Merger commission to organize

Mayor Stephen Penny said Monday that the meeting to organize a consolidation commission in Manchester will be held this month.

The formation of the commission is the next step in the movement for consolidation, which would combine the Eighth Utilities District and the Town of Manchester.

The two bodies now have separate fire departments and sewer authorities in their areas.

The Committee for One Manchester has organized this most recent consolidation move. It recently completed a petitioning drive that obtained enough signatures from district and non-district residents to force a referendum question on the issue.

The petitioning for a referendum and the forming of a commission are taken under the steps outlined by the state's Home Rule Act. Pro-consolidation forces have said that this act will permit a townwide vote on consolidation after all required steps are taken.

District officials have said that the Town Charter requires a separate vote by the district before consolidation can take place.

Town Council David Barry said that he is reviewing both the Home Rule Act and the Town Charter. He also is reviewing the procedure for the meeting when the consolidation commission will be named.

Penny said that the meeting will be a joint one between the governing bodies of both areas — the Town Board of Directors and the voters of the Eighth Utilities District.

Both sides will have to agree to the makeup of the commission. He expects that each side will nominate a slate of persons to serve on the commission. According to state law, the commission should be made up of not less than five members and not more than 15 members. The district's membership on the commission, one-fourth of the members, will be in proportion to the percentage of district residents who make up the town's registered voter list.

Penny said that he plans to meet with Gordon Lassow, president of the district, and write to all the district directors before the joint meeting to appoint the commission is held.

Department representatives met Monday with Town Manager Robert Weiss and budget officials to discuss the department's budget for the 1978-79. Previously, department officials had forecast that a rate increase for water customers would be needed. One employee, noting that an increase has not occurred since July 1976, called a hike in the rates "inevitable."

But, after meeting with Weiss and the budget officials Monday, Water Department representatives said today that there will be no rate increase — at least for now.

The idea is to present the voters with one complete package rather than making piecemeal changes in the department, Fran Taylor, office manager for the department, said.

"They want to wait until all the information is in from the engineers and put it all together at one time," Taylor said.

System said that the bonding to pay for improvements, which has to be approved by voters, probably would require a rate hike.

"If we go and float bonds, we're going to have to increase rates to cover this. It's got to come from the customers," he said.

Frank Jodanis, water and sewer administrator, said that some changes will be made in budgeting in the department. All costs connected with capital improvements will be included in the capital improvement budget, he said.

Previously, some of the costs related to capital improvements — labor and equipment for instance — were charged to the department's operating budget.

Also, the department has received more revenues this year than had been anticipated, Jodanis said.

Even so, it's going to be a tight squeeze for the department budget, Taylor said.

"We still have increased costs. We'll have to tighten the belt a little further. It's going to be a very austere budget," Taylor said.

Voting will delay water rate increase

A water rate increase for the upcoming year — previously considered a certainty by officials of the Town of Manchester Water Department — will not occur now until at least a projected November referendum question on water improvements.

Department representatives met Monday with Town Manager Robert Weiss and budget officials to discuss the department's budget for the 1978-79. Previously, department officials had forecast that a rate increase for water customers would be needed. One employee, noting that an increase has not occurred since July 1976, called a hike in the rates "inevitable."

Miners may split on order to work

WASHINGTON (UPI) — United Mine Workers President Arnold Miller said today some striking miners will go back to work under a Taft-Hartley injunction. But resistance can be expected and, violence "is always a possibility," he said.

Labor Secretary Ray Marshall said today the government does not expect a lot of violence in President Carter's attempt to end a record 92-day strike which has caused power shortages and thousands of layoffs.

Carter Monday invoked the Taft-Hartley law and appointed a three-member board of inquiry. He also ordered the Justice Department to seek a federal injunction ordering 160,000 striking miners back to work.

Many miners have said they would ignore such an order. But Carter told Democratic congressional leaders at a meeting today he hopes strikers will obey an injunction, said House Assistant Democratic Leader John Brademas.

Carter also said he does not intend to order a federal takeover of the mines, said Brademas.

"I know that some of our members would go back to comply with the law — not because they want to or like to — but because they are law-abiding citizens," said Miller.

Asked about the possibility of violence between pickets and miners who return to work, he said: "It's always a possibility when you invoke the Taft-Hartley law. You always can expect resistance. I don't think anyone can accurately predict just exactly what will happen."

Miller also said Carter's attempts to push for UMW settlements with individual mines could delay the union. He said Carter has not intended to order a federal takeover of the mines, said Brademas.

Carter today emphasized to Democratic congressional leaders that he has no plans to seize the mines if striking coal miners refuse to return to work under the Taft-Hartley Act.

House Democratic Leader John Brademas told reporters after a breakfast meeting that Carter made clear there would not be an alternative, such as seizure of the mines," and hoped that invoking the Taft-Hartley law would be effective.

Brademas said Carter "expressed the hope that the coal miners would be a forthcoming injunction to return to work."

"It would be most foolish to get into a discussion of seizure legislation because we expect the miners to obey the law of the land," he said.

Some members of the United Mine Workers union have expressed a preference for seizure of the mines by the government.

White House press secretary Jody Powell made it clear Monday that the question was seriously considered, but that when the contract bargaining council and the Bituminous Coal Association, it was dropped.

Previously, some of the costs related to capital improvements — labor and equipment for instance — were charged to the department's operating budget.

Law didn't require votes on borrowing

One referendum question and part of a second question on the November 1977 ballot in Manchester probably were unnecessary because of a state law that apparently permits communities to borrow money in anticipation of state and federal grants without approval of the voters.

Town voters approved both questions by wide margins. One permitted the town to borrow $1,200,000 for a sewer project from Union Pond to the Baldwin Road area. The other permitted the town to borrow $1,560,000 for a package of road improvement projects.

The funding approved for the sewer work is to be provided completely through a federal grant. The town's cost of the project, $315,000, is expected to be paid through assessments to adjacent property owners.

At the time of the election, town officials felt that the borrowing of money in anticipation of state and federal funds — primarily just a bookkeeping maneuver — could not be done without voter approval. Thus, both questions were placed on the ballot last November.

Jay Giles, director of public works, approached State Rep. Ted Cummings of Manchester and asked that the law be changed so that the voters do not have to approve the borrowing when state or federal funding already has been provided. Giles sought an amendment to Section 7-209 (a) of the General Statutes of Connecticut.

