Cuts and increases suggested

By GREG PEARSON

The proposed Town of Manchester budget for 1978-79 includes too much "French pastry" and other frills, according to some speakers at Monday night's budget hearing. Others, however, asked for increased servings of education.

The annual budget battle drew about 200 residents to the Waddell School auditorium. Education spending, which makes up just under $16 million of the $27.8 million budget proposed by Town Manager Robert Weiss, was the main topic of conversation during the three-hour hearing.

There were some who sought a reduction in the Board of Education budget.

"The educationists who sit on the Board of Education and on this Board of Directors must no longer regard education as a sacred cow which is untouchable. Enough is enough," Frank Lupien of 21 Sunset St. said.

Others asked that no cuts be made in the school spending.

Amy Burns of 94 Highwood Drive said, "Education is not a sacred cow. It's a sacred investment in our future." She said that Weiss' inclusion of the entire Board of Education budget in his recommendation showed good judgment and leadership.

Bill Brindamour, representing the Manchester Education Association, said that even the entire proposed school budget will result in the elimination of seven teaching positions and increase class sizes, which the MEA would like to avoid.

Some speakers concentrated on the entire budget and talked about the hardship taxpayers, particularly the elderly, will face.

Attorney Barry Botticello, representing Raymond "Sonny" Damato, said, "It's time to skip the French pastry. It's a little too rich for us."

Botticello said that his client would like the town to hire an efficiency expert to study town departments. Damato, who owns many apartments, is the largest individual taxpayer in Manchester.

John Tinnirella of 166 Cushman Drive introduced himself as "one fed-up taxpayer."

He urged the town to "cut out the waste" in the budget, even if it means eliminating some jobs.

Lupien, a longtime follower of local government, criticized the town portion of the budget as well as the education section.

"Manager Weiss is quite an expert in addition but is known to have somewhat of a difficulty in subtraction," Lupien said. He concluded by asking the board to "have a heart" in upcoming budget work.

Doctors buy old A&P for offices

By GREG PEARSON
Herald Reporter

Nine doctors who have offices in Manchester have purchased the old A&P Supermarket on East Center Street and plan to relocate by this fall.

Renovations on the building should begin very soon, although an exact starting date has not been set, Dr.

Burton M. Meisner, one of the purchasers, said Monday afternoon. The 12,000-square-foot building is located on East Center Street between Madison and Foster streets. It was operated for a while by Arthur's Fine Foods. Since that tenant left more than a year ago, the building has been vacant except for a small package at the site.

That store will be vacated soon, Dr. Meisner said.

All nine of the doctors will have separate offices in the building. There also may be space for one or two other offices to be used by other doctors who might want to locate at the site, Meisner said.

The property was sold by Carl Kaimowitz of Pompano Beach, Fla., and William L. Kaimowitz of West Palm Beach, Fla., to Manchester

Professional Building, a partnership of Drs. Leo Charendoff, Hassan Hendessi, Meisner, Daniel P. Purcell, Robert D. Rodner, Merrill B. Rubinow and Hossein L. Tehrani.

All now have offices in the Willard Building at 322 Main Street except for Purcell, who is located at 150 N. Main St.

The purchase price was not listed in the deed filed with the town clerk's office, but a $233,200 conveyance tax was listed.

Manchester Professional Building also filed quitclaim deeds to two other doctors who will locate at the site — Drs. Herbert J. DiMotta and Douglas E. Johnson. They both now have offices at 57 Union St.

Marshall Brickman was co-winner with Allen for "Annie Hall" as original screen play while Alvin Sargent won for screenplay adapted from another medium for "Julia," taken from Lillian Hellman's novel. Other winners were "Madame Rosa" as best foreign film and "A Little Night Music" for adaptive score. The Irving Thalberg Memorial Award for directors was given to Walter Mirisch and Charlton Heston received the Jean Herscholt Humanitarian Award from Bette Davis.

Debbie Boone, daughter of singer Pat Boone, sang her version of Joe Brooks' hit "You Light Up My Life," best original song, from the picture of the same name.

'Annie Hall' tops Academy Awards

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Woody Allen's seriocomic, autobiographical love story "Annie Hall" collected four Oscars for best picture, director, screenplay and Diane Keaton as best actress at the star-studded golden anniversary of the Academy Awards Monday night.

Richard Dreyfuss upset Richard Burton as best actor for his performance in "The Goodbye Girl," and Jason Robards won his second straight best-supporting-actor award for "Julia."

"Box-office smash 'Star Wars' collected the most Oscars — six — but none were considered 'major.' "Annie Hall" had four awards and "Julia," a drama about two women caught up in the fight against Nazism, had three.

But it was Vanessa Redgrave, best supporting actress for her title role in "Julia," who took the spotlight both inside and outside the Los Angeles Music Center, where Jewish, Palestinian and Nazi protesters clashed.

The JDL was protesting Miss Redgrave's allegedly anti-Semitic actions in making the film, "The Palestinians." Three persons were hospitalized and four arrested when the three groups clashed.

Master of Ceremonies Bob Hope, who called the awards "the real Star Wars" and quipped that with all the old-time actors and actresses present "it looks like the road company of the Wax Museum," paid tribute at the end to John Wayne, who Monday underwent open heart surgery in Boston.

Robards, who portrayed literary figure Dashiell Hammett in "Julia," was the first actor to win a back-to-back award in the best-supporting-actor category. Last year he won in "All the President's Men."

Neither Robards nor Allen attended. Allen, a jazz clarinetist with a hand in a New York City night club, said he couldn't let his hand down because "they count on me. I'm irreplaceable."

Miss Keaton said she was "very honored to be named best actress with people like Jane Fonda, Shirley MacLaine, Anne Bancroft and Marsha Mason."

"I didn't prepare anything," said a surprised-looking Dreyfuss, who played Miss Mason's comically arrogant lover in "The Goodbye Girl." After thanking several people, he said, "Can I leave now?"

"The Turning Point," about one ballerina who opts for a career and another who becomes a housewife, disappointed many by winning no Oscars and "Close Encounters of the Third Kind," another science-fiction film, captured only one, for best cinematography. However, it shared a special sound award with "Star Wars."

