News of Manchester is concentrated on pages 2A, 3A, 5A and 10A in the first section. News of East Hartford is on pages 7A and 8A, and news of area towns is on pages 8A and 9A. Family news is on page 4A and the editorial page has moved to page 6A. Entertainment news, carried on page

2A for many years, now appears in the second section, on page 4B. Sports pages now appear at the start of the second section. National sports is featured on page 1B and 3B, with local and area sports on pages 2B and 3B. East Hartford sports appears in the sports section.

News of the state, region, nation and world is featured on pages 3A and 5B. Herald Publisher Raymond Robinson said the format change is a significant improvement in The Herald. "We are proud and excited about this new approach which is part of our on-going effort to improve the news pages of The Herald," Robinson said. "It is our goal to further improve The Herald to meet the needs of the 1978 reader," he said. Robinson said the combined edition is the result of reader requests for a more complete newspaper. Past improvements resulting from reader input have included the Opinion page in the Saturday Sunrise Herald, regular food features in color on Saturday, and an expanded People section on Wednesdays.

Begin sees hope for talks

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin, expressing hope that negotiations can progress toward peace in the Mideast, arrived today for meetings with President Carter and other U.S. officials.

Begin arrived at Andrews Air Force base at 10 a.m. EDT and was welcomed by Secretary of State Cyrus Vance, who reaffirmed the American commitment to Israeli security.

"We do hope the peace process will continue so that we can achieve real peace in the Middle East," Begin said. In brief airport statements, both Begin and Vance referred to the official reason for Begin's visit to the United States — the 30th anniversary of the independence of the state of Israel.

"This is a momentous occasion for all free men of good will," said Begin, who arrived from New York aboard an Israeli Air Force Boeing 707 with an Israeli flag flying from the left side of the cockpit. Vance said the American commitment to the security of Israel "is a commitment on which Israel can depend."

Among other top U.S. officials welcoming Begin were Middle East mediator Alfred Atherton Jr., Assistant Secretary of State Harold Saunders, and U.S. ambassador to Israel Samuel Lewis.

Begin and Vance then drove to the State Department without answering questions from reporters at the airport. Begin arranged to meet President Carter at the White House at 1:30 p.m. EDT and then attend a White House reception for the 30th anniversary celebration.

Begin's morning visit coincided with two developments in the debate over the jet sales:

* A public clash in separate television interviews by Secretary of State Cyrus Vance and Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan Sunday over the wisdom of providing two of Israel's historic Arab enemies with U.S. jet fighters.

* An apparent compromise patched together between Vance and congressional leaders late last week to drop the "package" format while technically not retreating from the linkage on the arms sales.

Vance, in an interview on CBS-TV's Face the Nation, said the $4.8 billion package deal is necessary to maintain U.S. ties to the moderate Arab governments of Egypt and Saudi Arabia.

Dayan, interviewed by Barbara Walters on ABC-TV's Issues and Answers, said the United States is simply supplying arms that can one day be used against Israel.

"In any way," Dayan said, "you would be walking in the Russian shoes in the Middle East, preparing... the Arab countries for the next war against Israel by supplying them with American warplanes."

Vance, who urged congressional approval of the package, said failure to go forward with the sales "would seriously jeopardize our relationship, not only with Saudi Arabia, but with the moderate countries in the area as well."

Canoe race enjoyable

By ALICE EVANS
Herald Reporter

With 78 canoes competing for trophies in Saturday's second annual Hockanum River Race, the more than 300 spectators lining the banks had an enjoyable few hours watching the race.

More crews showed up at the starting point alongside the Steak Out Restaurant in Talcottville, but decided not to enter the race because of the low water. Although the Rockville Aqueduct and Water Co. opened a gate in the Snipsic Reservoir, it added little water to the river because the reservoir was also low on water, Lee Watkins, race chairman, said.

Spectators at the rear of the Economy Electric Co. off Oakland Street, Manchester, missed the thrills and spills of last year's race because many crews portaged and didn't run the rapids.

"Still, even though the water was uncommonly low, it did require a lot more skill that usual to get through the rapids," Watkins said.

Of the 78 crews entered in the race, only 71 finished the race, which was sponsored by the Hockanum River Linear Park Committee and the Savings Bank of Manchester.

Manchester crews did well in the race. Jane Boggin and Kathy King, placed first in the two-woman division, posting a time of 1:52:15; Scott and Keith Antonia, first place in the two-man short canoe, 1:22:53; and Scott Cheney and Stephen Telgener, one canoeist older, and one younger than age 15, 1:35.

Two winners in the two-man standard canoe division were Stephen Mitchell and Scott Smith, both of Manchester, 1:26:45, and Gary Forghetti of Enfield and Al Prancus of South Windsor, 1:24:36.

The fastest time of the day was posted by Jurgen Igel of Huntington and Jeffrey DeFeo of Chester, Mass., winners of the two-man long canoe division, with a 1:15:26.

Other winners were Bob Annen of East Granby, one one-man, 1:20:30; and Schuyler Thomson of Torrington and Cynthia Lynch, 1:17:21.

Israeli troops withdraw

Israeli troops withdrew from 220 square miles of south Lebanon Sunday, turning over some 30 positions to United Nations peacekeeping forces who promptly arrested Palestinian guerrillas infiltrating their lines. The new Israeli line in the south is about six miles north of the Israeli border, approximately in the "security belt" Israeli forces first seized at the outset of their operation on March 14. Tenants evacuated in suspicious fire

By SUSAN VAUGHN
Herald Reporter

A fire of suspicious origin at the Centennial Apartments, 56 Chestnut St., early Saturday caused the evacuation of some tenants and heavy smoke damage to the four-story structure, according to Town Fire Chief John Rivosa.

