Construction crew shuts seven mines

United Press International
Striking construction workers shut down at least seven large underground mines, employing about 3,000 miners, in Ohio early today but United Mine Workers Union members returned to work at other mines throughout the Buckeye State.

The construction workers, also members of the UMW, are still without a contract. They closed six North American Coal Co. mines in the Powhatan Point area and a Y&O Coal Co. mine in Belmont County, turning back miners attempting to return to work on the midnight shift.

However, mines operated by Consolidation Coal Co., Peabody Coal Co., and the Southern Ohio Coal Co., were reported open at midnight and hopes are the construction workers will have a contract today.

A hungry union rank and file ratified a new miners pact by a 57 percent margin Friday. But few of them had good words for the agreement as they headed back to work — and desperately needed paychecks.

"The majority says we have to go back to work and the majority rules," said Pennsylvania local officer Frank Dwyer. "I am willing to uphold the contract, although I'm not all that enthused about it."

"We bit it off and now we got to chew it. We were sold out."

John Guzek, president of the construction workers' UMW District 6, which has 16,000 members in Ohio and the Northern Panhandle of West Virginia, is the chief negotiator for the UMW construction contract, which covers about 10,000 UMW members who build coal tipples and other facilities.

"We hope to get this contract wound up today," Guzek told UPI from Washington in a telephone interview. "There are no hangups. We just have to put a lot of stuff together. We have a real good chance of getting the contract today. We are real close."

Guzek said if an agreement is reached, it could be passed on by the UMW Executive Board by late Tuesday and returned to the coal fields for a ratification vote next weekend.

Japanese police storm tower held by leftists

TOKYO (UPI) — Riot police firing tear gas and water cannon today stormed a 62-foot steel tower atop a concrete fortress built by leftist radicals to block the opening of Tokyo's new international airport.

At least 11 youths holed up in a makeshift crow's nest and fortress were arrested.

Using a giant crane and a rock crushing drill to break one side of the four-story concrete fortress, police then got to the leftists remaining inside. Police promptly began tearing down the steel tower and concrete fortress, built on private land at the end of the new airport's second runway.

The police attack came about 24 hours after firebomb-throwing radicals seized the control tower of the new airport and smashed radar and other sensitive equipment to try to keep the airport from opening.

In their assault on the rioters' makeshift tower, police arrested seven persons. Then they found four more persons hiding in the fortress and took them into custody, bringing the number of arrests to 11.

The airport has remained idle until now because of opposition from farmers who lost land to the facility, leftist student activists and environmentalists.

Officials said they could not yet estimate damage to the control tower. One sheet of window glass in the control tower alone was believed worth about $4,500, and about eight glass sheets were destroyed Sunday.

Police said 20 radicals spent Saturday night in an underground sewer system near the airport, emerged through a manhole Sunday, and stormed the control tower while police battled hundreds of other demonstrators nearby.

Today's news summary

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court announced today it will take up the question of whether states may grant unemployment benefits to striking workers at their company's expense.

The justices agreed to hear arguments next winter on a New York law permitting workers involved in a "strike, lockout, or other industrial controversy" to collect unemployment compensation after an eight-week waiting period.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court today let stand the conviction of a Kansas man for starting up a letter delivery service between two cities in competition with the U.S. Postal Service.

The justices declined to hear an appeal by Robert Eugene Black, president of Alternate Systems Inc., contending the law giving the Postal Service a monopoly over its routes is unconstitutional.

TEL AVIV, Israel (UPI) — Israel's Cabinet says it unanimously backs Prime Minister

Menachem Begin and his Middle East peace policies, which have put him at odds with President Carter.

The Cabinet voted unanimously Sunday after a five-hour meeting to approve Begin's report on his talks last week with Carter and to authorize secret "initiatives" to renew Middle East peace talks with Egypt.

United Press International
The National Weather Service today issued a flash flood warning for southern New England except Cape Cod and coastal Rhode Island in the wake of an Easter Sunday snowstorm that dumped up to 8 inches of wet snow in northern New England.

Heavy rain was reported from observers and radar throughout most of southern New England, the NWS said.

HINGHAM, Mass. (UPI) — The parents of leukemia-stricken Chad Green entered the red brick District Court today to continue their fight against court-ordered chemotherapy for their 2-year-old son.

Gerald and Diane Green of Scituate appeared before Judge Martha Ware during a closed door juvenile session to argue why custody of their blond curly haired, blue-eyed son should not be taken away from them.

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — Search teams will search the Atlantic Ocean today for parts of the Titan 3C rocket and military communications satellites blown up Saturday when the spacecraft lost altitude.

Just eight minutes into the flight, trouble was detected in the second stage of the rocket. The range safety officer pushed the destruct switch, turning the rocket and its payload into an $80 million fireball and letting it splash into the sea.

BRIDGEPORT (UPI) — Police are searching for two Bridgeport Correction Institute inmates who escaped while on a kitchen work detail.

Authorities said Sunday Julio Morales, 27, and Anibal Rodriguez, 24, both of Bridgeport, walked away from the correction complex Saturday. Police said both men were being held on larceny related charges and were not considered dangerous.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter will ask Congress for $4.4 billion to carry out his long-awaited plan to revitalize America's cities and create a new partnership between federal, state, and local governments, administration officials said today.

The long-awaited comprehensive urban policy was set to be outlined at a 4 p.m. EST signing ceremony at the White House.

PORTSALL, France (UPI) — The French navy today considered dynamiting the wrecked supertanker Amoco Cadiz in an effort to release thousands of tons of oil remaining in ship's holds in history's worst maritime pollution accident.

"This is one of five or six or seven alternatives which are all under study," a senior navy officer said. "Absolutely no decision has been taken."

Two contracts let for Penney park

The Manchester Economic Development Commission this morning awarded two contracts for work connected with the industrial park in Buckland.

The major contract was awarded to Savin Bros. of Newington, a firm that bid $2.175 million for the work. The contract includes construction of the park's primary and secondary roads, a temporary bypass road, site grading and installation of utilities underneath the roads.

Alan Lamson, town planner, said that the town had budgeted $2.3 million for the work, so the bid from Savin Bros. was considered a good one.

Only one other firm bid for the work. Town Manager Robert Weiss said that the town had expected more than two bidders for the job.

"We're disappointed we didn't get more bids, but we're happy with the results," Weiss told the EDC.

Savin Bros. is connected with The Balf Co. of Newington which is doing the land clearing at the site. Since one contractor is doing all of the earth work, it will eliminate the possibility of any conflicts or coordination problems, Weiss said.

Lamson said that the temporary bypass road, which should be built by mid-April, will be considered a light-duty road. It will be torn up once the primary road through the park is completed, which should be by Nov. 1.

There will be a 10-ton limit for vehicles using the temporary road, Lamson said.

The EDC also approved a $12,024 contract to be awarded to Clarence Welti Associates of Glastonbury. The firm will be in charge of monitoring about 10 wells on the park site.

This testing will measure water quality, Lamson said. Walter Fuss, an engineer who has worked on the park project, said that the testing also will measure changes in the water table in the area.

The J.C. Penney Co. plans to build a two-million-square-foot catalog distribution center in the park. Work on clearing the site for that building is expected to begin today. The J.C. Penney building will be the major one in the park.

PZC to consider wetland dispute

The Manchester Planning and Zoning Commission will meet tonight at 7:30 to consider several old business items and discuss two new matters—a possible inland-wetlands violation on Vernon Street and a zoning regulation amendment concerning residential uses in a business zone.

The commission will meet in the Lincoln Center Conference Room.