Research on the topic, however, showed that Section 7-405 (a) apparently does permit towns and cities to borrow in anticipation of grants without voter approval.

"In effect, we didn't have to have the referendum in November," Giles said. "I suppose it didn't hurt to have it anyway since it passed by an overwhelming majority."

He said that the vote for the sewer funding was not needed. Also, about one-half million dollars of the road improvement question could have been eliminated from the referendum vote since the final cost to the town will be $1,020,000 and not the $1,560,000 voted on, Giles said.

Health fair features glaucoma eye testing

Manchester's Health Fair will offer glaucoma eye tests as one of the several free tests to be given at the fair Tuesday, March 21, from 2 to 7 p.m. in the Manchester High School cafeteria.

The simple, painless test for this eye disease will be administered by registered optometrists and ophthalmologists in cooperation with the Connecticut Society for the Prevention of Blindness. Glaucoma is the second leading cause of adult blindness and can come on without any warning, according to medical eye specialists.

For more information, contact the Society directly, or visit the CCL booth at the health fair. A representative from Blue Cross Blue Shield of Connecticut will be at the fair to assist persons with questions concerning their Blue Cross Blue Shield coverage and she will help in filing claims.

The third annual health fair is co-sponsored by the MPHNA and the Town Health Department. Admission is free and the public is invited.

Appointments for the free test may be made by calling 647-1481. Some of the warning signs of glaucoma, according to the Prevention of Blindness Society, are need for frequent change of glasses, inability to adjust eyes to darkened rooms (such as at the movies), loss of side vision, seeing rainbow-colored rings around lights, and difficulty in focusing on close work.

A society spokesman has said that having any of these symptoms doesn't necessarily mean a person has glaucoma, but it does mean he should have his eyes checked.

In addition to the glaucoma testing, there will be a nutrition exhibit at the fair. The exhibit will give information on vitamins, diets, and food preparation. Gloria Weiss, nutritionist with the Manchester Public Health Nursing Association (MPHNA), will serve cookies high in iron content at the health fair. The recipe was developed by Mrs. Weiss for children and mothers at the MPHNA Well Child Clinic, and will be prepared with the cooperation of Mary Upping, food service director for the Manchester schools. Recipes will be given out.

Natural family planning will also be the subject of an exhibit at the fair.

Toastmaster

Attorney Vincent Diana will be toastmaster at a dinner honoring the Manchester chapter of the Executive Director of the Manchester Housing Authority, March 22 at MaMa Mia's on Tolland Turnpike.

The event will open at 6:30 with a social hour, and a buffet dinner will be served at 7:30.

Reservations appearing in March 15, are still available and may be obtained by contacting Mrs. Kay Moran at the Housing Authority office, Bluefield Drive, 548-2165, between 1 and 4 p.m. All ticket money should be turned into Mrs. Moran by March 15.

By mid-afternoon Friday, LTM officials began to consider the possibility of having to cancel that evening's performance because of the increasing snowfall. But the decision was made to continue despite the circumstances, and cast and crew were so notified.

A couple from West Hartford who were preparing to leave their home to attend the LTM performance heard a radio announcement that "The Little Foxes" would not be performed.

A final crisis developed when one of the actors appearing in the opening scene of the play had an injury because of bad driving conditions. Cast members hastily rewrote the opening moments of the play and were ready to start on time when the delayed actor arrived at the last moment.

The curtain went up only a few minutes late and fulfilled the theatrical tradition that "the show must go on."

Got just a little feeling of spring last week when I saw about 20 men wearing Bermuda shorts. Right here in Hartford, too.

The Bermuda Office of Tourism hosted a reception at the Hotel Sosteia and representatives from the government and various island hotels were on hand — in Bermuda shorts.

Had a chance to talk to James Woolridge, minister of tourism in Bermuda, as well as Cy Elkins of the Princess Hotel, Chris Szeibek of the Southampton Princess, Hertz Finkbeiner of the Elbow Beach Surf Club, Bob Rowers of the Belmont Golf and Beach Club, and Wil Townsend of the Home Lines cruises.

They showed some films on various tourist attractions in Bermuda and sure got us all raring to head for warmer weather. The season there is just about getting into full swing, with temperatures ranging around 88 to 70 degrees.

I had made an appointment to chat with the tour company of many Bermuda shorts in our cold weather, they did admit that they only wore them in the hotel and not while traveling in cold New England.

But, unfortunately, Reilly, who is from Connecticut was not arriving until almost 10 p.m. one night; I was busy until about 9:30 that same night so we missed each other like two ships that pass in the night. Still have hopes of capturing an interview with Jerry Lewis, Count Basie and Sarah Vaughn, who will be in the area soon. Keep your fingers crossed. Celebrities always make good copy.

Irish Night
The Dilworth-Cornell-Quey Post of the American Legion will host an Irish Night, Friday, March 10, complete with corned beef and cabbage. If you'd like good food and rousing music by the Sophisticators Band, check in at the Post Home for details.

Speaking of the Irish, the Salvation Army Citadel on Main Street will again conduct its Irish Tea on March 10.

Incidentally, we recently ran a picture of Ethel Duncan serving her own bread at a meeting of the Friendship Circle of the Salvation Army. Since then, we've had several calls for the recipe.

I checked with Ethel and she said she had enough to give me the recipe so will pass it along in Saturday's "Your Neighbor's Kitchen."

Save Your Vision Week

The importance of vision care to school achievement cannot be overemphasized — for more than 80 percent of all school work and activities are based on vision.

Numerous requirements are necessary to provide efficient vision and these must be considered in a complete vision analysis — especially for the school child. Since most school tasks are performed within arm's length, it is not enough to determine whether a child can read the Snellen chart at 20 feet or to prescribe corrective lenses to bring his vision up to that ability.

How well a child's vision capabilities are geared for all of the normal demands made upon him, particularly the need for sustained, nearpoint visual performance, must also be determined. Here are a few of the most basic needs for adequate vision:

Near vision — ability to focus and see clearly and comfortably with both eyes and each eye separately at a distance of about 15 inches.

Distant vision — the same ability as needed in near vision but for a distance of 20 feet or more. This necessary for sports, to see the chalkboard.

Binoocular coordination — ability to make the two eyes work together. This is necessary for art work, handicrafts, and play activities.

