Carter OKs sale of jets to Arabs

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In a major Mideast policy move, President Carter has decided to sell sophisticated jet fighters to Egypt and Saudi Arabia as well as Israel, administration sources said today.

The sale of supersonic F5Es to Egypt would be the first of lethal U.S. weaponry to that Arab country and is sure to anger Israel. Israel and the Saudis would get even more sophisticated F15 and F16 fighters. Carter's decision to sell the short range F5Es at the request of Egyptian President Anwar Sadat is expected to be interpreted at least partly as a move to pressure Israel into giving up settlements in occupied Arab territories.

Congressional sources said Egypt would get 50 of the F5Es, Saudi Arabia 60 F15s — 15 of them training models — and Israel would get 15 F15s and 75 F16s.

The F15 is mainly aimed at "dogfight" superiority of the skies and is considered the Air Force's best plane. The F16 is an all-purpose fighter.

The three-way package deal will be submitted to Congress, which has the power to block it.

The so-called Israeli lobby is sure to strongly oppose the sale of jets to Egypt, but sources said the administration is convinced Congress will approve the deal. Sadat asked Carter during a recent White House visit to sell him at least 30 of the F5Es. Egypt previously has been allowed to buy only C130 military transport planes from the United States.

Carter was understood to have promised the Saudis during his recent Mideast visit that he would approve the sale of some 60 F15s.

Israel currently has 25 F15s and has been seeking another 25 as well as an additional 150 F16s.

While Congress does not have to approve the sales, it has 30 days in which to vote a rejection after the official proposal is sent to Capitol Hill.

First gripes heard over tax revaluation

By GREG PEARSON
Herald Reporter

Today was the first day of hearings for Town of Manchester residents with complaints about new assessments that were mailed last weekend as part of the town's revaluation.

And Tax Assessor Ed Belleville said today that, despite some delays and processing problems, the revaluation will be far enough along to permit compilation of the town Grand List by the end of the month.

Notices were mailed over the weekend to about 12,000 property owners. The remaining notices, about 2,000, will be mailed during the upcoming weekend, and Belleville asked anyone who has not yet received a notice not to call his office.

All notices should arrive by Wednesday, Feb. 22, he said.

Taxpayers who do not receive their notices until then will be given the same opportunity to request an appointment to discuss their new assessments as those who already have received notices.

A special telephone number, 643-4991, has been set up for residents who want to schedule a meeting to discuss their new assessments. And, so far, the response has been ample. "The phone has been humming. It's nothing that we didn't expect," Belleville said.

This is the first revaluation done since 1966. Thus, the values of residential properties have increased by an average of about 100 percent, he said.

A processing problem developed in the new assessments of property owned by elderly taxpayers who qualify to have their taxes frozen. The notices sent to these residents do not reflect the tax freeze they should receive, Belleville said.

These elderly taxpayers are urged not to call to schedule an appointment at this time. They will receive notices soon reflecting the frozen assessments, he said.

Other processing problems, including a few residents who received assessment notices that were blank, have occurred, but Belleville said that the work will be completed in time to permit the annual Grand List to be compiled.

Any property owner who has an objection to the new assessment may meet with a town employee who has worked on revaluation. The meetings will be made by appointment only. Some night and Saturday hours probably will be scheduled to accommodate those residents who cannot meet the town employees during regular working hours.

Changes that result from these meetings will be made immediately in the assessor's office records.

Residents who are still not satisfied may then meet with the Board of Tax Review, which will start holding sessions next month. A still-dissatisfied property owner may appeal the revaluation to the Court of Common Pleas within a year.

Petitions losing 80 more names

The names of 80 more Eighth Utilities District residents wishing to withdraw their names from petitions asking for a referendum vote on consolidation were filed this morning with Manchester's town clerk.

The filing was done by attorney Robert Bletchman, who last week filed 16 names of persons seeking to withdraw from the petition.

Ted Cummings, a member of the Committee for One Manchester and a leader of the consolidation movement, said this morning that the committee has obtained 140 signatures to replace the withdrawals.

The Committee for One Manchester has organized a petitioning drive for consolidation. A total of 10 percent of the registered voters in the district, and a total of 10 percent of the registered voters in non-district areas would have to sign the petition to have a referendum question on consolidation, which would combine the district and the Town of Manchester.

Last weekend, district officials started a drive of their own to have signers withdraw their names from the petition.

Part of a result of that work was the 80 withdrawals filed this morning by Bletchman.

Members of the Committee for One Manchester have questioned the legality of the drive to obtain withdrawals, and Cummings said the committee's counsel, attorney John FitzGerald, is reviewing the matter.

The committee also said that it has obtained more than the 750 signatures required in the district. Some of the district residents involved in the matter, however, questioned whether the committee actually has obtained that number of signatures in the district. One district director said that the committee would have filed the petition if the number of names required in the district had been obtained.

Members of the Committee for One Manchester have said that the group is waiting until the required number of signatures also is obtained in the non-district areas before filing all the signatures together.

Cummings said today that the idea of filing two separate petitions now is being considered.

"We didn't anticipate this work to withdraw," he said.

Rome seeks rail restoration

"The State of Connecticut should move as quickly as possible to study re-institution of rail passenger service between Manchester and Hartford," State Senate Majority Leader Lewis B. Rome told a group of residents during a stop this morning at the Burr Corners Shopping Center.

Rome is seeking nomination for governor on the Republican ticket.

"We have the railroad tracks, we have the expertise and we have the passengers," Sen. Rome said.

Cummings runs again as Democratic chief

Ted Cummings, Manchester's Democratic town chairman since 1961, has announced that he will seek re-election.

"A lot of people have asked that I seek re-election. I owe it to them to try it again," he said.

After the November election, Cummings, who also is the state representative from the 12th Assembly District, hinted that he might give up one of the two political posts. He said at the time that he had to assess his obligations to the party, his job and his family.

Now, however, he has decided to run again for the chairmanship of the local Democrats.

"It's a decision that's kind of grown on me," he said, apparently referring to the requests that he continue as town chairman. No other candidates for the position have stepped forward yet.

The election for town chairmen in both parties will be held next month.

Two candidates are seeking the Republican party's chairmanship. Thomas Ferguson, the present GOP chairman, is seeking re-election and is being challenged by Scott Clendaniel, a local attorney who was the campaign manager for Carl Zinsser, a Republican member of the Board of Directors.

Cummings, whose second term as a state representative expires this year, said that he has not yet decided whether he will run again for that position.

Extra courthouses needed?

HARTFORD (UPI) — If Connecticut builds more courthouses, the number of plea-bargainings and crowded court dockets would be cut, Justice John P. Cotter said today.