The alleged inland-wetlands violation involves a single-family home at 806 Vernon St. Ernest Machell, zoning enforcement officer, has sent a letter to the owners of the property saying that there is siltation of an adjacent pond. Alan Lamson, town planner, and Carol Zebb, his assistant, inspected the site this morning and are expected to report to the commission tonight.

The PZC also is expected to begin discussion about the town's regulations for residential uses in a business zone.

According to the present zoning regulations, residential units are permitted "above ground level" in Business Zones I, II and III. And group dwellings, consisting of three to eight dwelling units, are prohibited.

Lamson said that his office has received a number of questions about the regulations, particularly concerning units on a second floor. Thus, the PZC is going to study whether changes should be made to make the regulations easier to understand.

The PZC may act on some old business items, including a proposed amendment that would eliminate the Zoning Board of Appeal's power to issue use variances.

A public hearing on the proposal drew opposition from several speakers, including members of the ZBA.

The commission also may act on the following items:

• A proposed subdivision on Hillstown Road being sought by Hayden Griswold.

Prober says structural engineer should have been on job site

HARTFORD (UPI) — The president of an engineering firm investigating the collapse of the Hartford Civic Center Coliseum roof says the cause-in might not have happened if a structural engineer was on hand while it was being built.

Charles E. Thornton, president of Lev Zetlin Associates of New York, told the New York Times Saturday undetected faulty design work probably figured significantly in the structural failure.

"If there had been a structural engineer present full-time at the construction site, he probably would have caught the errors that led to the collapse," he said.

He also said, "We are confident we've found the reasons for the roof collapse." He has not said what he thinks those reasons are.

The roof caved in under tons of ice, snow and rain shortly before dawn Jan. 18, just a few hours after 5,000 cheering basketball fans had left the sports arena.

Thornton said the snow "had certainly been a factor, but hardly the sole cause of the cave-in."

"In our experience, one single item usually normally causes a collapse; usually it is a combination of factors," Thornton told the Times.

The city's investigation into the collapse of its showpiece and major business attraction has found the computer-designed roof was sagging several inches in the middle.

Investigators say although it was designed to sag, there is evidence that four months after it was built, the unencumbered roof was found to be sagging more than designers had expected.

The 1,400-ton roof, which was one of the biggest ever built without supporting columns in the middle, was called a space frame and was supported by four massive concrete pillars at its corners.

Thornton said the snow "had certainly been a factor, but hardly the sole cause of the cave-in."

Lev Zetlin is scheduled to make his final report on May 1.

At the time the roof was built, rumors about its safety were so persistent that city architect Walter Reed sent a series of memos to Mayor George Athanson denying the charges.

The coliseum was the home of the New England Whalers hockey team, which has rescheduled its home games in the Springfield Civic Center.

Built in 1974 it soon became the focus of the city's rejuvenation program and was given most of the credit for causing a large upswing in downtown Hartford's economy.

The Hartford City Council has vowed to replace it with a bigger and better roof and expand its seating capacity by another 5,000 seats to about 15,000.

House, who became a judge 25 years ago and serving in the Legislature, said Superior Court judges will dislike presiding over routine court cases. He predicted the General Assembly will act to correct this situation by creating another lower court system.

House said the new system would probably consist of local tribunals—"like magistrate courts"—to handle less serious cases, just as the abolished Circuit Courts did.

He added it will be difficult to get qualified lawyers to accept judgeships in the new court system, because the Legislature has failed to increase judicial wages.

"A good attorney is not going to leave a lucrative practice to become an underpaid judge with uncertain assignment schedules, presiding over routine cases once handled by justices of the peace," he warned.

During his legal career, House served as an assistant state's attorney for Hartford county from 1942 to 1946 and helped prosecute and convict many criminals, sending four to the electric chair.

In 1941, he served terms in both the Connecticut House and Senate. He was Republican minority leader in the Senate in 1949.

He was appointed to the Superior Court in 1953 by Republican Gov. John Lodge.

Twelve years later, House was elevated to the Supreme Court and in 1971 was appointed as the high court's 29th Chief Justice.

He plans to serve as a state referee on legal disputes after his retirement.

NEW HAVEN (UPI) — A group of high school students believes juvenile offenders should be treated as adults.

It's a significant move away from the no-punishment philosophy of the juvenile court system, said Sen. Lawrence DeNardis, R-Hartford, chairman of the Legislature's Program Review and Investigations Committee.

DeNardis and Rep. Ernest Abate, D-Stamford, have different views on whether juvenile criminals should be treated more gently than adults.

Abate, co-chairman of the Legislature's Judiciary Committee, has been scheduled to join DeNardis in a debate at Hillhouse High School.

The debate was scheduled after a civics class of 44 freshmen were polled on their views of how juveniles, especially the 14-and-15-year-old age groups should be treated. They voted 75-1 that suspected juvenile murderers and repeat juvenile felons should be treated as adults.

Abate argued that juvenile court judges should be allowed to make their own decision on a case-by-case basis.

"The decision should be left in the hands of the juvenile judge," Abate said.

DeNardis said it is important to get tough with juveniles.

"We have to signal to the juvenile community that crime is no longer a lark," he said. "Many juveniles think, 'I might as well do it when I'm young, because I can get away with it.'"

The civics class, taught by Jeff Dyou, composed a letter stating their views on juvenile crime.

HARTFORD (UPI) — Retiring state Supreme Court Chief Justice Charles House says the Legislature is making a mistake by merging state courts into a single trial court judicial system.

The state's Probate Courts, however, will remain unaffected by the order which takes effect July 1.

Opinion

Soviet crime isn't news

The high price of coffee is no longer news to American readers, but the rarified height it has reached elsewhere did rate a recent item.
Unavailable for a time, coffee has reappeared in Soviet stores at a price equivalent to $12.73 per pound. That is more than four times what it cost before it disappeared from the shelves last year.
In the West, this would be taken as a classic case of explosive inflation. But not in the Soviet Union, since it's a matter of Marxist dogma that inflation is not supposed to happen in a Communist society.

But then, a lot of other things are not supposed to happen in a Communist society — such as crime.
Which must make numbers of Soviet citizens who are victims of muggings, beatings and worse wonder exactly what it is then that is happening to them.
Street crime is reported on the increase in the Soviet Union, to the concern of authorities unsure as to how to prevent its spread and to deal with its causes.

As detailed at length in a New York Times report, much of the violence is committed by young people, under 18, many of them school dropouts and unemployed. They operate in street gangs led by older youths and prey on old people, women and children. The gangs make their own weapons, knives and zippuns, and prowling parks and lonely nighttime streets for likely victims.
Urbanization and the rapid growth of industrial centers, turning much of a one-time rural population into city dwellers with both parents often working and a consequent weakening of traditional strong family bonds, is considered a primary cause of rising youth crime.
It sounds much like what the United States and other Western nations have experienced.

But there is one major difference in the Soviet situation. Crime or even the existence of a crime problem is not news as far as the Soviet press is concerned.

In the United States in particular, media publicizing of crime is often blamed for inciting others to criminal acts and compounding the problem.

The opposite is the Soviet case. It is official policy to keep all unsolved crime out of newspapers and broadcasts to avoid alarming the public. As a consequence, however, an uninformed public is easier to victimize. Unaware of danger, many potential victims venture into areas the prudently informed would avoid.

It appears that what some Soviet citizens don't know can indeed hurt them.

Bentley School on Hollister Street was called the Hollister Street School for many, many years before it became Bentley School.
That they were wrong.
The correct name, when the school was built, was the Warren G. Harding School. Hardly anyone ever called it that.