Adequate field of vision — ability to see to both sides and up and down while focusing on a small target. This saves unnecessary eye and hand movements and is essential for participation in sports.

Some specific indications of possible vision problems are when a child:

1. Loses his place while reading
2. Avoids close work
3. Shows body rigidity while looking at distant objects
4. Holds reading material closer than normal
5. Shows excessive head movements
6. Demonstrates poor sitting posture and position or facial distortions while reading, such as frowning or excessive blinking, scowling, or squinting
7. Tilts his head to one side
8. Tends to rub his eyes
9. Thrusts his head forward
10. Has headaches
11. Seems tense during close work
12. Does little or no volunteer reading at home.

Some people believe that flitting on the doorstep will keep lightning from striking the house.

Planning for storms

What have we learned from the snowstorms that struck Connecticut this winter? Or in New England, for that matter?

Mistakes were made; some were in communication, or in misunderstanding the communication.

We have had what has been described as the worst regional snowstorms of the century. Some New England climatologists have warned that we can expect generally cold, harsher weather for the next 30 years.

Better planning has been suggested by a Boston University geographer. He said we closed our economic activity too slowly; he says the delays probably cost millions in lost business and clean-up costs.

He says that if highways had been closed earlier, there wouldn't have been the huge clearance job of removing cars from them.

The geographer, Geoffrey Banister, proposes three things to minimize lost wages, time and sales during future major storms:

- wider use of automated bank tellers and other banking strategies that during weather emergencies would allow more money to remain in circulation.

- a computer-generated program of priority street plowing for those streets and intersections most frequently used by emergency vehicles.
- emergency mass transit for workers of major employers if the use of autos is again banned for days at a time.

Distrust does it

By MARTHA ANGLE and ROBERT WALLERS

WASHINGTON—(NEA)—Jimmy Carter has the dubious distinction of attaining the presidency — the nation's most powerful and prestigious public office — with the support of exactly 27.2 percent of the electorate.

That startling figure is attributable in part to Carter's razor-thin margin of victory in the 1976 election. It is principally the product of the continuing decline in participation in elective politics on the part of the country's voters.

characteristics within the vast pool of approximately 70 million non-voters, the committee has reached some intriguing tentative conclusions. Among them:

- There may be as many as 15 million "drop-outs" who previously were regular participants in the political process. They are heavily concentrated on the East and West coasts, and they tend to be better educated, more affluent and more alienated than other non-voters.

- In another category are an estimated 30 million "chronic non-voters" who have never gone to the polls. They are heavily concentrated in southern and border states.

- The larger single group of non-voters are those under the age of 34. But black, Hispanic, Irish and French Catholic citizens also participate in elections at a lower than average rate.

When Democrat Brendan T. Byrne was re-elected governor of New Jersey four months ago, he had the backing of fewer than 25 percent of those eligible to vote. Republican John H. Dalton was elected governor of Virginia on the same day with the support of less than 19.5 percent of the electorate.

Again, that's because only 39 percent of all eligible voters in the Garden State and only 35 percent in the Old Dominion even bothered to cast their ballots in those contests.

The plummeting rate of public involvement in virtually every major election held in this country since 1960 has been a topic of ceaseless analysis, study, discussion and debate among politicians and political scientists for more than a decade. But the apparent lack of interest in any remedial action is reminiscent of Charles Dudley Warner's famed observation in an 1897 Hartford Courant editorial: "Everyone talks about the weather, but nobody does anything about it."

There is, however, one organization which since late 1975 has made a serious effort to identify the causes of voter alienation and to propose alternatives and remedies. The Washington based Committee for the Study of the American Electorate.

The committee's broad base of support is demonstrated by the fact that it has received funding from both oil companies and labor unions. Its advisory board includes well-known liberals and conservatives, Republicans and Democrats.

The election process as we know it historically is no longer relevant to millions of citizens," says one committee report which notes that only 54.4 percent of all eligible voters participated in the 1976 presidential election, down from 63.4 percent in 1960.

Searching for distinguishing

By an overwhelming 4-1 margin, non-voters cite attitudinal reasons — unhappiness with government and political leadership — rather than structural impediments such as complex registration procedures for their failure to participate.

A large majority of non-voters tend to watch television news regularly and read newspapers daily, but at the same time they embrace a pervasive distrust of all the news media.

Non-voters distrust all large institutions, but at the very bottom of their list are the major political parties. They believe that corporations control decisions in Washington and that all major institutions have too much control over people's lives.

The committee's work, still far from complete, deserves far wider recognition and support, especially from the political parties and politicians who still remain oblivious to the very real possibility that their days are numbered.

Noted American botanist Luther Burbank was born March 7, 1849. On this day in history... In 1829, in the depths of the Depression, an estimated 3,000 men died at the Detroit plant of the Ford Motor Co. Four were killed. In 1938, Adolf Hitler ordered his

Give knuckles good rapping

By ANDREW TULLY
WASHINGTON—As a citizen who is not named General Motors, I am tempted to buy arguments in some federal agency be set up to oversee all company mergers and acquisitions.

But I think I'll resist that temptation. What we don't need is another government agency, unless it is one sworn to raise bureaucracy.

With a heavy penalty for failure to carry out its mandate.

Joshing aside, the Republic could use its unfair advantage a little action by the Federal Trade Commission and the Justice Department's antitrust division. The record shows that neither has exerted itself to control the rash toward a monopolistic economy.

Mergers and acquisitions, of course, are not evil per se. But the country has had too many of them in the past 17 years.

It was alarming enough in the generally unregulated Sixties, when several of the 200 largest corporations acquired 74 companies with assets of well over $1 billion. But from 1970 through 1976 there were 472 acquisitions of companies worth $10 million or more for a total asset value of more than $27 billion. The result on this whole has been higher prices for everything from automobiles to a pound of bologna because of the power of conglomerates to indulge in informal price-fixing.

Neither Richard Nixon nor Gerald Ford made any real effort to police those takers. Jimmy Carter has made some anti-monopoly noises, but so far hasn't scored any of the tycoons of Big Business. Big Labor has gone along in return for wage increases and new fringe benefits for union members.

That professional gaffly of consumerism, Ralph Nader, has been after the FTC for years to investigate the absence of competition in the automobile industry. But the FTC has always been out to lunch when it comes to such matters.

