Today's news summary

WASHINGTON (UPI) — "Everyone who voted no today... will be defeated in November," vowed an anti-abortionist as he promptly rallied on the Capitol steps after an emergency farm-aid bill was passed Wednesday by a 266-150 margin in the House. Backers of the bill argued that quick help was needed to keep thousands of farmers from going bankrupt.
President Carter, who had threatened to veto the bill because it would raise retail food prices 3 percent, boost government spending by over $5 billion, and hurt thousands of livestock farmers by raising the cost of feed grains, was delighted with the House action.
Indiana (UPI) — Willa Mayes is being tried on seven charges of neglect of dependents and reckless homicide, in addition to a manslaughter charge in connection with the death of Daniel Bush, 5, for allegedly giving him and five other children heavy doses of salt water to purge them of demons.
ST. LOUIS (UPI) — After 300 garbage collection workers walked out on their jobs in a dispute over daily trips to the city incinerators, Street Director William Wilson fired them. Wednesday he said the city has hired five private hauliers to collect refuse.
Wilson ordered the strikers fired after a brief meeting with Glen Boyer, business agent of Teamsters Local 610, when the two men could not agree on a method of resolving the dispute. Wilson insisted the men return to their jobs before negotiations could begin, while Boyer said talks must start before workers would return.
BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Residents of the southeast Christian enclave of Ain Rummaneh, a Beirut suburb, said fighting today at first was not as intense as Wednesday's clashes, but it intensified in the late morning, driving many people into basement shelters.
The renewed fighting shattered the 13th cease-fire in five days in the same Beirut suburb where the Lebanese civil war began exactly three years ago.

WEST MEMPHIS, Ark. (UPI) — There was no danger of an explosion when a propane tanker on a derailed train sprang a leak, and the pre-dawn evacuation of 400 sleepy residents from their beds by jittery officials probably was unnecessary Wednesday, a railway official says.
"We actually never had much of a problem all day," said C.J. Slack, assistant superintendent for the Rock Island Railroad in Little Rock. "We didn't feel there was any real danger."
Police said by Wednesday night all residents had returned home, but Gahrigh said not all the hospital patients would be back until sometime this afternoon.
ATLANTA (UPI) — Hustler magazine owner Larry Flynt, wounded and partially paralyzed by a sniper's bullet during a break in his obscenity trial last month, will soon be returned to his home in Columbus, Ohio, it was announced today.

New wall collapses at cinema

One man killed, another stable

By MAL BARLOW
Herald Reporter
A newly built cinder block wall which stood 40 feet high and 127 feet long fell this morning at 9:06 and crushed two workmen at Showcase Cinemas in East Hartford, police said.
Michael Moran, 31, of High Street, Higganum, workman for the Valley Concrete Corp. of Farmington, was pronounced dead on arrival at Hartford Hospital.
Leland Bossie, 28, of 34 Anthony Road, Bristol, Moran's work partner who stood almost next to him at the time, was in "stable" condition at Hartford Hospital at noon today, a spokesman said. Bossie was to undergo surgery on his fractured hip this afternoon, the spokesman said.
Police said the two men were resurfacing the concrete floor of what was to become the sixth theater in the Showcase complex in the Charter Oak Mall off Silver Lane. The wind is suspected of causing the wall to fall. The wall had been built during the week.
Rescue efforts were frustrated by millions of bits of styrofoam swirling in the air within the remaining walls of the building, said an attendant for the Manchester Ambulance firm. The firm had sent three vehicles and six crewmen to the scene. The styrofoam had formed part of the interior of the wall and was apparently to be insulation and sound absorbers. It broke into bits when the wall fell.
"It was a real weird scene," said an attendant.
The hospital said Moran's wife, Mrs. Cynthia Moran, is pregnant. She was taken from the hospital by friends and seemed to be all right at noon.
Neighbors opposed it
The owners of Showcase Cinemas, National Amusements Inc. of Boston, appealed Feb. 9, 1977 to the East Hartford Planning and Zoning Commission (PZC) for permission to build its sixth theater in the complex. It was to have 528 seats, four of them reserved for the handicapped.
Residents of the area protested the plans. They said the added traffic could not be handled.
Mayor Richard Blackstone had called for a moratorium on construction in the area today.

New efforts have cut the absentee rate at Manchester High School.

Top spy would share secrets

America's top spy, Stanfield Turner, wants to share intelligence information with the public.
Turner told groups in Columbus, Ohio, and Detroit Thursday of a major departure in the country's traditional policy of keeping such information secret.
"We want to share what information we collect when it can be unclassified," he said Thursday. "For example, there is economic and political information that we can collect that would be of value to American businessmen," he told the Economic Club of Detroit.
He said the CIA is ready to expand its intelligence activities to non-military areas that could give taxpayers "a better return on their investment."
In Columbus Thursday night, Turner said the tradition of keeping CIA work secret "is no longer the policy, because the public wants to know. We will be speaking more, answering the media more completely, and publishing more."
Turner said the Soviet Union, while concentrating heavily on maintaining an extensive spy network, has fallen seriously behind the United States in the technical aspects of intelligence.
He said satellites and other devices have enhanced the CIA's ability to gather information on a global scale, but have not reduced the need for personnel.
"We now have an increased demand for the human element," he said.

Sarasin is still confident

By SUSAN VAUGHN
Herald Reporter
Still confident of enough delegates to win the gubernatorial nomination at the state convention, Rep. Ronald A. Sarasin (R-5th District) said Thursday night that he does not want to run against state Rep. Gerald F. Stevens of Milford and state Sen. Lewis Biome of Bloomfield.
Speaking at a candidates night at Manchester Community College, Sarasin said, although his two chief contenders are strong in their home areas, he does not believe they have enough strength throughout the state to get 20 percent of the delegates needed to primary in September. He also said he would like to have both Rome and Stevens on the state ticket.
Sarasin pointed to his strength in leading every town in his congressional district in his election to Congress, noting that he outpolled Sen. Lowell Welcker. He also noted that he has great labor support and support from areas not traditionally Republican strongholds.
Sarasin pointed to job creation and state spending as the most critical problems facing Connecticut. He said, "Everything the governor and the legislature do in government ought to be viewed from job creation."
He said the rapid rate of state spending at 14 percent needs to be slowed down to 6 or 8 percent by the legislature.

Board asks rule on closed talks

By GREG PEARSON
Herald Reporter
The Manchester Board of Directors has asked the town council's office to issue an opinion about whether a member attending an executive session can discuss the events of that session publicly.
The request from the board was made at Thursday night's budget workshop after Stephen Penny, chairman of the board, recommended an executive session to discuss a position in the Health Department.
Carl Zinsner, a board member who has expressed opposition to executive sessions in the past, said that he would leave if the board went into such a session.
Vivian Ferguson, however, was the member who triggered a heated discussion on the rights of a member attending an executive session. She said that she would attend such a session because she feels it is important for minority-party members to attend executive sessions. But, she also said that she would discuss anything she saw fit with newspaper reporters who would not be permitted to stay during an executive session.
Penny objected to this, and a heated debate followed between the two directors.
He said that an individual director does not have the authority to discuss publicly those items discussed during an executive session.
He used an executive session on the negotiation for the purchase of land as an example.

Democrat muscle approves budget

HARTFORD (UPI) — House Democrats outmaneuvered Republicans Thursday night and approved a record $2.135 billion election year budget for Connecticut that carries more money for state jobs, welfare, education and financially beleaguered cities and towns.
All but one of 91 Democrats in the House voted for the budget. All 59 Republicans in the lower chamber voted against it. The spending package now goes to the Senate, where it is expected to be approved today.
Ella T. Grasso promised Thursday morning to sign the budget.
The ambitious spending plan — biggest in Connecticut history — is 14 percent less than this year's budget. Surpluses, one-shot revenues and an anticipated improvement in the state's economy account for most of the proposed spending increase for fiscal year beginning July 1.
In the Senate Thursday afternoon, Democrats used their superior numbers to push aside 14 Republican tax cut proposals and approve the only tax cut in Mrs. Grasso's budget, elimination of the 2.5 percent tax on business machinery.
The budget carries no tax increases.
House Democrats described the spending half of the budget as a payoff for three years of fiscal belt-tightening, and a bonus borne by brighter economic days. Republicans charged the package was a Democratic vote-getting gimmick that could force a state income tax in 1980.
House Minority Leader Gerald Stevens, R-Milford, said the spending blueprint was a Democratic "attempt to buy votes in the November election."
But, House Majority Leader William O'Neill, D-East Hampton, countered by saying, "We didn't squirrel money away. Through sound fiscal management, we came up with a surplus. We're sending it back to the people."
The House spent almost seven and one-half hours debating the budget before the Democrats finally imposed their will at 9:30 p.m. Rep. John Morris of New Britain was the only Democrat to vote against the budget.
During lengthy debate, the majority lawmakers voted down a $6-a-COP amendment to cut the proposed budget to $2.03 billion.

Telephone switching disrupted

A large number of telephones, including emergency phones for the Manchester Memorial Hospital, the Police Department and the fire departments had some disruptions Thursday between 1:45 and 2:20 p.m., according to Southern New England Telephone Co.
The disruption in service affected some of the phones with the calling codes of 646, 647, 643 and 649, which includes a total of 24,000 Manchester customers, William Seckamp, area news supervisor for SNET, said. Not all of the phones in the calling area, however, had the difficulties, he said.
The problems experienced by some customers included a delay in receiving a dial tone and some calls not going through.

A catch

cochairmen called a recess shortly before the vote was taken to talk to their party members.
During the recess, the Hartford Democrats were told the Finance Committee had just passed two major bills to help the state's capital city. When the committee was reunited, Clout had changed his tune. "I would urge my urban colleagues, specifically my colleagues from Hartford, to vote for this bill," he said.
Republicans continued to rail, but they no longer had enough votes to block the bill's passage.

Connecticut news capsules

Apology given
STORRS (UPI) — A state official has apologized to construction workers for comments he made about them during ground breaking ceremonies for a new fine arts building at the University of Connecticut recently.
State Administrative Services Commissioner Daniel F. MacKinnon visited the construction site Wednesday to apologize for referring to workers as "lesser paid and lesser educated."
The commissioner also wrote an apology to the Connecticut Construction Industries Association for his remarks.
He told the CIA his comments were "meant to say instead of just spending time talking about the building, we would now turn over the job of building to those who know how to do it."
Landing mishap
HARTFORD (UPI) — Authorities say a Harwinton woman and her two daughters escaped injury when the airplane she was piloting ran off the runway while landing at Branard Airport.
Officials said the mishap occurred about 6:10 p.m. Wednesday after the plane piloted by Jean Marie Languell of Harwinton touched down on the runway, veered onto a grassy strip after the landing gear collapsed.
The airplane struck a runway landing light before coming to a stop. Neither Mrs. Languell or her daughters, Elizabeth, 6, and Allison, 4, were injured.

Lottery

The winning number drawn Wednesday in the Connecticut daily lottery was 097.

Sears open on Sundays

Sears Roebuck and Co. in the Parkade, one of the largest stores in the Parkade not to open on Sundays, plans to start Sunday openings later this month, according to Roy Drummond, manager of the store.
Drummond said no firm decision has been made on the date or the hours the store will be open. He said the Sunday hours will probably begin the latter part of April.