Last week we mentioned that Tom Bentley was still alive when the Board of Education named the school in his honor. He was there at its dedication, too. He was there to see his portrait hung in the school auditorium, a portrait by Kay Mollison.
To all whose lives touched him, Bentley epitomized the firm, yet gentle schoolmaster of an earlier era — tall, deep-voiced, with an erect bearing and smiling manner — his hair in later years a shock of silver.

He usually made the rounds of each classroom daily to talk with the children and the teachers. And he loved to tell stories. He had a deep respect for children, and the children loved him.
Bentley School had classes through the eighth grade, and then students went to Manchester High School, down at the lower end of Main Street now called Bennett Junior High. That's when the North End and South End kids really began to mix — as freshmen at high school.

He knew his pupils so well that many times he was able to help us in the placement of students at the school level," said Miss principal Ed Bailey when Tom died.
He came to Manchester in 1917 as principal of the Eighth School. At that time this included the Union and Robertson wings and four rooms in on North Main Street.
The Community Y over complete Bentley School on stayed there.

One seed of good will

To the editor:
Recent weeks have seen a dramatic increase in the number of letters being submitted to this column. Readers have been given the opportunity to learn the views of many of our citizens concerning a wide range of issues, and the exchange of ideas is indeed a healthy activity.
However, as I look back and review the scores of letters appearing in this column in the past couple months, I find a trend developing that is most disturbing. We, the residents of Manchester, seem to be caught up in a circle of criticizing, answering criticism with criticism, and dwelling on negative feelings.

No one would deny that our town is facing several controversial, emotional issues, and it is only natural that these questions prompt emotional responses. Nor should anyone deny our citizens the opportunity to be critical of the happenings that affect life in Manchester; the right to make our feelings known is a cherished freedom that must be respected.
But, perhaps, as we collectively shake off the effects of a long winter and recover from our annual bout with cabin fever, we can begin to look around Manchester and find that living and working here isn't so bad after all. We in Manchester are fortunate, we have a great deal in which to take pride. Let's not allow political differences, jurisdictional disputes, or economic difficulties to turn us against each other. Where these issues and problems exist, let's act as responsible citizens cooperating for a common purpose, the goal of making Manchester an even better place in which to live, play, and enjoy a living.

Our problems will not disappear and we must each continue to take the personal interest in all aspect of town affairs. But the next time we are out for a ride or walk, and around and begin to notice the things happening. We are 50,000 people with 50,000 contributions. We need you to be critical of the happenings please stop for just a moment to also find a reason to be proud.
Finally, let's not just hold good feelings in. Take a minute to share your thoughts with a neighbor or friend. Write to this column and let the rest of us know what you have found. Spring is the planting season, and if each of us can plant just one seed of good will, the Town of Manchester will surely flower for a long time to come.

Cordially,

Old trees, old houses

To the editor:
In 1911 Thomas J. Waddell Sr. built a home for his wife, four sons and one daughter, at 361 Main St. One of his sons growing up in this house was the first general manager of Manchester. George H. Waddell Thomas' wife did not live in her new home very long — she died of cancer less than a year after the home was finished.
Emily, the daughter, took care of the family until the oldest son, Walter, his wife and baby, moved in to help raise the other boys.
In 1921 Walter purchased the family home from his father. In those days people took such pride in their homes. The Victorian house with its well cared for grounds was just one of the many fine old homes in this area.

The Strants, Trotters, Crockets, Sheas, Walkers, Hales, Lambs, Ellisons, Bells, were all well-known and respected Manchester families.
Little by little the neighborhood changed. On the plus side — one of the Trotter homes was saved — it became the Holmes Funeral Home, another Trotter home was saved — the home of Paul and Noreen Phillips, the Hale home was saved — now Dr. Sheridan's office. The Ogden home was saved (he was the local photographer). It is now used for Philbrick Real Estate.

The Crockett home still stands as does the home of the Lambs and Ellisons (although a beauty shop and barber shop have been added in front). The Bell home still stands although the front is now the Memorial Corner Store.
On the minus side — the Strant home is gone — Gasland is now there.

In the community, he was an active Kiwanian for many years and was its president and its secretary. For 12 years he selected the underprivileged children chosen to attend Camp Kiwanis in Hebron, and then to the Salvation Army Camp at Coventry.
We've been trying to find someone who can reflect upon Camp Kiwanis in Hebron it was brought to our attention several months ago by Henry Gryk, who remembered going there. Anyone have information to pass along to us?
Bentley was active in Hartford County YMCA, served as a hospital trustee, and taught Sunday School at Second Congregational Church when it was known as North Congregational.

Mr. Bentley preceded his wife in death by five months, he in April and she in September of 1971. Mrs. Bentley was head librarian at Bolton Public Library for 28 years, was on the state Public Library Committee, an at-large member of its executive board, and often lectured on problems of rural libraries.
A Hyatt Sutcliffe, who started teaching under Bentley and later became principal of Iling Junior High, said of Mr. Bentley, "He was the same with all the teachers and the children. He always had a personal contact that no educator."
Manchester has a great educator Bentley School.

It was predictable
In my opinion, it was predictable on March 20, when Eighth District residents who oppose consolidation turned out en masse to defeat a proposal for forming a joint committee on consolidation.
It was predictable because, pursuant to Section 7-195 of the state's Home Rule Statute, the district's electorate, and not its board of directors, constitutes its legislative body, whereas, the exact opposite situation exists for the Town of Manchester, where its Board of Directors constitute the town's legislative body.
Hence, the overwhelming vote for the resolution by district voters — about 500 to 25. Opponents of the proposal made certain they were present for the vote. As noted the night of the action, no extended effort was made to get out the votes of those Eight District residents who favor consolidation and who signed petitions toward that end.

So, I suggest that we get on with the job calmly and with the reason that we knock off non-productive nonsense that doesn't help a soul or a cent.
I understand that the town is not planning to consolidate with the other districts.

Coordinator of volunteers for convalescent homes
When did you last visit one of our convalescent homes? Have you had a friend or relative confined to a home? If you have, you may have visited quite frequently. While doing this you may have noted residents who have few visitors or no visitors. Their loneliness is marked on their faces. What can we as a community do about this loneliness?
The Manchester Area Conference of Churches has been and still is trying to alleviate this loneliness through a one-to-one visitation program. A volunteer in this program is asked to make a commitment to one convalescent home resident. This commitment involves approximately one hour a week with the resident. In most cases, the hour a week can be at the volunteer's convenience.

The following incident illustrates how much a volunteer can mean to the individual:
An individual called the Project Service office indicating a desire to become a volunteer. The necessary arrangements were made through our office and the convalescent home. The day finally arrived for the volunteer to meet the resident.

Accompanying the volunteer proved to be a very rewarding experience for me, as well as the other people involved. The expression of joy in the resident's face was one I will always remember. She proudly introduced "her volunteer" to staff members.

The following weekly visits proved equally rewarding for the resident and the volunteer. The fact that someone cared enough to visit every week was extremely important to this individual.

The volunteer does not always receive such an outward expression of joy and appreciation. As the visits continue, a touch, a smile, or a light in someone's eye speaks for itself.

We have volunteers doing one-to-one visitation in four of our convalescent homes. We are extremely grateful to the people of Manchester who have come forward and made this commitment. If you would like to become involved in this program, please call us. The experience will be as rewarding for you as it is for the convalescent home resident.

In addition to the one-to-one visitation program, we are investigating the possibility of establishing an auxiliary to extend our volunteer services to convalescent homes. We are beginning, in a very small way, at the Crestfield Home.