Consider the "new" car a neighbor bought four months ago. It has spent a total of almost three weeks in the shop for various ailments. These include an air conditioning system which produced hot air, two defective tires, a balky carburetor, a leaking tank that wobbled, a gas tank and windshield, and a defective gasoline gauge.

The situation is not new. Back in 1971, a Congressional staff study concluded that "financial advantage" to the parent company was the chief motive for most of the mergers and takeovers examined over a period of more than a year — not a "desire to increase production or marketing strength."

That causes me to suggest that the time has come to give the knuckles of some of our industrial giants a good rapping. Merely making a lot of money should not be considered the primary goal of what — sometimes humorously these days — is known as the free enterprise system.

These days the music business is the biggest business there is. So when an artist wants to jump out the window, his record company may let him because he might be writing a hit song on the way down.

Jackie de Shannon, a star from the first generation of women rock performers who is now making a successful comeback (Direct News).

"Those who are trying to frustrate or drag out the conclusion of a treaty are leading matters to a new spiraling race of the most dangerous moments of warfare, which can have only one outcome — the steeply mounting danger of a nuclear-missile holocaust."

Pravda, the newspaper of the Soviet Union, which has recently blamed the United States for an arms impasse.

"Those in areas most affected by the strike have already made great sacrifices. Before the strike is over, and for several weeks thereafter until the normal flow of coal is restored, even greater hardship will occur."

President Carter, announcing federal intervention in the coal strike.

All four companies employ the gimmick of annual model "changes," which GM thought up back in 1923, and which reduces the value of your new car by hundreds of dollars the moment you drive off your friendly, and rich neighborhood dealership. And except for more power, which is unnecessary, today's cars are not all that better than they were 40 years ago.

Development of the property was proposed two years ago for a Residence M zone subdivision. That proposal drew opposition from about 400 residents who attended a hearing, resulting in denial of the M zone plan.

The revisions included some changes in driveway grades, lot easement, removal of some existing buildings on the property and an option on sidewalks.

The commission also approved a site plan and the issuance of a certificate of occupancy for Multi-Circuit, Inc. on Hartford Road involving off-site parking.

An inland wetlands application by East Catholic High School to use about two acres on the west side of New State Road for an athletic field was approved.

All other pending items were tabled.

The delegates selected to the state convention will be voting on the party's choice for governor.

"We must determine who supports who, so the delegates elected reflect the town committee's support," Cummings said.

An informal poll taken late last year showed that about three-quarters of the town committee supported Lt. Gov. Robert Killian in his challenge of incumbent Gov. Ellis Grasso.

If that support continues, Manchester would send a pro-Killian delegate to the convention. Of course, if the support has shifted to Grasso, her supporters from Manchester will be sent as delegates to the convention.

The county convention is for the endorsement of sheriff.

The Deforcis will discuss the method of selecting delegates for the following conventions: State, First Congressional District, County, Third and Fourth Senatorial Districts and Ninth and 14th Assembly Districts. Cummings said that the committee will meet again on Monday, March 20, to select the delegates.

Thoughts

It has been said that what is urgent is seldom important and what is important is seldom urgent. I am not sure of that statement.

A corollary to that statement is that we get caught up in the urgent and ignore the important until it becomes urgent and then it is too late. How true this is.

Think of our families. How often have we neglected the important? We spend too little meaningful time with our wives, husbands or children. We are always too busy. When our wives or husbands are leaving us or our children have gotten into trouble, the situation becomes urgent and we try to correct the problem but it is so often too late.

Christ had to correct Martha when she was preoccupied with fixing a meal instead of taking the opportunity to learn from the master. The urgent had supplanted the important. So much of our lives are spent concentrating on the urgent. We need to rediscover the important values in order to order our lives.

Both sides cite flooding at hearing on subdivision

Flooding on Thayer Road this winter was used as evidence to support the positions of both the backers and the opposers of an inland wetlands permit for a 50-lot subdivision off Gardner Street at a public hearing of the Planning and Zoning Commission Monday night.

Attorney Thomas Bailey, representing several residents of the area abutting the proposed subdivision, also pointed to the flooding on Thayer Road but said the area could not accommodate any increased drainage from a detention pond because the present storm drainage pipe is not large enough.

Walter Senkow, town engineer, presented testimony in behalf of the residents, supporting Call's contention that the PZC last Oct. 24, but an appeal by residents of the area stated that the required time period of 30 days between receipt of the application and the hearing was not met. A second hearing by the showing the January flood in his yard and told the commission, "Nothing further should be done until the flooding on Thayer Road is taken care of."

William O'Neill, engineer for the developers, claimed that there would be a significant reduction in the flooding in the neighborhood if the detention basin is built.

The commission also heard a resubdivision request for parcels on Birch Mountain Road and Aaron Leon Podrovo presented the request for Thayer Road. The developer, for the property which had previously been approved for subdivision.

Only one Carter Street resident spoke in opposition to the proposal based on claims of the poor condition of Birch Mountain Road and land erosion being caused by development.

The commission also heard and approved a resubdivision request by the Manchester Congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses for a 10.7 acre parcel at Slater Street and Tolland Turnpike. The church was also granted a deferment of sidewalks for one parcel which will not be developed. A church will be built on part of the property.

Although he said he supports the concept of a detention facility, which he said would help the situation, Senkow contended that the facility will not work as intended because of the under-sized pipe.

Town officials to appear at HRC hearing on bias

Town representatives will appear at the public hearing Wednesday by Manchester's Human Relations Commission on a charge of discrimination brought against the town by John Bourque, who claims he was fired by the town because he is handicapped.

Friday, it was reported that town representatives would probably not attend a public hearing because of the sensitive personal issues involved in the Bourque case.

This morning, Charles McCarthy, assistant town manager, said "We will appear." The town has been reluctant to appear "because the Comprehensive Employment Act program, worked for the town Highway Department before he was fired. He had complained that he was offered no opportunity for training by the department.

According to the hearing schedule, Bourque and his witnesses will appear before the commission at 8:15 p.m. Invited to appear before the commission at 9 p.m. are McCarthy, Steven Werber, town personnel aide; Timothy O'Sullivan, superintendent of the Highway Department, and George Ringstone, department foreman.

That's the way collective bargaining is handled," he said. "I don't disagree with it."

Asked about his request last week to go public, McCarthy said, "I had an opening and I used it" in reference to his release of the union's demands to the press.

