Two-cent postage hike sought

Postal unit nixes citizen mail rates

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Postal Rate Commission today rejected President Carter's proposal of a special "citizen's rate" for mail and recommended a 2 cents increase to 15 cents for all first class letters.

It approved by the Postal Service Board of Governors, the higher mail rate could go into effect within a month.

The administration had proposed increasing the first class rate from the present 13 cents to 16 cents for business mail while retaining the 13-cent rate for personal, or "citizen's" letters.

The commission said its recommended increase in the first class mail rate and numerous changes in the rates for other classes of mail is designed to provide the U.S. Postal Service with $17.5 billion in annual revenue, including its congressional appropriations.

The 13-cent first class rate applies to the first ounce. Each additional ounce would cost another 13 cents.

The cost of postcards would increase from 8 cents to 10 cents. The commission recommended continuing existing discounts for pre-sorted bulk mail and for various classes of business reply mail.

The rate changes will increase postal revenue by $1.9 billion, the commission said. This is $57 million less than the Postal Service requested in a formal application for rate changes last summer.

"The proposed creation of a 'citizen's rate' for personal correspondence was rejected on a 3-1 vote with Vice Chairman Simeon M. Bright dissenting," the commission said.

There has been speculation that the Postal Service might be able to put new rates into effect before the end of May and at least by early June. Spokesmen have said the service is prepared to stockpile an adequate supply of 15-cent stamps within about that time.

"Second-class rates were pegged an average of 5 percent higher than those sought by the Postal Service," the commission said.

"Pre-sort discounts for second-class regular mail were extended to benefit more publications, but a proposed discount of 2 cents was reduced to 1.6 cents per piece," the commission said.

"Rates for third-class bulk mail were set lower than requested," the commission said. "Postal rates were modified to reflect costs more accurately."

While the Carter proposal seemed an attractive way to meet public protest over rising mail rates, the recent unofficial report said the commission disapproved a "two-tier" rate.

Under the Carter proposal, a company would need a 16-cent stamp to mail a bill but the individual customer could pay the bill with a 15-cent stamp.

The nation's business community, heaviest user of the mail service, opposed the idea.

However, some industry segments — the greeting card industry, for example — favored it.

Postal pay lost in mail

SANTA CRUZ, Calif. (UPI)—The city's 200 postmen were shorted a week's pay on their checks Thursday because their time cards disappeared — in the mail.

Postal authorities said the time cards are mailed to the Postal Service's San Bruno, Calif., office every week while employees are paid every two weeks.

However, a spokesman said, one week's time cards were lost in the mail.

Director asks study on developing pond

By GREG PEARSON
Herald Reporter

A member of the Manchester Board of Directors has asked for a study to determine if the Hilliard Pond property can be developed commercially.

Director Carl Zinsner has asked that the town contact the Hartford County Soil and Water Conservation District to determine if the property is developable.

The Board of Directors has been asked by the Conservation Commission to approve an application for a federal grant that would pay part of the purchase price for the 50-acre pond off West Middle Turnpike.

The proposed application for the grant has resulted in lengthy debates at recent board meetings.

One of the key points of the debate has been the expected asking price for the property, which is located on the north side of West Middle Turnpike, almost directly across from the Parkade Apartments and the Manchester Shopping Parkade.

Theresa Parla, chairwoman of the Conservation Commission, said that the property owners, Morris and Richard Bezzini, have suggested a price of $125,000 for the land.

Most board members, including Zinsner, have said that they feel the $125,000 price is too high. Mrs. Parla has noted that nearby property, developed commercially, sold at a higher price.

Zinsner has asked for the soil study to determine the possible future development of the land.

Alan Lamson, town planner, said that he would wait to be instructed by Town Manager Robert Weiss before asking for the soil study. Weiss is on vacation but is expected back to work Monday.

Zinsner said, "If the land can't be developed commercially, I would think the price would have to be negotiated downward drastically."

Rome knocks Ella, asks college funds

A confident Lewis Rome criticized the Grasso administration and proposed increased funding for education Thursday night at Manchester Community College.

Slate Sen. Rome of Bloomfield is one of three Republican candidates seeking the party's nomination for governor. He told the audience that he can win the party's nomination on the first ballot at the state convention in July.

He said when he started his run for governor he felt it was a "David and Goliath" race. Rome pictured himself as David and U.S. Rep. Ronald Sarasin, R-9th District, as Goliath.

Red Brigades attack, police hunting killer

ROME (UPI)—The Red Brigades terrorist gang shot and wounded a Christian Democratic Party official in Milan today in their first confirmed attack since they murdered Aldo Moro whose body was found Tuesday.

At the Vatican it was announced that Pope Paul VI will make the unprecedented gesture of leaving the Vatican to attend the state funeral service for Moro Saturday in the church of St. John Lateran.

Kidnappers also added to Italy's violence today in Milan, throwing wealthy ammunition maker, Baron Pietro Fiochetti, out of a car with his eyes taped shut more than six months after his abduction. Fiochetti was tossed to freedom following payment of an $805,000 ransom. He was unharmed but weak from the long ordeal.

The terrorists — three men and a woman — shot Christian Democratic official Tito Berardini five times in the legs in a Brigades-style "kneecapping" as he walked to his car to drive to work, and then immediately claimed responsibility.

"We hit Berardini, a man of the Christian Democrats, this morning. A communique will follow."

In Rome, violence continued when a bomb shattered all the windows and a door of a Ministry of Justice office. Another bomb damaged a Bologna showroom of the state-owned Alfa Romeo car company and five cars were set on fire in the streets of Rome.

Moro's bullet-riddled body was found in a car in Rome Tuesday and business executives were kneecapped in Milan Wednesday and Thursday, but neither of those subsequent attacks was claimed by the Red Brigades.

On Wednesday three men and a woman knecapped Franco Giacomazzi, a Milan executive of the Montedison industrial concern. The leftist Armed Proletarian Communist Front claimed responsibility for the shooting.

Another leftist group calling itself the Front Line Organization of Communist Combatants claimed it shot Marzio Astarita, a director of the Selection near for MHS principal

By SUSAN VAUGHN
Herald Reporter

The process for selecting a new Manchester High School principal is coming to a close and the candidate should be announced within two weeks, according to school officials.

School Superintendent James P. Kennedy said he is still interviewing one of the finalists for the position and may visit the school districts of some of the finalists. He did not give any more details on the finalists, except to say that none of them are from the Manchester school system.

Kennedy's final recommendation for principal must get the approval of the Board of Education. That action may not occur until the board's May 22 meeting.

The exact number of finalists is not known, but they have been narrowed down by a selection committee from the more than 160 applications.

In other personnel matters, over 200 applications have been received by the Board of Education for the position of MHS vice principal.

Over 300 applications have been received for the two vacant elementary school principal's posts at Churchill Park and Verplanck schools.

Those applications have been closed and the selection committee board members will begin processing work next Wednesday.

The applications for the vice principal's job will be taken for two more weeks.

The vacancies at the high school were made because of the retirements of George Emmerling, principals and Larry Leonard, vice principal.

The position of assistant superintendent for curriculum, to be vacated by Alfred B. Tychemen, will be filled soon, according to Eleanor Colman, chairwoman of the board's personnel and finance committee.

Parents continue to fight for IGE

By SUSAN VAUGHN
Herald Reporter

A persistent group of Green School parents appeared at a Board of Education budget workshop Thursday night to continue their efforts to keep at least part of the school's program.

The school is under the threat of closing this June because of severe cuts in the Board of Education budget by the town directors.

School board members and school administrators repeatedly stressed to the parents that the curriculum in the other schools to which their children might be transferred is equally as good. They also noted that there are 60 openings at Nathan Hale School next year where the Individually Guided Education (IGE) program is operating.

The parents continued to push Thursday for the preservation of the IGE program in some form.

Thomas Riggio of 114 Chestnut St., who sends his daughter to Green specifically for the IGE program, asked if there were two classrooms anywhere in the schools where the Unit B section of Green School students could be moved as a group. He said the students who began in the program two or three years ago should be able to continue in it through sixth grade.

Riggio said it would probably be only a small number who would opt for such a choice.

School Superintendent James P.

Kennedy said he did not think there were two complete classroom spaces available in any of the schools and discouraged the idea he said, but the group of students would not be melding into the whole program of a school.

However, Kennedy pledged to look at every possible alternative for the Green School students. He added that there would possibly be two spaces at Bentley School next year, but he said, using them would not bring a savings in the budget.

Moving students from Green School as a unit would not be possible in any other schools without pushing out some other students and teachers, Dr. Alfred B. Tychemen, assistant superintendent for curriculum, said.

He said the real problem would be that the teachers would be extremely upset about being transferred to other schools.

Dr. Kennedy also said it would be impractical to try to reinstate the IGE program at Buckley School in the 1979-80 school year, because it would mean disruption of teachers again.

Tychemen told the parents the school administration has to take a careful look at each school and the results of any changes on all schools.

He said, "I can't say one school is better than another. The opportunities are as great in one as the other," he urged the parents.

He said, based on his discussions with junior high teachers and others, there is no difference between the kids at Green and the other schools in what they come out knowing."

Tychemen urged the parents to take a close look at the three major receiving schools, Buckley, Bowers and Highland Park, where there is team teaching and grouping within the individual classrooms.

Judy Clough, president of the Green School PTA, told the board that the parents at Green were upset over the letters they received inviting them to meet with the principals from the three receiving schools. She said the letters indicated that the parents were not being given a choice. (See story in adjoining column)

Wilson E. Deakin, assistant superintendent for administration, said the visits were scheduled to help the parents make a judgment on the schools and to give them a choice as to which one to send their children.

