, only one falls below the status of excellent. This is "Living in a Material World," the only mar on his record, if you'll excuse the pun.

Harrison created "Material World" as a religious experience in an attempt to get advertisement for Krishna consciousness, a transcendentalist religion. Unfortunately, he made the mistake of letting religious lyrics get in the way of good music. Examples are "The Light That Has Lighted the World" and "The Lord Loves the Ones," songs in which the music is weak and the lyrics are poor. They aren't alone, either. "Sue Me, Sue You Blues" is a cheap song, gripping about Harrison's troubles after the Beatles' breakup. Its style is reminiscent of John Lennon's rebellious nature.

However, I shouldn't give the album a completely bad review. Harrison's musical genius comes through on several tunes. "Give Me Love" is a beautiful ballad.

MHS Civitan Club granted charter

This past Sunday, Nov. 23, MHS's newest club was chartered at a ceremony at the MCC Student Center. This club now joins 670 others just like it across the country, and, along with four other Connecticut clubs, forms the New England District, the 26th such district internationally.

What the heck is Civitan? Civitan is an international community service organization. Its projects are limited only by its members' imagination.

On Sunday our MHS club was chartered along with the East Catholic Junior and St. Joseph Collegiate Civitans co-sponsored by the Manchester Senior and the MCC Collegiate Civitans. Bob Bucher, International Civitan Director of Youth Activities, spoke to the group of about sixty Civitans.

Presently, there are about twenty members of MHS Junior Civitan. The officers as installed on Sunday are: President, Stu Flavell; vice-president, Tom Grakowsky; secretary, Dawn Lindsay; and treasurer, Cindy Dziato. Anyone interested in becoming a part of this club can talk to anyone of these mentioned above. If you are interested in this organization, but we need you only if you are willing to help. — Stu Flavell

Letter to editor: Purpose seems lost

Never before have I come away from a student assembly meeting as thoroughly disgusted. I have been attending meetings, but this was the worst; anyone who was there knows why.

All the candidates ran last year on the pledge they would break up the "country club" atmosphere. In my opinion they have and in doing so have created an asylum. We have a small minority who come trying to bolster their egos in front of an audience. They try to prove how smart they are in parliamentary procedure and the constitution. Some of them come on as liberators of the student population who, they think, they speak for. We have constant bickering on who goes first, how to go first, out of order, and other petty details. People wonder why so few come. One meeting, and you'll know why. The small vocal minority seem to be starting campaigning for next spring.

The whole purpose behind student government has been lost. We are not there to see who knows the most about parliamentary procedure or to ask constitutional limits. We do not go to bolster ego or grab power. The purpose is to benefit the student and help him anyway we can.

We are there to listen, not only to ourselves, but to others as well. If we are to make changes we must concentrate on what really matters, the problems. The way the problems are presented is not important, their discussion and possible solution is. — Dave Maloney

There will be no High School World next Friday, Dec. 5 because of the Thanksgiving break. There would not be enough newsworthy material to fill the page. Look forward to HSW's return Dec. 12.

The students had been questioned earlier before participating in this program as to what career they were interested in. From there, they were able to choose what businesses they wished to visit that might pertain to their future careers.

This program proved to be very informative and interesting to the students who took part. — L. Stupanski

It is through these trips that she feels her understanding for cultures and people has broadened, and her ability to share enlarged. Also, her knowledge of languages has increased. She speaks a little Polish, Spanish, Yiddish, Hebrew, and French.

Judy is tentatively planning to attend NYU to major in psychology. Her present high school courses are geared towards that direction as she is taking patterns of human behavior, child development, and other courses. This is not unusual, for Judy is an individual who "loves people," and spends the majority of her time with them. She is especially attracted to the "honest and lovable" nature of children and hopes to become a child psychologist. She would like to work with underprivileged children. Judy's ambitions are to give as much as she can of herself, and through her work, she wants to show people that "one person can change things and make himself happy."

Friendship remains as one of the most important aspects of Judy's life and she hopes to know as many people as she can. She feels that one grows a little out of each person one meets.