He would not give any details on the negotiations that took place at Monday's meeting. The town and the police union will meet again next Tuesday. The town also has meetings set with the other three unions representing town employees.

Directors set hearings on CETA project funds

The Manchester Board of Directors will meet tonight at 8 to conduct public hearings on four appropriations to Comprehensive Employment Training Act program.

The meeting will be held in the Municipal Building's Hearing Room. All four of the appropriations will be funded with grants to the town. CETA is a federal program aimed at creating short-term employment in areas of high unemployment.

The directors will meet at 7, before the regular meeting, to discuss one of the CETA projects — a townwide survey. A questionnaire has been developed for the survey, and the directors will review it with the project's directors.

One public hearing scheduled for this month and expected to attract a crowd — an ordinance to permit restaurants to sell liquor on tax collection efforts, consideration of funding a feasibility study for an intra-town bus system and possible expansion of the responsibilities of the Charter Revision Commission.

Bench out for Bailey for awhile

HARTFORD (UPI) — It appears for the time being East Hartford prosecutor John M. Bailey will have to remain a prosecutor. This is not likely to please Gov. Ella T. Grasso who wants the son of her political mentor to be a judge.

Connecticut Bar Association President Peter Dorsey said Monday the earliest his group could consider a rules change allowing Bailey to become a judge would be in June.

Mrs. Grasso is anxious to elevate Bailey, the son of late Democratic State Chairman John M. Bailey, to a Court of Common Pleas judgeship. The son of Bailey was largely responsible for seeing that Mrs. Grasso became the nation's first woman governor elected without succeeding her husband or using his name.

The Junior Bailey was admitted to the bar eight years ago. This raises problems for Mrs. Grasso because the state bar won't even consider endorsing a judicial candidate who has been practicing law for less than 10 years.

It's conceivable Mrs. Grasso could submit Bailey's nomination without the bar's endorsement, but the last time a governor tried that, it didn't work out too well.

Mrs. Grasso's predecessor, Republican Gov. Thomas J. Meskill, died in office. Bailey was largely responsible for seeing that Mrs. Grasso became the nation's first woman governor elected without succeeding her husband or using his name.

Officers and delegates on Democratic agenda

Manchester's Democratic Town Committee will meet Wednesday to elect its officers and discuss the selection of delegates to upcoming Democratic Town Chairman Ted Cummings is seeking re-election and there are no announced challengers. The other three officers, vice chairman Dorothy Brindley, secretary Mary LeDuc, and treasurer Paul Phillips, also are expected to be re-elected.

The Democrats will discuss the method of selecting delegates for the following conventions: State, First Congressional District, County, Third and Fourth Senatorial Districts and Ninth and 14th Assembly Districts. Cummings said that the committee will meet again on Monday, March 20, to select the delegates.

The delegates selected to the state convention will be voting on the party's choice for governor.

"We must determine who supports who, so the delegates elected reflect the town committee's support," Cummings said.

An informal poll taken late last year showed that about three-quarters of the town committee supported Lt. Gov. Robert Killian in his challenge of incumbent Gov. Ellis Grasso.

If that support continues, Manchester would send a pro-Killian delegate to the convention. Of course, if the support has shifted to Grasso, her supporters from Manchester will be sent as delegates to the convention.

The county convention is for the endorsement of sheriff.

McCoey makes plea for education funds

By BARBARA RICHMOND
Herald Reporter

A motion recommended by Mayor Frank McCoey, and passed at Monday night's Town Council meeting, was relayed to a special meeting of the Board of Education to present to area legislators who were meeting with the board.

The legislators were invited to the school board meeting to discuss problems with special education costs. Daniel Woolwich, school board chairman, and school officials attended the council meeting to explain the salary control and the education budget.

The motion called on the legislators to do everything in their power to see that the total cost of special education be given to towns on a current funding level, including transportation costs for special education students and that the burden be taken off the towns.

The state now pays 55 to 60 percent of the special education costs and reimburses the town the following year. Meanwhile, the costs have to come out of the education budget but the reimbursement goes into the town's general fund.

Councilwoman Marie Herbst said she thought that asking for 100 percent reimbursement would be knocking on a closed door. She said she thought the motion should say that the state pay the excess of what it would cost to educate a child in a regular class. The mayor said he didn't feel asking for 100 percent is out of line when the state mandates the programs.

Albert Kerkin, assistant superintendent in charge of special education said $1 million of the education budget goes for special education students and that the burden be taken off the towns.

Special unit created for Vernon charter

By BARBARA RICHMOND
Herald Reporter

The Charter Revision Commission has legally been dissolved and the Vernon Town Council now has a problem because it feels some things it intended to do in the proposed revisions are not and the council isn't sure what action it can take.

Because of this, Mayor Frank McCoey appointed a special subcommittee made up of Councilmen Stephen Marchant and Carl Anderson to go over the revision commission's final report and return recommendations to a special meeting of the council next Monday at 7:30 p.m.

The council feels the commission may have been left out through oversight in the section on the Parks and Recreation Commission. The commission recommended combining the two departments and the council approved but asked to have a section added which would guarantee the positions of the two department heads. This was not inserted.

South Windsor seeking Manchester health aide

South Windsor Town Manager Paul Talbot was scheduled to meet with the Manchester Board of Directors today in an effort to win approval of an agreement with Manchester for a joint health service.

A meeting of all residents in the Birch Road area will be held at Town Hall at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday. The meeting is intended to be an update on the pollution problems.

Deputy Mayor Robert Myette questioned the Sewer Commission's waiver of the $400 hookup fee for the resident who had been unknowingly tied into the storm basin. The Sewer Commission has unanimously voted to waive the fee because of the weather conditions and the unusual circumstances requiring immediate hookup.

Myette said he was concerned that a dangerous precedent may be set by the waiver.

Councilwoman Jackie Smith, however, explained that it was her understanding that the wording of the waiver had been such that the same circumstances would be difficult to be repeated.

The South Windsor Public Building Commission will meet tonight at 8 p.m. in the Town Hall. Included on the agenda will be an update on the new library structure and the fire headquarters. Brick for the library is expected to be chosen.

Community chorus

New members are welcome to join the South Windsor Community Chorus. Rehearsals have begun, and will continue on Wednesday evenings from 7:30 to 9:30 at Timothy Edwards music room.

