Park listing many VIPs

SEOUL, South Korea (UPI) — Korean millionaire Tongsun Park today gave U.S. investigators a lot of names of congressmen and Senators linked to the Korean payoff scandal, a congressman who attended the opening questioning sessions said.

Rep. Bruce Caputo, R-N.Y., said he felt "disgrace" at hearing about the conduct of ranking American officials at the interrogation of the 42-year-old rice dealer.

"We covered a lot of territory, a lot of names," Caputo said at the end of the three-hour afternoon session. "And Mr. Park had answers for all of them — different answers for different people."

Caputo said he did not know how truthful Park had been.

"But I will say that there were an awful lot of people mentioned as having received things of substantial value from Mr. Park," said Caputo who is a member of the House Ethics Committee.

Members of Congress, members of the Senate ... some very substantial amounts of money, meaningful amounts of money ... There were some who he denied having any relationship with."

Caputo — who attended both the morning and afternoon grilling sessions — said prosecutors Paul R. Michel and John T. Kotelly were pushing the questioning at a swift pace.

"I think this was a survey today. The plan of interrogation is to cover roughly the entire spectrum at the outset, and then go back and pick up on a more textual basis each particular individual and particular relationships with Mr. Park," he said.

"And today we covered just about the entire spectrum of possible collaborators."

He said he will report his findings to the House Ethics Committee. He said some of the information Park gave during the first day surprised even the Justice Department probes.

"Certainly some of the amounts were quite surprising, and the period of time it went on," he said.

Caputo said he thought an agreement could be worked out for Park to return to the United States "to talk to congressional committees, which is absolutely mandatory," he said.

American officials said the current questioning in Seoul will last about 10 days. There is a lie detector installed in the questioning room but whether it was used today was not known.

U.S. Assistant Attorney General Benjamin Civiletti headed the group of investigators, which included three FBI agents. Two Korean prosecutors also helped interrogate the 42-year-old millionaire rice dealer.

American officials had been trying for 18 months to win Park's cooperation in getting to the bottom of the influence-buying scandal on Capitol Hill.

Park, the central figure in the controversy, left Washington for London in the fall of 1976 to avoid questioning on allegations that South Korea bribed American officials to influence U.S. policy.

Summary

HARTFORD (UPI) — A Document with the signatures of 161 Somers state prison's inmates has been filed in U.S. District Court, protesting the segregation of four prisoners on the grounds their lives are in danger, the Norwich Bulletin reported today.

The four inmates have been segregated from Somers population of 1,000 since shortly after the Nov. 10 death of Alfred Chisolm, a 20-year-old Hartford resident who was found stuffed in a laundry basket near the maximum security facility's gymnasium.

HARTFORD (UPI) — More than 1,000 Connecticut welfare recipients have gone without their bi-weekly checks this month and last because of a work backlog at the Social Services Department brought on by winter-related illnesses, vacancies and new emergency programs for the needy.

Some of the welfare families have gone a month without a check, while the majority haven't received their state aid for two weeks, officials said.

HARTFORD (UPI) — Supporters of the bottle bill want to dispose of the issue one way or another early in the coming legislative session.

Senate Majority Leader Joseph Lieberman, D-New Haven; Environment Committee Chairman John Anderson, D-Redding; Sen. Lawrence DeNardis, R-Hamden; and Rep. Russell Post, R-Canton; Thursday sent their colleagues a letter asking for prompt action on the measure.

They noted the chief opponent of the bill, Sen. George Hannon, D-East Hartford, has said he will not try to stop the bill in the Environment Committee as he did last year.

BOSTON (UPI) — "Cans for Carter" — a campaign for a national ban on nonreturnable beverage containers — has been launched by a coalition of environmentalists and Massachusetts lawmakers.

A total of 278 empty cans, each with a 24-cent stamp and carrying a message for President Carter, were mailed Thursday from the Statehouse post office to the White House after supporters of the legislation held a news conference.

FAIRFIELD (UPI) — United Illuminating officials today tried to determine what caused a circuit breaker to explode and set off a fire that fatally injured one workman and hospitalized another with burns.

The accident that occurred about 8:10 a.m. Thursday in the company's downtown substation darkened a nearby school for several hours and it took about seven hours to restore service to about 2,700 UI customers.

NORTH KINGSTOWN, R. I. (UPI) — Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., says the federal government should expand its educational grant program to help middle-income families pay college bills.

Pell said Thursday night he plans to introduce a bill expanding the present Basic Education Opportunity Grant program so that a family of four with an annual income of $25,000 and a student in college would be eligible for a grant of $250.

CONCORD, N.H. (UPI) — Gov. Meldrim Thomson, secretary of state of the Conservative Caucus, leaves Sunday for an extensive trip through South Africa and a possible visit to Prime Minister John Vorster.

Thomson said Thursday night he would make an eight-day tour of South Africa as a guest of the South African Freedom Foundation.

AUGUSTA, Maine (UPI) — Maine's two most powerful environmental organizations have "reluctantly" endorsed spraying spruce budworm pesticide on about two million acres of forest land in 1978 because it is the "only alternative."

The executive directors of the Maine Audubon Society and the Natural Resources Council of Maine appeared at an Appropriations Committee hearing Thursday to support giving the 1978 spruce budworm program $206,000.

BOSTON (UPI) — Gov. Michael S. Dukakis has signed two housing bills, one protecting renters and another giving tax relief to elderly property owners in Massachusetts.

The first bill signed Thursday limits to one month's rent the amount of security deposit a renter must pay the landlord.

The second bill increases the property tax abatement for those over 70 years old from $350 to $500.

Democrats start caucus signup

By GREG PEARSON
Herald Reporter

Candidates for the Manchester Democratic Town Committee may start signing up Saturday for the party's Jan. 25 caucus, at which committee members from the town's ten voting districts are elected.

The chairman of each voting district draws up a slate, usually for all of the available positions on the committee for that district. Individuals not selected to the slate may file to run as challengers.

Some present members of the town committee have been dropped or will not seek re-election. At least one of the additions to a drawn-up slate includes a person selected in connection with the consolidation issue, according to a party source.

There will be challengers in some voting districts, although the exact number will not be known until the filing period ends Jan. 20.

Most of the slates that have been developed by the district chairmen include all the present members of the town committee. But some changes have been made. These include:

- District 1, which loses one of its seats on the town committee because of a change in party registration.
- Party sources indicated that Lee Ann Gundersen will be the party member who is dropped. James Quigley, district chairman, would not confirm that change.
- "It's like musical chairs. We have eight people for seven positions," he said.
- Mrs. Gundersen said that she expects to be dropped and is not pleased that the district did not meet on the issue. She called the process "completely unfair and undemocratic."
- She may challenge in the district.
- District 2, which gains a seat on the town committee because of an increase in party registration within the district. Its slate will be the same except that David Barry, state senator and Manchester's town council, will not seek re-election. He is being replaced on the slate by Robert Blanchard, a member of the Manchester Economic Development Commission, Clarence Foley, district chairman, said.

The district's new slot will be filled by Robert Bycholski, Foley said. Bycholski is a member of the Town Fire Department.

One party source called this "part of the push for consolidation."