Minority trouble

NEW LONDON (UPI) — The Coast Guard Academy appears to be having problems recruiting and hanging onto black, Puerto Rican and Oriental cadets.
A report from the Coast Guard Academy Advisory Committee submitted Wednesday to Adm. Owen Siler, commandant of the Coast Guard, says half the minority students admitted to the class of 1981 have left the academy.
The academy admitted 10 minority students to that class. Six are still left at the academy.
Siler, who met with the academy's advisory committee, said a program enabling cadets from minority groups to remain at the academy even though they are not immediately promoted — in effect repeating a year — could help the academy keep minority cadets on board.

Seal forged on roof plan

NAUGATUCK (UPI) — A state official says a forged engineer's seal was used on blueprints for a department store whose roof collapsed this winter.
Dr. Ernest Gardow, secretary of the Connecticut Board of Registration for Professional Engineers and Land Surveyors, said Tuesday, "The seal has apparently been used illegally. We now have evidence of wrongdoing." The engineer's seal is his certification the building is safe for occupancy.

Realty unit gives prize for cleanup

The Women's Council of Realtors of Manchester will sponsor an award of $25 in connection with their cooperation with the Downtown Manchester Association and their effort to clean up the downtown area Sunday.

This award will be given to the group of youths having the largest number of participants assisting in the cleanup. It may be a Scout, civic, church or neighborhood group of youths.

Persons interested in the program may report to Jack McVeigh Sunday at 11 a.m. at the parking lot on the corner of Forest and Main streets. The cleanup effort will last until 1 p.m.

Old phone books will be collected

A collection of old telephone books is under way in the Manchester-Rockville area and will end April 22. New phone books have just been distributed by the Southern New England Telephone Co. and the old books are being collected in an effort to prevent them from becoming a burden on the environment, company officials said.

Paula Kraiger, manager of the Manchester office, said the collection idea was initiated as a way to keep phone books from contributing to pollution. She said the old directories can be used again.

Once collected they are taken to a paper reprocessing mill where they are recycled with other higher grade paper to make such new paper products as cardboard, roofing paper and pressed board.

Residents of the Manchester and Rockville areas are asked to deposit the old books in bins located at 52 E. Center St. in Manchester and at the company's central office, 33 Elm St., Rockville, or at the company garage on New State Road in Manchester.

Vance begins meetings to avert Rhodesia war

DAR ES SALAAM, Tanzania (UPI) — Secretary of State Cyrus Vance began a weekend of intensive consultations today, buoyed by a reported major breakthrough in his desperation mission to avert full-scale civil war in Rhodesia.

Vance was meeting first with British Foreign Secretary David Owen to discuss the latest developments in their last-ditch campaign to win acceptance of the Anglo-American majority rule plan for the former British colony.

The two diplomats were holding talks Saturday and Sunday with Joshua Nkomo and Robert Mugabe, leaders of the Patriotic Front guerrilla organization fighting in Rhodesia, and the foreign ministers of six black African nations — Nigeria, Tanzania, Mozambique, Zambia, Angola and Botswana.

American officials said Thursday they believed the Patriotic Front had agreed to accept all elements of the Anglo-American plan, including free elections.

If the American officials are right, it would be a major breakthrough in the spitting negotiations on Rhodesia, now governed by Prime Minister Ian Smith and three moderate blacks.

But the officials conceded Vance's proposal for a all-party conference of the Patriotic Front and the internal leadership of Rhodesia somewhere in Africa later this month is still a "long shot."

The newly installed government in Salisbury already has said it would not attend such a gathering, but Vance, who will be going to Salisbury early next week, will seek to change that position.

Vance, accompanied by U.N. Ambassador Andrew Young, arrived in Dar es Salaam Thursday after a 19-hour flight from Washington.

Officials aboard his plane said the Patriotic Front leadership now has agreed to the essential elements of the Anglo-American plan, including a U.N. presence and a central role for an appointed British resident commissioner during the transition to majority rule.

A senior American official said Vance will tell the Salisbury government it stands no chance of gaining international acceptance or an end to economic sanctions.

Vance also will say the United States is prepared to make a significant contribution to a development fund for Rhodesia if a government is formed that represents all the parties, including the Patriotic Front.

He will argue that the alternative to his proposals is almost certainly widespread civil war, and the likelihood of expanded Soviet and Cuban influence in southern Africa, the officials said.

Before going to Salisbury, Vance will travel to Pretoria and will emphasize this last argument in the hopes the South Africans will put pressure on the Rhodesians to accept an all-party conference.

What New York designer Halston normally does for Liza Minnelli, Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis and Elizabeth Taylor he's now doing for his city's police force. As a result, "New York's finest" may be the best-dressed cops in the world.

The city has decided to replace its out-moded blue police uniforms, and Halston has volunteered to design them — free of charge.

He says he'll work around the function of the job, because, "These people have to carry handcuffs, whistles, guns, and bullets. They have to run, jump over walls, and get guns out of their pockets. It's an interesting challenge."

Manhattan Borough President Andrew Stein witnessed a jewel thief Thursday at New York's Plaza Hotel.

He watched, fascinated, as a beautiful gypsy girl slipped into the hotel and made off with a $75,000 baguette diamond — but he didn't call the police. He applauded.

The thief was Susan Sarandon, who costars with Shelley Winters, Sterling Hayden and Brooke Shields in "King of the Gypsies" — based on Peter Maas' best-seller — now being filmed in the city.

Walking a new beat, Richard Hongtolo may have lost a badge but he's gained a microphone. The deposed Cleveland police chief soon will become a commentator for Radio Station WGLT-FM — doing two-minute spots on crime and other urban ills.

Mayor Dennis Kucinich raised a storm of protest when he fired the controversial one-time San Francisco County sheriff in a policy dispute.

But Hongtolo's fortunes haven't waned. He's won a six-week fellowship at Case Western Reserve University School of Law, and hints he might go into politics — for a run at Kucinich's job.

Opinion

No sacred cows

Well, the town directors have been at the budget now for about two weeks, and so far they have managed to cut out about $25,000 from a recommended budget of $27.8 million.
It's not enough, obviously, and the directors know it.
There cannot be any sacred cows in this budget. The directors must take a good, hard look at the education budget, the fire department budget, the police budget, and every other major budget.
Let them heed the word of President Carter who this week said, "Let me be blunt about it (inflation). I am asking American workers to follow the example of federal workers and accept a lower rate of wage increase. In return, they have a right to expect a comparable restraint in price increases for the goods and services they buy."
Last Saturday on the Opinion page, if you read what Caspar W. Weinberger, former Secretary of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, said, you know that California and Massachusetts have proposals that will limit taxation, and governments are going to have to live within the limits of the taxes collected.
In today's Open Forum you will find a letter written by Ronald Walsh. He suggests the board should decide if an increase is necessary, set it, and then let the department heads tailor their budgets to meet the fixed amount.
Maybe you have an opinion on how the budget can be decreased. You are equally welcome to use these columns to express your views.
Do it quickly, though; the budget must be set by May 7.

Other Editors say: "Is the dream dead?"

"...due to its privileged location at the juncture between South America and the rest of the continent including the canal that permits U.S. warships to operate simultaneously in the Atlantic and the Pacific, the Canal Zone must be considered by the Soviet Union as a priority one..."
To hear the minions of the Carter Administration tell it on talk shows and in "briefing" sessions across the country, only the lazy, the intellectually lame and the fossilized relics of the Cold War oppose the Panama Canal Treaty.
In the last category, for example, are Americans who worry about the strategic implications of surrounding control of the canal and say so in words much like the above.
Except that the above quote is not from an American.
It is from a Russian, Maj. Sergei Yumonov, in an article he wrote a few months ago for Red Star, official publication of the Red Army.
The Russians obviously do not regard the canal either as "obsolescent" nor "lacking in military importance" — two catch-phrases of those trying to ram the treaty down the throats of an unwilling American public.
Yet too many Americans who can and should speak out in opposition to this shameful, needless and dangerous giveaway have been cowed into submission by one of the most bombastic propaganda barrages in American history. Included, we fear, are far too many of the nation's publishers — and we aren't talking about those who claim that their responsibility ends at the cashier's cage.
The Scripps League Newspapers, with their forthright advertisements in this magazine on the giveaway, have demonstrated the kind of spunk we admire and so rarely find any more in American publishers.

In their ads and in the digging reporting which supported them — the Scripps League showed how Middle America, despite the propaganda blitz, remains unconvinced that the treaty is a good thing for the country.
We, in Panax, cheer the efforts of the Scripps League. We, in Panax, in the pages of our newspapers, have done our utmost to counter the propaganda blitz.
Time is running out on America. Time not just to save the Panama Canal, but to save the nation itself from the paralysis of will and grit and belief in ourselves that bodes an inglorious end for what was and ought to remain humanity's one best hope, the American Dream.
It is going to happen unless most publishers get out of their ivory towers and back to the war zone of ideas.
I began this essay with a quote from a Russian. We chose with another from an American, Theodore Roosevelt, the man who made the Panama Canal a reality:
"...for better it is to dare mighty things, to win glorious triumphs, even though checked with failure, than to rank with those poor spirits who neither enjoy much nor suffer much, because they live in the gray twilight that knows not victory or defeat..."
The American people plainly do not want to use the Panama Canal. The nation's publishers owe it to them to join in opposing those who would condemn us to the gray twilight of national cowardice.
At least that's how we see it at Panax.

Editor's note: This article is an advertisement that appeared in Editor & Publisher, a journalists publication, by Panax Newspapers on April 1.

On this day in history:
In 1861, the flag of the Confederacy was raised over Fort Sumter, S.C., as Union troops there surrendered in the early days of the Civil War.
In 1865, John Wilkes Booth crept into the box of President Abraham Lincoln at Ford Theater in Washington and shot him. Lincoln died the next morning.

Thought

"Stay with us. It is evening — the day is practically over." (Luke 24:28)
Like the disciples on their trip to Emmaus, so we, too, on our journey through life, could speak in prayer their original words. When we realistically consider our lives, we, too, are on a pilgrimage — we are traveling to a specific destination, and each day brings us a step closer to our final goal. During this time of earthly travel, we, too, can and should say to Christ, "Stay with us. It is nearly evening — the day is practically over."
Am I conscious of the presence of the Lord in my life? Like the disciples, have I discovered him in the written word of Scripture, in the breaking of the bread? Am I overly concerned with hidden inner fears because he is not real enough for me? Should not the words of Camus be daily on our lips and in our hearts:
"Don't walk before me, I may not follow.
Don't walk behind me, I may not lead.
Just walk beside me, and be my friend."