No audition is necessary and male voices are especially welcome. More information call Bobbie Reeves, 644-0400.

Noise ordinance hearing is postponed in Bolton

A public hearing scheduled Wednesday on Bolton's proposed noise ordinance has been postponed indefinitely.

The hearing had been scheduled by the Board of Selectmen after the proposed ordinance was revised last Monday. The first proposal, aired at a January hearing, was changed by the selectmen to respond to complaints at the first hearing.

Under the new Town Charter, the Board of Selectmen has the power to adopt ordinances after public hearing and reports are met.

It was uncertain why the hearing was postponed. The selectmen did not meet a charter requirement to publish a legal notice about the proposal at least five days before the hearing.

The proposed ordinance would set maximum noise levels according to zoning in town. A copy of the ordinance is available at the Community Hall.

Firehouse manned

Residents should be aware that during emergency conditions the Bolton firehouse is usually manned with a number of volunteer personnel.

A large generator powers the firehouse during emergencies. Anyone needing shelter, or involved in nonfire or nonmedical aid stands by Bolton firehouse for assistance during emergency weather conditions.

At all times emergencies should be reported to 972-2233.

During the months of January and February the Bolton Volunteer Fire Department responded to 60 calls.

In January the department responded to three chimney fires, two structure fires, one electrical wires burning, three medical assists, two car fires, one mutual aid to North Coventry, one mutual aid to Hebron, two standbys in Vernon, one storm standby and 26 service calls.

In February the department responded to three auto accidents, two structure fires, one truck fire, three medical assists, five kindles of a structure fire, one alarm malfunction, one storm standby and two mutual aid standbys in Hebron and North Coventry.

Drills during the past two months consisted of cleaning and servicing equipment, cleaning the firehouse and working with medical equipment. Volunteer members of the department met with the town attorney and insurance advisory board to discuss legal questions.

Hebron seeks storm aid

The Board of Selectmen has voted unilaterally to authorize the town's representative to prepare and execute a project application for federal disaster relief aid.

The action was taken in hopes of obtaining 75 percent reimbursement of the cost of hired equipment during the blizzard of another storm.

First Selectman Aaron Reid said the total cost of hired equipment was $2,076. If received in full, the 75 percent reimbursement would be $1,557.

The selectmen also received a report from the Board of Tax Review indicating a total net decrease of $49,500 in assessments as a result of the blizzard.

Hebron is seeking a variance to the zoning regulations covering the sale of alcoholic beverages in a general business district.

The regulations do not permit two liquor outlets to be located within 1,000 feet of each other.

The Pub on Route 66 owned by Cafazzo paid for another liquor outlet. When the Pub was in operation the regulations specified 500 feet between outlets. On Dec. 1, 1976 new regulations were adopted changing the distance to 1,000 feet which has presented a problem in getting zoning clearance for a new permit for the Pub.

St. Martin is seeking a sideline variance to construct a 13 by 18 square foot garage with a room over it.

On another matter, Board Chairman James Derby said he signed an application for Regis Crosby to permit a change in Crosby's used car dealership to a new and used car license after taking a telephone poll of the board for permission to waive a hearing on the request.

In other action, the Appeals Board decided to submit a $625 budget to the Board of Finance with $25 for legal notices and other board expenses and $200 for clerical assistance.

Florida trip proposed

The Rham Music Boosters voted at its last meeting to propose to the Regional District 9 Board of Education that students in the band and chorus be allowed to go on an adjudication trip to Orlando, Fla. and Baton Rouge during the spring vacation of 1979. The trip is pending board approval.

There were 10 appeals to the review board with eight and four reductions granted totaling $62,000.

Corrections to the Grand List resulted in additions of $19,750 and reductions of $7,250.

The selectmen also received a report from the Board of Tax Review indicating a total net decrease of $49,500 in assessments as a result of the blizzard.

Hebron is seeking a variance to the zoning regulations covering the sale of alcoholic beverages in a general business district.

Sewer plan hearing set

The Town Council Monday night set March 20 for a public hearing on a proposed ordinance setting sewer user charges for Vernon residents and a resolution setting charges for out-of-town users.

On the same night there will be a public hearing on a proposed ordinance to extend sewer lines on several streets in town. The hearings will be at 7:30 p.m. in the Memorial Building.

Because all Vernon residents are not on the public sewage line, the collection and disposal of sewage is considered a service of special benefit and not included in the regular tax rate.

For those with an average daily flow of less than 50,000 gallons, the rate will be $2.50 per thousand and in excess of 50,000, $2.625 plus $1 per thousand gallons in excess of 50,000 for other than residential users.

Residential users, in town, will pay $21 for each dwelling unit. The proposed ordinance describes a dwelling unit as being any group of rooms located within a dwelling and forming a single habitable unit with facilities which are used or intended for use for living, sleeping, cooking and eating.

The resolution setting the annual rate for out of town users has total amounts for each town. The towns pay the total bill and then are responsible for collection of the money from the individual users in that town.

Ellington's bill for the coming year will be $24,133. South Windsor, $87, Tolland, $1,750, and the Manchester units of the Quality Inn, $3,480.

Budget meeting

The Budget Committee of the Vernon Board of Education will meet Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in the school administration building, Park Street.

Vernon council OKs supervisor contract

A three-year contract for school principals, assistant principals, and 10 and 12-month supervisors, was approved by the Town Council Monday night. New legislation requires council approval of this contract for the first time this year.

The council has, for the past several years, had to act on the teachers' contracts.

The salary schedule for the principals and supervisors calls for two percent wage increases in the first year and 2.5 percent in the second year.

Woolwich said all but two principals are closer to the maximum on the wage scale than to the minimum. He said if a person is on the maximum level in the coming year he or she will also be on the successive two years.

Woolwich said the increases will mean a total additional amount of $16,240 the first year, $17,289 the second, and $18,831 in the third year, plus educational increments.

Councilman James Filkof asked how these salaries compare to those of other towns. Dr. Raymond Ramsdell, superintendent of schools, said Vernon is nowhere near the top.

He said its total budget in comparison.

Concerning the total budget of the board, Woolwich said it is in a different position than it has in the past year as far as surplus is concerned.

He said the board is now doing a survey to see where it stands and it could be very costly.

Rec unit backs land purchase

The Coventry Parks and Recreation Commission voted 5 to 1 to endorse town purchase of about 76 acres of land owned by the Salvation Army at the southern end of Coventry Lake.

