O'Sullivan, Giles, meet amid dispute

By GREG PEARSON
Herald Reporter

Timothy O'Sullivan, who has announced his resignation as Manchester's highway superintendent, and Jay Giles, director of public works, met this morning amid a Republican call for an investigation and a Democratic response of "political grandstanding."

Giles said that there were no new developments in his meeting with O'Sullivan. The two have met every Thursday morning to discuss routine department matters, but this morning's session included discussion of O'Sullivan's resignation, which was announced Tuesday.

O'Sullivan resigned because of apparent conflicts with Giles and other town officials. He has not talked about the reasons for his decision, but there have been past incidents where he has disagreed publicly with other town officials.

"We talked face-to-face about the so-called problem," Giles said.

"Anytime two people sit and talk, it helps clear the air."

O'Sullivan could not be reached for comment about the meeting.

Giles said that the discussion included the Lenti Farms development. The two have differing views about the effectiveness of a detention basin proposed for the subdivision off Gardner Street.

Meanwhile, the Republican members of the Town Board of Directors — Vivian Ferguson, William Diana and Carl Zinsner — have called for an investigation of the reasons for O'Sullivan's resignation. The investigation and a meeting with Giles, O'Sullivan, Town Manager Robert Weiss and the board were requested in a press release issued Wednesday by the three.

"Mr. O'Sullivan has been a competent, honest, hard-working department head. We are greatly disturbed by his loss," the Republicans said.

Carter insists Begin can handle settlement

BRASILIA, Brazil (UPI) — President Carter gave a vote of confidence today to Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin and said he believed the Begin government is completely capable of negotiating a settlement with Egypt.

In a news conference at this inland capital Carter tried to play down the serious disputes with Brazil over the question of human rights and President Ernesto Geisel's $5 billion agreement with West Germany for a nuclear reactor that can produce weapons-grade plutonium.

Carter, who has been given a polite welcome in Brazil in sharp contrast to the warm welcome he received in Venezuela, conferred with Geisel before flying on to Rio de Janeiro. In a brief speech to the Brazilian Congress after the news conference, Carter stressed the "common problems" of Brazil and the United States and asked for cooperative solutions on trade, poverty and weapons dealings.

Once again he advocated the "peaceful use of atomic power without the risk of proliferation" and spoke of "even the most troubling issues: advancing the cause of human liberty, democratic government and the rule of law."

He returned to the same theme at the news conference in the Hotel Nacional in this ultramodern capital where he answered questions from both the White House press corps covering his trip and from South American journalists.

Brazil is the second stop on Carter's four-nation, 14,000-mile journey to South America and Africa. He flies later today to Rio de Janeiro for an unofficial visit and talks with two Roman Catholic cardinals who are outspoken critics of Geisel's military government.

Carter's most forceful remarks concerned the Middle East and the search for peace there.

Carter called "completely false" reports that his administration was seeking the ouster of the Israeli Prime Minister in hopes of facilitating a Middle East peace settlement.

"I can say unequivocally that no one in a position of authority in the U.S. government has insinuated that Prime Minister Begin is unqualified and should be replaced," he said.

"We are not giving up hope of a negotiated peace settlement in the Middle East," Carter said, adding that the visit to Cairo of Israeli Defense Minister Ezer Weizman represented a "probing for compatibility."

Weizman flew from Tel Aviv to Cairo today.

Carter said there still are "key differences that must be redressed" including the Palestinian problem and Israel's interpretation of U.N. Resolution 242 calling for Israel to yield occupied Arab lands.

"I think the Begin government is completely capable of negotiating a settlement with Egypt," Carter said.

Carter defended his proposal to sell fighter jets to Saudi Arabia and Egypt as well as to Israel, a move that has been strongly criticized in Congress and in Tel Aviv.

Weiss mentions fee hikes, directors exchange banter

By GREG PEARSON
Herald Reporter

Wednesday night's budget workshop, conducted by the Manchester Board of Directors, started with some political banter between members of both parties and included discussion of possible fee increases for some town services.

Town Manager Robert Weiss said that the town's Health Department is studying the possibility of instituting restaurant inspections, a service that would result in a fee to the owners. Such a proposal was recommended by the Advisory Board of Health and should be presented to the Board of Directors within a couple of months, he said.

He also said that the Health Department is considering raising the fee for sewer and well inspections. Also, Robert Harrison, cemetery superintendent, is studying a raise in the fee for burials in town cemeteries, Weiss said.

The manager had no estimates Wednesday on how much of an increase might be recommended in these fees, but he said that all the proposals should be presented to the directors within the next few months.

None of these possible fee increases, nor the fees that have been established in the town's massage parlor ordinance, are included in revenue estimates in the 1978-79 budget.

Early in the 2½ hour session, Mayor Stephen Penny and Republican Director Vivian Ferguson exchanged words about the budget-making process.

Mrs. Ferguson asked whether the Democrats and Weiss had caucused together after a Monday night budget session, a charge that Penny and the other Democrats denied.

Mrs. Ferguson referred to last year, when she and the other Republican board members felt that they were left out of the final stages of the budget work. Because of this, they abstained from voting on the final package.

"I am not going to sit here night after night and then come to the end of the line like last year," she said.

Penny said, "I am fully willing to have the minority participate in these budget sessions. I hope you will not try to find some excuse for not voting on the budget."

Penny said that the budget work used to be done exclusively by the majority until a Democratic mayor, John Thompson, opened the process to both parties. He said that he plans to expand the role of the minority this year.

Republican Director William Diana, who worked on the budget when Thompson was mayor, said, "We worked together on that budget. We want to work together again. It hasn't happened in the past two years."

In other budget matters discussed Wednesday, the board learned that its membership fee to the Capitol Region Council of Governments has increased by $1,100 to $7,150.

Board member Carl Zinsner said that he feels the board should have more input into CRCOG decisions for the yearly fee.

Penny agreed, but said it is difficult to spend the time necessary to keep up with all CRCOG business and mailings, which usually include at least two items mailed per day.

Director Stephen Casano then recommended that the town establish a CRCOG file in the Municipal Building. This would permit a board member to look through the file at any time to find out about recent CRCOG happenings, Weiss said that such a file will be set up.