Crestfield called us asking for volunteers to push their "cheer cart." St. Bartholomew's Ladies Guild was contacted and the response was extremely gratifying. Five people came forward to fill this need. They are working on a five-week rotation basis.
The patients are serviced once a week, requiring only about two hours a week every five weeks for the volunteers. The patients enjoy the opportunity to buy things they would otherwise have to ask someone to get for them. In addition, it provides another social contact for the patient.
We are hoping that this program will expand into other homes. We are presently looking into the feasibility of this for the Meadows Home.

We welcome your ideas and suggestions and any time you may have to offer to the convalescent homes.

Thoughts

Easter's joy is our joy!

For centuries, Easter has been known to millions of people throughout the world as "Easter's Gladdest Day." For Christians this is so because of the glorious message proclaimed in the Gospel: "You seek Jesus of Nazareth who was crucified; he is risen! He is not here!"
This thrilling announcement was first given by the angel of God to the three weeping women, who came to the tomb to anoint the body of Jesus. They were amazed and frightened; they could not believe this.

The disciples of Jesus could not believe it either, until later when Jesus revealed himself and spoke to them. The disciples were glad when they saw the risen Lord; their sorrow was turned to joy, and their doubts were turned to faith.
The resurrection of Jesus is the joy of the first Easter; it is the joy of every Easter. Jesus said to his disciples, and he says to us now, "Because I live, you shall live also." His resurrection assures us of our resurrection from the dead to life eternal, with him and with all our loved ones.

The resurrection gospel was made more real and meaningful to me personally in my life and ministry at the sudden death of my father several years ago, while I was serving a church in Pennsylvania. I had just preached this resurrection message on Easter Sunday in two congregations, and my father died on Saturday of that Easter week. A week later in the Sunday service, I preached another Easter message from experience as well as faith, and at that time I received added personal and spiritual strength from the church members.

Easter and springtime bring us joy in various ways, but let this glorious gospel message bring us the greatest and most lasting joy. And let us share this good news with everyone we know.
The 18th century hymnwriter, Samuel Medley, expressed his testimony of Easter's joy in these words:
I know that my redeemer lives
What joy the blest assurance gives!
He lives, he lives once was dead
He lives, my everliving head.
May this Easter joy and blessing be yours!
Rev. Andrew Kazar

Kidnappers free Empain

PARIS (UPI) — The kidnappers of Baron Edouard-Jean Empain, one of Europe's wealthiest men, released the industrialist Sunday night without harming him and without collecting their $8 million ransom.

Empain was forced to wear chains and a hood and had part of his little finger chopped off by his abductors before his liberation Easter Sunday, police said.

The kidnappers freed Empain in suburban Ivry on the southeast edge of Paris after holding him two months and three days. He took a 20-minute subway ride to the square in front of the Opera House in central Paris where he telephoned his wife.

The abductors released Empain after one captured gang member, Alain Caillot, 36, was convinced by police Sunday the kidnappers would never receive the ransom and Caillot would be charged with murder if the baron were executed.

In the presence of police, Caillot telephoned the kidnappers, dialing several agonizing times before getting an answer.

He then said, according to police, "Let the baron go. It's useless. You'll never get the ransom."

Commissioner Pierre Ottavio, head of the police criminal division, smiled broadly after he questioned the freed 40-year-old tycoon in his luxurious apartment Sunday night.

Caillot was captured in a police shootout Friday when some of the gang showed up at a rendezvous on the highway from Paris to Orly Airport to pick up the ransom. A second kidnapper was killed.

Ottavio quoted Empain as saying he was "treated badly" in his "prison," which moved to several locations during the two months.

He wore chains and a hood. The lower third of his left little finger was chopped off by the abductors and sent to his wife three days after the Jan. 23 kidnapping as proof they held him.

The liberation of the handsome baron, blond and square-jawed, was as colorful as his life.

The kidnappers gave Empain a little money when they freed him on a sidewalk in Ivry. The multimillionaire took the subway to the brilliantly lit Place d'Opera square and with the remaining money telephoned his wife from a public booth in the Opera Dragstore on the square.

The black-haired, Italian-born baron sped with police to the Opera square where she and the baron were reunited. The baron's Empain-Schneider conglomerate makes steel, heavy machinery and atomic power plants. It owns 150 companies with 130,000 employees.

Both parties seem headed to primaries

By United Press International

For the first time ever, both Connecticut Republicans and Democrats appear headed for statewide gubernatorial primaries.

Campaign managers this weekend counted noses among the 1,349 Democratic and 988 Republican delegates to the state party conventions that were endorsed last week in the state's 169 cities and towns.

But a solid count was impossible because hundreds of the delegates remain uncommitted.

There are six declared candidates. The Democrats are Gov. Ella T. Grasso and Lt. Gov. Robert K. Killian.

Republican candidates are Rep. Ronald A. Sarasin, R-Conn.; Sen. Lewis B. Rome, R-Bloomfield; Sen. George Gunther, R-Stratford; and Rep. Gerald Stevens, R-Milford.

The state conventions will be held in July.

But any challenger winning at least 20 percent of the delegates may demand a primary. All registered party members may vote in September, with the winner getting the nomination.

The candidates may also demand local primaries to decide each community's delegates to the state convention. Local primaries will be held May 2 with the candidate's having until April 7 to do the necessary paperwork.

Among those pushing for local primaries is Killian who says he already has enough delegates to force a September 12 primary, but wants a shot at capturing all 87 Hartford delegates.

Mrs. Grasso has refused to talk politics with reporters, but says she believes Killian when he says he has enough delegates for a statewide primary.

TOWN OF MANCHESTER, CONNECTICUT

March 23, 1978

TO: BOARD OF DIRECTORS FROM: R.S. WEISS, GENERAL MANAGER SUBJECT: Recommended Budget Fiscal Year Beginning July 1, 1978

The General Fund recommended budget is $27,861,728, an increase of 12.3%. This recommendation includes proposed appropriations for the Capital Improvement Budget and the Board of Education's Regional Occupational Training Center. These items have previously been appropriated during the Fiscal Year. The proposed mill rate is 37.0 mills, a reduction of 18.06 mills. This has been determined on the basis of an adjusted net taxable grand list. Several decisions affecting the net taxable grand list are pending by the Board of Tax Review.

The Fire District recommended budget is $2,104,646, an increase of 10%. This recommendation again includes a proposed appropriation in the Contingency Account of $106,000, for the possible repayment of disputed taxes from the Buckland appeal. The proposed mill rate is 4.67 mills, a reduction of 2.24 mills. This has also been determined on the basis of an adjusted net taxable grand list, pending decisions by the Board of Tax Review.

The Special Taxing District recommended budget is $59,600, with no increase. The proposed mill rate is 12 mills, constant from Fiscal Year 1978.

The Water and Sewer recommended budgets total $2,486,803, an increase of 12.2%. The rates for the sale of water remain constant. An increase is proposed in Water Connection Charges. The sewer service rates also remain constant. However, a restructuring of the rate schedule to disallow favored treatment of large users is proposed.

The Data Processing recommended budget is $241,177, an increase of .5%. The proposed sources of revenue include 7% increases in charges to the Town and Board of Education and a 5% increase to the Water Department.

Robert B. Weiss, General Manager

New cure for energy headaches: two aspirin and plenty of RESP.

One big energy headache is your home. You've got to heat it in winter. Keep it cool in summer. And everything from your furnace to frying pan, needs costly energy to work.

That's why Northeast Utilities is offering RESP, our "Residential Energy Savers Program." Headed by a group of energy experts, RESP evening seminars teach you valuable tips on cutting home energy costs.

You can learn how to insulate your home. How to weather-strip and caulk doors and windows. Even how to select appliances that will save you money.

And you'll be able to tally up, in dollars and cents, how much these energy-saving steps could save you in the future.