- In District 5, Robert Tardiff, a town committee member, prefers to run as an individual challenger rather than a member of the slate.

His spot on the slate will be filled by Fran Merola, district chairman Daniel Cole said.

- In District 6, David Golas will not be part of the slate. His spot will be filled by Joseph Camposso.
- In District 7, Nicholas Kefas, who moved, will not be part of the slate. His spot will be filled by John Post.

The other district chairmen are expected to file slates identical to the present membership on the town committee.

Challengers are expected in some districts.

Brown, disturbed, resigns from ZBA

Clarence "Bud" Brown has resigned as a member of the Manchester Zoning Board of Appeals.

He said today that he took the step because he is disturbed with the events surrounding the granting of a variance for a Maple Street property and with some performance of some board members.

"During 25 years in business, I haven't had the frustrations that I've had in two years on the board," Brown said.

The matter that apparently triggered Brown's decision was the ZBA's October approval of a variance for an addition at 72 Maple Street. The applicants were Nicholas and Phyllis Jackson, both active in Schools close as storm grows

Manchester schools closed at midday today as townspeople joined others in the area and throughout much of the eastern part of the United States in preparation for a storm named "Hilton."

Winter storm warnings are posted throughout New England with snow spreading across the northern states, northern Massachusetts and Connecticut. The weather forecast is snow tonight changing to rain along the coast and mixing with sleet or freezing rain in the interior.

The Manchester Police Department has issued a parking ban on all streets effective today at 3 p.m. to facilitate snow plowing and removal.

The Town Highway Department is prepared to handle slippery roads and plowing.

There will be no curbside parking allowed anywhere in Manchester today starting at 3 p.m. because of the snowstorm, according to directives from the Manchester Police Department.

Higher gaming stakes suggested

WETHERSFIELD (UPI) — Connecticut should increase the payout from its daily lottery in hopes of bankrolling illegal numbers games, says the man who directed a $3 million federal gambling study.

James Ritchie Thursday suggested that state officials should subsidize the daily game if necessary to drive illegal operators out of business.

He was in Connecticut for a meeting with the state gaming commission and some lawmakers to go over a report recommending the state abolish the daily lottery.

University of Connecticut professor Mark Abrahamson, also present, has urged the daily lottery be dropped based on a study he did for the commission showing the game is disproportionately played by those who can least afford it.

Ritchie said state officials should decide if raising revenue or fighting crime is the major mission of legalized gambling in Connecticut, but he left no doubt about his sentiments.

"The policy judgment should be in favor of law enforcement. If the illegal market is paying 600-1, you should pay 900-1 and force them out of business," he said. "Operate at a deficit if you have to."

Connecticut pays 500-1 odds in its daily numbers game and Commissioner Lester Snyder has suggested increasing the payoff. He got little support from other gaming panel members when he made the suggestion last summer and a staff report said such a change would be too expensive.

But Commissioner Gloria Morris, acknowledging Ritchie's remarks, said Thursday "it (raising the payoff) is something we ought to explore."

The eight members of the Legislature's General Law Committee on hand for the meeting did not appear to support Abrahamson's call for elimination of the daily game, which is projected to raise $16 million this fiscal year.

"The money is important to the state of Connecticut. If we eliminate the legal game, it (betting) will go to illegal gambling," said Rep. Eugene Migliaro Jr., R-Wolcott. "We ought to at least get a share of it."

Ritchie, a former U.S. attorney and member of the federal government's organized crime task force, said the daily lottery was the best way for government to compete for the gambling dollar with illegal operators.

"In my judgment the best way to combat the illegal market is the legal numbers game," said Ritchie, who was director of the Commission to Review the National Policy Towards Gambling, which went out of existence in 1976. Ritchie said Abrahamson's suggestion the state consider legal sports betting as a means of reaching more affluent persons was impractical. He said because winners would have to pay taxes on their gains and could not bet on credit, it was unlikely such an operation would attract bettors from illegal bookies.

Educators ask questions in first budget workshop

The Manchester Board of Education spent most of its first workshop on the superintendent's recommended school budget asking for more information and comparative data from previous budgets.

Only two board members, Peter Crombie and Earl Odom, were able to attend Wednesday night's workshop with four administrators, to rather than start a line by line review, they decided to ask Wednesday's workshop.

Crombie, one of the recently elected members of the board, said his first reaction to School Superintendent James P. Kennedy's $15.8 million budget was that it is very comprehensible. He complimented the administrative staff for their efforts.

Kennedy quipped that the remarks were "probably the first and last nice words we'll hear" on the budget. The request is a 7.5 percent increase over last year's budget.

Odom said, because he often gets comments from the public that the schools spend a disproportionate amount on special education, he would like to see a breakdown of the three major categories of the budget back to 1970.

The three major categories include regular learning, special learning and support and administrative programs.

In the regular learning programs, $8,191,578 has been appropriated for next year under the superintendent's budget. The amount allocated for special learning programs is $2,707,706, and support and administrative programs account for $4,843,216 in next year's preliminary budget.

Kennedy said that the differences in next year's budget are almost entirely due to improvements in special education categories of the Regional Occupational Training Center and the gifted program. Those two programs account for $43,000 of the $66,500 improvement priorities.

The requested increase in the special learning programs for next year is 9.1 percent over last year's budget. The increase under the regular learning programs amounts to 7 percent.

Alan C. Chesterton, director of pupil personnel, noted that the Board of Education has added dramatically to the special learning budget in recent years, especially for about two years prior to 1972. The increases were based on new state-mandated programs.

Chesterton said all special education programs except for transportation are reflected under one section of the budget this year, called exceptional children, which covers the Town man coordinates fund drive

H.E. Sam Wilde of Rachel Road has been named East Central Regional Chairman of the 1978 Fund Raising Campaign of the American Heart Association of Greater Hartford. Announcement of his appointment was made by Adin Tooker, 1978 General Campaign Chairman.

Wilde is senior pension analyst for Travelers Insurance Company in Hartford. As regional chairman he will coordinate the fundraising efforts in the area that includes Bolton, Manchester, South Windsor, Tolland and Vernon. The names of town chairpeople will be announced soon.

The Annual Heart Campaign raises money for research, education and community service programs designed to fight the nation's Number One killer, heart and blood vessel disease. The campaign will center in February, designated "Heart Month."

Foundation will explain scholarships

The Manchester Scholarship Foundation will hold an informational meeting Thursday, Jan. 19, at 7:30 p.m. at the Manchester Country Club.

The purpose of the meeting is to discuss and explain the foundation's procedures and criteria for the awarding of scholarships and loans. The selection process will be reviewed by a college financial aid officer and members of the foundation.

Any interested persons or organizations are invited to attend. Those planning to attend are asked to contact Mrs. James Gerrity, 78 Diane Drive (phone 643-2372) by Tuesday, Jan. 17. Refreshments will be served.

Manchester Scholarship Foundation applications are available at local high schools and the financial aid office at Manchester Community College. The deadline for applications is April 4.

The Fellowship Club of Community Baptist Church will have a dinner and program Saturday starting at 6:30 p.m. in Fellowship Hall of the church.