Debbie Boone, daughter of singer Pat Boone, sang her version of Joe Brooks' hit "You Light Up My Life," best original song, from the picture of the same name.

PZC hears more on housing plan

By JUNE TOMPKINS
Herald Reporter

In its second public hearing on the proposed Wesley Retirement Center, the Manchester Planning and Zoning Commission Monday night continued to hear opposing viewpoints on the proposal for 100 units of housing for the elderly on the Hartford Road campus of South United Methodist Church.

The church and Wesley Retirement Center Inc. are the applicants for the project.

Attorney Renard Kolasa, who represents the applicants, presented five revisions to the original application presented at the December 1977 PZC hearing. They are as follows:

- A storm drainage system has been revised to comply with the proposed retirement unit site plan.
- A 15-foot wide access driveway has been included around the facility.
- A waiver is requested on a zoning regulation for landscaping surrounding the proposed facility. There is natural existing landscaping that might qualify a waiver, Kolasa said.
- The South United Methodist Church parking lot area has been excluded from the proposed site location plans.
- A strip of land belonging to the state along the south side border along the line of Interstate Highway 88 has been included in the site boundaries. The state Department of Transportation (DOT) has indicated that it is excess property, Kolasa said, and is available for purchase only by South United Methodist Church. He added that it would be available at a fair market price.

Rather than pursue all his previous arguments in favor of the retirement center proposal, Kolasa submitted the tapes of his presentation at the December PZC hearing for the commission to review.

Speaking in support of the proposal were Betty Mitchellree, a member of South United Methodist Church and a representative to the New England Conference of the United Methodist Church. Her interest is personal, she said, because she has parents and grandparents who are on the list of applicants to live at the proposed center. Also, she favors the location because it is in a proposed historical preservation site.

The proposed center would also "help stabilize Main Street business," according to Kenneth Burkamp, owner of the Mini-Mall on Main Street.

In a lengthy presentation, Wesley Gryk, a Hartford Road resident and representative of several property owners on the street opposed to the application, suggested other locations in town more suitable to the proposed elderly retirement facility, such as Hickey's Grove near Union Pond, or open land on Wetherell Street.

He charged that church-sponsored housing "only causes a headache," and be referred to the Rachel Road and Squire Village apartment compounds which he said are church-

This is an artist's sketch of the Health Maintenance Organization building proposed for East Hartford's redevelopment area. The sketch shows the Bulkeley Bridge in the background as it was drawn when HMO leaders wanted a tract near the bridge. Present plans call for the building to be farther from the river. The odd-shaped roof will house a solar heating system.

The HMO had competed during the winter with Racquetball Equities Inc. of New York City for Tract 1 and lost. The agency voted to give the site to Racquetball because it had a fine plan and would make better use of the site. Racquetball had also been first to make plans for Tract 1.

HMO leaders made public their frustration over not finding a suitable site and way to find a home in East Hartford. Town officials defended their decisions and insisted they wanted the HMO to find a home in the town.

The HMO would be a private, non-profit medical services firm. It would hire up to 125 doctors, nurses and other medical staff to serve about 20,000 subscribing members. Members would join by telling their employers to send their medical insurance payments to the HMO instead of to insurance firms such as Blue Cross and CMS.

Frank Collins, chairman of the agency, said Monday, "I had hoped we could work something out."

He said he and the agency members who all voted for the HMO's Ash Street status are pleased. What surprised everyone Monday night at first was the statement by Harry James, president of H & J

Advertising on move

Thanks to the campaign inspired by Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson when she was first lady and the resulting Highway Beautification Act of 1966, tens of thousands of unsightly billboards have been removed from the nation's interstate and primary highway systems.
The battle goes on, as tens of thousands of billboards remain and thousands of new ones have been erected despite the law.
But while you can — with mixed success — take the billboards away from the highways, how do you take the billboards away from the billboards?
An advertising firm in Columbus, Ohio, has come up with a new wrinkle: Using tractor-trailer trucks to carry messages to the motoring public.
It has just signed up its first three clients — the U.S. Air Force Reserve, the Veterans Administration and a shoe manufacturer. Their advertisements will appear shortly on all four sides of the trucks of five trucking companies operating between 10 cities.
At least with stationary billboards, you can avoid looking at them. Imagine being stuck behind a behemoth rolling billboard crawling up a long grade.
The mind's eye glazeth over.

Right the first time

By Andrew Tully
WASHINGTON — As Congress reconvened after its annual, week-long Easter go-off, Jimmy Carter must be telling himself, sadly, that he was right the first time about financing Social Security.
The president, through his point man, Health Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph Califano, proposed last year that some of the cost of keeping Social Security solvent be borne out of general revenues — meaning money raised by other taxes.
But this is a 180 degree turn which he can change his mind president. Consider his flip-flop on deregulation of natural gas when members of Congress, almost all of them Democrats, demanded that Social Security taxes be raised. Carter went along. Signing the bill off last December, he ever praised Congress for its statesmanship.
Now, there has been a change of mind on Capitol Hill. Having heard from angry constituents, a majority are determined to roll back those payroll tax increases. More than 150 Democrats who voted for the tax boosts signed a petition for a party caucus to finance a substantial part of the Social Security burden from general revenues.
And Jimmy Carter will go along, again.
"We figure a rollback is inevitable, this year," says a White House spokesman for such matters. "We're now in a holding pattern. We hope we can limit the tax cut, perhaps by getting an agreement to stall the increases at the 1979 figure to give everybody a chance to decide what to do long-term."
The White House may not even achieve that little success. A group of Democrats led by Rep. Ab Mikva of Illinois and Sen. Gaylord Nelson of Wisconsin has introduced bills under which Social Security payroll taxes would be cut by a third and the Treasury Department would pay the cost of Social Security disability and health benefits.

There are those who oppose what Rep. Andrew Jacobs, D-Ill., calls "such adventurism." Although he opposed the payroll boosts last year, he says it's dangerous to "borrow" to pay for Social Security. What he means is that the dough advanced by the Treasury will add to the national deficit.
He's right, of course. But Uncle Sam borrows for practically everything else, from appropriations for more tanks and planes for the military to bond issues to grant programs. In fact, it's the federal government that's the biggest spender in the country. It's still produced by a swollen bureaucracy, despite candidate Carter's pledge to reduce the number of bodies in some departments and agencies by one-third.
In any case, there has been a massive outpouring of protests from the hinterlands over last year's legislation, which will rip off the citizenry for $227 billion in payroll taxes over the next 10 years. And it is not only the lower-income folks who will suffer. The whole economy will be adversely affected.

