Paratroops fight to rescue whites

KINSHASA, Zaire (UPI) — French paratroops seeking to free whites still held by rebel forces in Zaire's Shaba Province battled insurgents today on the outskirts of the copper-mining city of Kolwezi.
The French defense ministry put casualties of the 600-man Foreign Legion force at two dead and 14 wounded. Ten of the wounded have been evacuated to France, the ministry said. It said several legionnaires earlier reported missing have all been found.
The ministry said that 250 rebels have been killed and that Soviet weapons have been recovered.
"Our forces' action continues," spokesman Pierre Hunt told reporters in Paris. "They are in action to liberate remaining Europeans still in rebel hands."
He said there had no information on reports from the battle zone that the insurgents were regrouping and forming columns in an effort to roll back towards Kolwezi.
A French government spokesman in Paris confirmed that the center of Kolwezi was "firmly in French hands" but said foreign legionnaires are encountering pockets of resistance within a 6-mile radius.

'Son of Sam' refuses to go for sentencing

NEW YORK (UPI) — Confessed "Son of Sam" murderer David Berkowitz today refused to appear for sentencing on his guilty plea to the six 44-caliber killings.
There were also unconfirmed reports that Berkowitz assaulted several court officers in the heavily guarded holding pen at Brooklyn Supreme Court.
Minutes before he was to appear before state Supreme Court Justice Joseph Corso, Berkowitz demanded to meet with his attorneys. Lawyers and law enforcement officials were immediately summoned to Corso's chambers for a conference.
"He does not want to be sentenced," said a spokesman for Bronx District Attorney Mario Merola after the hearing. "He does not want to come out here (the courtroom)."
"Certainly not today," he replied. Berkowitz's apparent decision to repudiate his guilty plea threw into turmoil a closed hearing at which the confessed killer sentenced for all time.

CETA freeze delays hiring

By GREG PEARSON
Herald Reporter
The Town of Manchester has had to delay the filling of federally funded positions because of a hiring freeze that resulted from oversubscription of such positions in the area.
The freeze has resulted in about a dozen Comprehensive Employment Training Act positions being vacant in Manchester, and the assistant director of a townwide survey program serving as a director for the past month.
The head of the local CETA office that runs the program in Manchester and 24 other area towns said that the freeze should be lifted next week and that it is a necessary step to properly run such a program.
Ronald Iler, manpower coordinator for the Comprehensive Manpower office (CMP) in Hartford, which oversees CETA in Manchester, said that the freeze was set after the office had designated 18 percent more positions than were required for the area towns.
The office, however, only provided funding for the amount of positions that were permitted for the towns. Thus, the other 18 percent actually are "over-subscriptions" that will not be funded.
Iler said that such a step is necessary because not all the positions will be filled by the towns. Earlier this year, the CMP office lost $5 million in funding because it had not filled all its designated positions. The oversubscription approach avoids this problem because it takes into account the fact that some of the jobs will not be filled because of lack of candidates or other factors.
The freeze also permits the CMP office to verify its records on CETA positions with the participating towns. This is a preventive maintenance step that is part of good management, Iler said.
The problem develops, however, when vacancies occur in already approved positions. Steven Werber, personnel assistant for the Town of Manchester, said that the town has about 14 CETA positions that previously were filled but have since become vacant.
"These are in one-year CETA programs that were approved last year. Some of these programs immediately summoned to Corso's chambers for a conference.

"He does not want to be sentenced," said a spokesman for Bronx District Attorney Mario Merola after the hearing. "He does not want to come out here (the courtroom)."
"Certainly not today," he replied. Berkowitz's apparent decision to repudiate his guilty plea threw into turmoil a closed hearing at which the confessed killer sentenced for all time.
During the May 8 court appearance, Bronx District Attorney Mario Merola revealed Berkowitz had told his attorneys he also was the "Phantom of the Bronx" who set 2,000 fires in the city since 1974.
Merola gave the court a copy of a diary the stocky Berkowitz kept that gave a detailed account of 1,411 fires.

Chamber offers downtown plans

By SUSAN VAUGHN
Herald Reporter
The Greater Manchester Chamber of Commerce will present a list of recommendations for improvements in the downtown area to the Downtown Coordinating Committee, which will meet for the first time tonight.
Recommendations by the Chamber include stepped up efforts to improve the intersection at Main and Center streets, to improve parking downtown, to establish a community center, and to improve housing and the commercial area.
The Chamber noted the approval in the November 1977 referendum for improvements to the intersection at the Center, but urges an advancement of the four- to five-year schedule for completion. The project includes reconstruction at an estimated cost of $580,000, expected to be paid for by Federal Community Development grants.
The Chamber noted, as reasons for advancing the schedule, eliminating traffic congestion and improving the appearance of the area.
The Chamber urges cooperation on the efforts from both public and private sources.
The Chamber committee said parking in the downtown area is barely adequate and urges expansion of off-street parking. It also calls for development of a road system to interconnect parking areas east of Main Street.
The Chamber will also suggest consideration for a multi-use community center to meet the human, social and cultural needs of the town.
The Chamber group noted that much of the housing in the downtown area is substandard. It urges expansion of the present Community Development housing rehabilitation program, possibly including non-owner occupied housing.
The committee also suggests a coordinated effort to upgrade building facades and other improvements to the businesses downtown.

Solar energy firms fading in state

By WILLIAM T. BLASE
NEWINGTON (UPI) — The sun is not shining on the solar energy business in Connecticut and those whose businesses are fading are blaming the federal government.
Alvin Trumbull, president of the Connecticut Solar Manufacturers Association, says "basically the solar industry is broke and stymied. The government has gone too far — the market has dried up."
Trumbull, whose firm markets a solar collector fluid developed for use in solar energy heating systems, said many small solar companies are going broke because the federal government is not giving them adequate support.
"The feeling we get about some of them is that they really are going broke because the federal government is not giving them adequate support."
She is hopeful, however, that Gov. Ella T. Grasso's newly-appointed Connecticut Solar Alliance — made up of labor, energy representatives and academicians — will help revive the industry.
Ma. Rand said one reason for the apparent lack of commitment by the state to solar energy development is because "there is a sense of security in nuclear power" in Connecticut, and thus solar industry's growth is not that crucial.