Question:
Meal times at our house are a nightmare. Our six year old won't eat anything on her plate. We won't let her have dessert and snacks if she doesn't eat her meal, but now she's started sneaking food. Punishing her has only seemed to make the whole thing worse. What should we do now?
Answer:
In many instances the atmosphere and behavior which occur during meal time are a barometer of the family's more general life style. If this were so in this case, it would suggest that an unhappy power struggle between child and parents was in operation. This would show itself in similar types of upsetting behaviors in other areas such as a struggle over bed time, washing up, picking up toys, etc.
If generalized enough and of more than a passing nature, it would indicate a need for professional counseling which the parents should seek for themselves and their child.
If on the other hand the most upsetting conflict indeed occurs mainly about meal time, a careful examination of the period just prior to and including meal time would seem to be the first step. (I am assuming that the physical health of the child has been checked by the family physician or pediatrician and medical difficulties have been ruled out.)
How do the family members view preparing and eating meals together? Does meal time occur when the child is overtired, irritable, anxious to return to play or a TV program?
What about the parents? Are there time pressures which make it difficult to eat in a relaxed and pleasant way?
Did the behavior begin following any significant family event such as the birth of a sibling; a death of a close relative; the loss of a loved pet;

We are proud of him

To the editor:
The honor to be bestowed on Rabbi Leon Wind April 19 by the general Manchester community is justly deserved and, in addition, is a great honor for Temple Beth Shalom as well.
Rabbi Wind is the recipient of the first annual Community Service Award for Spiritual Leadership, to be presented to him by the Greater Manchester Chamber of Commerce at its annual dinner — at The Colony, Talcottville.
At Temple Beth Shalom since 1945 and for two years before then at still another Temple Beth Shalom in Kansas City, Mo., Rabbi Wind indeed is as much a part of our Temple as the Temple is a part of him. Three generations of Manchester Jews have known only him as their spiritual leader and teacher. To say that they are better for the experience is the understatement of the past 33 years.
His success and the recognition he has received came in spite of the adversities he had to overcome in his formative years. He and his sister were the only survivors of the Nazi Holocaust, when they lost their entire family — father, mother, grandmother, uncles, aunts and cousins.

That he sustained his love of Judaism and his faith and belief in God is a sign of his perseverance, his dedication and his devotion to people — Jew and non-Jew.
He has been (and still is) a counselor, a scholar, a teacher, a leader and a friend and he has been honored many times by his peers and by his co-religionists.
However, the honor he will receive April 19 tells in no small measure how revered he is by the entire Manchester community and how proud it is of him and of his shining record.
Sincerely,
Sol R. Cohen

We are all humans

To the editor:
I am very upset that Pascal Prignano in his anguish was forced to write letters defending his father regarding the recent publicity on the malpractice case.
Where are the hundreds of patients he treated when he was a practicing physician? Are they afraid of getting involved? He was not my personal physician but he did cover for my doctor once when I needed him to be a very kind, compassionate man. A man who quietly made his diagnosis and prescribed the needed treatment. He was also the personal physician of my aunt and uncle and they both adored him.
I was very moved by a letter of tribute to him when he died. When an employee could write so glowingly about her employer, this shows what a good man he must have been.
My heart aches for both the patient's family as well as Dr. Prignano's family. I think we are living in a pretty sick society when a dead man is so viciously attacked by the press and yet the patient's personal physician is so carefully protected because he still lives! It looks to me that a mistake not only buried a patient but a doctor as well.
I have been a patient in the emergency room myself as recently as last June and I know from experience that you are not treated by the emergency room doctor if you have a personal physician and he is on duty or unless he himself approves the treatment.
We all have to remember, including the doctors, that we are all humans and as humans we do make mistakes. A good doctor doesn't play God; he walks with God and that is the kind of doctor John Prignano was.
Sincerely,
Marjorie Waddell Fischer

Grateful to you all

To the editor:
The local branch of the Red Cross is very grateful to all those nice and thoughtful people who gave blood during the recent visit of the flood relief mobile at the Community Baptist Church.
Our gratitude also includes all those who offered to give but were deferred for one reason or another, as well as those dedicated volunteers who worked at the church during a busy afternoon, those who provided transportation where needed, and those who set up this very worthwhile project.
This was another outstanding example of people helping people and we would indeed be remiss if we were not to say "Thank You" to all those who participated and helped. We are indeed grateful.
Sincerely,
Joe Swenson,

Workshops do little

To the editor:
A budget is an enormously complex document prepared by full-time professional people who are totally familiar with the daily operation of the business involved.
Therefore, I submit that the budget workshops are a waste of the directors' time and accomplish little in real changes in the budget.
The Board of Directors is elected to represent the people. The people want reasonable control exercised over the potential excesses of unrestrained government spending.
The board should agree on whether any mill increase is necessary and, if so, how much. Then each department should submit a new budget to meet the guidelines set by the board.
The directors have a difficult and often thankless job. They can, in my opinion, save a great deal of their time and our money by eliminating the budget workshops and setting the limits on town government that the people elected them to do.
Very truly yours,
Ronald J. Walsh

School program screens children for kindergarten

By SUSAN VAUGHN
Herald Reporter
Nearly 500 Manchester children have had their first introduction to school during the past month through the kindergarten screening program at all the public elementary schools.
The screening serves several purposes for the children, parents and the schools, according to Annelouise Fournier, supervisor in the special education program.
The screening helps to acquaint the children with their future school environment and classroom teacher, she said.
It also alerts teachers to areas in which children may be having difficulty, thus serving as a guide for the kindergarten curriculum for the following year.
The school staff is also alerted to any health, social or emotional problems that a child may have.
"We like it to be a good experience," Mrs. Fournier said, and most children and parents seem to enjoy it.
The process can help alleviate some fears parents may have about sending their four or five-year old off to school.
At the end of one of the screening sessions at Keeney School recently, one parent seemed very pleased to hear from the screening personnel that her daughter "seems very ready for school."
The screening committee helped alleviate her one concern, that her daughter would not be able to reach the steps of the school bus because she is so small. The committee members laughed and assured the mother that "somehow" the little girl would make it, probably with the help of the other children.
The screening committee in each school consists of one of the kindergarten teachers, a speech clinician, the school nurse and a member of the social work staff.
The children are interviewed and tested individually by the classroom teacher and the speech clinician. The parents are interviewed individually by the social worker and the parent and child together are interviewed by the nurse.
The entire process takes about an hour and moves along quickly, but thoroughly, covering many aspects of a child's development, personality and skills.
The kindergarten teacher tests the children's fine motor and gross motor skills by asking them to draw a picture of a man, and of various shapes and asking them to stand on one foot, hop and walk up a few stairs.
The teacher also asks several questions to test check the child's self-image, memory, comprehension and general concepts.
The child is asked such questions as "What has wings, what has four wheels, what color is an apple, what color is a banana. They are also asked, "Which is larger, a cat or a dog, a man or a boy, or what time of year do we swim, what time of year does it snow and which is faster, a car or a horse, a train or a truck?" and similar questions.
One little girl answered the question "What do we have when snow melts?" with "just plain grass." She was not necessarily wrong in her answer, although the teacher was trying to get the answer "water."
Throughout the testing, Beverly Tarbox, the kindergarten teacher at Keeney, praised the child for the answers and encouraged throughout the process.
Karen Horowitz, the speech clinician, checked for general speech patterns and language comprehension by asking a series of questions. The child is shown a series of pictures and asked to describe them or relate in different ways what is going on in the pictures.
"They are not expected to get them all right," Mrs. Horowitz said. The child's score is based on a national norm which helps to indicate if a child's skills are above, below or at age level.
"We are basically looking for the ones below age level that may have a problem in order to catch it at the very beginning," Mrs. Horowitz said. The parents are told immediately after the testing if the screening committee found any problem areas and if a child needs to be re-tested in any area.
The social worker asks about the developmental history of the child, from the pregnancy to the present.
The parents are asked such questions such as if their child can hold a pencil, button his coat, feed himself properly. There are also questions about the child's relationships with family, peers and other adults.
The parents are asked what they consider their child's social and emotional strengths, such as friendly, outgoing, imaginative, leadership ability.
The social worker aide at Keeney, Kathy Coolidge stressed to the parent that she is looking for extreme behavior in asking her questions.
The school nurse checks the vision and hearing and general physical condition of the child and asks the parent questions about the child's and the family's medical history.
Mrs. Tarbox said the screening personnel are trying to look at the "whole child" in the screening process.
If the committee feels a child needs to be retested in any area because they felt the child did not test as well as might be expected, a re-testing is done within about three weeks after the initial screening by Mrs. Fournier and the special education staff.
If problems are found, there are three options for the child, Mrs. Fournier said. A child may be placed in the kindergarten to help with speech and language problems, in the Early Childhood Education program to help with a variety of areas or a child may get help in specific areas through the early learning resource teachers at the individual schools while still attending the regular kindergarten.
A new service provided to parents of pre-kindergarten youngsters this year is a pamphlet called, "Parents as Partners in Early Education," a list of suggested activities to do with children in preparation for kindergarten.

Better breakfast

DEAR DR. LAMB — I'm sure I'm not alone, being a mother of three school children. All my children have to get up early and get ready for school but are not ready for a good breakfast physically. What can I give them nourishing to get them going that will upset their stomachs? I try not to give them sweet foods but it is hard not to since most breakfast foods are loaded with sugar. Also I find foods with sugar upsets the stomach too. DEAR READER — Breakfast is probably the most misunderstood meal of the day. Most of the world does not have any breakfast and from a nutritional standpoint are free of many of the major diseases we have. The trick is choosing the right foods for breakfast. The "no breakfast" routine is probably not very good unless you are going to have a fairly good mid-morning snack. The two eggs and bacon routine is a major factor in causing heart and vascular disease if you can rely on the American Heart Association and most scientists' conclusions. They think a diet high in fat and cholesterol is an important cause of fatty-cholesterol deposits in the arteries. In fact most of the countries free of these diseases, so common in our society, do not eat such a high cholesterol fat-laden breakfast. The people who don't tolerate sweets well may not feel their best by mid-morning if they eat a sweet breakfast devoid of protein. So what is the solution? I think you can benefit by including fish in your breakfast. Many low-fat fish make an excellent choice for the breakfast table. Then there are salmon patties or even creamed chicken on toast. You can vary the latter. I also think breakfast is a good place to increase your bran or bulk intake. The cereals containing bulk are good here. You can use hot oatmeal if you want a hot cereal. Being hot as opposed to cold doesn't make a particle of difference as far as nutritional value is concerned. That comment will shock many but it is true. But there is no difference at all between cold oatmeal and hot oatmeal. Both contain just as many calories. Another good idea, despite how early the children must get up, is to have an out of bed exercise program. Nothing gets people ready for breakfast as well as some physical work. A dip in the pool in the summer is great. Farm children used to do chores in the morning and were ready for a good breakfast after the chores were done and before walking to school. Of course chores and walking are sort of out of date in our modern life style — too bad. It can send 50 cents with some physical work a lifetime pattern of good eating and good exercise that could help your children stay healthier and live longer because you trained them that way. Readers who want information on a balanced diet and Recommended Daily Dietary Allowance (RDA) can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for The Health Letter number 4-6. Send your request to Dr. Lamb in care of The Manchester Evening Herald, P. O. Box 1581, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10109.

Debate Club fares well

This past weekend the Manchester High Debate Club participated in the Connecticut state championships and fared extremely well.

The resolution for the year was that the United States government should grant comprehensive medical care to all citizens in the United States. This resolution proved to encompass a variety of topics from child abuse to malpractice insurance and from abortion to faith healing. These topics produced a very interesting day of debating last weekend.

The day was further enhanced by fine individual performances turned in by Mary Toland and Richard Walden.

Mary, the senior debater for the team, took second place for the entire state in the impromptu speaking category. This category entailed speaking extemporaneously for three minutes after a two-minute preparatory period. The contestants did not know the topic for discussion for their three-minute speech.