The fire was reported to the Town Fire Department at 12:40 a.m. The basement and first floor of the building were filled up with heavy smoke when firefighters arrived and the alarm was sent out for all off-duty and volunteer firefighters from the town department. About 45 off-duty firefighters and volunteers responded in addition to the three engine companies and a ladder company, Rivosa said.

The firefighters had to use air pacs to enter the building. Three separate fires were discovered in the storage area of the basement. One fire was in a mattress and another in a chair cushion, which causes heavy smoke, Rivosa said.

The first floor residents of the apartment building were evacuated immediately. Firemen were stationed on the second and third floors to prepare for evacuation, but it was not necessary once the source of the fire was located, Rivosa said.

Rivosa stressed that the fire was potentially very serious because of the old interior wood structure of the building and the many elderly residents in the apartments.

He praised the large number of volunteers and off-duty firefighters who responded to the call. Rivosa said the fire was definitely set and will be under investigation. Packs of matches were found in the area of the fire.

'No deals for Moro'

Italian workers march

ROME (UPI) — Tens of thousands of Italian workers marching on May Day demanded today there should be no deals with the Red Brigades kidnapers of ex-premier Aldo Moro.

The demands made by Communist, Socialist and Roman Catholic workers marching throughout the nation came as the ruling Christian Democratic Party called a meeting to consider a rash of letters from Moro in captivity.

Moro, in a trembling hand clearly guided by the abductors who seized him 46 days ago while killing his five guards, has urged top statesmen to accept a Red Brigades demand that 13 jailed comrades be traded for his life.

Moro's family angrily accused the Christian Democratic leadership of "ratifying" a death sentence by the Red Brigades terrorists.

The Labor Day rallies at which workers' rights are traditionally promoted were totally overshadowed by the Moro kidnapping.

In Rome, 25,000 workers from the three main unions marched from the ancient Colosseum to the Square of St. John Lateran bearing slogans reading: "No Deal With The Red Brigades," "No Bartering" and "Red Brigades Only Create Blood."

Demonstrators and bystanders clapped and cheered as Pierre Carniti, deputy leader of the Communist-dominated General Confederation of Italian Labor, shouted: "We cannot yield to blackmail" and denounced the continuing nationwide wave of political violence.

Similar rallies were held in Turin, Milan, Bologna, Taranto, Salerno and Latina. A joint statement by Catholic, Communist and Socialist unions said: "We firmly reject the subversive designs of the terrorists who, by their criminal and bloody action, seek to strike at the roots of democratic coexistence."

Party Secretary Benigno Zaccagnini summoned leaders to a meeting in Rome this evening.

The conservative Rome newspaper Il Tempo said a new ultimatum had been telephoned to Moro's only son Giovanni, saying: "The Christian Democrats have only a few hours to get down to negotiations and so state in a communique, or the sentence will be carried out."

Il Tempo said the call was from a woman speaking from a telephone booth near the central railroad station Saturday afternoon and that the family considered it authentic.

After 46 days of captivity, a shower of letters from the five-time premier has caused a rift among Italian politicians.

Odom quits board

Earl B. Odom

Earl B. Odom, Republican member of the Manchester Board of Education, today announced his resignation from the board.

Odom said he does not have the time to devote to the board since his responsibilities in his marketing position at Pratt & Whitney Aircraft Group of United Technologies have increased.

He said, "I dislike not being able to do the job I signed up to do, however, I am doing no one any good at this point." He said he does not like not being able to complete his term on the board.

Odom's term would have been completed this November. In addition to the current term, he was appointed about a year before his election to the board.

The resignation is effective May 15. Odom said he has contacted Thomas Ferguson, chairman of the Republican Town Committee, who said a replacement can be found by that date.

Crash probed

DANBURY (UPI) — Federal Aviation Administration investigators today began dismantling a single-engine plane that crashed this weekend on takeoff, killing one woman and injuring the pilot. The four-passenger Piper Cherokee crashed at Danbury Airport Saturday. An airport official said the impact pushed the engine into the passenger cabin. Dead was Pamela Harrison, 27, of Bedford Village, N.Y. The pilot and victim's fiancée, John Green, 32, also of Bedford Village, N.Y., was listed in critical condition in the intensive care unit at Danbury Hospital. Police Capt. Daniel Devine said the plane apparently developed engine trouble upon takeoff.

Revaluation bill ready for Grasso's signature

The phase-in revaluation bill sponsored by Manchester's legislators in the General Assembly was given final approval by the state House of Representatives Saturday night by a 101-59 vote. The measure is intended to ease property revaluation for homeowners by allowing municipalities to phase-in the increased assessments over a five-year period. The assessments for residential real estate increased by 98.25 percent over the past 10 years in Manchester's recent revaluation. The bill will now go to Gov. Ella Grasso who is expected to be under great pressure to sign it into law, according to state legislative leaders. In Manchester, officials are split on the opinions about the value of the new bill. The Democratic majority on the Board of Directors, including Stephen Penny, chairman of the board, said they would approve take the option of putting the bill into effect in Manchester. At least one of the Republican minority on the board, Carl Zinsner, has questioned the benefits of the new legislation. Zinsner said businesses may challenge the law in court. He said businesses would be affected, because of the higher amount they will be asked to pay in the first years of the phase-in and because of the large amount of personal property taxes. Personal property and motor vehicle taxes will not be included in the phase-in. Ed Belleville, the town tax assessor and Michael Nimrowski, assistant tax assessor, also opposed the legislation. They said the proposal would not cure any problem, but just postpone it.