When asked for her philosophy of life, Judy replied, "Our destiny is not in our own hands. You can change a situation, but there will always be an end." She also believes that one must work to make one's goal within one's grasp. A person should also know when to worry and when not to worry for much aggravation might cause one to despair and give up. However, Judy appears to know who she is, and where she is headed. "Today is much more important than tomorrow. Take one day at a time." — Sue Koski

Profile: Judy Kopman

Anyone can say that talking with Judy Kopman for the first time is an absorbing experience which would encourage anyone to want to know her better. She is not only interesting to others, but also interested in others.

Judy is very athletically inclined, and not only belongs to the tennis team but demonstrated her excellence in the sport when she won the mixed doubles in the town tournament this past summer. In addition, she enjoys skiing, skating, track, and swimming.

Aside from physical endeavors, Judy engages in wood crafting and has built a variety of things including two cedar chests and stands.

Judy's school interests are largely devoted to Student Assembly. Being a very active member, she was chairman of the sports committee, and arranged nighttime coffee houses. This year Judy belongs to the Senior Commencement Committee, and, along with Jane Donovan, is arranging a music assembly.

Through such involvement in the school, Judy feels she is really contributing and hopes to discourage people from knowing her as "just another member." In her opinion, things can be changed, but you have to work at it.

Judy is really interested in music. As she has demonstrated by her active part in the music assembly, her preferences, just to touch upon a few, include Joni Mitchell, Bob Dylan, Dan Fogelberg, and Yes. Judy herself is an aspiring guitarist, and is becoming quite proficient at playing. She is also into poetry, and not only reads it, but writes her own. Poetry, to her, is a valuable, expressive art. One of her favorite poets is Khalil Gibran.

Judy has very defined feelings about MHS.

"I think MHS has a lot to offer...but I strongly feel that the student/teacher relationship is lacking greatly...a student advisory board has been set up to correct the problem, but yet, when it's outside the school, teachers tell us that the administration won't let them associate with us."

Judy feels that there is an education to be found both in and out of school. She intends to graduate in January to go to Israel and Paris for four months. She will work on a kibbutz in a sincere effort to help in the Israeli effort. Judy is highly sensitive to world affairs and this past month rallied for the U.N. Zionism conflict in New York City. She is concerned about this and firmly ascertains that the U.N. is becoming more of a destructive force, now, than an aid.

In the past, Judy has traveled to Paris, Rome, Israel, and California.

Judy is tentatively planning to attend NYU to major in psychology. Her present high school courses are geared towards that direction as she is taking patterns of human behavior, child development, and other courses. This is not unusual, for Judy is an individual who "loves people," and spends the majority of her time with them. Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am 27 and my wife is 24. It's Eldora's second marriage. She was married for eight years to a man who was 15 years older than she was, and they had one child.

Abby: I really love Eldora and her son, but we've been married only four months and she's left me five times! She stays away about a week each time. She packs up and says she's going to her mother's.

The last time she left, I found out she went back to her ex-husband. When she came home, she told me she had lived as man and wife again, and she thinks she loves him more than me because he is the father of her child. Also, she says he is a much better lover than I am. (How is that for an insult?) On the other hand, she says she is a jealous man who treats her rough and likes to run with other women.

I love Eldora and would do anything to keep her home, but how can I arrange for this running back and forth in no good. Please help me. Maybe I need someone to tell me to kick her fanny out for good.

TROUBLED IN N.J. DEAR ABBY: Eldora and I are together now. I insist on a "trial-cooking" marriage. And if Eldora isn't willing to be a faithful wife to you, kick her fanny back to her "ex" with no regrets.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I made a long trip to another city to visit my son and his family. The first evening, our son came home for dinner that we had to eat without him.

The second night, my husband and I dined alone since my son and his wife had a previous invitation for dinner. The third night, they asked us if we minded babysitting again while they called on friends.

The fourth night, we were asked if we'd stay with the children again while they went to a party. The next day, we said we had to go home, and they acted very hurt because they hadn't seen hardly enough of us. Abby, when parents visit their married children whom they do not see for months at a time, should they be expected to be unpaid babysitters?

USED IN PITTSBURGH DEAR USED: No. And if it happens to you again, you asked for it.

DEAR ABBY: I and Joe have been married for five months, and our problem is Joe's old buddy, Le Roy. He's 23 and single, and he can't seem to get it through his head that Joe and I are married now and would like to be alone.