Northeast Utilities' RESP seminars are completely free of charge. If you wish to invite a RESP speaker to your civic, church, or community group, call the electric company office nearest you. Or write: Ralph Marrore, Northeast Utilities, P.O. Box 1953, Hartford, Connecticut 06144.

You'll discover that after an evening of RESP, you'll have found relief for your energy headaches.

Legislator favors strict rules on police chases

MADISON (UPI) - A state lawmaker says it is important to pass a bill regulating high-speed police chases because present policies are too vague and endanger lives. Rep. Linda Ermoss, R-Madison, also said Sunday the bill should set harsh penalties on people who don't stop when ordered to by police. She said a strong deterrent is needed to prevent drivers from running away from police, causing the high-speed chases.

"A fine and less of a driver's license should make a driver think seriously about disobeying the directions of a police officer to stop, and subsequently take off to avoid apprehension," she said. The proposal bill recommends that any person who fails to heed a policeman's orders to stop shall be fined up to $2,000 and have his driver's license suspended for six months.

Subsequent offenses would bring jail terms. Pursuit is defined in the bill as "an attempt by a police officer in an authorized emergency vehicle to apprehend one or more occupants of another moving motor vehicle, when the driver of the fleeing vehicle is attempting to avoid apprehension by maintaining or increasing his speed or by ignoring the police officer's attempt to stop him."

The bill proposes that a police officer in pursuit of a suspect must tell his supervisor of the chase and why he is in pursuit. The officer would have to stop the chase if the supervisor orders it ended. The chase would also have to be stopped if the supervisor cannot be reached.

The bill was prompted by the death of a Madison man who was killed when his pickup truck was struck by a car being chased by police. Police suspected the car was stolen.

Blue Cross still seeks rate hike

HARTFORD (UPI) - Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Connecticut Inc. has not given up its fight to get permission to raise its premium rates for its Century Contract plan.

A lawsuit has been filed in Hartford Common Pleas Court by the company over the rejected increase for the Century Contract which provides medical insurance for more than one million Connecticut residents.

The lawsuit also challenges the State Insurance Department's refusal to let the company increase the fees it pays to doctors participating in the program. Thomas R. Benson, a Blue Cross spokesman said Sunday.

Blue Cross wanted to increase the Century Contract rates by 25 percent and the physician payments by 27 percent. The company said 103 doctors dropped out of the program last year and another 72 this year.

Insurance Commissioner Joseph C. Mike ruled in December that Blue Cross had failed to present sufficient evidence to justify the increases.

Police panel still unclear on its role

NEW HAVEN (UPI) - A 15-member citizens panel has been appointed to "advise" the state police, but its members say they don't know what that advice is supposed to be.

"I feel like an empty computer," said committee member Dorothy W. Ripley, who raises horses on her Litchfield farm. "We don't have to know where we're going, but it would be nice to have guidelines to get us started," Frances Pascale, Mathematics Department chairman at Albertus Magnus College, said Sunday.

The unit was formed by Gov. Ella T. Grasso after criticism of the way state police investigators cling to the theory Peter A. Reilly killed his mother, Barbara Gibbons, even though a one-man grand jury cleared him.

Ms. Pascale said she hopes the Reilly case will fade from the spotlight and hopes the committee will not take up the case.

She said the panel "may very well be a political gimmick. 'This is an election year,' she said. "But whether it is or isn't a public relations gimmick, once born, it has a life of its own," she said.

Mrs. Grasso, when swearing in the 15-member group two weeks ago, said it is not a "witch-hunting expedition." But she didn't have much to say about what the group is.

Ms. Pascale said the group should not be overly restricted.

"We should not be fearful of certain areas simply because this hasn't been done before," she said. "I don't see the committee as snooping around and coming out with many suggestions, but making them as they evolve."

"I don't feel we're there to judge people we're working with, but to act as liaison with community, state police and the governor's office," Ms. Pascale said.

Paul K. Taft, president of Connecticut Public Television, said, "We shouldn't interfere with day-to-day operation of the department."

Occupants hospitalized Saturday

This 1974 Pinto stands in the center of Scotland Road, East Hartford, Saturday after 8:23 p.m. when it was struck by the car driven by Mark S. Potvin, 18, of 58 Wells Ave., East Hartford, police said. Its passengers were still in Hartford hospitals this morning. Beth Warren, 16, of Foley Circle was at Hartford Hospital in "stable" condition with facial injuries. Vicki Adams, 16, of 5 Andover Road was "doing well" in Mount

Sinai with leg lacerations. The driver, Anne P. Bachand, 16, of 188 Great Hill Road, was treated at Hartford Hospital and released. Police charged Potvin with reckless driving. A third car driven by Julia Adams, 24, of 65 Andover Road struck the Pinto after it had been hit by the Potvin car, police said. All three cars were towed away by wreckers. (Photo by Steve Roussel)

Two hurt in Manchester crash

Two men sustained multiple injuries and were admitted to Manchester Memorial Hospital Sunday night as the result of an accident on North Main Street. Police said the car in which the two men were riding struck a flatbed truck coming out of the Georgia-Pacific Corp. Clayton R. Wilcox, 28, of 1214 Burrside Ave., East Hartford, was the driver of the car, and Warren Occonalini, 33, of 50B Downey Drive, a passenger in the car, were in satisfactory condition at the hospital today. The driver of the truck, William J. Lewis, 30, of 335 Buckland Road, South Windsor, was not injured. Police said Lewis was charged with failure to grant the right of way at a driveway.

The Eighth District firefighters who were called to the scene at 7:35 p.m. said the car was underneath the flatbed of the tractor-trailer and the two men were trapped inside the car. Firefighters said that the car hit the rear wheels of the truck, bounced off them and became pinned under the truck. The police report was incomplete.

Three Emergency Medical Technicians from the Eighth District Fire Department, Chris Marvin, Jim Sarels and Lt. Victor LeGeyt, climbed into the car and gave the victims medical treatment. The firefighters used hand tools and the Harst Rescue Tool to pull the dashboard and the steering wheel away from the victims. Thirty-seven district firefighters responded to the call with Engine 1 and Rescue 5, but there was no danger of fire. The accident victims were taken by Manchester Ambulance Service to the hospital.

Jury awards $875,000 in malpractice suit

A Superior Court jury has awarded $875,000 in damages to the heirs of a Manchester man who died August 1973 in Manchester Memorial Hospital after an undiagnosed case of diabetes. The Danbury jury deliberated about three hours last Thursday after hearing six weeks of testimony in the case. Michael P. Koskoff, attorney for the estate of Paul Thompson, tried to prove that the deceased didn't receive proper care from the hospital, its emergency room physician, the late Dr. John Prignano, and the hospital's employees, according to Joel H. Lichtenstein, Koskoff's co-counsel. Lichtenstein said the award, which was probably the largest death suit awarded on the bases of malpractice charges, has been appealed to the trial judge, T. Clark Hull, II. Lichtenstein said the decision both contrary to law and excessive. Lichtenstein today said the verdict was a fair one considering it was for 28-year-old man's life lost. He said Thompson had been married only eight years and was "just beginning to get settled." Thompson was a machinist and the father of three children. It will probably be several months, Lichtenstein said, before the appeal is decided. The plaintiff's attorney with Lichtenstein presented evidence that the defendants failed to properly diagnose or treat Thompson when he arrived at the hospital Aug. 28, 1973, in a dehydrated condition after which he soon went into a diabetic coma. Koskoff and Lichtenstein said that Thompson had no known history of diabetes. In their presentation, the plaintiff's attorneys showed that Dr. Prignano failed to give insulin or sufficient intravenous fluids to Thompson, and that attending nurses failed to observe the patient's rapid weight loss, deteriorating condition before his personal physician arrived nearly two and a half hours after Thompson entered the hospital. Lichtenstein said that Thompson died about an hour after his doctor arrived. Officials at the hospital would not comment on the malpractice suit, saying any opinions expressed might jeopardize the physician's final decision. The final suit.

might jeopardize the physician's final decision. The final suit.