The state has three nuclear power plants and a fourth under construction.
She said development of sun power will continue to lag until the federal and state governments make "strong incentives" available to consumers and solar manufacturers "for tax purposes."
Robert Pellish, a spokesman for the U.S. Department of Energy, says his agency knows there are problems and predicts legislation will soon be passed to help solar entrepreneurs.
"These are the problems one expects with any sort of new technology," he said. Often it is simply "a problem of (solar developers) not being able to get capital from a local banker and an identifiable market."
"We're at a difficult interval and we are very sympathetic," Pellish said.

Trumbull and a handful of other solar companies in Connecticut aren't holding their breath awaiting the new legislation. They say governmental red tape is eclipsing the sun in point.
Trumbull cited his company as a case in point.
He said the National Bureau of Standards almost forced him out of business with what he called "an ill-considered standard" for "flashpoint" for fluids used in solar energy heating systems.
Flashpoint is the temperature at which the vapors of a volatile liquid — such as heating transfer fluids — used in solar energy collectors — spontaneously ignite when mixed with air.
"It was a ridiculous standard and it had no real application to the product we or a handful of other small companies were marketing," he said.
NES spokesman Robert Dikkers said the standard was later revised as a result of new scientific data becoming available. "If we have to err, we would prefer to err on the side of safety," he said.
In any case, Trumbull said "retailers had stopped selling our product. We lost out on federal solar developing grants we depended on."
Now, several months later he is hoping the Small Business Administration will push along a loan the Department of Energy has agreed to guarantee because the "governmental action hurt our business."
When that happens work at his Newington shop will resume.
The Suntap division of Cross Utilities, an electrical contracting company in Bloomfield, is another casualty. Vice President Olson put the blame on the government.
He said its "intervention did more to hurt the industry than help it."

Sweeney repeats proposal about conflict of interest

Joseph Sweeney, a member of the Manchester Board of Directors, has recommended that the Charter Revision Commission consider sending town officials to out-of-town boards to avoid conflicts of interest.

Sweeney made his recommendation in a letter to Judge Jay Rubinow, chairman of the Charter Revision Commission.

The commission was established primarily to look into a solution to conflicts of interest for members of town boards and commissions. Last year, several members of town boards were considered in conflict because of business commitments that included involvement with the town.

Sweeney referred to two members of last year's Board of Directors — Jack Goldberg and Phyllis Jackson — who were considered in conflict. Goldberg sought a zone change, and Mrs. Jackson a building permit that later required a zoning variance from the Zoning Board of Appeals.

In such cases, the town should adopt a setup similar to one used by the State Assembly of Probate Judges, Sweeney said. Any potential conflict is referred to a probate judge in another town.

Most town boards and commissions are appointed by the Town Board of Directors.

Thus, if a town director sought to go to the Planning and Zoning Commission for a zone change, that commission might consider sending the application to another town's board for action.

Sweeney suggested that a 20-mile radius be established and that the application be sent to a "comparable municipal agency."

This would permit the matter to be acted on while avoiding a conflict and would not limit the rights of a board member, Sweeney said.

He has made a similar suggestion during his campaign. During that period, the legality of the proposal was questioned by one of the unsuccessful Republican candidates, David Call.

Red Cross meeting in city

Several volunteers from the Manchester-Bolton branch of the American National Red Cross will participate in the organization's annual convention being held this week in Hartford.

The convention, which is usually held in such places as Chicago, Los Angeles, or the south, is being held for the first time in Hartford. About 4,000 delegates arrived in Hartford from all over the country to attend the convention which began Sunday.

The official opening ceremonies began today (Monday) in Bushnell Memorial Hall. The convention sessions which extend through Wednesday, are planned to bring new and updated material concerning the many services of the Red Cross.

Serving at some of the exhibits from the local branch are Joyce

Christino, Lorayne Leonard, Margaret Beecher, Lillian Legier, Helen Leo-Wolf, Grace Bogdan, Diana Longchamps, Ann Morasco, Elaine Sweet.

Also, Durward Miller, Mark Hill, Clifford O. Simpson, Charles Burr, Joseph L. Swenson.

Exhibits will feature new designs of equipment for blood donor centers and a new communication satellite.

PZC to air racquetball bid

The Manchester Planning and Zoning Commission will meet tonight at 7:30 to consider acting on a proposed racquetball courts building and a combined shopping center-apartment complex.

The PZC would have to approve a special exception, because more than 50 parking spaces are proposed, and an inland-wetlands permit for the racquetball facility, which would be located on property adjacent to the Steak Out Restaurant complex.

The racquetball building would include 12 courts and is proposed by the Courthouse One Group, which operates a similar facility in Avon.

A special exception for parking also has been requested by a group of developers who plan to build a shopping center and residential complex at the corner of Hartford Road and Edgewood Street.

The group, headed by Roy Franklin, first appeared at the PZC's May 1 public hearing. They were told then that some changes were needed in the plans.

Union people graduate class in counseling

Several Manchester area union and non-union members were members of a recent graduating class of union counselors held in Hartford.

The graduates were awarded certificates upon completing a 10-week course in Basic Union Counseling — a course sponsored by the United Way in conjunction with the AFL-CIO, the UAW and the Teamsters.

The course is part of an ongoing program to train union members and others to serve as referral agents to assist fellow employees, friends, relatives and neighbors with family or personal problems not covered under union contracts.

The graduates are trained to learn what resources are available in the Hartford area to solve those social and health problems that have nothing to do with collective bargaining, but which are important to union members.

