Summary

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Encouraged by growing support for the Panama Canal treaties, President Carter will deliver a nationally broadcast fireside chat tonight to confront the most controversial questions about the agreements.

The speech is aimed at rallying national support in advance of the Senate debate on the treaties starting next week. The speech will be at 9 p.m. EST from the library on the ground floor of the White House.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland today urged Congress to avoid a sharp boost in crop price supports for American farmers. Such increases, he warned, will "travel down the line" to higher grocery bills.

Bergland testified before the House Agriculture Committee as farmers pressed demands for higher prices at the grower level. He said many farmers would not support his stand against higher guaranteed crop prices.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate supporters of the B1 bomber sought today to keep its production line going against the recommendation of President Carter. Democratic Leader Robert Byrd said he was uncertain whether there would be enough votes to defeat the move.

Byrd and other Senate opponents of the B1 hope to kill it for good by defeating a House attempt to force construction of two more of the costly planes.

EDMONTON, Alberta (UPI) — Scientists probed pieces of radioactive wreckage from a fallen Soviet satellite today and aircraft criss-crossed the icefields of the Northwest Territories in search of new radiation "hot spots."

A joint Canadian-U.S. recovery team Tuesday pored over a large chunk of the satellite found in a nine-foot crater on the frozen Thelon River, hoping it would lead them to the crash site of other radioactive debris.

NEWINGTON, N.H. (UPI) — The Coast Guard said today it at least 1,500 gallons of heavy industrial fuel oil which had leaked into the Piscataqua River from a damaged barge has been removed.

Spokesman John Bahlitch said the remaining 500 gallons of No. 6 oil still in the river would be removed by the end of the day.

KEENE, Calif. (UPI) — The boycotts that began in 1970 when the Teamsters Union moved into the fields and began signing growers away from Cesar Chavez' United Farm Workers union are now at an end. Chavez, however, warned Tuesday that the boycott would resume if growers fail to bargain in good faith with the UFW.

Marc Grossman, an aide to Chavez, said: "This is a good ending to the boycotts because ... they led to a law which gives workers the right to vote for the union of their choice and to engage in collective bargaining."

British Foreign Secretary David Owen and U.N. Ambassador Andrew Young have been meeting with Rhodesian guerrilla leaders since Monday at Valetta, Malta, trying to negotiate an end to the guerrilla war in Rhodesia.

However, Owen said Tuesday no agreement would be reached there and plans were being made to leave today, leaving the negotiations inconclusive. In the meantime, in Salisbury, Rhodesia, Prime Minister Ian Smith is trying to reach a settlement of his own with moderate black leaders to undercut the Malta talks.

ATLANTA (UPI) — The family of Birmingham postman John L. Scott has brought a $6 million negligence suit against U.S. Rep. Larry McDonald and Doctors Memorial Hospital.

Scott died of cancer after McDonald, also a urologist, treated him with Laetrile at the hospital. Attorney Burke Lewis, representing the family, told a federal court jury Tuesday, Scott could have survived if conventional chemotherapy had been used.

Panel will study home health care

By GREG PEARSON
Herald Reporter

The Town of Manchester will form a committee to study the matter of delivery of home health care services. Mayor Stephen Penny said Tuesday.

Penny and Town Manager Robert Weiss met Monday with representatives from the Manchester Public Health Nursing Association and the River East Homemaker-Home Health Aide Service Inc.

There has been discussion that the two agencies are providing duplicate services in some areas.

A study committee was appointed by the Manchester Community Services Council to investigate the services provided by the two organizations and decide that would be the best approach to the matter.

The committee recommended that the Homemakers and the Public Health Nurses merge and form an umbrella organization that would become the lead agency for ambulatory home services in town.

Penny said that the new committee will review the recommendation of the Community Services Council committee and will study the duties of both the Homemakers and the Public Health Nurses.

"We'll investigate the whole matter of home health care services and decide how it can best be done," Penny said.

He said that the committee will include at least one representative from the Town Board of Directors. There also will be a representative from both of the home health care organizations, and United Way, which provides funding for both agencies, also wants a representative on the committee. Penny said.

He said that he does not expect a decision from the new committee in time for this year's budgetmaking process. In the past, the Board of Directors has provided funds for both the Public Health Nurses and the Homemakers.

The board will follow the work of the committee as its research continues, Penny said.

Representatives of the two organizations who attended the meeting with Penny and Weiss seemed to support the town's involvement in seeking a solution to the matter.

Lois Lewis, director of the Public Health Nurses, said the previous review proposed a solution "but didn't work out the details."

Hyalie Hurwitz, director of the Homemakers said that she feels the town review of the matter is essential.

"The present setup is confusing and in some cases inadequate or overlapping," she said.

One question that was asked by Mayor Penny was if the Public Health Nurses could handle the homemaker service and Meals-On-Wheels program now handled by the Homemakers if that organization decided no longer to provide such services in Manchester.

Mrs. Lewis said that her organization would "definitely consider" taking over the two services.

Mrs. Hurwitz said that there is much negotiating that will still have to take place. She also said that it would be hard for her organization to survive in Manchester as just a homemaker service.

Budget unit head says Carter errs

WASHINGTON (UPI) — White House expectations for the fiscal 1979 budget are too "optimistic" and the Carter program will cut unemployment only slightly more than writing no budget at all, the head of the Congressional Budget Office said today.

Alice Rivlin, in testimony prepared for the Senate Budget Committee, said the administration's proposed $500 billion budget for fiscal 1979 would reduce unemployment from its recent 6.4 percent to somewhere between 5.7 and 6.3 percent by December, 1979.

That is only slightly better than the 6.1 to 6.6 percent range CBO estimates would be the case if President Carter and Congress did not write a 1979 budget but just let current policies and programs continue without change.

The administration's own estimate of unemployment at the end of 1979 under its budget is 5.8 percent — as Mrs. Rivlin put it, "at the optimistic end" of CBO's range for Carter's budget.

Similarly, she said, administration estimates of Carter's budget effect on economic growth and inflation are at the optimistic end of CBO's calculations.

Mrs. Rivlin said Carter's long-range goals — balancing the budget in 1981 and reducing unemployment and inflation each to 4 percent by 1983 — "are very optimistic."

"Achieving any of them will not be easy," she said. "Achieving all of them simultaneously appears highly unlikely."

On Tuesday 38 minority, religious, labor and other groups, led by Rep. Parren Mitchell, D-Md., head of the Congressional Black Caucus, urged Congress to shift at least part of Carter's proposed $10 billion defense increase to social programs.

They accused Carter of breaking a campaign promise to cut $7 billion a year from defense.

K-Mart plaza stores appeal to legislators

By SUSAN VAUGHN
Herald Reporter

Representatives of businesses in the K-Mart Plaza, which have suffered an extreme loss of business because of the recent collapse of the K-Mart roof, presented their plea for help to local legislators at a Greater Manchester Chamber of Commerce legislative breakfast today.

Michael DiBella of the Blue Liquors store in the plaza said, "Everyday we read of the plight in Hartford because of the Civic Center roof, but we have a plight at the K-Mart plaza and we are going to need help."

DiBella said he wanted to bring the problem to the attention of the legislators. He said the merchants in the plaza would like some representation as merchants and taxpayers. The only help the merchants can now foresee, DiBella said may come from the Small Business Administration (SBA). (See earlier story on page 6A.)

State Senator George Hannon (D-3rd District), who represents the area, said he planned to attend a meeting scheduled for Friday morning with the plaza merchants. He said there may be representatives of the SBA and possibly U.S. Rep. William Cotter or his representative may attend the meeting.

After the meeting Tom Azzara of the Two Legs store in the plaza reiterated DiBella's statements. He said the situation at the K-Mart Plaza may be even more serious to the merchants there than the Civic Center shops because most of the businesses are fairly new and depended on the customer traffic generated by K-Mart. He said the rent at the plaza is higher because the K-Mart is located there. The K-Mart may be closed now as long as six months or more to repair the roof.

Azzara said he had already noticed a considerable slow-down in business. He said his business on Monday was one-sixth that of his worst previous day ever. He said there is no activity at night. He expressed fear that many of the stores would go out of business soon if they do not receive immediate aid.

In other commentary at the legislative breakfast the local senators and representatives predicted a very busy session for the so-called "short session" of the General Assembly from Feb. 8 to May 3, which they expect to be colored by political maneuvering. State Sen. David Barry (D-4th) quipped, "How do a minimum of five people run for Governor under the same roof?"

Barry said he feels the overall question dominating the session will be how to use the expected state surplus. He said he would not personally be receptive to Governor Grasso's suggestion for a half a per cent reduction in the sales tax unless the surplus is also partially used to take care of areas of social services that have been lagging in recent years. He named specifically equalization of education, increase funding for youth service bureaus, and an increase in pensions for teachers, which he said have been near poverty level.

As far as appropriations affecting Manchester, Barry said he hopes there will be money to relocate the Common Pleas Court in Manchester.

Hannon said he will be pushing passage of the bottle bill which he helped design. He also said he sees some dramatic liquor revisions coming and hopes the legislature will phase out minimum pricing of liquor.

Rep. Ted Cummings (D-12th District) said he hopes to see efforts to reimburse towns for public transportation and to allow towns to borrow monies in anticipation of federal grants.

Rep. Francis Mahoney (D-13th) said he is in favor of any reduction in the sales tax as an effort to keep consumers buying in Connecticut.

Rep. Muriel Yacavone (D-9th) mentioned a proposal which will require inspection and maintenance of motor vehicles, which may be required by the federal government, and may help cut down on pollution in the state.

Town-district group suggested by mayor

Mayor Stephen Penny will propose that the Boards of Directors for the Town of Manchester and the Eighth Utilities District form subcommittees to meet regularly.