Cotter, picked by Gov. Ella T. Grasso to replace Chief Justice Charles S. House who retires in April, was interviewed by the Legislature's Judiciary Committee today. The committee questioned Cotter for about 15 minutes in its deliberations on whether to give a favorable recommendation to the nomination.

Cotter, currently the chief court administrator, also said he is against blanket mandatory sentencing because it would "strait jacket judges." The issue is now before the Legislature.

Also interviewed today was Justice John A. Speziale. He has been picked to replace Cotter as chief court administrator.

Speziale said if his appointment is approved, he will work to "delegate many of the administrator's duties because I like to sit on as many Supreme Court cases as possible."

and Hartford and the Canal Line between Southern-Cheshire and New Haven.

The Hartford-Manchester run, is a high priority for action now, Rome said.

More than 50 people a day currently use the express buses between Burr Corners and Downtown Hartford. Light rail vehicles would not only pick up commuters at the end of the line, but could make intermediate stops in East Hartford, on their way to Hartford, and not have to contend with rush hour traffic.

In addition, with the new J.C. Penney warehouse being built in Manchester, hundreds of people who live in Hartford, or other towns west of the Connecticut River could take the train to work.

Rome said he understands that state transportation planners are looking at the Manchester line, but that feasibility studies are tied up in a total regional planning process that could take years.

Today's news summary

BONN, West Germany (UPI) — The dollar took a Valentine's Day pounding today against the world's major currencies and bankers attributed the slide to Treasury Secretary Michael Blumenthal's failure to persuade West Germany to stimulate its economy.

Blumenthal met Chancellor Helmut Schmidt Monday night in Bonn and made a new appeal to West Germany to spur its economy to help cut the record U.S. trade deficit and get the industrial West back on its feet.

CAIRO, Egypt (UPI) — President Anwar Sadat has returned home from an eight-nation tour aimed at drawing the United States deeper into Middle East peace negotiations and Egyptian newspapers said his mission was a success.

Sadat said he was "satisfied" with his trip, but cautioned his drive for peace was stalled over Israel's territorial claims. The influential daily Al-Ahram wondered if the Carter Administration could stand up to Israeli "blackmail."

In Israel, Prime Minister Menachem Begin said Israel was "hurt very deeply" by Secretary of State Cyrus Vance's condemnation of Jewish settlements in the Sinai, but welcomed U.S. mediation efforts to reconvene stalled peace talks.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Some 20,000 dams in the United States are located so that any failure would result in loss of life and appreciable property damage, the House Government Operations Committee said today.

The committee adopted a report calling for legislation to help states improve their dam safety programs and criticizing the administration and the Army Corps of Engineers.

There are some 50,000 dams in the country, and an additional 1,600 are being built every year, the report said, yet most of them have never been inspected.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.S. intelligence has determined that Soviet pilots are helping defend Cuba while Cuban airmen are aiding Ethiopia in its conflict with Somalia, it was reported today. There was no official comment on the reports which appeared in the Washington Post and New York Times.

It is believed to be the first time since the Cuban missile crisis 16 years ago that the Russian troops have taken a hand in the island's defense.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. appeals court in Washington has upheld a federal regulation requiring that ingredients be listed on the labels of all packaged cosmetics.

The Circuit Court of Appeals refused two to one, on a technicality, a request by the Independent Cosmetic Manufacturers and Distributors Inc. to overturn the Food and Drug Administration order.

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Lebanon's parliament today unanimously approved formation of a joint Lebanese-Syrian military tribunal to assess blame and punishment for last week's fighting, the worst since the civil war ended 15 months ago.

The proposed solution was aimed at preventing a recurrence of four days of fierce fighting between Syrian peacekeeping troops on one side and units of the Lebanese army and Christian rightist militiamen on the other.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An energy researcher charged today that inept political planning by the administration and lobbying by the energy industry have badly damaged the drive for energy conservation that flowered last spring.

Denis Hayes of Worldwatch Institute, a nonprofit research organization, said President Carter should recall his energy plan from Congress and start again because the conservation aims he originally proposed have been virtually eliminated.

CONCORD, N.H. (UPI) — Amtrak's only train in northern New England, the Montserrat, will be completely equipped with new passenger cars by the end of this month, despite uncertainty about the line's future route.

Now that my trip to Israel is just a memory (a pleasant memory at that) I think congratulations should go to Barbara Weinberg of Manchester, state director for the Friendship Force. It took many months of preparation to bring this trip about and the task of housing 425 visiting Israelis and a like number of American ambassadors in Israel I'm sure seemed insurmountable at times.

Develop Panama but keep canal

We have almost been persuaded that we should give up the Panama Canal — not now — but 22 years from now — at the turn of the century.

Before going along with the idea that we can bring peace and tranquility by this move, let us think in sober terms today of what an agreement of this kind really means:

President Carter's advocacy of the treaty does not answer America's question: in all honesty, the historic consequences of such a treaty are being invoked.

Does President Carter realize that in effect Great Britain relegated herself to a secondary power in the Mideast when she gave up the Suez Canal? Terms that meant bowing to world opinion, giving up what was rightfully hers to protect, because Russia had made the word "imperialism" sound like sin and evil, gained nothing.

Events have since proved that peace between Egypt and Israel was not in any way enhanced. Actually, the historic consequences of vacating the Mideast has resulted in chaos, both military and diplomatically.

Does President Carter believe that the act of promising to give up the Panama Canal would be any more successful than what history has proved at Suez?

Does President Carter, a great reader of books, not read history? Did England's Prime Minister Chamberlain buy "peace in our time," by giving in to Hitler when Poland was first over-run by the Luftwaffe?

Has any Great power, in the records of history, ever brought peace by giving away its rightful territory?

Are we about to give away the Panama Canal Zone which was honestly bought and paid for by the United States and through which was dug the great canal linking together the oceans of the earth, providing a path of commerce open to all nations?

And for what? Panama cries out, years after she signed a solemn agreement to cede control of the Canal Zone of the United States, that her country is split into two parts by the ten-mile zone occupied by the canal.

Let's give her another beautiful bridge — or two more bridges — to supplement the one we built near Balboa during the last decade. They also would rise high above the canal so that the tallest ship can pass under. Let's build her a parkway paralleling each side of the canal with on-ramps to each bridge, so that in no way will her land be divided.

Let's push forward vigorously with completion of the Pan American Highway, linked to these bridges so that all the nations of our Western Hemisphere can have access to all the land areas of the Americas while we in exchange continue our unrestricted access to all the oceans of the world. We grant all friendly nations freedom of the seas and freedom of the air.