As Rep. Henry Reuss, D-Wis., has pointed out, higher payroll tax payments by employees will raise labor costs and force them to raise prices, resulting in a loss of sales, production and jobs. He predicts an increase of almost 3 percent in the unemployment rate by 1986, and says new taxes will drain $60 billion from the size of the economy.
Meanwhile, Republicans in the House are wild with euphoria. Led by Rep. Barber Conable, N.Y., they almost unanimously opposed last December's increases. With voters up in arms, they figure to do pretty well in next November's elections, when every seat in the House will be up for grabs.

By LEE RODERICK
WASHINGTON — On Dec. 28, President Carter said of the Panama Canal agreement: "We wanted a treaty that did not put a financial burden on the American taxpayer, and we got it."
And in his fireside chat on Feb. 1, the president asked, "Are we paying Panama to take the Canal? We are not."
Coming from a man who took his late father's bankrupt farm and shrewdly turned it into a highly profitable business, it is difficult to believe what he was telling us. The ledger for peanuts may be different from the one for a canal, but red ink is red ink wherever you find it.
"The best that can be said for such simplistic assurances is that they are optimistic to the point of naivete," says Sen. Robert Griffin (R-Mich.).

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) — Rhode Island Gov. J. Joseph Garrahy's decision is due within a week, but officials responsible for the Scituate Reservoir say they have yet to be consulted by those studying the proposed Interstate Route 95.
The Rhode Island segment of the Hartford-to-Providence highway would run across the reservoir and through its watershed, Connecticut Gov. Ella Grasso has already approved her state's link.
Some 14,000 UMW construction workers vote on a new contract today and all signs are that they'll put a formal end to the nation's longest continuous coal strike — nearly four months after it began.
The nationwide balloting was to be tallied in Washington and the results announced at a news conference in the capital.
CHICAGO (UPI) — Fire chased more than 100 persons from their beds early today on the 19th floor of a 39-story luxury high-rise apartment building in the near North Side night club district.
Seven persons were known to have suffered from smoke inhalation, minor burns or cuts.
WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter believes the United States has polished its tarnished world image and killed the epithet "Ugly American."
Returning late Monday night from his visit to Venezuela, Brazil, Nigeria and Liberia, Carter pronounced the trip "a great success."
Carter told a welcoming party at the White House. "I think the day of the so-called 'Ugly American' is over."
"I never saw a single gesture or sign or poster or anything other than a sign of friendship," he added.
"Nothing makes me prouder than the truly great nation it is my privilege to represent."

TEL AVIV, Israel (UPI) — The meeting begins at 8 in the Municipal Building's Hearing Room and five public hearings items are scheduled.
The directors also may discuss a proposal to permit the sale of liquor on Sunday in Manchester.
The hearing items are on the following topics: a proposed $12 per foot sewer assessment for sewers on Love Lane; approval of construction of two projects that already have received state or federal funding — trunk and street sewers in the Byram Farms area and a trunk sewer in the New State Road-Adams Street area; an amendment to change the effective date of sidewalk and curb construction and repair ordinance from Jan. 1 to Dec. 31, 1978; a proposal to change the fee for annual tickets to the Manchester Club.

BOSTON (UPI) — Dr. W. Gerald Austen, chief of surgery at Massachusetts General Hospital, said Monday "He will be able to do everything he has done in the past, except better," referring to John Wayne, who underwent a three-hour operation to replace the mitral valve in his heart.
Wayne, who will be 71 May 26, entered the hospital last week after complaining to his doctors in Newport Beach, Calif., about "losing my zip," a hospital spokesman said. He is expected to spend the next three months recuperating and be well enough to go ahead with plans for a summer television special.

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — Monday night the followers of the late Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. and his ideals gathered at the Mason Temple Church of God in Memphis to celebrate the birthday of the late Dr. King. The celebration was held in the auditorium of the church, which is the headquarters of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference.
The Rev. James Bevel, a prominent minister who was one of King's closest associates, presided over the ceremony. He urged the people of Memphis to continue the struggle for equality and to support the Civil Rights Movement.

Carnival rule favored at commission hearing

By JUNE TOMPKINS
Herald Reporter
Many representatives from charitable groups were on hand at Monday night's public hearing in support of an amendment to permit carnivals and circuses in Manchester. The amendment, already approved by the Town Board of Directors, Manchester Planning and Zoning Commission, which held the hearing at the Keene Street School.
Representatives from St. Bridget Church and the Knights of Columbus, who have sponsored previous carnivals, were on hand to support the amendment. They said the amendment would allow carnivals and circuses to be held in the large parking lots on each property, but adjacent to private residences.
Machell recommended that such events be located in other parts of town where parking and lighting are more plentiful and where the noise would be less objectionable.
He asked that the commission "tailor down" certain requirements before a final approval of the amendment.
The amendment was called a "carnival friendly act" by Michael Dworkin, representative of the Manchester Parkade Merchant's Association, who charged Town Manager Weiss with showing favoritism toward religious and fraternal groups. Referring to the several years that the Merchant's Association has sponsored the Coleman Brothers at the Parkade, Dworkin pleaded to be included in the groups covered by the amendment. He said the association has presented its views to Town Counsel.
The Planning and Zoning Commission will act on the hearing at a later date.

In other business, the PZC approved an application from the Army and Navy Club to have its Main Street site changed from a Residence AA Zone to that of the Central Business District Zone.
The PZC tabled a decision on an inland-wetlands application by Stone and Goldberg, pending a clarification of information from Metcalf and Eddy, engineers, and comments from the Public Works Department.
In another inland wetlands matter, the owner of property on Vernon Street agreed to pay bales along his driveway boundary to check siltation. Later, he will extend the hay bale check when septic construction is in an adjoining development project.