Penny's proposal is listed on the Town Board of Directors agenda for its Tuesday meeting. He said that he is recommending the idea but has not yet discussed it with Republican board members or with Gordon Lasso, president of the district.

The subcommittees would meet and "further review what should be done between the two bodies," Penny said.

The proposal to form the subcommittees is an offshoot from the meeting between the two boards Jan. 16. That meeting, designed to improve communication between the town and the district, was the first in several years. If not ever, between the two boards.

Mideast gap still seen

CAIRO, Egypt (UPI) — A senior American diplomat ended two days of mediation talks with Egyptian leaders today and reported a gap still exists between Israel and Egypt on the basic principles of a comprehensive Middle East peace settlement.

Under a tight lid of secrecy, Israeli Defense Minister Ezer Weizman and Egyptian War Minister Gen. Mohammed Gammasy resumed discussion of issues relating to an Israeli troop withdrawal from Egypt's Sinai peninsula.

"There are still differences to be overcome and that is the purpose of the negotiating process in which we are trying to help out," U.S. Assistant Secretary of State Alfred Atherton told reporters following a 70-minute meeting with Foreign Minister Mohammed Kamel. The second in as many days.

Egyptian and American officials said the differences, centering on the future of the Palestinians in the Israeli-occupied Jordan West Bank and the Gaza sector, will be taken up at summit level when President Anwar Sadat holds talks with President Carter at Camp David, Maryland, next Saturday and Sunday.

Sadat is scheduled to leave Thursday for the United States, stopping overnight in Morocco for talks with King Hassan, a staunch supporter of the Egyptian President's peace initiative which began with a visit to Israel last November.

Grasso challengers doing odd things

Analysis

HARTFORD (UPI) — It's not easy for gubernatorial candidates to oppose lower taxes and increased spending, but those eyeing Gov. Ella T. Grasso's job are doing just that.

Three Republicans and a Democrat vying for her job are trying to blame the state's economic embarrassment of riches on Mrs. Grasso's alleged poor management.

The question is whether the voting public will decide she should be penalized.

Perhaps the worst kept secret at the Capitol this year is Mrs. Grasso will propose a half-cent cut in Connecticut's seven percent sales tax. That will mean a loss in state revenue of $50 million.

Also, Mrs. Grasso's announced $70 million program to help the state's urban areas is expected to lead to more criticism she is playing politics with the budget.

The contenders to her throne are hoping to convince voters Mrs. Grasso wouldn't have so many goodies to offer if she hadn't taxed them too much in the first place.

But the incumbent Democratic governor will be banking on the time-honored political axiom — you can't lose if you cut taxes and increase spending.

Mrs. Grasso claims an unexpected economic upturn has produced a large surplus she can use to cut taxes and increase spending. Her critics say it was poor planning.

They claim taxpayers paid for the surplus in higher taxes that will be used to give them relief during an election year.

The challengers note the budget that produced an estimated $60 million surplus was one Mrs. Grasso refused to sign last year because it might leave the state in the red.

Opponents claim that either her first three years were calculated to produce an election-year budget surplus that will allow her to cut taxes and increase spending, or she was woefully unable to anticipate the state's economy.

Either way, they argue, she does not deserve another term.

Mrs. Grasso's challengers say there are better ways to spend the $50 million targeted for the sales tax cut.

Lt. Gov. Robert K. Killian, contesting Mrs. Grasso for the Democratic nomination, wants it to go for increased municipal aid. He says a sales tax cut will save the typical family only $15 a year, while increased aid will allow municipalities to cut local property taxes.

Republicans especially have been campaigning on the theme that the budget surplus is illusory and a tax cut this year may require an increase the following year to balance the ledger.

Senate Minority Leader Lewis B. Rome wants the $50 million used to increase school aid. Connecticut is under court order to have the state take a bigger role in educational finance.

House Minority Leader Gerald F. Stevens, R-Milford, and Rep. Ronald Sarasin, R-Conn., haven't said formally they oppose the sales tax cut. But both say the money could be used better to stimulate the economy, especially in the area of business tax cuts.

Lobbying rules approved

The regulations take effect as soon as the attorney general's office approves them and Ms. Seichter said she expected that endorsement to be forthcoming shortly.

"I think the commission can certainly function with the changes made by the committee. The substance (of the regulations) is still there," she said.

The commission's initial proposals were rejected earlier this month by the committee and the panel appeared on the verge of killing some of the more stringent restrictions Tuesday before approving the entire package.

A number of lawmakers on the panel said they thought the commission was going beyond the intent of the Legislature in setting up the reporting requirements.

"I don't think anyone in the Legislature thought every time a lobbyist blew his nose it would have to be reported," said Sen. George Gunther, R-Stratford.

The committee deleted minor proposals to have lobbyists report the "pro rata value" of time traveling to the Capitol to lobby and the time spent by lobbyists informing clients on their efforts.

Sen. Joseph DiNelli, D-Bristol, also sought to delete a requirement that expenses incurred for research, preparation of lobbying materials and special offices for lobbying be reported.

Sales tax cut doubted

NEW HAVEN, (UPI) - The Connecticut Conference of Municipalities says it may be illegal for the Legislature to cut the sales tax while the state is under court order to increase educational equalization aid.

"Reducing the sales tax at a time when the state needs those funds to equalize educational opportunity runs directly counter to the court's mandate to achieve a constitutional system of school financing," CCM President Arthur Powers said.

Reilly sues officials

HARTFORD (UPI) - State Police Commissioner Edward P. Leonard and Capt. Thomas J. McDonnell are charged Tuesday in a $2 million federal lawsuit with violating the civil rights of Peter Reilly.

The civil suit filed in U.S. District Court at Hartford, charged Leonard and McDonnell, who headed the re-investigation into the death of Reilly's mother, misused their offices in violating the civil rights of Reilly.

Reilly's attorney, Andrew Garson, said the suit alleges the actions of the two officials, after charges against Reilly were dismissed last year, "constituted a slander and libel and intentional infliction of emotional distress on the complainant."

Opinion

Rating the president

Come on now, there must be SOMEONE out there with a good word for Jimmy Carter. Now that the first year of the Carter administration is all wrapped up and ready for the history books, the time is upon us for the observation of one of the most solemn tribal rites of 20th-century America - rating a new president's performance (so far).

If Jimmy Carter is paying any attention to the scoring as it comes in, he may be questioning the wisdom of ever having left Plains.

Business is unhappy with him because of what he is doing about the economy - or what he's not doing, depending upon whose evaluation you read and/or on what day you happen to read it.

Labor is disappointed because he isn't inclined to the close teamwork to which previous Democratic administrations accustomed it.

Liberals are turned off because too many of his attitudes and actions have a suspiciously conservative tinge.

Blacks are critical because they were led to believe, or led themselves to believe, would be realized with a new image Southerner in the White House haven't been forthcoming in full measure.

Farmers are striking because one of their own isn't persuaded of the feasibility of the subsidies and 100 percent of parity as an agricultural way of life.

The women's movement, Gloria Steinem division, has written him off as a closet chauvinist - and if that's the case, Rosalynn, as his generally acknowledged number one confidante, must be in there with him.

Environmentalists are down on him because they do not think his efforts in behalf of air and water quality have been sufficiently coordinated and effective.

The two-thirds of the country west of the Mississippi River, on the other hand, is largely hostile for a complex of reasons of which his cancellation of treasured water power and irrigation projects is among the more notable.

Old Washington hands, whose opinions carry more or less weight depending upon how many administrations their observations go back, are appalled by amateurism and lack of tone imparted to the capital scene by the president's top team of fellow Georgians.

Veterinarians are... but you see how it's going.

Well, a man with all those critics could be forgiven for wondering if he's doing anything at all right. And it is at such times that having at least a loving family can take on very real importance.

Fortunately for himself, and possibly the republic, the president appears to be holding up under it all. But his ordeal does raise a question:

Why? Why do the various estates of the nation feel compelled to join in this ritual reading of history before it is fully written?

In part it may be because second-guessing of those in power is such a fascinating pastime for those not, in part because present-day instantaneous communications relieve us of the necessity of viewing developments with the detachment lent by even a modest time lag, and in very large part because it is so very easy to turn the process of evaluation into an exercise in labeling - conservative or liberal, good or bad, favorable or unfavorable, etc.

There may be considerable point to the specific criticisms of the Carter performance to date, which find support in current opinion polls showing a precipitous drop in public approval.

But they shouldn't be taken as the definitive story of an administration. There is no substitute for the passage of time in writing that.

Byrd rethinks TV debate

By MARTHA ANGLE and ROBERT WALTERS
WASHINGTON-(NEA)-Soap opera fans can relax. Plans to televise the forthcoming Senate debate over the Panama Canal treaties appear to have gone a-glimmering.

Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, who originally sponsored a resolution to permit unprecedented coverage of the floor debate, now is having second thoughts.

For the record, Byrd is citing technical problems with the lighting which would be needed in the Senate chamber. Crews from all three major networks staged a test run during the recent congressional recess and the results displeased both Byrd and Senate Majority Leader Howard H. Baker.

"It was pretty uncomfortable, especially from where the leaders stand," said one Senate official. "Looking from Baker's position toward the Democratic side of the aisle, you could see nothing but silhouettes. And the same was true from Byrd's seat."

Contributing to the decision to scrub TV coverage was the majority leader's realization that the Panama Canal debate is likely to be exceedingly uncomfortable politically, regardless of physical conditions in the Senate chamber.

Byrd has publicly acknowledged that "there will be no political credit, no political mileage, for any senator who votes for the treaty." But now that he is committed to supporting the facts, he is not anxious to put himself in a position of being a target in full view of a national television audience.