Such a plan, properly conceived by top engineers, would not only be fair and just, but would be easily self-liquidating from the revenues produced.

The Senate of the United States will be voting on the treaty. The government representing all the citizens of our land faces a grave responsibility.

We believe in peaceful cooperation with other governments. We do not, however, believe in trying to "buy peace in our time" by selling our future down the river.

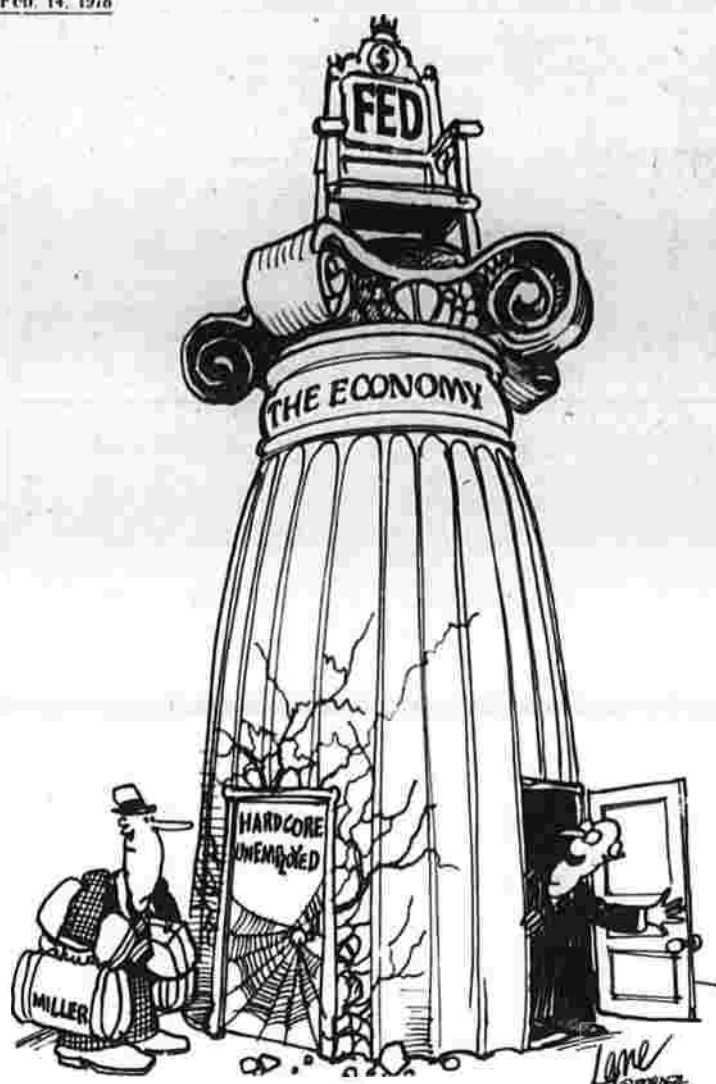

The day our flag, the flag of the United States of America, is hauled down from our own Canal Zone would be a sad day. We who believe in the Greatness of America will not acquiesce in dipping our colors to the enemies of freedom.

Thought

There is a lot of discussion in the church these days about a more personalized Christianity. Actually I have always regarded the faith to be something that has an intensely personal dimension. On varying occasions St. Paul referred to the Gospel as "the gospel of God" — the "gospel of Christ" and "My Gospel."

The latter indicates that the good news is truth that was internalized. Indeed it was something that he owned personally. To know God as St. Paul knew him is to have such a vital relationship with God that all of life becomes a reflection of his abiding presence.

Ideology and Issues

By ARNOLD SAWISLAK

WASHINGTON (UPI) — CBS and The New York Times are out with a new poll that shows 42 percent of Americans identify themselves as conservatives, a 10 percent increase since 1964.

That finding, which also showed 27 percent of the 1,599 adults polled in the middle of the road politically and 23 percent as liberal, would seem to verify reports that conservatism is enjoying a rebirth in this country.

Until you read the rest of the poll, the pollsters also asked the same people a series of specific questions about issues. The answers seemed to pose the question "With conservatives like that, who needs liberals?"

In responses from conservatives only, the pollsters found: —79 percent believed the government ought to help people get doctor and hospital care at low cost.

—70 percent believed the federal government should see to it that everyone who wants to work gets a job.

—A majority favored government restrictions on the sale of handguns.

—Two-to-one majorities favored sex education in the schools and government imposition and enforcement of safety standards for industry. (At the same time, two-thirds of the same conservatives said the government had gone too far in regulating business and interfering with free enterprise.)

The most specific issue conflicts the poll found were on government-paid abortions for poor women and the unrestricted sale of marijuana. Liberals favored both, conservatives opposed them.

These findings are not really surprising. Public opinion surveys for years have disclosed major gaps between the ideological labels people adopt and the opinions that are supposed to go with those labels.

Perhaps the best contemporary example of that phenomenon is the division of opinion on the Panama Canal treaties. Conservatives like Ronald Reagan and Sens. Jesse Helms and Bob Dole oppose the treaties, but conservatives like William Buckley and John Wayne Schlesinger, who joined the Carter administration as the president's chief staff advisor on energy matters and now is secretary of the newly created Department of Energy, was typically arrogant and insensitive on that day late last year.

The Capitol Hill meeting, never before publicized, was held in an unmarked room not far from the Senate floor. At the outset of the discussion, Sen. Abraham A. Ribicoff, D-Conn., warned that the administration might have to modify its energy proposals because there probably weren't enough votes to sustain the president's package in the Senate.

Schlesinger's caustic rejoinder: "Even Long's detractors — and they are legion — know that an end run around the wily, influential legislator must be done with finesse, not with Schlesinger's blatant contempt for the committee."

At another point during the meeting, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy

Keep things straight

To the editor: I don't really like to respond directly to comments made by 8th District supporters, but some miss the mark so badly that I must reply to keep things straight.

The committee for One Manchester is acting under a law that gives citizens the right to initiate something that their own government won't undertake. The law gives citizens the right to petition for consolidation; to establish a commission to hear and weigh arguments, for and against; and finally to put the question of consolidation of the Town and 8th District Fire and Sewer departments to vote by all the people of the town.

The law under which we act gives everyone their say. The law was enacted for just the purpose of allowing citizens to act by having petitions circulated and signed. A person asked to sign can make up their own mind whether to sign or not just as eventually the entire town will have its voice heard, yes or no, in a referendum on the question. This process is as American as apple pie and baseball. It's fair and square.

Now when the 8th District recently tried to expand the area it serves for fire and sewer service, its volunteer firemen participated in the effort. Nobody objected to that very much.