Non-budget matters face board tonight

After a night of listening to comments on the 1978-79 budget, the Manchester Board of Directors meets again tonight to conduct the first of its two regular meetings for April.
The meeting begins at 8 in the Municipal Building's Hearing Room and five public hearings items are scheduled.
The directors also may discuss a proposal to permit the sale of liquor on Sunday in Manchester.
The hearing items are on the following topics: a proposed $12 per foot sewer assessment for sewers on Love Lane; approval of construction of two projects that already have received state or federal funding — trunk and street sewers in the Byram Farms area and a trunk sewer in the New State Road-Adams Street area; an amendment to change the effective date of sidewalk and curb construction and repair ordinance from Jan. 1 to Dec. 31, 1978; a proposal to change the fee for annual tickets to the Manchester Club.

Revelation 19:13 "... and his name is called the Word of God."
John the Revelator identified the "Word of God" with Jesus Christ. In John 1:14 he says, "The Word was made flesh and dwelt among us." In John 5:7 he speaks of the Trinity in Heaven as the Father, the Word and the Holy Ghost. Jesus is eternal.

Right the first time

By Andrew Tully
WASHINGTON — As Congress reconvened after its annual, week-long Easter go-off, Jimmy Carter must be telling himself, sadly, that he was right the first time about financing Social Security.
The president, through his point man, Health Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph Califano, proposed last year that some of the cost of keeping Social Security solvent be borne out of general revenues — meaning money raised by other taxes.
But this is a 180 degree turn which he can change his mind president. Consider his flip-flop on deregulation of natural gas when members of Congress, almost all of them Democrats, demanded that Social Security taxes be raised. Carter went along. Signing the bill off last December, he ever praised Congress for its statesmanship.
Now, there has been a change of mind on Capitol Hill. Having heard from angry constituents, a majority are determined to roll back those payroll tax increases. More than 150 Democrats who voted for the tax boosts signed a petition for a party caucus to finance a substantial part of the Social Security burden from general revenues.
And Jimmy Carter will go along, again.
"We figure a rollback is inevitable, this year," says a White House spokesman for such matters. "We're now in a holding pattern. We hope we can limit the tax cut, perhaps by getting an agreement to stall the increases at the 1979 figure to give everybody a chance to decide what to do long-term."
The White House may not even achieve that little success. A group of Democrats led by Rep. Ab Mikva of Illinois and Sen. Gaylord Nelson of Wisconsin has introduced bills under which Social Security payroll taxes would be cut by a third and the Treasury Department would pay the cost of Social Security disability and health benefits.

There are those who oppose what Rep. Andrew Jacobs, D-Ill., calls "such adventurism." Although he opposed the payroll boosts last year, he says it's dangerous to "borrow" to pay for Social Security. What he means is that the dough advanced by the Treasury will add to the national deficit.
He's right, of course. But Uncle Sam borrows for practically everything else, from appropriations for more tanks and planes for the military to bond issues to grant programs. In fact, it's the federal government that's the biggest spender in the country. It's still produced by a swollen bureaucracy, despite candidate Carter's pledge to reduce the number of bodies in some departments and agencies by one-third.
In any case, there has been a massive outpouring of protests from the hinterlands over last year's legislation, which will rip off the citizenry for $227 billion in payroll taxes over the next 10 years. And it is not only the lower-income folks who will suffer. The whole economy will be adversely affected.

U.S. taxpayers to get stung by canal treaties?

By LEE RODERICK
WASHINGTON — On Dec. 28, President Carter said of the Panama Canal agreement: "We wanted a treaty that did not put a financial burden on the American taxpayer, and we got it."
And in his fireside chat on Feb. 1, the president asked, "Are we paying Panama to take the Canal? We are not."
Coming from a man who took his late father's bankrupt farm and shrewdly turned it into a highly profitable business, it is difficult to believe what he was telling us. The ledger for peanuts may be different from the one for a canal, but red ink is red ink wherever you find it.
"The best that can be said for such simplistic assurances is that they are optimistic to the point of naivete," says Sen. Robert Griffin (R-Mich.).

Sewage an issue? Council can veto intertown pacts

South Windsor
The South Windsor Town Council Monday night approved an interlocal ordinance, giving the council veto power over all agreements between local commissions and surrounding towns.

The council succeeded in defeating an amendment which would have included the Board of Education in the ordinance — leaving the board independent of the council in decisions relating to other commissions.

Although the passage of the ordinance is seen by some as directly related to the building agreement with Manchester which would send some of the J.C. Penney sewage into South Windsor, only Councilman Edward Havens made direct reference to the proposed sewer agreement before the vote.

Havens said today he voted in favor of the ordinance on his own merit. "I think the ordinance itself is a good thing," said Havens. "But I don't want to see it used as a tool to defeat the agreement with Manchester. The way I feel now, I intend to vote in favor of the South Windsor-Manchester sewer contract."

Only Councilman Art Chapagne and Councilwoman Jackie Smith voted against the ordinance, leaving a final vote of 7-2.

Informal sources say Manchester will be presented a detailed revised contract which will include an expiration date, a termination clause and a promise that Manchester will accept sewage from the proposed Backland Commons development.

At a public hearing before the regular council meeting, Sewer Commission member Joe Carino criticized the council for giving local commissions an opportunity to work successfully with council members without such an ordinance. "Do you really want to get involved in all the nickel and dime decisions?" asked Carino. "This council is only four months old, so let's see how well the council and commissions can work together. I think what's going to happen is that you're going to win the battle and lose the war. You're going to get yourselves involved in minor issues between the commissions and other towns, and then when a commission is involved in a major situation in town they can literally tell the council to go to hell."

Carino suggested that if the council was determined to pass the ordinance that it include a clause giving it the power to waive final approval if they so wish.

Two of the nine council members are known to be adamantly opposed to the South Windsor-Manchester agreement. Deputy Mayor Robert Myette and Councilman Robert Sillis feel that approval of the contract with Manchester would not be in South Windsor's best interests, and passage of Monday night's ordinance is seen by some as a victory for Myette and Sillis.

Before the deciding vote, Mayor Nancy Caffyn told the 20 residents attending the meeting that the ordinance was necessary because "any agreement that affects all of the citizens of South Windsor in their relationship with the citizens of another town should be the ultimate responsibility of the one body elected by the citizens of South Windsor."