The subjects of the elimination rounds were smoking, lack of grammar in high schools, and the reduction of voting age to 16 years of age. The subject of the final round was the legalization and manufacture of the neutron bomb.

The impromptu speaking competition was held immediately following

History textbooks are criticized

In order to succeed in an academic program in the Manchester School System, a student must be able to get along with his teachers, administrators, and his textbooks.

In my eleven years of public school, I have met teachers I loved and respected and learned a great deal from. I have also encountered those who were so ineffective that I wondered how they managed to dress themselves in the morning. I had the same mixed feelings about my administrators also.

But textbooks, ah, those verbose textbooks, they are the bane of my existence.

This year in my required American History class, we were given "Cannon," "I finally figured out, was money paid to the Panamanians to build a canal.

There were many terms and abbreviations carried from chapter to chapter in an aura of confusion for the student. We had "King Cotton," "King Nicotine," "Scalawags," "Bluebellies," "Demi-gods," "The Bloody Shirt," "Muckrakers," "Copperheads," "Gold Bags," "Popocars," and "Coal Oil Johnnies."

From "The American Pageant" we have become very familiar with every nickname politician from Honest Abe Lincoln to Bonny Johnny Adams, with hardly an explanation to accompany the nicknames. More are "Bluff Ben Wade, Jubilee Jim Fisk, Honest Old Horace (Greely), Ruthless Old (Rutherford) Hayes, and Uncle Joe Cass."

Might the inquisitive student wonder who shot President McKinley dead? "A deranged anarchist" (who shall remain nameless), says Bailey. It is worth mentioning that "a deranged young man" shot Theodore Roosevelt in the spine. We know from Bailey that Irish chain workers sang:

Then drill my Paddies
Drill my heroes, drill
Drill all day
No sugar in your tea,
Working on the UP
Railway

But we haven't a clue as to who murdered a president of the United States. It is incredible to me that anyone evaluated or even opened this book before wasting the taxpayer's money. — Rande Trabit

Dealing with the disruptive student

In Butler, Pa. a man named Kenneth Musco has founded an alternative education program for problem students.

He takes kids who are probable drop-outs and spends time trying to make them respond to their studies. When the pupils misbehave, they are subject to hair-cuts or "cracks" with a wooden paddle. One boy was given two cracks for smoking a cigarette in a coal mine where he endangered the group.

Musco forces them to read aloud in class, despite the humiliation a 16-year-old feels when he cannot read the word "through." They visit the county morgue and the Home for Retarded Children, among others.

I condone Musco's methods.

Aridian appears in May

At the year's onset, I was quite optimistic when I informed the interested public that the 1977-78 Aridian staff would produce three of its art/literary magazines this year. Unfortunately, and quite obviously, this will not be the case.

After jacking the year-long project of producing one "out-of-school-printed" Aridian last year, we were overly anxious this year at the prospect of three much less costly and perhaps less glamorous "in-school-printed" magazines. Much to the staff's disappointment, our already over-burdened graphic arts (G.A.) department was not able to print the "Winter 1977" issue in the few weeks we had expected.

In short, our three Aridians have turned into one autumn-constructed Aridian that will hopefully appear for sale in May.

We apologize to all those who have submitted additional art work and literature for the second or third Aridian. All this work will be personally returned.

Like all new projects and ideas, things don't always turn out the way they are planned. Hopefully, Aridian has learned from this mistake and will get at least two issues out next year. By then, we will have the advantage of having done it before.

For Manchester's "A" team, Ron Apter and Scott Freedman both had near perfect scores of 17. Sandie Bellone ended with 14, Kim Noone and Tim DeValve each finished with 13.

Notes from the World

Junior Cherie Dow, who played in the No. 1 singles slot for the girls' tennis team last year, decided not to play for the team this year.

Cherie is taking the year off from high school competition in order to better prepare for upcoming spring tournaments and a possible second trip to the nationals in California. The loss of Miss Dow will have some impact on the team's record.

Whereas the team used to be able to count on a definite victory in their No. 1 singles, they no longer can. It's up to the remaining girls to try that much harder in order to prove that they're a team. I wish them good luck.

Their first match is April 19.

Math team is second

The final math meet of the year, held at 23rd and Walker School in Simsbury, ended with Manchester's second place with a total of 84 points. Two points in front of them was Xavier High, and behind them was Hall High with 77.

The team will consist of eight members rather than five. The members are seniors David Ostrom, Kim Noone, and Sandie Bellone; juniors Karen Johnson, Scott Freedman and Ron Apter; and sophomores Tim DeValve and Steve Reich.

Manchester will also attend the New England meet to be held in May 12 in Worcester, Mass. — Richard Walden

Math team is second

Throughout the year, Manchester had had success through just as much hard work. As a result of their efforts, they will be going to the Connecticut Math Meet on April 15 at Xavier High, and behind them was Hall High with 77.

Biology projects reviewed

If you happen to wander past Mr. Ernest Lewis' honors biology class in the last week or so, you may have seen students aggressively debating the pros and cons of genetic engineering or heard Dr. Barry Sheehy encouraging the students to start running to keep fit, following the aerobics plan.

If you heard any of these things, or happened to peer into the room and see large models of DNA molecules, models of the sensory organs or, assortment of Connecticut marine life, you may have wondered what happened to the standard lectures on respiratory and circulatory systems.

Fortunately or unfortunately (depending on your view point), lectures have not been eliminated from the honors biology curriculum.

When these projects were finished to the students' ability, they were distributed throughout the room.

Some of the more outstanding projects included: a series of optical illusions by Lisa Abel, models of the eye, ear, nose and brain by Patty Shirer, a display of marine life by Scott Werker, a large DNA molecule by William Miller, and a series of overlays of a human brain by Jim Prenetta. — Laurie Patari

Netmen win first contest

Manchester High School's tennis courts are hectic — but the tennis team, to say the least, is not. The netmen squashed Windsor High Monday — squashed them so flat, in fact, that the singles players got out of it without being hit at all.

Senior Mike Custer is new to the team this year and is playing in the No. 4 singles slot. Custer has an excellent serve, good groundstrokes, and a fair backhand. He played his match on the No. 4 court, which is no worse than the other three. The cracks in the courts appear large enough to fall into and they are cracking in the middle — as if ready to slide off the hill and onto the baseball field.

Manchester holds the advantage at home matches because no other team can play their courts.

Go see a tennis match. It's unexpected tennis, nice weather and, like swim meets, free. — Mike Wilson

East and MHS to compete in Almost Anything Goes

Competition between Manchester's two high schools, MHS and East Catholic, has been around for many years. The most friendly cross-town rivalry has been manifested in many ways, such as the annual Thanksgiving Day football game and the newly invented Mill Cup, given to the winner of the hockey game.

Now there is a new method of competition — the Almost Anything Goes game.

Plans are now being made to host Almost Anything Goes during the late spring. Manchester High will challenge East Catholic to the way-out, zany games of Almost Anything Goes. The teams are to include 24 students from each school, with an equal number of girls and boys. Each team will have four sub-teams which will participate in activities using the football, soccer, and field hockey fields, as well as the pool.

Students who wish to participate in the Almost Anything Goes must be seniors, and must plan to attend all the Student Assembly meetings. Students who sign up will be chosen by lot one month before the event. Coaches for each team will include the faculty.

The Student Assembly is hoping everyone will get involved, whether it be by coaching, playing, or

Third quarter closes today

The week of April 8-15 is one of the four most dreaded of the school year: the last weeks of the quarter. These few days are filled with excessive study and work, unrivaled by any other time, exam week excluded.

Students can often be found studying much harder than previously in the quarter, and throughout the halls can be heard: "Why didn't I study every night like I said I would when this dumb quarter started?"

These results placed MHS an announced two days in advance. Sometimes teachers are at fault for the sudden burden of work, but often they are not. Believe it or not, the teachers aren't usually trying to make everyone's grades drop. Many times teacher just don't think that their students can be evaluated properly with only two or three grades, so one more test is given for an extra chance.

Most often the students are to blame for the rush in getting things done, because they find that they have been lax in making up work for the quarter. Suddenly people are taking gym five days a week or twice in a day to make up what they've missed. In other cases they stay after school making up the quiz about which they've been saying, "I'll make it up sometime next week" for three weeks.

Regardless of who is at fault, there is still more worry associated with the quarter's end. Inevitably grades come out to focus more predominantly than at other times. The idea of the eminent report cards coming out often has students wringing their hands, muttering to themselves, checking their fingernails, or trying to plan how they can manage to lose the report card (in extreme cases only, of course).

Workers are often consoled with "Don't worry about it, but there is no avoiding a certain amount of apprehension. Whatever worry is spent during the week is in the past now. It is most likely that you got the grade you really deserved."

Just be glad that the worst is over — until, of course, the week of final exams. — Ingrid Jacobson

Guidance notes

The Guidance office has received a directory of employment information of jobs for high school graduates available at selected area companies. The directory, compiled and distributed by the Administrative Management Society, lists the kinds of jobs and minimum qualifications for openings for entry level positions which are available to graduating seniors.

Interested seniors should see their guidance counselor.

Students who plan to take the SAT or Achievement Tests in June should register before April 28 if they wish to avoid a penalty fee for late registration.

Ellen Griffin, center, stands with most of the members of her Junior Achievement group, called Jabeco. After it began the April tally of its year of success. ## Junior Achievement job gives taste of business

By MAL BARLOW
Herald Reporter

"I was dared into it by a classmate," admits Ellen Griffin, 18, of 454 Avery St., South Windsor.

He dared her to join the Junior Achievement program centered at 76 Tolland St., East Hartford, that year. Eventually the firm went bankrupt.

Jabeco, her company, formed as they all did. Each of the 15 members bought a share for $1. They also each sold shares to parents, teachers, and friends for $1. The working capital formed by the share selling allowed them to go into production.

Jabeco made about 400 lac toe toys in three-dimensional form. They sold $800 worth of them by December and are about cleaned out now. They topped $1,000 recently.

Jabeco members are now in the process of liquidating the firm. They are preparing an annual report which will be submitted to regional JA contests. Jabeco's company sponsor was Pratt & Whitney.

The Tolland Street center takes achievers from seven area high schools. They are Glastonbury, Rockville, South Windsor, Cheney Technical, East Catholic, Penney

NATO chief concerned quarrel will split allies

CASTEAU, Belgium (UPI) — Gen. Alexander Haig, commander of NATO forces in Europe, said he was concerned by any quarrel between the United States and Europe over President Carter's freeze on the neutron bomb would play into the hands of the Soviets in their attempt to divide the alliance.

In an exclusive interview, Haig said he was concerned that pointing accusing fingers would only draw attention away from the need to build up NATO against the global threat of Soviet imperialism.

On the neutron bomb issue, Haig said, "One thing that would concern me about post-decision finger pointing in a trans-Atlantic sense would be the danger that it would divert our attention from the great accomplishments of the alliance in the past year and the essential need to continue a momentum launched at last year's (London) summit."

Haig spoke after Washington and Bonn traded recriminations over Carter's decision to defer production of the neutron weapon.

As a military man, Haig said, he would not question a policy decision reached by a political authority.

The NATO commander warned that the Soviet Union desires the collapse of the alliance and "clearly the most effective means of doing that would be the creation of doubts in the trans-Atlantic partnership."