His plan would work

By ANDREW TULLY
WASHINGTON - Forget about President Carter's alleged "anti-inflation" plan. His suggestion that wage and price increases be kept below their previous two-year average has about the same chance as Bella Abzug getting elected gaudier of Male Chauvinist Pigs, Inc.

Both Big Labor and Big Business have rejected this timid proposal that they voluntarily cooperate, charging that it is a step down the road to controls - the dirtiest word in their vernacular. But so far Carter hasn't displayed the guts to do anything that sensible.

Thus, I should like to nominate an old newspaper friend, Ed Dale, as absolute czar of the campaign against the high cost of living. Dale used to be the best economics reporter in the history of the New York Times. Now he works for the subcommittee on Economic Stabilization of the House Banking Committee, and he has a program that would work.

Dale notes that average labor costs continue to increase by 8 percent a year. Therefore, he concludes that if productivity continues to rise by the historical 2 to 3 percent, prices must rise by 5 to 6 percent. (The 1977 inflation rate was 6.8 percent, 2 percent higher than in 1976.)

Dale's plan, as he takes pains to point out, requires a "virtually universal willingness to cut back on our annual pay increases. There is, of course, no sign of such willingness. But an opportunity may be at hand."

That opportunity, he says, is the impending income tax reduction, which "offers the chance of a lifetime to induce Americans to cut down for a year or two on the wage increases we demand - and largely get - and a year or two is all it will take."

Dale offers "an obvious truth, to wit: if average wage increases drop in one year from, say 8 to 5 percent, then in the following year the rise in prices will drop correspondingly, say from 6 to 3.5 percent."

He urges that President Carter

"take a chance by promising that a year of wage restraint will be followed by less inflation soon afterward. It does not seem much of a risk in present circumstances. After all, business profits are only about normal."

"Next, the president should be able to show us that, because of the tax reduction, even in the short run we will not be noticeably worse off by cutting our pay increases for a year or two. This is the great carrot that he will have. The president does not have to ask for any great sacrifice - only a slowdown for a year or two in wage increases asked and wage increases granted. After that, no further appeals will be necessary because the inflation will be less and the need for wage increases will be less."

Dale says the best hope is probably a simple, but carefully argued, appeal by the president for a wage target for 1978 of 5 percent instead of the current average of about 8 percent.

"It is certainly worth a try," he says. "Even if we knocked only one percentage point off the average wage increase in 1978, our inflation rate in 1979 would drop nearly that much, and we could do better. Most important, there would be set in motion a kind of virtuous spiral - the opposite of the familiar vicious spiral - in which one year's reduced rate of inflation brings a still lower rate the next year because wage claims can be less."

Dale emphasizes that it's not just labor unions or business that should cooperate, "but all of us." He points out that union members comprise only 20 percent of the nation's working force, and thus can't be blamed for all the wage excesses that helped bring on inflation.

And he recalls "the not-so-long-ago rewarding period of 1958-1965. Our wages went up only 3.5 percent a year, but we had practically no inflation, and our living standards steadily improved."

Why not, indeed, "the best" - a return to the sanity of that good time. Jimmy Carter, who has accepted 6 percent inflation for 1978 and '79, should stop fiddling and get Ed Dale on the phone.

Question: Last week I found three marijuana cigarettes in my daughter's purse. When I asked her for an explanation she accused me of spying on her and sticking my nose where it doesn't belong. Where do we go from here?

Answer: The two central issues are the daughter's right to privacy and the marijuana cigarettes or joints.

The daughter does have a basic right to privacy and if the mother snoops without any reason or suspicion then it's wrong on her part.

When you begin to use too much or are smoking for the wrong reasons, like making life more interesting or peeing better able to get along with friends, then it is bad.

How to handle the basic problem might be as follows: (1) Be calm and don't alienate your daughter by overreacting emotionally.

(2) If you feel it productive, discuss the situation with your spouse to agree on a unified policy for your house.

(3) With the basic understanding of why to maintain an open dialogue between both parties, explore how and trying to see if smoking marijuana, and if she is also selling, etc. Through honest communication and com-

$100,000 for Health's Sake

The best way to maintain health and bring down health care costs is to prevent illness. For many years, important contributions to preventive medicine have come from Yale University's Department of Epidemiology and Public Health in New Haven.

Early in this century, the department's first chairman, Professor C.E.A. Winslow, did pioneering work in both preventive and occupational medicine.

Now they are carrying out research into the effectiveness of applying principles of preventive medicine to reduce deaths, disabilities, and health care expenditures stemming from diseases that afflict Americans of working age.

The studies, involving mental as well as physical illnesses, are going forward under the impetus, in part, of a $100,000 grant from United Technologies to the Yale School of Medicine.

The grant helps support a three-year residency program in preventive medicine for physicians who have completed their internships.

Dr. Robert W. McCollum, chairman of the Yale Department of Epidemiology and Public Health, views the grant as especially significant. For, as he points out, it reflects our corporation's recognition of the need for special training and research in a field - preventive medicine - that can contribute just as much to Americans' health as research in the cure of diseases can.

Dr. McCollum also believes the grant will help attract talented young physicians to preventive medicine.

We gave the money as a contribution to research that seeks to prolong the lives of working people and to reduce health care costs.

For more than 25 years, we have had programs within our company to ensure safe, healthful conditions for our employees on the job.

A few weeks ago, reinforcing our efforts in occupational health and safety, we opened a central industrial hygiene laboratory in Hartford to serve all operating units of United Technologies.

The new lab focuses on the identification, analysis, and control of potentially hazardous materials in the workplace.

Job-related injuries and illnesses play a significant part in the national health equation. But non-occupational diseases pose by far the greater health problem facing working-age people.

Discussion begins

Museum explores using old school

The Lutz Junior Museum Board of Trustees began discussions Monday night with the Manchester Board of Education to explore the possible future use of school buildings.

Although the Board of Education indicated its support for the museum's need to expand from its current crowded facilities in the old Cheney School house on Cedar St., the board concluded that it would have no jurisdiction over future use of the schools once they become vacant.

The schools are turned back to the town when they cease to function as schools. Because the Board of Education helps with some maintenance of the Lutz facility, the board of trustees said they thought the school board had jurisdiction over the museum.

However, a check with the assessor's office this morning indicated that the museum is the property of Town of Manchester. The Town Building committee has jurisdiction over any changes to town-owned buildings, including school buildings. School Superintendent James P. Kennedy, told the Lutz trustees.

Kathi C. Barrus, president of the Lutz trustees, said that the museum is just beginning to look at options for expansion. She said the museum needs a minimum of 8,000 square feet. The museum now occupies 5,000 square feet, which includes basement and attic storage space, Ms. Barrus said.

The school which the museum is most interested in as a possible new site is Buckland School on Tolland Turnpike. It has about 8,000 square feet, Kennedy said.

The school is currently being leased by a church school and Kennedy said he would need to know by May if the Lutz is interested in the site in order to inform the tenant.

The Lutz trustees also said they had considered the use of Green School or South School previously. The other option the Lutz is considering, Ms. Barrus said, is adding on to the present building or building a new museum. She said that even if the Lutz acquired an 8,000-square-foot facility, it may need additional space in another five years or less.

Kennedy also indicated that at least part of Bentley School may become available at 1979 or 1980 at the earliest, but it would only be 2,400 square feet. He said the schools anticipate about 1,000 less elementary students in the next five years which could bring more available space in the schools for community use.

The Lutz officials said they would be interested in space for classroom teaching.

Ms. Barrus said the trustees will now approach town officials with their expansion plans.

K-Mart center topic of meeting

Representatives from the Town of Manchester and the Greater Manchester Chamber of Commerce met Tuesday with merchants from the K-Mart shopping center and began coordinating an effort to seek help for the stores.

The K-Mart department store has suffered a series of roof collapses caused by the severe weather of recent weeks.

Stores in the shopping center have expressed concern that they face a serious loss of customers because of the temporary closing of K-Mart.

Miguel Alvarez, the manager of the K-Mart store on Spencer Street, said that the store will remain at its present location, Jim Breitenfeld, executive director of the chamber, who attended the meeting, said. It is not yet known how long it will take to reopen the store, however, Breitenfeld said.

The company is still researching how much of the present structure has been harmed and how much reconstruction work is needed.

Breitenfeld said that other merchants in the shopping center report a minimum of 30 percent loss of business. Also, merchants in another shopping center on the other side of Spencer Street also have reported a drop in the number of customers, he said.

The group talked about continued promotional efforts to remind shoppers that all the stores are still in business despite the temporary closing of K-Mart.

Medicine practice is risky

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Missouri doctor says the practice of medicine can be hazardous to the physician's health.

Dr. Larry Halverson said the risks doctors face include the threat of disease from infectious agents, disorders caused by chemicals and radiation used in medical practice, and problems caused by emotional stress.

Halverson, chief resident at the University of Missouri-Columbia Medical Center, said stress has the greatest impact on physicians' health. Its effects range from cardiovascular problems to suicide.

"Suicide annually claims enough American physicians to equal an average medical school graduating class," Halverson wrote in the medical magazine "The New Physician," published by the American Medical Student Association.

And he said a review of research in the field shows that doctors tend to commit suicide at an early age. One study found that 28 percent of all physician deaths in the under-40 age group are by suicide while only 9 percent of the non-doctors in the same age group take their own lives.

Halverson said studies show that psychiatrists, eye doctors, anesthesiologists, female doctors and those physicians who are dependent on drugs or alcohol are most likely to kill themselves.

"The situation with drug and alcohol abuse is similarly grim," Halverson wrote.

He said studies of the number of hospitalized physician addicts indicate that the frequency of drug dependence among doctors is 12 to 20 times more common than in the general population.