The classes held at United Way headquarters in West Hartford included family counseling, social security, workers compensation and rehabilitation, pre-retirement planning, Red Cross programs, alcoholism and drug abuse, un-

Water study delayed

A water distribution study being prepared for the Town of Manchester will not be completed until next month, but Jay Giles, director of public works, still feels a November referendum on water improvements can go on as scheduled.

The timetable to meet that November referendum, already tight, will be even tougher to meet, with the delay in the study's completion. Giles, however, is confident that it can be done.

The water distribution study is being prepared by the engineering firm Weston & Sampson. After one delay, it was expected to be completed by the middle of this month, town officials said.

The town has received verbal reports on some of the study findings, but the full study will not be completed until sometime in June, Giles said.

The sooner we get it, the better. I'm bugging the engineer to make sure it's done," he said.

Giles said, however, that the distribution study involved more alternatives than the distribution study.

"In a distribution study, you just don't have that many choices," he said.

The Town Board of Directors will meet Wednesday night to consider some decisions involved in the water treatment matter.

Giles said that he would like the exact site of the proposed plant to be known before the November referendum vote.

Weinberg considered for ticket

A Manchester resident, Barbara Weinberg of 187 Pittin St., reportedly is being considered as the Democratic Party's nominee for secretary of state.

That position now is held by Gloria Schaffer, who has been nominated for a federal position.

Gov. Ella Grasso and Lt. Gov. Robert Killian are involved in a race for the party's nomination for governor, which will be selected at the July state convention. The winning candidate will run with a slate that includes the lieutenant governor and secretary of state positions.

Mrs. Weinberg is one of those being considered later at this annual retreat, scheduled later than usual. The Bloodmobile will be in operation from 1:30 to 7 p.m.

To further encourage donors to support the blood program, the Army & Navy Club is providing a light lunch or light supper for all donors.

Persons with all blood types are asked to give at this operation. Especially needed are those with type O-Negative blood. This type is needed to help replenish the huge quantity of blood needed recently for a patient at Manchester Memorial Hospital.

The quota for this operation is 500 pints. Local blood program officials hope for a successful drawing through the cooperation of the Army & Navy Club as well as employees from the area banks who have also been contacted.

Walk-in donors will also be welcome.

The Army & Navy Club, 1090 Main St., will sponsor the next Red Cross Bloodmobile visit Thursday at the club.

Because club members are being encouraged to come in to be blood donors after normal working hours, the drawing hours have been scheduled later than usual. The Bloodmobile will be in operation from 1:30 to 7 p.m.

Three injured in accident

Three persons were admitted to Manchester Memorial Hospital where one remains in serious condition today following the collision of a camper and a tractor-trailer truck late Sunday night on Interstate Highway 86, exit 93, Manchester.

Hospital authorities said Joan L. Lindsley, no age available, of Wolcott was in serious condition with multiple leg fractures and internal injuries. Edward Lindsley, 33, the driver of the large camper vehicle, was in satisfactory condition with multiple cuts and bruises, and Lisa Lindsley, 14 months, was in satisfactory condition with minor abrasions.

State Police said the accident occurred at 11:30 p.m. when the camper struck the rear of the tractor-trailer truck driven by Louis Drew, 49, of Warrenville, Ill. Drew was not injured. Both the camper and the truck lost rear axles.

The firefighters also aided in towing the vehicles, washed down gas and securing nitrogen tanks on the camper before they left the scene at 3:13 a.m. Sunday.

The firefighters also said two dogs were in the camper at the time of the accident. One dog was found but the other is still missing.

MEA cites Alan Thomas

The Manchester Education Association (MEA) honored its retiring teachers at its annual retirement banquet Thursday night at Willie's Steak House.

The MEA also presented the MEA Friend of Education Award to Allan Thomas, former chairman of the Board of Education.

The award is given in recognition of those persons who, by their continued efforts, show concern for the quality of education in Manchester and for the welfare of its teaching staff. Thomas served nine years on the board, six of them as chairman.

The award has been presented on two other occasions — once to Dr. Walter Schardt, former board member and chairman, and to John Johnston, former Manchester Herald education reporter.

The following retiring teachers were honored and presented with a flower-filled pewter bowl by colleagues from the schools at which they taught:

Mrs. Yvonne Allan, Manchester High School, 15 years of service; Mrs. Ruth Briggs, Verplanck, 22 years; Ms. Susan Harkins, Verplanck, 23 years; Robert Johns, elementary music, 31 years; Ms. Marita Kemp, Verplanck, 26 years; Mrs. Dorothy Krause, Martin, 18 years; Mrs. Isabelle McFarland, Verplanck, 24 years; Mrs. Doris Ramizi, Wadwell, 21 years; Mrs. Frances Ryan, Highland Park, 19 years; Mrs. Roberta Walnum, Robertson, 10 years.

Also invited to attend the dinner were retiring principals Miss Harriet Atwood, Highland Park School; Mrs. Lillian Shensie, Martin; George Emmerling, principal, and Laurence Leonard, assistant principal, both of Manchester High School, as well as members of the Board of Education and the central office administration.

Training courses planned

The Community Services Division of Manchester Community College, in cooperation with Mansfield Training School, has developed a group of in-service training courses for paraprofessionals who work with disabled and mentally retarded persons.

These courses are funded through a Title XX grant from the state Department of Social Services.

The MCC courses were designed to meet the specific needs of personnel at Mansfield Training School while also fulfilling the Title XX guidelines.

Five non-credit workshops will be offered at the training school during the summer.

Subjects to be covered include the following — Teaching math to the developmentally disabled through total body movement; basic living skills of dressing, eating and personal hygiene; bodily movement as a resource in encouraging self-expression and creativity in others; application of arts and crafts techniques for the mentally retarded; and the development of verbal and non-verbal listening skills as aids in effective communication between clients and staff members.