The parents also suggested cuts in other areas of the budget, such as the administration. Kennedy pointed out that an increase of $51,714 in administrative costs for next year represents salary contracts for principals. He also produced statistics that showed that Manchester's per pupil cost for administration is below the state averages.

School board members Earl Odum and Nicholas asked if any of the $93,000 which is being held in escrow for the town budget could be used in next year's budget. Eleanor Colman, chairwoman of the board's personnel and finance committee, said there has been no indication that those funds would not be needed by the town to help the town's projected deficit.

The parents indicated that they will approach the Board of Directors about these funds. The projected savings in the school budget by closing Green School is $112,000.

The board made no definite decisions on the administration's recommended cuts in the school budget but are expected to continue their discussions with the PTA Council at each school and the results of a school budget study committee next Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in the board rooms.

Kennedy has recommended $375,000 in budget reductions and said he does not recommend any further arbitrary cuts in what is already a maintenance level budget.

Green School parents to meet new principals

Meetings have been scheduled for next week for parents of Green School children with principals of Highland Park, Bowers and Buckley schools.

The meetings have been scheduled as part of a commitment to the parents by the school administration as a preparation for the possible closing of Green School this June, school superintendent James P. Kennedy said.

The purpose of the meetings is to make the parents aware of the programs at the schools, Kennedy said.

Parents may attend more than one meeting, but they will be sent letters and maps indicating which school that will be for sale. There will also be a Star Wars Olympics from 10:30 a.m. to noon and 12:15 to 1:30 p.m. featuring Luke and Leia's leap to freedom and a light sword battle. There will also be baked goods, a tag sale, plants, crafts, a balloon contest, lunch, and a skateboarding fair. (Herald photo by Pinto)

State honors CPR teacher who saved life of infant

Miss Kelly Rockwell of Manchester, a Red Cross instructor in cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR) and basic life support (BLS) was honored recently by the state Legislature.

A resolution introduced by Sen. Cornelius O'Leary of the 7th District was unanimously accepted.

The resolution cited Miss Rockwell because she gave CPR to 18-month-old Jennifer Gagliardi of Windsor Locks, an infant in the class in which Miss Rockwell was teaching infant stimulation.

She was teaching this class with five other young children when Jennifer was observed not breathing. Miss Rockwell administered the life saving technique while Engine Company Five, stationed on Main St., East Hartford, rushed to the school.

Today, Jennifer is alive and well due to Miss Rockwell's efforts.

Miss Rockwell is a state teacher of mentally retarded children from birth to age 5. She teaches at the North Central Regional Center Division of the State Department of Mental Retardation.

Since Miss Rockwell first took the CPR course offered through the Red Cross in 1976, she took the CPR instructor's course and has taught CPR to teachers at the Regional Center and to parents of retarded children.

She was present at the Legislature to receive a copy of the resolution and also a standing ovation from the Senate.

Town insists on notice when water tests made

The Water Department of the Town of Manchester has asked that it receive at least four days notice before any testing is done in the system by the Insurance Services Organization.

The ISO now is reviewing the town's fire insurance rating. It has tested the town's water system during past years, but testing has increased because of this insurance review and a water distribution study also being done, Fran Taylor, office manager for the Water Department, said.

It's been an inconvenience to the public. We're not going to tolerate it anymore," Taylor said of the surprise testing.

When the Water Department does testing, it tries to advertise it and notify newspapers that the work will be done.

Taylor said that the department would seek four days' notification from ISO so similar steps can be taken when that firm's test work is done.

Health officials urge control of dog litter

The Town of Manchester's Health Department has issued a statement asking for the proper disposal of organic filth, including dog litter.

"Public health laws of the State of Connecticut forbid the disposal of organic filth on any public place in such a way that transmission of infective material may result," the department's statement said.

Transmission can occur through direct contact or through contact with dirt, water, vegetables or the fur of pets contaminated with feces. Various diseases can be spread by direct or indirect contact with such litter.

A stick and a bucket or commercially available utensils should be used to pick up dog litter, the department said. The litter then should be placed in a plastic or waterproof garbage bag and discarded into a trash receptacle for pickup.

Dog litter that is deposited unbagged into a dumpster or a trash container can create a public health problem. It provides food for vermin and insects, including flies, fleas and cockroaches.

Three get UTC scholarships

Three Manchester students were among the 45 winners of college scholarships awarded by United Technologies Corp. to children of its employees.

The local winners were Karl Golnik, Scott Antonia and Kimberly Noon. The fathers of the students are employees of UTC's Pratt & Whitney Aircraft Group.

Each scholarship provides up to $2,000 for tuition and academic fees for each of four years' full-time study leading to a bachelor's degree at an accredited college or university. The total awards to all 45 winners during the next four years could reach $360,000.

Karl Golnik, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Flynn of Woodbridge Street, is a senior at Manchester High School. He plans to attend Amherst College.

His father is a test engineer in experimental engineering at P&W.

Scott Antonia is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Antonia of Center Street. He is a senior at East Catholic High School and plans to study biological science at the University of Connecticut.

Opinion Justice needed quickly

For Aldo Moro, five times premier of Italy and a leading candidate to lead the government once again, the long ordeal at the hands of unprincipled terrorists is over. For his government, and to a lesser extent in other free countries, the real fight against terrorism has just begun.

That a man of Moro's stature could be abducted, held hostage for nearly two months and assassinated while the largest manhunt in recent history was under way has presented Italian authorities with a serious challenge. It is not enough now to find the individuals directly responsible for the murder of Moro and his five bodyguards. The roots of the so-called Red Brigades must also be found.

Who is behind the training, recruitment and supply of the terrorist bands which operate so freely in several European nations? That is the larger question raised by the Moro affair.

As for the terrorists' objective, they failed to secure the release of cohorts in prison or on trial. But they succeeded in throwing a bad scare into a nation whose democratic principles have been challenged by the modern age's version of an outlaw gang.

In the aftermath of the Moro killing, justice is what Italy needs — and quickly.

Politics Pearson

The budget-making process for the 1978-79 fiscal year has been completed by the Manchester Board of Directors. The biggest work, however, developed from a new state law.

The directors spent many nights and even one full Saturday working on the budget package for the upcoming fiscal year. The sessions proved to be quiet ones until a proposal to permit the phasing-in of revaluation developed in the state Legislature.

The proposal permitted the town to phase-in the revalued assessments on real estate properties over five years.

The suggestion drew opposition from the assessor's office and local Republicans. But the Democrats praised the proposal as an aid to homeowners and Town Manager Robert Weiss also voiced his support for it.

The tight phase-in was adopted turned into the most bitter and partisan discussion the board had had since it was seated in November.

Other budget discussions were mild in comparison. There were some debates about raises for elected officials and Comprehensive Employment Training Act employees, a new Park Department employee to maintain recreation buildings at the Nike Site and, of course, the cut in the Board of Education budget.

Stephen Penny, chairman of the board, said that next year the board will spend more time reviewing the Board of Education budget. This year, as in the past, the board cut the school budget's bottom-line figure.

Some parents said that they felt the directors should spend more time on the education budget, and Penny said that next year's review will include a meeting with school administrators.

Except for the comments on the school budget, it would be hard to criticize the directors for not spending enough time on the budget.

Some residents may feel that the final budget was too high. Others may feel that some departments, particularly education, were cut too sharply.

But, the number of evenings and hours spent by the board on the budget showed that the group is hard-working. Few of the directors missed more than a couple of meetings.

A department head who oversees one of the largest budget items felt the board did a good job.

Jay Giles, director of public works, said, "I think they were reasonable. I'm satisfied."

He said that he was pleased with the review the board did of the several public works departments.

FRIENDLY LETTER, MR. SENATOR?

Standards for Satan

By MARTHA ANGLE and ROBERT WALTERS
WASHINGTON—(NEA)—The House of Representatives has strengthened legislation governing lobbying activities, but the bill's enforcement provisions remain so weak that only the Devil himself is likely to be convicted of violating the law.

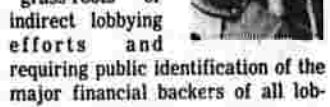

Overriding its Judiciary Committee, the House recently added several important sections to the bill, mandating disclosure of "grass-roots" indirect lobbying efforts and requiring public identification of the major financial backers of all lobbying campaigns.

But the legislation finally approved by an overwhelming 259-140 House vote includes a toothless enforcement mechanism that the Senate will have to strengthen if the law is to have any effect.

Interest groups seeking to sway votes on Capitol Hill.

The House version originally included much tougher language, but it was removed at the insistence of lobbyists. Unaccepted letters will be returned.

Letters should be signed, addressed, and a telephone number listed so that you can be called during daylight hours to confirm authorship of the letter. The Herald will not publish the letter without verification.

"I've decided to improve my parenting skills — henceforth we're going to deal in realities."

Open forum Taxpayer ripped off

To the editor:
I have read in The Herald, I feel that the taxpayers have again been ripped off from official and budgetary actions.

The Board of Directors failed to cut from the budget one additional important item — the appropriation for the salary of Town Manager Weiss. This cut in salary would have enabled him to resign gracefully.

This reduced salary appropriation would also have provided for a new manager whose primary interest would be that of the town, not that of his or her own interest.

Each year the record shows Weiss proposes an overly inflated budget, and makes the board (particularly the Democrats) look good by having them cut the budget to an amount he no doubt wanted originally.

Resultantly, the taxpayer pays more taxes each year, not for more or better services, but for more administrative expenses and "Town Hall" expansion.

I commend The Herald for a good job in keeping its readers informed about the budget and about the antics of the town manager.