Town Health Department to inspect food stores

The Manchester Health Department will begin routine grocery store inspections in February as part of fulfilling the town's responsibility to ensure the health, safety and welfare of all Manchester residents. The authority for these inspections is contained in the Public Health Code.

The addition of three environmental health aides to the staff hired with funds from the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act will enable the Health Department to carry out these periodic inspections.

The inspectors will check about 30 stores for good sanitary practices by February as part of fulfilling the town's responsibility to ensure the health, safety and welfare of all Manchester residents. The authority for these inspections is contained in the Public Health Code.

Any questions concerning the inspection program should be directed to John Salcius, Larry Jean or Claudia Flaherty at the Manchester Health Department.

CPR course scheduled

A new series of classes in cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR) will begin next Tuesday at the Eighth District Firehouse, Main and Hilliard streets.

The classes will be from 7 to 9 p.m. on four consecutive Tuesdays. The course is cosponsored by the Eighth District Fire Department and the Manchester chapter of the American Red Cross.

The instructor will be Leonard Luzinski. He will be aided by Robert Froehlich of the district department and Glen Vincent of the East Hartford Fire Department.

The classes are open to the public. Anyone who is interested may contact the fire department dispatcher at 649-7373.

Senior citizen news

Hi, neighbor! Well, ever since the news came out that there was a possibility for our seniors of Manchester to have a new senior center, everyone is getting all excited about it.

Now we are getting many ideas and hopefully some of them will turn out to be helpful. I guess that every time there is talk about moving, it becomes a problem because some are happy, others not.

There is definitely no doubt in my mind, and has been for a long time, that we need a larger building and one with all the rooms on one floor. For quite some time, I have been concerned about our programs as they are now, and just what we can do to add to them.

A number of our seniors are happy with what is being offered; however, we all know that not all seniors are interested in the same things and therefore should be entitled to their type of program as well. We must realize that we are growing and in fact we are something like 15 away from reaching our 8,000th member. Now this alone speaks clearly of the need for a larger building.

So even though some of us are content and satisfied with the status-quo, we must realize that a Senior Center should be available to all seniors, and therefore our programs must be expanded. To do this, we need more room, a building with all rooms on one floor, an opportunity to make the center more useful, and to reach more of our members (some of whom are handicapped), so that they can enjoy their day of entertainment.

So I urge you seniors to take advantage of this opportunity to come forth and back us in finding a place that we all can be proud of, regardless of what section of town it would be located. We will certainly make the necessary arrangements to reach everyone who will need the transportation to attend our programs and meals. By the way, this is an excellent opportunity because the center will, for the most part, be federally funded.

This new center could be a tribute to you who over the years are the people who made Manchester a proud place to live, and therefore we know you certainly deserve the best.

Let us all forget the minor problems involved as I'm sure we can meet and solve them and let us support our senior committee that will be looking for an ideal yet realistic building or site for the center.

Tax assistance

Next Tuesday our senior volunteers will be on hand to help you folks with your income tax returns. The men will be here from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. every Tuesday, and is for free to all local elderly persons.

Shrine circus

This past Monday we started registering for the Shrine Circus and was quite surprised when we arrived around 7 a.m. that, for the first time, nobody was waiting. In fact, the first customer came in about 7:45 a.m. and by the end of the day we had only 30 people sign up. We need about eight more in order to take the bus, so you still have two days left to sign up. With all this crazy weather lately, a short trip to the Hartford Armory to see the circus would be a nice way to get out and enjoy yourself.

Setback games

Last Friday afternoon we had 40 players for our setback games and the winners were:

Mina Reuther, 138; John Phelps, 135; Ann Thompson, 126; Clara Hemingway, 125; Ann Fisher, 123; Joe Windsor, 121; Michael Haberern, 121; Michael DeSimone, 120; Helena Gavello, 119; Jennie Fogarty, 118.

Variety Show

On Sunday afternoon we held our first tryouts for our Variety Show. We had a nice turnout and came up with a few new faces that we are happy to see. This coming Sunday we will allow anyone who couldn't make the first meeting a chance to tryout and we hope a few more new members will stop by to join the group.

Everything is shaping up to make this year's show on a par with the others; and in fact, it could even top the others. The session starts at 1 p.m. and everyone is asked to please be on time so that we can get out at a reasonable time.

By the way, we are in need of some volunteers to help us with sewing for the show. Anyone interested should attend the Sunday afternoon session.

Pinochle results

On Monday afternoon we had an excellent turnout for our pinochle games as we had 41 tables and the lucky winners were:

Fun Day

Tomorrow is our big day as in the morning we will have our beginners and advanced class in ceramics. While that is going on, we will be having a beginners social dancing class starting at 10 a.m. and at 10:45 a.m. it will be advanced social dancing class, and the Burtons are teaching the group the "Latin Hustle."

At noontime we will be treated to a roast breast of chicken dinner with all the trimmings. In the afternoon, Gloria has come up with some super entertainment with our own members taking part. We have a surprise in store for you as we have very special friend to play some tunes on the piano. He played with us once last year and was a big hit, so plan on being with us and meet our special guest.

Farmington Trip

Back to trips. Once again this coming Monday we will be registering for a day visit to Farmington. We will first stop at the Benihana of Tokyo Restaurant where we will attend a class on some special and fancy cooking and then we will be treated to a lunch. From there we will visit the University of Connecticut Health Center and get in on a tour. This should make for an interesting and exciting day. The trip is scheduled for March 2 and the complete package is $13.

Don't forget, the deadline to get your money in for the bus ride to sunny Florida is this Friday. Be sure you get yourself all squared away.

Next Tuesday, our oil painting class will start here at the center at 10 a.m. Kay Hendrickson, our instructor, requests that newcomers to this class must attend the first session.

Then on Wednesday morning, our crewel embroidery class will start at 10 a.m. This year we have a new instructor, Mrs. Rosemary Cornelius, with us.

Park improvements suggested to panel

By GREG PEARSON

Herald Reporter
Town Manager Robert Weiss will send a letter to Manchester's Citizens Advisory Committee asking that it consider providing funds for proposed improvements at Charter Oak Park.

The town's Advisory Recreation and Park Commission has proposed a plan that would include 106 additional parking spaces and a new baseball warmup field at the park.

Also, the Greater Manchester Chamber of Commerce has sent a letter to the Citizens Advisory Committee asking that it consider appropriating Community Development funds primarily for a full-service neighborhood facility, including a dental clinic, and off-street parking in downtown.

Members of the Rec and Park Commission, representatives of a committee of town employees considering recreation improvements and Weiss met Tuesday to talk about the Charter Oak plan.

The Rec and Park Commission made a presentation about Charter Oak to the Citizens Advisory Committee at an earlier meeting. The committee indicated that its primary interest is in improving the entrance and exit to the park, however.

Dorothy Brindamour, a member of the Rec and Park Commission, is one of those who met with Weiss Tuesday to discuss the needs for improvements at the park itself.

About town
The "Program of Studies" open house at Manchester High School will begin tonight at 7:30 in the cafeteria. Students in Grades 9, 10 and 11, their parents and friends are invited.

Cattanch said some suggestions involved having school on legal holidays or Saturdays both of which would be illegal under existing laws. Beatrice Kowalski of the Andover Board of Education said the consent of the board from parents favored the February vacation elimination.

Teachers Barbara Keleher, Hebron; Diane Tyler, Rham, and Barbara Wythe, Rham, attended the meeting and objected to the loss of the February vacation time. The three have non-refundable deposits paid for trips during that week.

Michael Sadlon, Rham, reported support by the Rham staff of deleting the vacation week next month.

Fred Wythe said if the respective school boards agree to allow the teachers having travel commitments to go without pay, the teachers will lose as much money as they would from loss of their deposits.

Wythe said he estimated the board action would cost teachers in the district about $6,000.

COC members said how the matter of teachers requesting permission to travel that would be handled by each individual board.

It is possible for the boards to agree to partial or full pay for the four days involved.

Budget move sought to pay storm costs

Jay Giles, Manchester's director of public works, has asked for the transfer of $60,000 in state funds to help pay for snow removal.
The $60,000 is now part of the state's town aid package to Manchester. The fund, which totals about $210,000 this year, is set aside to pay for road repairs and improvements the town has to make during the fiscal year.

The town has about $70,000 of the fund left. Giles said that the money has been set aside for springtime road repairs.
Now, however, Giles has suggested that $60,000 of the remaining money be used to replenish the depleted snow removal account. A January filled with snow, ice and freezing rain resulted in many expenses for cleaning town roads.

The town also may receive $23,000 from the state for snow removal expenses. Gov. Ella Grasso has asked the State Legislature to appropriate $15 million to all 16 municipalities to help pay for snow removal and road care costs. The money would be distributed on a formula based on the population and amount of the roads in the towns and cities.

The $80,000 proposed appropriation for snow removal is based on seven more storms, Giles said. It is possible that the town might not need to use all of the money.

The town's accounts for chemicals and plowing contracts have been used up. There still is money left in the overtime account to pay town employees who have to work extra hours during storms.

Heart Fund drive slated Feb. 6 to 26

Doorbells will start ringing throughout Manchester Monday when volunteers begin canvassing for the Heart Fund campaign. The Manchester campaign will continue from Feb. 6 through 26 during the month officially designated as "heart month" by the American Heart Association of Greater Hartford.

Gordon G. Fogg Jr. of 84 Adelaide Road, chairman of the campaign, said that the drive's goal by the end of February is $12,000, and a final goal of $13,000 by the end of April. He said that based on Manchester's present population, that would mean it could be reached by a little less than $1 donation per average family of three. Last year, Manchester collected $11,236 for the Heart Fund.

In Manchester, the following estimates were made based on 1975 statistics and a population of 47,600, which are the most current figures available: Deaths from cardiovascular disease, 230; estimate of those with high blood pressure, 4,790; estimate of those who have cardiovascular disease, 5,950.