Although the courses were intended for employees of the training school, other individuals including students in the two-year Mental Retardation Aide program at MCC, parents of disabled and retarded persons, and others who are interested in the subject, may attend.

Preference in enrollment is given to Title XX eligible members of the staff at the training school.

Further information about this program can be obtained by calling Brenda Briggs in the Community Services Division of MCC.

Feminism vs the law

Harvard Law School, a pillar of the establishment if there ever was one, is not usually thought of as in the vanguard of social change. Which makes a recent report from Cambridge particularly interesting and possibly of particular significance. There are currently 394 women enrolled at Harvard Law, the nation's largest and most prestigious law school, which recently marked the 25th anniversary of its very first graduation class to include women. Since that precedent-setting class, more than a thousand women have gone forth into the nation's courts and corporate offices. Harvard is not, however, a trend setter but part of a trend. More than a quarter of total current enrollment in the nation's law schools — some 33,000 out of almost 120,000 — are women, a tenfold increase in 10 years. And of the 460,000 practicing attorneys, something like 40,000 are women. Women barristers still have some complaints — their difficulty in gaining entry into top-line established firms and still minuscule representation on law school faculties, for instance — but time, too, is likely to effect rapid changes in these areas. And the day when women attorneys were an oddity is definitely long gone. The feminine movement for equality before the law could find one of its most meaningful manifestations in equality within the practice of law.

Reflections

Hal Turkington
Managing Editor

Mind if I break a cardinal rule about journalism — writing about yourself? Well, really, it's not about myself, but it's close to the family — my brother-in-law. Last Thursday night Aircrafters surprised my brother-in-law, Pete Stum, with a retirement party at Kelly's Pub over on North Street. It was a surprise until he got out of the car and saw his sister, Bert Groman, standing at the doorway. There was excellent representation from the Stum and Turkington families there for someone who has a very special place in our lives. The retirement was also a reunion for some Aircrafters who have since retired and were there to welcome Pete into "their" family. You never really know what might happen at a party such as this; they might just call upon some member of the family for some remarks, and since I am the elder statesman on our side, I figured I had better be ready to roast and to toast Pete; I was, but the program called for brevity, so now you get to read what I might have said. I would have roasted Pete about his golf. No, not his handicaps because he carries a very respectable low handicap, and he plays to it, too. But I would have gotten into the old chestnut about the foursome that teed off at 7 o'clock one morning, and in this case, Pete didn't get home until nearly 3 in the afternoon. And my sister, Ruth, probably would have said, "How come it takes you eight hours on a Saturday to play a round when you can play in less than four hours some evenings?" And Pete would have told her about Charlie, one of the guys in the foursome, who hit his tee shot on the third tee and then topped over — a heart attack, dead. "Oh, that must have been awful," my sister would say. "It must have been a terrible day." To which Pete would have answered, "Yeh, the rest of the day it was hit the ball, drag Charlie, hit the ball, drag Charlie, hit..." Or, the other one about the foursome putting on a green near a roadway as a long funeral procession went by. Pete was lining up his putt when someone in the group said, "That's some long corlege; must be some big shot or someone well known." And Pete would have answered again, "Yeh, if he had live two more months we would have been married 26 years."

I don't think Pete has a golf ball retriever in his bag; he really doesn't need one, because he seldom gets into trouble on the course. But he did have a retriever, who always went out with Pete to the practice tee and "retrieved" Pete's shots from the fairway and return them to Pete's heels — that was Barney, his German schnauzer. But Barney's gone now, having lived a very full life as the third member of the Pete Stum family. We choke a little as we write these words, because dogs have been special in our families.

So much for the roast. I go back to the days when we played basketball together. There's no comparison in our games; Pete had it. But what I most remember about Pete is his way of playing the game — clean and honest, and fair. He was that way, too, when he was an umpire in baseball and an official in basketball.

He was a fine volleyballer, too, before he tired of the awful hours on a much smaller force and went back to the Aircraft.

Our families have been blessed with fine, strong, marriages; they are families where love abounds. Even as we go our separate ways in our daily lives, we think of each other, and we look forward to those family reunions on the holidays, anniversaries.

Well, the cardinal rule has been broken; but I'm not angry at myself for writing this column. Sometimes you have to "write" a column; this one wrote itself.

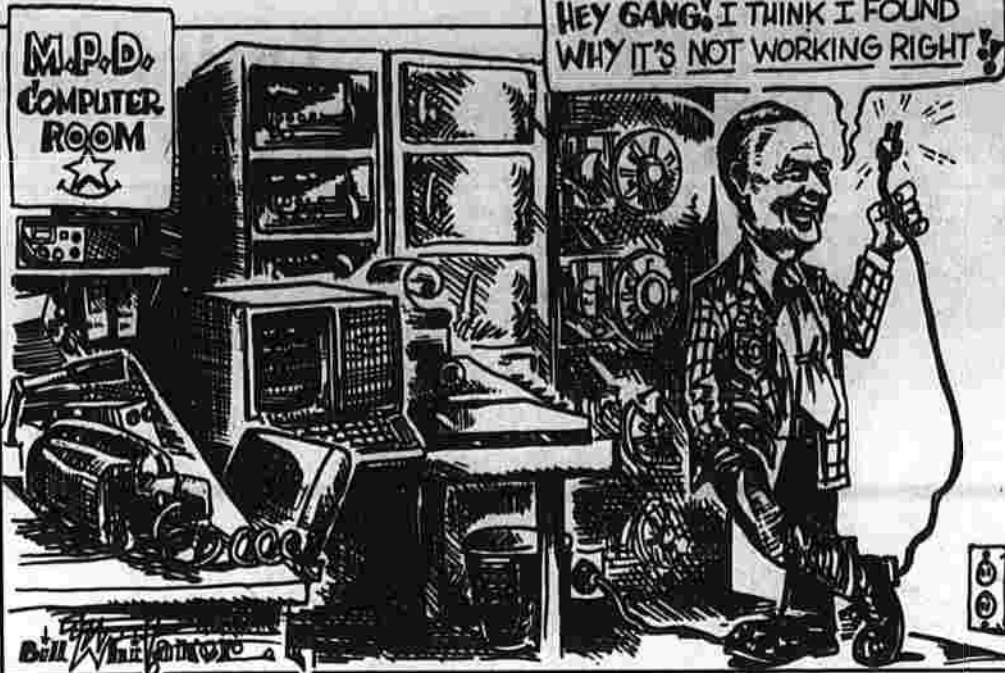

So watch out, down there on South Main Street; you will soon have a new candidate for the Retirees League on Wednesday.

