

Cromie to head town Democrats

Coventry
MONICA SHEA
742-9495

The Democratic Town Committee elected Richard Cromie as chairman.

Rose Fowler nominated Cromie. Fred Conlessa gave the second to her motion.

Vice-chairman of the committee, Rita Luzel, was also nominated but she declined to serve as chairman.

Cromie told the committee there were 24 members present at the meeting. With 24 members the committee had 24 reasons why the Democrats lost the election.

Cromie said, "And I said that we lost the election, not that the Republicans won it."

"I think we must reach a decision to support a slate of candidates and then forget our differences. In state, federal and local elections we have found that when you leave the camp you must face the consequences."

"The committee is used as another step in the final selection of candidates. We made the decision and did not support it."

"I hope we can turn the corner now. I am in favor of full and open debate. But when a decision is made, we should go with it."

Cromie will serve until a new committee is elected and installed in March.

Persons interested in serving on the Town Committee for the next two years are asked to contact the nominating committee members, Ruth Benoit, Cliff Johnson, Joyce Carilli, Dave Roach, George Bolduc and Lionel Jean.

This cab of a tractor trailer truck now bears little resemblance to the truck that began a right turn onto Silver Lane in front of Pratt & Whitney just after 8 this morning. Manchester firemen helped pry apart the cab to remove the truck's driver using the Hurst tool. The white stuff on the ground is foam used to reduce the hazard of fire caused by sparks as the men worked in ankle-deep gasoline. The truck had held over 8,000 gallons of gasoline.

Spilled gasoline adds to hazard

A gasoline tractor-trailer rig turned over on Silver Lane in East Hartford this morning spewing gasoline over a wide area and trapping the truck's driver in his cab, said East Hartford police.

Police called the Manchester, Town Fire Department at 8:32 a.m. seeking the aid of the Hurst tool, sometimes called the "jaws of life."

The tool works without sparks to pry apart tangled metal in accidents.

Firemen free truck driver pinned in overturned rig

Deputy Chief William Stratton and a crew of firemen took the tool to the scene that the driver had come off of the highway and was trying to make a right turn onto Silver Lane in front of the entrance to Pratt & Whitney Aircraft. The truck turned over and the cab was trapped between the trailer and the pole.

Skoglund said firemen from Manchester, P. & W.A., and Wethersfield were working at the scene. The gasoline was ankle deep, he said.

Some layoffs may cost state federal funding

HARTFORD (UPI) — Although their pay came from Uncle Sam, three state employees got pink slips in a budget-cutting move anyway.

The three women were laid off from their $5,800 a year jobs presumably because they lacked seniority. They are probationary employees with less than six months employment with the state.

"It doesn't make sense, the state is going to have to start paying me welfare," said one of the three, the sole support of her two young children. The mother and children live in a low income housing project.

Auto accidents decrease sharply in nine areas

By DOUG BEVINS

Herald Reporter

There's been a 28 per cent decrease in accidents in nine high-accident areas of Manchester since the local police department started its two-man Traffic Services Bureau, according to Gary Wood, one of the two traffic patrolmen.

The decline was noted in a report of the bureau's activities from April through Dec. 1, compared to accidents reported in three previous years, Wood said.

Traffic Services Bureau apparently key factor

Results of the bureau operations are beginning to show up in total accident figures for the whole town as well, Wood said. Manchester is now experiencing a slight decline in rate increase but now nationwide accidents are down by about five per cent, he said.

Coupled with the decrease in accidents at the nine locations have been a tremendous increase in motor vehicle arrests and warnings, Wood said, although the goal of the new program isn't just to make arrests.

The Traffic Services Bureau approach to reducing accidents includes high visibility patrol, selective enforcement, and use of "speedgun" radar.

"We're not out there hiding, trying to catch people speeding," Wood said. "We want to be seen, to create an awareness that we're there."

Wood and Patrolman John Marvin, the other officer in the bureau, use specially marked police cruisers in the traffic safety program. They work on separate shifts, overlapping at the 3-to-4 p.m. peak traffic period, and try to cover Manchester six days a week.

The bureau is unique because it deals only with traffic, Wood said. Regular patrol officers don't have as much time on traffic duty, because they're often too busy responding to other calls.

Most of the arrests made by Wood and Marvin are for speed-related violations. It's not unusual for the two officers to issue dozens of summonses in a single day.

There have been few, if any complaints that the traffic patrolmen are harassing motorists, Wood said. Most of the violators know they're speeding, he said.

"Most of the people know we're out there, and they say they have good reasons for speeding; they're late for work or late for an appointment," Wood said.

"But once they've been issued a summons and have to go to court or pay a fine, they'll think twice about speeding again," Wood said.

In troubled South Boston Youths protest tight controls

BOSTON (UPI) — A crowd of about 200 youths gathered near racially troubled South Boston High School early today, set small trash fires and broke into the school in apparent protest of tightened federal control of the school.

Police reported no arrests or injuries, and said the situation was "under control" at 2 a.m. An officer of the metropolitan police force said the students broke into the school, "but were quickly rushed out."

The demonstration capped a day of "mourning" for what anti-busing groups called "Black Tuesday" — the day earlier this week when U.S. District Judge W. Arthur Garrity Jr. decided to place South Boston High in federal receivership.

Almost all white students at South Boston boycotted class Friday, as did white students at Charlestown High School.

Another aspect of the protest Friday involved deliberate stalling of cars during the morning rush hour. That led to traffic on most major roads leading into the city.

Busing foes said they did not start the traffic disruptions, but that they expected them to get worse.

No similar protest occurred during the evening rush hour, when police prepared by placing extra patrols on duty.

James Kelly, a spokesman for two established anti-busing groups, said the disruptions were "troubling" and will get worse. He said he did not know who caused them.

David Duke, national director of the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, appeared at the morning news conference of another anti-busing group and promised the same thing.

"We (the Klan) cannot take full credit but we did have a hand in it," said Duke. "Things will be getting worse here. We plan other stoppages. The next will be three times as bad."

Warren Zamboni, the head of the South Boston Marshals, said he "didn't know" whether members of his organization took part in the traffic slowdown.

The marshals, self-appointed guardians of the South Boston community, held the news conference at which Duke appeared, but Zamboni denied any link between his organization and the Klan.

"He was just voicing his opinion," said Zamboni, but he later said Dukewas in Boston to "give us a hand."

The white student boycott was almost 100 per cent effective at South Boston High. Only 24 whites were in class, according to school department spokesman Frank Galvin, who said about 400 whites usually attend classes there. Only 92 whites showed up at Charlestown High, he said.

Tax compromise offered to Ford

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Finance Committee Chairman Russell Long has proposed that President Ford allow a tax relief bill to go into effect without a spending cut in exchange for a promise from Congress to cut the 1977 budget by the same amount as any future tax cut.

Long said he made his proposal in a spirit of compromise, but Ford still would not get the one thing he has demanded from as a condition of signing a six-month extension of 1975 tax cuts — a specific ceiling on fiscal 1977 spending.

A White House spokesman said officials there had not yet seen Long's proposal and could not immediately comment.

Almost everyone — except Ford's own advisers — have conceded that Congress would override a tax cut veto. Ford said repeatedly he would veto any tax bill unless it contained a spending ceiling.

The bill is expected to reach the Senate floor Monday. The House completed its bill earlier, but is expected to go along with a plan to put its revenue bill over unexcused year and pass the simple six-month extension.

Under Long's proposal, the Senate's $8.5 billion extension of 1975 tax cuts would go into effect without any action on a spending ceiling. Congress then would agree to cut the 1977 budget by an amount equal to any future tax cut that affect fiscal 1977. Long urged Ford to accept his proposal and avoid a veto fight.

Would-be holiday travelers hampered by airline strikes

By United Press International

Would-be travelers in the eastern half of the United States can hardly get from here to there during the holidays — by plane, train or bus. It's even difficult to get an airline, train or bus station on the telephone to find out that, generally, no reservations are available during Christmas-New Year's weeks.

Larger airline offices across the country were advising hopeful travelers to make their reservation requests in person at ticket offices.

"Do so as quickly as possible," advised Tom Gernuska, Cleveland public relations man for United Airlines. "Unfortunately, there will be damn little space available for mechanics over the holiday weeks."

The normal year-end holiday travel crush has been compounded by the grounding of two airlines by strikes to Christmas-National Airlines and United, the nation's largest domestic air carrier. No quick settlements of the strikes were forecast.

National, before the strike of flight attendants began Sept. 1, was operating about 300 flights carrying 45,000 passengers daily, mostly between Miami and the northeast. United, with 1,400 flights daily before its mechanics went on strike last week, carried 2.5 million passengers last December.

That load of travelers is too large to be absorbed by other airlines, train and bus lines which normally operate at peak capacity along the eastern seaboard during Christmas-New Year's.

Speed enforcement, though, isn't the only thing the Traffic Services Bureau is doing. Wood and Marvin have followed through on several traffic complaints, talking to townspeople about specific problems and requests for traffic signals or signs.

"We're trying to attack the whole problem," Wood said. By reducing speed violations, the bureau hopes to continue reducing the accident rate, the number of personal injuries, and the number of traffic fatalities.

The Traffic Services Bureau was initially funded — for salaries, equipment and the two special cruisers — by a $35,000 grant from the state Department of Transportation.

In the current fiscal year, the level of state funding has dropped to 60 per cent of the bureau's salaries, and the remaining 40 per cent comes from the police department's regular budget.

Police Capt. Richard Sartor said authorities expected a decreasing level of funding when the program was started, and it is expected the program will be integrated into the regular police budget if state grants aren't available next year.

Everyone involved in the program agrees that it's working but could use more than two officers.

"The potential for expansion depends on fiscal realities, though," Sartor said.

THOUGHT

Santa Claus or St. Nicholas has become so much a part of the Christmas season that we can hardly celebrate without him. The "jolly old elf" has gone through a long evolutionary process from "Saint" to "Santa," from more mundane clothing to the bright red suit he wears today, from religious connotation to secular aid to the advertising and commercial fields.

I do not envy the old gentleman the place he has achieved in the imaginations of much of the world's children and adults. I hope and pray he will not be allowed eclipse in his good-humored way the real personality of Christmas, the Christ child in Bethlehem's manger. This child went on to maturity, to teach, to heal, to die, and to rise again; to become the living embodiment of hope to all the world's people. "Glory to God in the highest, and on earth, peace, good will toward men." (Luke 2:14)

The Press and the American Revolution Tom Paine writes 'Common Sense'

by Dr. Francis G. Walcott

American Antiquarian Society

"The blood of the slain, the weeping voice of nature cries, 'Tis time to part.'" With these ringing words Thomas Paine called on Americans to declare their independence.

In Common Sense, published first in Philadelphia in January 1776, the fiery propagandist condemned George III and urged the colonists to make a complete break with Britain. His word appealed not only to reason but to the emotions as well: "Oh, ye that love mankind! ye that hate not only the tyranny but the tyrant, stand forth!"

Paine had come to America from England less than two years before. Of poor Quaker background (the son of a carpet-maker), he had not had much schooling, but his thoughtful, provocative man had read widely in many areas. He was much inclined to rationalistic thought and deism. Two failed marriages, crushing poverty and a monotonous trade had made Paine an unhappy man. He was at war with the world he had found.

Having met Benjamin Franklin in London, he received a letter of recommendation with him to America. This restless soul tried his hand at journalism and showed considerable talent in articles he wrote for the Pennsylvania Magazine.

Thomas Paine was much impressed with America. Here was a land of greater opportunity with far less poverty than in England, and a place where eighteenth century ideas about the perfection of society might be fulfilled. In any event he quickly adopted the American cause as his own.

Only a few months after Paine arrived here the colonists were engaged in open fighting with Britain. The battles around Boston, the organization of the Continental Army, the invasion of Canada, and the failure of all efforts at reconciliation, naturally created uncertainties in the mind of many. Where it would all lead was the all-important question of the day.

Without a doubt the great majority of Americans in 1775 wanted to see the controversy with Britain ended and normal relations restored. But this must not be done at the expense of colonial rights, and in the course of events a happy solution of the dispute seemed less and less possible.

In the summer of 1776 the Continental Congress sent the Olive Branch Petition to Great Britain hoping for reconciliation, but before the year ended word was received that Parliament had rejected the petition that they would not consider it. Meanwhile Congress had adopted Jefferson's Declaration of the Causes and Necessities of Taking up Arms, proclaiming American determination to fight for what they considered their rights.

As events developed it became clear that Great Britain was going to suppress the colonial rebellion at all cost. A royal proclamation of Aug. 23, 1776 declared that the Americans were in a state of rebellion. A few months later came more evidence of British determination: the colonies were to be closed to all commerce effective March 1, 1778.

Discouraging, too, were measures taken in late 1775 to establish a complete blockade of the colonies, authorization for the seizure of American goods at sea, and even forcible impressment of American sailors into the Royal Navy. And more troops were to be used. When Britain arranged in the winter 1775-1776 to hire German mercenaries (generally called Hessians), it produced intense hatred and resentment among the colonists.

Wherever one looked, it seemed that Britain's only answer to her American problems was suppression of the rebellion by force. To Thomas Paine as well as others determined to uphold colonial liberty, it appeared more and more clear that the only solution was American independence. Talk of separation from Britain became common in late 1775.

COMMON SENSE; ADDRESSED TO THE INHABITANTS OF AMERICA, On the following interesting SUBJECTS.

I. Of the Origin and Design of Government in general, with concise Remarks on the English Constitution.
II. Of Monarchy and Hereditary Succession.
III. Thoughts on the present State of American Affairs.
IV. Of the present Ability of America, with some miscellaneous Reflections.

Man knows no Master save creating Heaven, Or those whom choice and common good ordain. THOMAS.

PHILADELPHIA;
Printed, and Sold, by R. BELL, in Third-Street.
MDCCLXXVI.

The first edition of Common Sense, the famous pamphlet by Thomas Paine, is one of the great rarities of American literature. Published anonymously, it carried on the title page a kind of table of contents. Printed often and read widely, this "bestseller" of the American Revolution was a most influential pamphlet. (Courtesy, American Antiquarian Society.)

Colonial doubts and alarms began to overcome the traditional loyalty to the mother country. Sam and John Adams of Massachusetts had early expressed their feeling that independence was the inevitable goal. Jefferson, while still hoping for settlement of the dispute within the empire, wrote "We want (need) to declare and assert a separation." More outspoken yet, was Gen. Nathaniel Greene of Rhode Island. Writing to a member of Congress, he said, "Permit me, to recommend from the sincerity of my heart... a declaration of independence."

Uncertainties in the minds of many Americans continued for a considerable time, however. As late as April 3, 1776, a Virginian, quoted in the New York Packet declared, "Some people among us seem to be in a mind of the NAME OF INDEPENDENCE, while they support measures and propose plans that comprehend all the SPIRIT of it."

When Thomas Paine's Common Sense appeared it created an immediate sensation, not because it said anything new, but because of its vigorous wording and timeliness. Americans were ready for a denunciation of monarchy in general and George III in particular. The colonists, wrote Paine, owed nothing either to Britain or the King. "Every thing that is right or reasonable," he asserted, "pleads for separation." Furthermore, the Americans could safeguard their liberties by founding an enduring republic of their own.

In early 1776 these new bodies authorized delegates to the Continental Congress to propose or support resolutions calling for independence. And the Congress itself took steps to break the British connection. American ports were opened to all but British trade on April 1, 1776, and colonies were advised to create new state governments without regard for imperial authority. On June 7, 1776, Richard Henry Lee formally proposed in Congress that the colonies declare their independence.

Slowly and somewhat uncertainly the colonists had moved toward this conclusion. Ironically, it was an English propagandist, Thomas Paine, who had contributed greatly to this great decision.

POETS NOOK

The spirit of Christmas

My heart fills with wonder at this time of year. The children all anxious 'cause Christmas is near. The streets of the town are lit up with bright lights, And the ringing of church bells bring joy to the night. People all smiling and saying hello, To strangers they meet as they come and they go. With bundles of gifts, they're all burdened down. But they laugh and they hum as they gad about town. Uncle Art with Aunt Nancy and Scott shop for vests. And grandma and grandpa have smiles on their faces. The air seems to bite as it redden's their noses. And makes people laugh to see noses like roses. The store windows glitter with sparkling displays, And children are busy all counting the days. My own children giggle, their hearts filled with glee. When I give them a wink I put up our tree. People chat in the park and their chatter is grand. The spirit of Christmas is filling the land.

He told them why Santa would come Christmas eve. And the reason for all of the gifts he would leave. "They represent gifts brought to Jesus that day. And Christmas is really the way that we say, Thank you, Lord Jesus, have a happy birthday."

Yes, I love this season of joy and good cheer. So I say to you all as Christmas draws near. If you want a fine Christmas, the best there can be, Buy all of your presents and put your tree. Take a walk through the town and enjoy the good cheer. But put Christ back in Christmas—have a happy New Year. Ernest L. Kearns, 48 Bissell St., Manchester

THE ALMANAC

By United Press International Today is Saturday, Dec. 13, the 347th day of 1975 with 18 to follow. The moon is between its first quarter and full phase. The morning stars are Venus, Mars and Saturn. The evening stars are Mercury and Jupiter.

I took the one less traveled by — And that has made all the difference. There is a school of thought that claims it is ironminded and hereditarily that make "all the difference" with little left for the freedom of an individual to choose for himself. This is not the Biblical view of life.