Of course, when the final vote came, in the 8th District, on the expansion, even the State Election Committee thought that placing the voting machines in their firehouse was inappropriate as was the fact that their uniformed firemen were passing out political fliers in violation of the 1975 rule on political handouts. But as far as circulating a petition goes, a fireman, town or district, is a first class citizen like anyone else. As long as he petitions on his own time there should be no complaints and every person is petitioning on their own time who is involved with the Committee for One Manchester.

We are sticking to the rule book and suggest that others do the same, in order to keep our citizens properly and accurately informed on the issue of the Consolidation of Manchester's two governments.

Didn't lose tempers

To the editor: As an occasional critic of Manchester's bureaucrats, employees, and services, it gives me great pleasure to write this letter of praise.

To all employees of the town and to the private contractors who work in operated our equipment for 18 hours during this last storm and traveled many of Manchester's ways and byways. At no time did I hear on the radio of any people working for the town who lost their tempers . . . and tempers can get short when you are pushed like this. At no time did I see any intentional mess or sloppy plowing by any of Manchester's employees or contractors.

Again may I say thank you. Walter Joyner proclaimed: "We do not need the support of (the Senate) Finance Committee." Later in the discussion, he explained what he had in mind: Various national security statutes give the president extraordinary power to unilaterally impose such taxes by executive fiat.

The enormity of Schlesinger's political miscalculation — and its adverse impact on the senators present — cannot be overstated. First, he invoked the image of a heavy-handed White House invoking emergency powers supposedly reserved for major international crises to achieve what it couldn't get through legislation.

Second, Schlesinger's intemperate remark could be construed only as an insult to the two Finance Committee members present in the room. Sens. Ribicoff and William D. Hathaway, D-Maine. Finally, Schlesinger appeared totally oblivious to political reality in the Senate. The Finance Committee is one of its most important, and its chairman, Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., is one of Congress' craftiest, most powerful men, certain to be infuriated by such a scheme.

Even Long's detractors — and they are legion — know that an end run around the wily, influential legislator must be done with finesse, not with Schlesinger's blatant contempt for the committee.

Unit studies crisis needs

The Manchester Community Services Council has established a task force to evaluate how emergency needs, such as social, financial and health, are being met in town.

The primary focus of the group, known as the Crisis Intervention Response Task Force, will be to identify what emergency services are needed immediately to emergency needs and which offer such services on weekends and afterwork hours.

Task force members Beth Marchel, Ethel Robb, Joy Van Cleef, Harriet Handley and Brenda Sylvain will be contacting local agencies to identify what emergency services are provided. The group then will explore what is missing in the area of crisis intervention response and make recommendations. Anyone with information that could aid this group in their study is asked to contact Brenda Sylvain at 648-5854, ext. 44 between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. or 648-7137 after 5 p.m.

Town makes good effort on polls for handicapped

Manchester, however, did equip machines with braille for the 1976 Presidential election.

Herb Stevenson, Democratic registrar of voters, said that there is some concern about the cost of requiring braille on voting machines. Another step Manchester has taken is to provide a wheelchair at each polling place on Election Day.

Stevenson said that the registrars office is lending the wheelchairs to schools in town so that they can be used more than one day during the year.

There may be proposals before the State Legislature to consider requiring certain steps to assist the handicapped in voting. Some towns that responded to the study questionnaire said that handicapped voters use absentee ballots, a step that they feel meets the requirements of the person to vote.

This feeling, however, doesn't seem to prevail in Manchester. "I think we're really the only town that's meeting all the criteria (for handicapped voters)," Stevenson said.

Fred Peck, Republican registrar of voters, said that he is pleased with the town's work to help the handicapped vote.

"I'm sure Herb will continue his efforts, and I'll continue to push for braille," Peck said. Peck has been a strong supporter of braille on voting machines.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I just saw you on the Phil Donahue show, and I must say I think you are dead wrong to say that children do not have to be whipped to learn right from wrong.

I was one of 10 kids, and believe me, if our father didn't take us out to the woodshed when we lied or stole or even talked back to him, we never would have grown up to be honest, decent, law-abiding citizens. (Only one of us ever went to jail, and one out of 10 isn't bad.)

I raised my kids the same way, and it's not always pleasant to have to whip a kid with a belt. But if he knows what he's getting whipped for, he's not likely to do it again.

It's the results that count, Abby, and kids don't understand anything but a good firm hand, so please don't go on television anymore and say that "violence begets violence and when you hit a kid it just means you've run out of words. Sign this

A MAN FROM OMAHA

DEAR MAN: My stand on hitting children brought an amazing number of letters from those who saw me on the Phil Donahue show, but the majority of letters were in agreement with me. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: I am the mother of two small boys, and when the question of spanking came up on the Phil Donahue show and you said you were AGAINST hitting children, I was very happy.

I was spanked (they were more like beatings) by my mother when I was a child, and I can remember hating her and feeling guilty because I knew that children are supposed to love their parents.

I am still trying to work out my hang-ups from that, and I am trying hard not to repeat it with my children.

I am a lay-therapist to abusive parents, and I learned in my training that most parents who abuse their children were once themselves abused by their parents, and the cycle goes on and on.

With the Parents Anonymous program, we hope that cycle of child-beating will be physically abusing children only teaches them to fear, hate and desire to get even. My hat is off to you!

COLORADO MOTHER

DEAR ABBY: There is no reason for doctors' waiting rooms to be constantly crowded with patients who sit for hours because they're afraid if they leave for a few minutes they'll lose their turn.

In Sweden they give numbers to patients as they come in. If your number is, say, 30, you know you have time to go out and do something else.

Why don't they do that here?

T.C.

DEAR T.C.: They do. In bakeries. (Smart cookies?)

If you feel left out and lonely, or wish you knew how to get people to like you, my new booklet, "How To Be Popular: You're Never Too Young or Too Old," is for you. Send $1 along with a long, self-addressed, stamped ($4 cents) envelope to Abby, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Your judgment is normally based on conclusions arrived at after serious, sober thought. Under pressure today you may make a rash move based on fear or pity.

CANCER (Jan. 20-July 22) Despite your sense of security, you could encounter someone today who'll make you feel poor in accomplishments. You may humble yourself accordingly.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Even though you'd like to, it's very difficult to compliment others. Rather than praise, you'll probably be sarcastic today.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) There's something you want to accomplish that seems to be no problem today. It, however, you find opposition you'll probably back off.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Today you could be comfortable where people are familiar with your credentials. Where your ability is unknown, you will be very insecure.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 22) Being covetous of another's windfall will lead to sorrow today. Aspire only to what is rightfully yours if you want happiness.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 22) You tend to have somewhat of a Pollyannish view of things today. If you're forced to decide on cold, hard facts it could ruffle you a bit.