Director Joseph Sweeney, who has been active in working to increase town tax collection, said that he felt tax collection estimates for this year may be low.

Despite the harsh beginning, the meeting did have its light moments.

Several times during the meeting, Sweeney mentioned the tax collection effort. At one point, Mrs. Ferguson laughingly said, "He sounds like a commercial."

Later, Mrs. Ferguson recommended that the town's funding for the Memorial Day Parade be increased. Penny agreed that the parade has been underfunded, but he said with a smile that if the next budget ends in a deficit, Mrs. Ferguson's funding increase proposal will be remembered.

Merger backers plan court move

The Committee for One Manchester met Wednesday night and agreed to proceed with a law suit to force the appointment of a consolidation commission.

Most of the 24-member committee, which has engineered the present move for consolidation, attended the session and approved the legal action step.

Consolidation would combine the Eighth Utilities District and the Town of Manchester. Both bodies now have separate fire departments and sewer authority.

The present move for consolidation is proceeding under the Home Rule Act of the General Statutes of Connecticut. The Committee for One Manchester completed the first step under the act — petitioning of residents in both the district and non-district areas of town.

The next step was held March 20, when the legislative bodies of the town and the district met to appoint a consolidation commission.

The district's legislative body, its residents who are registered voters, overwhelmingly voted against all proposals to establish such a commission.

This leaves the consolidation move at a standstill. Thus, the Committee for One Manchester has decided to take legal action.

"We will be proceeding with a law suit to force the appointment of a commission in the near future," Edward Colman, secretary of the committee, said today.

He said that those members not present Wednesday night still need to be notified of the expected move. The committee is expected to meet with its counsel, attorney John FitzGerald, next week to discuss when and how to proceed, Colman said. FitzGerald was out of town Wednesday, and no date was set for proceeding with the legal action.

The consolidation commission, if appointed, would be charged with working out the details of the proposed consolidation. It would decide on such factors as the elimination of unnecessary offices and agencies and the distribution of liabilities and assets for the area to be consolidated.

Parking ban ends

The winter on-street parking ban will end Friday at midnight. The ban has been in effect on all public streets from 2 to 6 a.m. daily since Nov. 1 to allow for snow removal.

Design held collapse cause

HARTFORD (UPI) — Engineers probing the collapse of the Hartford Civic Center's coliseum roof say design flaws were responsible for the cave-in and created problems so obvious they should have been easily detected.

Engineers for Lev Zetlin Associates of New York said Wednesday some of the problems in the space frame's primary load carrying pieces and secondary pieces were so apparent they showed up in photographs taken during construction. Lev Zetlin was hired by the city shortly after the roof cave-in to determine the cause of the structural failure.

The 1,400-ton computer designed space frame, which supported the coliseum roof, collapsed shortly before dawn Jan. 18 under tons of snow, ice and rain.

No one was injured in the mishap that occurred only hours after 5,000

Lev Zetlin's president Charles H. Thornton told a special city council committee Wednesday, "We have found substantial design deficiencies which there is no excuse for."

He said "the major cause" of the collapse "was a design error relating to miscalculations" that caused an overload.

Thornton said indications of design flaws should have been a "red flag" to the people involved with the original construction project.

He said evidence that included photographs of the roof as it was put together and raised in 1972, showed "structural deficiencies, excessive deflection and bowing" of girders.

Thornton said the stress capacity was apparently miscalculated and the buckling of the roof was a gradual one.

He did not assign blame to anyone and said he would file a final report to the committee next month.

The engineering firm's preliminary findings were immediately challenged by an attorney for Faioli-Blum-Yesselman of Norfolk, Va. and Hartford, the firm that designed the space frame.

680 attended health fair

The third annual Manchester Health Fair held last week at Manchester High School was attended by at least 680 persons who registered as they entered.

The Manchester Public Health Nursing Association (MPHNA) and the Manchester Health Department, co-sponsors of the fair, estimated that an additional 50 to 100 persons came without registering.

The MPHNA and the Heart Association screened 345 persons for high blood pressure, 46 of whom were referred to private physicians.

Twenty-two of the 228 persons tested for glaucoma by the Society for Prevention of Blindness were referred for further evaluation.

The new life style program sponsored by the town health department had about 100 participants successfully complete the physical fitness tests.

The state health department will send the results of the diabetes, anemia and lead poisoning tests to Dr. Alice Turek, town health director.

More than 50 agencies, 100 volunteers, service groups and area merchants contributed their services to the fair.

Bus service for elderly proving to be success

By GREG PEARSON

The Town of Manchester's bus service for elderly and handicapped residents has operated with few problems through its first two weeks, according to those involved in the system.

"People think it's a great service," Donna Ericson, dispatcher for the system, said.

The number of one-way trips provided by the buses has ranged from two to three on slow days to 20 on busy days, she said. On an average day, the bus will provide transportation for seven people, she said. One person often requires a trip both ways.

The bus system is a temporary one until the town receives a federal grant that will help pay for the purchase of two buses to run a permanent transportation network.

The Town Board of Directors voted to establish a system for at least six months to service elderly and handicapped residents until the permanent system is started.

Two buses — one seating 17 persons and one seating 12 persons and including a lift for the handicapped — have been rented for the temporary transportation service.

The system is open to any Manchester resident who is 60 years or older or has a handicap.

Charter group meets April 11

The Town of Manchester's Charter Revision Commission, appointed last year, will meet for the first time Tuesday, April 11.

The commission has been given the authority to study all parts of the charter, except the sections that establish the town's council-manager form of government.

The meeting will be held at 8 p.m. in the Municipal Building's Coffee Room. Officers will be elected, and other business may be conducted at the first session.

Top court may get Hughes estate case

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court soon may decide whether to enter the legal quagmire involving settlement of the Howard Hughes estate.

California wants to sue Texas directly in the high court for a ruling dealing with the true residence of the wealthy financier at the time of his death in 1976.

The suit, like those in Texas, Nevada and Delaware state courts, would help determine beneficiaries of the Hughes fortune, which has been estimated in the billions of dollars.

