Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan termed positive the U.S. role in the talks that will resume Tuesday with the foreign ministerial session and expressed satisfaction with the agenda worked out for the conference.

'Israel needs the United States as an active mediator," he told reporters prior to a luncheon with Egyptian Foreign Minister Mohammed Kamel at the Plaza Hotel, several miles from the conference site at the sleek 21-story Hilton Hotel

Dayan's statement not only coincided with similar remarks about the American role made by an Egyptian spokesman at the conference but was evidence Israel supported President Carter's pledge that the United States would play an active role in

The luncheon and informal talks between Kamel, Dayan and aides from both sides were held as Secretary of State Cyrus Vance was flying to Israel 24 hours later than originally scheduled.

Egypt accepted a last-moment U.S. proposal to save the planned peace parley with Israel but voiced strong fears today the talks would end in failure - and a return to war.

Egyptian Prime Minister Mamdoub Salem accused the Israeli government of "placing obstacles in the way of peace" and said Israel might be confronted by a "different

But Salem voiced confidence that "attempts made by the Israeli leadership to complicate President Anwar Sadat's historic peace initiative" will not succeed.

Vance had canceled his original departure from Washington Saturday night because Israel and Egypt were unable to agree on the wording of an agenda item on the Palestinian issue, the central obstacle to a peace agreement. Vance left Washington late Sunday after a U.S. compromise proposal apparently resolved the agenda dispute arrived in Jerusalem Sunday. Israeli officials today released what was described as the proposed agenda for the talks although they said Egypt and Israel agreed to all three items on it. All of them were vaguely worded though comprehen-

The Egyptian Foreign Minister

The agenda items were: "The declaration of principles which would govern the negotiations of a comprehensive peace settlement in the Middle East.

- "The guidelines for negotiations relating to the issues of Judea, Samaria and the Gaza strip." (Judea and Samaria are how Israel refers to the occupied West Bank of the Jor-

"The elements of peace treaties between Israel and its neighbors in accordance with the principles of U.N. Security Council Resolution 242.

Israeli officials said the second item, which deals with the Palestinian issue, was agreed upon only after the United States suggested new wording to make it a compromise formula between what Egypt and Israel demanded.

The basis for the compromise was a U.S. proposal that was worked over," one official said. He said the Egyptians wanted to word the item 35 "the problem of the West Bank" but Israel viewed that as referring to territorial withdrawal, which it did not want included.

Although the wording of each heading has been agreed upon, both sides are expected to make their own proposals for the settlement of each issue. They still differ widely on how to find solutions. But agreement on the headings was needed before the conference could start, which is why they are worded so vaguely. For example, Israeli officials said

Egypt interprets the item relating to the declaration of principles as meaning total Israeli withdrawal from occupied Arab territories and the right of self-determination for Israel interprets the agenda item as meaning withdrawal from territories - not necessarily all of them - and secure borders for the Jewish state. By secure borders, Israel means retention of some occupied land to give it strategic depth as a protective measure.

With respect to the Palestinians, Israel views the second item as meaning self-rule for the Palestinians in the West Bank and Gaza and not self-determination. It equates self-determination with ventual Palestinian statehood.

The officials said they saw a big concession by Egypt in the second item because there was no reference in it to either the Palestinian people or a Palestinian nation even though mention of the West Bank and Gaza means the Palestinians

DEAR ABBY: My husband is a very hardworking physician. Every year when we go on our vacation we run into the same problem, for which there seems to be no solution.

We enjoy group travel, but as soon as the other passengers learn that my husband is an M.D., the "calla" begin. There were 170 people in our last group, and "the doctor" was constantly called to treat stomachaches, sprained ankles, infections—you name it, he had to treat it.

He doesn't want to lie about his profession, nor would he deny his services to anyone in a life-or-death situation, but these calls for "the doctor" tie up our entire vacation.

Don't suggest another type of trip because we love to Don't suggest another type of trip because we love to travel, and except for this one disadvantage, group trips are really our bag.

DOCTOR'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Since you find group trips your "bag," periodic calls on your husband's medical "bag" appear inevitable. Why not get three or four of your doctor friends to join your group? The more hands, the lighter the burden. DEAR ABBY: In reference to the hostess who was upset because some of her guests brought their own "dinners" in a jar:
