Merger petitions certified by clerk

Petitions filed supporting a referendum question about consolidation have been certified with signatures well over the required number from both the Eighth Utilities District and nondistrict residents, Town Clerk Edward Tomkiel said today.

He said this morning that 1,083 signatures from the district and 2,428 from the rest of the town had been certified as of 9 a.m. The required numbers are 741 in the district and 2,068 in the non-district sections of town.

Tomkiel also said he expects more petitions to be turned into the town clerk's office.

He said that the final tabulations included removal of the names of almost 200 district residents who had signed the petition but then asked to have their names removed.

"All of the withdrawals have been subtracted, and there still is a sufficient number," Tomkiel said.

Meanwhile, the chairman of a district committee formed to oppose the consolidation move is considering the group's next steps, one of which might be to seek an injunction against further consolidation efforts.

Consolidation would combine the district with the Town of Manchester. The two bodies now have separate fire departments and sewer authority.

A group, called the Committee for One Manchester, was formed and began petitioning about a month ago to seek a townwide referendum question on the subject. Signatures are needed from 10 percent of the district residents and 10 percent of non-district residents in Manchester.

The district's committee opposing consolidation, Stop Tampering with the Eighth's American Liberties (STEAL), organized the effort to seek withdrawals from the petitions.

The next step to be taken by the group isn't certain, Robert Bletchman, its chairman, said.

Bletchman contacted the Connecticut Civil Liberties Union earlier this week about the matter and expects to hear from a representative of the organization this afternoon.

The CCLU might decide to investigate the matter and could take steps to seek an injunction if such an action seems proper, Bletchman said.

The CCLU was approached because of questions that district supporters had about the present approach to consolidation.

Bletchman and other district residents have said that the circulators of the petitions have misrepresented and misled many of the signers. Bletchman frequently has referred to the matter as one of "massive fraud."

District officials also questioned the approach that is being used to

Carter postpones coal strike move

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter is delaying intervention in the coal strike in hopes some members of the Bituminous Coal Operators Association can persuade the industry to accept the United Mine Workers' latest offer, government sources said today.

Carter probably will get an answer to this "last ditch" effort soon — by Saturday at the latest. Sources said if there is no agreement, he almost surely will order federal action of some sort to end the 81-day walkout that has curtailed power and sparked job layoffs in many areas.

Across the nation, striking miners were hurting just as much as citizens thrown out of work or starved for electricity by the 81-day-old coal strike — but few were ready to return to work without a favorable contract. An increasing threat of violence on the strikers' part turned the project of shipping coal Thursday from non-union fields in Wyoming and Montana into as clandestine a maneuver as a beefed-up rail force of 24 locomotives and 1,200 additional coal cars would allow.

In Ohio, where the Highway Patrol rode shotgun Thursday for 71 trucks toting non-union coal to utilities facing mandatory cutbacks, Gov. James Rhodes set up his own parley with Ohio coal companies, miners and utilities.

In Indiana, 6,000 employees at General Motors' Delco Electronics Division in Kokomo were laid off for one day to conserve dwindling power supplies. Chrysler Corp. last week laid off 600 workers at Kokomo.

The full impact of the strike was concentrated in the Midwest, but its lengthening shadow fell across the Northeast.

One generating station in Bow, N.H., was down to a scant five-day supply of coal and running at 50 percent capacity, but a Public Service Co. spokesman said the firm is buying power from the New England power pool to make up the difference.

New station bids said excellent

A second attempt at submitting bids on the renovations and addition project at the Manchester Police station has resulted in a bid well under the amount left in the federal funds.

Pre-designed Structures Inc. of Bloomfield is the apparent low bidder with a base bid of $524,700. The amount is about $74,500 below the $599,225 in funds available for the second phase of the building.

The original bids on the project, submitted in December, were $761,- 700 and above. The original bids were rejected by the Town Building Committee.

Richard Lawrence, architect, reworked the plans, including many of the renovations as deductible alternates. The entire second story of the addition was deleted from the second set of plans.

Lawrence said Thursday after the bids were opened, "The bids are excellent. When you're $3,000 apart on a half-million dollar bid, that's pretty good." There was less than $3,000 difference between the Bloomfield company's bid and the second-low bid of H.C. Tourtellotte Construction Co. of Tolland.

Because of low bid, Paul Phillips, Building Committee chairman said, "We recommend leaving everything in." The base bid includes the cost of eight deductible alternates amounting to $53,300 which would have been eliminated if the bid was too high, he said.

Phillips said several items which had been deleted from the second bid entirely may now be put back in such as carpeting, replacement of existing wooden windows, new lockers and fire extinguishing system.

The deductible alternates which can now be included in the project include toilet renovation to aid handicapped persons, plastic laminated woodwork and cabinets, metal doors and frames throughout the building, upgrading light fixtures, renovating the investigative offices, renovating the old court room, reroofing the old building and a new emergency generator which will serve the entire police station.

Phase I of the project, foundation and footings and site work for the new addition has been at a standstill because of the weather, but it is expected the second phase of the project can begin in April.

The building committee will meet March 7 at 7:30 p.m. to consider awarding the bid and additions to the project.

Canal pact vote still long way off

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate's debate over the Panama Canal treaties tapered off with the close of the week today, but a decision on the controversial pact is still a long way off.

A preliminary vote in the Senate has given supporters of the treaties some encouragement, although neither side is claiming certain victory at this point.

While the floor debate moved along at slow speed, members of the Senate Finance Committee were busy approving a plan to provide up to $500 in tax credits designed to ease the burden of school tuition costs.

The plan is contrary to a proposal from President Carter who wants to increase the amount of money available to students through educational grants. If the tax credit plan is approved by Congress, it immediately will face a court test because it includes direct federal aid for parochial school students.

A subcommittee of the House Ways and Means Committee turned its attention to recently approved increases in Social Security taxes and indicated future increases should be reconsidered.

The latest increase in Social Security taxes went into effect just two months ago and another hike is scheduled for next year, but the panel voted in favor of postponing the next increase. The recommendation now goes to the full Ways and Means Committee.

The government's supervision of the recent surge in home insulation projects was criticized by members of the House subcommittee on oversight and investigation.

Some insulation materials have been found to be fire hazards and the administration was criticized for encouraging Americans to buy insulation before ensuring the material was safe.

Another House subcommittee heard testimony on a bill that would make all presidential and White House staff documents property of the government and available to the public.

The legislation was opposed by Philip Buchen, a White House staffer during the Ford Administration. He said such a law would be an intrusion into the inner workings of the president's office.

The administration urged the Senate to ratify four human rights treaties, but the request ran into trouble with the Congressional Black Caucus. Spokesmen for the group said the continued imprisonment of the Wilmington 10 has scarred the United States' own human rights record.

Spokesmen for the nation's striking farmers testified before the Senate Agriculture Committee where they urged emergency action to improve income prospects for 1978 crops.

The farmers said they would accept delay in passage of a permanent price-boosing law if the emergency aid is provided.

Tons of sand and gravel

Earth movers and dump trucks sit at the site of the Town of Manchester gravel pit off Tolland Turnpike. The town has contracted to have material removed from near its border at the pit. The material then is being processed and the town expects to receive about 10,000 cubic yards of sand and 6,000 cubic yards of gravel. Jay Giles, director of public works, said. (Herald photo by Pinto)

Civil service overhaul urged

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Saying the present system frustrates good management and often violates merit principles, a panel of national business leaders today proposed a major overhaul of the federal civil service system.

Previously reform proposals have generally been turned aside, but the committee said such reforms now have a better chance of succeeding because of the public's concern about "the size, cost, and responsiveness of government."

The report was prepared by the program committee of the Committee for Economic Development, a non-profit research and educational group.

Many of the panel's recommendations parallel those being submitted to Congress by President Carter. The committee recommended decentralization of authority over personnel actions so that top government administrators can have more control over hiring, firing and promotions within their agencies.

"Under long-established civil service restraints, department and agency heads are severely handicapped by their inability to deploy manpower in ways which put the right person in the right job, at the right time, for the right reason," the report said.

The administrators are "frustrated by a protective system geared to preventing loss of jobs or acquired grade levels," the panel added.

The committee recommended abolishing the Civil Service Commission and replacing it with a new Office of Personnel Management in the Executive Department.

Summary

HARTFORD (UPI) — Proposals to reform Connecticut's liquor pricing structure have the support of Gov. Ella T. Grasso Thursday she endorsed a commission recommendation to eliminate retail and wholesale minimum markup laws. She also endorsed a plan to put a five-year moratorium on new package store permits.

Mrs. Grasso said she would veto a bill that would allow state payment of welfare abortions. Her comment apparently eliminates any chance the proposal will be enacted this year.

The governor is backing a proposed ban on throwaway beverage bottles and flip-top cans, but she won't say what she'd do if opponents get an alternative bill passed instead. The alternative, proposed by Sen. George Hannon, D-East Hartford, is "an absolute war on litter."

CAIRO, Egypt (UPI) — U.S. envoy Alfred Atherton met with President Anwar Sadat today on Egypt's counter-proposals for a joint declaration of Middle East peace principles and returned to Israel.

Egyptian officials said the future of the Palestinians and the extent of an Israeli troop withdrawal from occupied Arab lands are still the main points of contention between Israel and Egypt.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — Cuban exile extremists today claimed responsibility for an explosion which shattered windows and startled hundreds of guests at two hotels in suburban Miami Beach Thursday night.

The device was so powerful that "if anyone was in the area at the time of the explosion they would have been severely injured or killed," said Officer Jim Hanson of the Dade County Police bomb squad which said it is investigating the blast.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Only two of the nation's largest cities meet federal air pollution standards for smog, the Environmental Protection Agency reports.

The cities — Spokane, Wash., and Honolulu — are among the nation's 105 urban areas with populations greater than 200,000.

The EPA survey of 3,215 counties showed millions of Americans live in areas where air pollution exceeds federal standards. "A significant clean-up task remains," EPA conceded.

HARTFORD (UPI) — A state Department of Transportation report says more than half of the town bridges over railroads in Connecticut can't hold the legal minimum load of 7,300 pounds.

The survey, ordered by the 1977 Legislature, showed that 96 of the 174 bridges inspected could not hold the weight.

DOT officials said Thursday the bridge deficiencies are not a problem for passenger cars, but could be hazardous to heavier vehicles such as buses and emergency equipment.

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) — Senators representing New England's coastal states have sent Transportation Secretary Brock Adams a letter protesting plans to reduce the Coast Guard's Atlantic fleet by two cutters.

The Coast Guard last month announced plans to send the high performance cutter Sherman from Boston to the West Coast and decommission the cutter Duane, now based in Portland, Maine.

NEWPORT, R.I. (UPI) — A fleet of historic tall ships returns to Newport this summer for an American Sailing Training Association program which gives youths a chance to live and work aboard seagoing vessels.

ZBA to reaffirm votes

Manchester's Zoning Board of Appeals will get a rare opportunity to act twice on three applications it originally approved in January.

Last month's meeting was held on Monday, Jan. 16, the state holiday for observing Martin Luther King's birthday.

The next day, the secretary of state's office questioned whether any actions taken on the holiday would be valid. There has been no formal ruling from the state, but attorney Kevin O'Brien, counsel, has recommended that the ZBA rehear and act again on the items.

"It's suggested that we do it all over again. It's like Jan. 16 never existed," Alan Lamson, town planner, said.

Three items approved by the board on the holiday have been rescheduled for a meeting Monday night. They are a sign variance at 250 Spencer St. requested by Harold Basser, a variance for an antenna at 512 W. Middle Turnpike requested by J. Robert Suhr and a special exception for the conversion of a single-family house to a four-family house at 617 Center St. requested by Blanchard & Rossetto Construction Inc.

One item that was denied by the ZBA at the Jan. 16 meeting has not been rescheduled for the Monday meeting. That was a request from Lewellyn Pelletier for a special license at 134 Oakland St.

The ZBA also will hear five new items at its Monday meeting.

Baha'i planning celebration

The Manchester Baha'i Community will celebrate Ayyam-i-Ha, a time of hospitality, fellowship and service, with several activities from Feb. 25 through March 1.

Community member Rhoda Hussak is coordinating a food gathering drive for the Manchester Food Bank. The food bank is in need of such items as dry or canned milk, baby food, cereal, canned meat or peanut butter.

Persons interested in donating to the food bank may leave contributions at the Top Notch Supermarket in Manchester Saturday, The Formal Inn on Main Street Manchester and Gozzo's Service Center on Sullivan Avenue in South Windsor will accept food donations Saturday through March 1.

Community member Mary Ellen Carlson is coordinating the collection of old but usable books, magazines, games, clothing and other items to be donated to the Meadows Convalescent Home March 1. Persons interested in donating items may contact Mrs. Carlson at 647-9654.

A Baha'i children's class under the direction of June Burakas will sing for the patients at the Meadows Convalescent Home Sunday afternoon.

After the celebration of Ayyam-i-Ha, on March 2, the Baha'i will fast in the hours between sunrise and sunset until March 21, when the Baha'i New Year is celebrated.

Bird life is movie subject

Bird life along the Eastern seacoast will be the subject of the Manchester Land Trust's film program Wednesday, March 8, at 8 p.m. in the Martin School auditorium, Dartmouth Road.

Robert Strindberg of Westogue, Conn., wildlife photographer, filmmaker and teacher and competition judge, will narrate "Wings from Tip to Tip," a 75-minute color show which will include birds in their natural habitats from the Gaspé Peninsula in Canada to the Everglades National Park in Florida.

As in the highly popular "Secrets of the Wildlife World," the film presented by the Land Trust last November, woodpeckers (quality and quantity) will be among the natural players. Also included will be such rare species as razor-billed auklets, bitterns and amnkings.

Tickets may be obtained from any Land Trust member or by contacting the MICT Office, 257 E. Center St., 646-2223, by March 3. Admission for Land Trust member families is free. Rates are reduced for senior citizens and students. Refreshments will be served.

Gilbert & Sullivan group starts drive for patrons

The Manchester Gilbert & Sullivan Players have begun their patron's drive by mailing letters to all former patrons asking their support for the organization which is celebrating its 31st year this year with the production of "Ruddigore."

A patron subscription provides two tickets which may be used at any of the three performances, and provides preferred seating in the patron section and a listing in the program. A contributing patron receives four tickets, name and address in the program and preferred seating. Anyone wishing to become a new patron may contact Mrs. Janet Sterling, 649-6818.

For theatergoers who don't wish to become patrons, group tickets for 15 or more are available from Hank Poirier, 646-6235. Group purchases, with ticket discounts, may be made up of adult and student tickets for any of the three performances.

Regular tickets for adults and students through high school are available from all cast members. Also from Watkins Furniture Store on Main Street, Liggett Parkade Drug, Vernon Drug at Vernon Circle, and at the door.

"Ruddigore," which Gilbert & Sullivan intended as a burlesque of the old-fashioned English "meller drummer," will be presented at East Catholic High School auditorium March 16 at 7 p.m., and March 17 and 18 at 8 p.m.

The earlier curtain time on Thursday, the 16th, will enable more students and senior citizens to attend the opening night show.

Senior citizens presenting a Gold Card at the box office will also receive a discount price for any performance.

Hospital offers children's tour

Tours of the Manchester Memorial Hospital pediatric unit for children coming into the hospital, and their parents, are being conducted under the sponsorship of the hospital's child life department.

The tours will be held the second and fourth Wednesdays of each month at 4 p.m.

Support bloodmobile

Bloodmobiles are traditionally scheduled during the working day; the next one is March 7 at Concordia Lutheran Church on Pitkin Street, from 12:30 p.m. to 5:30 p.m.

Manchester business firms have a high level of commitment to blood donor drives; they encourage their employees to give blood.

It takes about an hour to donate that blood, and most Manchester firms have given their employees that time off.

has been encouraged by the board of directors of the Greater Manchester Chamber of Commerce. The chamber, in its monthly newsletter, will tell employers about coming bloodmobile visits.

We join with the chamber board in asking employers to re-examine their participation in the blood donor program.

We have a fine program in this state; Manchester has been a solid supporter of the bloodmobile; it should continue.

Cause for alarm

Sign of the economic times, law and order division:

One of the coming boom industries, according to one recent survey of business trends, is likely to be the manufacture of alarms — burglar alarms.

As a result of a continuing uptrend in crime rates, increased apprehension among homeowners or a combination of both, the present $97 million annual residential alarm market is expected to climb to more than $200 million by 1985.

In this case it will be literally true that business is so good it's a crime.

Taxpayer revolt sinks in

By MARTHA ANGLE and ROBERT WALTERS

WASHINGTON—(NEA)—Shaken by evidence of a mounting taxpayer revolt, Congress is scurrying back to the drawing board on Social Security financing.

Its members are belatedly realizing they made a dreadful political and economic mistake last year when they voted massive payroll tax increases to shore up an overloaded Social Security system.

And while the 1978 legislative calendar is too crowded to permit another go-round right away, Congress now seems likely to reopen the whole issue next year.

Barely two months have elapsed since the lawmakers, panicked by the approaching bankruptcy of some Social Security trust funds, rushed through a staggering series of payroll tax hikes expected to drain at least $185 billion from the pockets of wage earners and their employers over the next decade.

Congress deliberately postponed the effective date of the new tax hikes to January 1979 in hopes of escaping punishment for its action in this year's elections.

Now, however, it is becoming obvious that the payroll tax is overloaded. Key members of both reason. On Jan. 1, 1978, voters started feeling the pinch of a nasty jump in Social Security taxes already mandated by a previous law.

Every time House members and Senators venture home from the cloistered confines of Capitol Hill, they are greeted by howls of anguish from wage earners and businessmen enraged by the new increases.

And as the congressmen understand only too well, they ain't heard nothing yet. Under the law passed in December, payroll taxes will continue to climb — up, up — in the years ahead.

There is only one effective alternative to ever-higher payroll taxes — the use of general fund revenues, drawn from income taxes instead of the flat-rate payroll levy — to take up some of the load now carried by the Social Security trust funds.

Last year, both the House Ways and Means Committee and the Senate Finance Committee flatly rejected any resort to income taxes to finance programs now funded by matching payroll contributions from workers and employers.

It was, more than anything, a knee-jerk reflex. Payroll taxes were kept the system aloft in the past, and any change seemed threatening. It was easier to go with more of the same.

Now, however, it is becoming obvious that the payroll tax is overloaded. Key members of both

Open forum Against Sunday Sales

I was very disturbed about the article in the Feb. 20 Herald as regards Sunday liquor sales.

In pointing out that Manchester is "one of the few towns in the state that has such a ban" indicates to me how unique our town really is and that we should want to keep it that way. I think it is wonderful to be able to eat in any restaurant in our city and not feel intimidated by those who drink. While Mrs. Ferguson expresses that "we're not talking about people boozing it up," that does not mean that they won't, and of course will give them the opportunity to do just that in a "family" atmosphere.

If Mrs. Ferguson and Mr. Dias are really considering the matter in the sense of a family outing and especially Mother's Day (which conveniently is the next holiday to be celebrated), then think how nice it will be to celebrate without the influence or the presence of liquor. If liquor is that important, have a champagne celebration at home, where for one of the 52 days out of the year you'll not be driving on the same road as my family.

Sincerely yours,
Mrs. Joyce Perrett
44 Horace St.
Manchester, Ct.

Keep it out of Sunday

To the editor:
I have lived in this town since 1948 and I feel as though I have lived here all my life. In all this time there has been different ideas of the way the town should be run and the board of directors has always come out on top.

Now this question of liquor on Sundays in restaurants or grilles comes up again and I hope that the board of directors will again vote against it. There are too many people that would spoil it for others if it was approved.

Respectfully,
Carl R. Swanson

Why Sunday sales?

I find it extremely strange that out of a referendum that the town resident will weigh the balance of benefits and the losses.

Respectfully,
Mrs. Sally H. Phillips

Thoughts

"Love and anger"

The story of Cain and Abel happens every day, all around us, and frequently within us. It does not usually lead to murder, but it often leads to real rejection, broken relationships, and loneliness. Much of this can be changed. You and I can change how we handle our anger.

Why? To exemplify by concern at this time as to why the two directors, namely Vivian Ferguson and Bill Diana, should and would bring this back into view. I would like to ask each of them, "Why?"

Of course we have heard of the Islander. Who hasn't? We all read the papers. The Chinese New Year is the star promotion of Mrs. Vivian Ferguson. Her interest in this gala festivity is well known. As for Bill Diana, I can only ask, what for?

I've heard first hand years ago, Sunday is a family day. My interpretation then, and now, is a day at home with family.

Too much to ask? One day each week.

Why should the seventh day worked benefit a few owners and put the burden on many. Has the time come when we must stretch the $$ and workday to seven?

The burdened are not only those who work but those left behind on Sunday and stripped of a parent.

My thanks for allowing me freedom of expression and deep concern.

I certainly hope that if this should be taken responsibility for our anger rather than allowing ourselves to be controlled by it. We can understand what we are doing to ourselves and others. Then we may choose whether this is what we want to be doing or is this something we want to change.

acquire the West Bank in 1947 in the wake of the U.N. plan to create Israel.

Israel Shahak, a chemistry professor at Hebrew University, and himself a survivor of a Nazi concentration camp, however, said the Israeli settlements policy is reminiscent of restrictions once imposed on Jews in Europe.

Both adults and children in the settlements, he continued, are exploited by "unjust and unequal wages" constituting in effect "slave labor." He noted:

"If General MacArthur, after conquering Japan in 1945, would have denied of Japanese people for more than 10 years such rights instead of allowing establishment of democracy rather rapidly step-by-step, you would not have now a Japanese state which is as friendly to the United States as it is... You would have something very much worse, worse both for the Japanese people and for the United States."

Salim Tamari, a sociology professor at Barzeli University in the occupied territories, testified that all aspects of cultural expression, such as drama, literary magazines, and the press, "have been subject to extreme control by the Israelis." For example, dramatic scripts must be cleared through Israeli military censors. Some intellectuals and potential political leaders have been subjected to night arrests and interrogations, sudden deportations and extended imprisonment without trial, he said.

"Our workers are constructing houses for Israeli immigrants," said Tamari, "...often in land which has been confiscated from Arab owners." Later he added that these are "exclusively Jewish settlements where Arabs are allowed to build but are not allowed to settle at all."

As this testimony suggests, the Israeli settlements policy has even divided Jews in Israel — and most certainly Jews in America. It flies in the face of the principle of self-determination, which is the only morally acceptable norm of international behavior.

If Menachem Begin truly wants peace, it is clear he must make substantial concessions on his hard-line settlements policy.

Most people know we make fine passenger cars, but most people don't know that American Motors also makes the famous 4-wheel drive Jeep. From wandering off the beaten path to cruising the super highways, we've got what it takes to get you there in style and in comfort!

WAGONER. Here's the ultimate in 4-wheel drive. Some people like to rough it and some people don't. So we've combined luxury with tough performance.

CONCORD D/L. The D/L stands for "deluxe," that's the Concord in a word. Our luxury compact 2 door, 4 door and wagon give you more for the money, and more for the road. Grand traveling in a less-than-grand size.

PACER. By now, this wide-bodied compact is a familiar sight. Great visibility and a roomy comfortable ride. And Pacer Wagon gives you even more big, wide space.

GREMLIN. America's first subcompact and still the best. The Gremlin is the perfect city knockabout with efficiency, performance, and ride.

CHEROKEE. A roof over your head, plenty of room for comfort and the best replacement for the typical station wagon, so says Car and Driver Magazine.

Exciting driving, looks like an animal hungry for the road and styled to turn a few heads.

MATADOR. This is the car for you if you like big car comfort in a mid-sized luxury car. Sedan, coupe, or wagon to suit your taste.

CJ-5 and CJ-7. These are the originals that made Jeep 4-wheel drive history. Tough is the mildest word we can think to describe them.

AMX HATCHBACK. The car that delivers exciting driving, looks like an animal hungry for the road and styled to turn a few heads.

JEOPICKUPS. Endurance, performance, good looks with world famous 4-wheel drive. This is what they mean when they say "keep on trucking."

We wrote the book on 4-wheel drive. Now we're writing the book on luxury compacts.

TODAY'S Real Estate

Owning a house does not mean that you have lost all of your freedom of mobility. It does not mean that you are settling down for the rest of your life, or even for the next five years. You can still travel for extended periods of time, or by out another location, and not lose money on your investment. For temporary absences of a long duration, you can rent your house. Not only do you collect rent then, but you also have someone, including the house, which makes it less easy to robbers and such. Own your house, do not let it own you.