The dissenting vote was cast by Chairman Sandra Young, who felt that the town might not be willing to put up enough money to develop and maintain the lakefront portion of the parcel as a recreational area.

At the request of the Salvation Army Land Purchase Study Committee, which was appointed by the Town Council, the commission drew up a list of minimum and maximum recreational proposals ranging in cost from $32,000 to $52,000. Recreation Director Lionel Jean worked on the plans.

Informal routine activities would include apparatus play, skateboard, skating, sledding, skiing, basketball, volleyball, horseshoes, swimming, kickball, games, and picnicking. For a minimum program, participants would provide their own equipment and no supervision would be offered.

The maximum program would have a full-time playground director to organize and supervise activities at a cost of $9,000. Equipment costing $200 would be provided, and up to 25 picnic tables would be purchased at $50 each.

Recurrent activities would involve arts and crafts lessons, dance training, competitive swimming, movies, dog obedience classes, archery lessons, adult education, and dramatics. In the minimum program, all instruction would be done by volunteers, and a fee would be charged to offset the cost of supplies and materials.

In a maximum program, instructors would be salaried and materials would be provided free. Fees would total about $1,200 per year, and materials and supplies would run about $200.

Social activities would include parties, barbecues, dinners, teas, and holiday celebrations. In the minimum program, the sponsoring groups, which would pay the costs of use of the buildings. The recreation commission would offer the buildings free and provide set up, cleanup, and supervision in the maximum program.

Special projects could comprise art shows, craft fairs, animal shows, hobby exhibits, gymnastics, tournaments, and special clinics or instruction. In the minimum program an entry fee would be charged, and prizes and awards would be paid for out of the collection. A maximum program financed by the commission would cost $500.

Jean is currently a part-time director with an annual salary of $1,500. Under a minimum program, his responsibility would be increased. A maximum program would necessitate a full-time director at $12,500, a playground supervisor at $9,000, program specialists for $1,300, and a secretary for $2,000.

Canton ends Cheney hoop season with 60-56 win in S Tournament

Arm-locked situation

Another quarter and the result might have been different. If we could only play them one more time, expressed Cheney Tech Coach Gerry Blanchard.

That one more time won't be this year as the hustling Techmen fell too far behind before waking up and dropping a 68-56 decision to Canton High in a State Basketball Tournament Class S Region IV final last night at the University of Hartford.

"I thought we were doing very well at the beginning," stated a very glum Blanchard. "We weren't intimidated once we got down to the level of playing basketball. . . . Why do we always think other schools are better than we are. We proved we can play with them," he added proudly.

The first quarter told the difference as the taller Warriors hit the last 10 points of the canto for the first time in 17 years. Things got out of hand.

Kansas City happy Nash sent letter

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — When Bob Nash sent letters last summer to eight NBA teams, the Kansas City Kings were the only team to respond favorably to the former No. 1 draft pick out of Hawaii.

And Nash rewarded Kansas City with his best performance of the season Monday night as a 14-point, five-rebound shooting that helped the Kings snap a three-game losing streak with a 98-88 triumph over the Detroit Pistons in 1972.

"I was very disappointed that we were all these negative responses except for Kansas City. The other clubs told me they had what they were looking for or were not interested in free agents."

Nash rode the bench for the first half of the season but his playing time increased substantially when Larry Staverman replaced Phil Johnson as coach of the Kings in early January.

"I never lacked confidence in my own abilities," said Nash. "I just never really got a chance in the NBA before when I was with Detroit (two years), the only time I ever played was late when the games were already decided. Larry is the first coach that really showed any confidence in me."

Classic lineup

Manhattan, East Carolina University and a third team to be announced will join the University of Connecticut in the 1979 UConn Basketball Classic which will be co-sponsored by Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance Company. Dates will be Dec. 29-30 at the New Haven Arena. It will be renamed the Connecticut Mutual Classic.

Army, Pittsburgh and Western Kentucky will appear in future classics. John Toner, UConn director of athletics, said yesterday when formal announcement of the insurance company's involvement was made.

Toner said that feelers have gone out to colleges "every major conference in the country and to major independents as well. We want the best possible fields."

Both UConn and insurance officials are hopeful that the Hartford Civic Center Coliseum will be rebuilt in time for the 1979 Classic.

There are no plans to enlarge the tournament and the regular season UConn schedule will be avoided if at all possible in making up the tourney field. Manhattan, Niagara, Massachusetts made up this last year's squads along with host UConn at Hartford.

New Haven Veterans' Coliseum can seat 9,200 for basketball.

Each year the classic will be staged after Christmas and before New Year's with the exact dates to be selected from the Dec. 27-30 period.

Toner said the fields for the next two years will be made by April and it's possible that fields for the next five years will be announced by the same date.

NBA

By his replacement Bill Robinson got Nash into Monday night's game late in the first quarter.

Nash scored 12 first-half points to match his previous best single game total this season. He finished the game with a team-high 18 points for the best single game of his NBA career.

"Those were quiet points," said Staverman. "I thought he might have a few points in the first half and a dozen in the game. But Bob was moving well, always going to the basket. The guys found him. He was smooth out there."

The Kings led by 18 at half and the Pacers never got any closer than seven thereafter, thanks primarily to Earl Yatum, who finished with a game-high 21 points.

"We're (Indiana and Kansas City) both sitting in no-pace land," said Indiana Coach Bob Leonard, whose team fell two games back of the fifth-place Kings in the Midwest Division. "When you're in that position, it's tough to keep your intensity."

Newlin ailing

HOUSTON (UPI) — Houston guard Mike Newlin will miss two games with a lower back strain, a Rockets spokesman said Monday.

Newlin returned to Houston Monday after suffering the injury at Washington Sunday afternoon and spending the night in a hospital.

Cheney was 2 for 6 with 6 turnovers. Canton, now 13-7, built its advantage to 26-7 before the Beavers rallied to trail by only 34-21 at the intermission. The Warriors, led by lanky 6-foot-5 guard Jim Callahan and 6-foot-4 forward Roger Coult, had 12 points respectively at the half, had taken 31 shots the first 16 minutes compared to only 19 for Cheney.

The difference was 17 points (38-21) early in the third period before the Techmen came back to narrow it to 46-35 heading into the final stanza. Canton's lead was still 17 (52-35) with just under seven minutes remaining before Cheney's full court pressure took effect.