How a town manager can be so inept, immature, and inconsiderate to denigrate the police by ordering a cruiser to fetch pizza, I'll never understand. I'm sure most pizza parlors would have been glad to cater, if they had been asked. Had not the officer who took Weiss' call acted correctly, certain citizens somewhere in Manchester would have been needlessly denied protection from a crime or help in an emergency.

I suggest that The Herald, with Freedom of Information Act backing, intensify its efforts to inform the citizens about town affairs: For starters — what about the raise given again to Weiss this year! What merits that? I didn't know there was a Watergate Hotel in Manchester where executive sessions could be held to keep amounts of salary increases secret. The board surely knows how to insult the intelligence of union negotiators and the townspeople.

Also, the townspeople will want to know, I'm sure, what steps must be taken to amend the Charter or Statutes on how to fire a town manager and perhaps to recall a mayor.

I feel that if drastic actions are not implemented immediately, our town will become less and less ours and more and more the federal and state governments' (from the financial aid they provide, etc.). Also, the increasingly high cost of town government will make it more difficult for retired people and average income people to live here since town taxpayers are also supporting high-costing state and federal governments.

Finally, those who can afford to live here won't because of declining police, fire, highway, water, and educational services.

Except for the comments on the school budget, it would be better than this kind of future demise.

Sincerely yours,
James E. Dougan

Took stand

To the editor:
May I express a word of thanks to the Manchester Education Association for making a clear-cut statement concerning the proposed of a dental clinic in Manchester.

To my knowledge, in over ten years of being associated with the concept of a clinic, this is the first time a group not associated with town government as a health organization has expressed an opinion on the subject.

My personal feeling is that strong community support is vitally needed in order to have this clinic become a reality.

Yours truly,

Good deeds

To the editor:
I would like to again thank the South Windsor Rotary for the scholarship which I have received for four years. With your help it has made it easier for me to achieve my goals and be more active in school affairs.

Upon graduation on May 21, I will be commissioned a second lieutenant in the U.S. Air Force.

I'm sure every student who has received a scholarship from the South Windsor Rotary feels as I do. I hope you never stop helping students like myself and continue with your thousands of good deeds that you do every day.

That elaborate conciliation process is identical to the weak provisions of the federal campaign financing law, under which only about 15 cases have been referred to the Justice Department by the Federal Election Commission during the past three years.

The dictionary defines "willful" as "intentional" or "deliberate." But the House reports insists that for purposes of enforcing the lobbying legislation, it "refers to an act done with a bad purpose, without justifiable excuse, stubbornly, obstinately, perversely and with an evil intent."

Is there anyone except Satan who could be successfully prosecuted under those extremely rigid standards?

Almanac

By United Press International
Today is Friday, May 12, the 132nd day of 1978 with 233 to follow.

The moon is approaching its first quarter.

The morning star is Mercury.

The evening stars are Mars, Venus, Jupiter and Saturn.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Taurus.

Florence Nightingale, the British nurse who founded modern nursing, was born May 12, 1820.

On this day in history:
In 1922, the magazine "Radio Broadcast" commented: "... The rate of increase in the number who spend at least part of an evening listening to radio is almost incomprehensible."
In 1937, George IV was crowned king of England, succeeding his brother Edward, who abdicated to marry American divorcee Wallis Warfield Simpson.
In 1949, Soviet authorities announced the end of a land blockade of Berlin that had lasted 328 days and whose effects had been neutralized by the famed "Berlin Airlift."
In 1975, the White House disclosed that a Cambodian gunboat had fired upon the U.S. cargo ship "Mayaguez," in the Gulf of Siam and forced it into a Cambodian port.

A thought for the day: American clergyman Fletcher Dole said, "God will be the mightiest practical force in the universe."

Stevens is a hard worker, harder campaigner

By GREG PEARSON
Herald Reporter

The image of a hard worker and an even harder campaigner is one that State Rep. Gerald Stevens likes. It's also one that he thinks may lead him to the governor's chair.

He is concentrating on personal contact with all of the delegates to the party's state convention. He's trying to visit with each of the 998 delegates before July 22, the first day of that event.

Manchester's delegation to the convention, for instance, generally has been regarded as divided between the GOP's other two gubernatorial candidates, U.S. Rep. Ronald Sarasin and State Sen. Lewis

Rome.

Stevens feels that he can change this with his one-on-one approach to campaigning.

"Most Republican delegates are very uncommitted. To me, that's encouraging," he said.

On a recent Saturday, Stevens and his wife left home at 8 a.m. After stops in several towns, including Manchester, East Hartford, Uncasville and Greenwich, they returned at 1 a.m. the next morning.

"That's the kind of schedule we're on," he said.

Stevens said that two months ago Sarasin was considered an easy winner of the party's nomination for governor. That situation has changed, helped in large part by an upset Stevens win in a Fairfield primary.

Stevens called the Fairfield victory "really the turning point" of the campaign.

"Before that it was generally accepted that Ron would win. It's a very open race now," he said.

"What has happened in the Republican Party in the last 60 days shows that anything can happen in the next 60 days," he said.

Stevens, who is from Milford and represents the 19th Assembly District, is House minority leader, a position he has held since 1975. He is serving his sixth consecutive term in the House.

This background, along with his desire to be governor and his appetite for hard work, are keys to his campaign, he said.

He considers a knowledge of state issues a key item in selecting a candidate for governor. In the past, he has said that he will debate anyone at any time on state-related matters.

"I don't think the training ground for governor is Washington. It's Hartford," he said.

It is important for the Republicans to run a candidate that can argue the record of incumbent Democratic Gov. Ella Grasso, Stevens said.

He said that Mrs. Grasso has postponed implementation of steps for equal school funding until after the election.

He also criticized the state budget, which he said includes a 14 percent increase in spending with only a seven percent increase in revenues.

"It's an attempt to spend a lot in an election year without regard to the future," Stevens said.

He said that Mrs. Grasso often avoids directly answering questions on tough issues.

"That's her style and that's her weakness," he said. "What the Republicans have to do is have a candidate who can exploit that. I think of the three, I'm the only one who can do it."

Rep. Gerald Stevens

The White House goes modern

By HELEN THOMAS
WASHINGTON (UPI)—The White House is gradually moving into the computer age. The man in charge is Hugh Carter Jr., special assistant to the president for administration, and a close relative of President Carter from Plains, Ga.

"I was kind of surprised at the lack of computers here," said the president's chief of staff, James Baker. "I thought it was funny," he said. "Then I got so used to it that it was funny. But now I realize I'm stuck with it for the rest of my life and it doesn't really bother me anymore. It was inevitable considering what my job was."

The president wanted to make the White House an efficient, well-run, well-managed operation," Carter said. "I think everyone has worked together," he added, saying he had encountered little resistance in his role as efficiency expert.

The present White House staff numbers 331, Carter said, compared to 478 in January 1977 when President Carter took over.

However, the White House presently has some 13 aides detailed from Cabinet departments to work on special projects and there are many others available at the president's beck and call in the executive branch.

The White House budget in 1977 was $17,162,000 million, Carter said, "and we spent $16,657,000 million."

Rent is paid to the General Services Administration, the federal housekeeping agency, for the West Wing and the East Wing of the White House where official business is conducted. The National Park Service runs the executive mansion and keeps the gardens of the 16-acre spread.

Besides the first family, the only top assistant who has a White House limousine constantly at his disposal is National Security Affairs adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski, who has portable services and adds, "I've been lucky to stay out of trouble."

Carter's father, Hugh Carter Sr., the president's first cousin, has written a book, "Cousin Beedie and Cousin Hot," about the Carter family in Plains, Mo., which has caused an uproar among some members of the family.

"I haven't read it," Carter says. "I'm staying on the sidelines. Dad probably left me out of it."

At present, Carter is working on a reassignment of office space in the West Wing and he may carry a few other nicknames from those who are bound to be upset by contemplated moves. In the White House, proximity to the Oval Office is the name of the game.

"I've enjoyed it a lot," says Carter, speaking of his job.

Nursery School now registering

Spring is a busy time for the children of the YWCA Nursery School in Manchester, as this is the time for longer walks and trips. Recently the youngsters walked to a nearby firehouse and were rewarded with a chance to sit in the fire engine and a fireman's helmet was presented to each one of them. A tour of a grocery store included many visiting the back rooms where the groceries are prepared for display. Culminating the reading of Thornton Burgess' stories, will be a trip to the animal barns at the University of Connecticut and an introduction to the source of the milk, cream and eggs. This is the time of year for baby animals at the farm and the children relate to these particularly being closer in size. Dessert at the dairy tops off this day.

College notes

Linda J. Donnell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Donnell of 32 Gail Drive, Ellington, has been elected to Phi Beta Kappa at Colby College, Waterville, Maine. The senior economics and administrative science major is recipient of the James J. Harris Prize for outstanding achievement in the study of administrative science and of a Baker Scholarship awarded to students showing promise in a business career. A graduate of Ellington High School, she is head resident of her dormitory's staff and a student research assistant in the economics department. Treasurer of her sorority, Sigma Kappa, she is active in Waterville's Big Brother-Big Sister program. Miss Donnell plans employment in market analysis or marketing management.

Foot Health Week

The accelerating national craze for skateboarding is producing many sore feet. Area podiatrists, now observing Foot Health Week, say the cuts, sprains, and broken bones that are a part of this sport can be avoided. "A person has only two contacts with the skateboard while speeding along the sidewalk — two feet," said Dr. Leo Velas, president of the Hartford County Podiatry Society. "As a result, it is important for the feet to have as much traction as possible while on the skateboard."

Rubber soled tennis shoes seem to be the best for this. The Hartford-area podiatrist stressed that dress shoes with slick soles make for an unstable situation. The skateboard can go in one direction and the rider in another. "Never operate a skateboard barefooted," he added. The unbraced foot can suffer cuts and bruises in case of a fall, a common happening in skateboarding. Adults, he observed, should approach skateboarding with respect.

