Town defends bid for federal funds

By GREG PEARSON
Herald Reporter

Seven representatives of the Town of Manchester met this morning with officials of the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development and defended the town's progress in community development programs and work in providing a fair housing program.

The meeting was held at the Hartford office of HUD and was still going on at noon.

HUD has said that it will withhold the fourth-year $483,000 CD block grant because of the town's failure to meet some of the program's requirements. HUD, in a six-page letter this week, said the town has failed to proceed on schedule with CD programs and to live up to fair housing and hiring practices.

The first two hours of this morning's meeting concentrated on fair housing procedures, which may be a key to whether the town receives the funds.

HUD officials Daniel Kolesar, Frank Buntin, Harry Reese and Mary Ellen Morgan indicated that the town would have to submit a fair housing plan within 10 days to avoid a recommendation to withhold at least part of the CD funding. They criticized the town for taking no such fair housing steps in the past year.

Town officials argued that the town's record speaks for itself. They said that they know of no discrimination among persons seeking to buy homes in Manchester. They also cited an increase in recent years of minority-group residents in town.

Manchester was represented at the meeting by Robert Weiss, town manager; Stephen Penny, mayor; Betty Intagliata and Carl Zinsner, directors; Alan Mason, CD coordinator; Marilyn Walsh, head of the housing rehabilitation program; and Philip Harrison, chairman of the Downtown Coordinating Committee.

Penny said that 43 percent of new persons moving into Manchester in recent years have been minority group members.

Zinsner, a Realtor, said he knows of no discrimination in Manchester among persons seeking to buy homes. "I think we've done more than most communities," he said.

Kolesar and Reese both said that the town must take an active role in a fair housing program. Such items as education about fair housing, or testing of available housing are needed, they said.

"It is not based on the profile of the community," Kolesar said of what HUD is seeking in fair housing.

"It is based on what actions the community has taken in the third year (last year), there were none. To us, that is a very large problem," he said.

Weiss and the board members suggested that the town might be given more than 10 days to work on such a proposal. HUD officials said, however, that they must make a recommendation on the town's grant within 10 days.

Town officials, particularly Penny and Zinsner, wondered why the town's record would not be enough to satisfy requirements. The town will take further action on the housing matter after a housing study is finished.

Kolesar also asked the town for an update on past and ongoing CD projects. HUD's letter had mentioned delays in completing a number of projects.

"Most of our projects are completed, about to be completed, or are ongoing," Mason said.

Town representatives also discussed the placement of projects in the downtown target area.

Mason said many of the projects are within the area.

One, the dental clinic, could not be located there. Another, the senior citizens center, is being considered for a school outside the area.

Mrs. Intagliata said that the town hopes to provide transportation to the dental clinic. It is also within walking distance of schools and part of the target area.

At the beginning of the meeting, Penny discussed some of the board's efforts in the past six months to provide human services. These include buses for the elderly and handicapped, and commissions for children and handicapped residents.

"We have not only by word, but by deed, shown what our concern is for special needs in the human services area," Penny said.

Factors in inflation are still threatening

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The month of April saw the worst increase in inflation in more than a year and the government says the pressures that caused the jump are still at work.

The major culprit during April was a record increase in the cost of beef. That and other food price hikes pushed up the government's Consumer Price Index by 0.9 percent.

But the CPI report had barely been issued Thursday when the Agriculture Department announced that beef prices also had caused a substantial increase in the price of raw farm products during May.

Those higher prices are expected to produce higher retail prices that will be reflected in the CPI for May and later months.

Robert Strauss, the administration's anti-inflation strategist, conceded the problem is likely to remain for a while. "There is no foreseeable immediate hope for much of a decrease in beef prices, if any," he said.

The Labor Department, which keeps track of consumer price levels, said beef was not alone in causing the sharp increase in the overall index for April.

Prices of all foods and beverages increased half again as fast as they had for the first three months of 1978.

Supermarket prices increased 2.4 percent, nearly double the rate of the first quarter.

Electric and gas utilities boosted prices another 1.5 percent in April for the third consecutive month of big increases, and homeowners also paid significantly more money for mortgage interest, taxes, insurance, repairs and maintenance.

The cost of medical care escalated from an 0.6 percent increase in March to 0.7 percent in April. Medical care costs for the year so far have risen at an annual rate of 9 percent.

The 0.9 percent rise in the CPI for all urban consumers was the biggest one-month increase since the 1 percent rise of February 1977. For the three months ending in April, all prices rose at an annual compound rate of 10 percent.

That signaled a return to the "double-digit" inflation that plagued the nation during 1976.

The administration got some encouraging news with word that a major union was heeding President Carter's plea for restraint on wage requests.