"The whole array of East-West dialogue, if mismanaged, could lead to 'frictions' with the idea that either America or Europe could be the fertile ground for the exploitation and aggravation of suspicion and lack of mutual trust and confidence among the partners of the alliance," he said.

Haig said he would be particularly concerned if "temporary setbacks" led to "frictions" with the idea that either America or Europe could be the fertile ground for the exploitation and aggravation of suspicion and lack of mutual trust and confidence among the partners of the alliance," he said.

He called Soviet activities in Africa "unacceptable" and warned that they could have "a profound impact on the health and vitality of the alliance." But he said he was confident the allies would find full unity at the Washington NATO summit next month.

He added the United States has an increasing obligation to consult "meticulously" with its allies on disarmament matters.

In addition, Haig said, the West must realize that economic and monetary strains are as real a danger to the alliance as Soviet force improvements and increased spending on defense.

But Haig added it was impossible to solve "15 years of neglect" in one year. Ultimately, the West had more men, money and productive capacity than the Soviet bloc, he said, "and there is no reason why sound planning and efficient management we are not going to be able to match the challenges we face."

Warrantless probes denied

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Justice Department has denied allegations by New York FBI chief J. Wallace LaPrade that Attorney General Griffin Bell, on President Carter's authority, authorized warrantless FBI investigations.

"At the present time, there are warrantless investigations that the attorney general, with the president's executive authority, is having the FBI conduct," LaPrade told a news conference Thursday.

He refused to discuss the nature or legality of the alleged investigations, but indicated they were similar to the surreptitious activities of using break-in have been authorized by the current administration except for the widely known practice of using them in national security cases involving foreign intelligence.

But he declined to reply directly to LaPrade's charges.

"The FBI conducts all sorts of investigations without warrants," Adams said.

He said wiretaps, searches and the planting of microphones requires warrants in domestic surveillance, and they now must be confined to criminal matters.

On Monday, Bell announced the indictments of former FBI Director L. Patrick Gray and two former top FBI officials, and said he was initiating "administrative disciplinary proceedings" against LaPrade "for his conduct in these (Weatherman) matters and during the course of the investigation."

It has been alleged that FBI agents in New York, on LaPrade's orders, conducted unlawful wiretaps, mail openings and break-ins during investigations of the radical leftist group.

State to investigate collapse of coliseum

HARTFORD (UPI) — The state has begun a blue ribbon investigation into the collapse of the Hartford Civic Center coliseum roof.

Chief State's Attorney Joseph T. Gormley said Thursday the state probe was initiated after an engineering firm hired by the capital city to investigate the cave-in reported March 29 the roof was inferior even before it was hoisted into place.

The preliminary study, conducted by Lev Zetlin Associates of New York City, also contended cables strung under the weakest portions of the sports arena were put into place by someone who knows the roof was deficient.

Gormley and Hartford County State's Attorney George D. Stoughton agreed earlier this week "the state should get involved" in the roof probe.

Gormley said the state investigation will be spearheaded by the Office of Special Investigations, under supervision of Assistant State's Attorney Austin J. McKeegan. State police will also assist.

The coliseum roof collapsed shortly before dawn Jan. 18 under tons of rain-drenched snow just hours after nearly 5,000 basketball fans had left the facility. No one was injured in the mishap.

Gormley said state investigators will also monitor continuing hearings being held by a special City Council subcommittee investigating the roof failure.

Congress eyes secrecy, appointment of judges

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congress is taking another look at two time-honored practices on Capitol Hill — secret, informal conference committee sessions and the unwritten system under which senators have a strong say in the appointment of federal judges.

Both issues were in the forefront today, when the Senate recessed its tense debate on the Panama Canal treaties until Monday.

The secrecy issue arose Thursday over private White House efforts to find a compromise for a House-Senate conference committee that for a year has been deadlocked over a natural gas pricing dispute. The stalemate is holding up congressional passage of President Carter's five-part energy package.

One conference committee member, Sen. James Abourezk, D-S.D., was particularly angered over being excluded from the White House huddles. He said if the sessions are not made public, he might hold back his vote on the canal treaties.

"Everybody else has been blackballing me — canoes and informal meetings can be secret."

The full House voted 371-6 to order House energy negotiators to hold open meetings, but technically only meetings of the full conference committee must be public — canoes and informal meetings can be secret.

Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., said that since the White House sessions, there has been "real movement" in the negotiations. In another conference committee hearing, negotiators took a giant step toward changing the unwritten patronage system whereby senators have enjoyed a traditional veto power over presidential nominations for federal judgeships.

The conference adopted the first statutory language to encourage merit selection of federal district judges, but declined the power to draw up "standards and guidelines" to be used in filling openings on the bench. The House had proposed "regulations" for merit selection.

Senate leaders worked behind the scenes to rescue the Panama Canal treaties, saying they believed the only hope would be a new amendment limiting the United States' right to intervene in Panamanian affairs.

Officials of the Latin American nation have expressed outrage at an amendment authored by Sen. Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz., to allow U.S. military intervention to keep the canal operating after it is turned over to Panama in the year 2000 — even in the case of a strike or work slowdown.

Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., called the amendment a "political and diplomatic disaster" and said he could not vote for the treaties unless it was softened. Other liberal senators agreed.

Treaty opponents began a weekend television commercial blitz, saying the treaties would cost taxpayers more than $10 billion.

tion in the whole Silver Lane area due to the traffic. He said the construction has should not be lifted until the connector was built between Interstates 84 and 86.

The PZC agreed and denied the building request.

National Amusement went to court and won the right to build the sixth theater. It is to cost about $100,000. Plans on file today at the Town Hall said it was to be 44 feet wide by 127 feet long. One wall was to be part of the present complex.

Thomas Tracy of the town Department of Inspections and Permits said today a quick look at the fallen wall, the new wall of 127 feet, was apparently built according to the building code. It had the required block, concrete and "duralwall" to hold it.

"The duralwall was there," Tracy said.

Workers at the scene after the tragedy this morning said there should have been temporary bracing on the wall due to the high winds. The complex sits in the open with only Interstate 84 to its northwest and Tudor Village, an apartment complex, to the far west.

Fire calls Democrats nix tax cut plans

Democrat
The Democrats, with an eye toward their election year budget which calls for a record state spending, held off 14 Republican proposals for personal tax cuts next year.

The Republicans followed their leader, Senate Minority Leader and gubernatorial candidate Lewis B. Rome, R-Bloomfield, in calling for several tax cuts Thursday.

"Our budget package is one that will make Connecticut's tax program competitive; not only with her sister states, but with the Sunbelt," Rome said. "We also propose ending taxes that are discriminatory and unfair to several groups of people."

But the Republicans are outnumbered in the Senate, 22-14, and couldn't crack the united Democratic voting front.

Democratic legislative leaders have come up with a $2.135 billion spending plan that takes advantage of an expected $76 million state surplus.

The Democrats do not want any taxes cut except the 2.5 percent energy tax on business machinery — a promise made last year.

Republican senators said the state must cut taxes to stop the loss of industry, which eliminates jobs, they argued the state can't afford the tax cuts if it doesn't increase spending.

But Democrats said the state will not have any trouble affording the extra spending because it is in good shape financially.

"The Connecticut financial picture is bright and getting better, thanks to the Democratic administration," said Senate Majority Leader Joseph Lieberman, D-New Haven.

For personal tax cuts, the Republicans proposed eliminating the capital gains tax, doing away with the dividends tax, cutting the inheritance tax, and reducing the children's clothing sales tax by allowing exemptions to age 18.

In the area of business tax cuts, the Republicans proposed ending the sales tax on burial, cremation and funeral services which produces $1.5 million revenue; the business service tax, which is a $12 million item; the sales tax on leasing, $15 million; and the sales tax on replacement parts and repairs for machinery and equipment, $1.5 million.

Budget cutting process continues at crawl

By GREG PEARSON

Manchester Board of Directors Thursday night discussed its method of working on the town budget, but the cutting of that budget continued at a crawl.

Decisions made Thursday night included an addition of the Outreach Center for the elderly as a town-funded position and subtraction from a couple of the professional training accounts.

The budget workshop opened with Stephen Penny, chairman of the board, asking the three Republican board members what percentage increase they would like to see in the 1978-79 budget. GOP Town Chairman Thomas Ferguson issued a statement earlier this week suggesting that the numbers absent were 389, 367 and 285. The enrollment at the high school as of April 1 was 1,925, with slightly higher in enrollment in February.

Kennedy said school officials are pleased with the response to the attendance efforts. He said the phone calls to parents will continue for the rest of the year.

Kennedy also said the drop-out rate at the high school is 4 to 5 percent this year, about the same as other years.

The over-all public school enrollment decline during the year comes almost entirely from the high school. The enrollment in the school on Oct. 1 was 9,239 and on April 1 it was 9,192, or a drop of 47.

The enrollment at the high school dropped from 2,081 Oct. 1 to 1,925 April 1, or a drop of 156. Students were added in some of the other schools which accounts for the difference.

The changes in enrollment from Oct. 1 to April 1 in the other schools are as follows: Bennet, loss of 1; Iling, addition of 10; elementary schools, loss of 10; Head Start, addition of 3 and Regional Occupational Training Center, addition of 7.

In other matters related to the high school, Kennedy reported that the school and the school board are preparing for the evaluation by the New England Association of Schools and Colleges towards accreditation by that organization. The evaluation, which takes place every 10 years, will be in October 1979.

The reason the work must begin now, Kennedy said, is because of the self-assessment and a great deal of work by the staff in preparation for the evaluation.

Katherine Bourn, French teacher at the high school, will coordinate the evaluation with Mrs. Eleanor Green, vice president.

The self-evaluation will include input from the school board, parents, students and other citizens on all facets of the school program.

Kennedy said the accreditation rating affects "especially students' placement in colleges."

The major deficiency found by the evaluation team in 1969 was the physical condition of the school, Kennedy said. He said it is too early to tell what deficiencies might be pointed out this time.

He did say he thinks the evaluation comes at an opportune time because of the change in administration at the high school this year, with the principal and one vice principal retiring.

He believes the data will be valuable. Mrs. Green will report to the board at the April 24 meeting on the procedures for the evaluation.

Pan Am Day
Bennet Junior High School today held an assembly in recognition of Pan American Day.

The program included a concert of Hispanic music by the stage band and a guest speaker, Haniela Flores Jenkins, president of the Pan American Society of Connecticut.

Flores-Jenkins spoke on "Preserving Hispanic Culture in the United States." He is a Cuban exile who fled the country shortly after the Cuban revolution. Today's assembly was a film called "Miguel, Up from Puerto Rico," about the adjustments Hispanic people make when coming to the United States. Several students from the Spanish classes also sang "Guantanamera" at the assembly.

board return the budget to Town Manager Robert Weiss for further study.

Republican Vivian Ferguson said that the party's directors would have to meet with the town chairman to prepare a recommendation.

He called the approach "frustrating" and said, "It doesn't seem to be getting us anywhere."

Mrs. Ferguson said that the board should determine what it can afford to spend and then ask Weiss to cut the budget.

Democratic directors, however, supported the present line-by-line approach.

Penny said that he feels Saturday's budget session, expected to last several hours, should result in considerable progress.

Stephen Cassano said that the line-by-line work is "a very valuable learning process" for those directors who have not worked before on a budget.

And Joseph Sweeney said, "I feel at this time we can't take an across-the-board approach. We have to look at each item to see where the so-called fat is."