Plots still open in victory garden

The Manchester Victory Gardens has openings in the regular garden section and the organic sections. Each plot is measured 20x20 feet. There is a one-time fee to those persons who can afford it, and no charge for those who can't. Anyone interested in working one of these garden plots can call John L. Jurewicz, co-chairman, at 646-8207. Plots are limited to town residence only. The land was once the Lewis farm, located on East Middle Turnpike, now owned by the Town of Manchester. It is loaned out to the Manchester Victory Gardens and presently going into its fourth successful season.

Exercise classes set for seniors

The Manchester Public Health Nursing Association (MPHNA) geriatric program will offer a series of exercise classes for senior citizens beginning Tuesday. The classes will meet for six consecutive Tuesdays through May 2 from 2 to 3 p.m. at the Senior Citizens Center. Men and women are welcome to attend the course which is free. This is a program of exercise that has been designed specifically for the older adult. The class will be led by Susan Wyatt, a senior nursing student at the University of Connecticut. Those attending are asked to wear loose, comfortable clothes. For more information, call the MPHNA, 647-1481.

YWCA seeking staff for summer day camp

The Nutmeg Branch YWCA of the Hartford Region, 78 N. Main St., is now accepting applications for staff positions at its summer day camp, and also for a summer secretary/receptionist. The Day Camp director must be someone over twenty-one years of age with prior camp or other administrative and supervisory experience related to working with children. A college degree in recreation or a related field is desirable. Camp counselors must be over 16 years of age with prior camp or other experience in working with children. Also, an ability to plan and carry out activities in one specific area of camp program is necessary.

Another consideration is that of water safety instructor. This individual must be over age twenty, with a current rating of Red Cross water safety instructor, as well as some experience in teaching swimming. Also needed for day camp is a health care person, over 21 years of age with current Red Cross Standard First Aid and Personal Safety Training certification, plus certification in cardio-pulmonary resuscitation. All of the above positions are for an eight-week period of summer day camp, beginning June 26 and running to Aug. 18. The camp serves children six to eleven years of age, and each weekly session meets Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Camp activities include swimming, hiking, arts and crafts, sports and games and field trips. One other position available is that of summer secretary/receptionist, at the Nutmeg Branch. The position is for 10 weeks, June 19 through Aug. 25 from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m., Monday through Friday. The job requires a knowledge of office skills and management, typing and an ability to work well with the public. Applications may be obtained from the YWCA office, 78 N. Main St. For further information, please contact Merle Stoner, assistant branch director at 647-1437.

Directors to begin town budget review

The Manchester Board of Directors tonight begins its six-week process of reviewing, cutting and revising the 1978-79 budget. Working against a May 7 deadline, the board will hold the first of what will be many workshops on the budget. Tonight's session probably will be the quietest of the six-week period. The board has not yet received Town Manager Robert Weiss's proposed budget, but copies of the document are expected to be handed out tonight to the board. Weiss has proposed a $27,861,728 budget for 1978-79, an increase of 12.2 percent over the present year budget. Mayor Stephen Penny said that tonight's session will include an overview by Weiss on his budget and requested increase. The directors also will discuss a format for their workshop session and their approach to reviewing the manager's requested budget. The budget, as proposed by Weiss, would result in a substantial increase in taxes for property owners. Most homeowners would face increases of more than 30 percent. Revaluation has doubled the assessed value of most homes. Commercial properties have not increased as much. Also, the assessed value is now based on 70 percent, rather than 65 percent, of the home's value. Thus, these factors combine to create the substantial tax hike. Members of the board, however, already have pledged to cut the manager's proposal. Where those cuts are made, and how large the cuts are, will be decided during the upcoming workshops and party caucuses of the board members. Director Joseph Sweeney pointed to the increase in taxes most town homeowners would now face under the proposed budget. "We've got to be extremely cautious of how we spend the taxpayer's money," he said this morning. Other directors and both party leaders also have indicated that the Weiss budget will face substantial cuts. Next Monday, the annual public hearing on the budget will be held. The meeting is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. at Waddell School.

Police report

About $1,300 worth of merchandise was stolen from the K-Mart on Spencer Street Friday afternoon about 4 when thieves entered the store which has been closed for business since its roof collapsed in mid-January. Police recovered a large number of the stolen items dropped by the thieves. The police chased two male suspects by a car on Forbes Street in East Hartford where they disappeared. The recovered items included three air rifles, 37 tape cassettes, three electric guitars, a moto-cross bicycle and several other items. Police said the thieves apparently entered the business over a wall. Two stereo speakers were reported stolen from a Main Street apartment last week. A residential burglary was reported on Grissom Road, but it was not known what was taken. Over $2,000 worth of rings and other jewelry were reported missing from a vanity table after a West Middle Turnpike resident moved Friday. A painter's truck with a ladder belonging to Converse Co. of Bolton was reported stolen at Main and Oak streets Thursday. Arrests over the weekend included: Donald D. Herington Jr., 17, of 193 Homestead St., charged with possession of a controlled substance (less than four ounces) and operating under the influence of intoxicating drugs early Sunday. Court date is April 10. Jewel C. Davis, 22, of 157 School St., East Hartford, charged with third-degree larceny in connection with a shoplifting incident at Marshalls Saturday. Court date is April 10. David M. Pattison, 23, of 6 Great Hill Road, East Hartford, charged with reckless driving Sunday. Court date is April 11. John W. Gillespie, 20, of 11 B2 Columbus Circle, East Hartford, charged with evading responsibility in connection with an accident at Adams Street north of West Middle Turnpike last Tuesday. Court date is April 11. Larry L. Corbin, 29, of 52 Arch St., was charged with evading responsibility, driving under the influence of alcohol, and operating a car with a suspended driver's license Saturday afternoon. Police said Corbin's car swerved onto a sidewalk and hit a stone wall at 33 Cooper St. He left the scene and was found a short distance away. Donald E. Wilson, 21, of 185 Union St., sustained a fractured arm as the result of an auto accident at Center and Broad streets Friday. He was also charged with misuse of a limited motorcycle license. Police said his motorcycle was in collision with a car driven by Duane K. Abney, 21, of Marlborough who was charged with failure to grant the right of way. Wilson was treated and released at Manchester Memorial Hospital. Steven A. Punt, 25, of 5 Linwood Drive, East Hartford, sustained multiple facial injuries and a fractured collarbone as the result of an accident on Center Street, west of Love Lane, Friday. He was admitted to Manchester Memorial Hospital Friday and was discharged Saturday. Punt was also charged with reckless driving in connection with the accident. Police said his car crossed the center lane of the highway, struck wires and a post and rolled over. Punt had to be pried from the vehicle, police said. His court date is April 11. Steven A. ## Clark is victor in Vernon race

Bruce Clark, 22, of East Hampton was first over the finish line in Saturday's Rabbit Run road race in Vernon. Clark is a graduate of the University of Connecticut and finished the five-mile race in 24:25. He is a former captain of the UConn track team and former New England Intercollegiate champion. He is also a familiar figure each year in Manchester's Thanksgiving Day road race. Of the more than 300 participants in the race, 33 were women. Jacqueline Snyder of New Haven, with a time of 32:35, was the first woman to cross the finish line. Seven members of the David Kittredge family of Tracy Drive, Vernon, participated, including father and six children. All six children finished before the head of the family. Dr. Charles Robbins of Middletown and formerly of Manchester, a veteran runner, didn't pass up the chance to run again Saturday and despite the cool weather he ran, as usual, without foot covers. The race route stretched over many hilly areas of Rockville and was designed to form the shape of a rabbit's head. The race is always held the Saturday before Easter. Winners in the other categories were: Dan Grace of New Canaan, Men's Masters for those 40 to 50 years old; Hal Bennett, of Uncasville, Men's Submasters, 35-40 years old; John Trewhorthy of Vernon, Men's Grandmasters, 50 to 60 years old; and Luke O'Connor of Rockville, Men's Juniors, 18 and younger. The race is sponsored by the Greater Vernon Jaycees.