The American Heart Association advises those who are prone to heart disease or stroke to cut down their risks by controlling high blood pressure, eating food low in cholesterol and saturated fats, not smoking cigarettes, exercising regularly and moderately, and maintaining a normal weight.

Committee chairmen in the Manchester campaign are: Mrs. Nicholas F. Jackson of 374 Gardner St., owner of Century 21 Jackson Avante, special gifts; William Johnson, president of the Savings Bank of Manchester, corporate and employee gifts.

Also, Donald Martin and William Moorhouse, business days co-chairmen. Martin is branch manager at Fruit & Whitney Division of the month officially designated as "heart month" by the American Heart Association of Greater Hartford. He lives in Columbia.

Moorhouse is assistant vice president and branch manager of the First Manchester Office of Hartford National Bank. He lives at 165 Henry St.

Thomas and Janet Damron of 32 Phillip Road, are Heart Days chairmen. Thomas Damron associate director of marketing for Travelers Insurance Co., and his wife will monitor the Rose Day sale on Valentine's Day.

Coventry roads reviewed

The Coventry Town Council held an all-day session on local roads which indicated many problems but few easy solutions. Maintenance of town roads and bridges has been a headache for the council for many years.

John Hardy, a former superintendent of streets, told the council about his five-year plan for correcting drainage problems on some roads. His recommendations call for patching 16 miles of town roads per year and continuing the annual road project.

The Flanders River Road project near Nathan Hale Drive was one of Hardy's priority items and was completed this fall under funding from the previous council. Town Planner Gregory Padick suggested major town roads be included in the five-year plan which has been submitted for council approval.

Padick also warned that two intersections at Coventry planned for Interstate 84 would generate heavy traffic along nearby roads. The northern one would be on Swamp Road, and the southern one would be on Pucker Street.

Dean Wiley, the current superintendent of streets, exhibited a map survey of local roads and the council and informed the council of the town's major trouble spots.

Cheney Tech ties school win mark with victory against Vinal, 80-64 dominated play in the second half, both in scoring and setting up the offensive pattern. Scoreless in the first half, Boudreau came on hoop in the third canto and then went on a four basket spree in the finale. In addition, he handled the ball well and with Brown managed to set up the frontcourt operators, something that was missing in the first half.

Brown, too, started slowly, but came on like Seattle's 'slew in the home stretch. The little southpaw netted 10 baskets, nine in the second half - five in the final canto - and was super in the come-from-behind win that brought a standing ovation from the crowd of 400 at the winner's gym.

Vinal featured some fine shooters in Daryl Bolton, Mike Gasior and John Geciewicz, the trio accounting for 55 of its points.

The invaders started fast with Bolton getting 10 points in the first period to erect the four-point edge. Vinal led by as many as seven points, 32-25, late in the second period as Cheney offered little or no resistance around the defensive board.

Prolific foul shooting by Gus Gustamachio, who hit all eight tries in the second period, enabled Cheney to stay within reach of Vinal at intermission.

Bolton led Vinal with 20 markers, four more than Gasior and Geciewicz scored.

Conard extends loss skein of Indians to six, 68-63

By LEN AUSTER
Herald Sportswriter
Maybe he looks back at this season, Manchester High basketball coach Doug Pearson will find some levity in the recollections. "Right now, though, he's doing a lot of crying."

The Indians, in a scenario they've experienced before, succumbed 68-63 to Conard High last night before a sedate crowd of 150 in West Hartford.

The loss was the Silk Towners' sixth straight and guarantees Pearson his worst record in four years as head coach. Manchester now stands 4-9 in CCIJL tilts and 4-10 overall with a makeup game Thursday night against East Hartford at Clarke Arena. Conard, with the triumph, moved into an eighth place deadweight with the Indians at 4-8, 4-9 overall.

The contest was like a videotape replay of previous 1977-78 Manchester encounters. The Indians fell behind by a double figure margin early in the final period; made a valiant comeback try, but again only to fall short as the opponent dropped in key free throws down the stretch.

Conard led, 51-40, with just over 5 minutes to go but then turned the ball over three times while the Indians were scoring 6 markers, two apiece from the foul line by Bill Finnegan and Frank Beaupre and a hoop by Scott Hyde.

The homecoming Chiefs, out-running the Tribe's foulcourt pressure, opened the margin to 62-54 with 37 seconds to go as Serge Arel hit a key three-point play.

The deficit was chopped to 3 points in a 17-second span on a bucket by sophomore Rich Koepsel and charity tosses by Beaupre (1) and Ron Apter (2). But the verdict was lead in a 6-second burst from four free throws by Scott Morrion and Arel.

Cougar women win against Quinnipiac

Ending its three-game losing streak, Manchester Community College women's basketball team thumped Quinnipiac College, 66-41, last night in Hamden.

The Cougars topped their record to 2-4 while the Braves now stand 1-2.

MCC trailed in the early going but spurred to a 35-18 halftime lead.

June Walton and Bonnie Kilgore paced the Cougars with 29 and 22 points respectively with the pair combining for 28 rebounds. Jan Pajic was credited with 9 assists, Melissa Seymour had 19 markers for Quinnipiac.

MCC (66) Pietro 0-2 2, Bendell 0-0 0, Johnson 1-0 2, Kilgore 9-0 22, Ball 3-5 7, Pajic 2-0 4, Walton 12-29 29, Totals 25-18 29.

Quinnipiac (41) Miller 1-0 0 6, Sherman 3-0 4, Tjelen 1-0 2, Kichinski 0-1 2, Seymour 1-1 15, Knowlton 2-1 5, Banevicon 0-2 2, Hickey 0-0 0. Totals 18-57 41.

Undeclared Conard girls make Tribe 15th victim

Fast, strong, well-skilled Conard High rolled to its 15th consecutive win without a win last night, 70-20, over Manchester High in girls' basketball action last night at Clarke Arena.

The setback snapped a two-game Indian win streak and left them with a 6-6 overall record, 6-7 in CCIJL play.

The Christinas led 18-6 after one quarter and 34-4 at the half. It was 60-12 after three periods.

Cindy Blackman had 16 points, the board will be 11 in last night's 1-0-2, Culbertson 0-2 0, L. Neubelt 2-0 4, M. Neubelt 6-0 12, Geagan 0-0 0, Brown 0-0 0, Downham 0-0 0, Turkington 0-0 0, Connor 0-0 0. Totals 10-2 20.

Catholic five 'well enough' to tack OT loss on Prince

Call them the walking invalid. "We don't have one kid who is healthy. It's unbelievable," states East Catholic basketball coach Jim Penders.

Maybe not well but the Eagle cagers had enough last night to subdue Prince Tech in overtime, 65-59, in non-conference action in Hartford.

The victory pushed East's record over the 500 mark at 7-5 and was the first time it put back-to-back wins together. "It's nice to get the 'W', to win two in a row. Now we go from the frying pan into the fire," Penders voiced.

East's next tilt is Friday night against surging South Catholic at the University of Hartford.

The clubs were deadlocked 53-53 after regulation with three long range jumpers by Pete Kiro over the Tech zone keying the Eagles' fourth quarter effort.

In overtime, Prince took two-point leads but each time the Eagles came back, sophomore Bob Venera knocking it at 55-55 on a jumper and Rob Smith at 57-57 on two free throws.

Sing a charity toss by Smith and Eric Hall gave the Eagles a two-point lead before Prince, 7-5, tied it at 59-59. Hall converted the front end of a one-and-one situation with 12 seconds left which proved to be the game-winner.

Hall could have tied it with 15 seconds to go as he went to the left hand line but missed two chances. But the Eagles' victory was saved as hard-working Venera latched onto the rebound.

East led after the first quarter, 14-10, with Prince in front at the half, 25-24. The Eagles led 41-39 heading into the final quarter.

Hall led all scorers for East with 23 points with Venera chipping in 12 and Smith 9. Fred Davis had a team-high 20 markers for Prince with Carl Shelton notching 16.

"We don't have one healthy player," repeated Penders. "Smith feels the best and he has pneumonia. It's a combination of strep throat and the flu. Everyone is going to see a doctor today," the first-year East coach said Wednesday morning.

"We're just walking around like dead people, just existing. We didn't commit a foul in the third or fourth quarter just to show you."

East took the javvee tilt, 55-31, with Mark Marciano (17) and Jim Wase (12) pacing Coach Tom Malin's 8-4 contingent.

East Catholic (60) Venera 6-0 12, Hall 8-17 23, Murphy 3-0 6, Smith 2-5 7, Hammock 1-0 4, Kiro 3-0 6, Lucier 0-0 0. Totals 24-12 18-60.

Prince Tech (59) Davis 2-2 2, Johnson 4-13 19, Shelton 6-0 16, Thomas 3-2 8, Schuler 1-0 2, Delgado 2-0 2. Totals 27-57 59.

AFS chapter sees movie

The American Field Service Chapter of Andover and Marlborough viewed a film "People Together," at a meeting last week explaining the significance of the exchange program to the community.

It was decided to attempt to accept two foreign students next year and to accept applications for the domestic program with the United States for September.

It will be possible to send two students to the Southern Hemisphere and Australia for the 1978-79 year.

Tickets are available for Feb. 11 International Dinner at Rham to assist in funding field service programs. They are $3 for adults and $2 for children 4-12. Children 5 and under will be admitted free of charge.

Ethnic dishes will be served from many countries. Some of the dishes will be prepared by students at the International House at the University of Connecticut. These students will also provide entertainment.

Tickets and information may be obtained by calling Shirley Heim, Hebron; Bette MacDonald, Andover; or Jackie Maltzan of Marlborough.