There is a verse in the Old Testament that challenges us: "Choose this day whom you will serve." (Joshua 24:15) Members of the same family often make very different choices as illustrated in an account written by Clarence Macartney:

WINGS OF EVENING

Preparations for Christmas demand many choices — selecting cards, deciding to whom they should go, choosing gifts, responding to appeals for worthy causes. Some decisions are easily made but others find us wavering back and forth. Some are important while others cause more agonizing indecision than they are worth.

If you have ever wandered through crowded stores, more and more exhausted as you fruitlessly try to find a gift for a friend who "has everything," you know what I mean. It is important to draw back from the bustle and confusion to gain perspective on the whole scene. What is important and what trivial? Can it be that we are missing the most important in our preoccupation with the lesser?

The importance of the choices we make is brought out in the poem by Robert Frost, "The Road Not Taken":

spirit of good-will abroad in the land. Long ago the angels proclaimed a moral law: "Among men of good-will there will be peace."

"Too often the glad tidings to the frightened shepherds have been accepted as a guarantee that there will be a "peace on earth." But there is a law of God — and there is a result of every act. If you would have things change you have the responsibility to make a wise choice. Someone once said on the wider social scale: "World history is world judgment." To a lesser degree it applies to our personal lives. Miracles can happen at this season, as any season, but we have responsibilities of choice. God offers the gift of Grace. It is not ours unless we choose to receive it.

Happy Are The "Holly-Days"

The merriment of the holiday season is interwoven with the convivial gatherings of family and dear friends from far and near. Happy are these "holly-days" as everyone gathers 'round the bountiful table. It's a magical time of mistletoe and tinsel, with good food accenting the festivities of these special December days.

This table, set to the glow of candlelight and festive greens and reds, stars a spectacular beef tip roast, a traditional holiday dinner choice. It's resplendent ringed by Rice Royale — frozen long grain white and wild rice, studded with succulent whole mushrooms and spiced with gay red pimiento. Holiday green tender young broccoli spears, topped with a golden chiffon sauce, also accompany the flavoursome roast beef. The inviting prelude to the feast is an elegant chilled pea soup.

Dinner Menu

- Pea Soup Elegante'
- Beef Tip Roast
- Rice Royale
- Broccoli Chiffon
- Tossed Garden Salad
- Cranberry Muffins
- Plum Pudding With Branded Hard Sauce
- Coffee or Tea

Beef Tip Roast

3-1/2 to 8-pound beef tip roast

Place roast, fat side up, on rack in open roasting pan. Insert meat thermometer so bulb is centered in the thickest part. Do not add water. Do not cover. Roast in a slow oven (325°F) to desired degree of doneness: 140°F. for rare; 160°F. for medium. For a 3-1/2 to 5-pound roast, allow 35 to 40 minutes per pound, depending on desired doneness. For a 5 to 8-pound roast, allow 30 to 35 minutes per pound.

For easier carving, allow roast to "set" in a warm place 15 to 20 minutes after removal from oven. Since roast usually continues to cook after removal from oven, it is best to remove it about 5°F. below the temperature desired.

Broccoli Chiffon

- 2 packages (10 ounces each) young broccoli spears frozen in butter sauce
- 1 egg, separated
- 2 teaspoons prepared mustard

Cook broccoli according to package directions. Combine egg yolk and mustard; mix well. Beat egg white until stiff peaks form (do not overbeat). ### Change in song worked wonders

Hoping to turn over a new leaf and regain their winning ways, the New England Whalers had Cantor Arthur Koret sing American the Beautiful instead of the National Anthem before the home game against Minnesota. The move worked as the Whalers won, 4-2, and hope to add the scalp of Cleveland tonight at the Hartford Civic Center. Look for attendance to pick up for Whaler games after the first of the year. Rosaire Palenent and Tom Webster are enjoying seven-game scoring streaks and goalie Christer Abrahamsson of the Whalers has the second best goals allowed average in the AHL in conjunction with Project Noel. Willie Olesinski and his wife are among the many Manchester Whaler fans who rarely miss a home game. Advanced ticket sales for the appearance of the Boston Celtics Wednesday night against Kansas City at the Hartford Civic Center is over the 9,000 figure. The big attraction will be the late Nate Archibald while the Celtics appear to have jellied since their last — and losing — appearance against Atlanta in Hartford.

Ritchie local tie

George Ritchie, latest named to receive a Gold Key from the Connecticut Sports Writers Alliance, has a local tie. His daughter, Mrs. Eleanor Elmore resides in Manchester with her husband and two children. Ritchie will be saluted Feb. 1 in New Haven for his contributions to sports in the state. The Gold Key dinner again falls on the same night as the New York Baseball Writers which means table dressing in the form of major league baseball players at the Nutmeg fete will be small. Randy Smith, of Manchester, sports editor of the Journal, is the current Connecticut Sports Writers' Alliance president. He's a former Manchester High and Clark University athlete who also coached before joining the fourth estate. Rec Department has postponed men's basketball play Thursday night until January. ### Yankee Stadium opens April 15

Opening game at the new Yankee Stadium is scheduled Thursday afternoon, April 15 with Minnesota providing the opposition for the Yankees. Features will include improved parking, new escalators, seating with no obstructions, a new public restaurant, a new Stadium Club, and a scoreboard capable of showing instant replays. Fifty two night games, including five in Saturday, are listed. Old Timers Day will be Aug. 7 against Baltimore. Day games start at 2, night games at 8, doubleheaders at 1 and two-night twinbills at 5:30. Box and reserved seats are up 50 cents. Tickets for baseball games at Fenway Park have also been increased to see the Red Sox next season. Bob McManama joins four others as American-born members of the New England Whalers. Newcomer McManama a Harvard grad, hails from Belmont, Mass. Larry Pleau is from Lynn, Mass., and Paul Hurley from Melrose, Mass. The Roberts brothers, Gordie and Doug, were born in Detroit.

Report on Rutgers

Here's the report scout Don Permo brought back to UConn Coach Dee Rowe about tonight's foe, unbeat Rutgers: "It's the quickest team I have seen. They run all night, fast break and press. All are capable scorers. They substitute freely without sacrificing over-all performance. They are tough defensively and play tough man to man." Enough said? Channel 24 will carry the game tonight from Rutgers. Nice honor for Bristol's Doug Jackson. The Columbia running back has been named 1975 Ivy League Player of the Year. The senior broke into the starting backfield after the opening game and turned in five better than 100-yard gained performances for the Lions. Jackson was a strong runner against Manchester High in the CCIL before going on to Columbia. In the current Connecticut Sports Writers' Alliance this season, the team that won the loss six on six occasions, rugged John O'Connell of the New York Jets is averaging 4.7 yards per carry, second only to O.J. ## Kuberski standout in return to Celts

NEW YORK (UPI) — About this time every year the Boston Celtics can be counted on to start knocking off NBA opponents without mercy.

"This team is finally starting to jell," said Boston Coach Tom Heinsohn. "Half of our big people this year weren't here last year or were rookies. When we really get it together, watch out."

One player who showed up just in time for Friday night's fourth straight victory was Steve Kuberski. If it didn't take long for Kuberski to fit into the Celtic system, he likes to think it was because he was never away long enough to forget.

Kuberski was originally drafted by Boston in 1969 and re-signed Thursday after spending time with New Orleans, Milwaukee and Buffalo. And in his first game Friday, he scored 12 points and helped the Celtics wallop the Washington Bullets 130-108.

"I guess I'm pretty lucky in a way," he said. "If it looks like I had no trouble fitting into the system... I wanted to play Boston style but no one else wanted to play that way."

Kuberski was one of seven Celtics to score in double figures as Boston dominated from the opening tapoff. The Celtics ran to a 33-22 lead after one quarter and stretched it to 59-45 at the half as Glenn McDonald came off the bench to spark the team and John Havlicek scored eight of his 24 points.

Elsewhere in the NBA, Los Angeles topped Philadelphia 114-102, Buffalo beat New York 123-110, Kansas City downed Chicago 109-99, Cleveland ripped Milwaukee 109-91, and Seattle beat Detroit 97-86.

In the ABA, New York beat St. Louis 106-98, San Antonio downed Kentucky 107-100 and Denver edged Virginia 110-107.

Lakers 114, 76ers 102. Kareem Abdul-Jabbar scored 34 points as Los Angeles won its 13th consecutive home game. Philadelphia led 59-53 at halftime but missed an amazing 20-of-21 shots in the third quarter and were outscored 26-9. George McGinnis missed all 12 shots in the second half after scoring 19 in the first 24 minutes.

Tech nips Rocky Hill in triple overtime

Taking three overtimes to do it, Cheney Tech nipped Rocky Hill, 70-69, in Charter Oak Conference basketball action last night at the Terriers' gym.

Eleven players, four Beavers and seven Rocky Hill performers, fouled out as 83 fouls were whistled. The win evens Cheney's conference record to 1-1 while the Terriers fall to 0-2 in the COC.

Clutch free throws by senior Captain Paul Strycharz and a fast break bucket by Emil Haberen with a feed from Lance Schors finally put the merdick away in the third extra period.

Cheney led, 19-11, after the first turn and held a 35-27 advantage at the intermission. The Beavers held a three-point edge, 42-39, going into the final canto but the Terriers knotted it at 58-58. The first overtime resulted with each side canning two markers and the teams tied at 64-64 after two extra periods. "We played in spurts but it was a good one for us to win," commented Beaver Coach Gerry Blanchard.

Cheney's next clash is Tuesday night at home against non-conference foe Somers High.

The victory was the second in a row for the Eagles while Prince falls to 0-3 for the season.

East raced to a 25-8 advantage after the first turn and increased the bulge to 49-14 at the half. Eagle Coach Stan Ogrdnik used reserves most of the second half including two jayvee performers who suited up because of injuries to varsity players. East only had eight varsity players dressed, three sidelined with injuries.

Senior Co-Captain John Lusa and junior Jon Lindberg each had 20 points to pace East with the latter hitting all 10 attempts from the charity stripe. Six-foot-four junior Gary Carlson added 11 points and led the rebounding department with 10 caroms. Mark Dumais tossed in 10 points to make it four players in double figures for East, which shot over 54 per cent from the field.

East has played two tilts and won both by a total of 104 points. The Eagles' next tilt is Friday against a good Bulkeley High of Hartford club which will be a real test. The jayvee game Friday will start at 3:30 with the varsity game taping off at about 5.

Skins, Dallas NFL feature

NEW YORK (UPI) George Allen's Washington Redskins have never missed making the playoffs since he took over as coach in 1971 but that could end today in Dallas.

Washington and the Dallas Cowboys are both 4-4 and trail St. Louis by a game in the NFC East. The loser today is finished.

"We are not going to lose," said Redskins tight end Jerry Smith. "They're going to have to bury us and carry us."

The Redskins have been in pressure situations for the last month. Last week they beat Atlanta 30-27 on a field goal in the final minute and the previous week they upset then unbeaten Minnesota 31-30 on a touchdown with 40 seconds left. The Redskins lost twice on field goals in overtime.

The clubs faced each other once before this year, with Washington winning 30-24 in overtime, naturally.

"Every time we play the Cowboys it's a championship game," Allen said.

The other special today will be in Pittsburgh, where the Super Bowl champion Steelers try to wrap up the AFC Central title against the Cincinnati Bengals.

Pittsburgh already has clinched a wild card playoff berth but wants the division title and the home field advantage that goes with it. The Steelers are 11-1 and lead Cincinnati by a game. A Steeler victory gives them the title and a Bengal win would send the Miami will again go with three-string quarterback Don Strick, who sparked a stunning triumph over Buffalo last week. The 5-foot-5 Strick will face a Colt defense which has a league-high 55 sacks this year. In other games Sunday, Minnesota is at Detroit, Houston at Oakland, St. Louis at Chicago, San Francisco at Atlanta, Buffalo at New England, Philadelphia at Denver, Kansas City at Cleveland, Green Bay at Los Angeles and New Orleans at the New York Giants.

Cepeda retired from major league baseball last year with a lifetime .298 batting average. The first baseman and outfielder was named Rookie of the Year in 1958 when he played with the San Francisco Giants.

Moret to Braves for Tom House

BOSTON (UPI) — Roger Moret had been a piece of gangly bait for three years, so it was small wonder when the erratic left-hander finally was traded Friday by the Boston Red Sox.

Moret, who went to Atlanta for lefty reliever Tom House, had another impressive season with the 26-year-old Moret had never been considered a stopper for the Red Sox. His career earned run average was 3.42.

The Huskies, whose average is 79.6 points per game, are fresh from their season high of 95 points in Tuesday's game when they beat Boston University.

ST. PAUL, Minn. (UPI) — Minnesota alumni and other outside sources gave $2,500 to $3,000 in cash and various other illegal gifts to Minnesota basketball players from 1971 to early 1975, a university vice president said Friday.

Stanley Kegler said three fourths of the NCAA's 99 allegations of athletic rule violations by the university were "correct or partially correct."

Cepeda arrested on drug charges

SAN JUAN, P.R. (UPI) — Former major league baseball player Orlando Cepeda was arrested Friday on charges of possessing 165 pounds of marijuana. He was released on his own recognizance to give him time to finance bail.

"I'm innocent," Cepeda said after a federal court hearing. "What will my lawyer say when she finds out?"

Cepeda, 38, was arrested with another former ballplayer, Herminio Cortes Rivera, 42, at San Juan International Airport.

They were seized by three customs agents as they placed two packages shipped from Colombia in their automobiles, police said.

Judge John Garcia set bail at $50,000 for Cepeda and $10,000 for Cortes Rivera—a former player in the Puerto Rican League.

Police said the two packages contained 165 pounds of marijuana and were consigned to Cepeda.

Garcia ordered the two defendants not to leave home unless accompanied by their lawyer. The judge gave the two men until 9:30

DENVER (UPI) — The World Hockey Association Denver Spurs, struggling with only a third of the attendance they need to break even, Friday announced reduced ticket prices and the formation of citizens committees designed to obtain local support for the team.

Federal agents confiscated Cepeda's and Cortes Rivera's passports and automobiles. Police said the two men did not resist.

Cepeda retired from major league baseball last year with a lifetime .298 batting average. The first baseman and outfielder was named Rookie of the Year in 1958 when he played with the San Francisco Giants.

Church of Christ guest

Michael Lawlor of Murfreesboro, Tenn., will be guest preacher Sunday at the 6 p.m. worship service of the Church of Christ. He will also teach the combined youth classes of the church during the 9 a.m. Bible School hour.

Lawlor and his wife, Linda, are guests of the church this weekend. He is in Manchester for an interview relative to filling the post of associate minister of the church in September.

A native of Danbury, Lawlor is scheduled to complete work for his B.A. in education at David Lipscomb College, Nashville, Tenn., in August.

Christmas program Sunday

Manchester week in review

Significance lay in non-events

To a lot of people we know, what didn't happen in Manchester last week made more news than what did happen.

For instance, the town's public works employees decided they won't take any job action in their dispute with the administration over snowplow operations. They decided to abide by whatever ruling an arbitration board makes Dec. 18. The issue concerns two men on a truck (the union's request), versus one man (the town's plan).

The Board of Directors took no action in a request from the Eighth District for a joint meeting to discuss "the orderly transfer" of fire protection in the Buckland area. The town board may have a reply at its meeting next Tuesday.

The district contends Eighth District voters, in a Nov. 17 referendum, authorized the district to expand its lines into Buckland and that, consequently, it now is under its jurisdiction.

Tuesday night, even in advance of its formal discussion of a proposed restaurant-licensing ordinance, the Board of Directors indicated it isn't overly anxious to press for adoption of the measure.

Also Tuesday night, the Republican minority, as thought it might do that, sent the Edwina Williams nomination to the Human Relations Commission. His nomination was rejected last month.

And on Thursday, the state gaming commission indicated it won't reconsider an application from three Manchester men for a dog track in Colchester.

News for senior citizens

Hello everybody! I guess the big news to think about is our annual Christmas Party here at the Center this Thursday afternoon. The party is more or less to exchange gifts, have a visit from Santa, a little entertainment including a sing-along of Christmas carols. Now the way it works is that a lady brings a ladies gift, and a man a man's gift. They should be nicely wrapped, and the lady's name should be on the gift so that the receiver may take the time to thank you. We ask that the gift should be around $2, and something that you feel you would like to receive. After all, let's get into the Christmas spirit and bring a nice gift.

By the way, we will be having a super dinner to be served at noon-time on Thursday for those who cannot come to the Christmas party. We will be here for the Fun-Day program which will start right around 1:30 p.m. You can check the menu which you find last week in this column, and I'm sure you won't want to miss the meal.

So Santa will be looking forward to seeing you on Thursday. Also check the schedule for the times our gifts will be out making the pickups. Next thing to remember is our annual Holiday Dance Monday, Dec. 22.

Our good friend Lou Joubert and his band will be on hand to keep you all jumping and jiving. We will have the pleasure of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Latouca and Mr. and Mrs. James Patalak, who will be providing lots of nice goodies all through the evening. They will be accompanied by some of our hard working students from our meal program.