This would have given South his ninth trick with the jack. However, East had played the nine on the first diamond lead and the three spot on the club lead.

On most occasions the nine play would show strength and the three play weakness. This time the nine couldn't be strength as West knew that East was showing an even number of diamonds. It was most unlikely that he held just two so it had to be four. West cashed his ace of diamonds, got out with a black card, avoided the end play and held South to just eight tricks.

Ask the Experts

A Colorado reader says he was criticized for raising his partner's opening three-spade bid to four. He held:

♠ A x x
♥ A x x x
♦ A x x
♣ x x x

North really should have passed two notrump. But when clubs broke 3-3, South would have made his contract except for perfect defense.

He took East's queen of hearts with his ace; led a diamond to dummy's 10 and returned a club to his nine. West was in with the 10.

Had West shifted to a spade or led a club, South would have cashed four clubs and two spades to come to eight tricks. Then he would have thrown West in with the ace of diamonds to force West to lead a heart.

Cheney Tech expansion will begin next summer

If all goes well, the expansion program at Howell Cheney Regional Vocational Technical School will begin sometime next summer. John Garofalo, school director, said today. He met today with representatives from the State Division of Vocational Education to discuss plans which will be finalized before presentation to Fletcher Thompson Inc. of Bridgeport, architects.
Garofalo said the architect should have the final presentation ready for the State Public Works Department about March 1.
The expansion will add about 94,000 square feet to the existing building. The approximate $4 million addition will provide a second floor addition over existing classrooms, a new shop wing, parking area expansion, and expansion of the gym and cafeteria.
The update on building plans at the school are timely, with Vocational Education Week being observed this week through Saturday in Connecticut.

New snow spares Northeast

United Press International
A snowstorm moderate by Winter of '78 standards today slowed rush hour traffic, closed some schools and delayed opening of others in the Middle Atlantic states.
Chicago approached a record for the winter season. Light snow overnight and during the forenoon boosted the city's snowfall to 75.8 inches, less than 1 1/2 inches short of the record of 77 inches set in the 1968-70 winter.
Snow appeared to be tapering off in New York City after 2.6 inches fell by 8 a.m. The snow in the East was not only much lighter but generally wetter than that dropped by two previous winter storms, and people did not have to cope with deep drifts.
The storm Monday battered the midlands with up to 20 inches of snow and drifts 5 to 6 feet deep that closed schools, offices and factories. Many schools remained closed in southern Iowa for the second day in a row. Farmers drove tractors into Hamburg, Iowa, to help clear blocked streets.

At least four deaths were blamed on the snows.
Four of six persons aboard a twin-engine private plane were killed Monday night when the pilot crashed into marshy woods while trying to set down in a fog at Raleigh-Durham Airport in North Carolina.
But there were fewer reports of traffic accidents or stranded motorists than in other sections of the nation hit by ferocious storms this winter.
"They're just dumping fate to get out under these conditions for anything other than an emergency," said Kansas Highway Patrolman Walter Wilson in Topeka.

Educators schedule grievance hearing

The Manchester Board of Education will begin tonight's regular meeting with a grievance hearing at 7 in the board room at 45 N. School St.
The grievance in behalf of industrial arts teachers will be presented by the local representatives of the American Federation of Teachers. The grievance concerns some extra duty assignments of the teachers. School Superintendent James P. Kennedy said.
The regular agenda will begin at 8 and most of the meeting is expected to include a discussion by board members of the budget for the 1978-79 school year. The board will make its formal adoption of the budget tonight. No major changes in the $15.8 million proposed by superintendent's budget are expected; however, board members have indicated a preference for more teachers on the elementary school level in such areas as art, physical education, music and library.
Kennedy will announce appointments to the selection committee for the Manchester High School principal, including PTA representatives, administrators and teachers. Board representatives will also be made tonight for the committee.

Kennedy will also outline the plans for the new long-range planning committee which will include about 25 representatives from the community at-large. Kennedy said that several members from a previous committee which dealt with declining school enrollments have expressed an interest in serving on the committee which is expected to organize this spring.

Directors face fund decisions

The Manchester Board of Directors meets tonight and is expected to consider the town's proposed spending of federal Community Development funds for the 1978-79 fiscal year. The meeting is at 8 o'clock in the Municipal Building.
The Citizens Advisory Committee has developed a preliminary plan for the distribution of the program funds, including $216,000 for a senior centers center, a neighborhood center or both. Funding also has been proposed for dental clinic equipment, a part-time employee for the Human Relations Commission and improvements at Charter Oak Park.
The board also may consider the purchase of nine-tenths of an acre of property that is adjacent to the proposed site of a 100-unit housing project for the elderly.
The project has been proposed for the South United Methodist Church's Hartford Road campus. The nine-tenths of an acre parcel is needed for the project, but the town has the first right of refusal on the land.
Two men, Robert Von Deck and Robert Samuelson, who both are opponents of the planned housing last week asked the town to consider buying the parcel to help improve drainage in the downtown area.
Public hearing items that were heard last week also may be acted on tonight. These include an ordinance to permit carnivals for non-profit, fraternal and civic organizations — a proposal that drew support last week — a transfer of $125,000 to the Water Department operating budget, and funding for proposed Comprehensive Employment Training Act programs.

League backs consolidation again

The League of Women Voters of Manchester Monday announced its support for consolidation. The announcement reaffirms the stand that the league has taken for more than 25 years.
Rebecca Janenda, president of the local organization, said. "In recent discussions of the issue, league members have seen no reason to alter our position and have again concluded that in the long run all citizens of the town would benefit from the unification of town services."
Consolidation would combine the Eight Utilities District with the Town of Manchester. Both of the bodies now have separate fire departments and separate sewer authority. A move toward a referendum on consolidation is being organized by the Committee for One Manchester, which recently formed.
The local league established a study committee, headed by Eileen Stern, to review the consolidation proposal.

Clothes near heater cause of fatal fire
Fire officials in Ludlow, Vt., say clothing left too close to an electric heater may have caused the blaze which killed a Manchester boy and two other Connecticut children Saturday night.
Medical officials ruled Monday that Sean Prescott of Manchester, his cousin, Jamie Cannon of Canton, and Kris Lombardi of Guilford died of asphyxia and smoke inhalation.
Also injured in the fire which destroyed a lakefront cottage in Ludlow, Vt., were Erin Prescott, sister of Sean; Kim Lander and Carime Lander of Tolland, and Kerri Lombardi, sister of one of the victims.
Police said the seven children were asleep in a first-story bedroom when they were awakened by fire engulfing the hallway.
The four children who escaped smashed a window and jumped to safety.