If it were my fortune, I'd take him for a partner. And if you don't want to be a partner, ask sister Ruth; she couldn't be happier.

The detention basin issue

I am writing in regard to the Board of Directors meeting on May 16. The directors voted not to proceed with the construction of a detention basin off Briarwood Drive. As reported in the Herald on May 17, an alternate site is being considered "downstream on the Peila property." Several pertinent questions come to mind.

1. Does the town have the right to decide what is to become of land owned by private land owners? It would appear so. The owners of the Peila farm were not notified of this alternative site nor were they aware of a report by Metcalf and Eddy in which suggestions were made concerning a Folly Brook drainage area. It would seem to me that this alternative site has been in the minds and on the drafting tables of our public works department for some time. Would it have been too much to ask of Mr. Giles to inform the Peila brothers of this plan before it was announced and discussed at a public meeting?
2. Why has the town waited until a suit was filed by the Andrew Ansdali Co. to look for a solution to the flooding problem? Why must a possible solution be on privately owned land?
3. The basin in the Briarwood site has already been approved. Why did the board not hear any objections from the residents in this area before it was approved? That would have been the time for discussion and alternative proposals. I, too, have young children and can understand the objections of the residents near the approved drain. This problem, however, is not solved by moving it to another location. There are many children in the Briarwood Street area as well as many residents of the convalescent home who are often found wandering on farm property. 4. Would the problem really be solved by moving the site to the basin? Can the town justify the greatly increased cost of moving it from the Briarwood location to the Peila farm? Even Mr. Giles has stated that this would be a more complicated plan. I still fail to see how the town directors and Mr. Giles can justify the proposed planned use of the farm property at a public meeting without the prior consent of the land owners especially in view of the fact that the same board has previously approved another site. Thought

Practical advice of Jesus
Jesus said, "If you abide in my word, then you are truly disciples of mine; and you shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free." John 8:31, 32.

What is the truth?
The truth is that the teaching of the Bible have made the men and the women who follow them, better husbands, better wives, better fathers, better mothers, better workers, better leaders, and has made them better able to live in peace with themselves and others. Truly when men and women are at peace with God, themselves, and others, they then are "free."

The truth shall make you free.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Gemini. British novelist Sir Arthur Conan Doyle was born May 22, 1859. Actor Sir Lawrence Olivier was born May 22, 1907. In 1868, the "Great Train Robbery" was staged as seven members of the Reno gang stole $98,000 from an express car at Marshfield, Ind. In 1924, discovery of the body of 13-year-old Bobby Franks of Chicago led to the arrest of Nathan Leopold and Richard Loeb. They were sentenced to 99 years in prison for the grisly, so-called "thrill killing." In 1943, Russia announced dissolution of the Communist International, founded in 1919 to promote world revolution. In 1971, at least 800 persons died in an earthquake in eastern Turkey.

Tax credit

By ANDREW TULLY
WASHINGTON — Opponents of a tuition tax credit to parents of children in private schools and colleges are almost as badly off as many of those poor students in some of our public schools. That is to say, the anti-tax credit folks can't read some writing. A part of the First Amendment is Greek to them. It is the part that says with admirable clarity: "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, nor prohibiting the free exercise thereof". Like the rest of the Constitution, those words mean what they say — and only what they say. And what they say is only that Congress may not decide that this should be a Catholic country, or an Episcopalian country, or a Holy Roller country.

Not so much as a syllable in that opening line of the First Amendment says Congress may not offer financial aid to a private institution performing a public service. Consequently, the federal government for years has been awarding direct financial grants to private colleges. Moreover, an individual may include in his income tax deductions contributions to religious institutions. The government thus offers the individual an incentive to give money to his church. I mentioned this tax credit to a friend who happens to be a Quaker, and who is opposed to tuition credits. "That's different," he said. "It is not a direct government subsidy to the Friends." He may be right, but if I had all year I'd argue the point. Whether direct or indirect, however, the fact remains that a taxpayer taking such an income tax deduction is permitted to charge off sums of money advanced for the aid and comfort of his particular secular denomination. And, as a Catholic clergyman acknowledged: "Frankly my parish would go broke if Washington disallowed deductions for contributions to religious establishments."

Here in Washington is the magnificent National Cathedral of the Episcopal Church, still a-building after 90 years or so. It could never have attained its magnificence had not the contributors to its construction been permitted to deduct their donations for that purpose.

Which leads us to the latest proposal for tuition aid to the least advantaged parents, officially listed as among the non-poor, who are going broke paying for their children's college education. It was submitted by Rep. Michael Harrington, D-Mass., and John Silber, president of non-secular Boston University. The proposal, in the form of a bill filed by Harrington, would allow a college student to pay his own way. The federal government would provide up to $5,000 a year to students, who would be required to repay the loan after graduation. Repayments would be limited to 2 percent of annual earnings, plus interest, and would be collected along with income taxes by the withdrawal system used to collect Social Security taxes.