Lettuce prices checked

By United Press International The age-old law of supply and demand apparently has checked the inflated cost of lettuce before it could reach the proportions of the sugar, beef and coffee price escalations of recent years. A poor crop and late harvest hampered by California's heavy winter rains cut the nation's supply of iceberg lettuce, driving prices up to a peak of $1.49 a head in Buffalo, N.Y. last week.

But a UPI survey Tuesday showed price-wary shoppers cut consumption and harvests in Florida and Arizona have increased the supply, pushing the prices down once again. Prices this week declined to an average 75 cents a head or less. Some farmers predicted some lettuce shortages this summer because of continued bad weather in California. But none said the prices would escalate to the levels of the last 10 days.

Europe in space market

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Western Europe is developing its own rocket, Ariane, to challenge America's space shuttle rocket plans for some of Free World's satellite launching business. The decision of the governing council of the European Space Agency last month to proceed with the construction of the first five operational Arianes means Western Europe will for the first time have an alternative to American rockets to place spacecraft in stationary orbits. Not only will the Ariane be used to launch European satellites, but it is being offered to other nations and organizations with satellites to launch. And Ariane is being priced to compete directly with the space shuttle. One potential customer for both the space shuttle and the Ariane is the International Telecommunications Satellite Consortium which will have three Intelsat 5 satellites that could be launched by either in the early 1980s. ESA officials make it clear they will make Ariane's cost competitive with the price charged by the U.S. space agency for a space shuttle launch. The shuttle and Ariane are products of opposite philosophies. The National Aeronautics and Space Administration is developing the shuttle to replace the throw-away type rockets that the Ariane represents. The shuttle is a large reusable machine using advanced technology to carry men and large payloads into low Earth orbits and then return for more trips. The conventional, three-stage Ariane was developed specifically to propel unmanned spacecraft into 22,300 mile high stationary orbits. Neither the shuttle nor the Ariane has yet flown in space. The first Ariane test launch is scheduled for June 1979 from the launch base at Kourou, French Guiana. The shuttle is expected to make its launch into space from Cape Canaveral, Fla., about the same time. The South American launch site for the Ariane is ideal for launching a satellite into the type of orbit above the equator that is required for satellites designed to operate from 22,300 mile high stationary orbits. At such an altitude, a satellite's orbital speed matches Earth's rotation and the craft remains over one spot. Spacecraft launched into such an orbit from Florida require more rocket energy to twist their paths so they will parallel the equator.

Science winners varied

Winning entries at Iling Junior High School's annual science fair held this week included a wide range of subjects including animal life, health and earth science. There were about 150 entries. Lutheran unity proposed

By DAVID E. ANDERSON UPI Religion Writer The fledgling Association of Evangelical Lutheran Churches, the newest and tiniest Lutheran body in the United States, has issued an audacious and ambitious call for Lutheran unity and an end to competition between the major Lutheran bodies. Itself the product of disunity and schism within the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod, the AELC's "A Call for Lutheran Unity" invites other major Lutheran groups to make a commitment to "organic union" on an regional or national level and then work out a plan of implementation.

Corporate office leasing not easy

NEW YORK (UPI) — Any firm renting large office space knows it needs legal and architectural advice, but it needs a lot more than that, says Kenneth D. Laub, real estate broker and consultant.

'New quarters — ideally located, economical and efficient — will not be found by chance... You will find yourself negotiating with landlords, and brokers who act as renting agents for landlords, who are skilled in the negotiation of a leasing transaction.

'Not insisting on a clear formula for division of operating expenses... Carelessness about this can make the real annual rent 75 cents to a $1 a square foot higher than the tenant expects.'

Panel vote rolls back tax hikes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Reacting to public pressure in an election year, the House Ways and Means Committee has voted 19-18 to roll back about half the Social Security tax increases voted last year for 1979 and 1980.

'The deciding vote on the motion offered by Rep. Sam Gibbons, D-Fla., was committee Chairman Al Ullman, D-Ore., who broke an 18-18 tie despite his opposition to any change in the major tax increases enacted by Congress in 1977.'

Under the Gibbons proposal the Social Security tax rate, now 6.05 percent in 1979, would be rolled back to the 1977 level of 5.8 percent.

WILLEMSTAD, Curacao (UPI) — Passengers and crew members of a seized Colombian airliner ended a seven-hour ordeal by pummeling one hijacker into submission and alerting police to another who was trying to escape in the melee.

Jet sale approval expected

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Democratic leader Robert Byrd expects approval Monday at the end of a short debate on President Carter's offer to sell warplanes to Saudi Arabia, Egypt and Israel.

The panel then voted unanimously to send the issue to the full Senate without a committee recommendation.

If the Senate rejects the move to disapprove the sales, House action would be unnecessary and the sale would go into effect.

General revenue funds in 1979 and $3.5 billion in 1980, a total of $14.5 billion.

Byrd said in an interview he believes the congressional effort to veto the nearly $5 billion sale of jet planes by a vote of disapproval in either House defeated, and the sale would go through.

The committee Thursday split down the middle, 8-8, on a resolution to reject the deal.

The panel then voted unanimously to send the issue to the full Senate without a committee recommendation.

But, passengers told reporters, two policemen apparently were wounded by their own gunfire.

Curacao skyjack try ends without injury

WILLEMSTAD, Curacao (UPI) — Passengers and crew members of a seized Colombian airliner ended a seven-hour ordeal by pummeling one hijacker into submission and alerting police to another who was trying to escape in the melee.

The incident began when Castillo Perez, described as between 25 and 30 years old and a hand grenade strapped to his waist, seized the Colombian Avianca jetliner as it prepared to land at Bogota on a Colombian domestic flight from Santa Marta, authorities said.

Before it was over, the hijackers forced the plane to Cali, Colombia, the Dutch islands of Aruba and Curacao, wounded a flight engineer, and tried to negotiate their way to Cuba.

Costello quits school position

By MAL BARLOW
Herald Reporter

EAST HARTFORD — Paul J. Costello, director of finance for the Board of Education, has given Superintendent Eugene Diggs his resignation.

His letter reads, "The efficient performance of my functions requires close interaction with the superintendent. Our relationship has badly eroded. Under the terms of my contract, I am resigning effective June 12."

Dr. Diggs said he has accepted the resignation. He said his working relationship with Costello has "slowly eroded, requiring a change."

Dr. Diggs denied the resignation had anything to do with the current tough arguments with Mayor Richard Blackstone and the Town Council over the school budget.

He also denied alleged wrongdoing by Costello had anything to do with the resignation.

Mayor Richard Blackstone meets in his office with members of the Hockanum Village Tenants Association to discuss their problems with repairs. The members are, left to right, Agnes Woodworth, Karen Santana (an employee of the Connecticut Citizen Action Group), Elizabeth Jalbert (closest to camera), Donna Russell, Laura Oney and Sherrill Sheehan. The meeting also approved the transfer of $1,000 and $5,500 from cash surplus to the general highway fund and road repair budgets, respectively.

Also approved was the transfer of $500 from cash surplus to the advertising budget of the Board of Selectmen.

May 15 was set for the date of the annual budget meeting at 8 p.m. in Community Hall.

Tenants ask mayor for help

By MAL BARLOW
Herald Reporter

EAST HARTFORD — Frustrated women of the Hockanum Village housing project of Brewer Street met with Mayor Richard Blackstone Wednesday afternoon to ask him for money and support.

Donna Russell, president of the Hockanum Village Tenants Association, led the group of six women. She told the mayor of some of their problems.

All 100 units in the low income project went without heat several times during the winter due to burst pipes. The East Hartford Housing Authority which oversees the complex was not able to fix the heat for four days one time.

Windows don't work and don't keep out the cold. The promised new siding to have been installed six months ago is still not up.

Parking lot potholes damage their cars. Vandals run loose in the village.

The women said they cannot arrange meetings with Nicholas Giannalis, executive director of the Housing Authority. They asked to attend authority meetings and were told not to come, said Laura Oney of the association.

Mayor Blackstone repeated what he has told Hockanum Village tenants before.

"I have no jurisdiction whatsoever over Hockanum Village," he said.

He explained that the only control over the 875 units of Housing Authority housing in town is the Town Council's power to appoint members to the five-member Housing Authority board. The board is a creature of the state, he said.

Mrs. Agnes Woodworth reminded him he stepped into the Housing Authority's problems three years ago to begin the investigation of the embezzlement scandal then. He said he did that using the town's police powers. Repairing buildings is different and beyond his powers.

Mrs. Oney then asked him if he had any plans yet for spending about $40,000 he expects to have from the first year's Federal Community Development Act (CDA) grant. The grant totals $40,000 but $40,000 of it is already designated for projects. The mayor may have $40,000 he can spend on something else.

"I still don't have any money (from the CDA grant)," he told her.

"Would you seriously consider spending it on repairs for Hockanum Village?" she said.

"Yes, I will consider your needs," Mrs. Oney then asked him to talk to Giannalis about listening to them.

The mayor said he would. But he advised them to work with Giannalis and with his bosses, the members of the Housing Authority board. He told them the law on public meetings requires that they be allowed to every board meeting.

Giannalis said Thursday, "We have never denied admission to anyone yet."

He admitted the Housing Authority meetings are held behind locked doors at the Miller Garden elderly complex off Main Street. But the locks are for the protection of the residents of the building. He opens the door to everyone who wants to attend the meetings and he will open them for tenants of the village, he said.