But Texas Attorney General John Hill told the nine justices in arguments Wednesday California is only a front for the estate itself, which as a private party would have to go to lower courts before coming to the Supreme Court.

States may come to the high court directly. Hill said a recent agreement between the estate and California was "a barrier to the jurisdiction of the court, pure and simple."

"You would rule the day if you opened the gates for this kind of trading around," Hill said.

Attorney Jerome Falk of San Francisco, a special representative of California, said, "The charge that we appear carrying the bag for the estate is plainly false."

Bill for school testing wins committee approval

HARTFORD (UPI) — The Legislature's Education Committee has overwhelmingly approved a bill that would test Connecticut's school children on how well they learned basic typical matters in the school's 600 students.

"The students are far more polite when they know they are not going to get a pencil in the morning until they say 'please,'" Carloni said.

"Every teacher is told through memos and at staff meetings to remind the students to use good manners," he said. Parents were also brought into the program. They were sent notices asking them to join in by encouraging good manners at home.

Colorful student-made signs dot the hallways. One shows a long freight train, each of its cars lettered with a word or phrase such as "sorry," "please," "thank you," or "excuse me."

Carloni, 31, said he started the program because he noticed good manners had slipped in recent years.

"It seems like when I went to school, teachers would constantly reprimand us if we were not polite. My parents would constantly remind me," he said.

He said before the program started, youngsters were frequently interrupting his hallway conversations with a parent or teacher.

"Look at television. Even on Saturday morning when the kids are watching cartoons, the characters very seldom use good manners," Carloni said.

At first students took it as "kind of a joke," he said.

Now they "kind of smile, look a little shy, and look a little embarrassed if they forget to say the proper word," he said.

Students are not scolded if they forget to be polite, but they are given constant reminders.

"We have always tried to encourage the children at home to be polite. We feel this has been a real need in the Lancaster School system," Mrs. Diane Miehchad said. Several other parents echoed her views.

But Mrs. Miehchad's 8-year-old daughter had a different view. "It hasn't helped much," the youngest said.

It is my understanding that this was brought about because Commissioner Leonard ordered that Mr. Brooks be placed in the program, despite the previous decision disqualifying him, because political pressure from either the executive branch or the legislative branch of the state was exerted," Olds wrote.

School districts with the largest number of students failing would receive the largest grants.

The grants would not start until the 1980 school year. The State Board of Education would receive $90,000 next year to set up a program to test children in reading, language skills and mathematics.

Beginning in 1980, most local school boards would be required to give the tests to children in the third, fifth and seventh grades. A statewide exam would be given to all ninth graders.

Rep. Dorothy Goodwin, D-Storrs, told the committee the town of Mansfield now gives its students proficiency tests when they are in the second, fourth and sixth grades.

School starts program to promote good manners

CONCORD, N.H. (UPI) — When you enter Lancaster Elementary School, don't be surprised to hear a lot of students say "please," and "thank you."

It's all part of "Project Polite," started by Principal Thomas Carloni to instill basic typical manners in the school's 600 students.

"The students are far more polite when they know they are not going to get a pencil in the morning until they say 'please,'" Carloni said.

Recruiter hiring protested by CCLU

HARTFORD (UPI) — The Connecticut Civil Liberties Union has lodged a formal protest against State Police Commissioner Edward P. Leonard for his alleged role in accepting an applicant for the recruitment officer said was unqualified. The recruitment officer has since left the force.

In a letter to the Commission on Human Rights, CCLU Executive Director William Olds said Lt. Joseph Perry "recently asked to be relieved of his duties as the recruitment officer of the Connecticut State Police Department."

Opinion
Women's lib, Soviet style

Still on Soviet social problems, there's one area in which the Soviet are drawing closer to the United States — and aren't too happy about it. One out of every three marriages now ends in divorce. That is still considerably short of the U.S. ratio of more than one out of every two, but it's a tripling of the Soviet divorce frequency in the last 16 years and has worrisome consequences for the Kremlin. It is considered a major factor in the drop of the birth rate, particularly among Russians. A manpower shortage is expected to develop later in the century and even worse, the population will tilt toward Asian nationalities and away from the long-dominant Russians.

Time to write it off

By MARTHA ANGLE and ROBERT WALTERS
WASHINGTON (NEA) — Agnes is a lady whose profligate ways seem to require endless cash from the government. She's spending $33 million in federal funds this year and wants another $18.5 million next year. That's just daily spending money. Agnes has been hitting lately that if she's to truly maintain herself in the style to which she's accustomed she'll need another $250 million or more in public funds. Agnes isn't really a person. It's the insiders' way of referring to AGNS, which stands for Allied-General Nuclear Services, the owners of the nation's only commercial nuclear fuel reprocessing plant now in operation.

Construction of the sprawling facility, located in Barnwell, S.C., began in 1971 — but today the plant remains half-finished, financially troubled and in desperate need of a government bailout. Fuel reprocessing involves taking "spent" or used fuel rods from commercial nuclear generators and treating them chemically to extract plutonium and uranium that can be reused as reactor fuel. There are, however, numerous problems, not the least of which is the fact that the country's last two presidents have established a national policy firmly in opposition to such reprocessing.

"I have decided that the United States should no longer regard reprocessing of used nuclear fuel to produce plutonium as a necessary and inevitable step in the nuclear fuel cycle," President Gerald R. Ford announced in late 1976. President Carter carried that position one step further by declaring last April that this country "will defer indefinitely commercial reprocessing and recycling of plutonium produced in the United States nuclear power program."