"We hold a public trust for the voters who elected us," said Mayor Caffyn. "and we can only fulfill that trust by taking every action we possibly can to make sure that the taxpayer's money and interests are protected in all areas of town government."

"We do not intend, by this ordinance, to limit the ability of any agency or commission to negotiate with other towns," said Mayor Caffyn. "but we do feel we must reserve the final authority to approve any agreement that binds our people to commitments with other towns."

Coventry
Elmer and Antoinette Turkington, whose application for a summer home on a small island in Coventry Lake was recently approved by the Planning and Zoning Commission, are seeking a court order to enjoin the town from raising the lake's water level.

Despite heavy resident opposition, the PZC permitted the Turkingtons to build a 28-by-24-foot cottage on their island, which is deeded at two acres. However, when the lake level rises beyond 12 feet, only half an acre is left above water.

The Turkingtons claim that if the town raises the water level for recreational purposes this summer, they will not have the full use and enjoyment of their property. The appeal was filed at Tolland County Superior Court.

Meeting set on gym plan

Andover
The School Building Committee will sponsor a public information meeting on the proposed gym addition for Andover Elementary School Wednesday at 8 p.m. in the school all-purpose room.

PZC OKs school location

Hebron
The Hebron Planning and Zoning Commission has approved the site location for the proposed Rham Junior High School.

Rham board member Bruce Gallant presented the site plan for the project with architect Peter Abel and Richard Dimmock, consulting engineer. Also presented was a wetlands application for the project indicating no activity is planned in the wetlands portion of the site.

The PZC said if there is activity in the wetlands area, another application must be submitted. In making the presentation last week, Dimmock said the plan is to obtain approval of a septic system at the upper level. However, it is hoped surface drainage will make it possible to subsequently gain approval of a system at the lower level of the building which will not involve uphill pumping, he said.

The commission also approved the proposed location of an addition to the Town Office Building for office space and a fire station as prepared by architect Dennis A. Keefe.

form stage, portable risers, music and storage rooms. The addition will cost about $662,000 which will be about 50 percent reimbursable from the State Board of Education.

Michael Tulman is chairman of the building committee. Beatrice Kowalski, chairman of the local school board, said the school was recently inspected by the state Department of Education.

She said it will cost about $25,000 to bring the school up to fire code. She said if the proposed addition is approved, the cost to bring the school up to fire code will probably be absorbed in the addition cost.

The proposed addition still needs Board of Finance and Town Meeting or referendum approval.

Vernon council argues, sets fire service vote

By BARBARA RICHMOND
Herald Reporter

Three proposals for fire fighting facilities will go to a referendum vote at one time but without the sanction of some vehemently opposing Democrats on the Town Council.

One of the proposals is replacement of an aerial ladder truck for the Rockville Fire Department, and the other two are a new aerial platform truck and land for a new fire station for the Vernon department.

A hearing has already been held on the Rockville request and the other two will be heard April 17. After that the council will consider setting the date for the referendum.

While Mayor Frank McCoy was on vacation, the council held the hearing on the request to buy the truck for the Rockville Department because a 20-page petition was filed. When the referendum is held, it will be with the approval and recommendation of the mayor. When the mayor returned he exercised his prerogative and did not approve.

He said he was in favor of buying the truck but did not want the money taken from the current budget, as suggested, and he also wanted other items on the machines.

Councilwoman Marie Herbst, who has been an outspoken proponent of buying equipment that is needed, and who has fought for a capitol improvements budget, related to vote for the items when they were lumped together, the replacement with new items. Also opposing the motion was Councilman Len Therreault.

Mayor McCoy, defending his action, said all three items came under the heading of capital improvements. He said it has been the procedure of the town to bond such items. He said he felt he was being responsive, fiscally, in a way that won't be hard on the taxpayers.

Mrs. Herbst said she voted, reluctantly, to put the Rockville request to a referendum in the first place and said she wouldn't vote for putting the three items together, noting to the mayor that "it's your decision, not mine ... you are not going to equate replacement and new equipment," she said.

She said she could see money in the current budget which could be used to buy the Rockville truck at a discount now. Rockville fire chief Donald Maguda had told the council that he found out the truck could be bought this fiscal year for $30,000 less than it will be in the coming year.

She accused the mayor of double talking and said "I'm not governing by crisis anymore ... I think if you put this replacement on the referendum you're making a big mistake."

The meeting then turned into a shouting match when Republican Councilman Robert Wehrli told Mrs. Herbst that they both sat on the same bench last year. "And you were just as loud and you accepted Mr. Dooley's (Thomas Dooley, D) motion to reduce the capital improvement budget to $1 and now, for political expediency, or whatever, you're changing your tune completely ... last year you constantly voted to reduce every budget."

Mrs. Herbst, interrupted with, "Don't you dare say that Mr. Wehrli."

Wehrli objected to the interruption and continued, "Last year you voted against the fire truck, didn't you know what you were doing then or don't you know what you're doing now?"

Mrs. Herbst said she was resentful Wehrli saying she didn't have integrity and added that buying the truck has been bantered around for years and in the last six months things have happened to change the situation for the town. "It's the same as killing!"

Mayor McCoy then explained that the matter of buying the fire trucks and the land for a new fire station in Vernon were all put on a referendum in 1975, along with several other items that were recommended after a study was made of the fire fighting needs in town. The referendum turned down the items at that time.

The mayor, who was also mayor then, said he supported the referendum. Mrs. Herbst and other Democrats would like the town to use Revenue Sharing funds to buy the Rockville truck. When the hearing was held on the use of these funds, firemen suggested this.

The mayor feels the funds should be put into the general budget to help reduce the tax rate. This is allowable. He said he would give the coming referendum his support and expressed the hope that all council members would do the same.

Mrs. Therreault said she, and the other Democrats, had been in favor of buying the truck right along and because they aren't in favor of putting it to a referendum vote, "You're making it look like we're on the opposite end of the stick."

Another Democrat, James Filloff, commented, "The town won't vote for that amount of money, ($100,000 for the Rockville truck, $250,000 for the Vernon truck, and $40,000 for the land). It's the same as killing!"