Wickham Park may be open for skiing

Wickham Park will be open Sunday and Monday to skiers and sleds if there is enough snow cover on the park slopes, said Jeff Maron, park director, Friday at noon.

Maron feared rain might ruin what looked like the beginning of a three-day, sliding-filled weekend for area school children. Monday is Martin Luther King Day and schools will be closed.

If the snow persists, the park's cabin at the top of the park will be open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Sunday and Monday. Park rangers will offer hot chocolate, coffee, tea and donuts in the cabin. The fireplace will have a cozy fire going during the day, Maron said.

The park has a broad and long slope on its East Hartford side. A more gentle slope faces north on the Manchester side of the park.

Parking will be allowed all the way to the top by the cabin, Maron said. So this season, weather conditions have blocked park plans for such a weekend. Snow was either not deep enough or melted by the weekend.

Town Jaycees plan orientation meeting

The Manchester Jaycees will hold an orientation meeting Wednesday at 8 p.m. at the First Federal Savings Bank Community Room, 344 W. Middle Turnpike.

The Jaycees is a volunteer civic organization of men between the ages of 18 and 35. The organization offers members a chance for self-organization through community involvement.

Some current projects conducted by the Jaycees this year include the Miss Manchester Scholarship Pageant, improvements at the Oak operator, Ringstone said it costs between $10,000 and $15,000, a full-scale operation involves 36 snow plows and a grader in addition to the sanders.

Ringstone described the "rule of thumb" order of operations. When there's a trace of snow so that the trucks are visible, 11 trucks are sent out to chemically treat the roads.

If the snow begins to accumulate, 18 trucks are sent out sanding and chemically treating. When snow depth reaches two inches throughout most of the town, then the department goes into full-scale operation. Ringstone explained that because of Manchester's location in the snow belt, and because of the varying depths of snow, different operations are sometimes required. It may be snowing hard in the Birch Mountain area, for instance, and only raining in the center of town.

FitzPatrick, have applied for applications to run as challengers in the caucus.

FitzPatrick said that he will run in District 6, Cassano said that he might run in District 4.

Joseph McCarthy will run as a challenger in District 5. He previously had been elected to the town committee when he ran as a challenger in District 10.

He moved to District 10, however, and had to relinquish his seat.

Another definite challenger is Stephen Ray in District 5. Both McCarthy and Ray said that there are committee members in their district who have not attended many meetings.

"We have members who never attend. It's the same people at every meeting," Ray said.

Concrete Idea

In 1824, an English bricklayer, Joseph Aspdin, invented portland cement, so named after a look-alike stone on the Isle of Portland. This comprises 98 per cent of cement made in the United States today — a high quality cement made by pulverizing limestone and clay, burning the mixture then grinding it into a fine powder. When sand, gravel and water are added, it makes concrete.

Public records MCC in resource survey

An inventory of educational resources available to more than one million Connecticut residents in an area bordered by Middletown, Eastford, Manchester, Waterbury and Winsted will be undertaken by 30 colleges, universities and proprietary schools this spring. Manchester Community College is one of the participants.

Launched by the Connecticut Board of Higher Education and funded by the General Assembly, the project will operate out of Central Connecticut State College, New Britain, under the direction of Kevin J. Eickelmann.

Goal of the four-month survey is to inventory current educational programs available to both young people and adults in the North-Central region of the state.

"Programs, academic accessibility, transfer opportunities between institutions, cooperative programs with Connecticut business and industry and the role of education as it relates to the state's manpower needs are among some of the areas we will examine," Earls said.

The 30 institutions are voluntarily cooperating in the effort, Earls noted.

The study may lead to increased regional planning and inter-campus cooperation, he said, among the participating institutions. One end result, Earls feels, is that programs may be "dovetailed" between institutions, leading to a greater degree of sharing of resources as well as students.

Among specific areas of interest already voiced by participants are cooperative programs, funding for vocational programs, federal dollars available on a regional basis, procedures for schools to meet requirements of the handicapped act and joint recommendations to the BHE to assist students in the area.

Along with Central, colleges and universities participating include Assunpink, Greater Hartford, Manchester, Mattatuck, Middlesex, Northwestern and Tuamox community colleges; Hartford State Technical College, Hartford College for Women, St. Joseph College, Trinity College, University of Connecticut, Western University, University of Hartford, the Board of State Academic Awards, and the BHE.

Earls said some 15 proprietary schools are expected to be represented on the regional committee by their professional organization, the Connecticut Association of Proprietary Schools.

Miss Lisa Secrist of 130 Parker St. has been elected worthy advisor of Manchester Assembly, Order of Rainbow for Girls. She succeeds Miss Arlene Nelson.

Other officers elected are Joan Cartwright, worthy associate advisor; Carol Mackenzie, Charly; Cindy Twible, Hope; Diane Ferguson, Faith; Leslie Norris, recorder; and Arlene Nelson, treasurer.

Miss Secrist is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Secrist. She is a senior at Manchester High School and has been active with American Field Service (AFS), Future Secretaries of America (FSA), Flag Corporation, and is currently a business work experience student.

She attends Community Baptist Church where she assists with the kindergarten.

The new officers will be installed at a semi-public installation Saturday, Feb. 4, at the Masonic Temple.

More than a good cop

The coming retirement of Capt. Joseph Sartor cannot be written off with the casual comment that "He was a good cop."

He was all of that during his 29 years on the force.

There are a lot of qualities that make one man stand out above the rest. Some of them are enjoying your work and Joe liked police work, dogged determination and, as those detective stories call it, "bulldog tenacity."

But there are other qualities: compassion, sincerity, devotion, cooperation, sensitivity, responsibility, compatibility, integrity, honesty — the qualifications are numerous, and Joe had them all.

"He's the anchor point for this (police) family," said Police Chief Bob Lannan.

Joe could probably tell us of him many experiences when he was called upon. He was the town's first and only head of its detective division.

We wish for Capt. Joe a long and healthy retirement, and with the full knowledge that Manchester is indebted to him for "being a good cop."

Both are right

There are two stories on the High School World page today that we would like you to read.

One is a HSW editorial at the top left corner; the other is in the center of the page under a photo, and its headline reads "Class collects toys for the needy."

Even within the high school community today we find differences on what should or should not be published; those of us who make journalism a daily practice run into these things all the time.

We share the concern of the editorialist who tries to reach those committing unnecessary vandalism at the high school.

This is not the first editorial written about the subject. There is a real concern among some Manchester High students about vandalism. It costs money, and that high school world editorialist understands it. Vandalism is costly, and the taxpayer has to pay for it.

The author of the story about the Futuristics class is critical of the High School World for what he calls a "stigma of negativism." He finds vandalism, crowded hallways, and computers are favorite topics, and says the World rarely finds time to print the positive news.

The Futuristics class was a very positive story; it was a "spur of the moment" idea of helping someone less fortunate. And the story was printed — on the High School World page.

But that is the responsibility of high school journalists, just as it is among we practicing journalists: printing the bad with the good.

Taking the sex out...

Further on government language, the Department of Labor is taking the sex out of one of its standard reference works.

In the latest edition of its dictionary of occupational titles, updated from 1965, 3,000 have been revised to eliminate connotations of sex. "Draftsman," for example, has become "drafter" and "bat handler" is the new handle — you guessed it — "bat boy."