Thoughts

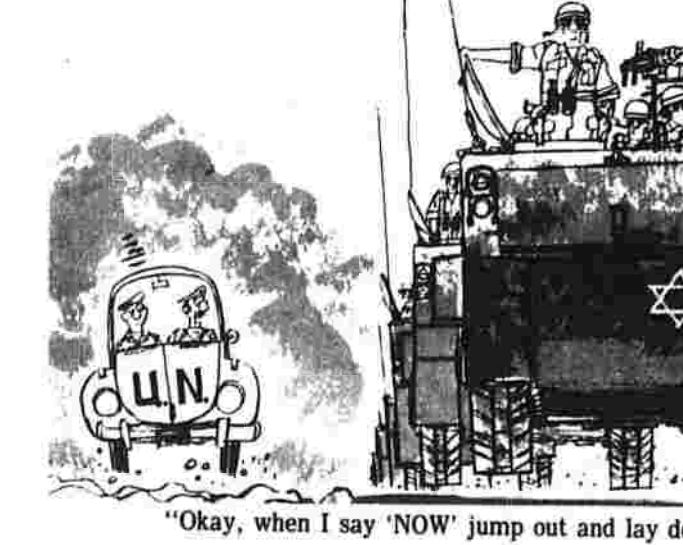

"Then was the Lord Jesus known of the disciples in the breaking of the bread." How easy it is, as the week wears on, to lose feeling of Sunday's celebration! The joy of Easter quickly becomes a memory, and we lose sight of Jesus' great victory over death as we experience the little details of everyday life. Yet it is in our everyday lives that the risen Jesus meets us again and again. Jesus revealed himself to his sorrowful disciples not in one spectacular moment, but in the ordinary activities of their lives. They could not grasp the story of the empty tomb, but when Jesus came to them as they broke bread together, they knew him.

Revitalization of Main Street

To the editor:
The revitalization of Main Street as reported in The Manchester Herald article dated March 25 is long overdue; and the formation of the vehicle to accomplish it, namely the Downtown Manchester Association, is none too soon. We must ask ourselves: What brought about the deterioration of Main Street as a shopping mecca? And the answer lies somewhere between the installation of parking meters, the advent of large shopping centers and the inability or intransigence of the Main Street merchants to remain open and available to the shopping public on a 12-hour basis.

Senate Building: Fit for a Persian prince

By LEE RODERICK
WASHINGTON — The "Golden Fleece of the Month" award for the "most ridiculous waste of the taxpayers' money has been bestowed in March to the Senate for its plan to spend over $122 million on a new office building for itself that "would make a Persian prince green with envy." That characterization comes from Sen. William Proxmire (D-Wis.), the most sharp-eyed watchdog of the Treasury in the Senate, who has established a tradition by giving the dubious award each month to some unwitting government agency.

The lavish building, scheduled to house 50 senators and their staffs, was proposed in 1972 at a price of $47.9 million. Although it was supposed to be complete late May, today it is little more than a large hole in the ground that stretches for half a block on Capitol Hill. Now it is scheduled for completion in 1981. Current cost estimate: $122 million — 2½ times the original.

Use old-fashioned method

By ANDREW TULLY
WASHINGTON — On the subject of welfare reform, letters from all parts of the country make the same point: surveying the situation in their own communities, they propose that the first step should be reform of the bureaucrats who run the system. They are in agreement with a comment made by Richard Nixon when he was trying to get the Congress to legislate common sense into the dole. "I fear for the worthy poor," he said, "because they suffer from a system that is an invitation to the unworthy to cheat."

An example of this "invitation" was offered the other day by the Washington Star, which revealed that the District of Columbia's welfare case review office has too many lazy and/or incompetent employees. The office was created last May in an effort to reduce the city's welfare error rate, the worst in the country. Today, three-fourths of the office's 54 employees are reviewing less than the minimum standard of one case each workday. Nine employees are meeting less than half that standard. Examples? Well, a district employee assigned full time to examine welfare cases has spent five months reviewing only 22 cases. Two other workers have reviewed only 45 and 51 cases in six months. There were only two months in the first nine months of operation in which the staff met the standard of 20 com-once living Main Street. The question now is, how do we revitalize this area? I propose that we build a new town hall on Main Street to be located between Locust Street and Gorman Place area. The Municipal Building is far too inadequate in its present state to accommodate the rapid growth we have seen in the past 30 years, and the projected growth for the next 30 years. Locating the Town Hall on Main Street would bring more people to this area. Accordingly, part of the Cheney Mills located on Forest Street should be immediately converted to housing for the elderly as its proximity to Main Street makes it a short walk to shopping stores.

Support O'Sullivan

To the editor:
A letter to Mr. Weiss and the people of Manchester. We, the men and women of the Highway and Sanitation Department, would like to express our opinion of the resignation of our supervisor, Tim O'Sullivan. We would like you to know that we feel that he has been a fair and conscientious supervisor and worker. We know that there have been differences of opinion at all levels of his position, from the top to bottom, but we still feel that he is the man for this job. We feel that he has done an excellent job for both the town and the Highway Department and feel that it would be a great loss to all if he goes.

Denison vote

To the editor:
The rationale behind the Board of Trustees having rehired Ronald Denison for another year as president of Manchester Community College is absolutely beyond me. The faculty gave a vote of "No Confidence" in Denison — the three members from Manchester voted against retaining him — and yet, a majority of the board, obviously the members with nothing at stake in this decision, capriciously voted to keep him on. Perhaps Ms. Jenkins, Ms. Emerson or Dr. Scharid could shed some light on why they voted against Denison. Or better yet, let's make public the reasons the rest of the board voted to burden us for another year with Denison's administrative wiles. Sincerely, Jacqueline Roberts, 79 Comstock Road, Manchester.

Plastic device allows drilling in high current

DALLAS (UPI) — A unique plastic device resembling a chain saw has allowed drilling for oil off the coast of Latin America in an area formerly considered too dangerous because of heavy currents. As a result of the new technology, officials say, expanded drilling opportunities could generate more energy for the United States. The device — in industry language a "fairing" — acts as an undersea air foil to prevent strong currents from destroying drilling pipes. The Dallas drilling contractor, SEDCO Inc., has used the "fairing system" around exploratory wells in the Amazon delta off Brazil. They look very much like a very fat airplane wing. They essentially serve the same purpose — to streamline the flow — in this case, of water — around them," said Don Kurran, a system engineer for the company. "We want to prevent vibrations that occur when water flows past an object. It has been very successful. Before we went in, two companies went to drill in the same area and had catastrophic failure. SEDCO first attempted to use a system of corrugated metal produced in Fort Worth to reduce vibrations, but Kurran said the equipment was too heavy. "We want them to 'weathervane' with changing currents," he said. "Sometimes they're from the north and the next day they're from the south. These heavy fairings didn't work out too well on that basis, although they did prevent the vibrations."