South Windsor FISH had 450 calls in '77

The South Windsor FISH unit ended 1977 with more than 450 calls, according to Co-Chairperson Phyllis Oswald. This is remarkable," she noted, "since we received about 260 calls during 1976."

During the months of January, May, and November of 1977, the group handled more than 40 calls. The largest tally for any month was recorded in September, with 32 requests for help logged.

South Windsor FISH, which was organized in 1970 to give neighborhood help to individuals in need, maintained a volunteer staff of 80 workers. Of these, approximately 30 perform telephone work, receiving incoming calls for assistance and referring them during one weekday of the month. Another 30 workers provide transportation to medical facilities, social services, etc. one day during the month. Additional volunteers serve in emergency child care, meals, housekeeping, and respite care.

FISH help is available to persons in South Windsor who find themselves in an emergency situation and cannot secure the necessary help from friends, relatives or neighbors. The organization maintains a "hot line" number - 645-1055 - through which the telephone duty officer of each day can be contacted.

Celts snap losses

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (UPI) — On the road they are hapless and at home lately they've looked helpless, but the Boston Celtics still are winners on neutral ground.

The floundering Celtics, playing at the Springfield Civic Center for the first time this season reverted to their once-patient team concept Tuesday to trip the Indiana Pacers, 104-94, for a 4-6th game.

In snapping a four-game losing streak, the Celtics won their third game at a home site other than Boston Garden, against one loss. They were 2-1 at the center's room, Civic Center, before the crowd collapsed Jan. 18, forcing the Tuesday night contest to be switched to Springfield. The Celtics are 12-10 at home this season and 2-20 on the road.

"We played well with guys hurt," said Sidney Hicks, who led five Boston players in double figures with 23 points. "We put things together and we were a team tonight."

The win was accomplished without Jo Jo White or Curtis Rowe. White, snapping a consecutive 458-game streak, was suffering from a sore left heel and sat on the bench in street clothes along with Rowe, who has a swollen knee.

The Pacers, who have lost six of their last seven games and have dropped eight straight on the road, were hampered without starting guard Ricky Sobers and forward Mel Bennett. Sobers was serving the first of a two-game suspension for punching Atlanta's Tom McMillen Jan. 21 and Bennett was sidelined by the flu.

"We wanted that one," said Indiana's Earl Tatum, the game's leading scorer with 25 points, "but our quarterback (Sobers) was gone and we missed him an awful lot."

"Also, we started sluggish in the first half but the second half was a completely different ballgame. Our guys just went out, worked hard and hustled."

The Pacers, in their first game of the season against Boston, led behind by 14 points in the second quarter and trailed by seven, 54-47, at halftime. The Pacers raced out in front with eight straight points to open the third period and, with Tatum scoring 14 points in the quarter, led Boston, 69-63, with 12 minutes to play.

Trailing 83-82, midway through the final period, Boston regained control by outscoring the Pacers, 12-4. Reserve guard Kevin Stacom, who finished with 14 points, keyed the run with a pair of baskets that put Boston ahead, 86-83.

"We got a win," said Coach Tom Sanders, now 4-7 since taking over the Celtics. "Who said we couldn't win one?"

"I was a very artistic but it was a win. Stacom gave us a good game and (Cedric) Maxwell (eight points, 12 rebounds) kept us alive taking the offensive boards."

Villanova stops PC

NEW YORK (UPI) — Villanova upset Providence College's tempo early and ended up shattering the Friars' 24-game home court winning streak.

The Wildcats jumped to an 11-0 lead and never trailed Tuesday night in dumping Providence, 73-66, at the Providence Civic Center, where the Friars have lost just six times in 56 games.

"The key thing was that we got out of our tempo early and got us into theirs," said Friars' Coach Bruce Gavitt. "We had six good shots at the beginning of the game and they just didn't fall. We then didn't react to their press, got behind, 11-0, and tried to catch up too fast."

Villanova leads Providence during the four years I've been at Villanova," said Coach Willie Massimino. "We ran very well in the game — it was a great win for us."

Keith Herron led the Wildcats with 25 points, including five in the unanswered early spree. The Friars rallied, however, and pulled to within four points, at 62-58, with 3:38 to play.

But four straight Villanova points iced the game for the Wildcats.

"Our defense brought us back in the second half to where we had it down to four," said Gavitt. "But it's a credit to Villanova the way they beat us and the way they handled us late in the game."

"This is by far their best Villanova team since they had their great ones of the early 70s."

In other major games, Holy Cross defeated Brown, 91-70, North Carolina State topped Clemson, 73-69, Old Dominion battered East Carolina, 112-81, and Portland whipped Seattle Pacific, 97-70.

Jazz win ninth straight, lose star

NEW YORK (UPI) — The New Orleans Jazz won their ninth straight game Tuesday night but lost their mainstring in the process.

The Jazz routed the Buffalo Braves, 114-85, but the post-game focus was on Pete Maravich, the NBA's leading scorer, who collapsed clutching his right knee after he lost his balance passing the ball between his legs and fell heavily with 4:12 remaining in the game.

"He probably won't play against Chicago (tonight), but he'll be okay," one team official said. "He just sprained the ligaments, not the cartilage. Nothing is torn."

The doctor who examined Maravich, said he expected the Jazz captain to be out of action about one week. If that prediction holds true, Maravich would miss Sunday's NBA All-Star Game in Atlanta.

The win pushed the Jazz to 25-24, their best record this late in the season since joining the NBA as an expansion team four years ago.

The Braves led, 53-50, at the half behind the hot shooting of guard Randy Smith, who had 15 of his 33 points during the last four minutes of the first quarter.

Elsewhere in the NBA, Boston whipped Indiana, 104-84, Denver topped New York, 119-115. Los Angeles defeated Cleveland, 116-107, San Antonio ripped Washington, 129-109, Phoenix beat hapless Kansas City, 112-102, Chicago edged Atlanta in overtime, 106-103, Golden State topped New Jersey, 103-92, and Portland defeated Milwaukee, 136-115.

Trail Blazers 136, Bucks 116.

Bob Gross scored 13 of his 19 points in the third quarter as Portland broke open a tight contest to post their 63rd consecutive home victory.

Milwaukee's Brian Winters had 23 points.

Paced by George Gervin's 33 points, the Spurs unleashed a torrid shooting spree in the third quarter to rout the Bullets. The Spurs ignited a 96-84 third-quarter lead by shooting 68 percent during the period.

Suns 112, Kings 102.

Walter Davis and Paul Westphal combined for 41 points to lift the Suns to victory. The Kings, losers for the 10th time in 13 starts, were led by Scott Wedman's 39 points.

Bulls 106, Hawks 103.

Arts Gilmore's basket, his 33rd point of the game, with 24 seconds left to play in overtime proved the winner. Reserve John Mengelt added 23 points for Chicago while Charles Criss paced Atlanta with 23.

Warriors 103, Nets 92.

Rick Barry scored 26 points, blocked four shots and added seven assists to help the Warriors hand the staggering Nets their 14th straight defeat. Rookie Bernard King topped New Jersey with 23.

on 14 of 22 field goals in scoring a game-high 31 points and Adrian Dantley added 25 to help the Lakers snap a seven-game road losing streak. Walt Frazier topped Cleveland with 27.

Spurs 129, Bulls 109.

Paced by George Gervin's 33 points, the Spurs unleashed a torrid shooting spree in the third quarter to rout the Bullets. The Spurs ignited a 96-84 third-quarter lead by shooting 68 percent during the period.

Israelis make friends in America

By SUSAN VAUGHN
Herald Reporter

"I wish Israel were in America," was perhaps one of the highest compliments by an Israeli visitor in Manchester during the recent Friendship Force exchange program.

To many of the 425 Israelis coming to America was like a dream come true. It was a dream that would not have been possible without the Friendship Force program which seeks to promote friendships and close ties through exchange visits between individual states of the United States and other countries.

President Carter started the program, similar to one begun when he was governor of Georgia between his state and Brazil.

An equal number of central Connecticut residents have spent this past week in Tel Aviv with Israeli hosts and hostesses. Connecticut's delegation was the fourth to participate in the Friendship flights since they began last fall.

The host families for the Israeli visitors were throughout the Hartford area, including 13 in Manchester and others in Vernon, Talcottville, East Hartford, Bolton, Ellington, South Windsor, Tolland and Andover.

The exchange program tries to match up the host families and visitors, such as by similar professions, ages and interests. Of the three exchanges interviewed in Manchester, both the hosts and hostesses and the visitors agreed that they were very well matched.

Jane Wlochowski of 84 Cambridge St. said her guests, Amir and Tamar Wertheim, "If they lived in the United States, they would be our friends." The Wertheims said they felt very much at home in the informal life style of Michael and Jane Wlochowski. The two couples are similar in age and interests.

Wlochowski is a truck driver and Wertheim is a bus driver in Israel. He said he owns a share of the large cooperative bus company which serves all Israel and does a lot of transporting of soldiers in the Israeli Army.

Tamar Wertheim is a cosmetician who has her own business in her home in the city of Rishon Let-Zion, near Tel Aviv. A cosmetician in Israel only gives facial treatments, rather than hair styling like in beauty shops here. Mrs. Wertheim said the facial treatments are vital because of the dry desert climate in Israel.

The Wertheims have a seven-year-old daughter and a three-year-old son whom they left home with Grandma. The couple enjoys taking trips to some site in Israel about once a month where they get out and walk to learn more about their country. This was their first trip outside their homeland. They are both Sabras, or native-born Israelis.

When the Wertheims read about the Friendship Force exchange in an ad in the newspaper, they said they ran to sign up, but "never dreamed we would be chosen."

All the visitors were very impressed with the American way of living, especially with the homes, yards and trees here. In Israel, 95 percent of the people live in apartments, mostly because land is at such a premium in the small Middle East state.