The new edition also contains more than 2,000 new occupations, such as "credit card clerk," unknown in 1965. Which says something about our rapidly changing society.

Capital gains limit extended to 9 months

By RAY DECRANE

(Fifth in a Series)

From the earliest days of the income tax — now in its 50th year in this country — capital gains have always enjoyed preferential tax treatment.

To encourage investments, and to reward the risk-takers, tax laws have always taxed only 50 percent of long-term capital gains. For nearly all those 50 years a gain was considered long-term if the security was held for longer than six months before it was sold. Anything sold within a shorter holding period was considered short-term and 100 percent of the gain was taxable.

The six-month rule is now gone. It has gone the way of the outmoded standard deduction against the long-remembered Short Form. All have been abolished by the new tax laws and the revised tax forms in use this year.

Beginning in 1977 the holding period for long-term transactions has been extended to nine months. Now a asset has to be held for at least nine months and one day before its sale results in a tax-preferred long-term gain.

As a possible sweetener to the conversion to the longer holding period, Congress at the same time increased the amount of capital losses that can be taken in any one year. Beginning in 1977 a maximum of $2,000 in capital losses may be claimed against other taxable income. The loss limitation had always been $1,000 in the past.

Losses in excess of the yearly limit are not totally wasted. They still can be carried forward to future years and be applied against gains or as a subtraction against other income.

But just as investors start to become acquainted with the nine-month period and the $2,000 loss limitation, the rules are being changed again.

Beginning in 1978 the holding period is extended to 12 months and the loss limitation has been raised to $3,000. The change-over from a nine-month to a 12-month holding period is going to produce some quirks in the early months of this year. Investors will have to be sure of the rules or they could make some trades with serious unanticipated consequences.

Consider the investor who bought some stock on March 15, 1977. On Dec. 16, 1977 he had owned it for longer than nine months. Any profitable sale from Dec. 16 through the end of the year would have resulted in a long-term gain.

But if he held back on the sale in December, and then decided to sell in January, he had a serious tax problem. What had been long-term in December became short-term in January because of the 12-month holding period in effect this year. The January sale would have resulted in 100 percent of the gain being taxable.

Don't arrest the fireman

To the editor: I believe very strongly that the fireman who hit two cars should not be brought up on charges.

Do we bring up on charges all the people that don't stop for the fire engines, sirens, that create danger for the firemen? Are we going to scare the firemen so much that they are going to stop at every red light and every intersection so that many lives will be in peril and much property damaged?

I certainly hope not and I hope that nothing moral will happen to the fireman who had the accident so that all the firemen will continue to do the fantastic job that they do and risk their lives so that many people's property and lives can be saved.

I fully support the firemen and hope and pray that they will continue to do the excellent job they do all over this country in saving people's lives and property.

Sincerely yours,
Gary Wolf

No anti-inflation program

By ANDREW TULLY
WASHINGTON — President Carter has no anti-inflation program. That's not news, except maybe to some Bulgarian peasant. But I find a grain of solace (non-jugglable at the neighborhood optimism hell) every time somebody who knows something about economics reminds me of this deficiency in Jimmy Carter's grand plan to make us all happier.

Therefore, I give thanks today to Dr. Arthur M. Okun, chairman of Lyndon Johnson's Council of Economic Advisers. Okun came right out and said it: Carter has no anti-inflation program. Not that I would trust any economist with guarding my last million. To note that economics is an inexact science is to undertake the case. But Okun, now with the Brookings Institution think tank, tried valiantly to persuade Johnson to fund the Vietnam War. Johnson didn't — and now! — prices eventually ran wild.

More likely to go up.
So I listened intently when Okun told "Meet the Press" that the current 6 percent inflation rate is more likely to go up than down unless Carter rattles his reluctant books and does something like it. Okun spoke of the obvious when he said price inflation wouldn't go down unless wage inflation went down, "and you can't solve either of these problems without solving both."

But with that state utterance out of the way, Okun offered a suggestion. "What I would like to see," he said, "is some kind of an incentive system offering rewards through lower taxes specifically for those business firms and labor groups that volunteer to restrain prices and wages."

Don't bug me for a guarantee that Okun's plan would work. Given the state of the country, only Divine intervention would be a sure-thing bet. But Okun's plan makes sense because it is an appeal to self-interest, what this member of the rabble calls greed.

What's in it for them
Tully's Law says that both Big Business and Labor will cooperate only if there's something in it for them. Okun offers that something, on the probably correct assumption that business will raise prices if the cost of doing business is reduced, and labor unions will forego wage boosts if the cost of living is reduced.

I say probably because in this era of the hustler, each side will seek a gimmick whereby the other does the cooperating. That's sinful, but human beings were born to sin, and the Okun plan would require strict policing against the larcenous tendencies of all of us — including even thee and, possibly me.

But I think the plan deserves a try. It probably has weaknesses, but it gives the country a choice between something and Jimmy Carter's nothing. Or, as Okun puts it: "Otherwise we are going to be stuck with the stagflation swamp that we have been in, with a perpetual motion machine of 8 percent wage increases and 6 percent price increases."

Should read Okun plan
Indeed, the Carter administration's plans are based on continuing inflation. Everything it does, from buying airplanes to boosting Social Security taxes, makes allowances for a higher and higher cost of living as the working stiff moves — pursued by bankruptcy — into the 21st century.

Carter is an omnivorous reader, a man of swift comprehension. I wish he'd take time out from peddling morality to the rest of the world and give Okun's plan a quick read. It is ironic that a presidential candidate who kept telling us everything could be done, seems to be saying that nothing is the best he can do about inflation.

Pentagon: family planning?

By MARTHA ANGLE and ROBERT WALTERS
WASHINGTON (NEA) — "If the military wanted you to have a family, we would have issued one."

It's a hoary old gag line, all too familiar to anyone who has ever donned a uniform in the service of Uncle Sam.

But in this era of the all-volunteered armed services, it just might be destined for mothballs.

Ever so slowly, it is beginning to dawn on the Pentagon that a nation that does not longer be ignored by those responsible for recruiting and maintaining the nation's military force.

The reason is simple. To make the all-volunteer military a success, the armed services have to retain their recruits for as long as possible. And they can't keep personnel unless families find satisfaction in military life.

Many research papers
Last fall, the Pentagon held its very first conference ever on the problems of military families. The three-day session in San Diego stimulated almost as many research papers on the subject as had been published in the three decades since World War II.

The operational brass attending the meeting, including eight flag corps officers from various services, received an eye-opening education into the relevance of family problems for military planning and preparedness.

An ever-growing percentage of young enlisted personnel are married. In the Army alone, the figure has reached 38 percent, compared with 25 percent a mere two years ago.

And while the Army keeps merrily building barracks for single enlisted men, one of its own recent studies shows the best way to persuade recruits to stay in longer would be to provide more affordable, decent family housing.

To the extent that the military acknowledges the existence of families, it assumes they consist of a serviceman, his stay-at-home wife and kids.

No day care facilities
Yet in the Navy alone, there are 17,000 single parents on active duty — and two-thirds of them are men. There is not a single 24-hour day care facility in any of the armed services.