Service may move

MERRIDEN, Conn. (UPI) — The Connecticut Department of Children and Youth Services may move its overcrowded central business offices from Hartford to the vacant Underhill Mental Health Center this fall. Currently, the department's business offices, which are staffed by about 225 employees, are scattered throughout the capital. DCYS Commissioner Francis H. Maloney said however, "If Meriden is the only possible place for us to transfer our operations that we would do it, but I'd still like to maintain offices in Hartford — especially when the General Assembly is in session." State officials said at least $40,000 would be needed to renovate the former Meriden mental health institution. It has been unoccupied for the past two years. A request for renovation funds is scheduled to go before the state Bonding Commission Friday.

Brand X makes hit

AUGUSTA, Maine (UPI) — Customers of Maine's largest chain of groceries stores don't seem to mind buying Brand X as long as it's cheaper. Hannaford Bros. of Portland Tuesday announced its 20 Cottes, Martin's and Shop 'N' Save stores between Augusta and Seabrook, N.H., had each begun devoting a section to "no-name brand goods." Hugh G. Farrington, Hannaford's merchandising vice president, said the stores will carry 30 items without brand names, with prices 50 percent to 39 percent lower than national brand name goods and 7 percent to 32 percent cheaper than Hannaford's in-house brand.

Fahey urges passage of bill on utilities

Democratic Senate candidate Marcella Fahey Tuesday urged the General Assembly to pass the Residential Utility Shutoffs bill.

The bill will prohibit a public service company from stopping service in hardship cases.

"For years, the State of Connecticut has been deficient in its treatment of this serious and discriminatory problem. This measure goes a long way towards making sure that more humane methods of dealing with the poor are developed.

"There is never a reason to deny basic necessities to anyone. It is a dangerous gamble in bad weather, and a cruelty at any time."

Mrs. Fahey is seeking the Democratic nomination for the Third Senatorial District seat serving East Hartford and the western portion of Manchester. It is now held by Sen. George Hannon Jr. who intends to keep it.

Attacks record

Mrs. Fahey attacked Hannon's attendance record in the Senate since he was first elected in 1974.

"He has missed many critical issues that have come up in the Senate," she said. "His claim that he was not absent for any of the critical issues clearly is not the case."

The votes Hannon missed included issues of "major election reform, teacher bills and consumer bills."

"If Mr. Hannon believes that a measure is unimportant or has no merit, then he should vote against it. However, he should vote."

She prepared and released a list of the votes Hannon missed. They included: A ban on flip-top cans, hours of operation of snowmobiles on state land, in-service education for teachers, setting up a direct bank receipt system and an AFDC direct payment pilot program, and an act concerning toll plates on Interstate 91 and Route 52.

Also, an act concerning the role of the state Board of Education in teacher strikes, the praying manes as the state insect, anatomical donations, license fees for motor vehicle dealers and repairers, the granting of youthful offender status to persons whose victims are elderly and infirm.

She had more on the list. She noted many of the bills concerned consumers.

More than half of the other senators showed up for at least 95 percent of the votes. Hannon voted 87 percent of the time, she said.

Moriarty backs Hannon

Matt Moriarty Jr., former Democratic mayor of Manchester and a leader of his party, said Wednesday he can't understand how Manchester people can say State Sen. George Hannon Jr. doesn't serve them.

"He's been a good senator and a good legislator," said Moriarty. "He's always been responsive to me and to our town."

Moriarty said he agrees with Hannon about the Bottle Bill. Both are dead set against it.

"It's a Big Brother type of law. I can't believe the bulk of people want the government to dictate to them on how to pay for beverages," Moriarty said.

Moriarty questioned whether Hannon's Democratic challenger, Mrs. Marcella Fahey of East Hartford, has the time to devote to state legislative duties. He said she needs to force a party primary with Hannon. He also doubted the veteran Hannon could be topped by the political newcomer in either town.

Hannon has won the seat of the Third Senatorial District in 1974 and 1976 by large margins against Republicans. No Democrat has challenged him before.

Mrs. Fahey has said she feels she can work full time at the job and win the respect of her legislative colleagues. She claims Hannon has done neither of these things.

pleasure to work with. He acted like he gave a damn about his constituents in Manchester."

Moriarty said he often had to call Hannon for facts on issues. Hannon always got back to him and answered every question.

About Hannon's voting record, Moriarty said, "George's conservative tendencies best reflect Manchester's views."

Moriarty said he agrees with Hannon about the Bottle Bill. Both are dead set against it.

Decision delayed on Penney sewers

The South Windsor Sewer Commission has postponed a decision regarding the treatment of sewage from Manchester's new J. C. Penney Industrial Park.

Manchester is seeking an agreement by which South Windsor would handle sewage from a portion of the proposed park, near the South Windsor line. Manchester will handle sewage from the J. C. Penney building and South Windsor, according to the agreement, would treat sewage from other industries in the park.

South Windsor town attorney Richard Rittenband, has submitted an opinion which incorporates changes and proposals suggested as amendments to the agreement by the Town Council.

The amendments include the possibility of Manchester treating sewage from the proposed Buckland Commons, a termination clause to the agreement, the sharing of any additional costs by the towns, and the payment of the connection charge by Manchester upon the signing of the agreement.

DOT gets variance

The Coventry Zoning Board of Appeals (ZBA) has granted a request by the State Department of Transportation (DOT) for reduced lot size and frontage on the Route 33 project of Stanley and Rita Zuzel to facilitate the realignment of a dangerous curve there.

The project involves a 1.5-acre lot and some highway frontage will be acquired by the state. The DOT has been negotiating the transaction with the Zuzels since last fall. Four other unoccupied lots will be affected by the realignment.

The S-shaped curve occurs on a sloped portion of the highway and has been the scene of numerous accidents and several fatalities over the years. A petition drive last year by residents of the area, one of whom lost a son in an accident there, resulted in the DOT plans to realign the road.