Black leaders change tactics of protesting

HARTFORD (UPI) — Protesters fighting the dismissal of the city's first black and woman school superintendent say their next tactic will be political action and economic boycotts. Black community leaders, who organized one week's worth of peaceful marches to the Hartford Civic Center, said Sunday they had not given up trying to get the school board to reconsider its 5-4 vote against Edythe Gaines. The board April 30 voted not to renew Mrs. Gaines' contract when it expires June 30. Opponents claimed Mrs. Gaines, 55, acted too independently and was absent from the city too often. She served as Hartford school superintendent for three years. In what they said was their last march, an estimated 200 people walked to the civic center Sunday, singing "Edythe Gaines, she shall not be moved." The marchers were not allowed inside the center for a prayer meeting and rally. Greater Hartford NAACP president Norvell Goff said there was a Salvation Army concert scheduled Sunday afternoon. He told the disappointed protesters, "No one said we were going to go into the civic center today. The plan was just to march downtown." Protesters say the school board is failing to help the wishes of public school children by refusing to reconsider its decision. Of 28,000 public school students in Hartford, 50 percent are black, 30 percent are Hispanic and 20 percent are white.

New Britain first test for Grasso vs. Killian

NEW BRITAIN (UPI) — New Britain will be the testing ground for Gov. Ella T. Grasso's first head-to-head confrontation with Lt. Gov. Robert K. Killian this Tuesday. The New Britain primary will be the only test of delegate strength in advance of the Democratic Party's state convention July 21-22. Killian is challenging Mrs. Grasso for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination. Political observers are calling the New Britain contest a crucial turning point in Killian's campaign. Although Killian has said he has enough delegates without New Britain to force a statewide primary in September, observers said he could face difficulty if he loses Tuesday's contest. The New Britain primary, in which 25 percent to 30 percent of the city's 25,000 Democrats are expected to vote, is one of three big city Democratic delegate primaries set for Tuesday. Primaries will also be held in New Haven and in Waterbury. Both differ from the New Britain contest, however, because they are gubernatorial nominations. Instead, they involve challenge delegate slates put up by former New Haven Town Chairman Arthur T. Barberi and former Waterbury Town Chairman Frank D. Santaguida. Both men are trying to block efforts to oust them from Democratic State Central Committee seats.

Nixon knew tapes his downfall

NEW YORK (UPI) — When Alexander Butterfield shocked the nation in 1974 with the revelation Richard Nixon's Watergate conversations were preserved on tapes, Nixon realized his presidency would not survive. But he didn't expect destroying the tapes that ultimately drove him from the White House, fearing some close aides would turn against him to save their skins and the tapes provided him "at least some protection." The second installment of his memoirs appeared today in The New York Times, the Chicago Tribune and other newspapers. The excerpts are from "RN: The Memoirs of Richard Nixon," being published May 15 by Grosset and Dunlap and selling for $19.95 for the regular edition, $50 for a deluxe edition, and $250 for a leather-bound, autographed edition. The first two excerpts break new ground in the scandal, although some of Nixon's details conflict considerably with previous data. Since the second installment ends with Nixon's departure from Washington, presumably these are the last words from the former president on Watergate and the rest of his memoirs would deal with matters unrelated to the scandal.

Nixon wrote that three months before Butterfield told the Senate Watergate Committee about the White House taping system, he had told his chief of staff, H. R. Haldeman, to destroy the recordings. But Haldeman did not consider it an order. On July 16, 1973, while Nixon was recovering from viral pneumonia in Bethesda Naval Hospital, Butterfield dropped his bombshell. "I reflected ironically that just a few months before, I had told Bob Haldeman... to get rid of all the tapes except those dealing with national security events," Nixon wrote. "In the hospital I raised the idea of whether we should not destroy the tapes now. Finally, I decided that the tapes were my best insurance against the unforeseeable future. 'I was prepared to believe that others would turn against me just as John Dean had done, and in that case the tapes would give me at least some protection.' 'I now believe,' Nixon wrote, 'that from the time of the disclosure of the existence of the tapes and my decision not to destroy them, my presidency had little chance of surviving to the end of its term.'

Feds continue probe in scaffold collapse

WILLOW ISLAND, W. Va. (UPI) — A combination of concrete that became dust and an equipment breakdown may have caused the deaths of 51 workmen erecting a power plant cooling tower, but federal officials want more tests before drawing any firm conclusions. Experts from the Occupational Safety and Health Administration planned to take additional samples at the cooling tower, where 51 workmen fell 168 feet to their deaths when the scaffolding gave way last Thursday. Suspended from the rim of the unfinished tower to support the workers, the scaffolding peeled off the sides and fell apart in a matter of seconds. UPI learned from a source close to the government's investigation that OSHA is concentrating on a theory that the accident resulted from a combination of factors — possibly weak concrete and equipment failure. The source said concrete poured at the level of the tower where the scaffolding disintegrated had turned to powder. "That's all there was left was dust," the source said. OSHA's regional administrator, David Rhone, acknowledged that officials working in his investigation were "concerned about the strength of the concrete." "We have been unable to recover sufficient samples on the ground 'from the level' where the scaffolding broke, he said. Five members of the Lee Steele family — four sons and a brother — were buried side-by-side Sunday after a large funeral in a school gymnasium and more services were to be held today and Tuesday in this riverfront town.

Proper diet is the secret

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB - Do Surfak Stool Softeners and all natural bran do any damage? Would they give you cancer sores? It is safer to take a laxative once or twice a week?

DEAR READER - Before I started writing this column I knew many people had trouble with their bowels but I had no idea that it was such a common concern.

No, stool softeners and bran do not cause cancer sores. Nervous tension can contribute to bowel disorders and cancer sores though. That may be why you got the idea.

I don't think chemical laxatives that induce colonic contractions to empty the colon are ever useful. They can be, and often are, harmful.

can assure you a recent hemorrhoidectomy patient would be grateful for soft stools. The secret to good bowel function for most people is a proper diet.

DEAR READER - Before I started writing this column I knew many people had trouble with their bowels but I had no idea that it was such a common concern.