Even in two-parent families, increasing numbers of military wives now work, and they are not all prepared to drop everything and accompany their husbands on a change of station.

There are thousands of families in which both the husband and wife are service personnel, creating major new assignment headaches for the brass.

All of the services are recruiting more women, a development which does not necessarily thrill the wives of male servicemen. The Navy, for instance, is seeking congressional authority to assign women to sea duty. Yet 80 percent of Navy career wives polled in one recent survey said they would seek to encourage their husbands to leave the service if women are put aboard ships for sea tours.

Constant moves and long separations are a fact of life for military personnel, but often have a devastating effect on families. Resistance to both is growing among the ranks.

Military civilianized
One of the principal organizers of the San Diego conference was Dr. Edna Hunter, head of the family studies branch of the Naval Health Research Center, whose work on the problems of returning Vietnam prisoners-of-war helped create Pentagon sensitivity to the military family.

"I think we've made a giant step," she says. "Today's problems are far more complex, and quite different, from what they have been in the past. The military is becoming 'civilianized,' and that is going to require some changes in the old rules."

It's about time the military devoted more attention to its people problems. Although 55 percent of the entire defense budget now goes to manpower, only one-half cent of every dollar spent on research and development is allocated to personnel research. Something is out of whack.

Business

United Tech put millions into the state

United Technologies Corporation spent an average of about $22 million a week in Connecticut last year.

Its total outlays in the state — over $1 billion — were equivalent to twice the combined municipal budgets of the six largest cities for the current fiscal year.

The largest single corporate expenditure, $825 million, went for wages and salaries paid to United's Connecticut employees. In comparison, the combined budgets for Hartford, Bridgeport, New Haven, Waterbury, Stamford and Norwalk total about $500 million.

United Technologies purchased about $300 million worth of goods and services from state suppliers and subcontractors during 1977.

Tax payments made to the state and to individual towns and cities were approximately $30 million for the year.

Of the corporation's $150 million in capital spending in 1977, about $80 million or 53 percent was for improvement of its Connecticut facilities and equipment.

During the past year, United Technologies also initiated $84 million in new capital projects for Connecticut. These projects included $16 million for expanded helicopter production facilities in Stratford and Bridgeport, $7.5 million for facilities improvements in East Hartford, and $3 million for test facilities in Windsor Locks.

Only we students can stop vandalism

Someone lit the bottom of a paper floor-to-ceiling poster that was hung on the wall of the cafeteria. The poster, which had been painted and positioned by members of the MHS cheerleading squad to help publicize winter sports, burned dangerously bright as the flames burned their way up the paper.

One student had the presence of mind to get a fire extinguisher; most of the others present simply watched in surprise as the flames rose. The fire burned itself out quickly and no damage was done — but what if a section of the burning poster had fallen onto one of the tables below, where people sat eating their lunches? Unfortunately, this incident is not isolated, although it is perhaps a bit more dramatic than some of the others. But fires, smoke bombs, destruction of lockers, bathrooms and hallways — all of these crimes have been committed at a rate unsurpassed in recent MHS history.

The point here is not tell horror stories about the dastardly deeds of evil MHS students, nor is it to beg the vandals to stop their destruction of school property. Horror stories are bad publicity for a school that is actually full of a lot of good people.

No one wants to create the impression that everyone at MHS throws smoke bombs: we all know that it's just a small minority who are doing the damage. As for begging vandals to stop, well, no one who enjoys burning things will really care about what is said in a High School World article.

This article, then, is addressed to the rest of the students: the innocents the vast majority of the MHS population.

Over the past three school weeks, a few very concerned students have been talking with administrators and other school-related officials in both formal and private meetings. The feelings expressed in these talks are clear: both the students and the administration want to put an end to the vandalism.

The very old students' fear of having the campus closed is at this moment a very real one. While no administrators want to have to close the campus (one called the campus-closing move "a last ditch thing"), if the vandalism continues, some sort of concrete action will have to be taken, and closing the campus is one of the choices.

Much progress is being made as far as tracking down the offenders goes, and police action is being taken in most cases, but prevention, not prosecution, is what both the students and the administrators want.

Many suggestions have been made about what the students can do to help stop the vandalism, but there are many problems in using them. Students can't be asked to turn in their friends. They can't be asked to physically stop other students from throwing firecrackers. But there are a few things that concerned students can do.

First, they can make themselves and their friends aware that a serious problem exists here, and that it must be solved from within; outside force won't do it.

Second, they can refuse to approve of any vandalism. They can tell their friends who commit or who know of acts of vandalism that they disapprove. They can remind their friends that each illegal act at MHS brings the public's opinion of MHS students down another notch. By showing vandals that they disapprove, students can really help solve the problem.

Next, students should keep their eyes open, not for the purpose of reporting someone, but for the purpose of preventing an act of vandalism. If you see something unusual, ask what's going on. If everyone in the cafeteria had really looked aware of what was going on around him, none would have dared to light that poster.

Only the students can stop vandalism at MHS. They have to keep their eyes open, use good sense and, above all, show each other that they are concerned about what the few vandals among us are doing to our reputation and what they might be doing to our rights and privileges. By voicing their concern, by doing all that can, students really can solve the problem. After all, the school exists for them. It's up to them to decide how it should be treated and how they should be treated in return.

— Steve Latham

Deep Sixers list plans

Diving under the ice of a frozen lake in northern Maine is out for the Deep Sixers this winter. However, on Dec. 21, Norah Harmon, Craig Johnson, Randy Jones, Colin Murphy, Mike Neuhel, Cathy Seavey, Jeff Slabby, Dave Smith and Scott Wertheimer planned the activities for this winter and elected Dave Smith as president of the club.

One of the activities the club planned was a scuba swim which took place on Jan. 4, during which time Paula Bowe, John Gibeault and Willie Meyer were introduced to the use of Self Contained Underwater Breathing Apparatus. The Deep Sixers are trying to organize an underwater hockey team (played with mask, fins and snorkel).

We have planned another scuba orientation and a scuba diver training course (Feb. 15). Any student or faculty member interested in underwater hockey, scuba orientation or the training course, please see Mr. Hunt, Dave Smith, or leave a note on the board in Room 202. Dave Smith

Class collects toys for the needy

Part of the journalistic approach that is somewhat misleading is the overabundance of negative material. Vandalism, crowded hallways, and poorly organized computers are favorite topics for High School World editorials, and positive news rarely finds its way into the newspaper.

Let's bury that stigma of negativism.

The idea of helping someone less fortunate than yourself is certainly commendable, but "action speaks louder than words." Mrs. Fabian's Senior Fiction class and her Futuristics class took these words to heart. They decided that they would conduct their own toy drive and donate the collected items.

The drive was led largely by Veronica Lingard and Brenda Durand and was a "spur of the moment" idea. The thought came up around the beginning of December in class discussion, and was put into motion at around the same time. The drive was continued for two-and-a-half weeks and ended just before Christmas.

Mrs. Fabian said that the class reaction was excellent and that almost everyone in her two classes participated. It was difficult for some of her students to part with long-loved dolls and matchbox cars, but they made the sacrifice. Once the toys were brought into class, the kids took them down to the Eighth District Fire Department. From there they were distributed to children who would have gone without toys for Christmas.