Another road project being conducted in Coventry involves the realignment of Daly Road with funds from the federal Safe Roads Demonstration Program. This work is also being undertaken for safety reasons.

Preliminary design plans are available to the public at the Town Hall. Residents will have until mid-April to submit their comments on the plans. If there is sufficient disagreement, the Town Council may schedule a public hearing on the issue.

Miller asking for views of constituents

Dorothy Miller, state representative for the 55th District, is interested in knowing how her constituents feel about various current issues now before the General Assembly.

Mrs. Miller is asking everyone to complete a questionnaire (appearing in the March 29 Manchester Herald) and return it to her as soon as possible.

The questionnaire includes a proposal to lower the sales tax on all clothing, a pilot project calling for $5 million in bonding to preserve farmland, mandatory retirement age, control of nuclear power plants, motor vehicle inspections, auto insurance rates, regulation of liquor prices, and the Bottle Bill. It also includes a question, for information only, on whether or not an income tax is favored.

In order to know how the residents of the 55th District feel, Mrs. Miller asks that the questionnaires be returned to her as soon as possible. She said the Legislature has a mandatory adjournment date of May 30 the daily calendar is filling up.

Mrs. Miller said when the Bottle Bill came before the House of Representatives for the sixth time last week, she voted for it for the first time. It was passed by a 30 vote margin.

Vernon will delay its tax revaluation

By BARBARA RICHMOND Herald Reporter

By deleting $150,000 from the assessor's proposed budget, the Town Council Wednesday night agreed to delay plans for a townwide revaluation for a year or more.

Last night's workshop was the first of a series being conducted by the council to go over each budget, as recommended by Mayor Frank McCoy.

At the start of the session, the council agreed on ground rules to set aside all salary items until all budgets have been reviewed. Budgets were approved, exclusive of the salaries.

The U. S. Civil Service Commission is doing an evaluation report on salaries and the mayor said it is hoped it will be completed before the council is ready to act on that portion of the budgets.

The mayor also said there may be inequities in the salaries and they wouldn't be noticed if the salaries aren't tackled as a whole.

A motion was made to approve the budget in the amount of $5,270, exclusive of salaries and the $5,000 for the machines.

Mrs. Herbst amended the motion to include the $5,000 but the motion failed. She reminded the council that Maharan said they no longer can buy parts for these machines. She said during a voting machine break down during an election can greatly effect an election.

Mrs. Sylvia Wilson, tax collector, had her budget approved at $15,200 (exclusive of salaries). She asked the council to reconsider the cut in her office supplies account. She asked for $8,900 and was given $6,500. She said she had been told by a Hartford postal official that the cost of postage will probably go up from 13 cents to 16 cents and this could happen in the coming years. Manchester, which has gone 12 years and Hartford, which has gone 17 years.

Discussing the revaluation, the mayor said, by law, towns should have a property revaluation every 10 years. This would mean Vernon's should be for the Oct. 31, 1980 Grand List. He said, however, other towns have gone longer. He cited as examples, Manchester, which has gone 12 years and Hartford, which has gone 17 years.

Robert Hurd, a council member, said he felt it's a lot less painless to the taxpayers if the revaluation is done when it should be. The mayor said he thinks officials should investigate why the impact of the revaluation falls on the individual homeowners rather than on business and industry.

While some of the Republicans on the council reluctantly agreed with the mayor, Democrat Marie Herbst said she was "sick of hearing the word defer." She said by deferring it wasn't going to save any more money.

She said, "This thing (revaluation) has to take place and I'm willing to go for it now."

Republican John Giuletta said he thinks there will eventually be a state income tax to help pay the costs of education so it doesn't have to be taken from local property taxes. He said then the urgency of the revaluation will cease.

The town clerk's budget, exclusive of salaries amounting to $47,858, was approved at $9,295. This was after the council voted to reinstate $400 cut from the supplies account.

The budget for elections (one) was approved at $7,055, reduced by $395 in the area of fees for workers. Maharan said the fees figured are comparable to those of other towns. The mayor said if it wasn't mandatory to pay workers he is sure many people would be willing to work without being paid.

The budget for primaries was passed in the amount of $1. Democrat Stephen Sheehan said "Are we not anticipating primaries of both parties?" The mayor said he would rather think there won't be any primaries but if there is the money will have to be gotten somewhere else.

The request for $4,318 for referendum was reduced and approved at $1. The mayor said this was for charter revisions and it has been decided to vote on the revisions in the November state elections.

PTA to monitor NBC programs

The Manchester PTA unit has been asked by the state PTA to monitor NBC television during the month of April. The forms used will allow for a critical analysis of television programming.

Parents are needed to monitor one or two programs per week during the 7 to 11 p.m. time slot throughout the month.

If a volunteer has a favorite program that is normally watched, that particular time slot may possibly be reserved for that individual.

The results of the survey will be sent to the National PTA where the information will be compiled and published in PTA media as well as national publications and newspapers.

Anyone willing to assist in this project may call Judy C'ough, coordinator, at 649-1171.

Lieberman backs N-control bill

HARTFORD (UPI) — Senate Majority Leader Joseph Lieberman has decided to work for Senate passage of bills to tighten controls on nuclear power plant construction and disposal of radioactive waste.

The bills have been approved by the Legislature's Environment Committee and are before the House of Representatives.

One of the bills would put a moratorium on construction of new nuclear power plants until the federal government comes up with a way to safely dispose of deadly nuclear waste.

Howe's legs all 'tied up' on his birthday night

By EARL YOST
Sports Editor

"I hope you don't judge me on one night, I'm nervous as hell," Gordie Howe told a capacity crowd which came out to help him celebrate his 50th birthday (two days early) at the Springfield Civic Center last night.

Howe didn't set the world on fire in a comparative easy hum-drum World Hockey Association triumph over the singles Cincinnati Stingers, 6-1. Mr. Hockey picked up one point, on an assist, as his sons also got into the scoring parade. Mark tallied the opening goal and added an assist and Marty also collected an assist.

The elder Howe, who will be roasted tonight at a second birthday celebration in Bloomfield, was the center of attention both before and after the game.