Discussion on the future budget work and the state's Freedom of Information Act (See related story) took up most of the first 10 minutes of the three-hour session.

Some work on the budget did take place as the board reviewed four departments — Human Services,

Social Services, Recreation and Health.

The directors agreed to make an Outreach worker for the elderly a town-funded position.

The position, now held by Diane Wicks, is federally funded, but that funding will run out in December.

The proposed budget includes $6,168 to fund the job for the second half of the 1978-79 fiscal year.

"I think she's shown her work over the past two years. I would not want to be responsible for denying the benefits she provides," Cassano said of Ms. Wicks.

Director Betty Inagliata talked about the needs of some of the town's lonely elderly residents.

"At Christmas and Thanksgiving, there would be no one if there wasn't Diane," she said.

Seven directors voted to fund the post with town funds. Zinsler voted against the proposal and Mrs. Ferguson abstained, saying she wanted a clearer picture of the budget before making a final decision.

The directors sliced a combined total of $1,585 from the professional development and training accounts for the Recreation and Health Departments. The budget item is for attendance at conference and membership in professional groups.

While making the cuts, the board said that in most cases departments should send only one representative to a conference and should hold only one membership in the professional organizations.

The board agreed to cut $1,720 that had been set aside in the Health Department budget for consulting services connected with the message parlor ordinance. The services might not be needed, depending on the future decisions related to the ordinance and the existing parlors.

Mrs. Ferguson, who originally sought the ordinance, was the only director not to support the cut.

Weiss told the board that he expects a new proposed ordinance governing restaurant inspections will be presented to the board in June.

The proposal will be similar to one presented a couple of years ago but will not include a requirement for separate toilet facilities that had created strong opposition before.

New efforts at MHS cut absentee rates

By SUSAN VAUGHN

Herald Reporter
Daily absenteeism at Manchester High School has been reduced to 8 percent this week from a high of 20 percent in February, according to School Superintendent James P. Kennedy.

The significant drop in the absentee rate is being attributed to recent efforts by the high school staff and the Youth Services Department.

Students who are absent are also checked on daily by calls to the parents in the evening by two part-time persons hired specifically for that purpose last month.

Kennedy reported Thursday that the number of students absent from the high school this week was 181 on Tuesday and 149 on Wednesday. This compares to the first three days of February in which the numbers absent were 389, 367 and 285. The enrollment at the high school as of April 1 was 1,925, with slightly higher in enrollment in February.

Area man isn't laughing over mess left by state

By DONNA HOLLAND
Herald Correspondent

The red tape of government bureaus from a local to a state and federal level is often the bane of many jokes.

But when a state agency offers to do something, does it part way and refuses to finish it, at least one man doesn't think it's funny.

Robert Post is not laughing at the tree stump and mess in his front yard. Post said he has been fighting with the state for about two years but he hasn't gotten very far.

Post said about two years ago the state highway employees asked if they could remove a five-foot in diameter, half-dead maple tree from his front yard. The tree was about three feet off Route 6 on a five-foot bank.

Post said there have been at least six accidents there because of the tree interfering with vision. Anyway, the state employees topped the tree and left leaving all the debris behind. They also left about 10 feet of the tree standing. It was cleared by Post and his sons.

Post started making phone calls periodically to get the rest of the tree removed. Finally, about two months ago, he wrote a "strong letter" saying if they didn't take the tree down, he would.

The state employees felled the tree about a week after that. Again they did not clean the mess nor did they remove any of the debris, according to Post.

Once again, Post started making calls. He finally called the state garage in Bolton and was told they were busy and didn't know when they would be able to clean the mess.

Post said that was fine, he would push the logs across Route 6 with his tractor and they could pick them up at their convenience.

The next day four state employees and two pieces of heavy equipment arrived at Post's farm. They had the logs loaded in about 20 minutes, Post said.

Post said he offered to let them dump the logs on the back of his property. He said the state employees told him they had to dump them in Willington and besides, they wanted make a day's work out of the job. And, Post said, they did.

Post said the job could have been done in about an hour. Post said with the help of some friends he did the dirty work, grading the lawn and bank and cleaning the mess.

And the stump still stands. Post is under the impression the state is not going to remove it. He isn't supposed to because it's on state property.

Post said he wasn't even supposed to grade the bank but he did in self-defense.

Post said he is not going to wait another two years for the state to remove the stump. He said if they don't remove it in a reasonable time, he will take it out and knock the whole bank down.

He said, "I am going to do something before somebody gets killed."

Post said, "No wonder taxes are high — all the state employees are good for is killing time."

Post said from what he can see the state doesn't do anything for the people anymore except ignore them. He said, "All you get is the runaround."

Fishing derby Saturday

Vernon

The pond at Valley Falls Park in Vernon has been stocked with about 400 trout in preparation for the 14th annual children's fishing derby sponsored by the Recreation Department.

The derby will be tomorrow, the opening day of the fishing season. Boys and girls age 15 and under will converge on the pond at 10 a.m. and will be allowed to fish until 3 p.m. In the event of rain tomorrow the event will be Sunday from noon until 4 p.m.

The fish range in size from 10 to 11 inches. Donald Berger, recreation director, said as a bonus, about a dozen "whoppers" weighing almost two pounds, will also be placed in the pond.

Only children living in Vernon are eligible to participate. They must fish from the shore and use live bait or lures. Fishing with flies will not be permitted, for safety reasons.

Parents will be allowed to help younger children in baiting the hook but may not participate in any way in landing the fish.

There will be five age groups for boys with a first and second prize for each category. The categories are 6 and under, 7 and 8, 9 and 10, 11 and 12, and 13 through 15.

In the girls' division there will be two categories, age 10 and under and 11 through 15.

A total of 15 prizes will be awarded including the special grand prize for the largest fish caught. This will be the John M. Gossary Award given in memory of the man who was the sponsor of the event for many years.

Other prizes will include spinning reels, rods, tackle boxes and creels. Each youngster who fishes must register at the entrance of the park where he or she will receive a fishing license. Several door prizes will also be awarded.

After the derby, only children age 15 and under, and senior citizens, will be allowed to fish at the park until May 1. The Vernon Police Department will make regular checks of the area. Senior citizens do not have to have a license to fish at the park.

Garden plot sign-up
The Vernon Recreation Department will accept registrations for community garden plots, April 22 starting at 10 a.m. at the Lottie Fisk Building, Henry Park.

The plots will measure 25 by 40 feet and will be available to Vernon residents only, on a first come, first served basis. More than 100 plots are being offered at the site on Route 30 (near the Middle School). Donald Berger, recreation director, said.

Anyone having questions may call the recreation office, 872-7319.

An amount of $3,500 was asked for a new baseball infield at Henry Park. The mayor deleted this. Berger said the same request has been made for several years, but unsuccessfully.

The budget for indoor recreation activities was approved at $51,016. The request was for $115,701 but this included $26,886 for the salaries of the director and his secretary. This request was approved at $115,701 and the mayor's recommendation was $51,016. This figure does not include the salaries of the recreation director and his secretary.

The council did agree to add $10,000 to a request for installing lights at the high school tennis courts. This will give the department $18,000 in the current budget. Donald Berger, recreation director, estimates it will cost about $30,000 to light the eight courts. He was told to see what can be done with the $18,000 and to report back to the council.

The council also voted to restore $2,000 of a $4,000 request to repair the roof of the barn at Valley Falls Park. The budget was amended and passed at $3,000.

The council also voted to amend its previous action on the budgets of the Zoning Commission and the Zoning Board of Appeals and added $300 to each for advertising.

Vernon budget

Compromise seen for public works

By BARBARA RICHMOND
Herald Reporter

During a budget workshop Thursday night, the Town Council restored some funds to the Public Works budget and the recreation budget but didn't concede to all of the requests of the two department heads.

Ronald Hine, public works director, asked for restoration of money to his budget for bridge repairs. He had asked for $40,800 and Mayor Frank McCoy recommended $5,300.

The mayor was asked by Councilman Len Therault if by making the cut was he intending not to have the work done as requested.

The mayor said he expected to do about the same as the current year, in order of necessity.

Hine expressed concern about repairing the Vernon Avenue bridge which he said had been hit so many times by cars that it is extremely hazardous.

The snow removal budget was approved at $85,000. Hine had asked for $117,000. Hine said that area $100,000 is put in that account, "you are kidding yourselves."

The council agreed snow removal is an unknown factor and therefore all it could do was guess at a figure. Hine asked to have $18,000 added to the overtime labor account and $3,000 to equipment rental account.

The refuse collection budget was approved at $246,949. Of this $113,321 is for union salaries and $77,285 for the landfill area contract.

For maintenance of government buildings the council approved a budget of $138,500. The request was for $170,222.

Hine said the state roof on the Memorial Building will have to be repaired at an estimated cost of $10,150, the state roof on the Senior Citizen Center has to be repaired; new ceilings are needed at the Club 65, the fence at the dog pound has to be fixed and painted; and the public works garage needs repairs.

Representatives of South Windsor High School will sponsor its fourth annual Career-Education Round Robin May 4 from 7 to 9 p.m. at the school.

Representatives from several citizens groups will be available for personal discussion with students. Parents and the general public are also invited.

Other budget categories passed, as recommended by the mayor, were swimming pools, $21,675; Public Celebrations, $4,100; Christmas lighting, $1,350; Senior Citizens, $8,400.

The request for the senior citizen recreation programs was for $9,415. This included $2,600 for instructional programs and the hiring of a part-time person to serve in the capacity of an outreach worker to minister to individual needs. Berger said he would like to have had a little more money restored to that area.

He said he tries to use volunteers as much as possible and for that reason he has been able to offer a great many activities for a very small expenditure.

A request for an air conditioner for the main meeting room at the Senior Citizen Center will also probably have to be deferred for another year. Berger had requested $3,040 for equipment which included $2,000 for the air conditioner. The mayor recommended $2,975 for that budget.

In other action Thursday night the council approved a Cemetery Committee budget of $16,500. The request was for $20,000. The committee has overall responsibility for the care and management of four town-owned cemeteries.

The council also voted to amend its previous action on the budgets of the Zoning Commission and the Zoning Board of Appeals and added $300 to each for advertising.

The South Windsor Department of Public Works is in the process of spring cleaning, with town crews involved in street sweeping and road repair.

Sweeping of grounds around public buildings has already begun, as well as the annual sweeping of public streets.

The town's two sweepers will begin on opposite sides of town. One will start on Main Street, and the other in Avery Heights near the Vernon town line.

It is expected the entire town will be swept twice, and that the first sweeping will be completed by May 8.

The Laerdale Suction Unit, which is self-contained and battery operated, will be stored on the rescue truck. The unit is used on victims requiring extensive facial or head injuries.

With grant money received in the past, the department has purchased a multi-trauma kit, an air chisel, a folding stretcher and a utility saw. To date, Aetna has given a total of $1,300 to the Bolton department.

Community garden planned in Coventry

The community garden program will be sponsored again this year by the Coventry Conservation Commission. Plots approximately 25 by 25 feet will be available on land owned by the University of Connecticut at the junction of Route 44A and North River Road.

Application forms are on file at the Town Hall and must be returned by April 30 to the commission. A fee of $8 is being charged for plowing, fertilizing, liming and staking plus a $5 returnable retainer to ensure the plot is cleared at the end of the season.