Le Roy makes a date with a girl, stands her up and sits at our place all evening, just watching TV or playing cards with us. He'll come to our place right after work, just like he lives here. I've been setting the supper table for three almost every night since I've been married, and I'm tired of it. Joe says he wishes Le Roy would bug off, but he doesn't want to hurt his feelings. I hate to say anything because Joe and Le Roy have had his brothers since they were kids, and I don't think it's my place to do the talking.

So what do you say? DEAR FED UP: It's your husband's place to tell his old buddy that newweds need a little privacy. And if he doesn't tell him, it means that he isn't as fed up with him as you are. In which case, you should tell Le Roy as nicely as possible not to come around so often.

Manchester

Recent arrests include:
• David P. Deyorio, 23, of 44 Village St., Rockville was arrested today at 12:24 a.m. on Broad St. and charged with illegal possession of controlled substance (valium), operating a motor vehicle while license is suspended, and operating under the influence. Court is Dec. 15.

• John J. Gorman, 16, of 56 E. Maple St. was arrested today at 12:25 a.m. at the P & L Restaurant on E. Middle Tpke. and charged with fourth-degree larceny (theft of services). Court is Dec. 15.

• Anyta C. Devanas, 28, of 374 Hartford Rd. was arrested Friday at 1:48 a.m. at her home and charged with breach of peace and intoxication. Court was to be Friday.

• Two 15-year-old Bolton girls were arrested Friday at 12:20 p.m. at the Sears store in the Parkade and charged with fourth-degree larceny (shoplifting). They were referred to Juvenile Court and released to their parents.

Michael B. Smith, 16, of 69 Congress St. was injured in a two-car collision Friday at 11:28 p.m. on Cooper Hill St. at Cedar St.

The car driven by Smith struck the rear end of the parked car owned by Sandra Cromwell, 29, of 58 Cooper Hill St. The cars were towed away.

Smith was taken to Manchester Memorial Hospital where he was treated and released.

He was charged with speeding. Court is Dec. 23.

A 1969 Corvette owned by Leonard Werner of 9 W. Middle Tpke. was stolen Friday after 7 p.m. from in front of his home.

State police recovered the car after it was involved in an accident in East Lyme. They arrested two teenagers who were in the car.

David Sawtelle, 16, of 4 Tanner St. and Joseph Healy, 18, of Colchester were uninjured in the crash. Police charged them with second-degree larceny and held them in lieu of $1,000 surety bond each for court in New London Monday.

The 1967 Ford of Mrs. Beverly Tanner of 157 St. John St. was stolen early this morning from her garage. Patrolman Donald Wright saw the car being operated in a strange manner on Lilac St. at Center St. When he turned his cruiser around to go back and check it, no one was in it. Police returned the car.

Recent breaks and thefts include:

• The House of Chung on Broad St. was broken into early today. About 20 cases of beer are missing.

• Floyd's Market at 1 Broad St. was broken into Friday morning. Missing are eight cases of beer.

• A home on Edmund St. was broken into Thursday night. Nothing appears to be missing.

New York State lottery to undergo revamping

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — It will be taken "at least two months" to revamp the New York lottery, which was swept clean by Gov. Hugh L. Carey Friday, a Carey spokesman says.

The search is under way for a "nationally recognized" lottery expert to sort out the trouble-plagued game, which had already been shut down for a month.

In the meantime, the spokesman said, no new lottery games will be

Dr. and Mrs. Daniel Burns of Manchester will serve as host and hostess Sunday from 2 to 5 p.m. at Lutz Junior Museum.

The Rev. Dr. Felix Davis, pastor of Second Congregational Church, will lead a devotional program Monday at 1:30 p.m. in Cronin Hall of Mayfair Gardens. All Mayfair residents are invited.

Manchester Barracks, World War I Veterans, and Auxiliary will have a Christmas party Dec. 21 at 1 p.m. at the VFW Home. Reservations close Dec. 14 and may be made with Mrs. Adelaide Pickett, 649-2285.

held, although unfinished drawings will be completed.

Carey announced Friday he was firing Lottery Director Jerry Bruno and laying off or transferring 317 other lottery employees.

Bruno said he was "sacrificed" while those really to blame for the lottery's problems were not touched.

"I realize I have to be sacrificed to restore public confidence in the lottery," Bruno said. But he said, "I'm not willing to take the blame when I'm not deserving of the blame. It's unfair."

Carey suspended the $50-million-a-year lottery Oct. 22 after duplicate tickets were issued for a drawing. The governor also released the report of an outside consulting firm, which found "serious shortcomings" in the lottery.

