Motorists trapped by snow on coast

HARTFORD (UPI) - Heavy snow today trapped motorists temporarily on Interstate 95 and closed schools throughout the state as a major storm moved into New England. More than a foot of snow was predicted for Connecticut.

At least six people suffering minor injuries were taken to hospitals after they had accidents on I-95, were trapped in their cars and then were extracated, state police at the Westport barracks said.

"We've had at least 50 accidents. Some people had to be extricated but everyone who was trapped is out. The roads are extremely hazardous. You just can't get through due to all the accidents," said Trooper James McCarthy. Gov. Ella T. Grasso ordered all 40,-000 state workers to go home at noon except those in emergency positions. She also canceled her evening office hours scheduled for tonight.

Banking Commissioner David Neiditz authorized all banks to close

Parking ban

A parking ban has been placed in effect for Manchester streets because of today's storm. There will be no on-street parking until the ban is lifted. Also, town officials are considering making some streets off Main Street oneway, but no final decision had been made as of noon.

for sections of Connecticut by the National Weather Service which issued a heavy snow warning and a travelers advisory.

"A rapidly developing storm off the mid Atlantic coast will likely become a vicious nor'easter this afternoon," the weather bureau said.

anthony Palmese, of the Tranportation Department's Storm Center, said 2 1/2 inches of snow fell in Greenwich in two hours this mor-

Eight to 16 inches were predicted working steadily in Fairfield County and the New Haven area by midmorning.

"In a storm like this, we'll be out 100 percent statewide and we'll hire more trucks as they're needed." he said. In major storms the department regularly uses 829 state and contractor snowplows and trucks, and 1,670 men.

By midmorning 2 1/2 inches had fallen in New Canaan and about half an inch blanketed New Haven. Only a few flakes had fallen in Hartford.

Almost all Fairfield County towns canceled school today. Schools were opened in Bridgeport and Fairfield, but they planned to send students home by noon.

Roland Laro, meteorologist in charge at Bradley International Airport in Windsor Locks, said light snow would increase in intensity late this afternoon but he said it was too early to predict snow accumulations.

Gale warnings were issued for the coast with heavy surf and tides expected to cause some beach erosion tonight and Tuesday. Some local flooding of low lying coastal areas was expected at times of high tide.

The most recent major snowfall was Jan. 20 when up to 2 feet fell in some sections of Connecticut, causing flat roofs to cave in and shutting down most schools and many businesses.

That storm was followed by heavy rains Jan. 26 which resulted in heavy flooding that hit eastern Connecticut the hardest and forced hundreds of families to evacuate their homes.

District claims signers misled

By GREG PEARSON Herald Reporter

A committee from the Eighth Utilities District has charged that petitioners in the district seeking signatures for a consolidation referendum have been misleading residents.

This is the second complaint in five days about petitioning in Manchester's North End, but persons involved in the effort deny any wrongdoing.

petitioning is being organized "The Committee for One Manchester." The group is trying to obtain signatures from ten percent of the registered voters in the district and ten percent of the registered voters in non-district areas of Manchester.

If these numbers of signatures re obtained, the committee apparently will continue work to place the consolidation question on the ballot this November. Consolidation would combine the Eighth Utilities District with the Town of Manchester, eliminating the present setup of separate fire departments and sewer authorities.

The complaint was made by the district's ad hoc committee, which charged that some circulators of petitions have been misleading elec-

"These circulators have instructed electors that their signature in no way supports consolidation," the committee said in a press release issued this morning.

Last week, Granville "Ted" Lingard, fire chief for the Eighth Utilities District, criticized the use of Town Fire Department members to distribute petitions for a referendum question on consolidation.

the recent consolidation movement started, said that the statements that the petitions do not support consolidation are "false and misleading the petition is for consolidation, just as its plain language says," the committee release said.

"If ten percent (of the district's voters) do not sign this petition, there can be no townwide referendum. Every signature on this petition may be a nail in the coffin of the Eighth District," it said.

The release also said that forms are available if someone wishes to withdraw his or her signature from the petition. It also asks that any dis trict resident who feels he or she has been misled should contact Robert Bletchman, who is chairman of the ad hoc committee, or any district director.

Those involved in the petitioning, however, feel that there has been no misleading by the circulators.

"Signing the petition does not mean there will be consolidation. It just means that the question will be placed on a referendum," Durward Miller, co-chairman of the Committee for One Manchester, said.

He said that circulators were not told to say that signing the petition does not support consolidation.