Dodd: Mideast peace won't come overnight

By BARBARA RICHMOND

Herald Reporter
The possibility of a "lasting and endurable" peace in the Mideast conflict is a long, long way off, U.S. Rep. Christopher Dodd (D-Conn.) said Monday night.

Dodd, who recently returned from a 19-day trip to the Mideast during which he covered 10,000 miles and visited five countries, was visiting at the home of Lester Baum, chairman of the Vernon Democratic Town Committee.

Dodd was visibly impressed with what he saw during those 19 days and said he feels he has a lot to learn about those countries, but he had a 100 percent more than he did before he went. Enough, he said, to pique his curiosity to learn a lot more.

He said the words "lasting and endurable" are synonymous with peace. He said the people in the Mideast have very, very deep-rooted emotions and they don't look for any immediate solution that would be lasting and durable.

He said he thinks that the fact that Anwar Sadat, Egyptian president, took the initiative and went to the Mideast is necessary, that the Israelis will agree to everything he is asking them to do.

Dodd said, "It is unique for us to see the Arabs playing games we usually play ourselves." He said he doesn't question Sadat's motives but he feels it would be unrealistic to think this would lead to a "lasting and endurable" peace.

Dodd is deeply concerned about the United States' position in this entire matter. He said he thinks when Sadat went to the Mideast, he was getting frustrated about what the United States is doing.

Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin contents the destruction of Israel.

Dodd thinks the United States is taking too strong a part in the matter. He feels that when Sadat made his move this country should have stepped back and allowed Sadat and the Israelis to talk things over for themselves.

But that's water over the dam now. We are already co-equal partners with Sadat and the Israelis," Dodd said. He said peace won't happen overnight and questioned if there is a breakdown in negotiations on whose shoulders the burden would rest.

He said many people see the United States as being in the position of holding the cards and could bring pressure to bear. He said they are going to blame the United States because they think "we didn't do what we should have." But, he added, he doesn't think this country has that kind of clout over there. He said this country is in a very precarious position.

Dodd feels the United States shouldn't be allowing itself to take such an "up front" role in the matter. He feels President Carter and Secretary of State Cyrus Vance could handle the matter more quietly.

"I think the United States should step back but it may be too late now. I think either we like it or not, we're in it up to our eyeballs," the Connecticut congressman said.

He added, "Everytime we or the United Nations have tried to impose peace settlements, they've broken down." He feels this country should be helped by not co-equal partners.

The list of people he talked with reads like the "Who's Who" of the Mideast, the Shah of Iran, King Hussein of Jordan, Moshe Dayan, Menachem Begin, and so on.

A meeting with Yasser Arafat, of the PLO with several of the U.S. delegation, led to some controversy.

among Dodd's constituents who felt they didn't do the right thing. Dodd said the United States Representative from Illinois arranged the meeting and shortly afterwards Arafat gave out press releases greatly exaggerating the event and immediately other Arabs asked if the meeting was approved by the State Department. Dodd said the meeting complemented their mission in terms of gathering information.

Another exciting part of the trip was a dinner meeting with five Palestinian mayors, Dodd said. He chuckled when he said the restaurant where they met was across the street from the site of the birth of Christ and the name of the restaurant was "The Red Horse Cafe." He said it was totally incongruous, almost sacrilegious.

He said all of the mayors had an excellent command of English and were very well informed. He was impressed with their concerns for peace.

Publicly the mayors said the PLO, of which Arafat is the titular head, is the legitimate representative of the people, but after the meeting two of the mayors told Dodd they have no desire to have the PLO represent them. They said they do not have the courage to admit that they feel they are being used.

"I am thoroughly and totally convinced that everyone in the Mideast wants peace ... I'm convinced Sadat wants a kind of a lasting and endurable peace is a long way off, it's not going to happen overnight. I think expectations have been falsely raised," Dodd said.

For Dodd, who is a Catholic, being in a hearing that is so full of people who have been talking about peace is a whole new feeling to him. He said he had been in church after he returned it gave him a new feeling to know that three days before he had stood in places that were being talked about.

At 9 p.m. the commission will hold a public meeting on a site plan for the Savings Bank of Tolland, which is building a branch at Routes 31 and 44A. The Town Council has recommended a drainage alternative that would require the bank to provide on-site water disposal without using the town right of way.

The PZC may reach a decision on the application of Trowbridge Homes for a three-lot subdivision on Richmond Road. At a public meeting last month, residents of the area expressed fears that the third parcel, which the developer has stated for reserved land, may be built upon at a later date.

Also on the commission agenda is a discussion of the group's budget proposal for the upcoming fiscal year. Line items are expected to be much the same as the current year's budget.

The commission will consider a referral from the Town Council on the proposal of the Salvation Army Land Purchase Study Committee for a three-lot subdivision on 76 acres of lake area property being offered by the Army for $375,000. Town Planner Gregory Padick is expected to meet with Richard Bresault, authority chair, later this week to discuss a facilities plan that has been prepared by the town's engineering firm, Griswold and Fuss.

Committees to meet
Both the Coventry Republican and Democratic Town Committees will be meeting tonight at 8 p.m. at the Town Hall.

The Republicans are holding a special meeting because last Tuesday's regular meeting had to be canceled due to weather conditions. They are expected to vote out details for a Lincoln Day Dinner Saturday at 6:30 p.m. at St. Mary's.

The Democrats will hear reports from members of the town boards and commissions. They will also work on a revision of their local rules being prepared by a subcommittee headed by George Bolduc Jr.

The South Windsor Sewer Commission will meet tonight at 8 in the Town Hall.

Included on the agenda will be discussion of revised cost estimates of new sewer extensions

The jury has also heard an assistant state medical examiner say he set Dawn's time of death without personally examining the dead girl's body. Dr. Edwin Baden said he was forced to pronounce Dawn dead while standing in the dark atop the foundation's wall because state police wouldn't allow him near the body.

The pathologist who conducted the autopsy, Dr. Fred Doyle, testified he threw out evidence he used to set her time of death because no one asked him for it and there wasn't enough room in a hospital refrigerator.

School budget is due tonight

Bolton

Bolton's proposed Board of Education budget for 1978-79 will be presented and discussed at a public forum Thursday at 8 p.m. at the Bolton Elementary School all-purpose room.

The event had been postponed because of inclement weather. The proposed budget of $1,517,568 represents a 6.4 percent increase, $91,062, over this year's $2,426,506 school board budget.

School Superintendent Raymond Allen said parents and townspeople who have questions about the budget, or who would like to make recommendations to the budget committee are urged to attend the meeting.