School board to set interview procedure

The Board of Education, at its meeting tonight at 7:30 at the Middle School, will set up procedures for interviewing candidates for the position of superintendent of schools. Charles Brown, chairman of the Superintendent Selection Committee, said the committee had narrowed the field to 11 semi-finalists and from those selected five to be interviewed by the Board of Education. Dr. Raymond Ramsdell, now superintendent, will be retiring at the end of this school year. The board will also be asked to act on the resignations of Mrs. Georgette Creagan, secretary to the curriculum supervisors and psychological examiners; Mrs. Lois Falkenstein, learning disabilities teacher at Lake Street School; and Mrs. Phyllis Norwood, teacher of the perceptually handicapped at the Vernon Elementary School. Dr. Albert Kerkin, assistant superintendent, will report on proposed revisions to the teacher handbook regarding the administering of medication. The proposed revision has been approved by Dr. Harold Shapiro, school physician, and is a modification designed to conform with more recent state legislation. Dr. Kerkin will also report on the status of the special education program in Vernon. He said adjusting to new mandates of the state is being slowly phased in. He said there have been three in-service programs and a college course offered at the Middle School. Dr. Kerkin will explain what it costs the board to pay for education of students placed outside the Vernon system.

Golf league to form

The South Windsor Recreational Department will hold an organizational meeting for the men's golf league Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the Town Hall council chambers. Anyone interested in participating in this year's league is asked to be present at this meeting. League rules, schedules and other pertinent information will be presented. The league will play at Red Rock Golf Course on Wednesday evenings. For further information contact the Recreational Department at 644-2511.

'Kids in trouble' topic at library

The Rockville Public Library will present a program on "Kids in Trouble, Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. Harold Deslisle, juvenile officer for the Vernon Police Department, will speak on the causes of childhood crime and explain about peer and social pressures. He will discuss the problems young people have with drugs and alcohol. Deslisle said, "Vernon residents do not realize that the same problems exist in Vernon as do in the larger cities where they receive more publicity." He will stress the need for parents to recognize their children's problems from the outset and to deal with them through open communication. A discussion period will follow. The program is the third in a series of seven being presented at the library. For more information call the library, 872-4710.

Aquifer change asked of PZC

The Coventry Planning and Zoning Commission (PZC) will hold a public hearing tonight at 8 on the petition of Thomas and Anita McLaughlin for a proposed amendment to the town's river/aquifer regulations. The commission is expected to make a decision on the laws to allow a septic sludge treatment facility in river/aquifer zones. They have expressed a desire to build such a plant at their gravel pit on Plains Road. The commission is expected to make a decision on the application of the Eastcoast Development Corp. for a large subdivision on a triangular parcel bounded by North River, Goose Lane, and Merrow Road. Town Planner Gregory Padick said he favors conditional approval. The PZC may nullify a conditional approval granted to Barak Homes for a 340-unit apartment complex on Arrowhead Ridge off Route 6. Since the approval was granted last year, the developer has made no attempt to comply with the conditions and is believed to have dropped the project for lack of financing. The commission plans to hold an executive session to discuss a pending lawsuit against the town filed by Realtor Richard Ereen, who is attempting to quash a new regulation that requires a 150-foot separation distance between a septic system and a watercourse and a 50-foot setback from wetlands. Ereen claims the rule could inhibit development of several properties he owns in town. The PZC will accelerate its work on a master plan of development for the town. The sections on commercial and industrial areas and on residential use have been completed, with most of the research having been done by Padick.

Town gets $7,924 in disaster fund

Coventry Town Manager Frank Connolly said Coventry has received a reimbursement check for $7,924 under the Federal Disaster Assistance program. The check represents a 75 percent refund for expenses incurred for contractual services during Blizzard Larry. Civil Defense Coordinator Ernest Wheeler, who is also the town's zoning agent, and Connolly recently attended a meeting in the State Armory in Hartford where Gov. Ella Grasso handed the checks out and discussed the civil preparedness programs designed to assist in flooding operations in the state. Last week the town received a check for $21,103 from the state to finance snow removal operations. Both checks will be turned over to the Town Council along with Connolly's recommendations for appropriations in regard to the depleted accounts for snow removal in the Highway Department's budget. The town manager said he is pleased with the rapid processing of the federal disaster check, which involved "a very strong coordinating effort by the state Department of Transportation, the state offices of Civil Preparedness and Policy and Management, and the town's Highway, Department and bookkeeper."

Tired Whalers play little harder and result is 5-3 win over Oilers

Mark Howe

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (UPI) — New England Whaler Coach Harry Neale says they're tired — just a little harder.

New England, playing its fifth game in six days, was pressed Sunday to hold onto second place in the World Hockey Association with a 5-3 win over the Edmonton Oilers.

Mark Howe's short shot on a corner feed from his father, Gordie, gave the Whalers their insurance goal.

Life outside baseball shock to Hank Aaron

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — It came as an enormous shock to Hank Aaron that there was another world outside baseball.

and in 1974 after he broke it with the Braves. Aaron was butted-holed, besieged and badgered practically everywhere he went.

"I got so I hated people," said Aaron, who actually doesn't hate that kind of nature.

"For 23 years, I got so used to being focused one way that it was like I had a harness on my head just looking and thinking about playing baseball. Last year, when I stopped playing, I found out there were a lot of things going on in the world that I didn't know existed."

"My whole world had been baseball. Nothing at all. The biggest thing I had to do in my own mind was tell myself, 'Henry, your career is finished. It's over. It's time for you to get back in touch with reality.'"

Hank Aaron

Aaron's wife, Billye, helped him make the difficult adjustment. She encouraged him to become more involved in such things as the NAACP, civic and church affairs.

Aaron listened to the young outfielder. He was sympathetic but explained the Braves didn't make the kind of money last year the Yankees or Dodgers did.

Some of the adulation has diminished, naturally, and for that, he is grateful.

On the day Aaron spoke to me about how his life has changed since he took off his uniform, one of Atlanta's farm hands with Richmond of the International League where the average salary runs about $1,200 a month, came to talk to him about some more money.

Mantle happy to be alive, RSox want to swing deal

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (UPI) — Every now and then, Mickey Vernon can't help looking back a little. "I didn't think I'd live this long," he confesses the 46-year-old former Yankee slugger whose father died at 41.

Mantle, who has played in nine years now, never left a second this spring on his 24-year-old son, Mickey, Jr., who came to the Yankees' camp for a tryout.

Red Sox trying to swing a deal with the Indians, which they feel would assure them the Eastern Division title. They're trying to land Dennis Eckerley, Cleveland's 14-game winner last year, and are willing to give up Rick Wise, Ted Cox, who broke in with them so spectacularly last September, and one of their two young pitchers, either Mike Paxton or Bob Stanley.