The students benefited greatly from the experience of giving and not receiving. Their mood was really one of charity and contribution. When talking with them, they were sur-

Helpful tips for exams

The beginning of the new year is here, and can midyear exams be far behind? Here are a few things that I do to help me study for the less than cheerful event:

1. Study a night before you go to sleep. I read an article on how you can remember more if you study, then go to sleep. It helps you to sort out things, and it works.
2. Take a break in between subjects. Watch a little TV or just get up and move around. Give yourself time to relax.
3. Don't study in front of the TV or while listening to the radio. If there is a certain program you want to see, budget your time so you can watch it. Don't study while you're viewing, though; you cannot concentrate on two things at once and do both well. Go into a quiet room to study.
4. Start studying NOW. If you want to get a good grade, cramming isn't the answer. Review a few pages of notes or a chapter a night. That is much easier than staying up all night and not remembering much.

Variety Show arranged

What are you doing Jan. 27 this bright new year? Well, have it an activity for you! It's the Vaudeville Variety Show sponsored by some other than Manchester's own Round Table Singers.

Indeed you must have suspected something was out of the ordinary, ever magically making things disappear. Various acts include dancing, musical accompaniment, and a Jimmy Carter imitation.

Although Round Table is presenting the Variety Show, the proceeds will go to the Student's Activities Association.

We hope that you will come out, have a great time, and support the high school.

Junior Civitan aids community

Junior Civitan is an organization which is probably not too well known in MHS. It helps people in our community and also students here at MHS.

Presently plans are being made to show a group of movies at area elementary schools. If there are those interested in helping with the presentation of the movies, they should contact any Junior Civitan member.

Profits from the movies will be used to fund the club's activities. This year's plans include visiting the area convalescent homes, and helping them in whatever ways possible. Also this year, Junior Civitan plans to help new students to become oriented with the school by being a Big Brother or Sister. Carolyn Fratrotoli is in charge of this project.

New members are always welcome, and those interested should contact either a Junior Civitan member or come to Room 225 after school on Tuesdays. Some very worthwhile fun can be obtained by joining this activity. — Richard Walden

MHS to produce "Mame"

The musical is a fanciful, carefree world where anything can happen. Scarcers can talk, villages can appear and disappear, and the hero always gets the girl in the end. It is a world where people can lose themselves in a fantasy and forget their troubles.

Wrestling outlook

Prospects for a winning season look much better this year for the Varsity Wrestling team, coached by Robert Albrico. The Indian grapplers boast a 2-1 record this year after a 6-9 season last year. After three matches, five Indian grapplers remain undefeated: Chris Luz (140 lb. division), Doug Marshall (147 lb.), Bob Gagnon (169 lb.), Keith Ray (187 lb.) and Tim Wrobel (unlimited) are all seniors except Ray, who is a sophomore.

Coach Albrico commented that he thought the wrestling team was balanced but had little depth.

"The year will be a struggle but we will never be totally out-wrestled on the mat, he was quoted as saying. "The lower weight division will hold their own, the middle is seasoned, and we have an experienced heavy in Tim Wrobel."

Other promising underclassmen are Michael Scholsky (junior), Dan Collins (sophomore), and Doug Hanley (junior). The team as a whole is working hard and should enjoy a more successful season this year.

Last year the grapplers forfeited both the 98-lb. match and the unlimited match, which definitely affected the season's record. Six matches last year were lost by only one match.

This year's wrestling matches at home are free. Manchester's next match is on Jan. 19 away at Glastonbury. — Jeff Howard

Have you ever wondered what it would be like to live in another country? To learn another language, to learn another, perhaps totally different, culture?

If you've ever wanted to have such an experience, then this article concerns you.

Youth For Understanding is now accepting applications for students to spend a summer of a year abroad, learning what it's like to live in another country. Some of the choices of countries are Australia, Greece, Norway, Brazil; the selection is practically limitless. The total cost is less than a year at college, and you learn just as much, if not more. What you learn is not found in any books — you can't learn about people through books. You will also have the opportunity to teach others about America, and to teach them of your way of life while learning theirs.

If you don't want to travel, or don't want to miss a year of school, then you can still learn about others by hosting an exchange student in your house for a year. The student will live at your house, become one of your family, and attend school with you. It's one of the best experiences anyone can have. Your whole family will benefit from having a foreign student in your home.

To apply for either (or both) programs, simply contact either Ann Katherine Taylor (this year's YFU exchange student from Sweden) or Mari Brian. You can also find more information in the Guidance Office. Apply. What have you got to lose?

Engaged

The engagement of Miss Lynn Marie Driscoll of Newtonington to James L. Boorman of Newtonington, formerly of Manchester, has been announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Robinson Jr., of 99 Sunset Ridge Drive, East Hartford.

Mr. Boorman is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harley Boorman of Newtonington.

Both the bride-elect and her fiancé graduated from Newtonington High School and Manchester Community College.

Miss Driscoll is employed at Hartford Mack Trucks Inc. in Hartford. Mr. Boorman is in a medical program in the U. S. Navy.

The couple is planning a February wedding at the Congregational Church in Newtonington. (Bruno photo)

Wedding

Franzi-Taylor

Ann Katherine Taylor of Manchester and David Alan Franzi of Goshen were married Dec. 27 at the Unitarian Meeting House in Hartford.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Taylor of 42 Ferguson Road. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert H. Franzi of Goshen.

The Rev. Newell Curtis of Center Congregational Church in Manchester officiated at the double-ring ceremony. The Rev. Richard Boles of St. Bartholomew's Church in Manchester pronounced the nuptial blessing. Walter Gryzyb of Manchester was organist.

Joan Stegenga of Pearl River, N.Y., was her cousin's maid of honor. Romn Cabanoli of Manchester, Vt., served as best man.

A reception was held in the library lounge of the Unitarian Meeting House. The couple is residing in Oxford, Ohio.

Mrs. Franzi is currently a senior at Eastern Connecticut State College in Willimantic. Mr. Franzi, a 1977 summa cum laude graduate of ECSC, is currently pursuing graduate studies at Miami University in Oxford, Ohio.

College notes

Michael Shawcross, son of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Shawcross of 125 Bolton Branch Road, Coventry, has been named to the fall dean's list at Florida Institute of Technology at Melbourne, Fla.

He graduated from Coventry High School in 1976 and is a sophomore majoring in ocean engineering at the institution.

Auditions set for children

There will be auditions of local children for the Coachlight Dinner Theatre's upcoming musical "The Sound of Music" which opens an eight week run on Feb. 7.

Auditions for the principal roles of the Von Trapp family children will be held for area children on Saturday, Jan. 21 between 11 a.m. and 3 p.m. Boys and girls between 9 and 14 years of age should bring their own music and accompanist for the audition. Vocal and stage experience is preferred.

The remainder of the show's cast will consist of seasoned Broadway actors and actresses. They are presently being selected by director Cash Baxter in New York City.

The Coachlight last cast area children in 1974 for "South Pacific."

The musical will go on stage nightly, except Mondays. Selected matinees are also scheduled.