It helps to develop a regular pattern of eating a good breakfast that includes bulk and at least two large glasses of fluid.

It usually takes several weeks for a person to adjust to adding bran to the diet. More gas than usual is noted.

Walking and other forms of exercise also help to improve bowel function. A good walk in the evening after your last meal helps the bowels, and tranquilizes the soul to prepare you for a good night's sleep.

Some people have to start with very small amounts and gradually increase it until their system can handle it.

Opinions differ on fate of Susannah Wesley hall

The official future use of the South Union Methodist Church's property near the intersection of Manchester's Main Street and Hartford Road has not been decided, but one concern of a church official is the cost of heating the Susannah Wesley Hall.

The church has appointed a committee that has been studying future use of the property. Val Patariol, chairman of the church's Board of Trustees, said of the property, "I would expect that it would probably continue to receive the same limited service it has in the past as a meeting place."

To dance is to reach out through a selected form into the environment. Since our culture contains a series of selective actions, dancing is a way of reinstating participation in the culture.

At the Meadows Convalescent home, the resoundingly clear voice of "Happy Hal" Petschke took residents through a variety of steps in the form of "squares," a traditional American square dancing form.

As my attention span drifted from time to time, I suspended inner directions and thus lost the flow of the dance, making me aware of the fact that the habits of inattention can lead to lack of fulfillment for the individual as well as those one is dancing with.

Happiness was the harmony of well-executed promenades and do-si-dos, fulfillment by use of the faculties. Older participating or observing residents were taken back to moments of an earlier decade when Saturday nights were prime for a dollar square dance.

Minister says Humphrey ended Nixon's isolation

ST. PAUL, Minn. (UPI) - The Rev. Calvin Didier, friend and counselor of the late Sen. Hubert Humphrey, believes it was Humphrey in his dying days who convinced his old adversary, former President Richard Nixon, to end his self-imposed isolation.

Didier, pastor of the House of Hope Presbyterian Church, saw much of Humphrey during his final days and arranged and conducted the funeral services for the Minnesota statesman, who died Jan. 13 of cancer.

Didier said he had talked with Nixon on the political battlefield. The climactic battle between the two was the 1968 presidential election in which Nixon edged Humphrey out in his last bid for the White House.

Writing in the church publication, "A.D.," Didier recalls how Humphrey told him of his conversation with Nixon. "It was a turning point in Nixon's realization that he no longer could impose the isolation on himself - for Hubert's sake and for the larger considerations of life."

Didier said, "I believe he (Nixon) realized then that he must put his former life behind him. That, of course, just speculation on my part."

Didier added, "We talked on and about the good events we had shared. 'I can only conclude that it was Hubert's wonderful warmth that broke the isolation in which Nixon has been living and brought him back to Washington for the (funeral) service in the Capitol Rotunda.'"

Longley asks pressure against drug exporters

AUGUSTA, Maine (UPI) - Gov. James B. Longley says federal officials should be more "vigorous" in their fight against drug traffickers and review American policy of aid to countries in which illegal drugs are grown.

The United States should not allow concern over diplomatic relations to "cost the lives of our young people," Longley told a Statehouse news conference following the Northeast's largest drug bust in Boothbay.

"The State Department and the president should be taking a more vigorous stand in protecting the human rights of our youths," he said, adding it was the federal government's duty to crack down on "the profiteering of human life."

Maine's undercover drug squad last week raided a dock on the Damariscotta River and busted an apparently sophisticated $16 million smuggling ring.

All that glitters

What's in a name? If it applies to a metal and happens to be "gold," a near-magical effect on human psychology it would appear. The United States Treasury has supplied us with a vivid case in point. Its announcement that it would begin selling gold was promptly followed by a halt in the dollar's long decline on the international exchange markets and an upsurge in value against the mark, yen and other major currencies. Not to mention outpouring of optimistic comments by foreign bankers and traders and a fresh explosion of trading on an already hectic stock market. Which only goes to show that it is considerably easier to go off the gold standard than it is to replace gold as the standard by which the international community measures the seriousness of a member's economic policies. The Treasury will sell lots of some 300,000 ounces of gold each at six monthly auctions beginning May 23. At current free market rates, the Treasury can expect to realize between $300 and $400 million on the sales. That is a lot of even depreciated dollars. But it does not come even close to the U.S. trade deficit - $27 billion last year - or touch the reason for the deficit - the still-increasing excess of imports, particularly oil, over exports. In fact, if the Treasury sold the entire Fort Knox gold hoard - currently some 277 million ounces - at optimum free market prices it could not realize more than about $50 billion, enough to cover the trade deficit for less than two years. Optimum prices, of course, would not hold under such an avalanche - even the Treasury announcement of the limited sales caused a free market price drop from nearly $175 an ounce to $169. Washington must move carefully to avoid defeating its own purpose. Gold auctions, consequently, are unlikely to be a continuing means of supporting the dollar. The importance of the sales is primarily symbolic. They are a signal to gold-dealing Europeans and oil-producing Arabs of a new willingness on the part of the Carter administration to take active measures in defense of the dollar. But the signal must be followed by additional and more far-reaching measures to bring U.S. imports and exports into something resembling balance. Otherwise, all that glitters in this case will turn out to be fools gold.

Thoughts

It has been some years since I last wrote in "Thoughts" and I realize that, more than ever, in today's world, we need ANCHORS. At least I do. Just as a ship needs an anchor to stabilize it, to prevent it from drifting, so our minds, our spirit, must be anchored. And so I look for anchors and I find them in the words of God in the Bible or in the writing of authors both in prose and in poetry. For instance, this week a sentence set me thinking. It was as follows: "To try to know one self is a good thing but even better is to learn more about God. As we do this we shall indeed learn more about ourselves and we shall find calm and peace." So I resolved to read again my favorite book in the New Testament - the Gospel according to St. John which contains literally Good News showing us the love, strength and comfort which God is ready to share with us. In particular I shall refer to chapters 14, 15 and 17.