"But, if they are, it's not wrong," he said.

Miller also said that there have been about 700 signatures obtained in the district. The committee needs about 750 signatures to reach the ten percent mark in the district.

Ted Cummings, Democratic town chairman and also a member of the Committee for One Manchester, said, "We're telling people that signing the petition means there will be a referendum."

"We're sticking to the rulebook, no matter what the district people say,"

Summit didn't succeed

WASHINGTON (UPI) - With no agreement at hand on how to resume the stalled peace talks with Israel, Egyptian President Anwar Sadat today undertook to argue his case with the American people

Sadat and President Carter returned to Washington Sunday afternoon after two days and three long talks at Camp David, a secluded presidential retreat in the snowcovered Catoctin Mountains of western Maryland

An interview with Sadat on NBC later made it clear the Carter-Sadat summit did not succeed in what American officials had described as a minimum goal: achieving early resumption of the foreign ministers' talks broken off by Sadat on Jan. 18 in

Instead, Sadat said, it was agreed that assistant Secretary of State Alfred Atherton Jr. will shuttle between Egypt and Israel in an effort to create some compromise language that would permit a resumption of the talks

In the meantime, Sadat said, talks between the defense ministers in Cairo will continue.

The Egyptian president, meanwhile, scheduled two days of meetings, appearances and interviews in Washington before a final session with Carter Wednesday.

Sadat's schedule called for meetings with American Jewish community leaders at Blair House Monday morning and a speech and question-and-answer session later at the National Press Club.

On Tuesday, he is to meet key congressional leaders, do at least two more television interviews and have a private "background" session with American editors and columnists.

Israeli Defense Minister Moshe Dayan has been invited to Washington soon after Sadat leaves Wednesday evening.

The Egyptian president said he would be willing to resume the foreign ministers' talks, but with a necessary precondition - agreement with Israel on a basic set of principles. The weekend talks had been designed, among other things, to produce such a declaration.

Sadat repeatedly made two points in Sunday night's interview with NBC's David Brinkley:

-He expressed gratitude to the American people, particularly American Jews, for the "sentiments they have shown." Speaking of the American Jews at one point he said, 'I shall never fail them, or all the American people."

-He accused Israel, at length, of taking the "wrong direction" after his visit to Jerusalem in November. He said the Israelis accepted his offer of recognition, direct talks, and full diplomatic relations as part of a comprehensive peace settleoent without making any similar response

Army costs up billions since draft

WASHINGTON (UP) - The end of the draft and the switch to an allvolunteer Army, Navy and Air Force has added more than $18.4 billion to national defense costs since 1971. congressional investigators said

The report by the General Accounting Office, the investigating arm of Congress, was released by Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga. It attributed the sharp increase in costs to higher pay, enlistment bonuses, higher recruiting costs, better housing and other changes to make military life more attractive.

The shift began in 1971 and all conscription ended in December 1972. By July 1, 1973, the nation had returned to an all-volunteer military force for the first time in three decades.

The GAO said its study showed the change added $90 million to costs in fiscal 1971. The additional costs rose to a peak of $3.4 billion in 1975 and totaled $18.4 billion through 1977. Assistant Defense Secretary John White said GAO's failure to consider various factors caused it "to greatly overstate the costs and understate the savings" of an all-volunteer

DEAR ABBY: Maybe YOU think it's "gracious" for guests to telephone the hostess the next day or write a note to thank her, but I disagree.

If a guest ducks out of a very large party without saying goodbye because he or she doesn't want to start an exodu (or say goodbye to 100 people), then a note or a call to the hostess the next day would naturally take the place of what wasn't said in person.

But when guests leave my home and say they enjoyed being there, that's sufficient for me; and I don't want them ng me the next day to repeat what they have already

If there is something to discuss, well and good, or if they had an exceptionally good time a written note is welcome, but I think perfunctory phone calls after a party are a nuisance and a thing of the past.

Am I alone in this? Please ask your readers to express the man liked my wife, so we went along with the swapping idea just for the fun of it. We had never done anything like that in our lives and thought it would be a good learning After three months of swapping, my wife left me to move into this man's apartment. His wife had no place to live, so I let her move in with me, but there is no sex between us, I give you my word. (There WAS some at first, but it didn't last long.) All we do is talk about my wife and her husband and wait for them to come to their senses. It's been five months, and my wife is still living with this man. She says she loves me, but isn't ready to come home How much longer should I give her? I feel like a fool. We're both schoolteachers and I'm tired of lying and hiding