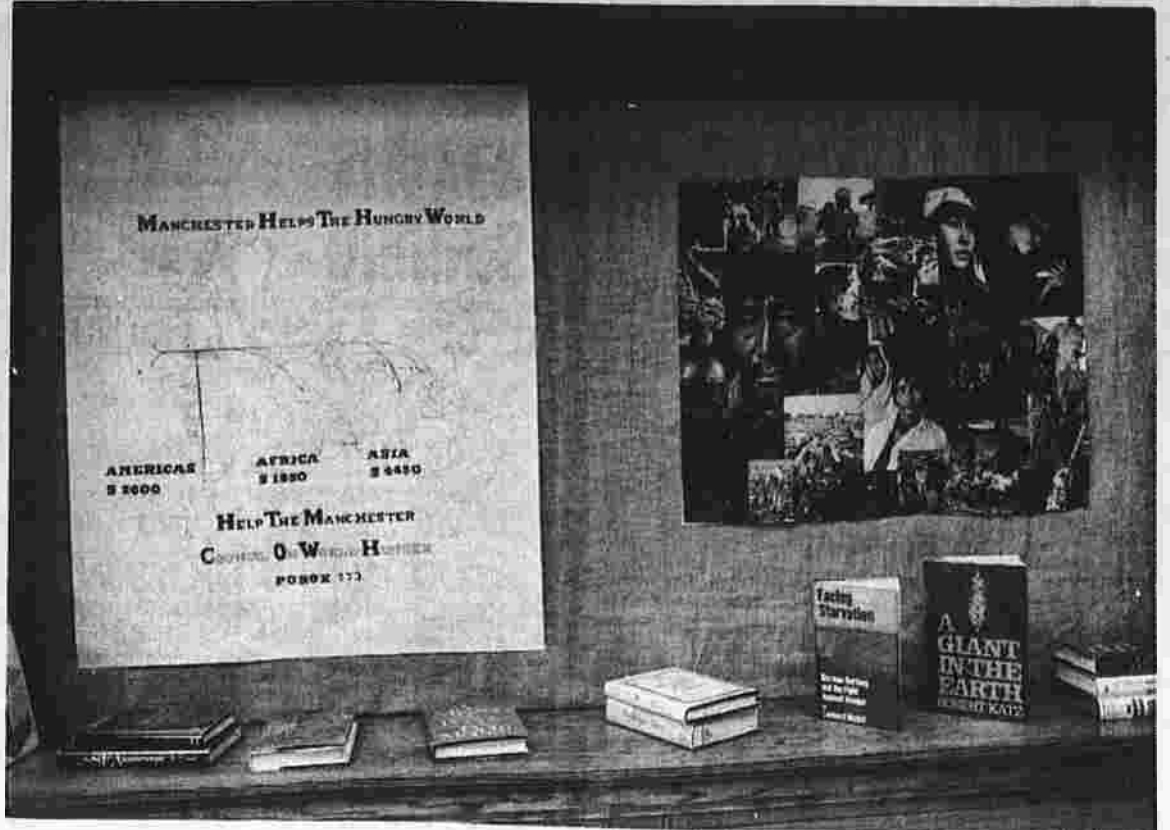

Bruno, 49, was one of Carey's advance men during last fall's campaign. He also was a campaign aide to Sen. Robert F. Kennedy and President John F. Kennedy.

Bruno blamed the Racing and Wagering Board, which oversees the lottery, and previous Republican governors for most of the lottery's problems.

"I can't correct the ills of seven years in six months," he said.

The weekly Connecticut State Lottery number drawn Friday night in Hartford was: 48-Green-323.

Display on world hunger

This exhibit on world hunger is on display this week at Mary Cheney Library. The feature, presented by the Manchester Council on World Hunger, includes a collage and a map of the world indicating areas where the council has sent funds to various food and self-help projects. Books and information are available to the public either on display or in the hunger file in the library's reference room. (Herald photo by Dunn)

Ellington man faces charges of larceny

Thomas B. Tambling, 21, of 1 West Rd., Ellington was arrested Friday on a court warrant charging him with six counts of burglary and five counts of larceny.