He will be telling the voters make the decision as to how they wish to spend their own money. That's where the decision belongs and I think they will come up with the right decision," the mayor said.

Hearing slated on zone rules

Bolton
The Bolton Zoning Commission will have a public hearing Wednesday at 8 p.m. at the Community Hall. Several proposed amendments to the zoning regulations will be discussed.

They include minor clarifications and corrections of several sections, restricting the removal of vegetation and providing for sedimentation and erosion control under certain circumstances, improving the definition of the building line and providing for a commuter parking lot.

A proposed change would make the home occupancy business provision of the regulations more restrictive and revise sign regulations. Details of the proposed changes are on file at the town clerk's office.

At St. George's St. George's Episcopal Church will have the Holy Eucharist Rite II followed by an Easter discussion and coffee Thursday at 10 a.m. The Journey in Faith confirmation class will be taught at the church Thursday at 7:30 p.m.

Vernon plan office loses last employee

With the resignation Monday of Ms. Laurie Glass from the Planning Department, the personnel in that department has been depleted.

Last week John Loranger, town planner, resigned to go into the private consulting business and Judith Chanous, who has worked in the department since last July, resigned the week before to take a position as technical adviser for the New Haven Planning Commission.

Ms. Glass is leaving to take a position with the Planning Department in Framingham, Mass. Mayor Frank McCoy, in announcing to the Town Council Monday night that Ms. Glass is leaving, said Loranger, who will leave the end of this week, has been helping to set up files so he (the mayor) will know where the file stands.

He also reactivated a committee to start a search for replacements in the department. Named to the committee were Councilmen Robert Hurd, John Giuletta and George Furbish plus the chairman, or a member of the Planning and Zoning Commissions, and the Zoning Board of Appeals.

He said, as to the day-to-day office duties of the department, that he and Stanley Roester, director of administration, will have to try and handle them.

He expressed some concern about deadlines for some grant applications that are in the works and said he will seek some assistance from the governor's office or the Eastern Connecticut Development Council.

COPE meeting
The Committee On Public Education (COPE) will meet Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. at Sacred Heart Church, Route 30, to discuss the Board of Education budget and hear a report from the subcommittee on curriculum.

Excitement generated by Red Sox in trades

BOSTON (UPI) — The Boston Red Sox will be hard pressed this year to match the excitement they have generated during the off-season.

With the season starting this week and the home opener coming up April 14, the Red Sox have their fans in a frenzy. The demand for tickets is so great that club officials can get away with a new and outrageous policy of selling some bleacher tickets the day before game for $3—a dollar more than the game-day price.

While Red Sox fans always have loved their team, they will display a pennant fever this season that should punch New England into a baseball tizzy never witnessed before.

The reason for the fans' unbounded enthusiasm is traceable to one man, Haywood Sullivan. The soft-speaking, gentle-faced man sauntered through an undistinguished catching career, survived a term as Charles O. Finley's manager in Kansas City and settled quietly into a position as director of player personnel for the Red Sox in 1966.

Now that Sullivan is the man in control, though, he has doffed the conservative mask to reveal himself as a bold gambler.

In six months since taking over as general manager, Sullivan has:

- Spent $4 million of the Yawkey trust's money to buy four free agents.
- Made seven trades that have netted 10 players—including a pair of young All-Stars.
- Jettisoned 10 players to complete trades or trim the roster.

The result is that Boston has two potential 20-game winners in Mike Torrez and Dennis Ekersley, a base stealer and good defensive second baseman in Jerry Remy, a left-right relief combination in Tom Burgeimer and Dick Drago that takes the pressure off overworked Bill Campbell, and solid utility infielders in Jack Brobauer and Frank Duffy.

Sullivan's moves have given Red Sox fans every right to be excited as never before. And if the 1978 Red Sox fall short of the American League flag, fans also will be angry as never before.

"I haven't had time to sit down 10 minutes and think but I've enjoyed every minute of it," said Sullivan, who still is trying to gain approval of ownership from the other American League owners. "Baseball is a blood thing. It gets in there and you can't get away from it."

Here's hoping Sullivan can get away from angry fan reaction, which will hunt him down like a Nolan Ryan baseball, if the Red Sox fail to beat the Yankees for the pennant in the American League East. It would be a crime for such a good baseball man, and such a decent human being, to be bitten by the beast he created.

Eckersley impresses

NEW YORK (UPI) — So far Dennis Eckersley and the Boston Red Sox appear well suited for each other.

The talented right-hander, whom Boston is relying to win the American League East title, pitched three-hit ball for five innings in a 6-0 victory over the New York Mets Monday in his first game in a Red Sox uniform.

Eckersley came to Boston last week in a six-player deal with Cleveland. "I think we got one of the five top pitchers in the league," Boston Manager Don Zimmer said at the time.

On Monday, Eckersley yielded three doubles, two to Ron Hodges and one to Lenmy Handle, while striking out three and walking two batters over five innings.

Boston's Bill Campbell gave up two hits in two innings and Dick Drago stopped the Mets on one hit in the final inning as the Red Sox won their eighth game in the last 10.

Red Lynn's double and Carl Yastrzemski's single and triple were the big hits for the Red Sox, who lagged Nino Espinosa with the loss.

On other fronts, rookie Bob Beal belted a grand slam home run in the first inning to start Atlanta to its 9-4 win over St. Louis ... PITCHER Jerry Reuss dropped a suicide bunt to score the winning run in the sixth inning and Willie Stargell had two doubles and a single as Pittsburgh beat Toronto, 6-5.

Wayne Garrett hit his second homer in two games and Steve Rogers pitched six strong innings to lift Montreal to a 5-4 triumph over Philadelphia ... Don Baylor knocked in four runs and Jim Anderson three as California crushed San Diego, 14-6.

Spring Training

John Grubb drove in two runs to spark Cleveland to a 4-3 victory over the Chicago Cubs ... Texas pitcher Doc Medich was rocked for 14 hits as Houston dumped the Rangers, 8-3. Joaquin Andujar limited Texas to four hits in six innings.

Hick Dempsey's two-run homer in the fifth inning carried Baltimore to a 3-2 victory over the Yankees, their first exhibition win in five starts against the defending world champs.