People always want to talk to Pete Rose about his hitting ability but he's rather down on its durability. "I've missed only two games since 1971," he says. "You think I don't get headaches like everyone else? I stay up with ice packs all night. But I want to play. I love it."

Bruins content with tie

BOSTON (UPI) — A tie game usually leaves somebody unhappy, but that didn't seem the case Sunday night when the Boston Bruins and Montreal Canadiens played to a 2-2 deadlock in Boston.

The Canadiens, who beat Boston four straight games last year to win the Stanley Cup final, now have 120 points. Boston, in second place overall, has 105 points with seven games to play.

Boston coach Don Cherry was impressed by his team's effort after taking a delayed Sunday morning flight out of Atlanta and being stalled in Connecticut for several hours because it was snowing in Boston.

Boston took the early lead when Wayne Cashman scored on a deflection at 10:11 of the first period. The Canadiens tied the game at 2:51 of the second period on Steve Shutt's 45th goal. Shutt then set up Jacques Lemaire for a breakthrough goal at 9:40 of the middle period that sent Montreal ahead, 2-1.

Boston's Brad Park got the final goal at 19:37 of the second period.

Havlicek honored but held in check

SEATTLE (UPI) — The Seattle SuperSonics paid tribute to retiring John Havlicek during halftime ceremonies, then ungraciously applied defensive clamps to the 16-year veteran as they defeated the Boston Celtics Sunday 112-101.

Havlicek, 36, scored 15 of his 17 points in the first half, hitting seven of 10 shots from the field, as the Celtics took a 53-50 halftime advantage. But, the Celtics' swagman could make only one of eight shots from the floor the rest of the way as Seattle outscored Boston 31-24 in each of the two remaining quarters.

Gus Williams did much of the damage for Seattle, canning 22 of his game-high 34 points after the intermission.

Williams netted eight points during a 17-4 third quarter Sonic blitz. "When you have Gus going one on one, he can beat anybody going to the basket," said Boston coach Tom Sanders. "He certainly proved that today."

Williams hit on 15 of 25 field goal attempts. High scorer for Boston was Dave Cowens with 21 points.

Cowens denies report

SEATTLE (UPI) — Boston Celtics' center Dave Cowens, who took a sabbatical from National Basketball Association competition last season, says a report he is retiring at the end of the current season is "a total farce."

The Boston Sunday Globe reported sources inside the Boston organization claim Cowens has notified the club he wants to leave the game because it is no longer as fun.

Cowens left the team early in the 1976-77 season and stayed away for 36 games because of personal reasons. He claimed then he had lost his enthusiasm for basketball.

This season, though, he is the third leading rebounder in the NBA as well as the most consistent player on the faltering Celtics squad, which Sunday lost its 43rd game of the season to the Seattle SuperSonics 112-101.

Dear Abby By Abigail Van Buren. DEAR ABBY: Thanks for your understanding reply to that 13-year-old girl who said she nearly died of embarrassment when taking gym showers after go. I hope her mother follows your advice and goes to the principal to demand some privacy for her daughter.

Win at Bridge Minor suit bid tips play. DEAR ABBY: I must disagree with your answer to the teenager who hated group showers. I, too, was terribly embarrassed when confronted with group showers in junior high. My mother wanted to go to school to defend my right to privacy, but I begged her not to because I was afraid the other kids would tease me if I got special treatment. Now I'm glad she didn't go, because by the end of high school I overcame my feeling of "shame" about my body.

Massage parlor law faces new challenge

Owners of Manchester's two massage parlors will start another round in court today to challenge the town's ordinance governing their businesses. Cleopatra's and The Body Shop, both located on Main Street, are seeking a temporary injunction against the ordinance. A hearing has been set for today in the U.S. District Court in Hartford.

Last October, Judge Joseph H. Goldberg of Hartford County's Court of Common Pleas ruled against issuing a temporary injunction requested by massage parlor owners in Set 'em Up Campaign Hal-

Manchester and Hartford. Both communities last year enacted legislation governing parlors. Now, the owners of Manchester's two parlors, acting separately from the Hartford owners, will seek an injunction on the federal level.

Massages parlor law faces new challenge

Manchester's ordinance says that the massage parlors and employees were to have been licensed by March 14. The town, however, has issued only one license, that to the European Health Spa. Massage parlor owners have questioned the constitutionality of the ordinance, which establish education requirements for employees and govern such things as closing times and dress of employees.

GOP rally Friday

The First Congressional District Republican Organization will hold a party Friday from 7:30-10 p.m. at the Veteran's Memorial Clubhouse on Sunset Ridge in East Hartford.

All four Republican candidates for governor are expected to attend. The event will include hors d'oeuvres and a cash bar. Tickets may be obtained from Robert Von Deck, 55 Eva Drive, Manchester. His phone number is 643-0651. All area Republicans are invited.

Elderly offered help with taxes

Free federal income tax assistance in the Manchester and East Hartford areas is available to many low-income and elderly taxpayers. Low-income individuals and older Americans with relatively simple tax status can obtain help in preparing basic tax forms through the Volunteer Income Tax Assistance (VITA) Program.

Volunteer assistants are trained in basic income tax preparation by the IRS and will assist taxpayers in a step-by-step completion of Form 1040 and 1040A. Taxpayers can also receive information on tax benefits such as the earned income credit, general tax credit and pension benefits.

Many taxpayers find VITA assistance easier to use than IRS Taxpayer Service because of location and hours. VITA assistance will be offered at the following locations:

- Manchester Senior Citizens Center, 63 Linden St., Manchester, 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. Tuesdays.
- East Hartford Public Library, Main St., East Hartford, 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. Mondays.
- First Federal Savings Bank, 344 W. Middle Turnpike, Manchester, 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. Thursdays.
- United Methodist Church, Rockville, Conn. 10 a.m. to noon Tuesdays.

Area police report

South Windsor
Ralph Martin, 45, of Hartford was charged early today with third-degree assault, on complaint of a resident of Candlewood Drive who told police Martin struck her.

The woman was treated and released at Manchester Memorial Hospital. Martin was released on a $1,000 nonreturn bond for appearance in Common Pleas Court 12, East Hartford April 10.

Uragi
Uragi Bakovey, 22, of Hartford was charged late Friday night with criminal attempt to commit first-degree burglary.

The arrest was made in connection with the investigation of a complaint made by a Chapel Road resident. He is scheduled to appear in court in East Hartford April 10.

South Windsor
Neal R. Mackey, 21, of Carriage Drive, South Windsor, was charged Sunday morning with breach of the peace in connection with the investigation of a disturbance at The Lounge on Sullivan Avenue. He was released on a $500 nonreturn bond for appearance in court April 10.

South Windsor Police are investigating the complaint of the theft of a 10-speed bicycle from a yard on Beechbub Road and the theft of nine cases of soda and some lumber from Galm Industries on Bidwell Road. They are also investigating a break into a Barber Hill Road home in which a camera, valued at $400, was taken.

Vernon
James Wajda, 25, of 22 Jefferson St., Manchester, and Tadeusz Wajda, 32, of High Street, Rockville, were charged Saturday with third-degree larceny.

The arrests were made in connection with the investigation of the theft of about $55 worth of lumber from a house under construction in the Lake Street area, Vernon. They were released on $100 nonreturn bonds for appearance in court in Rockville, April 4.

Deuse
Deuse Crossen, 29, of Hartford was charged Saturday with fourth-degree larceny on complaint of Caldor's, Vernon Circle. She posted a $50 cash bond. No court date was given.

Paul A. Perrotte
Paul A. Perrotte of 1 Thompson St., Rockville, was charged Saturday with reckless driving, driving an unregistered motor vehicle, and misuse of market plates. His court answer date is April 4.