The Israelis also loved all the snow in Connecticut. "It's a novelty," said Avner Adini, an attorney who was the houseguest of Mr. and Mrs. David Wichman of 40 Lexington Drive. Adini also has a wife and two children who stayed home.

Dvora David, a nurse from Petah Tikva, another suburban type city near Tel Aviv, also loved the snow since Israel gets no snow except on the highest mountain top, Mt. David (Jabal Qalyan).

Although many American customs are different, the American host in the morning at Ms. Linley's and looking out at the snow. Her 10-year-old daughter, Tali, asked her mother to bring some snow home to her.

Another first experience for Mrs. Wertheim, which Connecticut residents take for granted, was seeing a squirrel for the first time outside of a zoo. She was thrilled when a squirrel came right up to her and licked her hand while she was visiting the Mark Twain House in Hartford.

The visitors also enjoyed trying "real American" foods while they were here, such as McDonald's hamburgers, tacos, bacon and hot pastrami.

On second thought

By Jan Warren

It's snowing y'all

Last week when the great storm Igor hit New England, it also deposited three quarters of an inch of its white burden here in Mississippi (we measured with a ruler at the back door).

Immediately the important community people who deliberate such matters decided to close everything. Not just for the day, but "until further notice!"

"No school!" cheered our kids. "No office!" I responded gleefully. "Ridiculous!" said my husband, always the New Englander, as he pulled on his study overcoat and headed for the carport.

My husband was the only person to drive off our street all day. The rest of the men stayed home and took care of their families.

They chopped wood to keep the fire roaring and made frequent checks of the waterpipes to be sure they weren't freezing. They and his wives kept a steady supply of coffee and hot biscuits coming from the kitchen. Their kids, however, were relieved of all responsibility and were encouraged to enjoy the snow. What they managed to do with that three quarters of an inch of white slush was amazing.

First, of course, they had snowball fights and within minutes every little boy had learned that if you hold a snowball in your hand long enough it makes an ice ball.

Next they made a snowman complete with carrot nose and peacan eyes (this required borrowing snow from the road and carting it to the snowman site in a wagon).

Probably the happiest squeals of the day came from the children on cookie-sheet-toboggans who careened down the icieside that ran through the backyards. The slide was engineered to include a harrowing jump over the curb and into the street.

When the afternoon paper arrived from Jackson it featured an article on "How To Play In The Snow" which included a step-by-step instructions for making a snowman and a recipe for a New England sugaring-off party that called for hot Southern cane syrup poured over "as much snow as y'all can cram into a mixing bowl."

That evening, our neighbor Billy Joe came to visit while we were watching the 6 o'clock news. The big story was the storm and the camera showed scenes of the Connecticut Thruway with its mass of skidding cars.

"Poor devils," said Billy Joe. "But I really don't have much sympathy for them."

"Hump!" said my husband. "You would if you'd ever had to fight a real New England snowstorm."

"But that's the point," said Billy Joe. "Snow is an act of God and down here we don't fight an act of God. We just relax and make the best of it."

Israelis make friends

families were surprised to find that their visitors were very familiar with American television programs such as "Starsky and Hutch," "Charlie's Angels" and "Sesame Street." Adini said he saw the news of the collapse of the Hartford Civic Center coliseum roof on Israeli television.

One aspect of American television which Adini said he could not get used to, however, was the commercials. Israeli TV is run by a non-profit corporation and has no advertising.

Because of the familiarity with so many American ways, Adini expressed concern that the people of Israel are becoming too Americanized.

The Wertheims also described the friendliness, warmth and openness of Americans they met while here. "Of course we're not always like that either," said Ms. Linley said. "It is hard for us to understand what it is like to live under that constant tension and threat of war since we have not had fighting on our land in any of our memories."

The Wertheims also described the feeling of tension because of the closeness to the Arabs. Wertheim said he likes the buffer areas which Israel has attained. It gives the Israelis some "breathing space," he said.

Mrs. Wertheim said she does not like the fact that her husband has to be away for a month or two each year on active duty in the army.

All the visitors expressed a strong hope for a peace settlement resulting from the current talks with Egypt. However, both Adini and Wertheim expressed a basic distrust of the Arabs.

Adini said he has little hope for a complete peace in near future, "perhaps in a generation or so," he said. It may be possible, Adini described Anwar Sadat, president of Egypt, a frustrated actor who is trying to get what he can from the Israelis now since he could not get military victory.

Adini also said he feels it is very important that Israel retains the buffer zones like the Sinai Peninsula, for its own security and defense.

This sharing of information and ideas on a person-to-person basis is what the Friendship Force is all about.

The Manchester residents who hosted the Israeli visitors described them as "charming and intelligent."

Mrs. Wichman said she expected it to be a valuable experience for her and her husband, but it proved to be equally as valuable for her children.

Mrs. Wlochowksi described the exchange as the "best education, a way to really get to know other people."

Several of the Israeli visitors were already expressing hope that their American hosts and hostesses would come to Israel some day so they could extend the same hospitality they felt they received here.

If you are thinking of buying a wood burning stove, one of the things you will need to know about is your chimney. "Fireplaces and Chimneys" (154P, 40 cents) can help you figure out how to build a chimney or maintain your present one. It gives suggestions on fireplace construction, too.

If you've really determined to cut those utility bills, "How to Save Money by Insulating your Home" (603P, free) will give you advice on types of insulation and how to install it. If you aren't sure how much insulation you should use, "Making the Most of Your Energy Dollars" (664P, 70 cents) has a chart you can use to figure the "R" value of insulation you can install for maximum return.

Health

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.

Cholesterol doesn't change

DEAR DR. LAMB - When cholesterol is ingested (as in the case of eggs) I understand that it undergoes changes in the metabolic process. Therefore, what enters the blood stream is no longer cholesterol, but various other organic compounds. How can it be said, then, that the ingestion of cholesterol increases the level of cholesterol in the blood? I have also read that there is a substance in the albumin of eggs that counteracts the adverse effects of cholesterol in the yolk. Is there any truth in this? DEAR READER - It is absolutely untrue that the cholesterol you ingest in any food is altered by the metabolic process so it is not cholesterol when it is absorbed. The source of that kind of information is totally unreliable and you should not trust any information regarding nutrition or health you get from wherever that source is. The cholesterol produced by your body, chiefly in the liver, is passed into the small intestine with the bile. Here it is mixed with the cholesterol in your food. Cholesterol is absorbed directly into the blood stream from this combined pool of cholesterol in your small intestine. It doesn't make any difference whether the cholesterol is from the bile or from your food. Your intestinal wall doesn't know the difference. The amount produced by the liver varies in response to your blood level, but that is an entirely different matter. Cholesterol is relatively inert and is recycled again and again through the formation of bile, which drains into the intestine that kind of information is totally unreliable and you should not trust any information regarding nutrition or health you get from wherever that source is. All the snow in recent weeks was enjoyed by at least these playful pups. The unusual Japanese Akita pups were among a litter of six born Dec. 4 to the three-year-old Akita, Jodi, owned by the John Goodwin family of 57 Ridge St. (Herald photo by Pinto)

Jodi delivers six Akitas

On Dec. 4, 1977, the John Goodwin family of 57 Ridge St. helped their dog, Jodi, deliver six Akita puppies. The Akitas, a Japanese breed, are uncommon in New England. Their roots trace back over 300 years to a mountainous area of Japan, called Prefecture of Akita, according to Mrs. Goodwin. Originally bred as hunting dogs, they were later considered a national treasure and only nobles could own one. Akitas made their entry into the United States via a United States major who smuggled a pair aboard a ship during World War II. The striking feature of the Akita is the impression of power and strength without sacrificing gentleness. Their temperament makes them ideal companions and protectors of children, Mrs. Goodwin said. The Goodwins have two children, Christine, 7, and Jennifer, 6, who assisted their parents in the delivery of the two male and four female puppies. The puppies arrived about one every hour over a six-hour period. Mrs. Goodwin said they were not able to resist the cute pups and are keeping a male with the intention of entering dog shows. They hope to find loving homes for the others.

Social Security
Q. My father had a stroke about 14 months ago, but he didn't apply for Social Security disability benefits at the time because he expected to return to work. Now he's suffered a second stroke and cannot walk. Can he collect back benefits?
A. If your father is eligible for Social Security disability payments, he can be paid back benefits for up to 12 months. However, benefits cannot start until the sixth full month of disability. Your father should get in touch with any Social Security office as soon as possible for information about applying for benefits.
Q. My niece gets Social Security payments on the basis of mental disability. She is now back in a mental institution. Can she qualify for Medicare?
A. Yes. When your niece has received Social Security disability benefits for two consecutive years, she is entitled to Medicare. However, there is a limit on the amount of in-patient care in a psychiatric institution that can be covered by Medicare's Hospital Insurance.
Q. When I was married a few years ago, I was advised to change my name with Social Security and I did. Now, however, I've just been divorced and I'm resuming my maiden name. Should I report this change in my name?
A. Yes. It's important that your Social Security record be correct so that you can get proper credit for your earnings. Just call or write any Social Security office and give them the new information. You'll get a duplicate card in your maiden name, but with the same number. If your husband was injured in a serious accident and won't be able to work for at least a year. When I visited the Social Security office to see about disability payments for him, I was told there's a five-month waiting period before he can get his first monthly disability check if he's eligible. Is there any help we can get while we're waiting?
A. Your husband may be able to get Supplemental Security Income payments. These are monthly checks paid to people 65 and over, or blind or disabled who are in need. You should contact any Social Security office to find out if he's eligible for these payments.
Q. My husband and I both get Social Security payments. I get mine on my own earnings record because it's more than I would get on my husband's record. If he dies before I do, will I also be able to get his benefits in addition to the monthly checks I am now getting?
A. No. You can only be paid the equivalent of the higher amount. If your payments as a widow would be more than what you would get on your own earnings record, you would get the difference between the two amounts as a widow.