There will be lots of noise and laughter as we bring in the New Year, and the program will end with our usual door prizes. The action will start at 9 o'clock and last until 11 p.m., and the doors will open at 7 p.m. Tickets are now available at our office and will also be sold at the

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I found out last week that my husband is having an affair with another woman. Her husband called and claimed to have tapes of several telephone conversations between his wife and my husband. I met the man, heard the tapes and am certain it's my husband's voice.

When I told my husband, he denied everything. He even swore on his mother's life that the tapes were rigged. Abby, there's no way those tapes could have been rigged! Another time, my husband was roughed up, and I always suspected it was a jealous husband.

What should I do? I'm not young - 49. My husband is 63, and this last woman is 36. If I divorced him, I could live comfortably on the settlement. We've been married 33 years. Do you think he'll ever change?

DEAR ABBY: I'm a fairly attractive, middle-aged divorcee who recently started dating a man a few years older than myself. He's never been married, but he has dated women and girls of all ages. He would be quite a catch if I am told because he has many talents. Also he carries position, and he's the generous type. He's not bad-looking, keeps himself physically fit and is immaculate.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I went to a party the other night. There were eight married couples - all between the ages of 25 and 35. We got into a discussion about what we notice first in a member of the opposite sex. Then, the hostess got the bright idea of passing out pencils and paper and asking us all to write down what we notice first.

DEAR ABBY: Very, it's surprising that in this boom-conscious culture, not one man said he noticed a woman's bosom first. And no two men noticed the same thing. Also, only two women agreed (his physique).

German Club has 'Fall Festival'

Two weeks ago, the German Club started off its season with a "Fall Festival." It was well attended, and the general consensus was that the evening was enjoyable. To open the program, all the German students in the audience were called upon by Mrs. McInerney to sing "Guten Abend," to their friends and relatives. This traditional song was followed by many others as the festival progressed. President Eric Kusche and vice-president, Mary Stack, gave greetings in German. Then the eating began.

The menu included authentic German food such as bratwurst, cold cuts, sauerkraut, kartoffeln, and a variety of desserts. Disappointing to some, no kegs of brew were in sight; instead, coffee, milk, and punch were substituted. After this good, hearty dinner, Mr. Hippler provided slides of German points of interest. The beautiful scenes were appreciated by those of German and American descent alike.

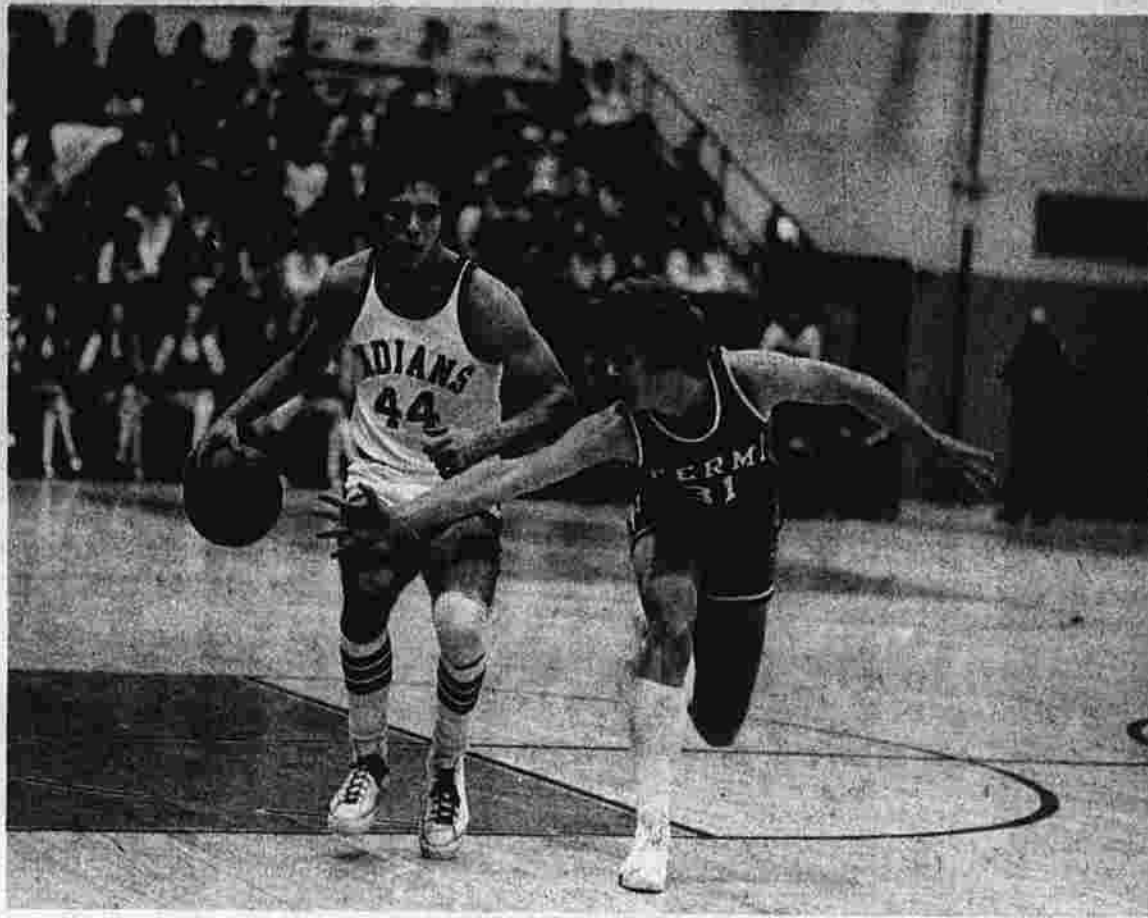

By this time, the German Folk Dancers of the club were becoming restless. Accompanied by Mrs. McInerney on the piano, they attempted to perform their spectacular feat. Although a few toes were stepped on and wrong turns made, the group gave those in attendance a taste of the old country. Attired in red vests, courtesy of Miss White, liederhosen, and dirndl dresses, the group's rendition of waltz mazurka and the windmill were fairly competent.

After some more of the lively singing, the highlight of the evening was reached. If you are familiar with German dinners, you probably know what this was. "Ja, das ist ein Schnitzelbank!" provided laughter and entertainment for the whole audience, as they took part in it, too. To accomplish anything at this game, one must have the ability to speak German with great speed and accuracy. Mrs. McInerney had everyone participate and try to pronounce the language.

Door prizes were distributed and young members of the audience drew the numbers from an Alpine hat. The Grand March culminated the evening. This is another invention of Mrs. McInerney's. Although she claims to have mediocre mathematical ability, the chains and circles which she tangled and untangled would negate this. Most people didn't know how they reached the inside of a human spiral, suddenly finding themselves traveling outward. All enjoyed this procession.

The laughter which was heard throughout the cafeteria clearly indicated that this event was a success. Thanks are due to all those who worked on the numerous committees and especially to Mrs. McInerney and Mr. Hippler. We hope that even more students and their friends will attend the festival in the spring, along with the international dinner. Anyone interested in planning these events should contact any German Club member. All are welcome to participate in future activities which will include a party on Dec. 19 and a carol sing evening. — Mary Stack

Action questioned

Often, students at Manchester High School are expected to comply with rules which are developed for their benefit, yet which seem to cause only difficulty. These rules, however, are sometimes manipulated and, of course, one can resort to devious means in order to avoid what may be an unpleasant confrontation. Perhaps surprisingly, MHS policymakers occasionally come up with a rule that is entirely satisfactory and merits the recognition of the student body.

One such rule was carelessly overlooked last month by members of the Senior Commencement Committee. This rule says that people holding an office in Student Assembly are not eligible for a position on the Senior Commencement Committee. It is an attempt to protect students from their sometimes ambitious peers.

This year, several officers of Student Assembly felt that they, too, would like to have a say in the governing body of the senior class and asked permission from Mr. Emmerling to participate as members of the committee. Permission was granted and these seniors joined the ranks of those who had been elected from their homerooms. The Senior Commencement Committee has no requirement for membership, yet it does maintain that those participating be nominated and elected by their fellow upperclassmen. These people then serve as representatives and report to their homerooms the discussions and decisions of the Commencement Committee.

If we are to allow students to get around set regulations and become members at will, wouldn't it be as simple to open the organization to the entire senior class? Isn't the purpose of the homeroom representative to represent his peers? Therefore, shouldn't anyone interested in participating in planning senior activities do so by functioning within the system and expressing his or her opinions to the homeroom representative?

One may consider our student government to be a model for future political involvement. This writer hopes that participants will see it as such and act accordingly. — Gail Heimann

English benefits all

Manchester High School is recognized as one of the best public schools in the state. The MHS English Department has played a key role in bringing about that favorable reputation. Mr. Hunt, English department chairman, cites five primary objectives of the English department: Student experience in reading, writing, speaking, listening, and viewing. The MHS English Department tries to reach these goals in all of its courses.