Anniversary celebration
EAST HARTFORD — The Exchange Club of East Hartford will celebrate its 50th anniversary Saturday with a dinner and dance. Cocktails will be served at 6:30 p.m. The event is at the Ramada Inn, scene of most of the club's meetings through the year. Music is by the Landerman Orchestra. State and local officials are expected to help celebrate.

On the celebration committee are Al Hajej, Paul Mayras, Marty Burnham, John Fiori, Tom Baris and Bill Manierre.

Marella is Spinks
EAST HARTFORD — State Senate Majority Leader Joseph Lieberman said Thursday Marcella Fabey, upset victor in the May 2 Democratic State Senate primary in East Hartford, is the Leon Spinks of Connecticut politics.

He was addressing a group of Manchester-East Hartford Democrats at a reception hosted by State Sen. David Barry of the Fourth District. Lieberman predicted Mrs. Fabey will win big in the November election.

Lieberman is seeking a position on the Democratic state ticket with whoever is to be the gubernatorial candidate. He called Mrs. Fabey a "true humanist."

Educator isn't sure council was swayed

EAST HARTFORD — School Superintendent Eugene Diggs said today he could not tell if the Town Council Wednesday night was swayed by the arguments of his staff and the Board of Education to cut their proposed $21 million school budget.

"We had a courteous reception," he said.

"But I had an image in my mind of someone hearing on the whole town budget hearing on the Ozarks. The man listens to you and smiles and smiles. But all the time he is honing his knife on his spinning (sharpening) stone."

He said he thought his staff defended the budget well. He thought all council questions were answered.

Mayor Richard Blackstone has proposed cutting $13,000 from the board budget. Although there were some pointed questions from the council members Wednesday, none of them have publicly said how they feel.

The council will hold a public hearing on the whole town budget Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at the Town Hall. It will set the tax rate and the budget Tuesday, May 23, at 8 p.m.

East Hartford police report

Kenneth O'Kane of 65 Hamilton Road, East Hartford, was arrested Thursday after 10 p.m. on School Street and charged with conspiracy to commit second-degree larceny and third-degree larceny.

Police said officers approached a stolen car on School Street and three people ran from it. They apprehended O'Kane but the other two are still at large, police said. The charges stem from the theft of the car and the theft earlier in the evening of several cases of beer from a boxcar at the Hartford Distributors Inc., 570 Tollard St., police said.

O'Kane was held overnight on $500 surety bond for appearance today in Common Pleas Court 12 in East Hartford.

William J. Horan, 53, of 137 High St., East Hartford, was arrested on a warrant Thursday charging him with risk of injury to a minor, sexual assault, and threatening. The charges stem from an ongoing series of incidents beginning in August of 1974 with a girl who was then 14, police said.

Horan appeared in court Thursday where bond was set at $7,500. He posted the bond and is scheduled to appear in court again June 5.

Adviser says civilian should head troopers

NEW BRITAIN (UPI) — The head of the State Police Citizens' Advisory Committee says state police should be under the control of a civilian commissioner, not a state police officer.

Paul McQuillan, chairman of the group, stopped short of calling Thursday for the resignation of state police Commissioner Edward Leonard.

Leonard "certainly has a communications problem, but I would not care to comment at this time on his leadership," McQuillan said.

The department, he said, is "unwilling or unable to accept criticism."

McQuillan acted as Gov. Ella Grasso's personal investigator in the Peter Reilly-Barbara Gibbons murder case. He declined to say whether his report to Mrs. Grasso recommended the firing of Leonard.

He did say, "I've always felt there should be a civilian head to that department."

Reilly was convicted of manslaughter in the 1973 killing of his mother, Barbara Gibbons, 51, and won a new trial in March 1976. The charges against him were dropped in November 1976 after the state revealed previously undisclosed evidence placing Reilly away from the scene of the crime.

McQuillan characterized the Reilly case as one in which state police "intimidated the state's attorney, embarrassed a grand jury, and attempted to vindicate the state police officer."

In criticizing state police, McQuillan also pointed to the murder trial of Andrew John Carr, accused of the 1976 bludgeoning death of Dawn Peterson, 13. Carr, a high school athlete, was found innocent.

Leonard revealed state police interrogated Carr without telling him he was a suspect or informing him of his constitutional rights.

East Hartford women aim for a better town

By SHEILA TULLER
Herald Correspondent

EAST HARTFORD — The members of East Hartford's Junior Women's Club gathered at Williams's Steak House Tuesday night to install officers for the coming year and to celebrate their sixth year of activity.

Sandra Williams, the newly installed president, said one purpose of the club is to better the community.

"Because of the efforts of the Juniors, East Hartford is a richer community. Although the club has donated over $7,000 to aid a variety of projects, the town is richer because of the hours of service these women have given their town and townspeople," she said.

Because the club's activities are so varied and numerous, it can be said, "The Junior Women's Club has helped everyone in our town," she said.

They've sponsored blood pressure clinics daily, they donate to the screening clinic and work weekly at the town's well child clinic.

Besides delivering meals-on-wheels daily, they donate Thanksgiving baskets to the needy and bake Christmas cookies (being very careful to follow special diet recipes) for convalescing home patients. The Juniors also have a potluck supper for the patients of the Burnside Convalescent Home every year.

There is a special spot in every Junior's heart for the retarded and because of their desire to help them, the club sponsors an annual dance for the retarded. The club members also take time during the Christmas season to teach holiday crafts to the source of the drive.

Two organizations joined the Juniors in circulating the petitions to the Coventry Business Association and the Coventry Taxpayers' Association. Response to the drive was mixed in both parties.

The Democratic Town Committee endorsed the budget but did not take a stand on the referendum itself. Albert Carilli, a former town councillor, opposed the endorsement.

Democratic Town Councilman Richard Givrey said that while he generally favored the idea of a referendum, he was opposed to the way that the petition drive was being handled. He accused the Republicans of being politically motivated and of using concerned residents who were opposed to a tax increase. Givrey supports the present budget.

Democratic Town Chairman Ruth Bennett called upon her group to support the budget. And former chairman Richard Cromie said a Democratic council was elected in 1974 because it promised programs that the citizens were willing to pay for.

The Republicans, who took no formal position either for or against the budget, were also divided on the petition drive. Town Councilman Robert Koonitz felt a referendum would give a greater number of townspeople a chance to vote. But her colleague Douglas Whipple thought a referendum was unnecessary and that the budget should be acted on in the traditional way: at the town meeting.

Some Republicans felt that the coordinating committee had acted too hastily, without first polling its own members and elected officials. But town committee leaders, such as vice chairman Roberta Folami, said the budget referendum "was an idea whose time has come."

Those who circulated petitions said they encountered little opposition in their campaign and that some residents were grateful that they could cast their vote at the polls instead of sitting through a lengthy meeting.

If the petition signatures meet legal requirements, tonight's meeting will set a date for the referendum. It is expected to be stated concurrently with May 25 referendum on two other issues: a charter revision plan and a proposal for town purchase of Salisbury Army land on the southern end of Coventry Lake.

If the budget is defeated at a referendum, it will go back to the council for revision and then be resubmitted to another town meeting. Supporters of the present budget say the increase is modest and has been held down below the general rate of inflation. Opponents say cuts can be made to hold or lower the tax rate and that government and other revenues conceal an actual increase of 8 percent for education and 4 percent for town government.

Hartford High School or Penner High School senior through Dollars For Scholars.

In their short history, the Juniors have lent a helping hand to many other local organizations.

Saturday, they will work at the food booth at the Art League Festival. Later in the month, members will serve as hostesses for the Historical Society's House Tour.

When the Bicentennial Commission sponsored a house and garden tour in 1976, the Juniors made string art American flags to designate the tour houses.

Many of the club members meet monthly to learn and make crafts for their pleasure and to sell at the club's Arts and Crafts Fair.

A successful fair last December inspired club members to continue crafts nights to prepare for holiday crafts fair again this year.

The Juniors enjoy many social activities during their busy year, too. Besides their annual dances, the club recently sponsored a bus trip to New York City, has an eight-team bowling league, paddle tennis group, tennis and a gourmet club.

So many of East Hartford's Juniors and their husbands attended the federation dance this year, they hired a caterer to get them.

Mrs. William said, "East Hartford was the best represented club there!"

She added, "We also had many entertaining programs at our meetings." She mentioned that a hypnotist, an herb expert, and an exercise demonstrator gave programs for the club this year.

The Juniors believe in keeping informed on many topics so they invited a skin care expert and a member of the town's youth services team to speak at meetings.

"One of our favorite programs," she said, "was a slide presentation on East Hartford given by Ray Johnson of the Historical Society."

The club newsletter, The Direct Line, keeps members informed of club activities and happenings around town. There's also a column introducing new members to the group, the newsletter, tips among Junior Women's Clubs last year, won Kniters in the group send handmade mittens and scarfs to the residents of Mansfield Training Center.

With the help of their husbands, another group of Juniors supervised the swimming events at the Junior Olympics last summer. The club plans to help the Special Olympic committee again this year in some way.

Her work with the retarded has earned the club a special award from the National Association of Retarded People.

Two major projects of the club during their six years were directed by the Federation of Junior Woman's Clubs. The Lupus Foundation and the Juvenile Diabetes Fund were supported by all Junior Women's Clubs in the state.

a third place certificate from the federation this year.

Next fall the club hopes to continue many of the same activities, do a market research project, and hold a special fund raiser for Dollars For Scholars.

Their latest fund raiser, a club cookbook, recently came off the presses (the club-owned mimeo) and will be for sale at the Art League festival. The book features an extensive assortment of club members' favorite recipes.

"The cookbook, From Our Kitchens to Yours, with drawings by a club member, will probably be part of the club's display of projects and activities shown every year at Raymond Library Junior Woman's Club Week."