Charlie House is back in Manchester, the town he served so well and for so long before he answered a call to serve the judicial system of Connecticut. He retired Monday, April 24, at the retirement age of 70, as chief justice of the State Supreme Court. He had served the judiciary for 25 years, accepting an appointment in 1953 from then Gov. John Lodge to the Superior Court.

How many of you know that Charlie House introduced a pension plan for employees of the Town of Manchester in 1944? He served as its first chairman in 1944? He was chairman of the Charter Revision committee in 1946 that proposed for Manchester a change in its form of government - from the old New England tradition of a Town Meeting to our present council-manager form of government. Charlie House served on the Board of Education from 1944 to 1953 - and when he went on the bench - and most of that time as its chairman. He was in on the ground floor after World War II when Manchester began its program of new schools. He served in both houses of the Legislature, and the Laurel Club, an organization of newspaper people, paid tribute to him in 1941 as a legislator who had "no engaging alliances." In 1947, as a senator, he was voted the most able legislator in the Senate, the "best state ticket timber," and the senator whose "re-election is most needed." He was also voted most valuable to newsmen and the most cooperative Republican member.

Charlie House has always been concerned about the expediency of justice. He was concerned in 1941, when workers in war-related factories had to take time from work to answer court summonses for minor motor vehicle infractions. He was prosecutor of the Town Court then, and he adopted a form that allowed motorists to enter a formal court appearance at the police station to

Open forum Discouraged over taxes

To the editor: Attention, Board of Directors, Town of Manchester. I have lived in Manchester 27 years. I used to love it here. But it has become increasingly impossible to try and raise a family and own a home in this town. Our house was in desperate need of repairs when we bought it. It was the only reason we could afford a house at all. With the help of family and friends, and honest back-breaking hard work, this has truly become our home. I feel that the re-evaluation, with a tax rate of over 30 mills, will now increase my taxes enough to discourage me from ever trying to improve property in this manner again. Although I may not be willing to admit it, the young people like us have kept Manchester from having more slum areas in the older sections of town. An increase to over 30 mills will also prevent a household with young children from indulging in anything but the essentials, since earnings will only continue to fall short of the cost of living. Because of the Board of Directors alone decides the fate of all the homeowners in Manchester, they should seriously reconsider the devastating effect the proposed mill rate will have on this town. Don't make us suffer for bringing old broken down houses back to life again! Thank you, Linda F. Paradis, 55 Clinton St., Manchester

Early detection hope

To the editor: The annual Cancer Crusade for funds is drawing to a close - and once again the message comes across loud and clear that early detection is the hope for recovery. The American Cancer Society has done an excellent job in educating us to examine ourselves and be alert to signals that might point to cancer. There has especially been a lot of publicity to alert women how to examine themselves for breast tumors. Now the American Cancer Society tells us that testicular cancer is found most often in young men 18-35. The American Cancer Society has a pamphlet entitled TSE (Testicular Self Examination) that will educate men how to examine themselves for tumors. I urge parents of teen-age sons and coaches in junior high and high school to call the Cancer Society at 233-9691 and ask for the literature and distribute it. Testicular cancer does not cause pain in the early stages - making TSE extremely important. Rosemary Livingston, 23 Locust St., South Windsor (Mother of cancer victim)

New center is needed

To the editor: There has been much thought in recent months of the need of a new Senior Citizens Center. People of Manchester are not aware that approximately 16 percent of Manchester's residents are over 60 years of age and that the present building does not adequately accommodate its members. That system is still pretty much in effect today; it's called the Infirmary Bureau, and motorists can mail in their fines and not make a court appearance. We could go on and on reciting the history of Charlie House. We like to remember, though, the interview we did with him in 1952 when he returned from the National Republican Convention in Chicago "with a victory smile and the Connecticut standard." The smile was for the part the Connecticut delegation played in backing the Eisenhower for the presidential nomination; the standard was his souvenir from what he termed "the rebirth of the Republican Party." It was an era when the Republican Party was ringing out the old guard and bringing in the new, and, when Gov. Lodge asked the convention delegates how could they repudiate 25 winning governors in favor of the old guard that "has consistently won conventions and lost elections." "I was impressed with his (Eisenhower's) sense of humor," Judge House told me. When cameramen sought informal shots rather than the over-burdened hand-shaker photos, he leaned on the shoulder of Gov. Lodge and said, "here is a good strong shoulder I will lean on." When his trouser cuff got caught, revealing his Army shoes, the over-repulsive he said it wasn't giving them up; and Gov. Lodge lifted his trouser cuffs to show he was wearing his Navy shoes and said he was "in the same boat." A spectator released a string of fireworks to show pleasure at the nomination of Eisenhower; he said to count them, and if there weren't 17 it couldn't have been a salute to him. That convention was one of the first to be televised throughout the country, and House was glad voters got a firsthand look at a convention in progress.