Last year's garden became the harvest of thieves, who stole the ripened crops from Root Road land owned by St. Mary's Church. Residents sprang to the aid of the gardeners and donated some of their own crops to replace the lost items.

The new site is fenced in, has limited access, and will be patrolled by university personnel.

Nominations sought
The Coventry Jaycees are soliciting nominations for their annual citizen of the year award. "This award is given to recognize outstanding community service on the part of residents of the town of Coventry," the organization stated in a recent release.

Nominations forms are available at the Booth and Dimock Memorial Library. The Town Hall, Guido's Market, Allen's Market, Highland Park, Ted's Drug Mart, Hill's Pharmacy, Bare's Pharmacy, the Connecticut Bank and Trust Company, and the Heritage Savings Bank.

Maris sets record straight on 'feud' with Mantle on return to New York

NEW YORK (UPI) — Once and for all, Roger Maris wanted to set the record straight regarding his "feud" with Mickey Mantle.

Supposedly, the feud between them had its roots in 1961.

That was the year that Maris, playing right field for the Yankees, hit 61 homers to break Babe Ruth's record for a single season, and Mantle, playing center, wound up with 54 after threatening Ruth's mark himself for most of the summer.

According to published stories that year, Maris and Mantle had a falling out over the amount of publicity the other was getting.

The fact is Mantle and Maris both were doing everything they could to break Ruth's record at the time and there certainly was an intense spirit of competition between them as far as that aspect was concerned, but privately they spent a good deal of time with each other off the field and laughed about their reported "feud."

They enjoyed each other's company so much, in fact, they picked out an apartment in Queens and lived there together even while rumors circulated that they were making it a point to keep plenty of distance between them.

Anyone who saw them together Thursday at the Yankees' home opener, and there were 46,667 who did at Yankee Stadium, could easily sense the way they honestly felt about one another.

The two of them had been invited to raise the Yankees' world championship flag together in left center field and it was Maris' first appearance at Yankee Stadium in 12 years.

He had been invited to Old Timers' games there before but had always declined.

Mantle and Maris both received long thunderous ovations from the crowd when they were introduced and after both had been driven out to the flapole in a yellow golf cart, they stood in front of the pole and Maris put his arm around Maris' shoulder.

"Mick and I have always been the best of friends," said Maris, whose biggest fault, if you'd call it one, is that he has always been too truthful.

"I know how those stories about a 'feud' between him and me got started. I know the writer who did it, and actually he didn't know any more about me and Mickey than I did about the man in the moon."

Maris operates a successful beer distributorship in Gainesville, Fla. He rarely sees any ball games or attends Old Timers' games.

"I just don't feel comfortable going out there on the field," he said.

Reggie Jackson, whose three-run homer in the first inning later provided a 4-2 victory for the Yankees over the White Sox Thursday, listened to the cheers for Maris. He listened to them and empathized with the 43-year-old former Yankee right fielder, who was given some rough treatment by the fans during his time in New York.

"There are obvious similarities in our careers," said Jackson. "Although he was a member of two world championship clubs during his seven years with the Yankees, Maris played the Cardinals' 1967 world championship ring on his finger. He wore two years with them. After the Yankees traded him to them in 1967.

Maris never made any secret over how happy he was to leave the Yankees. That was one of the reasons he never accepted their invitations to come back.

"For what the old regime did for me, I didn't think I owed them anything," he said. "They made me look bad. When I broke my hand in 1962, they didn't believe me. They thought I was lazy and that I was joking. They waited until the end of the season before they operated on my hand."

Mantle's

He was the same as always at Yankee Stadium Thursday, laughing, joking, like a good time.

"It's like coming home," he said.

Candyman show

YANKEE STADIUM — Picking up just where he left off last October in the World Series with a home run, Reggie Jackson blasted a Wilbur Wood knuckleball just over the fence in center field with two mates aboard in the first inning of yesterday's opener in New York against Chicago but he didn't anticipate the reception.

The blast, which just eluded Get Lemon's frantic leap over the white 385-foot marker was enough to get the Yanks off on the right foot against Chicago by a 4-2 count.

After going down four times on strikes in Wednesday's 5-3 loss to Milwaukee, Jackson found the magic in his hat again. After looking at two high, inside pitches, he found a pitch to his liking and the Yanks had a 3-0 lead.

As the controversial outfielder and batting hero of the 1977 World Series started to circle the bases to the chant of "Reggie Reggie" hundreds of 25 cent Reggie candy bars, endorsed by the Yankee, came flying out of the stands.

While Jackson chased Willie Randolph and Mickey Rivers home, and the centerfield message board flashed the letters REG-GIE on and off, the playing field was littered with the paper-wrapped bars which were offered to everyone entering the stadium.

The announced attendance was 44,667 and an estimated 500 bars came out of mostly the top deck and marked the first chocolate shower ever at baseball's most famous.

The cleanup team was an estimated five minutes, although it seemed longer, as umpires halted play and red-jacketed stadium ushers joined crowd crew members in retrieving the candy. Each was armed with a canvas baseball carrying bag which was soon filled to the top.

For once, youthful fans were allowed to filter down from the stands and make their way onto the playing field without being evicted by the police. The youngsters filled their pockets and hands with the bars before scurrying back to their seats.

Roger returns

The homer and candy shower had to share top billing with two Yankee heroes of another day, the M and M. Boys who reunited for the first time since 1966 at Yankee Stadium. Mickey Mantle and Roger Maris.

The pair combined to hit 115 homers in 1961. Maris' 61 breaking Babe Ruth's record and Mantle accounted for 54 as they paced the Yankees to the American League pennant and a win in the World Series.

The M and M boys, introduced by Mel Allen, the Voice of the Yankees in '61, later joined in hosting the Yankees' 21st World Series championship banner in left-center field.

Maris was thrilled and there's more than an even chance he'll be back for Old Timer Day promotions.

There was another pretty fair home run hit in the press box, one which was unnoticed - Hank Aaron, major league's all-time home run king.

It was the Yankees Day and no National League was going to be included.

Stadium glitter inspired Reggie

NEW YORK (UPI) — Reggie Jackson drilled a three-run, first-inning homer Thursday night to give the New York Yankees a home opened 4-2 triumph over the Chicago White Sox.

It was his first home run of the season and he admitted he was inspired by the glitter of Yankee Stadium during the pregame ceremonies, the large crowd and the flags flying in the breeze on the roof.

Roger Maris, who broke Babe Ruth's single season home run record with 61 in 1961, joined former teammate and Hall of Famer Mickey Mantle in hosting the world championship flag in center field prior to the game. They were given a warm reception by the crowd.

"Seeing the flags flying out and those two great players made me feel it was the World Series," said Jackson.

Jackson's home run, off knuckleball specialist Wilbur Wood, touched off quite an unusual display of affection from the crowd of 44,667. As he circled the bases they cheered wildly then threw hundreds of "Reggie" candies onto the field, disrupting the game for five minutes while ushers, groundskeepers and even a few kids from the stands helped clean up the litter.

Ron Guidry benefited from Jackson's blast to win his first game of the season. He scattered 10 hits in going the distance.

The Atlanta Flames, a team big and strong, seems unable to cope against the Stanley Cup playoff pressure.

"If any of our supporters and followers think they're disappointed, they ought to be in my shoes," said Atlanta Coach Fred Creghton Thursday night, after the Flames lost, 3-2, to Detroit, exiting the Stanley Cup playoffs in an embarrassing two games.

In other games, the New York Rangers overtook Buffalo, 4-3. Philadelphia eliminated Colorado, 3-1, and Toronto knocked out Los Angeles, 4-0.

In the World Hockey Association playoffs beginning Friday, Edmonton plays at New England and Birmingham is at Winnipeg.

Cincinnati edged San Francisco, 7-6, in 13 innings, and St. Louis topped Pittsburgh, 6-5, in the only National League action.

Angels 1, Twins 0

Reds 7, Giants 6

The Reds made it six victories in seven outings by beating the Giants on Rick Auerbach's pinch-hit double in the 13th inning. Dan Drissen homered for the Reds while Mike Ivie hit a three-run blast, and pinch-hitter Tom Heinzelman a solo shot for the Giants.

Cardinals 5, Pirates 5

Ted Simmons had three hits and scored two runs and Mike Phillips added a two-run triple in helping the Cardinals defeat the Pirates and sweep their three-game series.

Pittsburgh starter Bert Blyleven lost his first National League decision.

Shorter, Rodgers top marathon list

BOSTON (UPI) — Three members of the 1976 U.S. Olympic team head a herd from 23 countries Monday in the 24th running of the Boston Marathon.

A field of nearly 4,700 runners, including 250 women, will answer the starter's gun in Hopkinton. The National Weather Service in Boston predicted temperatures in the mid-50s and a possibility of rain for the nighttime (EST) start.

Frank Shorter, gold medalist in 1972 at Munich and silver medalist in 1976 at Montreal, will try to become the first Olympic champion to beat the field over the famous 26-mile-385-yard course that goes uphill 1,145 times to the race's end.

It was on the 2.5 mile incline — four rises collectively known as Heartbreak Hill — that famed Olympic gold medalist Abebe Bikila faded from sixth in 1968. The hills also had their toll on five other gold medalists who tried to do Boston to their list of victories.

Shorter, whose last complete marathon was October 1976 in New York, expects to be "at about 80 percent" for the race, after being hobbled by a hamstring pull last fall.

"That's why I'm anxious to run, mentally. I'm ready to run," said Shorter this week. "If I hold together, I think I can run under 2:15. I'll try hard for that."

"I wouldn't bet on me. Bet on somebody else." Bill Rodgers, who beat Shorter twice last year in middle distance races in Massachusetts, has had opposite luck to the Olympic gold medal winner.

After setting a Boston Marathon record of 2:09:55 in 1975, Rodgers and former victor Jackie Kucsek also will be in the field.

New Zealander Kevin Ryan, another Olympian, has covered the distance in 2:13.15, the same clocking recorded by seminarian Jeff Wells in clinching the Oregon Track Club race.

A pair of fast runners also are returning — Turkey's Veli Balci, second last year in 2:15:44, and Tom Fleming of Bloomfield, N.J., second, third, third and sixth last year.

South African John Halberstadt, third in 1971, will be back along with Esa Tikkanen of Finland, a frontrunner for much of the 1977 race. A contingent of 51 Japanese runners also will be in the field.

Miki Gorman, a two-time women's winner and the defending champion, bypassed the event because of cumulative damage to a race in Japan. But Kim Merritt, the 1976 winner, is entered along with two-time champion Nina Kusick and former victor Jackie Kucsek.

Knicks win on the road

NEW YORK (UPI) — The New York Knicks did just what they weren't supposed to do Wednesday night — win on the road and in an arena in Cleveland where they haven't won since 1975.

Now, if they can win again tonight in Madison Square Garden they have a chance to gain the NBA's Eastern Conference semifinals.

The Knicks shot 61 percent from the floor and cruised to a 132-114 victory over the Cavaliers in Cleveland Wednesday night as Bob McAdoo pumped in 41 points in shooting 17-of-25 from the field.

"I was determined to come back this year and play as hard as I could," McAdoo said. "All the bumps and bruises you take during the season makes it worthwhile when you get into the playoffs."