Mrs. Williams hopes such displays will interest more young women to join the club. She said, "There's something for everyone to enjoy, and the nice part is you can do as much or as little as you want."

Although members are encouraged to attend all meetings and to support ways and means projects, many members help by baking or babysitting for sister members who are involved in an outside activity.

The membership committee will be recruiting for new members during the summer. Membership is open to residents between 18 and 60. The new members will be welcomed at the club's annual August tea.

Presently the club has 55 members. Six of these were present in September 1972 when the club was formed. According to Mrs. Williams, the club has 57 charter members. Even though the club takes new members every year, membership has stayed around this number as members move on to the local woman's club or away from town.

"If more people are aware of us, maybe more will participate," the new president hopes.

New releases to serve with Mrs. Williams are Betty Imzora, vice president; Betsy Cole, treasurer; Glenna Toppen, recording secretary; and Gayle Battersey, corresponding secretary.

Calendar adopted by board

BOLTON — The Board of Education adopted a calendar for the 1978-1979 school year that eliminates the February recess and, with no snow days, closes school on June 11.

At the meeting, Thursday board members discussed two proposed calendars.

Schools will open on Sept. 6. Schools will be closed Oct. 9, Columbus Day; Nov. 23 and 24, Thanksgiving recess; Dec. 25 through Jan. 1, Christmas and New Year's Day; Jan. 15, Martin Luther King Day; Feb. 12, Lincoln's Birthday; Feb. 19, Washington's Birthday; Feb. 18 through 19, long weekend; April 13, Good Friday; April 9 through 13, Spring recess and May 28, Memorial Day.

Board members agreed snow days will be made up as follows: June 12, 13, 14; April 8, 10; and June 15, 18.

20, 21 and 22. Board members agreed it would be unusual to have more than ten snow days.

At the suggestion of Gil Boissoneau, board members discussed the possibility of having Grade students play junior varsity baseball.

School Supt. Raymond Allen said he saw a contractual problem with the Bolton Education Association because the position was originally advertised for boys in Grades 9 through 12. Allen said the teacher's association would have the right to complain if Grade 8 boys were included in the program.

Allen said there is now a whole new school board with a different view of the schools sports program. He said the administration should review the entire program and report to the board what the current program consists of.

Boissoneau felt the Grade 8 boys could help the junior varsity program as well as gain much needed experience.

Physical education teacher, thought the idea was good but questioned the problems with transportation and supervision and the teacher's contract.

Allen was directed by the board to review the possibility of including the Grade 8 students on the junior varsity team for the remainder of the year keeping in mind contractual obligations, eligibility, insurance and transportation.

The junior varsity baseball program runs through the end of May.

Spaghetti dinner — HERBON — Junior Class of Rham High School is sponsoring a spaghetti dinner May 12 from 6 to 8 p.m. in the school cafeteria. The meal includes an appetizer, spaghetti and meatballs, salad, Italian bread, homemade desserts and beverages. Tickets will be available at the door and proceeds will benefit the class of 1979.

Radio donated — HERBON — The Heron Lions Club has donated $150 to the Volunteer Fire Department for installation of a radio in the firefighters' newly acquired brush truck. Local Lions will journey to Grossinger's Resort in New York this Friday for the annual Connecticut State Lions Convention.

Safety precaution — VERNON — The school system, on request of the Rockville General Hospital, has distributed emergency health forms in all of the schools.

The forms are specifically for students under age 18. The forms call for an extension on the deadline. The odds of a golfer making a hole-in-one are about 10 times better than the chances of a bowler rolling a perfect game. The odds against the golfer are 30,000 to 1 while the odds against the bowler are 300,000 to 1.

Extension request denied — BOLTON — A request for an extension on the teacher's salary schedule has been denied by a three man arbitration panel.

The Board of Education and the Bolton Education Association were directed to meet and develop a salary schedule agreeable to both by May 10. The directive was given on April 11. The two groups have met once since then.

Louis Cloutier, chairman of the school board's negotiating team, said the arbitration panel would be asked for an extension on the deadline. Thursday night Cloutier said he did not know whether or not the extension had been granted.

Patricia Bankel, president of the teacher's association, said Thursday, "According to information from my representative, the extension asked for has been denied. Mrs. Bankel said the teacher's association post arbitration briefs will be submitted to the arbitration panel by May 11 as required."

The two groups have been unable to agree on a contract since October. The disagreements are in the areas of salary, fringe benefits and evaluation safeguards. The current contract expires June 30.

Boissoneau felt the Grade 8 boys could help the junior varsity program as well as gain much needed experience.

Vandalism and discipline: school board meeting topics

VERNON — The Board of Education will discuss school discipline and vandalism problems in the schools at a special meeting Monday at 7:30 p.m. at the Middle School.

Brian McCartney, recently appointed principal of Rockville High School, will talk about the two problems as they apply to that school. Andrew Maneggia, principal of the Middle School, will make the report for that level and David Engelson, principal of Lake Street School and Joseph Novak, principal of the Center Road School, will report for the elementary schools.

Following the reports the board members will ask questions and then the public will be invited to ask questions and make comments.

Candidates endorsed — The Democratic Town Committee, Thursday night, endorsed Leonard Jacobs and John Drost to fill vacancies on the Town Council.

Drost was nominated to replace James Filkoff. Filkoff had been filling a vacancy created by the resignation of Councilman Peter Humphrey. He was then elected to a full term last November.

Both men were endorsed unanimously by the Town Committee. It is routine to have the endorsed candidates approved by the council. The council has a 7-5 Republican majority.

Furbish has already served one full term and was re-elected last November.

Former Democratic Mayor Thomas Benoit had been considered to fill one of the slots but he later said he wouldn't seek appointment. He said he was more interested in running for the state senate should present Senator Robert Houley not run.

The Rockville Area Chamber of Commerce will have its annual outing in the form of a family picnic June 4 at Camp Newhous on Bolton Lake in Vernon.

There will be special prices for children age 5 to 10 and children five and under will be admitted free.

The event will start at noon and run until 6 p.m. A buffet lunch of hot dogs, hamburgers, salads and such will be served at noon and there will be a chicken barbeque starting at 4 p.m.

There will be planned activities for adults and the children along with musical entertainment.

The chamber will have its annual golf tournament June 14 at Ellington Ridge Country Club. The event is open to all members and their guests. For information about the tournament call the chamber office or Harvey Desruessaux, 871-2700 or Brian Fluckiger, 872-2547. Reservations must be made no later than June 6.

Students excluded — Only 26 students attended a special immunization clinic Thursday at Rockville High School. This left 26 students who are excluded from attending school for not having had measles inoculations.

The clinic Thursday was the fourth conducted by the school system. School officials said they will not conduct another clinic. All have been free of charge.

The measles shots have been mandated by the state and effective early next year the state will add to its list of requirements for school attendance inoculation for mumps and diphtheria, tetanus, and whooping cough (pertussis) or DPT.

All of the 42 students are at Rockville High School. On May 1 the number was up to 250 and those students were excluded from school.

Students may only be excused from school for medical reasons, from their family doctor.

The matter of the 42 students has been turned over to the town attorney for a ruling.

Testimonial dinner — Dr. Raymond E. Ramsdell, who is retiring as superintendent of schools at the end of this school year, will be honored at a testimonial dinner June 15 at 7:30 p.m. at the Colony in Talcottville.

For tickets and reservations call Florence Jarvis in the school system's central administration office, 872-7361.

Reservations must be made by June 3. Individual table arrangements may be requested when calling for reservations.

Petition drive may delay vote on Coventry budget

By CLAIRE CONNELLY

COVENTRY — The annual town budget meeting will take place tonight at the high school gym at 7:30, overshadowed by the greatest storm of controversy in recent memory. A petition drive sparked by the Republican Town Committee may force the budget's fate to be decided by a referendum later this month instead of at tonight's meeting.

Petition leaders, claiming more than 500 signatures, filed with the Town Clerk's Office yesterday afternoon. Only 200 validated signatures of registered town voters or taxpayers are needed to call a referendum. Town Council members were uncertain whether the budget may even be legally discussed tonight and were awaiting word from Town Attorney Abbot Schwabel.

The total $4,310,171 budget package would require a two-mill increase in the tax rate from the present 70 mills. Of the total, $3,040,438 is earmarked for the Board of Education, $1,318,688 for general town government, $285,265 for debt service, and $167,780 for the capital budget which would come from revenue-sharing funds.

Earlier this month, the Republican Town Committee authorized its coordinating committee to look into the feasibility of a referendum, after the suggestion was raised by one of its members, attorney David Hange. After the petitions were drawn up, town committee officers issued a statement identifying their group as the source of the drive.

Two organizations joined the Republicans in circulating the petitions: the Coventry Business Association and the Coventry Taxpayers' Association. Response to the drive was mixed in both parties.

The Democratic Town Committee endorsed the budget but did not take a stand on the referendum itself. Albert Carilli, a former town councillor, opposed the endorsement.

Democratic Town Councilman Richard Givrey said that while he generally favored the idea of a referendum, he was opposed to the way that the petition drive was being handled. He accused the Republicans of being politically motivated and of using concerned residents who were opposed to a tax increase. Givrey supports the present budget.

Democratic Town Chairman Ruth Bennett called upon her group to support the budget. And former chairman Richard Cromie said a Democratic council was elected in 1974 because it promised programs that the citizens were willing to pay for.

The Republicans, who took no formal position either for or against the budget, were also divided on the petition drive. Town Councilman Robert Koonitz felt a referendum would give a greater number of townspeople a chance to vote. But her colleague Douglas Whipple thought a referendum was unnecessary and that the budget should be acted on in the traditional way: at the town meeting.