None more dedicated

To the editor: During our lifetime we meet people who we will always remember. Special people who make such great impressions on us, that the mere mention of their name brings back cherished memories of years gone by seen as real as yesterday. All through our lives we make friends from all walks of life, from craftsmen to professionals. Probably, the most impressive in our lives was our family doctor, I was fortunate to have parents who knew of an excellent doctor who watched over our families' health, made house calls and took a very personal interest in our well being. A man whose family eventually became very close to ours and whose vacations we sometimes shared. I know of no other man in our profession who was more dedicated than he or who devoted more of his time to keep himself abreast in his field. He literally gave so much of himself so that others could live pain free. We most always wait too long to put into words what we feel in our hearts. I will always remember Dr. John Priprano and know that my life was happier and healthier because of him. My only regret is that my thank you came too late. Sincerely, John Vichi, 84 McDivitt Drive, Manchester

Three firemen hurt in suspicious blaze

By MAL BARLOW Herald Reporter EAST HARTFORD - Three firefighters suffered injuries fighting the fifth arson fire set in East Hartford in the last three weeks. The fifth was at 320 Silver Lane Saturday night. Fire Marshal John Armstrong said today the fire appears to have been set. It began at the rear porch of the large, boarded up, three-story frame building. Someone pulled a box alarm for the fire at 8:28 p.m. Capt. James Harrison of the department responded with nine men from headquarters and Engine Co. 5. He said they found the rear portion of the building engulfed in flames right up through the attic. At first, the men poured water on the blaze from the outside. But the fire kept going inside. So many of the firefighters donned air packs and took hoses inside after it. It was while the men were inside that three were hurt. Vincent Incandella of Engine Co. 3 ran out of air in his pack while at the top of a set of stairs. He began to fall but was caught by his fellows before striking the bottom. John Denuzio of Engine Co. 3 fell and suffered a bad ankle sprain. Both Incandella and Denuzio were taken to Manchester Memorial Hospital where they were treated and released. Harrison, later that night, took Incandella home. Denuzio was also taken home by someone else. Edward Garrison suffered smoke inhalation during the fighting of the fire but stayed on the job. Sunday he had to be taken to MMH for treatment, Harrison said. "It was a tough fire to fight," said Harrison. "We couldn't ventilate the fire. The windows were all boarded up. They broke open the windows and, with the aid at 9 p.m. of Engine Co. 3, they finally brought the blaze under full control. Armstrong said the house is owned by Joseph W. Jones of West Hartford. He had not been able to reach the man late this morning. The house is badly damaged, he said. Police have joined Armstrong's office in studying the fire, he said. No arrests have been made so far in the investigations of four other fires in town since the first on April 10 at 132 Tolland St.

Armstrong praised Harrison for his direction of the scene Saturday night. Santo Aileano, president of the firefighters' union, said the men were also pleased with the captain whom he called "gutsy." Aileano said the rash of arson fires worries the men. He thinks the present minimum of 24 men on duty at any one time is not too low. It should be 28 or 29 to be sure the department can handle all the demands on it, he said.

East Hartford bulletin board

Chamber on budget The East Hartford Chamber of Commerce has invited Mayor Richard Blackstone to speak informally on the town's budget for fiscal year 1978-79 on Thursday, May 11 at 9:30 a.m. at the Holiday Inn at 383 Roberts St. The mayor has proposed spending over $36 million with a 9-mill tax increase to 47.8 mills to pay for it. Sen. Hannon outraged by Paquette's charges

EAST HARTFORD - State Sen. George Hannon Jr. said Saturday he was "outraged and incensed" over the charges made Friday by Joseph Paquette about one of his supporters, Eldridge Benedict. Paquette said in a letter to Gov. Ella Grasso that the absentee ballots from the Meadow Hill elderly housing high rise at 101 Connecticut Blvd. should be cast aside in the Tuesday primary between Hannon and challenger Marcella Fahey. He named Benedict, a Meadow Hill resident, as the man who handles the absentee ballot collections in the building. "He collects, delivers, and casts the absentee ballots, Paquette wrote. The primary Tuesday from noon to 8 p.m. gives East Hartford registered Democrats a choice between the party-endorsed slate of 31 delegates to the Third Senatorial District convention in July or the slate of Marcella Fahey. The party slate is pledged to incumbent Hannon.

Paquette said he was denied access to the Meadow Hill complex to speak to the elderly residents there when he primaried Richard Blackstone Sept. 15 for the Democratic nomination for mayor. He said the same thing has happened to Mrs. Fahey. Mrs. Fahey confirmed his statements and said, "He (Benedict) has the old people scared to death. It's a bad situation." Mrs. Fahey couldn't not be reached for further comment this morning. Winner of the primary Tuesday will win the convention's nomination. There are a total of 44 delegates in it, with the other 13 coming from Manchester. Mrs. Fahey has said that if she lost the Tuesday primary, she would still hope to get at least nine of the Manchester delegates in order to force a districtwide primary with Hannon in September. During the campaign leading up to this primary, Hannon has called himself a conservative and Mrs. Fahey has called herself a humanist, not a liberal.

Group takes on utilities

EAST HARTFORD - All the neighborhoods in East Hartford will be asked to join forces to stop utility monopolies any longer. About 30 people from the eight neighborhood groups in EHCAG Krepicio of Mayberry Village following the first meeting of the utility committee of the East Hartford Citizen Action Group (EHCAG) last week. The committee will hold a training session on how to read utility meters on Wednesday, May 17 at 7:30 p.m. at the Raymond Library community room. They want to know when people are charged for more gas and electricity than they are using. They will work with the Greater Hartford Utilities Coalition. "We can't outspend the utilities or match their number of paid lobbyists," said Al Levie of the Southend Association. "We've got to join together." To learn more, call EHCAG at 527-7191.

Hockanum tenants worry about heating breakdown

EAST HARTFORD — "We have resolved that this upcoming winter we will stand for no more break downs in the heating system," said Sherrill Sheehan of the Hockanum Tenants Association. "We don't want our children getting sick and freezing again next winter like they did this year," she said.

The tenants at Hockanum Park, a housing project of 100 units for low income families run by the East Hartford Housing Authority, had no heat twice this winter for a total of four days, members said. Mrs. Donna Russell, president of the association, said Mayor Richard Blackstone has $40,000 in unallocated first-year Community Development Block Grant funds. She thinks it should come to their project to fix the heating system.

Other complaints of the group included the "lousy plumbing," bills for repairs in units when the heat wasn't expected, lack of lights in the center parking lot which encourages vandalism to tenants' cars, and more.