Right-hander Jim Slaton won his fifth game of the spring in Detroit's 4-3 triumph over Cincinnati ... John Montefusco fired a two-hitter through six innings and Willie McCovey hit his first home run of the Cactus League season to lift San Francisco over Los Angeles, 2-0.

Pro athletes tap Garvey

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An organization representing two-thirds of the professional athletes in North America has elected Ed Garvey of the NFL Players Association as its staff director.

Charter members of the organization, called Professional Athletes International, are the players' associations from the NFL, the Canadian Football League, the North American Soccer League, the WHA, the Association of Tennis Professionals (men) and Professional (motorcycle) Riders.

In addition, the LPGA and the Women's Tennis Association have expressed some support for PAI, said Garvey. Several other organizations, such as the Major League Baseball Players Association, cannot consider affiliation until their governing boards meet.

Not interested in the PAI at this time, according to Garvey, are the NBA and NHL players' groups. The PGA has expressed interest in the past, but did not attend the six-hour meeting Sunday.

"Individual athletes in these sports can affiliate with PAI," Garvey said. "As the players learn about the services PAI can perform, there is no doubt that every association will affiliate."

The PAI will be governed by an executive council comprised of two representatives from every sports organization. Each affiliate, regardless of size, will have one vote in policy-making decisions.

Wide-open game to Whalers, 8-6

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (UPI) — Neither Houston Aeros' Coach Bill Dineen nor New England Whalers' mentor Harry Neale expected a wide-open hockey game, but that is what they got.

"Pie" McKenzie registered his first hat trick of the year Monday night to lead the Whalers past the visiting Aeros 8-6 in a contest between two teams battling for second place in the World Hockey Association.

The win hiked the Whalers' lead over third place Houston to six points.

"You never expect the kind of mistakes we made on defense tonight in a game between two teams vying for playoff position," Neale said after the game.

"We overcommitted, got lazy penalties, and everyone got a chance to make a mistake," he said.

"You would have expected a game like the last one we played here," Neale said, referring to the last time the two teams met which Houston won 1-0.

The Aeros failed to surrender to New England after the Whalers skated to a 5-2 lead on McKenzie's first two goals, a pair by Mark Howe and one by George Lyle.

Instead, Houston rallied behind three unanswered goals by Don Larway, Ron Hannis and Morris Lukowich to tie the game early in the final stanza.

Then, Lyle netted his second goal, but that was offset by Houston's Mike Antonovich who jammed in a rebound on his 28th goal of the year.

McKenzie followed with his third goal of the night, scoring the game winner at 12:05 of the final stanza.

"McKenzie has been one of our best players for the past month," Neale said.

"When the other team is swearing at him, and he is sitting up trouble, you know he is at the top of his game," Neale added.

John Gray tallied twice for Houston, his second goal coming near the end of the game. John Tonelli also scored for the Aeros.

Gordie Howe, who turned 50 Friday, left the game in the second period after getting hit with a puck above his eye while sitting on the Whalers' bench.

Whalers' officials said his eye was swollen shut, and he was expected to see a doctor before playing Wednesday at Edmonton.

McKenzie followed with his third goal of the night, scoring the game winner at 12:05 of the final stanza.

Close call PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Philadelphia Flyers' center Rick MacLeish, who required 80 stitches to close two gashes along his neck and throat, will not play in the Patrick Division NHL showdown against the New York Islanders, it was announced Monday.

MacLeish, the Flyers' second leading scorer with 31 goals, suffered three to four inches deep in Saturday night's game as he sprawled to block a shot in the Flyers' 4-2 victory over the Los Angeles Kings. The Kings' Marcel Dionne accidentally caught MacLeish's neck with the blade of his skate.

Covens ailing BOSTON (UPI) — Center Dave Cowens was expected to miss the Boston Celtics' game in Chicago Tuesday because of a groin pull.

Covens, leading the Celtics with 18.6 points and 13.9 rebounds per game, suffered the injury Sunday in Boston's 123-109 loss to the Pacers.

Eagle girls cop opener

Four three-run frames powered East Catholic girls' softball team to a season-opening 15-6 triumph over Bolton High yesterday at Iridig Robertson Park.

The Eaglettes tallied three runs in their half of the first inning but the Bulldogs came back to take the lead with a five-run second frame. But East rallied with a marker in its half of the inning and took the lead for good with a trio of tallies in the third.

Freshman Kathy Skehan and Juniors Laurie Barry and Peggy Laneri each had two safeties for East. Laneri was the winning hurler, striking out eight, and received excellent defensive support with her teammates charged with only two errors.

Next start for East is Friday at Hartford Public.

Denver clinches division honors

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI) — The Denver Nuggets had just clinched a division title Monday night, but Coach Larry Brown was still bedeviled by the haunting specter of losing All-Star guard David Thompson.

Dan Issel's 27 points helped the Nuggets clinch the Midwest Division title with a comeback 104-96 victory over the Buffalo Braves and free-agent Thompson added 20 points as Denver handed Buffalo its ninth straight loss and 51st defeat of the season. It was the only NBA game scheduled.

The Nuggets coach hoped that people wouldn't bargain with the 23-year-old Thompson until June. "Personally I want David just to play and have people leave him alone until after the season," Brown said.

"It's not like a typical free agent situation, where a guy's looking for more money," Brown explained. "He's looking to see where he can be happy and win a championship. Hopefully, we'll be able to provide that for him."

Denver put together 11 and 9 point strings after Buffalo had taken an 87-79 lead early in the final quarter, mainly on the work of Randy Smith, who poured in 23 of his game-high 39 points after intermission.

Denver fell behind by eight on Smith's three-point play with 9:47 remaining in the game. But the Nuggets went on an 11-0 spurt over the next 2 1/2 minutes before Buffalo's Sven Nater tied it 91-91 with 5:35 left.

The Nuggets outgunned Buffalo, 13-4, the rest of the way, en route to their 46th win of the season.

Thompson says he doesn't think too much about moving on to another club.

"I keep it in the back of my mind," he said. "When I'm out there on the floor, I'm just concentrating and playing the best I possibly can for the Nuggets."

He says money won't be the major factor in a move. "Quite naturally, money is going to be a big part of it, but it's not going to be the total issue," he explained. "There are other things to take into consideration, such as the type of player I'll be playing with, and feeling comfortable in a particular city.