"We have no excuse — we just got beat by a good basketball team," said Cleveland Coach Bill Fitch after Wednesday night's defeat, which snapped the Cavaliers' six-game winning streak.

But Bucks Coach Dick Motta would not put down the Hawks.

"We had plenty of opportunities to pile up the score, but they wouldn't quit," said Motta.

They'll make some adjustments," said Nelson, who isn't too keen on the home-court syndrome.

We were manhandled pretty good inside," said Hawks' Coach Hubie Brown of the team's loss in Landover. "That's how the game is played in the playoffs. What we saw was a veteran club doing what it must do to win the playoffs."

But Bucks Coach Dick Motta wouldn't put down the Hawks.

"We had plenty of opportunities to pile up the score, but they wouldn't quit," said Motta.

Ballesteros not sure he'll play PGA tour

RANCHO LA COSTA, Calif. (UPI) — Just turned 21, Spain's charismatic Severino Ballesteros is wrestling with the biggest decision of his young life.

The PGA Tour wants the dashing Spaniard for its own but he's not sure he wants the PGA tour.

Ballesteros, who posted his first American win in the Greater Greensboro Open two weeks ago, shot a 3-under-par 69 Thursday, which gave him a share of the first-round lead with Bill Rogers and Bob Cole in the $225,000 Tournament of Champions.

Before last week's Masters, PGA Commissioner Deane Beman extended Ballesteros an invitation to join the U.S. tour without having to go through the PGA qualifying school again. He failed to qualify three years ago.

"I like to play over here but I don't know yet," he said when asked about Beman's invitation. "I might decide to go to the U.S. tour."

The PGA offer may not be as good as it sounds, either. If he accepts, Ballesteros would be required to play a minimum of 15 tournaments on the U.S. tour, a tie with Bill Kratzert and when he wanted to, but he would be required to have the PGA's permission to play in other foreign tournaments. And at the present time, he says he has other commitments.

"It's nice to be home," Ballesteros answered when queried if he was homesick. "But I like to play golf too."

In the first round of the prestigious Tour, an event sponsored by Mutual of New York featuring 29 winners of major events during the past 12 months, Ballesteros was paired with newly crowned Bob Hope Desert Classic Player of South Africa.

Like Ballesteros, the other first-round co-leaders are first-time Tour participants. Cole is a 29-year-old South African with one win and show for 11 years on the U.S. tour, and Rogers, 26, posted his first tour victory in four years when he won the 1977 PGA Play. He played in the Year Tom Watson and Rod Funseth. But he managed to finish with a 2-under 70 to wind up the day one shot in a tie with Bill Kratzert and Mac McLendon.

MCC nips Becker

Backing up Mike Fitzsimmons' stout three-hit pitching with a nine-hit attack, some flashy defense, Manchester Community College edged Becker Junior College in Leicester, Mass., yesterday, 4-3.

The win was the second in two days and fourth in nine games.

A bases loaded walk in the seventh inning snapped a 3-3 tie and gave the locals a short route home. Basty Pacino doubled to open the frame and with the bases jammed, Tom Perrone waded out a walk to drive in the all important marker.

The locals had many scoring chances, standing 14 runners. Eight bases on balls helped.

Perrone and Pacino each collected two hits. MCC tallied single runs in the first, third, fourth and seventh innings. Becker covered once in the second tied matters in the sixth with a pair of markers.

MCC winning streak ends

Tasting defeat for the first time this season was the Manchester Community College women's softball team yesterday afternoon when top-ranked Becker Junior College posted 15-12 win in Leicester, Mass.

The victory was the fifth without defeat while MCC dropped to 3-1.

Becker jumped off to a 10-1 first inning lead and then just managed to hold on to triumph. MCC fought back and tied the count after four innings.

Leading the 14-hit MCC offense were Bonnie Kilgore and Debbie Trento with two hits each. Kathy Hall was the losing pitcher.

MCC net teams triumph

Manchester Community College tennis teams scored impressive victories yesterday.

The men blanked Becker Junior College at Cougar Field, 9-0, and the women opened their season with a 4-1 duke over the Becker women.

Real Estate
By Norma Tedford
The number of single women living alone has increased 100% over the past few years. The number of single men living alone has increased 178% over the same period of time. What does that mean for the real estate market? It means that the market for smaller homes and townhouses is growing at a tremendous rate. Many of these people are young professionals who have good jobs and want the benefits previously only available to married couples. They are looking for a home that is affordable, convenient and offers the amenities of a townhouse.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: There is an old man who goes to our church. He's very friendly and everyone likes him, but he's beginning to get on the girls' nerves. (By "girls," I mean any female between 12 and 60.)

You can't really call him a "dirty old man," although he acts like it at times. I wouldn't mind a brief hug as a greeting, but this man does a lot of pinching and patting in the cheeks.

I mentioned this to a girlfriend of mine who has also been on the receiving end of his pinching and patting, and she said, "Forget it—his is 50!"

Abby, do you think a man should be excused for his actions because of his age?

PINCHED AND PATTED

DEAR ABBY: My sister has a 10-year-old son who was born with one deaf ear and about one-third hearing in the other ear. His doctors have informed my sister that eventually the boy will be totally deaf.

Don't you think my sister is being extremely unfair to hide the truth from her son? She is an intelligent woman, but she seems almost ashamed of her son's handicap. She said she couldn't bear the thought of his studying lip-reading or sign language so young.

She thinks highly of my advice, Abby, so please answer.

CARING AUNT

DEAR AUNT: My sister is doing her son a big favor by deservicing. The boy should start preparing immediately to live in a silent world. It will be much more difficult for him to learn after he has suffered a total hearing loss.

Urges your sister to discuss it with her son's doctors and to follow their recommendations. And I hope for the boy's sake she acts at once.

DEAR ABBY: Our 17-year-old son got a ticket for speeding the has no car, it was his father's, so we took away his driving privileges for a month. It has been only five days now and this boy is unbearable. He is ugly and hateful. He hardly eats, and he refuses to look at us. He answers our questions with grunts and shrugs, and he says he won't be "nice" until we give him one more chance and restore his driving privileges.

My husband has had one coronary and was told to keep calm and avoid excitement, but this son of ours is pushing him to the boiling point.

I honestly don't know how to cope with this. Should we give in?

SULKY'S MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: If you "give in" now, you will teach your son that the way to get what he wants in life is to punish those around him with his ugliness. Ignore his act. If he doesn't eat, it's his hunger. Don't ask him any questions. It will only provide him with an opportunity to exhibit his surlyness. Let him sweat it out. You'll be doing him a favor.

Juvenile crime not decreasing

Vernon

Despite what national figures reveal, the juvenile crime rate is not going down, Harold DeLisle of the Vernon Police Department told the Board of Directors of the Rockville Area Chamber of Commerce Wednesday.

DeLisle, who is in charge of juvenile offenders, said although figures show that juvenile crime is on the decrease, it actually isn't, but other ways have been found to work with the young offenders rather than through the courts.

He said he and the State Police are working on individual cases and that his case load is getting heavier. He said these cases are dealt with on an individual basis. He gave as an example the fact that three 16-year-old girls were reported as runaways this week. He said they were found and he talked with them. He said such cases are not shown in the statistics.

He said he was hoping that an assistant could be hired to work with him, but instead the cut in the police budget almost did away with his job. He said he will keep working with the kids. "But I know some of them will be lost."

He cited problems with groups forming in the center of Rockville. He said the shop owners should call the police when they see this happen rather than wait until it turns into trouble.

It was mentioned, by a board member, that there was no reason for this because the town has excellent recreational facilities.

DeLisle said, "The hard core kids aren't going to participate in organized recreation programs. These kids don't want any part of that."

Officer William Yetz, the department's public relations officer, said the department has a campaign on now in all of the shopping centers, which it is hoped will alleviate some of the problems.

He said the department is stepping up patrols and is having better lighting installed.

Joseph Paradis, speaking for board president Harvey Desruisseaux, who was unable to be at the meeting, said the chamber has contacted the J. C. Penney Co., which is building a distribution center in Manchester, to see if it is interested in renting space in Rockville for a catalog outlet.

The Sears Catalog outlet, located in the center of Rockville for many years, recently moved out to consolidate with the Manchester store.

It was announced that the chamber's spring outing will be a family picnic June 4 at town-owned Camp Newhoca at Bolton Lake.

The affair will start at noon and run until 6 p.m.

Indian Valley Y plans seminar on gardening

The Indian Valley YMCA will sponsor a spring gardening seminar April 17 from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. at the Tolland County Agricultural Center, Route 30, Vernon.

Frank DeRosa, a senior at the University of Connecticut majoring in environmental horticulture and an extension intern, will be the speaker.

The program is free for "Y" members and there will be a small registration fee for non-members.

Other programs

An automotive knowledge course for teens and adults will be Wednesday, May 3, from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m.

A spring nature walk for families and individuals will be Sunday, May 7, from 1 to 3 p.m.

The YMCA is sponsoring a trip to Washington, D.C., April 27 to April 30 to tour the city. The motor coach trip is open to boys and girls ages 9 to 15, with special accommodations available for families.

For information and registration for any of the above courses or the Washington trip, call the Y office, 872-7329.

Teacher center proposed

Vernon

The need for a teacher center in the Vernon area has been outlined for a grant application by Dr. Robert Linstone, assistant superintendent of schools, to be approved by the Board of Education.

Dr. Linstone said the need for such a center has been established by the overwhelming responses of teachers and administrators.

The proposed center would be created for the four-town region of Vernon, Ellington, Bolton, and East Windsor.

Dr. Linstone said small school districts tend to rely too heavily on their own resources, believing their problems to be unique.

"Also, the lessening mobility of our school staffs compounds isolation and stagnation of specific staff. Thus the need for greater and more effective in-service training and communication," he said.

The center would provide for improving teacher effectiveness through using alternate patterns of instruction pertaining to student motivation and disciplinary techniques.

It would also provide programs for teachers on curriculum development and innovations and would provide in-service training and curriculum development programs to meet the professional needs of teachers, thereby improving the educational process of children," Linstone said.

He cited as direct benefits of the proposed center, increase of the teachers' awareness and knowledge of student motivation and discipline techniques and improving the effectiveness of the teachers.

Films at library
The Rockville Public Library will present three sports films April 19 at 7 p.m.

The first will be "Olga," describing the training and rise to fame of Russian gymnast, Olga Korbut. The second, entitled "Nasty," features Ilie Nastase, who is termed the bad boy of tennis; and the last is the portrait of Connecticut basketball player, Calvin Murphy.

Area campers set breakfast

The Rockville Area Chapter of the North American Family Campers Association will sponsor a fishermen's breakfast, Saturday starting at 4:30 a.m. at Nickerson Park Campground on the Natchaug River, Route 198, Chaplain.

A breakfast of pancakes, sausage, bacon, eggs and coffee will be served. There will also be a lunch and a bake sale.

Program due on appliances

The Vernon office of the University of Connecticut Cooperative Extension Service will sponsor a program on "Energy Saver Appliances," April 24 at 7:30 p.m. in the Tolland County Agricultural Center, Route 30, Vernon.

The program will feature pressure cookers, electric skillets, crepe makers, and mini fryers. Those attending will be asked to make a small donation toward the cost of food to be used in the demonstrations.

Pre-registration is required by calling the extension office, 875-3331.