Thus, those with higher incomes would repay this "advance" quickly; those with modest incomes might well have all their working lives to clear up their debts. A borrower earning $15,000 a year would pay only $300 a year; a lawyer or doctor with an income of $100,000 would pay $2,000. At the same time, there would be little or no chance of default. If the former student filed an income tax, he would have no choice; his payment would be withheld from his wages. I suppose opponents of tuition tax credits, with their curious interpretation of the theory of church-state separation, will object to the Harrington-Silber proposal on the grounds that at secular colleges would benefit. But attending such an institution surely is protected under the First Amendment's prohibition of any law that would deny an American's "free exercise" of his religion. How will they get around that one?

We are off and rolling down the halls of Meadows East Convalescent Home! Our "Cheer Cart" that has been in the planning stages for many months became a reality on May 10, 1978. We will be running every Wednesday afternoon! The Manchester Area Conference of Churches wants to express its deep appreciation to the residents of Meadows East Convalescent Home for providing the funds for the cart. We are grateful to the maintenance department at the Meadows for building the cart. The administration and Social Worker Laurie Maxwell have provided continued support all through the weeks of preparation. The Conference of Churches can do nothing in our convalescent homes without the cooperation of the community. Again, as with Crestfield, the community of Manchester has come through with flying colors! It only took one phone call to begin a chain reaction that resulted in the recruitment of five willing hands. Our new volunteers are: Mildred Smyth, Janice Smyth, Bernice Elg, Sue Cichowski and Jean Pastel. The Conference of Churches also does not want to forget the volunteers that are visiting patients each week in our

We are here 24 hours a day, every day, and we need to see you!" We have dreams for the future. Our dreams are to extend our volunteer programs to include a "Cheer Cart" for all our convalescent homes. We are envisioning volunteers delivering mail to residents, volunteers writing letters, taking residents for walks, and so on. We would like to see that every convalescent home resident who needs a volunteer has one. This is a tall order to all of us. We will continue to work toward these goals one step at a time. We will keep you informed on our progress and how you can help in the process.

Timetable for master plan will be finalized tonight

By CLAIRE CONNELLY
Herald Correspondent

COVENTRY — The Planning and Zoning Commission (PZC) will finalize its timetable for the master plan of development at tonight's meeting at 7:30 p.m. at the Town Hall.

The tentative schedule calls for completion of the drafts for all sections, by Town Planner Gregory Padick, by the end of this month. The PZC will review and modify the draft during the first half of June and then distribute copies to town boards and commissions, regional planning agencies, libraries, and other public groups for comment.

Heardings on the plan will be held in late June and early July. Adoption is expected by midsummer, allowing the completion of all mapping. Copies of the final plan will be printed and distributed to the community.

The commission will also consider a new regulation that would allow septic waste disposal systems in Coventry. Thomas and Anita McLaughlin drafted the draft of the new rule when they petitioned the PZC to permit commercial systems in river-aquifer zones. They hope to install such a facility at their Plains Road gravel pit.

The draft under study would become Section 6.20 of the town's zoning regulations and would require a special permit from the commission in order to construct a septic waste disposal system. Applicants would be required to establish a need for the facility, meet all state and federal requirements, and show that the location and lot size of the proposed facility is in harmony with orderly development of the area.

In addition, the design must be compatible with the natural environment, provisions must be made for sedimentation and erosion control, proper fencing must be planned to minimize safety hazards, and there must be safe and suitable traffic patterns and access to the property in the plans.

The PZC also will discuss an amendment to Section 5.5 of the zoning regulations, which deals with accessory buildings and uses. The rule was drawn up after Richard Breen, a local developer, pointed out that swimming pools could be defined as "accessory buildings" and that no setback requirements for pools existed in the town's regulations.

The amendment states that "a swimming pool shall be considered an accessory use or accessory structure and may be located 20 feet from a rear lot line." Pool yard setbacks shall be measured from the water retaining wall in the case of an in-ground pool or from the outer edge of an above-ground pool or any above-around deck.

The commission may discuss criticisms raised in a recent meeting with the Town Council of the PZC's regulation requiring that subdivisions of 10 acres or more need 10 percent of the lot to the town for open space.

Council Chairman Jack Myles said that these acquisitions are in scattered locations and involve a maintenance problem for the town. He added that town ownership took the land off the tax rolls.

Richardson countered that this provision stopped intense development and gave Coventry some permanent green areas. Councilwoman Roberta Koonce pointed out that the same goal could be accomplished through a conservation easement, which would still leave the land on the tax rolls.

Special meeting
BOLTON — The Board of Finance will at least discuss, and possibly act, on three items totaling $98,500 at a special meeting Monday at 7:30 p.m. at the Community Hall.

The Board of Selectmen have requested $48,000 for a diesel truck and a utility vehicle for the town highway crew.

The Board of Education has requested $50,000 for renovations to the soccer and softball fields at Bolton High School.

Both requests were tabled last month by the Finance Board because it was busy working on the 1978-79 budget. The budget was approved by residents last week.

The Finance Board will also act on a transfer within the Library Board budget to pay for a broken window at the library. The window was broken in April. It has not been determined how it got broken.

The board will also set the date by which all funds in the current budget that will not be spent by July 1, the end of the fiscal year, must be encumbered.

Artists event
BOLTON — The Friends of the Library will have a show and tell event for local artists in conjunction with the annual book and bake sale June 10 at Bentley Memorial Library.

All Bolton artists are invited to participate in the event. There will be no charge for exhibiting. A donation from the proceeds of sales will be asked. The money will be used to buy art books and materials for the library.

Police-budget is supported; group asks for foot patrol

By MAL BARLOW
Herald Reporter

EAST HARTFORD — Members of the East Hartford Citizen Action Group (EHGAG) Thursday night supported and criticized the police department.

Mrs. Donna Russell, newly elected EHGAG vice president, said EHGAG supports Police Chief Clarence Drumm and Mayor Richard Blackstone in their budget requests for at least 10 more police officers. The new officers would increase the police budget over $121,000 and bring the uniformed police force up to a total of 101.