Mrs. Russell introduced members of the 4-H Program which will be operating in the village's Sullivan Building for the next year or more. Elsie Woolam and Henry Fernandez will coordinate it. They opened up the Sullivan Building for the first time Wednesday and found 40 project kids waiting to join a 4-H Club.

Meeting attendance urged

Hebron — The Business and Professional Association is urging all Hebron and Rham District residents to attend two "very important" meetings next week. Tonight, the association urges that residents attend the annual Rham District budget meeting at Rham High School at 8 p.m. The Rham budget is slated for nearly a 7 percent increase for the 1978-79 school year. The total budget of $2,374,980 will be reduced to $2,239,872 after anticipated revenues are received. The association is also encouraging all residents to attend a public hearing on the proposed new middle school to be located on the Rham High School site. The hearing is scheduled for Thursday, May 4, at Rham High School at 8 p.m. The hearing will allow residents of the district to discuss their views on the proposed $3.1 million facility for junior high students. The two-story facility will have 24,300 square feet on the lower level and 31,550 on the second level. A gymnasium on the second level will extend out onto a small hillside. After the hearing a date will be set for a districtwide referendum. June 14 has been agreed upon as a tentative date. The school board has received a preliminary commitment from the State Board of Education for $5.1 million for construction, bonding and site acquisition. In order for the district to receive the money, however, the three district towns, Hebron, Andover and Marlborough would have to approve the plan in a referendum before June 30.

Vernon pay hike plans add $710,332 to budgets

VERNON — Proposed pay increases for managerial, professional and technical personnel and all other non-union people on the town's payroll, total $710,332. The town's share of increases for those working under the Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA) program is $43,021. CETA pays up to $10,000 for salary and the town has to pick up anything after that. The increases range, percentage-wise, from 3.5 percent to 10.2 percent for the first group with an average increase of six percent. Mayor Frank McCoy has gone through the salary requests and has made his recommendations to the Town Council which will meet soon to go over them. The CETA salaries range from $6,014 to $14,270. In six cases the town doesn't have to pay any additional. CETA workers are employed as switchboard operators, account clerks, assessment technicians, accountants, patrol officers, dispatchers, assistant town planners, laborers in the public works department, recreation coordinator, masons, mechanics, and equipment operators.

The proposed salaries for some of the major town positions are: Director of administration, $21,917; assessor, $18,586; chief of police, $20,685; police captain, $19,740; director of public works, $21,500; town engineer, $21,948; town clerk, $21,500; and $17,916 for each of four police lieutenants. The higher salaries under the CETA program include: Accountant, $14,270; patrol officer, $13,218; police dispatcher-clerk, $12,153; recreation coordinator, $10,600; sanitary inspector, $11,181; mason, $12,778; equipment operator, $12,841. The salary for the town planner is proposed at $18,346 but this was resigned before the town planner was proposed a few weeks ago.

School use policy A policy, proposed by the school administrators, would give preference to school functions in the use of school buildings although their use will be available to any Vernon organization. School buildings will be made available to other organizations in the following order: Parent-teacher groups; student organizations; town government groups; Board of Education employee groups; recreation department activities; and Boy and Girl Scout organizations. In the next order would be Vernon organized civic, fraternal, social and religious groups; recitals of Vernon organized classes in dancing, music, or theatrical groups and all groups using the buildings and facilities for profit. In the later group, which would be those not included under the Board of Education or the town's blanket liability insurance coverage, evidence must be furnished that they have insurance coverage meeting the town's requirements of $30,000 personal injury and property damage single liability. In addition, the Board of Education is to be named as an additional insured and a certificate of insurance will be required to be filed with the original application and contract.

Bolton scholars named

BOLTON — Susan Schiavetti, David Teller and Jeffrey Winkler were named Connecticut State Scholars for 1978. They are seniors at Bolton High School. The announcement was made by Joseph Fleming, principal. The scholars are chosen from a combined score which weighs academic performance, academic ability and potential for academic success in college. The three local students are among 3,000 scholars who were chosen from a field of 11,000 candidates. Ms. Schiavetti plans to enter Southern Connecticut State College after graduation. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rio Schiavetti, 156 Brandy Street. Teller plans to attend Massachusetts Institute of Technology. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Teller, 21 Green Hills Road. Winkler will be attending the University of Connecticut. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Gunter Winkler, consulting school psychologist, at its recent meeting.

Three variances to local zoning regulations were granted by the Zoning Board of Appeals after a recent hearing. Charles Krebs was given permission to park an additional seven automobiles on his property on Hop River Road. A house on the property is being converted to an office. Previously Krebs had been allowed to park 18 automobiles on the lot. David Arsenault of Sunset Lane was granted a side yard variance for construction of a house addition. A stipulation to the variance calls for proper drainage being provided. Alden Chick was granted a rear yard variance for construction of a house on Westridge Drive. School resignations The Board of Education accepted the resignation of Georgia Scotella, nurse's aide, and Raymond Webster, consulting school psychologist, at its recent meeting. The board also approved having the Parent Teacher Organization complete the school census for 1977-1978. Upon completion of the census, the group will be paid $200 by the school board. Board members are reviewing several policies that will be considered at their next meeting. The school calendar for 1978-1979 will be discussed at the board's May meeting.

At Coventry Lake Phosphates 'age' water

The Windham Regional Planning Agency (WRPA) has released its study on Coventry Lake (Lake Wangumbaug) and found that phosphate pollution is causing early aging of the water body. This process is known as eutrophication. The agency discussed its findings at a recent public meeting at the Hale School. Although the conference was widely publicized, only about 25 residents attended, and town officials were disappointed that lake area homeowners were not sufficiently concerned about the problem to attend the meeting. WRPA explained that "phosphorus is a major ingredient in the fertilizers used on lawns and gardens and is endangering the health of Coventry Lake. Over a period of time, phosphate runoff causes the water to become choked with weeds and floating algae, emitting foul odors and causing fish to die."