"I'm still nervous. My legs are a little tight and they shouldn't be after all these years," Howe offered after the birthday party on ice.

"I had a lot of old friends here and I wanted to play better, but I was so nervous and tight that I couldn't. I hope that I didn't disappoint anyone."

"Our team played extremely well. I just would have liked to have played a little better," he repeated.

While it wasn't one of Gordie's best performances, he had nothing to be ashamed of. He was deeply touched during the pre-game 20-minute presentation ceremony with a gold hockey stick from the World Hockey Association the top award.

It was a moving scene and the standing ovation he received had to send a few goose pimples down his spine, as it did to the 7,500 spectators in the center.

"I remember the night they honored (Maurice) Richard in Montreal and he just couldn't get untracked. That's the way I was tonight," he added in the special media interview room.

What Howe didn't relate was how the team would have found itself several notches lower in the standings.

The Old Man leads the team in point-production, a feat in itself. Gordie Howe wasn't judged last night on his sub-par game against the Stingers but what he has done in 30 years of NHL and WHA hockey and in one year with the Whalers.

The Howes transformed the Whalers from also-rans into winners with Gordie Howe the leader.

Hat trick for Rogers on 'night' for Gordie

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (UPI) — It was Gordie Howe Night but New England Whaler Mike Rogers had a celebration of his own.

Playing his second game on a line with Gordie and Mark Howe, Rogers tallied three goals for his first hat trick in four years lifting the Whalers to an easy 6-1 win over the Cincinnati Stingers Wednesday night.

"The puck really has to roll your way to get a hat trick," Rogers said in the Whalers locker room.

"When you get one goal you always think of two and when you get two, number three is in the back of your mind," he said.

New England coach Harry Neale recently pitched Rogers to the Howe line and the move paid off. The three-goal night gives Rogers 28 goals for the season.

"For a long time Mike (Rogers) struggled because his regular linemates Pleau (Larry) and Lytle (George) have been injured. I thought he might add some spunk to that line and he sure did tonight," Neale said.

"That man is a legend and my idol," Rogers said pointing to Howe, who celebrates his 50th birthday Friday. "It is the greatest thrill of my life to be associated with him."

Three first period goals by Mark Howe, Mike Antonovich and Gordie Roberts gave the Whalers an early 3-0 lead, and then Rogers took over with one in the second, and two in the third period.

Cincinnati's only score came on a third period tip-in by Robbie Florok, the 50th of the season for the Stingers' leading scorer.

The win widens the Whalers margin over third place Houston Aeros to six points in their race for the runnerup spot in the World Hockey Association.

It was New England's sixth win in seven games. The Whalers have five games remaining, while Houston must play seven more.

The Stingers lost a chance to gain sole possession of sixth place, the final playoff spot. They remain tied with the Birmingham Bulls, who were idle Wednesday.

Ted in spotlight
Stealing the thunder in the Boston Red Sox spring training camp this spring has been Ted Williams.

Williams is a magnet. I know from on-the-spot experience when I was a regular writer on the beat during Ted's years in Boston and later during my annual trips to Florida and Grapefruit League play.

Williams is no different today. Writers flock around the big guy who ranks as Boston's greatest all-around hitter. Baseball fans travel miles just to get a look at Ted in Red Sox colors and, if lucky, a chance to say hello personally, snap his picture or get an autograph.

Although manager Don Zimmerman has been running the show, Williams has received more ink than anyone because of his work with the hitters and his tennis matches against Carl Vaytzemski.

Williams was to work only with the minor league hitters but was pressed into duty passing along tips to Red Sox regulars.

He was a master Williams with a bat in his hand and has always been respected for his ability to communicate and help anyone who wanted to listen or sought his advice on the subject.

Over in Fort Lauderdale, where the Yankees are preparing for their American League pennant, another star of yesterday has been spotlighted, although not in the same magnitude as Williams, Mickey Mantle.

Mantle has been a regular at the Yankee spring base of operations since he hung up his uniform as an active player.

He's listed as a special batting instructor but he's mainly around in a good-will public relations position.

Notes off the cuff
New look at the Manchester Country Club this season will be an assistant pro, Larry Hays of Keene, N.H. He'll take over for Joe Diminico who will pursue another field after holding down the No. 2 job under Halph DeNicolo for several years.

Dick Hassett, who did a great job for the club last year, will return as pro shop manager. First official tournament will be a Four Ball April 8. DeNicolo reports the 18-hole local course is not open at this writing. Cheney Tech has started tennis practice at the West Side Oval courts. Carl Silver (Rec Department) says new tennis nets will be erected at all town maintenance courts shortly. Ken Irish and the Rec Department crew are waiting for warmer weather and some wind to dry out the athletic fields. Changes are good several early season high school baseball and softball games will be postponed due to wet grounds. Men's singles tennis tournament at the Manchester Racquet Club gets under way this weekend with the title up for grabs. Last year's champ, Mike White and runnerup Tom McDonald, will not compete. The field will be limited to 32 players. Men's Seniors starts April 8 with Harvey Pastel the defending king in the 45 and over age group. Men's doubles are listed April 14-16.

Attendance marks
MILWAUKEE (UPI) — The Milwaukee Bucks, well on their way to making the NBA playoffs, said Wednesday their last three regular season home games have been sold out to set two new attendance records.

The Bucks will finish the season with 27 sellouts, three more than the 24 sellouts set by the team in 1975-76 of 428,784.

Blazers not same without Walton

NEW YORK (UPI) — With the Trail Blazers still without the services of three players, the Phoenix Suns romped to a 127-94 victory Wednesday night, their only win over Portland in four attempts this season.

Without Bill Walton — who has been out for 16 games with an injured left foot — the Trail Blazers have a 5-11 mark, and Wednesday they were virtually powerless without the additional services of Bob Gross and Larry Stivers.

"We just simply don't have our players," Portland Coach Jack Ramo said. "That's about all you can say."

Paul Westphal tied the Phoenix club record by making his first 11 field-goal attempts in pacing the Suns to a 58-40 halftime advantage. The hot-shooting Suns then went 12-for-12 from the field in the first six minutes of the third quarter to break away to a 82-54 margin.