One example is a films course. As one might expect, students learn to become more intelligent and appreciative consumers of films. They make their own films, learn filmmaking methods and techniques, and become successful film critics. The students also keep journals of the films they've seen and hold class discussions to assess weaknesses and strengths of different types of films. They all do a considerable amount of writing related to what they've seen. By the end of the course students not only know what it takes to make a film, but they also know how to view and criticize a film while setting their own standards.

Another course offered is Mass Media. Students videotape their own TV commercials and TV programs. They learn how to operate the cameras as well as set up their own props and write their own scripts. In a short story writing class, students learn by reading successful short stories, writing their own, and criticizing each other's.

In a Shakespeare course, students read a variety of Shakespeare's works in addition to a required list of comedies, tragedies and historical literature. What often surprises the participants is how much our modern literature (films, books, TV, etc.) reflects what Shakespeare thought and said.

In a fantasy course students benefit from field trips, individual projects, and visiting class speakers. As a result of participating in such activities students become more creative.

Another interesting course is one in futuristics. As of this writing, students are drawing upon all of their skills in order to put together their own magazine. They also learn how to write clear, effective letters to their congressman. Let's face it, a poorly written letter full of spelling errors and grammatical mistakes won't wield much political pressure on our congressmen.

Many in the English department believe that reading and writing have suffered a loss of importance in our lives, due partly to the electronic age in which we live. Even though the skills of speaking, listening, and viewing are well covered by the English department, the fact remains that most of us do practically all of our reading and writing in school.

From Sophomore language to Senior AP English, students are exposed to the basic English skills in grammar and composition. They learn how to write term papers and do library research. Students also improve their vocabulary, learn logic, study journalism, and learn how to study. From writing this article, it's my impression that we've got to get back to the basics. Presently, English teachers are trying their best to present these basic reading and writing skills in an interesting fashion, and it's getting better.

Indeed, reading and writing are important skills. But we shouldn't forget the importance of speaking, listening, and viewing.

Many people feel that if a student isn't sitting at his desk poring over a book or writing a composition, then he isn't learning English. But speaking, listening, and viewing are vital skills also, and the MHS English Department is providing us with them. — Keith Costa

Girls swim at state meet

Recently, some members of the girls' swim team, participated in the State Swim Meet.

The girls competed with the top swimmers in the CCIL League. In the 200-yard medley relay the following team of MHS girls made the All-CCIL team in swimming.

The first team consisted of Leslie Scott, Deb Cone, Karen McArdle, and Sherrie Hopperstead. These girls did a tremendous job, and deserve a great deal of recognition. Along with making the relay team, two of its members Deb Cone, and Sherrie Hopperstead received honorable mentions in other events. Debbie's honorable mentions were in the 100-yard freestyle and the 500-yard freestyle. Sherrie received honorable mentions in the 200-yard freestyle and the 100-yard backstroke. — Amy Mazzotta

FSA meets

On Dec. 1, there was an FSA meeting. At this meeting a guest speaker, Mr. Robert Gronbach, assistant director of employee relations of Hartford hospital, spoke about the qualifications of a secretary. He told us what it would be like to work for him at Hartford Hospital.

When the speaker was finished, an initiation of all the new members of FSA took place. Vicky Ferguson was installed as treasurer and Sue Balesano as corresponding secretary. All present joined in the recitation of the Ethic Code.

There was considerable discussion about an FSA candy sale, and the two who sold the most, Monica Rezman and Arlene Beruba, were cited. Assorted other business was discussed. Upon adjournment, refreshments were served. — Susan Balesano, Secretary, FSA

Fine music

On Wednesday, Dec. 3, the first Manchester High School Music Assembly of the year was presented. It started 2nd period and went on until 8th period. The Music Assembly itself was an overwhelming success.

It started out slowly at first, but everything went forward from 2nd period on. Not only did all the musicians do a great job, but the turnout of student spectators was fantastic.

T.J.'s Polka Band started us off 3rd period, and the crowd responded enthusiastically. Mr. L. Perry played a couple of folk songs 4th period. Mr. Perry was the only teacher who offered to play an instrument in the assembly; therefore, a special thanks goes to him. Fantastic performances went on throughout the day by Mike Ruff and Pete Hickey. Also Tom Traygis did a 15 minute drum solo, with Steve Sossin. Rony Sayer and his band also played some fine music.

The assembly ended with Wes Fedorchak and his band playing some electric guitar. A special thanks to Wes for helping us out with the P.A. system throughout the day.

Jane Donovan and I would like to thank everyone who offered his time in helping the Music Assembly become such a success, and we hope to have another one in the near future. — Judy Kopman

World Hunger Awareness Week

The Futuristics classes from MHS attended a session of the World Hunger Awareness Week sponsored by the Manchester Council on World Hunger. The field day was Wednesday, Nov. 19 at the old Gelco building on E. Middle Tpk.

The main points of the program were shown in many articles displayed on tables. Throughout the entire week, the council collected canned goods and money. Many MHS students who attended the session went out and bought canned goods and others donated money.

As another part of the presentation, Jay April, as member of the council, showed movies and slides depicting the effects of extreme hunger and malnutrition. The films made many people stop and think and want to do something about it. So as one step in making people aware of the problem they bought bumper stickers and signed up for a day of fasting.

I think that we should be very proud of our students. They proved that Manchester is a great community filled with lots of people who really care. — Nancy Parsons

Profile: John Martin

John Martin is a witty, sensitive and intelligent person, whom I am glad to have the pleasure of knowing. He has an interest in traveling, camping being his preference, and is going to take a year off to fulfill a dream of traveling out West, "Not to Colorado." John would like to travel north across the United States and take in the Badlands in the Dakotas, concluding the trip in Washington or Oregon. He is fond of the wilderness and thinks that our natural resources shouldn't be exploited so foolishly.

Apathy in America is a very worrisome topic to John.

"At a time like this, with so much trouble in our country, you would think people would be interested in our problems, instead of disregarding them." He feels that the United States is in a dilemma.

"People don't know where they are going and they aren't trying to find out." John feels there is a solution. If people take the time to think objectively of where they are going and try to reassess their lives, things could work out. It would of course, take a lot of hard work and cooperation to achieve this end, he thinks.

John is a life-long resident of Manchester and is a senior at MHS. His courses include, Mass Media, Electronics, Automotives, Patterns of Human Behavior, and Piano. His interest lies mainly in Electronics. In fact, he hopes to attend Hartford State Tech. to pursue a career in

John Martin

Technical Electronics.

Asked about his view of MHS, John stated "I think the whole idea of school, and education system, is not fulfilling its purpose," this purpose being to prepare people for the future. He believes that, "although it is beneficial to some, there are many students who are there to get a diploma." John feels that this is due to lack of motivation and that some teachers tend to turn students off.

"As far as school goes, the teachers try to make a good environment, but they are not succeeding." John doesn't feel it is their fault, and that to combat this, some kind of alternative school should be set up. He feels that the shop courses are a step in the right direction for people who are not academically oriented. As for himself, John likes the shop courses and the social aspects of the school more than the way it is run.

John is also resentful of the "security guards" at MHS. He feels that they are infringing on our rights. He realizes that there is a segment of the school that isn't mature enough to handle the liberal, relaxed atmosphere at MHS, but he also feels that they are overshadowing the majority.

Most of John's spare time is spent pursuing his favorite interest, music. John enjoys playing the electric guitar and spends about two hours a day practicing. He would like to get into some sort of group with friends just for fun. John appreciates most the complex music of Emerson, Lake, and Palmer and the heavy metal sounds of The Blue Oyster Cult, Jimi Hendrix and Black Sabbath.

John is a member of the Junior Civitan Club. It is a fraternal type club interested in community work projects to raise money for worthwhile charities. He also holds down a part-time job at Garner's Rug Cleaning Service.

If you're ever in the mood for some really fine rap, look up John Martin. You won't be disappointed! — Scott Alernay

Superstars in film series

Put a group of strangers together in a hotel, a plane or some awful disaster, aim a movie camera, and you've got a surefire box office hit.

At least 10 such films have been enormous success in recent years and they all stem from a common ancestor, "Grand Hotel," made in 1932 from Vicki Baum's play. "Grand Hotel" will be screened at the Wadsworth Athenaeum Theater next week in the Athenaeum's current film series "The Super-Stars."

Scheduled for Wednesday and Friday, Dec. 17 and 19 at 7:30 p.m. and on Saturday, Dec. 20, at 2 p.m., "Grand Hotel," Directed by Edmund Goulding, is a superstar show all by itself.

Greta Garbo, John and Lionel Barrymore, Joan Crawford, Wallace Beery and Jean Hersholt play prominent roles in this story of life in one of Europe's great hotels.

It was named one of The New York Times "Ten Best of 1932" and was the highwatermark of the "strangers on a train genre" that has proved so durable with several generations of filmgoers.