"A lot of teams are in the picture. I'm a free agent so any team can talk to me," Thompson said.

Mullaney accepts Brown hoop job

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) — After just two days as an absentee coach, Joe Mullaney said he just wasn't that familiar with Brown University's basketball team. Then, a player called his bluff.

"Hi, I'm Peter Moss," the sophomore forward from Amherst, Mass., shouted into the phone.

"Six foot four inches, 165 pounds," Mullaney cut in, reciting the player's vital statistics.

Mullaney was speaking from Italy Monday, but he couldn't hide his enthusiasm for returning to Rhode Island and taking over the Ivy League school's floundering basketball team.

In 1969, Mullaney left to replace Gerry Alamo late Sunday night. It was two days after Indiana assistant Bob Donewald got cold feet and backed out.

In a long distance telephone conversation costing $18 a minute, Mullaney told reporters and players at Marvel Gym that he expects his new job will be "very challenging."

"On the basketball situation at Brown, Mullaney said, "it's a very challenging one and I think I've always been happiest in that kind of situation, and that pleases me very much," Mullaney said.

He said what didn't please him — in fact he was "disappointed" — was that he was the school's second coach to take the job. But he said it didn't matter.

"It had been my intention for some time to get back into college coaching, and that's why I had the in-

The Set
Dear Abby
By Abigail Van Buren
DEAR ABBY: An elderly woman signed HAD MY SAY resented being addressed by her first name by doctors and the nurses. She said it was rude and demeaning. You defended the practice saying it is not intended as an insult formal "Mrs. Mrs. or Mr. Mrs. is considered "friendly" than the more I disagree. I was brought up differently, and I cannot get used to hearing a secretary, receptionist or salesperson use anything but "Madam or Mrs. Mrs. If they know my surname, being called "Honey" or "Dear" by a salesperson is also irritating. Familiarity breeds contempt, and I don't want to go back to a place where first-name basis is the policy. Thank you for lending me your ear. This problem has bothered me ever since I came to America. And my children have never been allowed to call my friends by their first names either! FROM ENGLAND

Win at Bridge
Early trick sets it up
DEAR ABBY: To HAD MY SAY, who resents being called by her first name, I say, "Right on!" And it's not a question of age. It's undue familiarity, demeaning and disrespectful. I know a woman who handled it this way: During her first visit to a doctor she had never seen before, he asked, "Mary, does this hurt?" She replied, "Yes, Jack." After that, he called her "Mrs. Smith."

School spending dominates

 are no frills."
 Emily MacKenzie, president of the PTA Council, said that there are 2,000 paid members in the town's PTA.
 "The concern for education in this community is strong and deep," she said as she recommended no cut in the education budget.
 E. Neal Hanrahan of 472 Hilliard St. referred to problems in other towns where athletic programs have been cut and school supplies have been limited.
 "As a concerned parent, I'm willing to pay the extra cost for education," he said.
 Gerry Harvey of 19 Grove St. urged the board to pass the entire education budget, which she called a realistic one.
 Programs for gifted students or art instruction might be regarded as frills by some, but these should be part of a good education program, she said.

 Robert Richardson of 87 Phelps Road spoke in favor of the school spending.
 "Just holding the line is not enough," he said.
 He was one of several who spoke favorably of the musical programs in Manchester schools, which were expanded last year.
 Other speakers spoke favorably for specific parts of the budget. These included Steve O'Donnell, director of Crossroads, and Lois Lewis, executive director of the Manchester Public Health Nursing Association, who asked for full funding for their programs.

help get them through the years after federal funds ran out, James said. The HMO would have slightly lower mortgage payments than lease payments. And it would have a building it could refinance if it needed to then.
 Crowley told the agency Monday night the federal Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) officials are putting "extreme pressure" on them to develop the HMO to serve the greater Hartford region.
 "Now we can proceed with financing," he said.
 He declined to even suggest an opening date to the agency.
 Mayor Richard Blackstone said Monday he still wanted the HMO building in East Hartford. His only concern was that it be a taxable building.
 Crowley assured the agency Monday night the corporate setup would insure the building will be taxable by the town.

Health organization gets site

 Builders and Developers Inc. of East Hartford, James had made plans to put a medical office building on Tract 9B on Ash Street early in 1977. When James heard about the HMO, he changed his plans to make a home for the HMO. He would lease it to the HMO.
 The agency had given James nominee status last spring. This means the agency would not consider any other builders for the land.
 HMO leaders and James had a "failure of communications" in the fall. In January, Crowley of the HMO asked the agency for Tract 1. James said this was a surprise to him.
 James returned to his original plans to set up a medical office building on Tract 9B because the agency denied Tract 1 to the HMO. Up until late last week, James said he thought he had the support needed to complete his $15 million building.

 Monday night James said he did not have the support. He said it would be unfair to the agency and to the HMO to continue holding onto the site.
 Agency member Russell Richards then moved that the agency give nominee status to the HMO. The motion passed unanimously.
 James said he understood why the HMO had decided not to work with him. Federal funds will support the HMO in its first few years. It could then make the lease payments to him. But when the federal funds dried up in about five years, the HMO might not yet be able to carry the lease payments on its own.
 HMO leaders felt that a separate HMO corporation which would build and own the HMO building would help get them through the years after federal funds ran out, James said. The HMO would have slightly lower mortgage payments than lease payments. And it would have a building it could refinance if it needed to then.

 Crowley told the agency Monday night the federal Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) officials are putting "extreme pressure" on them to develop the HMO to serve the greater Hartford region.

 sponsored projects and in financial difficulty.
 Others speaking in opposition to the proposed project objected to the noise factor from nearby traffic, called it poor planning, and too big a project for the site.
 The difficulty in maneuvering an aerial ladder fire truck around the proposed facility was mentioned by Robert Samuelson of 108 Hemlock St. He said he had not brought it to the attention of the Town of Manchester Fire Department chief.

 The Planning and Zoning Commission has 65 days from last night's hearing to make its final decision.

About town
 The executive board of the Waddell School PTA will meet tonight at 8 in the school library. There will be a public comment session before the business meeting.