THE FAMILY LAWYER
Furthermore, a hunter must handle his weapon with the extra circumspection it deserves. In another case a hunter leaned his gun — with the safety off — against the side of a wobbly duck blind. It discharged, sending a slug into his companion's leg. Here, too, the court held the hunter liable for failing to show a sensible concern for the gun's deadly potential. Nevertheless, there can be no liability if the injury was truly accidental. Thus, Joe and Eddie, on a bird hunt, were agreed as to their respective locations in the woods. But Eddie, after stopping to tie his shoelaces, failed to call out that his position had changed. When Joe saw a bird taking wing, he fired his shotgun and unwittingly hit Eddie. Although Eddie later filed a damage suit, the court could see no grounds for holding Joe responsible for holding Joe responsible. The court said he had merely "fired in a direction where any experienced bird hunter would not be without having given warning that he was out of position."

Hamilton given contract for space guidance unit

The Hamilton Standard division of United Technologies Corp. has been awarded $1.8 million contract to begin work on the inertial guidance system for the space shuttle program's interim upper stage (IUS).

The IUS is being developed under the direction of the U.S. Air Force Space and Missile Systems Organization (SAMSO), executive agent for all Defense Department activities pertaining to the space shuttle transportation system.

With aid of gyroscopes, the inertial measurement units measure changes in velocity and attitude, and supply this data to the space vehicle's computers for navigational purposes.

The contract to initiate long lead activity was awarded by the Boeing Co., prime contractor for the IUS. The IUS is a space vehicle designed to carry payloads to orbit and interplanetary trajectories beyond the operational capabilities of the space shuttle orbiter.

Being also is adapting the IUS for use on the U.S. Air Force's new Titan III space booster.

Hamilton Standard will manufacture the inertial measurement units for each IUS. The computer subsystems will be furnished by the Delco Electronics division of General Motors Corp., a subcontractor to Hamilton Standard.

UConn fetes Rogers Corp.

The University of Connecticut Institute of Materials Science (IMS) presented a commemorative plaque to Rogers Corp. an IMS associate, and to Rogers President Norman L. Greenman and Vice President Richard C. Berry for that company's "far-sightedness in supporting university-industry programs."

The Institute of Materials Science, located in a multi-million dollar laboratory complex on the UConn Storrs campus, set up the Associates Program in 1974. More than 90 faculty members from 14 departments in five different colleges at the university lend their services and expertise to the Institutes' programs.

Dr. James R. Price, director of the IMS Associates Program, made the presentation on behalf of IMS Director Leonard V. Azaroff at Rogers corporate headquarters in Rogers. Price said it was with "sincere appreciation" that he awarded the plaque to Rogers and he thanked Greenman for the company's continued interest and support of IMS efforts in the research and development of materials science.

A charter member of the IMS Associates Program, Rogers was one of the five founding companies of the program in 1974. A diversified supplier of materials to the electronic, automotive, electrical, shoe, textile and printing industries, Rogers saw the unborn Associates Program as the opportunity to open the information lines between university and industrial research laboratories.

Since then, Rogers has offered IMS a window into the needs and interests of industry as well as financial support and increased employment opportunities for IMS graduates. On the other side of the mutually beneficial relationship, Rogers has had direct access to IMS research facilities and expertise in addition to in-plant training programs for Rogers employees and current information about research progress and achievements.

Hand needlework booms

NEW YORK (UPI) - Whether it's a renewal of the creative urge or just revolt against boredom, hand needlework is booming in the United States. It's an industry with from $800 million to $1 billion in volume at retail for threads, yarns, needles and patterns and nobody knows how much for finished goods.

The manufacturers' share is about half the volume, says Mary Colucci, coordinator of the National Needlework Association. Miss Colucci said the big chain stores have about 65 percent of the retail market and the department stores and specialty shops share the rest.

Although women don't have to depend on handwork to decorate their clothes or homes nowadays, or to give as gifts, an estimated 30 million currently do, Miss Colucci said. Add to this a surprising 8 million men who are interested in needle crafts.

Miss Colucci said the medical profession has been partly responsible for men getting into needlework both as a form of relaxation for the well and as therapy for convalescing patients.

Young people, girls and boys alike, have been enlisted into the ranks of knitters through a public school and college knitting program launched in 1973 by DuPont Co. and the National Hand Knitting Yarn Association. So far 300,000 students have been enrolled.

The do-it-yourself craze and home decorating boom have attracted many to the needle crafts, not only for traditional projects, but as a tool for expressing creativity, the results limited only by the craftsman's imagination and skill.

Needlepoint today is a traditional pillow, chair covering, wall hanging - or a vest, a pair of clogs, a motorcycle seat cover. Embroidery, too, is classical - or whimsical, perhaps a soft sculptured carrot with feathery top and stitchery details. Handknitting is a handsome sweater - or a wild pair of leg warmers or minuscule bikini.

Board majority likes middle schools

But separate roofs said not necessary

By SHEILA TULLER
Herald Correspondent
Armed with their list of priorities to use as criteria, Board of Education members Tuesday night continued discussions on the housing plan at a workshop session at Penney High.
The education program was ranked priority No. 1 by board members at last week's workshop. Last night the board agreed it would strive for two classes of each grade at a school.
Members recommended class size of 25 students per class to insure good grouping of students for instruction. The school organizational pattern was listed as concern number two.
Board Chairman Larry DePonte polled members on their feelings about the present setting of Grades K-5 at the elementary school level, Grades 6-8 at the middle school level, and Grades 9-12 at the high school level.
The consensus showed the majority favors maintaining the middle school idea, but most board members agreed the programs don't have to be housed under separate roofs to be maintained.
Presently, with the exception of the Center School and Hockanum School areas, elementary and middle schools have been established for each area of town. In most cases three elementary schools feed into a middle school.
The populations of the town's four middle schools are split between the two high schools.
After studying present and projected enrollment figures, board member Richard Daley said "The optimum number of students set by the administration at 450-600 per middle school is impractical and unrealistic."
The administration feels these numbers are necessary to insure quality programming.
"All of the middle schools in town are not operating with these numbers now," Daley said.
Emery Daley, agreeing there are advantages to separate programs for K-5 and 6-8 graders, said "I see no reason for not housing them in the same building. Especially since Hockanum, the largest school in town has 32 classrooms and Center the third largest with 28 classrooms, can handle sufficient numbers for program."
Dorothy Carey favors the break "I can't picture K-8 in one building," she said.
Mrs. Carey feels the numbers projected for Grades 6-8 would sustain programming.
Newly elected board member Joseph Visigilo reserved his opinion until he has more information on the middle school concept.
Speaking for the parents in the audience, Michele Cheris urged the board to decide once and for all on the school's organizational pattern. Joseph LaRosa, East Hartford Citizen's Action Group education committee representative, citing the drop in test scores after Grade 4, argued "Maybe so many programs isn't the way to go. Let's intensify the basic programs."

East Hartford police report

Daniel Sharkey, 20, of 15 Green Terrace, East Hartford, was charged Tuesday with assaulting a police officer, resisting arrest, and breach of the peace.
During the process of arresting Sharkey, two police officers suffered minor injuries. They were treated at Manchester Memorial Hospital and released.
Police said they received a complaint that someone was standing on a street corner yelling and when they investigated Sharkey became abusive.
Sharkey was held at the police station in lieu of posting a $5,000 bond. He was to be presented in Common Pleas Court, East Hartford, today.
John F. Donovan, 23, of 39 Maplewood Avenue, was charged Tuesday with making a false complaint, making a false statement and conspiracy to violate the narcotics law.
Police said the arrest was the result of an investigation of a complaint made by Donovan concerning an alleged robbery in Martin Park on Jan. 5.
Donovan was released on a $1,000 surety bond for court appearance on Feb. 20.

Cordier still wants to serve the public

By SHEILA TULLER
Herald Correspondent
After announcing his intended resignation from the Town Council this past weekend, James Cordier, the youngest elected councilman in East Hartford's history, reflected on his past two years and four months as a councilman.
Elected to his second term in last November's election, Cordier said holding an elected office was a most gratifying experience.
He is resigning because he was recently hired by the Connecticut State Police as a State Capitol guard and can have no political ties.
In his new position, Cordier will be in the unique situation, he said, "I will be serving the people at a third level of government. As a councilman I served at the town level and as an army officer in the reserve, I serve at the federal level. Now I will be serving at the state level."
Doing so, Cordier feels he is also serving a personal need to be a public servant.
In November 1976, when Cordier ran for the State Legislature, he said he campaigned supporting the bottle bill and the sunshine law. He added he came out strongly against abortion and opposed a state income tax.
On the local level Cordier recalled he also opposed the voucher system proposed by the state administration but, strongly supported the science wing renovation at EHS proposed by the same administration.
As a councilman Cordier served on the Economic Development Commission, Inland Wetlands Commission, Ordinance Committee, Legislative Committee and was secretary of the Fees Committee.
He said he supported the Blue Army when they appeared before the council in their fight against pornography. He said he is pleased when citizens come out in support of issues and is very pleased with the formation of the Citizens Action Groups that have formed in town.
At the Feb. 7 council meeting when Cordier's resignation will be acted upon, he plans to leave the council several observations and recommendations.
He added "I'd like to be able to recommend my own successor on the council but a committee appointed by the Republican Town Chairman will do so." He continued, "If I could, I'd appoint John Finnegan and you can quote that." "John's had experience on the council and would also be the people's choice as he was next in line on last November's ballot."
Though saddened about giving up his council seat, Cordier is pleased he has finally gained employment and looks forward to a new challenge.