The charges stem from recent breaks into the Aberle Turkey Farm, the Pearl Oil Co., the Hall Memorial Library, the First Evangelical Lutheran Church, the Longview School, and a private home, police said. The property lost in the breaks totaled $1,200 in value.

Tambling is being held in lieu of $1,000 surety bond in the correction center in Hartford for court Monday.

MCC cuts some courses

State budget cuts are forcing Manchester Community College to cut at least 15 sections of elective courses taught by part-time lecturers for the spring semester, said Harry S. Godd, dean of student affairs.

Registration for the spring semester has been postponed from next week to the week of Jan. 5, he said. His office needs time to adjust to the drops. The courses may be added to the offerings of MCC's extension division at much higher costs to the students.

General fund open registration will now be Jan. 12 through 15. Registration for community service and extension courses will be Jan. 5 through 15.

Dinner-concert

An Elizabethan Christmas dinner-concert will be Dec. 13 at South Congregational Church, at 1301 Forbes St., East Hartford. The wassail bowl and plum pudding will accompany a roast beef dinner served by costumed page boys.

Music will be provided by strolling carolers and instrumentalists. After the meal there will be a concert by the University of Connecticut Chamber Singers.

For information, call Doris Rayner at 289-6401 or Barbara Barone at 289-3885.

First airing set

The Eugene O'Neill Memorial Theater Center in Waterford is giving a new musical its first airing in a workshop presentation this fall.

Called "Western Star" the new musical deals with the mythic theme of the drive to the American west. The setting is Colorado in 1876, the year it became a state.

The book is by Dale Wasserman, author of "Man of La Mancha," and Alec Wilder composed the music.

Search for good monkey is hard for UConn show

A good monkey is hard to find, especially one with "stage presence." But the University of Connecticut Dramatic Arts Department claims success in locating one — after a week-long search.

A little over a week ago, Lynn Gerr, a South Windsor senior who is stage manager for the department's upcoming production of "Inherit the Wind," put out the word that the department was actively seeking the services of a ring-tailed monkey (or equivalent) to appear in some scenes with an organ grinder.

She canvassed regional zoos, pet stores and a nearby game farm without finding a suitable candidate for simian stardom.

But now comes Bryan, a one-and-one-half-foot-tall, brown ring-tailed monkey, ready to grasp the first rung on the ladder of fame. Four years old and ready for his theatrical debut, he has been a family pet of Steven Sheak of Hartford, for two-and-one-half years.

Deadline for listings

Forum of the arts

By June Tompkins

At the Atheneum

Christmas in the Goodwin Parlor, a traditional Victorian family Christmas scene from the Goodwin mansion will be on view at the Wadsworth Atheneum in Hartford through Dec. 29.

Also at the Atheneum, The holiday festival of trees will be on display Friday through Dec. 14. There will be about 80 trees donated and decorated by area businesses and organizations, all for sale to the public, in Tapestry Hall.

At the Bushnell

Tonight at 8 p.m. at Bushnell Memorial Hall in Hartford, barbershop singing will be featured in a special Bicentennial program, "From Sea to Shining Sea."

Sunday at 2:30 and 7:30 p.m., Tanya Tucker and her sister, La Costa, will present a Country and Western show.

Wednesday at 8 p.m., Israel Stage Festival 1975 will be presented.

Friday at 8 p.m., The Connecticut Opera Association will present Puccini's Madama Butterfly featuring Pellegrini, Forst, Optoff and Rinaldi. Carlos Piantini conducts the orchestra.

Dec. 7 at 3:30 p.m., the Connecticut Valley Theatre Organ Society presents the New England premiere of George Wright in a theater organ concert.

For Bushnell ticket information, call the box office at 246-6807.

Area theater

"Inherit the Wind," the drama about the famous Scopes "Monkey Trial" of the 1920s involving evolution that explores the struggle for freedom of thought, will begin Friday in the Harriet S. Jorgensen Theater at University of Connecticut in Storrs. The play by Lawrence and Lee will play through Dec. 13 at 8:15 p.m. For reservations, call the box office at 429-2912.

At the Hartford Stage Company in Hartford, Edward Albee's "All Over" plays through Dec. 7.

A "mini" subscription season is available for the Stage Company's three final productions — Ray Aranha's "The Estate," a world premiere, "Dream on Monkey Mountain" by Derek Walcott, and "Born Yesterday," the classic American comedy by Garson Kanin. An extra week has been added to the run of each show, and seats will be subscribed on a first-come, first-served basis.