Some Republicans felt that the coordinating committee had acted too hastily, without first polling its own members and elected officials. But town committee leaders, such as vice chairman Roberta Folami, said the budget referendum "was an idea whose time has come."

Those who circulated petitions said they encountered little opposition in their campaign and that some residents were grateful that they could cast their vote at the polls instead of sitting through a lengthy meeting.

If the petition signatures meet legal requirements, tonight's meeting will set a date for the referendum. It is expected to be stated concurrently with May 25 referendum on two other issues: a charter revision plan and a proposal for town purchase of Salisbury Army land on the southern end of Coventry Lake.

If the budget is defeated at a referendum, it will go back to the council for revision and then be resubmitted to another town meeting. Supporters of the present budget say the increase is modest and has been held down below the general rate of inflation. Opponents say cuts can be made to hold or lower the tax rate and that government and other revenues conceal an actual increase of 8 percent for education and 4 percent for town government.

Coventry PZC eyes open space planning

COVENTRY — Town Planner Gregory Padick has given the Planning and Zoning Commission's preliminary draft of the section on open space and natural resources to be included in a master plan of development.

He said the PZC has no need to duplicate the extensive natural resource information presented by the Conservation Commission.

The planner feels that Coventry's residential attractiveness can be attributed to its meandering streams and rivers, its scenic farmlands, rolling hills, and woodlands, and its clean water and air.

The town's future quality will be significantly influenced by the degree to which natural resource information is utilized in reviewing and regulating proposed developments and the manner in which environmentally sensitive areas and other open space attributes are protected," Padick said.

He concurred with the Conservation Commission's stand that the town's environment is most closely linked with land use activities in the Coventry Lake drainage basin, along the Willimantic, Skungamung, and Hop rivers and their associated tributary streams, wetlands, and aquatic areas; and along the Cedar Swamp feeding Bolton Lake Upper Pond.

Padick said existing and potential farmlands are highly valued for social and economic reasons, and he supports their retention.

He advocates preservation of steep sloped areas and scenic vistas such as Grant Hill, Ash Brook Ravine, the southern ledges of Riley Mountain, and the high ledges overlooking the Hop River and the Willimantic River near the junction of Old Eagleview and Depot roads.

Farm loans available for storage buildings

VERNON — Tolland county producers can now obtain Commodity Credit Corp. loans to build high moisture forage silage storage facilities on their farm and to remodel existing storage structures, according to Douglas Porter, chairman of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation act.

"This action is part of a program to help farmers build needed storage structures," Porter said.

Previously, loans were available only for construction of new structures for high moisture grain or grain silage, and dry grain.

During the past year, farm facility loan provisions were broadened and liberalized to help achieve the goals of the grain set-aside and farmer-owned reserve programs.

More information on the farm storage facility loan program may be obtained by contacting the ASCS office, 24 Hyde Ave., Vernon, or calling 875-9770.

Previously, loans were available only for construction of new structures for high moisture grain or grain silage, and dry grain.

The loans will benefit dairymen and livestock producers who need storage for grass silage, and also grain producers with storage facilities that need modification and remodeling to increase capacity and efficiency," Porter said.

He pointed out that facility loans are secured loans and borrowers must provide adequate security to protect CCC's interest.

Battle of misplays: Tech 12, Bolton 8

By LEN AUSTER

There were several error-laden scholastic baseball contests witnessed this year. Added to the list was yesterday's affair in Bolton which Cheney Tech outdistanced the standing Bulldogs, 12-8.

seven Tech misuses almost produced a Bulldog win.

Cheney started fast in the first frame off freshman right-hander Jim Clark, who didn't retire a batter. Dave Gustamachio walked, Chris Vann singled, Mike Pinkin stroked an RBI single and Ken Pitts belted a three-run homer into the woods in left.

Jim Boudeaur walked, swiped second and scored on Ricky Ross's RBI single to left. That was all for Clark with freshman Wes Brown assuming the mound chores.

Bolstered by three walks, the Bulldogs struck back for three tallies in their half of the first.

Cheney added one marker in the third, driving Tech starter Pete Fitzgerald also but each time they were in position to knot it or go ahead cockpit five, from the hill.

The Bulldogs plated unearned scores in the fourth and sixth innings — but each time they were in position to knot it or go ahead cockpit five, from the hill.

Pitts had three hits and four RBI, Pinkin two blows and two RBI and

Drago looks sharp stopping Orioles

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Like Boston teammates Jim Rice and Bill Lee, relief pitcher Dick Drago was off to an excellent start before a sore arm put a crimp in his early contribution of two wins and two saves for eight appearances.

Rice's 11th home run and the unbeaten Lee's five-hit pitching for 6 and one-third innings had the Baltimore Orioles on the ropes, but it took Drago's ninth inning work to preserve a 4-1 Red Sox victory Thursday.

Drago hadn't pitched in 12 days before coming on to quell a two-run Oriole ninth inning as Boston managed only their fourth win in 12 road games.

"We've had trouble scoring runs on the mound," said Drago, who earned his third save for the undefeated Lee, 5-0.

The Manchester Library Board voted Thursday night to issue a formal statement about maintenance work in the town's two libraries — work that has been done annually since 1963 by the same firm without competitive bid procedures.

Buckley wanted time to think it over before taking a position. "There are several things involved and maybe it is just as well to defer a motion until our statement is made," he said.

Defending her motion, Mrs. Flynn added that the statement was "just a matter of setting the record straight."

Diana questioned the short time left in his fiscal year (six weeks) to get bids and analyze them.

When a vote was taken, Mrs. Flynn was the only board member who voted in favor of the waiver.

Hockey still? While the New England Whalers begin their quest tonight for the WHA's Avco World Cup against the Winnipeg Jets, the Montreal Canadiens and probably Boston Bruins will be battling it out for the NHL's Stanley Cup soon.

It seems silly that they're still playing hockey, but then again it's just as absurd that the pro basketball playoffs are yet with us. The regular seasons of pro hockey and basketball are too long to begin with and then they drag out post-season play over an extended period.

If you're a National Hockey League follower, there should be no question who'll walk away with the Stanley Cup — again. The Canadiens have a great goalie in Ken Dryden, a prolific scorer in the fabulous Guy Lafleur, a rugged defensive corps led by Larry Robinson and Serge Savard, and specialists like Bob Gainey to put a halter on opponents' big scorers.

The Bruins, who by now should've eliminated Philadelphia, have a "money" netminder in Gerry Cheevers, an excellent defender in Brad Park and endless workers like Terry O'Reilly to work the corners. Boston's coach, Don Cherry, has devised an excellent system which his sextet executes very well. Nevertheless, the Bruins will not be able to stop the multi-talented Canadiens.

And, for the record, neither the Whalers nor the Jets would have much of a chance against either Montreal or Boston if such a series could be arranged.

Some things run in cycles. For example, this year there are several good catchers in the Central Connecticut Interscholastic League (CCLL). The list not necessarily in order, includes Conard's Matt Santoro, Manchester's Mike Linsenbarger, Simsbury's Dave Elmer and Hall's Tom Soares.

It's been a banner year for backstops, but in the pitching department each club seems to have one standout with the talent afterwards dropping off considerably. And, on the subject, if Manchester's Mike Jonin isn't tabbed as top hurler in the league, they ought to discontinue voting all-CCLL leaders.

Filmeter

RABBIT TEST (PG) — Billy Crystal. Comedy. This is Joan Rivers' first shot at directing a movie, and there are many funny moments, as you would expect. It's all pretty glibly done, and makes you distrust her as a filmmaker.

COMING HOME (R) — Jane Fonda, Jon Vallet, Bruce Dern. Drama. One of the new wave of Vietnam war movies, this is a strong, emotional story about a shattered man, the woman who waited for him, and another man. It is very strong stuff, but will leave you quivering. GRADE: A-minus.

CROSSED SWORDS (PG) — Oliver Reed, Raquel Welch, Mark Lester. Romantic adventure. This is pure escapism, another version of "The Prince and the Pauper," with a fine cast and rousing action. Don't take it seriously, just relax and enjoy the derring-do and derring-did. GRADE: B.

F.I.S.T. (PG) Sylvester Stallone, Rod Taylor. Drama. Basically, this is the story of the rise and fall of a Hoffa-like labor leader. The early part dealing with his start and the problems in organizing the men — is more fascinating than the second half. It's far too long, but contains some very strong scenes. GRADE: A.

JOSEPH ANDREWS (PG) — Ann-Margret, Peter Firth. Romantic comedy. Tony Richardson's long-awaited successor to "Tom Jones." This is a bawdy, frank, funny look at merrie old England. Excellent vignettes by some of England's great actors enliven this, and the evocation of a long-gone period is fascinating. GRADE: B.

PRETTY BABY (R) Keith Carradine, Susan Sarandon, Brooke Shields. Drama. Set in New Orleans' famous Storyville brothel area, this is a beautifully photographed look at a family of prostitutes. The subject matter may be objectionable, but director Louis Malle has handled it tastefully, or as tastefully as possible. Good performances all around. GRADE: B-plus.

THE MEDUSA TOUCH (PG) Richard Burton, Liza Venturo, Lee Remick. Thriller. Detective investigates assault on a man who believes he has the power to trigger disaster. Story is repetitious and neither it nor the characters stand up to scrutiny, but it's a fairly effective scary evening. GRADE: B-minus. (Handler)

CLOSE ENCOUNTERS OF THE THIRD KIND (PG) — Richard Dreyfuss, Teri Garr. Science-fiction. The celebrated Steven Spielberg look at U.F.O.s. This has some dumb touches and the actual story is primitive, but the special effects are so extraordinary that the rest is overlookable. A masterpiece of special effects wizardry. GRADE: A.