"If we had pressed the entire game we would have been better off. Unfortunately I didn't see that (Canton) play and the scouting report I got was off," admitted Blanchard.

"They played pretty good defense," stated Canton Coach Bill Mudano. "We just don't hold the ball, protect the lead very well. Things got out of hand."

Rugged Bernie Ertel of Cheney found he grabbed rebound in last night's Class S tournament loss. (Herald photo by Dunn)

Cheney trailed 56-43 when it put on a belated spark. Kevin Tyler, doing some fine boardwork, dropped in two offensive rebounds to bring the deficit down below 10 points for the first time since the first quarter. Barry pivotman Bertie Ertel carried one of two free throws and a rebound bucket for a 56-50 differential with 1:12 left.

Canton, which had 8 fourth-quarter turnovers, turned it over for a fourth consecutive time which 3-foot-8 Tech guard Brian Brown converted into a driving layup basket for a 4-point surge.

But the desperate Cheney comeback bid fizzled as Canton, after holding the ball, was able to get a virtual clinching hoop with 37 seconds on the clock as Callahan found Ken Cooper all alone underneath for an easy two-point.

Dave Gustamachio came right back with an offensive rebound hoop for Cheney but Cooper tied it with 14 seconds left with both ends of a one-and-one, the only free throw Canton had on the evening.

Callahan, hitting some long range jumpers and offensive rebounds, was 14 for 19 from the field for a game-high 28 points for Canton. Coult added 18 markers and Cooper 12. The Warriors, who hit over 50 percent of the first half, wound up 29 for 61 (47.5 percent) from the floor with 19 turnovers, 12 in the second half.

Ertel wound up 10ps for the Techmen with 20 points followed by Tyler (15) and Gustamachio (10). Cheney, despite the woeful start, could have won as it had 18 free throws but converted only 10 (55.5 percent). The Beavers, who wind up 10-12 for the season, were 23 for 55 (41.8 percent) from the field with 17 turnovers.

Canton overall had the rebounding edge, most of it in the first half. "It took a while for us to realize we could play with them," stated Blanchard. That proved fatal.

Canton (50) Coult 9 0-18, Cooper 12-24, Fairchild 0 0-0, Marotta 0 0-0, Callahan 14 6-19, Kunkel 9 0-0, Coult 9 0-0, Glasgow 1 0-0. Totals 29 5-30. Cheney Tech (56) Tyler 7 1-10, Gustamachio 9 6-18, Ertel 8 4-20, Brown 2 1-2, Bodrooz 0 4-4, Martin 1 0-2. Totals 22 10-36.

Tuneup near fatal for Kentucky

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Kentucky Wildcats, perched atop UPI's college basketball poll, suffered a near-fatal attack of "high anxiety" Monday night.

Having already clinched their 31st Southeastern Conference basketball championship, the Wildcats closed out their regular season against Louisville on Monday night with a 90-83 victory in a light NCAA playoff tuneup.

But somebody forgot to tell Vanderbilt it was playing the "big boys" of the SEC.

Despite hitting 18 of 32 first-half shots, Kentucky found itself in a frustrating 47 tie with the Commodores midway through the second half.

Elsewhere, Notre Dame whipped Loyola of Chicago, 83-68.

Dave Patton scored 18 points and grabbed 10 rebounds as the Irish closed out their regular season at 20-6 going into Sunday's NCAA Midwest Regional game held at Houston. Kelly Tripucka added 15 for Notre Dame while Andre Wakefield scored a game-high 22 points for Louisville.

In other games, Louisiana State finished third in the SEC with a 105-85 victory over Alabama. Mississippi State finished second despite a 61-40 loss to Mississippi. Florida beat Georgia, 86-68, and Auburn downed Tennessee, 107-94.

Durand Macklin tallied 25 points and Ethan Martin added 19 in LSU's win over Alabama, which was led by freshman Ken Johnson's 22 points.

Eaton Turner hit two free throws with eight seconds left to lift Ole Miss over Mississippi State.

Auburn Coach Bob Davis called his game with the Tennessee Vols "a shootout like the OK Corral."

"They couldn't stop us and we couldn't stop them for awhile," he said.

Stan Pietkiewicz scored a career-high 35 points for the Tigers and teammate Mike Mitchell added 27.

Reggie Johnson scored 32 for the Vols.

National hoop title won by Kentucky

NEW YORK (UPI) — The University of Kentucky, picked along with North Carolina as the top team in the nation in pre-season voting, lived up to expectations today when it was named the national champion in the United Press International Board of Coaches final college basketball ratings.

By carrying the No. 1 spot in final balloting for the fifth time, Kentucky has now captured as many UPI national championships as UCLA. No other teams have won the award as many as five times.

The Wildcats, who head into the NCAA tournament with a 25-2 record, received 29 of a possible 40 first-place votes and a total of 398 points from the nationwide panel of coaches from seven geographic regions.

Kansas, 24-2, led three places to No. 8 in the final voting after suffering an 87-76 upset to Kansas State in the Big Eight tournament while Duke, 23-6, registered the biggest gain of the week by climbing into the No. 9 spot after winning the Atlantic Coast Coast Conference tournament in a surprise.

North Carolina, plagued by injuries in its bid to fulfill early-season predictions, dropped from No. 9 to No. 10 after being upset by Wake Forest, 82-77, in the ACC tournament.

The Tar Heels finished 23-7.

Dear Abby
DEAR ABBY: You were off base to defend the lady Gramdams who gave her grandchildren checks for Christmas.

NO CHECKS, PLEASE
DEAR NO: If the gifts happen to be the right size, the right color and exactly what the children need or want—wonderful! But what if they aren't? Wouldn't you rather have a check than the chore of exchanging the gifts?

FURIOUS WITH FURIOUS
DEAR ABBY: My mother is always on my back about something. It's "sit up straight, talk slower, turn down the TV, quit picking your face, go do your homework!"

DEAR HASSLED: Sit up straight, talk slower, turn down the TV, quit picking your face, go do your homework.

DEAR ABBY: This for the person who was looking for an alternate to the traditional cigars handed out on the arrival of a new baby.

DEAR RON: Considering that an "egg" started the whole thing, you hatched a great idea!

CONFIDENTIAL TO "J" and "P." What parents leave in their children is far more important than what they leave TO them.