At 9:30 p.m. on Dec. 17 and 19, D.W. Griffiths' spectacular adventure of the French Revolution, "Orphans of the Storm," starring Lillian and Dorothy Gish, will be shown.

Made in 1921, the film is silent with music arranged by William Perry. The film has been handtinted, a popular device in the 1920s, and is a new print in excellent condition.

If Elizabeth Taylor wasn't a superstar before playing Maggie the Cat in "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof" she certainly was after the film was released. Taylor, Paul Newman, Burl Ives and Judith Anderson let out all the emotional stops in Tennessee Williams story of a new-rich Souther family with more closet skeletons than any family needs.

"Cat on a Hot Tin Roof" will be shown at the Athenaeum Theater on Thursday and Saturday, Dec. 18 and 20, at 7:30 p.m.

No series of superstars would be definitive without John Wayne, and in "The Man Who Shot Liberty Valance" we get the Duke, James Stewart and Lee Marvin under John Ford's direction. "The Man Who Shot Liberty Valance" will be screened at 9:30 p.m. on Dec. 18 and 20.

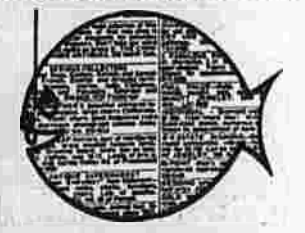

"The Superstars" series at the Athenaeum Theater is one of several series in the museum's year-long Bicentennial film program surveying American cinema from 1896 to 1976, which is supported by a grant from the National Endowment for the Arts. Tickets are available at the Athenaeum Theater box office before each screening.

Now on Broadway

Ballet stars Margot Fonteyn and Rudolf Nureyev appear in a scene from "Marguerite and Armand," the ballet version of "La Dame aux Camélias," featured in their season at the Uris Theater on Broadway. Critics say it's time Miss Fonteyn, 56, quit performing in public, but that Nureyev, 20 years her junior, is still an exciting dancer. (UPI photo)

Ready for action

Members of Manchester Composite Squadron of the Civil Air Patrol do a lot more than just attend meetings Thursday nights at Manchester State Armory.

They were involved in the search for Janice Packett in Tolland in 1974, with the girl cadets and senior members providing administrative duties at the Tolland firehouse including the signing in of search volunteers.

During Manchester's 1973 ice storm, the squadron assisted the National Guard for six days and nights at the armory, where hundreds of Manchester residents were housed and fed.

The squadron's land rescue team, headed by First Lt. George Hunter, who comes to Manchester eachweek from his home in Tolland, Mass., was called out last spring to search in the swamps and hills of the Stafford area for a downed airplane.

Three cheers for American cooking

By PATRICIA HARRIS

For those of you who think America's major contribution to international cooking is fast food and the gelatin salad topped by a marshmallow, there's a big boost for your national pride coming up.

Three new cookbooks that may prove intriguing enough to move from your bedside reading table to the kitchen will remind you of our proud culinary heritage.

The author of "Cooking American," Sidney W. Dean, is a died-in-the-wool Yankee. While many of the dishes he presents originated in New England, recipes from west of the Mississippi and south of the Mason-Dixon line are well represented in his 421-page magnum.

Intriguing chapter headings such as "potatoes and their possibilities" and "tripe in various disguises" point the way to new ways of expanding one's repertoire in the kitchen. The chapter on cooking out-of-doors includes information on how to prepare a New England clam bake, a Midwestern fish fry and an authentic Western barbecue.

Especially intriguing is the section on shell fish and soups.

AMERICAN FOOD, by Evan Jones (E.P. Dutton & Co., Inc., 387 pages, $16.95)
AMERICAN GASTRONOMY, by Louis Szathmary (Henry Regnery Co., 185 pages.) $10.00
COOKING AMERICAN, by Sidney W. Dean (Noonday Press, 421 pages.) $4.95

One of the author's featured recipes is his mother's specialty, clam short cake — a combination of fresh clams in a white chowder sauce, poured over homemade biscuits.

The author's personal comments and tips on the history and preparation of the dishes make this an especially delightful book to read as well as work with.

"American Gastronomy" by Louis Szathmary, owner of Chicago's restaurant, The Bakery, presents an interesting but sketchy historical overview of American foods, cooking methods, chefs and dishes.

Chef Szathmary reminds us of those dishes that are uniquely American — for example, the pancake, the mashed potato (without lumps, please) and eggs Benedict (the invention of a traveler named Benedict). He tells of the origin of the potato chip, the Caesar salad, how pizza, "that great Italian delicacy" was invented in New York, and chow mein and chop suey were first concocted in San Francisco's Chinatown.

The book, however, is primarily a collection of recipes drawn from old-fashioned American cookbooks. All are characterized by a reliance on typically American ingredients and represent a cross-section of American life. There's also a helpful section on how to convert old-fashioned recipes for today's use.

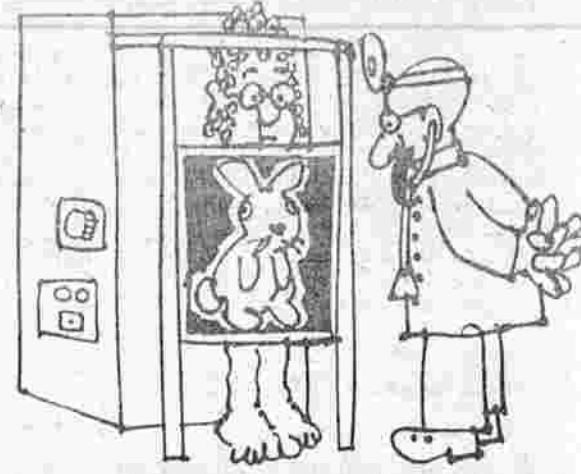

Gastronomy is made visually interesting through the liberal use of black and white etchings from America's culinary past.

Evan Jones' "American Food," subtitled "The Gastronomic Story," is a handsomely set up, absorbing account of American culture viewed through the kitchen.

What makes this book stand out among most 'cookery-through-history' volumes is its crisp writing, anecdotal style, and its insights into the development of the American palate.

Jones, for example, attempts to explain the American penchant for finger food, discusses the kitchen-centered American lifestyle of yesteryear, accounts for our gastronomical chauvinism in the 19th century, and notes that Ben Franklin insisted his English cook learn to bake cornbread.

The recipes represent solid American cookery and reveal the American imagination and ingenuity in such goodies as Avocado Ice Cream, Fiddleheads (boiled ostrich ferns) and a lasagne made with ham and spinach.

TV season's 13th week lucky number for CBS

NEW YORK (UPI) — Last week marked the 13th week of the new television season and for CBS it was a lucky number — the network took nine of the top 10 spots in the national Nielsen ratings, and 15 of the top 20.

The big CBS win could be credited to something old, something new and something special.

The old favorites came through, particularly the situation comedies from "All in the Family" in first place to "Mary Tyler Moore" in ninth spot. The something new was admittedly rescheduling M-A-S-H to Tuesdays at 9 p.m. M-A-S-H popped from the 28th slot the previous week to 11th last week.

The something special was the Wednesday night Christmas programming — "Rudolph the Red-Nosed Reindeer," and the Bing Crosby and Lucille Ball-Jackie Gleason specials.

If CBS had a great week, NBC found it a time for mixed blessings. The network finally slipped into second place in overall viewing for the new season, which was bad news but not unexpected.

On the plus side, it received fairly solid viewer sampling of its two new shows, "Grady" and "The Cop and the Kid." "Grady" racked up a 30 share of the audience in its Thursday night at eight, while "The Cop and the Kid" reached a 26 audience share at 8:30.

Neither show looks to eat "The Waltons" alive, but at least a respectable number tried in on for size. Ratings in the next few weeks will reveal whether the audience that sampled will stick around to watch regularly.

ABC slipped to third place in its ratings and share of the audience, part of which it could blame on the fact that the network preempted "Swiss Family Robinson" for "Dr. Doolittle," which about equalled "Swiss Family's" usual draw but didn't match the bionic man's strength.

There were a couple of bigger disappointments, however. One was the poor showing of "Valley Forge," a Hallmark Bicentennial special on NBC Wednesday night. "Valley Forge" not only couldn't compete against the CBS specials that night, it couldn't even inch out ABC's "When Things Were Rotten" and "That's My Mama," both of which are being dropped for poor audience acceptance.

A surprise, perhaps, was that "Dr. No," the first of the Sean Connery-James Bond movies, fared a poor third Friday night on ABC opposite "Rockford Files" and "Police Story" on NBC and the last half of the movie "Tora Tora Tora" on CBS.