But she also raised questions about how the officers work. Right now, patrol officers work in two districts, one south of Interstate 84 and one north. The patrol officers cruise at will until assigned a case in their district.

EHGAG wants this to change. Mrs. Russell said they would like to see the town divided into much smaller beats. There would be one beat per cruiser. Each officer would be totally responsible for that beat and cruise in it for the whole shift.

"We believe this will lessen the response time of an officer answering a call, ensure that a cruiser is always within one to three minutes distance of possible criminal activity and enable the police department to survey all streets in town more frequently."

Mrs. Helen Stangeland of the Burnside Center Association, one of the nine member groups in EHGAG, said they were happy to hear Chief Drumm has a "walk and talk" plan for next year. He said an officer will park his cruiser and talk about talking to people, especially store keepers.

Burnside Center people have argued for the return of the walk beat. Chief Drumm has answered that it's a waste of an officer.

Elsa McKusick is honored for her volunteer work

COVENTRY — The Jaycees have presented their annual Coventry Citizen of the Year Award to Elsa McKusick of Cross Street for her dedication to people and human services through her work on the Committee on the Needs of the Aging, the Public Health Nursing Association, and Friends in Service Here (FISH).

She also is a founder of the Holiday Committee and an organizer of the Person-to-Person Lifeline program, which makes daily calls to the elderly.

Mrs. McKusick is active in the St. Germaine's Guild of St. Mary's Church and in the Council of Catholic Women. She works for the Windham Pediatric Clinic at Windham Hospital and in the Willimantic office of the Women, Infants, and Children (WIC) program, a state service for nutrition improvement of mothers and the newborn.

The award winner has five children and five grandchildren and was married to the late Harold McKusick, who was a state forrestier at the Nathan Hale State Forest.

"Mrs. McKusick has given a lifetime of service to her town," Newton said, "and has contributed an enormous amount to the public good in Coventry. Her community involvement has always been offered without regard to her own personal benefit."

Nominations for the award were submitted by Coventry residents and reviewed by a panel of judges: Rev. Bruce Johnson, Frances Funk, and Leonard Benjamin.

Council will adopt budget and set mill rate tonight

By JUDY KURHNEL
Herald Correspondent

SOUTH WINDSOR — The South Windsor Town Council will meet in special session tonight at 7 to adopt the general government budget and to set the tax rate for fiscal year 1979-80.

Following the special meeting, the council will hold a work session at 8 p.m.

Included on the work session agenda is a review of estimated architectural costs for renovations at the high school and Wapping School.

A recent cost estimate, prepared by the New England School Development Council, set renovation costs for the two facilities at $331,540.

Under the plan, a portion of Wapping School will be used as an annex to the high school after it closes next month. The school is now an elementary facility.

About $130,000 of the original estimated costs would be used in compliance with building code requirements, including requirements for handicapped students.

Renovations to the high school include expansion of the graphic arts, industrial arts and technology departments and in the home economics area.

Superintendent Robert W. Goldman has said that approval of a bond issue would mean a September 1980 occupancy. He said renovation could be stepped up if construction is done while school is in session.

Goldman said that in order to be eligible for state funding for renovation, the form must be completed and submitted by July 1, 1978.

The council is also expected to review outstanding bills submitted by former Town Attorney Thomas Dennis and to review a preliminary report submitted by the Mayor's Task Force on Utilization of Community Facilities.

For the first time in many years, various facilities have become available as meeting places for organizations.

Since the old Community House on Main St. burned down some years ago, the town has been without a place for local clubs to meet. Both St. Peter's Episcopal Church and St. Margaret Mary's Church have been used by the senior citizens. Some clubs have been meeting regularly at the Society for Savings Bank on Ellington Road.

The Town Council recently approved use of the old Pleasant Valley Schoolhouse on Ellington Road for the Historical Society.

A portion of Wapping Elementary School will be available for community use as of September 1978 and the council has yet to decide the fate of the old Firehouse 1 on Ellington Road.

The Task Force, headed by Richard Kelley of Rosemary Lane, was set up by the council to study the long-range use of all available meeting facilities in South Windsor, both public and private.

"The need for meeting facilities is a growing one," said Kelley, "and the first break in the previous impenetrable jungle of problems has been the availability of the Wapping Elementary School."

Kelley said the commission's primary responsibility, in addition to evaluating present needs and available space, is to project future needs of the community and match them against the best possible use of any publicly owned facility.

The report of the Task Force is expected to include firm proposals for the use of surplus space and will attempt to make recommendations for the future of the old Firehouse 1 building.

The Firehouse 1 building, on the verge of condemnation, is eyed by several town organizations as a meeting place. The old building will soon be vacated by the Fire Department when it moves to the new Firehouse Headquarters across the street.

The public is invited to speak on any agenda items at the work session. The meeting will be held in the caucus room of Town Hall.

COPE urges budget support

VERNON — The Committee on Public Education (COPE), has supported restoring a $125,000 cut to the Board of Education's budget. The cut was made by the Town Council and the annual budget meeting rejected the budget last week.

COPE members said they will continue to support the reinstatement of the funds and encourage other townspeople to persevere to that end. No date has been set for a second budget meeting.

COPE will be meeting June 1 to elect officers and to discuss the program for Gifted Children in the Vernon school system.

A film will be shown, entitled "Sit Down, Shut Up or Get Out." Although the child depicted is gifted, the film will deal with the lack of understanding that all children encounter in school.

COPE has also identified five major areas where it will be concentrating its efforts during the 1978-79 year and is seeking volunteers to help staff these projects.

Projects are: "Curriculum Concerns - What is taught, Why and How"; "Educational Funding - Taxes, Legislation, Grants, Capital Improvements"; "Communications - Public Relations to pertinent Town Groups"; "Drug, Alcohol, and Other Substance Abuse"; and "Talented and Gifted Programs."

COPE will meet at Sacred Heart Church on Route 50 on June 1 at 7:30 p.m. unless that happens to be the date set for another town meeting.