S'n B praised for 'Savage'

Here I sit, pen in hand, ready to begin my review of S'n B's "The Curious Savage," by John Patrick. I am faced with a problem, however. Exactly who stole the show? So many people played off of each other so well that it is nearly impossible to decide who to favor.

"Savage" is the story of Ethel P. Savage, a very millinaire, her crazy friends and her even crazier family. Mrs. Savage is played brilliantly by junior Jacqui Hedlund. Miss Hedlund, although new to acting (as is most of the cast), delivers her lines well and rebounds smartly from the other characters magnificently.

Senior Lance Tatro plays Titus Savage, the son of Mrs. Savage. He is hardly new to acting (it was his sixth role with S'n B), and it shows. He has great stage presence and, overall, plays maturity. His brother, Samuel, is played by Paul Martie. Martie appears to be following in Tatro's footsteps in playing his part to his bungling utmost.

Among the zanies of the "Cloisters" (the mental institution in which the play is set) is senior Keny Bossidy. Playing the role of Florence, she appears to be perfectly sane until her "son" is brought on stage. Her son is played by a Raggedy Andy doll. Miss Bossidy may be the finest natural actress in "Savage," but she sometimes gets carried away in the excitement and upstages someone.

The most convincing performance by anyone is that of Mary Spindman. Her portrayal of Fairy is simply incredible. She sustains a degree of air-headedness throughout that is perfect. She appears to be a dummy secretary type until the last scene.

Approximately 350 choir students coming from every town in Connecticut are chosen to participate in the All-State Choir each year. The students are selected from a group of 2,000 applicants, so being chosen is quite an honor.

This year, Manchester High School's representatives are Sammie Bellone (alto); Neil Berggren, Paul Mansie and Philip Gordon (tenors); Dan Davies and Stephen Latham (basses). This is Paul Mansie's second year with All-State, so he is doubly honored.

Juniors visit West Point

If anyone was wondering why there weren't many juniors to avoid Thursday May 4, it was probably because many of them went on a very enjoyable trip to Hyde Park and West Point. The trip was offered through the history department.

We then travelled farther down the Hudson to West Point which has been the United States Military Academy since 1802. Upon arriving we had the choice of either visiting the computers, library or museum.

The library contained approximately 400,000 volumes and extensive periodicals and audio-visual equipment. The original library of a little more than 1,000 volumes is being collected, rebound, and placed on display in a special room on the fourth floor.

Some of the more rare manuscripts and books they possess include an entire set of first editions by William Faulkner and some first editions of Edgar Allan Poe, who was at one time a cadet.

Those who visited the computers learned some basic properties of computer technology and were shown how to run some simple programs in the form of war games. These war games consisted of drawing bombs over a hill with which to destroy an opponent.

The museum contained a detailed history of military conflicts around the world with an emphasis on American entanglements. Many diagrams were displayed which showed the movements of the military maneuvers which have been equipped since the Revolutionary War.

Following these exploits we all went to the chapel which is famous worldwide for its organ. The organ contains hundreds of thousands of pipes of varying sizes from one inch to thirty-two feet. The sounds that are able to be produced vary from normal organ sounds to band instruments to a variety of other sounds.

The chapel also contains stained glass windows which have been put in by each graduating class from 1800 to 1978 when the final window was put in place.

Our final sight was the parade by the cadets which is held every other day for the public, and principally the critical eyes of the commanding officers. The parade commemorates the first battle won by the American colonists against the British, which was fought at the present site of West Point.

IOH in Washington

Seven officers of the Instructors of the Handicapped, representing the general membership, recently returned from Washington, D.C. They spent April 20 to 23 in a whirlwind of meetings for a number of different purposes.

In order to give the IOH organization national recognition, they met with U.S. Rep. William Cotter and Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, who spoke about how unique and worthwhile the organization is for all involved.

Washington was a meeting with Miles Santamour and Dan Miles, members of the President's Committee on Mental Retardation. Here, they had an exchange of ideas and instructional techniques profited both parties.

Another facet of their trip to Washington was a meeting with Eunice Shriver at the Kennedy Foundation to discuss IOH policies, but she was unable to attend because of her busy schedule. Because of her enthusiasm for the contribution of IOH, she invited the seven officers and two advisors back to her home, where IOH members presented a slide show and informally discussed their activities. Mrs. Shriver praised their program, especially the dedication of the instructors.

From the national publicity, IOH is looking forward to the spread of the organization, possibly the initiation of new chapters across the country, which are the present instructors.

IOH maintains high standards, requiring two instructors per student, and consistent attendance by the instructors. This sacrifice of time on the part of the present instructors, which are the present instructors, are now continuing a steady tradition. For 22 years high school students have given one Sunday a week and oftentimes more to this great organization. The group is run totally by high school students and a very cooperative, helpful advisor, David Moyer. Dave was an instructor a few years ago, and he reflects the steadfast dedication found in every instructor.

One of the biggest concerns of homebuyers and prospective buyers is heating and air conditioning systems and insulation. A poor system in a badly insulated house could create a moderate winter and summer. We can help you evaluate the systems, and inquire about previous low costs. If you already own a home, make sure your system works efficiently. Paying to improve your heating and air conditioning system could, in the long run, save you money. If you are really adventurous, you might look into opportunities for solar heating and wind energy. Tax breaks may be available on all such home improvements.

Now That You've Got Your Home . . .

When you become the owner of a used or new home, you agree in your mortgage to keep the property in good condition. This is only common sense. Why sacrifice to buy an expensive home and then allow it to lose value through your neglect? Regularly put aside an amount for annual upkeep, allowing for the fact that maintenance costs will vary from year to year.

A house is a complicated mechanism and you can't expect to know how to keep everything in good working order. If you are handy with tools, you may be able to do some of the repair and improvement work. But don't tamper with expensive equipment and appliances unless you are sure that you know what you are doing. You may void the warranty on such equipment if you attempt to do repairs yourself. When the plumbing, electric, or heating systems need more than minor repair, it's time to call in an expert.

Dear Abby
By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Three months ago I finally accepted my yearnings to become a male and I began the necessary treatment in anticipation of having a sex change operation. First I ended my affair with my boyfriend, and then I started the hormone treatments. Shortly afterward I felt that something was amiss; I was examined and learned that I was pregnant!

Determined to go ahead with the sex change surgery, I continued the hormone treatments, but being a devout Catholic I cannot consider an abortion. Yet, I don't want a child.

My former boyfriend is begging me to have the child, marry him, and forget about the sex change operation. Abby, I was looking forward both physically and emotionally to a new life as a transsexual. What course should I take?

D.

DEAR D: Since abortion is out, give birth to the child, then reconsider having a sex change operation. If you still feel like a male emotionally and want a body that corresponds with your feelings, resume your original plan. If the motherhood experience tips the scale in favor of living as a woman, follow that inclination. Do not marry a male unless you feel totally female.

DEAR ABBY: I hope you won't think this is a stupid question for a 14-year-old girl to ask, but you are the only person I can ask who won't laugh at me. Is it all right to kiss a fellow good-night on the first date?

B. IN BRANDON, FLA.

DEAR B: That depends. The kiss itself is not as important as the motivation behind it. If a good-night kiss is a mutual sign of affection, I see nothing wrong with it—even on the first date. But if there is no feeling for the other person—only a desire for self-gratification, it is cheap and meaningless.

A girl should never kiss a boy because she thinks she "owes" him something for having dated her. Neither should a boy expect a girl to kiss him for that reason.

DEAR ABBY: My wife is very careless about her appearance in the privacy of our home. She puts breakfasts before her in her nightgown, with her hair uncombed, which is not very pretty. She knows better and can make herself strictly beautiful if we're having guests or going out. It hurts to know she won't bother to make herself presentable for me.

Divorce is out because of the children, but believe me, it's crossed my mind. I start off my day in anger and disgust, and my mind (and eye) have begun to roam. She reads your column, Abby, so maybe if you print this, she'll see it, recognize herself and take the hint. Thank you.

NO NAME PLEASE

DEAR NO NAME: I'll print it, but don't expect miracles. When something as important as one's marriage is at stake, the man who waits for his wife to read something in a newspaper column, "recognizes herself and take the hint," may need more help than his wife. Lay it on the line, man, lay it on the line. Maybe she thinks YOU don't care how she looks.

Astro-graph
by BERNICE BEDE OBL

May 12, 1978

A sudden, dramatic change in your social life may occur this coming year. But you need to be prepared to meet some unusual people who will be quite different from those you've known in the past.

TAURUS (April 20 - May 20)
You're about to have a little turbulence around the house. Today, because unexpected disruptions can get everyone on edge. Don't add to the disturbance. Find out who you're romantically attracted to by sending for your copy of Astro-graph Letter. Mail 50 cents for each and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-graph, P.O. Box 418, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10101. Be sure to specify birth sign.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 - Nov. 23)
At risk today is your self-esteem. You may find yourself in a complicated situation that will be difficult to unravel.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 - Jan. 19)
The hour of dealing with strangers today or you could find yourself in a complicated situation that will be difficult to unravel.

ADAMUS (Jan. 20 - Feb. 18)
Much to your embarrassment you could break your word on the spur of the moment today regarding something quite important to another.

PISCES (Feb. 20 - March 20)
If financial matters with an exceptionally cautious and following instructions. Serious professional matters may be carelessness.

ARIES (March 21 - April 19)
You tend to be a little flirtatious today and you may form an attachment suddenly that ends as abruptly as it began.

CANCER (June 21 - July 23)
Financial risks you wouldn't normally consider are likely to tempt you today. Better study carefully any bargains offered.

LEO (July 23 - Aug. 23)
Your restlessness today could cause you to be brusque or abusive with your family. Proving their ire will only make you feel worse.