Those nine CBS and one NBC shows to make the top ten of the rating of the A.C. Nielsen Co., for the week ending Dec. 7, are as follows:

- 1: "All in the Family";
- 2: "Rudolph the Red-Nosed Reindeer";
- 3: "Merry Christmas Crossbys";
- 4: "Maude";
- 5: "Rhoda";
- 6: "Phyllis";
- 7: "Kojak";
- 8: Lucille Ball-Jackie Gleason;
- 9: "Mary Tyler Moore";
- 10: "Rockford Files".

Back together Plans have been completed for production of "The Sonny & Cher Show," starring Cher and Sonny Bono, after several weeks of negotiations, CBS-TV has announced. The one-hour comedy-variety series will premiere in early 1976 in the 8 to 9 p.m. Sunday time period.

DEAR DICK: In the original "King Kong," did Fay Wray play the part as a brunette or blonde? — BETTY M. BARNETT, Anaheim, Ca.
I remember her as a blonde. Kong was the brunette.

DEAR DICK: Would you please tell me Charlie Chan's real name? — MARLENE TOLER, Foley, Ala.
I assume you mean the name of the actor who played the part, because Chan, of course, was a fictional detective. Actually, there were almost as many Chans as there were Tarzans. The most famous were Warner Oland (16 films from '31 to '37) and Sidney Toler (any relation?) (22 films from '38 to '47) and J. Carroll Naish, who played him on a TV series in '57.

Ask Kleiner

By Dick Kleiner

DEAR DICK: Without going through a lot of red tape, what are the possibilities of calling a well-known actor? Would my call go through to him direct? What are the procedures for locating an actor? Where do I start? If I wrote to him, would my letter be thrown away? THERESA TUCK, Athens, Ga.

I must get dozens of letters a week, asking for phone numbers or addresses of stars. If I knew, I wouldn't tell. They're entitled to privacy, or at least privacy at home. Most have unlisted numbers and they guard those numbers, and their addresses, closely. After all, there are a lot of nuts running around loose these days. The odds against you finding out a star's phone number are astronomical. As for writing letters, send them in care of the network, if they are TV stars, or the studio that did their last film, if they are in movies. The letters are generally screened and the most interesting ones will be read by the star.

DEAR DICK: I was surprised to read that the actress, Barbara Colby, died. What did she die from? MRS. E.S. Schaghticoke, N.Y.

Miss Colby and a friend were shot to death in the street, after an acting class. It was one of those senseless crimes that seem to be all the rage these senseless days.

DEAR DICK: Are John Mills, Hayley Mills and Julia Mills related to each other? And are Pat Boone and Richard Boone brothers? FRANK R. CORRENTI, Kenner, La.

The Mills are related, the Boones are not. John Mills is the father of Hayley and Juliet (not Julia), but Pat and Dick are not even Boone companions.

DEAR DICK: Could you please tell me who was the actress that played the bionic woman on The Six Million Dollar Man? Will there be any future episodes with her playing in them? MARGARET OLSEN, Mobile, Ala.

That was the very beautiful Lindsay Wagner. And, yes, there will probably be more bionic woman stories — possibly, if all goes well (or badly, depending on how you view the project), even a series built around that character.

DEAR DICK: Lindsay Wagner, who plays on The Six Million Dollar Man, and Lee Crawford, who used to play on The Young and the Restless, look enough alike to be sisters. Are they related in any way? LINDA HENDRIX, Toronto, Ohio

No, they're not. Miss Wagner is totally sisterless.

DEAR DICK: Who is Mia Farrow's real mother? MISS DEAN, Tucson, Ariz.

Mia is the daughter of actress Maureen O'Sullivan. Her father, incidentally, was the late John Farrow, who was an important director in the '40s.

DEAR DICK: Is "The Texas Chain-Saw Massacre" really a true story? Do you think "Jaws" will ever be on television, and when? LORALEE BULGER, O'Leary, P.E.I., Can.

"The Texas Chain-Saw Massacre" was pure (well, not so pure) fiction. "Jaws" will probably be sold to TV, for a bundle — but not for some years yet. It's too hot a box office property at the moment. Chances are it will be re-released in a year or so, and then go the TV route.

DEAR DICK: I have a few more questions about Mark Shera of S.W.A.T. I'd like to know his age, if he's married or spoken for, and where he lives. And could you tell me where S.W.A.T. is filmed? MS. DONA H., Anaheim, Cal.

Shera is "about 25," whatever that means. He's not married, and he says he's "not really spoken for." He lives in Hollywood. S.W.A.T. is filmed on location around Los Angeles, with the interiors shot on the Fox lot.

DEAR DICK: Did Joe Don Baker get killed in real life? Did John Wayne ever play in a space, or science fiction, type movie? DAWN OWENS, Wintersville, Ohio

Baker is still living. And I can find no record of Duke Wayne ever appearing in that kind of movie.

DEAR DICK: Will you please give me some information on Mark Wheeler of Mobile One. His birthdate, age, and anything else you can tell me. JACQUELINE MC CARTHY, Fallonsbee, W.Va.

Wheeler is in his early 20s (they're getting very cozy about telling ages these days). He was born in Minneapolis on Dec. 23. He's married to Lee McCain, who used to play the wife on Apple's Way. He's 5'9 1/2" and weighs 145 pounds. And, at the moment at least, he's gainfully employed.

DEAR DICK: In September, I saw an episode of The Rockford Files in which a blonde actress played a con artist. Is she the same girl who used to play on The Big Valley series? My mother says no way. — LISA DUGGAN, Midwest City, Okla.

Yes, it is the same girl. Linda Evans is her name.

Mackenzie Phillips (left) plays Julie Cooper and Bonnie Franklin portrays her mother, Ann Romano, a divorcee who resumed her maiden name, in CBS-TV's new comedy series, "One Day at a Time." Tuesdays at 9:30 p.m.

Stamps and coins Wilton pushes Bicen medals

By RUSS MacKENDRICK

Yes, Virginia, there really is a Wilton, Conn. It is a town away down south on the Norwalk River where the panhandle joins the rest of the state. Population is about 16,000. It has a Revolutionary War history, as it was mostly burned out by the Red-coats in 1777.

The Wilton Bicentennial Commission is promoting this attractive medal struck by the busy Medallic Art people of Danbury.

As you see, one side has the 1724 Lambert House, now the headquarters of their Historical Society. The reverse shows a colonial waterwheel that might have powered a grist, cider, or saw mill 200 years ago.

There are to be limited editions in 2½ inch pure silver and two sizes of bronze. ($80, $15, and $3). Royalties will be used to help out with a band shell for the community.

Library growing

Our Central Connecticut Coin Club is really serious about developing a top-drawer numismatic library. One new addition is the 1976 Scott Catalogue and Encyclopedia of United States Coins.

This book introduces a useful numbering system based on the well-known Scott stamp catalogs. They have key letters, such as Q for quarters and D for dimes. The 1949 Roosevelt is D358, and the 1976 bust eagle is D1.

It is a monumental work, with 84 pages just on essays and patterns, but is certainly not a current market guide. We can't go along with the jacket blurb — "The Only Catalogue...you will ever need" — because of one thing they have gone snooty since the 1971 edition and don't give prices for any grade lower than "fine" for Indian cents, Lincolns, buffalos, Barber and Mercury dimes. Roosevelts start at "extra fine."

Furthermore a statement like this shakes your faith: "Common date $5 gold coins are not considered numismatic items in less than uncirculated condition. These pieces are generally traded in bulk at somewhere near half the daily ounce price for gold."

Try to locate a merely "fine" one listed at less than $75 in the Red Book or Coin Trends!

Six signers lost

The new two-dollar bill is to be ready on Jefferson's birthday, April 13, 1976. They made it stand out from the ones and fives with most of the Trumbull pic of the Declaration signers on the back. There were supposed to be 48 signers but they chopped at each end to lose six in all. The maddest state will be New Hampshire with both William Whipple and Josiah Bartlett omitted.

Designers can't win

Stamp designers can't win. There is a trio of se-tens due out New Year's Day at Pasadena. It comes from the inevitable Willard painting of the big and little drummer and the wounded fifeman. An overhead editorial in Linn's decries the fact that, when separated for postage, each stamp will have lost its meaning.

Always complete

There is also a piece in Linn's by a writer who specializes in orchids on stamps. He makes the point that in topicals your collection is always complete — there are no empty spaces to reveal a lack to your nose friends.

Big door prize

The Meriden Show tomorrow (Holiday Inn) will be a first day for a Second Sunday souvenir card. There will be a mint U.S. airmail collection worth more than $50 for a door prize.

If you were shook by the U.S. P.S. giving up domestic air stamps — just hang tough, there will be plenty of foreign-use to collect. On the 17th of this month there will be a 21-cent postal card out of Kitty Hawk; on Jan. 2 two stamps, 25 and 31 cents, first day from Honolulu; and on Jan. 16 an airmail sheet for 22 cents, Tempe, Ariz.