For reservations and additional information on the savings series, call the theater box office at 525-5601.

Tonight and Sunday mark the final performances of "Very Good Eddie" at the Goodspeed Opera House in East Haddam.

For combination dinner and theater, The Coachlight Dinner Theatre in East Windsor is featuring Imogene Coca in "Once Upon A Mattress" through Dec. 28.

Festival planned

The annual State Junior Music Festival sponsored by the Connecticut State Federation of Music and Dance Clubs will be March 27-28 and April 4-5 at the Bernhard Arts Center at the University of Bridgeport in Bridgeport.

The Connecticut State Music Festival is an annual musical event open to all Connecticut young musicians through 18 years of age from beginner through musically advanced. It is not a competition as entrants are judged solely on their individual performances.

For information, contact Christine Shoh, 20 Millview Terrace, Ridgefield, Conn. Telephone 438-4624.

Song recital

Ruth Wilson, alto soloist of Trinity Episcopal Church in Hartford, will present a song recital Dec. 7 at 4 p.m. in the church at 120 Sigourney St., Hartford.

Her program will include music by Brahms, Debussy, Lucas Foss and Glanville-Hicks. The event is free.

Poetry contest

A $1,500 grand prize will be awarded in the current Poetry Contest sponsored by the World of Poetry, a monthly newsletter for poets.

Poems of all styles and on any subject are eligible to compete for the grand prize or for 49 other cash or merchandise awards. Second place is $500.

Each winning poem will be included in prestigious World of Poetry Anthology. Rules and official entry forms are available from World of Poetry, 801 Portola Dr., Dept. 211, San Francisco, Calif. 94127.

A foxy grandpa
 If ever there was a foxy grandpa it's Will Geer, the lusty old goat of "The Waltons" TV series who's even more obstreperous off the screen. (UPI photo)

He hasn't changed
 Jack Albertson is delighted with his late-blooming success as Ed Brown in TV's "Chico and the Man," but it hasn't changed his lifestyle. He and his wife still live in a middle-class West Hollywood neighborhood. (UPI photo)

Ask Kleiner

By Dick Kleiner

DEAR DICK: I heard once that the most difficult role for an actor to do is to grow old without losing character, in a film. I also heard that only Laurence Olivier and Peter O'Toole have ever done it masterfully. I thought that Steve McQueen was wonderful growing old in "Papillon." My question is, what do you think? — DENNIS MONSON, Stockton, Ca.

Certainly, growing old gracefully on screen is a tough trick for an actor, but I don't think you can say any one thing is the most difficult. Some actors will tell you the hardest thing to do is to be funny. Others will say their most difficult job is to convey changing emotions. Olivier and O'Toole have no monopoly on depicting age beautifully. I agree that McQueen was good, but so was Walter Matthau in "Kotch" and, just last year, Art Carney was superb and won an Academy Award as the old man in "Harry and Tonto."

DEAR DICK: Most TV music, I find, is discordant, repetitious, inappropriate and often so loud it smothered the dialogue. Is it because of the musicians' union or do misguided producers think this distraction adds something desirable to what might otherwise be an enjoyable program? — F.H.H., Mobile, Ala.

Ever since the nickelodeon, a musical background has been deemed wise for film. You'd miss it if it weren't there. Sometimes, of course, tasteless producers lay it on too thick, but generally I find TV music surprisingly good. They can't pay as much as movies pay, so they don't get the top composers and conductors. But, within those limits, I generally find TV music acceptable and not too distracting.

DEAR DICK: I am interested in a motion picture entitled "The Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come." I saw it about 25 or 30 years ago but have forgotten who the star was. — MRS. RACHEL CREEKBAUM, Richmond, Ohio.

Richard Barthelmess was the star of that silent epic.

DEAR DICK: Could you please tell me if Rich Little played Doby Gillis in the old Doby Gillis Show. If not, who did? — DEE DEE THORNTON, Palm Desert, Ca.

No, it wasn't Little. He was too little when Doby flourished. It was Dwayne Hickman.

DEAR DICK: Is Valerie Harper (Rhoda) married? If so, who is she married to? — JANET SHEPPARD, Thomasville, Ala.

Val is Mrs. Richard Schaal in what passes for real life. Schaal you see regularly on the Phyllis show.