The forum is being sponsored by the Bolton Elementary Center School Parent Teacher Organization, Bolton High School parent's advisory group and the Board of Education.

Library programs
The Friends of the Library has tentatively scheduled a variety of programs for the year.

The programs include a Charlie Chaplain movie, a bus trip to Concord, Mass., a book review, a Christmas program, a slide show and guest speakers.

There will also be several children's programs. All events are open to the public.

An exhibit honoring the Boy Scouts of America is on display at the library. The displays change periodically.

The Friends of the Library sponsors the sale of used books throughout the year. A variety of books is on sale each day at the library.

The mailbag usually brings a lot of junk mail to the sports desk. Most of it is discarded as collegiate and professional teams' publicity directors forward reams and reams of copy like there is no tomorrow.

And when you do forward a request, like to certain colleges a white back, you get answers like we don't handle that or no response at all. Then these schools wonder why they can only get one youngster from the area. Face it—publicity is the name of the game.

Takes first PGA title

Experience wins for Rogers
PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (UPI) — Bill Rogers, 26, an energetic and personable former University of Houston All-American, showed what experience can be worth on the PGA Tour Monday.

It was worth exactly $45,000 as Rogers, in his fourth year on the tour, refused to buckle under to the pressure and kept leading the charge in the final round of the weather-delayed Bob Hope Desert Classic.

Rogers shot a 3-under-par 69 and that gave him a 339 total for a 2-stroke decision over veteran Jerry McGee.

"I didn't know how to handle things before," admitted the winner. "But I have a lot more self confidence and a lot more self control now, and I believe in my golf game. I'm a lot stronger golfer mentally than I was a year ago, and I think I showed that today."

A slender 6-foot 145-pounder from Texas, Rogers has won only one professional tournament but he has a feeling of total elation and total confidence then.

Rogers' victory was worth $45,000 and that gave him $61,892 for the year for the third place on the money list behind Tom Watson with $103,181 and Hubert Green with $63,422.

"I'm very excited, and I'm very happy," Rogers said. "Winning is what you strive for out here. Winning is what it's all about."

While Rogers put together a 69

after he shanked a sand wedge.

Instead, he used the same club to knock in a 70-foot chip shot and keep a 3-shot lead over McGee, 34, playing in the same threesome with him.

"I was really high when Bill shanked that shot," McGee said, "but my stomach did a complete turnaround when he made the next one."

"I don't doubt that one was the turning point of the match," Rogers agreed, saying, "I'm not going to say I knew I had the tournament won when the chip shot went in, but I had a feeling of total elation and total confidence then."

Rogers' victory was worth $45,000 and that gave him $61,892 for the year for the third place on the money list behind Tom Watson with $103,181 and Hubert Green with $63,422.

Rogers entered in the $200,000 Los Angeles Open that begins at the Riviera Country Club Thursday. He's played in all six tournaments this year.

Rex Caldwell, came in with a 6-under 66 to grab fourth place, at 218 under par over Watson, pro golfer's No. 1 money winner last year and a two-time winner this year. Watson had a 71 for 346.

The last round of the Hope was played in intermittent rain and in 56-degree weather, but Rogers didn't seem to notice.

Second-half rally sends MCC reeling

Undermanned Greater Hartford Community College allowed Manchester Community College only eight second-half points en route to a 64-46 upset win in CCAA basketball action last night at East Catholic.

The Cougars drop to 6-4 in league play, 8-11 overall with the setback. MCC's next tilt is Wednesday night, a makeup game against Eastern, at Middlesex Community College at East Catholic at 9:30.

Greater Hartford, with only six players and one foul, fell behind the straight Manchester in the second half. The visitors, 2-10 in the league and 2-12 overall, outscored the Cougars the last 10 minutes, 20-2 to take the lead.

Robert James and Daryl Turner pace the winners with 16 and 14 points respectively while Bruce LaDoyt had 12 markers and Steve Zocco and John 210 to apiece for MCC.

Council praises efforts to clean up after storm

South Windsor

The South Windsor Town Council has expressed appreciation to the local Police, Fire and Public Works Departments for their efforts in cleaning up the town during the recent Storm Larry.

Mayor Nancy Callin said, "Thanks also go to the residents who volunteered 26 four-wheel drive vehicles and 14 snow mobiles."

Residents volunteering transportation completed 20 missions throughout town during the storm.

Public works Director Allan Young was commended for the "rapid removal of the snow from local streets following the storm."

"The Town Council extends special appreciation to town employees for their devotion to duty during Storm Larry," said Mayor Callin.

The town is expected to seek reimbursement from the state on the cost of hiring three private contractors to help with snow removal.

Town Manager Paul Talbot said that $12,600 is available in funds from the Connecticut Department of Transportation and that the state will reimburse the town for 75 percent of the cost for snow removal.

South Windsor has exceeded its snow removal budget and money from public works accounts with any type of balance have been transferred to the snow budget.

Much of the budget funds went for overtime pay for the crews, gasoline and plow blades. Talbot is expected to present his report to the Town Council at its next meeting.

The South Windsor Planning and Zoning Commission will hold a public hearing tonight at 8 in the Town Hall Council Chambers to consider the following applications:

Application of the Town of Manchester for a site plan and development for relocation of Pleasant Valley Road, near the Manchester town line, in conjunction with the proposed Manchester Industrial Park.

Application of Allerton Construction Co., Essex, for a some change of plan from R-1 to A-30 on property consisting of 19.5 acres near the intersection of Sand Hill Road and Ellington Road.

Windham girls top Manchester

Going down to its 12th defeat in 18 outings yesterday was the Manchester High girls' basketball team, 51-43, to Windham High at Clarke Arena.

The Indians wind up regular season play Wednesday at Hartford High in a makeup tilt at 8 o'clock.

Windham, now 5-12, took a 25-12 lead at the half after the clubs were deadlocked at 8-8 after one quarter.

The Whippets stretched the margin to 37-25 after three periods with Manchester pulling within five points in the final stanza but no closer.

Tren Morera and Dawn Rensen paced Windham with 24 and 17 points respectively. Sophomore Liz Neubelt pumped in 18 points to lead the Indians.

Robin Gustafson's field goal shooting kept Manchester close in the fourth quarter.

Penney clinches CCIL title

By BILL McAVOY
Correspondent

With Lindsay James hitting for 18 second-half points, Penney High clinched the Central Connecticut Interscholastic League (CCIL) basketball title with a 46-37 win over Hall last night in East Hartford.

The Black Knights stand 14-2 in the league with two games left. Their lead is three games ensuring a second consecutive title. Penney shared the 1976-77 crown with Wethersfield and Manchester.