WRPA says that even if phosphorus from septic tanks was eliminated today, continued development in the watershed would result in dangerous levels of phosphorus within 25 years. "Town investment in existing or new lakefront recreational facilities would be of little value if the lake were not fit to be used to be on, or in," WRPA warns. To curb the problem, the agency suggests that nonphosphorus laundry detergents be used by residents within the critical 300 feet of the lake and that individual septic tanks be modified. "Elsewhere in the watershed, new controls to reduce erosion and sedimentation might be instituted. Densely should also be controlled through the zoning regulations to eliminate new sources of pollution, says WRPA. The town currently requires 1-acre lots in residential zones.

"Sewering in a variety of forms would be very successful in eliminating the source of phosphorus entering the lake from domestic waste," according to the study. Planning and Zoning Commission recently turned down a sewer proposal for the lake area, expressing concern that sewers might encourage development. WRPA statistics show that the lake size is 378 acres, sitting on a watershed size of 1,992 acres. The mean or average depth is 22.9 feet, and the flushing rate — or turnover of water — occurs 46 times per year. Summer color of the lake is green, transparency is 15.8 feet, and the oxygen supply is near zero in bottom waters during summer stratification.

Gym plan vote due

ANDOVER — A special Town Meeting in Andover Saturday night was attended by about 60 people. As expected the question of whether or not there will be a $602,000 gymnasium built at Andover Elementary School will go to referendum. Town Clerk Ruth Munson received more than 200 signatures petitioning the question to referendum and presented them to the Town Meeting. The referendum will be held May 10 from 6 a.m. to 8 p.m. at the school. Mrs. Munson said registered voters and persons having at least $1,000 of personal property on the October 1977 Grand List can vote. Those at the meeting approved buying about 32 acres of land on Parker Bridge Road for $44,000. The property is owned by Thornton and Myrtle Secor.

Sand and gravel on the property will be used for cover at the Andover Disposal Area. The town currently uses sand and gravel that is donated by the Ball Co. The $44,000 will be taken from the capital and non-recurring and general revenue budget. Residents at the meeting appropriated $2,069 to the current snow removal and sanding budget and $6,600 to the current highway budget. The money was received from the state to help defray the costs of the past winter storms. It was put into the town's general fund and transferred to the respective accounts.

Housing inspector named

VERNON — Maurice Miller, former chairman of the Vernon Board of Education and a retired Realtor, has been appointed as housing code inspector and rehabilitation specialist for the Town of Vernon.

Miller will work under the town's federally funded housing rehabilitation programs designed to bring Rockville's investor-owned housing units up to local housing code standards. Mayor Frank McCoy, who made the appointment, said it is expected that Miller will start taking applications later this month. The position pays $10,000 a year from funds from the $270,000 federal discretionary grant under the Community Development Program. The town has had a rehabilitation program for owner-occupied housing. This was halted during the winter months.

Grange meetings Vernon Grange 92 will meet Friday at 8 p.m. in Grange Hall, Route 30. Members will go on a mystery ride. The Junior Grange 92 will meet Saturday at 2 p.m., also at Grange Hall. The program theme will be Maybaskets and Mother's Day.

Hearing set on rev-share

HEBRON — The Board of Finance will hold a public hearing on May 7 to discuss the use of revenue sharing funds for 1978. The amount of federal revenue sharing funds available to the town beginning Oct. 1 was not available at the time of the April 10 town budget hearing.

The present estimate of revenue sharing funds available for fiscal 1978 is $49,723. This amount includes $16,756 in uncommitted funds from the period which will end September 30 and interest earned on the funds through June 30, 1977, the date of the last accounting period.

The Finance Board proposed using the revenue sharing funds for public safety budget items including fire and police protection. The specific budget items are: fire department operation equipment, new and replacement, Colchester alarm system and renovation of a fire truck for a total of $27,833 and constables and resident list trooper, a total of $22,170.

The estimated revenue sharing funds represent nearly one and one quarter mills in tax dollars. The Finance Board's recommended budget for the 1978-79 totals $2,761,119. This figure includes $618,437 for general government, $1,098,923 for the Board of Education and $1,043,759 for Hebron's share of the Rham District budget.

The board is predicting a 46-mill tax rate to finance the recommended budget although the actual rate will not be set until a special Board of Finance meeting following the annual budget meeting May 8. The Board of Finance has also heard from Richard Thivierge of Connecticut Bank and Trust Co. regarding financing the proposed firehouse and Town Office Building addition.

Thivierge said there is a possibility the needed $990,000 may be obtained through the Farmers Home Administration. He and First Selectman Aaron Reid will meet with a representative of FHA May 3 to discuss the possibility.

The Board of Finance cleared the way for a Town Meeting on the building project by passing a resolution drawn up by Day, Berry and Howard, bonding attorneys. Reid said the tentative date is May 22. The Board of Finance is recommending the town appropriate the sum of $990,000 for renovations and an addition of the Town Office Building and construction of a new firehouse and issue bonds and notes to defray the appropriation.

Applies Apply In late April and early May a large, mature apple tree will produce between 50,000 and 100,000 blossoms, in clusters of five or six. If all the blossoms were to set fruit, the tree would produce as many as 800 bushels of small apples. Usually a 2 to 5 percent of the apple blossoms set fruit that develops into maturity, yielding 15 to 30 bushels of apples.

Too windy for kites

It sounds unlikely, but the fact was that Saturday it was too windy for the kite flying contest sponsored by the Friends of the Bentley Memorial Library in Bolton but the youngsters participating received prizes anyway.