DEAR DICK: I recently read a newspaper article listing show business people who were married in '74. Listed among the newlyweds was Michael Learned, of The Waltons. I hadn't heard about her getting married. Any idea whom she married? And any clue as to why she has a masculine given name? — M.K., Steubenville, Ohio.

Michael married an actor named Glen Chadwick in October, 1974. As to her first name, I once asked her about it and she said that her parents never gave her any explanation for it. She said she never liked it, when she was young, and used to call herself Betty. But now she likes it.

Stamps and coins Copper copy is improvement

By RUSS MacKENDRICK

Be calm, all; this is not really a Higley copper. It is just a very nice brass merchant's token (or store card), loaned for photography by Ed Blow of the Connecticut Valley Coin Co., 533 Main St.

This copy of the legendary coin is an improvement in a way if you compare the gazelle shown here with the knobby-legged animals on the genuine article.

The mine in Granby (later Newgate Prison) produced this country's first copper coinage in 1737. The owner, Dr. Samuel Higley, used the pure metal, with no alloy. The first minting was marked "threepence." Historians point out that this just happened to be the price of a noggin at the local tavern. Later obverses were similar to the above with the "VALVE (or VALUE). ME. AS. YOU. PLEASE."

Although a fair amount were struck, (they even circulated in England), they are scarce because their own purity did them in. They were soft and so wore out quickly, and furthermore they were in great demand by goldsmiths as an alloying metal.

The reverse of the token pictured here indicates a personage with many strings to his fiddle: "Alfred B. Robinson, Banker, Numismatist & Notary Public, Dealer in Stocks, Bonds, Notes, Land Warrants, Un-current Money & all Kinds of American and Foreign Specie. Hartford, Conn. 1861."

Robinson put out seven varieties of the piece - one in silver. Miller's Catalogue (1962) shows them priced from 15 to 75 dollars.

Dr. Duke writes

The latest Minkus Stamp Journal (now a slick-paper quarterly) has an illustrated article by Dr. Martin

Duke, Manchester cardiologist and a member of the local stamp club. The title is "The Heart and Stamps." He lists some convenient groupings for heart-related issues: Medications, individuals, transplants, resuscitation, World Health Organization, and meetings.

A stamp from Poland shows an electrocardiogram wave on a valentine type heart, and Gilbert and Ellice Islands had one picturing mouth-to-mouth resuscitation (spells easier the second time). There is a Cardiology Congress number from Greece to mark the get-together at Athens in 1968.

In the three-page write-up Dr. Duke gives a thumbnail history of cardiology progress as shown by worldwide stamp designers.

Rather gruesome

The 24-cent stamp turns out to be rather gruesome, but we won't have much to do with it anyway. On the brighter side, both mailers and collectors are reveling in the Banking and Commerce pair, real solid-citizen type stamps - a runaway for the "design of the year."

Between now and Dec. 28 is the time to send lots and lots of post-cards to use up those broken sheets of the baby-blue Ben Franklin sevens.

That is the day they lower the boom again and hit card-senders with a 10-cent blivit.

In the meantime three groups are putting up a battle in the courts to hold the line: The Association of Third-Class Mail Users, greeting card makers, and 11 states led by Maine, otherwise called old Dirigo ("I direct"). Fond, faint, hopes, though; who ever beat the "Thems" in USPS?

Save a duck

An article in the philatelic press urges everyone to buy duck stamps. However, nobody will thereupon force you to get out and squish through some swamp with a fowling piece. The proceeds are used to save wetlands before they are all over-topped with macadam. Nearly two million acres have been conserved since the program started in 1934. Spend $5 at the local post office and give some downy duckling a nice place to swim.

Grab-bag session

The Central Connecticut Coin Club will have a meeting and grab-bag session Monday (instead of Tuesday as usual) at 7 p.m. at the KofC Hall, 138 Main St.

They suggest a $2 item for grabs and/or a non-numismatic item for the Mansfield Training School.

LTM casting for next play

The Little Theatre of Manchester will hold casting for its next production, "Miss Reardon Drinks a Little," on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

Casting is scheduled for 8 p.m. each night in the LTM club rooms at 22 Oak St. The cast calls for five women and two men.

Members of the casting committee are director Charles Plese, Toni Fogarty, Carol Scofield and Frank Minutillo.

The show will be presented in the latter part of February.