For additional information contact Tim Stella, musical director, at 522-1266, 623-8227, or (413)-567-1801.

HEALTH

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have lost 125 pounds in 14 months and am now maintaining my goal weight. The only problem now is one of vanity. My skin is crepey and my tone far from firm.

During my entire weight-loss program I exercised faithfully and have continued to do so with little effect. Is there anything I can do to get rid of my flabby stomach, legs and underwear? Flabby skin runs in our family, but at the age of 30 I expect a firmer body.

Is it possible to have plastic surgery to remove the excess? How much would that cost? I would prefer exercise to surgery.

DEAR READER — Your skin is an elastic sack. As we get older it stretches around and more and loses its elasticity. That leads to wrinkled skin.

When you are overweight the sack will stretch to accommodate its contents. Even though you are just 30, you have already stretched your skin for years. Think of it as if you emptied out 125 pounds of butter. That would leave a lot of room inside.

You will never exercise enough or build enough muscle to refill the space occupied by 125 pounds of fat, and you wouldn't want to. Your skin will regain some of its elasticity and will improve, but not overnight. Wait at least a year while you maintain your weight; your new ideal level before doing anything about it. At that time if you still have an enormous amount loose skin you could consult a plastic surgeon and see what needs to be done. Excess skin can be removed. How much it would cost depends a lot on the doctor and how much he is going to do. You would need to hear it from your own doctor to know what he will want for such a repair.

patients with an enormous apron of fat over the abdomen have had it surgically removed. In some instances the apron of fat is so large that a mechanical hoist system has to be rigged in the operating room to lift it.

That does not remove a similar amount of fat that is inside the abdominal cavity.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 47, Weight Losing Diet which you can use as a cornerstone for a continued dietary control program. Others who want this program can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of The Manchester Evening Herald, P.O. Sheppard trick powers Bruins

NEW YORK (UPI) — It takes more than a knee injury to stop Boston's Gregg Sheppard.

Sheppard, 28, lacks the natural ability of more gifted players, but his relentless hustle and persistent checking has made him a favorite in Boston Garden.

Thursday, Sheppard scored once in each period for his second, third and fourth goals of the year and his final tally.

Pro hockey. Terry O'Reilly, Cashman and Peter McNab added goals to put Boston ahead in the third period.

Boston's victory, combined with Buffalo's 6-3 loss to Cleveland, gave the Bruins a two-point lead in the NHL's Adams Division.

Cleveland scored four goals in the final period to overcome a hat trick by Buffalo's Gil Perreault, who now has 30 goals this season.

House Design Affects Costs

Design or plan the house to meet your family's requirements. Two small houses, for example, would be false economy. Here are some principles of economical design:

- Two-story houses cost less per square foot to build than single-story ones. The main reason is that less roof area is required to cover an equivalent amount of living area.
- Rectangular floor plans cost less per square foot to build than L-shaped, U-shaped, or other irregular floor plans.
- Simple gable roofs are the most economical. Flat and shed roofs are cheaper but have poor drainage and high maintenance cost. Ridges and valleys increase the cost of a roof.
- Basements add low-cost space to a house. If well lighted, well ventilated, and dry, they can be used for living quarters.
- Attics also add low-cost space. And shed dormers, while they may cost a little more, provide more usable space than gable dormers.
- Slab-on-grade construction is cheaper than crawl-space construction.

BUY NOW-DON'T WAIT FOR PRICE DROP

Houses are not likely to get any cheaper and the costs of construction continues to go up. If you can afford it by now. When you wait for what you think is the right time, the chances are that you will be fooling yourself. The family that waits for interest rates to drop will only pay a higher price for the house than if the purchase had been made a year or two previously. The appreciation in price thus went to the seller, whereas it could have increased the buyer's equity in the house had the deal been completed earlier. Don't wait for condition to be perfect. They won't be, and if you wait, you'll miss both the boat and the house.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Why should people who do not use the public schools have to pay taxes for them? We are taxed to death.

I don't mind paying taxes for things I get some benefit from, but we haven't had any children in the public schools for 12 years, so why should we have to pay to get other people's children educated?

TAXED TO DEATH

DEAR TAXED: Free public education, paid for out of general taxes is the only way to give all children an equal chance to learn. It is considered a "community service," the same as parks, highways, libraries, and the police and fire departments.

Such services are possible only if everyone pays for them. We would be in a fine fix if, for example, our fire departments were financed only by those who "used" them.

DEAR ABBY: Do you think a traveling salesman should dance while he's on the road? It's not the actual dancing I object to, but I think it could lead to more serious things. I became aware of this when my husband started bringing home shirts with lipstick on the collar, shoulders and down the front.

Lipstick seems to get on the shirts only when he dances away from home. Never when he's in a group with his wife. I would appreciate your opinion.

DANCER'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Not many traveling salesmen feel like dancing on the road, but if yours does, he'd better cut it out before he gets all tripped up.

DEAR ABBY: My brothers and sisters and I are married. Our mother, who has been widowed for years, is hard of hearing, so we all clipped in and bought her a hearing aid. She hears fine when she uses it, but she's either too proud or too contrary to wear it. She doesn't want people to know.

After visiting her we came away exhausted. Our throats are sore from hollering, and our nerves are on edge, so consequently we don't visit her as often as we should. She butts into conversations, and gives answers to entirely different questions from the ones asked. It's just awful, Abby. What should we do?

HER OLDEST SON

DEAR SON: What you suffer is mild compared to what your hard-of-hearing mother must be suffering. Don't assume that she's "too proud" or "contrary" to wear her hearing aid. Perhaps it's not in good working order.

Or it could be uncomfortable or too conspicuous for her tastes. Investigate the newest in hearing aids, and be sure your mother has the best. It will open up a wonderful new world for her. And for you, too.

CONFIDENTIAL TO 'LOVES JESUS - HATES JEWS'

Perhaps you do not know that the Jesus you love was born a Jew, lived his life as a Jew and died as a Jew. He was aware that he had founded a new religion. Furthermore, all of the 12 apostles as well as St. Paul and the first Pope were Jews.

Brown disturbed
Area police — Democratic politics and former members of town boards. The couple had done substantial work on the addition when questions arose last spring about the legality of the answer," he said.

"I'm sorry he feels that bitter about this. Quitting is not the answer," he said.

Brown is the only Republican member of the five-member board, although two of the board's alternates are Republicans. One of those alternates, either Harriet Haslett or Harry Reinhorn, will fill Brown's seat at Monday night's ZBA meeting.

Thomas Ferguson, Republican town chairman, said.

The alternates will be offered the first opportunity to fill Brown's seat for the rest of the term, which expires in 1980, Ferguson said.

Emblem Club meets
COVENTRY — The East Hartford Emblem Club's meeting will be Tuesday, Jan. 17 at the Elks Lodge on Roberts Street.

Cold slows building
COVENTRY — Cold weather in December finally appeared to take effect on the strong building pace maintained through the fall. Total building permits issued dropped to 49 from November's 93. Total estimated cost of construction dropped to $34,528 from November's $470,884. The figures would have been even lower were it not for the permit given to build a movie theater at 236 Silver Lane (part of Showcase Cinemas) at $100,000. An addition to a building at 387 Ellington Road is to cost $25,000 and a photo kiosk at 672 Burnside Ave. will cost $15,000.