Walt Davis finished with 22 points for the Suns, while Greg Griffin had a career-high 15. Tom Owens paced Portland with 21.

In other games Wednesday night, it was Kansas City 108, Washington 105, in overtime; Detroit 121, Seattle 116; San Antonio 106, Indiana 91; Philadelphia 149, Buffalo 118; Golden State 112, Houston 89; Los Angeles 108, New Orleans 103 and Denver 109, Boston 106.

Kings 108, Bulls 105

Olis Birdsong hit a 17-foot jumper with 24 seconds remaining in overtime to rally the Kings to victory.

Pistons 121, SuperSonics 116

Detroit piled up a 17-point lead with 3:48 to play, then coasted home as Leon Douglas scored 22 points to lead six Pistons in double figures.

NBA

Suns 106, Pacers 91
George Gervin, who leads the league with a 27.4 average, scored 14 of his 20 points in the first half to lead the Spurs to a 55-44 advantage at halftime and the Spurs coasted to victory.

Sixers 149, Braves 118
The 76ers got their 11th victory in the last 12 games, reducing their magic number for the best record in the Eastern Conference to two. George McGinnis scored 25 points and Julius Erving chipped in with 24. Warriors 112, Rockets 89

Robert Parish scored a season-high 28 points and Rick Barry added 20 to pace the Warriors, who now trail Milwaukee by 1 1/2 games for the final Western Conference playoff berth.

Alonso Bradley with 20 points led Houston scorers.

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar scored 14 of his 34 points in the final period after the Jazz moved to within three points at the end of three quarters. Truck Robinson hit 14 first-quarter points to pace the Jazz to an early 39-26 lead. Nuggets 109, Celtics 106

Shorter to run in Boston

BOSTON (UPI) — Former Olympic gold medalist Frank Shorter will run in the April 7 Boston Marathon for the first time in his career, joining defending champion Jerome Drayton and record-holder Bill Rodgers.

Shorter has created controversy over the years by his refusal to participate in the Patriots Day event, saying the sponsors expected the participants to "hitchhike" to the race.

Drayton, after winning last year's race, strongly criticized the event, saying he was "justified" at the start of the race, and hinting he might never return.

52 car washes later... ZEE-GLAZE protection hangs tough on car finish!

Looking for a better way to protect your car's finish than the old wash-and-wax routine? Your Zeegard Dealer has it — ZEE-GLAZE protection, the toughest protection that can be applied to your car's finish. It chemically bonds to the finish, forming a super-smooth coating that protects against abrasive action, resists sun fading and washes clean with little more than a hosing. In actual car-wash tests, only ZEE-GLAZE survived 52 washes without loss of gloss or surface protection. The leading waxes and other coatings used in the same tests were long-gone by then. Tanana no question mark

NEW YORK (UPI) — Frank Tanana of the California Angels was a question mark at the start of spring training because of arm surgery during the winter, but his elegant 1.88 earned run average is all he needs to tell American League rivals that he's now back in the form that made him one of the circuit's all-star pitchers the past two years.

Wednesday, Tanana allowed two infield hits and didn't issue a walk in seven shutout innings when the Angels defeated the San Diego Padres, 10-4. He has allowed five earned runs in 34 innings this spring for a 1.88 ERA and hasn't issued a walk.

Manager Dave Garcia said after the game that Tanana would be the Angels' opening day pitcher April 7 from Oakland.

On other Cactus and Grapefruit fronts:

Mark Wagner singled home the winning run in the ninth inning of the Detroit Tigers' 4-3 victory over the Toronto Blue Jays. Chris Chambless' throwing error enabled the Minnesota Twins to defeat the New York Yankees, 4-2. Former Philadelphia Phillies to a 7-6 victory over the New York Mets. Stan Papi and Gary Carter drove in 10th-inning runs as the Montreal Expos topped the Houston Astros, 3-2.

Royster's single and a sacrifice fly by Rowland Office enabled the Atlanta Braves to top the Texas Rangers, 4-2. Thad Bosley's two-run single in the eighth inning gave the Chicago White Sox a 3-2 triumph over the Kansas City Royals.

A Favorite

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I will celebrate our golden wedding anniversary in five months--if one of us doesn't kill the other, that is. I'm only kidding, Abby, but right now we are having a big battle about something we hope you'll settle for us.

Everyone knows that after 50 years of marriage, very few couples "used" anything. In fact, most people our age have moved out of their large homes and into smaller quarters and are glad to get rid of most of their "things."

We are planning a party for our friends and family, and I want to put "No gifts, please" on the invitations. My wife says it is improper to mention "gifts" in an invitation. Our children think we should put "Money tree" on the invitations. I am totally against that idea as it is like asking for money. What do you say?

ARIZONA READER

DEAR READER: I vote with your wife. If friends or relatives want to get together and give one gift--money--it's up to them. But I certainly wouldn't engineer it.

DEAR ABBY: I'm 22 and have a 7-year-old daughter who was born out of wedlock. (I'll call her "Terry.") Terry and I have always lived with my parents, and I work. I want to get married, but I don't want to marry anyone Terry doesn't like. What should I do?

TERRY'S MUMMY

DEAR MUMMY: Don't be a dummy. When you meet the man you want to marry, introduce him to Terry as your future husband--and leave the word "Daddy" out of it. Terry has known only one "Daddy" (your father), so she can't be blamed for rejecting any man she thinks will replace him.

Concentrate more on getting a husband for yourself and less on providing Terry with a new "Daddy," or she'll get married before you do.

DEAR ABBY: I am buying a house from a friend of mine for $95,000. He asked me if I would do him a favor and state the price of the house as $75,000 in the agreement of the sale, and give him the balance in cash.

He said he didn't want his wife to know how much he was actually getting for the house because she's the kind who spends a thousand if she thinks they have a hundred.

Would there be anything wrong with my doing this for him as a favor?

NEEDS TO KNOW

DEAR NEEDS: Yes, Plenty. Don't falsify the price of the house on the agreement unless you want to be a party to a fraud. Tell your friend he should be satisfied with the problem of an extravagant wife some other way.