Tri-Town Players
The Tri-Town Players of Vernon, Rockville, and Ellington area will conduct a patron-subscriber phone campaign tonight and Wednesday from 7 to 9 p.m.

The drive is an effort to help the group raise working funds to prepare for the 1978-79 season. Patrons and subscribers are listed in the program for each play and each patron or subscriber receives two tickets for each play.

The purpose of the campaign is to give the group money now to begin preparation for the next season. Plans are to present "Arsenic and Old Lace" in November and "Look Homeward Angel in March, 1979."

The Tri-Town Players is a non-profit organization which presents two productions annually. This season's plays were "Plaza Suite" and "Bus Stop."

Patrons and subscribers are also invited annually to a special one act play in May, at no charge. This is presented just for them. The presentation this year will be May 29 and will consist of two one-act plays, "Mr. Foot," and "Chinamen."

Anyone wishing to become a patron or a subscriber and who has not been contacted, should call Harriet Dewey or Solange Quick.

Pat Wagner, balanced on the wing of a small plane, being flown by her husband Bob Wagner, thrilled audiences at an air show in Ellington, Sunday. The high winds added to the excitement of the act. The couple is from Ohio and the antique plane and auto show was sponsored by the Rockville Rotary Club. Proceeds will go to charities sponsored by the club. (Herald photo by Pinto)

Substitute leads Manchester to nail-biting 4-3 triumph

By LEN AUSTER Herald Sports Writer

Despite the absence of two starters, missing because of other commitments, Manchester High took a 4-3 nail-biting triumph over Penney High Saturday in CCIL baseball action in East Hartford.

The win was an important one for the Indians heading into the final week of the regular season. Manchester, 8-9 overall, hosts Penney High today, visits Windham High Wednesday and entertains cross-town East Catholic Thursday needing to win two of three to qualify for the state tournament. The status (must win two of three) is the same for the Black Knights who visit Wethersfield today.

Sophomore Jamie Gallagher, replacing absent team leader hitting Tom Prignano at the top of the batting order, singled leading off the seventh, sacrificed to second and scored on Chris DeCiantis' RBI single.

Manchester made it 3-0 with a pair of unearned runs in the fifth. Back-to-back singles by Gallagher and winning pitcher Mike Jordan put runners at the corners. An errant pickoff attempt by hurler Kevin Grady on Jordan sent him scurrying to third, Gallagher scoring.

DeCiantis walked and stole second. When the throw got away from shortstop Dan Lima, Jordan scored. Penney got two tallies back in the sixth on an error, single by Tony DeAngelis, bloo RBI single by Lindsay James and RBI fielder's choice by Dave Lettau.

"That hurt," said a pained Penney Coach Mike Lippes. "We started playing from the sixth inning on. Sloppiness hurt but you have to expect that in high school." The Indians plated what proved to be the winning run in the seventh. Jordan led off with a walk. "The first batter (almost) every inning got on. That hurt the most," cited Lippes. He stole second, moved to third on a groundout and came home on Dennis Joy's long double to left center.

The Knights made it interesting in the ninth. Bob Begley singled, pinch hitter Mike Cook walked and Carl Guzzardi reached as his grounder went through the legs of third baseman DeCiantis, pinch runner

Congress faces fight on tuition tax credits

WASHINGTON (UPI) — College tuition tax credits highlight a crowded congressional calendar this week in advance of a long weekend for the Memorial Day holiday.

A bill to provide the country's first tuition tax credits — up to $500 a year per college student — reaches the House floor at midweek, with a fight expected over attempts to include credits for tuition at private elementary and secondary schools as well.

In addition, a long-awaited compromise on natural gas pricing legislation may finally win approval from a House-Senate conference committee this week, and both a $37.9 billion Defense Department authorization and a military construction authorization bill were scheduled for House debate, as was a bill to grant trade concessions to Hungary.

Union head knocks GM inflation plans

DETROIT (UPI) — The president of the United Auto Workers Union scoffs at a veto by General Motors Corp. to trim salaries and bonuses of its top executives in line with President Carter's anti-inflation program.

GM Chairman Thomas A. Murphy told stockholders last Friday that the company also will work to hold down car prices, but would not rule out further increases this year.

UAW President Douglas Fraser said GM's salary proposal was "hardly a sacrifice" because Murphy's yearly earnings are nearing $1 million, with other GM executives not far behind.

Church roof collapse leaves many in shock

GARLAND, Texas (UPI) — For members of the Walnut Village Church of Christ, Sunday's accident seemed unreal — something out of a disaster movie — and it left many of them in shock.

During services, the roof of the church collapsed under the weight of tons of rain water. A 5-year-old girl was killed and 57 members of the congregation were injured. Three policemen also were hurt while trying to rescue people from debris.

"This is the worst thing I've ever seen in Garland. I just can't believe it happened on a Sunday," ambulance driver Cecil Williams said.

Terrorists tell France they will strike again

PARIS (UPI) — A terrorist group that shot up the Israeli airline lounge at Orly airport warns it will strike at France again for contributing troops to U.N. peacekeeping units in Lebanon.

The Paris newspaper Le Figaro called the "Sons of Lebanon" threat "a veritable declaration of war to France."

The airport was closed and searched room at the Paris airport Saturday and fired at passengers, French police and Israeli security guards.

In telephone calls to French reporters in Beirut, a man speaking Arabic said the Orly attack "is only the first of a series of operations that we will carry out against the neo-colonialism of France in Africa and the Middle East."

Argentina films

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (UPI) — Each of the 38 transmissions of the 1978 World Cup soccer championship matches made to television stations throughout the world will be preceded by short films on Argentina.

Director Sergio Renan has put together the 38 film shorts, most of which include shots of scenic natural settings, from the icy region of the southern tip of South America to the tropical forest near the famous Iguazu waterfalls.