Three single-family homes are to cost a total of $60,000 and the town's storage and office at the Penney High School's new tennis complex is to cost $40,000.

Endorse Sarasin
HARTFORD (UPI) — The campaign of Rep. Ronald Sarasin, R-Conn., for the Republican gubernatorial nomination has picked up the support of three influential party members.

Sarasin won the endorsement of former Rep. Robert Steele, R-Conn., the party's 1974 gubernatorial candidate; former Bridgeport Mayor Nicholas Panuzio and former state Environmental Commissioner Dan Lukin.

Sarasin is considered the leading candidate for the nomination, but has three opponents—Lewis B. Rome, Gerald F. Stevens, George Gunther.

Students enjoy the trunk lady
East Hartford school children are growing to know a woman they often call "the trunk lady" as she visits the school to talk to its fourth graders.

Mrs. Jessie Slade, 71, was born and raised in East Hartford. She has collected articles and stories spanning those years that make for good listening.

The East Hartford Historical Society liked her stories enough to think school children would too. The society bought her an antique trunk and helped her fill it with antiques.

School teachers began calling "the trunk lady" when they had a study program she could help them make more real for their students. She comes to the classroom loaded with her trunk and more. Usually the school's janitor gives her a hand.

Mrs. Slade said she doesn't really give talks. She just shows the items in her trunk to the students. Then she answers their questions. In the

Askas rate change
HARTFORD (UPI) — The city of Hartford has asked the Public Utilities Control Authority to reconsider its recent decision eliminating the rate discounts Southern New England Telephone Co. gives to the state and municipalities.

The PUCa voted to end the discounts while it was considering a rate request by SNET. Although the company wanted a rate increase of more than $55 million, if ultimately received a rate hike of $33.8 million.

In its decision last fall, the authority said the $1.3 million in discounts SNET gives to the state and municipalities should be phased out over the next three years because they were no longer justified.

Arguing before the PUCa Thursday, attorney Robert M. Suler who represents Hartford said the authority never notified cities it was considering abolishing the discounts.

Westbrook heads CofC
Thomas A. Westbrook has been elected president of the East Hartford Chamber of Commerce for 1978. He is president of both Bryant College and the Westbrook Institute. Westbrook succeeds George E. Stewart of First Federal Savings and Loan Association. Stewart will remain a member of the chamber's executive committee.

Westbrook is Hartford native and a graduate of both Bryant College and Brown University with degrees in accounting and economics.

He serves as secretary and director of Madison Enterprises Inc. and is owner and operator of the Madison Motor Inn of East Hartford.

His community activities include the Rotary Club of which he is current president and the Masons.

Elected chamber vice presidents were B. David Kuznetsov of Connecticut Bank & Trust Co., Robert J. Brown of Southern New England Telephone Co., E. Dean Roland of Dean's Spirit Shoppe, and James A. Reid of Reid Associates.

Barry M. Rosen of Rosen, Casse, Frintone and Tiesler, CPAs, was re-elected treasurer. William A. Leone of Leone, Thrope, Teller and Nagle, attorneys, was re-elected legal counsel.

Church will mark anniversary
East Hartford's First Congregational Church at Church Corners — Main Street at Connecticut Boulevard — will celebrate its 275th anniversary at a Sunday worship service at 10 a.m.

An anniversary dinner will follow at noon.

Mrs. Howard B. Noble, chairman of the historical committee planning the celebration, said the dinner will be informal and reminiscent. Members of the different ages and eras will share memories.

The 10 a.m. sermon will be given by the Rev. William E. Flynn. The Rev. Truman H. Woodward, minister emeritus, will be a guest of honor at the dinner.

"Hard to realize for today's members," said Mrs. Noble, "is the fact that their church has such a long organizational history that it celebrated its 200th anniversary before it installed electric lights."

"We find it hard to sense that there were horse sheds behind the church within living memory. And that our sanctuary was once warmed with box stoves with bright iron pipes running above the aisles. And that the clock and bell we were given 100 years ago were praised for bringing a standard time to our town when every mill was operating on a time of its own."

The present church has been a Main Street landmark for some 142 of the 275 years. The construction was organized in 1702. The celebration of the exact date was delayed until now, said Mrs. Noble.

A fight between two men at the Italian-American Club at 464 Tolland St. this morning at 1:40 ended with the stabbing of one of the men, police said.

The stabbing victim, Patrick Martin, 39, of 1069 Tolland St., East Hartford, was taken to Manchester Memorial Hospital where he received stitches to his wound and other treatment and was released.

Police arrested Chester Jackson, 31, of 41 Bodwell Road, East Hartford, at the club and charged him with first-degree assault. He was being held this morning on $2,500 surety bond for appearance in court in East Hartford today.

The fight stemmed from a personal dispute and is still being investigated, police said.

Brown disturbed
Area police — Democratic politics and former members of town boards. The couple had done substantial work on the addition when questions arose last spring about the legality of the answer," he said.

"I'm sorry he feels that bitter about this. Quitting is not the answer," he said.

Brown is the only Republican member of the five-member board, although two of the board's alternates are Republicans. One of those alternates, either Harriet Haslett or Harry Reinhorn, will fill Brown's seat at Monday night's ZBA meeting.

Thomas Ferguson, Republican town chairman, said.

The alternates will be offered the first opportunity to fill Brown's seat for the rest of the term, which expires in 1980, Ferguson said.

Students enjoy the trunk lady
East Hartford school children are growing to know a woman they often call "the trunk lady" as she visits the school to talk to its fourth graders.

Mrs. Jessie Slade, 71, was born and raised in East Hartford. She has collected articles and stories spanning those years that make for good listening.

The East Hartford Historical Society liked her stories enough to think school children would too. The society bought her an antique trunk and helped her fill it with antiques.

School teachers began calling "the trunk lady" when they had a study program she could help them make more real for their students. She comes to the classroom loaded with her trunk and more. Usually the school's janitor gives her a hand.

Mrs. Slade said she doesn't really give talks. She just shows the items in her trunk to the students. Then she answers their questions. In the

Askas rate change
HARTFORD (UPI) — The city of Hartford has asked the Public Utilities Control Authority to reconsider its recent decision eliminating the rate discounts Southern New England Telephone Co. gives to the state and municipalities.

The PUCa voted to end the discounts while it was considering a rate request by SNET. Although the company wanted a rate increase of more than $55 million, if ultimately received a rate hike of $33.8 million.

In its decision last fall, the authority said the $1.3 million in discounts SNET gives to the state and municipalities should be phased out over the next three years because they were no longer justified.

Arguing before the PUCa Thursday, attorney Robert M. Suler who represents Hartford said the authority never notified cities it was considering abolishing the discounts.

Church will mark anniversary
East Hartford's First Congregational Church at Church Corners — Main Street at Connecticut Boulevard — will celebrate its 275th anniversary at a Sunday worship service at 10 a.m.

An anniversary dinner will follow at noon.

Mrs. Howard B. Noble, chairman of the historical committee planning the celebration, said the dinner will be informal and reminiscent. Members of the different ages and eras will share memories.