Penney, 16-2 overall, has a date at Enfield tonight. Hall slips to 9-7 in the league and 10-8 overall.

The visiting Warriors opened the contest with a four-corners offense, trying to pull Penney out of its zone. It succeeded somewhat because the warriors led 10-9 after one quarter.

The second stanza was scoreless the first 2:16 until Kevin Grady fed 6-5 center Mike Kononchik for a layup. The pair combined for a hoop a minute later and James hit for a jumper with five seconds left. Hall was held to only two Joe Glover charity tosses for a 15-12 Penney advantage at the half.

James, held in check by a box-and-one Warrior defense, exploded in the third quarter against a man-for-man defensive alignment. He hit for 11 points including a 20-foot jumper at the buzzer for a 33-22 Knight edge.

After an opening jumper by Glover, James hit two consecutive hoops from outside for a 37-24 lead. Hall was able to get the ball inside for a couple of buckets but the Knights canned 7 free throws down the stretch to clinch the victory — and league crown.

James ended up with game high totals of 22 points and 12 rebounds. Carl Guzzardi had 7 points. Bill Lee and Glover paced Hall with 14 and 12 markers respectively.

Penney (16) James 8-6-22, Grady 1-0-2, Kononchik 9-4-8, Guzzardi 5-7, Burns 1-4-4, Picard 1-1-3, Falvey 0-0-0. Totals 17-12-46.

Hall (37) Konofal 1-3-5, Lee 5-2-14, Gordon 2-0-4, Blumenthal 0-0-0, Glover 5-2-12, Scharin 1-0-2, McCann 0-0-0. Totals 15-17-37.

EHEA head supports Carter idea

A proposal by President Jimmy Carter to give cabinet-level status for a Department of Education has met with the favor of Jean H. McEvers, president of the East Hartford Education Association.

"In view of the recent pressures in the East Hartford school system to cut back indiscriminately, and without planning in any way on arbitrary numbers of certified teaching personnel, with no concern for specific programs or the increased need to meet individual student problems, it is indeed encouraging to have our president give the cause of education this kind of top-level support," Mrs. McEvers said. She contends that teachers and students have been buried too long in the "giant Health, Education, and Welfare bureaucracy."

She said a separate department of education will establish education as a national priority, as citizens have wanted it to be; permit better and more effective use of federal dollars for education; and open discussion for the first time in the nation's history on an education policy for this country.

The president made a campaign promise to help education and to increase opportunity for the average person in this democracy.

The proposal for giving cabinet-level status was made during the president's recent State of the Union message.

Mrs. McEvers said the creation of an education department has wide support from national PTAs and education associations, and other school organizations.

The National Education Association was responsible for introduction of a bill in 1966 that led to the creation of the first department of education in 1987. This department never had cabinet status.

Re-emphasizing what the National Education Association president, John Ryor, said, Mrs. McEvers said, "It may be as long as two years before legislation is enacted by Congress. However, with the substantial support we already have in Congress, the endorsement of President Carter, and the continued efforts of teachers in the national association, we will finally see education become a priority in America through the establishment of a separate Department of Education."

East Hartford bulletin board

Backs rebuilding
The Board of Directors of the East Hartford Chamber of Commerce, at a recent meeting, unanimously adopted resolution in support of reconstruction and expansion of the coliseum at the Hartford Civic Center.

The coliseum collapsed during a major snow storm in January. The board said that although the economic impact of this tragedy is immediately evident, there is no question that the ramifications of the loss will be felt throughout the region.

"The East Hartford business community is ready, willing, and able to offer assistance to insure that the coliseum is rebuilt at the earliest possible date," Thomas Westbrook, president of the chamber board said.

Budget workshop tonight

The Board of Education will take its first look at the 1978-79 school budget in a workshop session tonight at Penney High School.

The proposed budget of $23,234,967 is $2,251,532 more than last year's approved budget of $19,983,435.

In an effort to offer the best educational program to the children of East Hartford without too much spending, the board will review the budget item by item with department heads and principals before a final figure is OK'd.

The board is expected to hold several workshop sessions before it send the budget to the mayor in mid-March.

East Hartford joins lawsuit on arbitration

East Hartford is among eight towns, along with the Connecticut Conference of Municipalities, which filed final legal briefs in their court challenging the constitutionality of the state's two-year old compulsory binding arbitration law.

The briefs filed by the towns contend that the law violates both the state constitution and the due process clause of the 14th amendment to the U. S. Constitution.

The action is being heard in Hartford Superior Court by Judge Leo Parskey. All briefs and court proceedings have been completed and the parties are now awaiting Judge Parskey's decision. Another 72 of the state's 164 towns, are contributing to the costs of the CCM-coordinated suit.

The towns charge that the statute violates the section of the constitution which spells out the legislative power of the House and Senate, and also violates the section which limits arbitration to resolve legal disputes to the state courts.

"The towns' and cities' brief in the case says the binding arbitration law violates Article 3 of the constitution in four ways.

It says the legislature's delegation is not to an administrative agency but to private parties who cannot be held politically or otherwise responsible for their acts.

It also contends that the statute does not declare a legislative policy, establish standards for carrying out a declared legislative policy, nor does it lay out an intelligible principle to which the arbitrators must conform.

It says it makes no mention of the public interest, and the considerations it does list do not amount to a declaration in favor of the public interest.

Outside today
Occasional light snow ending this afternoon clearing tonight with lows in the teens. Mostly sunny Wednesday with highs 30 to 35. Outlook generally fair through Saturday. National weather map on page 5E.

Lastly the brief says it sets up no procedure which, by appeal or otherwise, provides for due consideration of both public interests and private rights.

The brief concludes that the delegation of legislative powers to arbitrators, rather than to an administrative agency, is "an impermissible delegation of legislative to private persons."

The plaintiffs claim there are sound reasons for believing that a constitution designed to set up a democratic, representative government, does not permit delegation of legislative or legislative-executive administrative power to private persons, at least those chosen as the arbitrators under the act.

They claim the binding arbitration statute also violates the constitution because it gives judicial power to arbitrators who are not part of the judicial department or magistracy.

"The arbitration law, in effect, sets up a labor court with jurisdiction over municipal labor relations," the plaintiffs say adding that this goes beyond the power given the legislature by the constitution to establish lower courts.

The CCM brief concludes that under the state constitution, the political questions inherent in setting the pay of municipal employees and determining their working conditions are to be decided by the "political power inherent in the people."

The group said that political power is, in the first instance, with the General Assembly. The group also contends that the statute is inconsistent with the government structure set up by the home rule provision of the state constitution under which the General Assembly is to give local governments legislative power over their own power and structures.