The 725,000-member Retail Clerks International Union announced it would oppose bargaining demands that go beyond "clearly justifiable goals" such as catching up with inflation and future cost-of-living raises, compensating for increases in productivity, and local adjustments.

The union also said it would impose a freeze on salaries for its top officers and a 5.5 percent cap on wage hikes for other staff members.

High beef prices likely to continue

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Beef prices will continue to run at record levels through the summer and dropping import quotas on foreign beef would do little good, Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland said today.

Bergland said the rebuilding of American cattle herds after western droughts as well as a worldwide shortage of beef contributed to high beef prices.

Beef prices jumped at an annual rate of almost 30 percent in April.

Bergland said dropping U.S. import quotas would have "no great effect," but added, "We're going to look at the entire situation ..."

"Beef prices probably will continue strong all summer," Bergland said. Demand for steaks and hamburger would not drop until Labor Day, he said.

Bergland forecast administration efforts to quell inflation, including rising food prices, would work, but solutions would not be immediate.

"We think things will settle down but it will take some time," he said.

Amid cool U.S.-Soviet relations, Bergland resisted using U.S. farm products as a weapon in international diplomacy. "If they can't buy it from us, they'll buy it from somewhere else," Bergland said.

Governor signs bills on cars, turns, litter

HARTFORD (UPI) — Gov. Ella T. Grasso today signed three of the legislative session's more controversial measures — the "anti-litter" bill, the right-turn-on red bill and the auto emission testing bill.

Under the anti-litter measure, the state will begin taxing virtually all Connecticut businesses in 1980 to finance a $3 million litter cleanup program.

Stores, restaurants, manufacturers and other firms that generate large quantities of trash will be taxed up to $9,000 a year. The money will be put in a special fund that will be used to pay for a variety of litter cleanup projects.

The measure also imposes stiff fines for littering and allows a judge to force a person guilty of discarding trash to work on a litter cleanup detail.

The anti-litter proposal — the brainchild of lawmakers who were traditionally opposed to the bottle bill — ended up becoming a companion measure to its foe when both measures cleared the Legislature.

Both laws will take effect Jan. 1, 1980 if the Legislature does not decide to repeal one of them during the next session.

Mrs. Grasso also penned a bill that will allow Connecticut motorists to make right turns at red lights after coming to a complete stop. The measure, which will take effect July 1, 1979, also contains a new bill of rights for pedestrians.

The governor also signed a bill that will require drivers to have their cars tested once a year for air-polluting auto emissions. The tests will be voluntary in 1980 and mandatory in 1981.

GOP registrar may enter 12th District race

By GREG PEARSON
Herald Reporter

Frederick Peck, Manchester's Republican registrar of voters, is interested in running for the 12th Assembly District seat, party sources have said.

Peck confirmed Wednesday that he is considering entering the race for the seat, although he has not formally announced his candidacy.

The district seat, which represents four of Manchester's 10 voting districts, is held by Rep. Theodote Cummings, who is completing his second term. Cummings, who also is Democratic town chairman, is expected to run again.

One Republican, Walter Joyner, already has announced his candidacy for the seat. He ran two years ago against Cummings and lost. That was Joyner's first run for any political office.

Another Republican, State Central Committee member Wallace Irish Jr., also had announced his candidacy for the seat in March. He withdrew about a month later because of other personal and business commitments.

The executive committee of Manchester's Republican Town Committee voted a month ago to support Joyner — at the time the only candidate from the party in the race. The vote was not a full endorsement, however, in case other candidates entered the race.

Peck said that he has been approached by some party leaders about running for the 12th District seat.

There is some concern that Joyner might be hurt by a disclosure three weeks ago that his firm has cleaned town libraries since 1963 without competitive bid procedures. Bid waivers for the work were waived each year by the Library Board and the Board of Directors, so there is no actual wrongdoing on the part of Joyner's firm.

Peck also said that he has discussed his running with some officials of the Eighth Utilities District, who have given him vocal support.

The Eighth District is within the 12th Assembly District and is not considered a strong area for Cummings.

Cummings long has advocated consolidation of the Eighth District with the Town of Manchester, a position that is unpopular with District officials and many of its residents.

Consolidation efforts have been stepped up since the beginning of this year. The most recent activity occurred Wednesday when the Committee for One Manchester, of which Cummings is a member, sued the District for its failure to establish a consolidation commission under the state's Home Rule Act.

Peck said that he has told Joyner of his interest in the race. Joyner could not be reached for comment on the matter.

Thomas Ferguson, Republican town chairman, is out of town and unavailable for comment.

Peter Sylvester, who heads the party's candidate selection committee, said that he did not want to comment on Peck's candidacy.

Peck also had been mentioned by some party members as a possible candidate in the Third Senatorial

28 to race Sunday in soap box derby

Twenty-eight handmade racers will be ready Sunday at noon to speed down Brookfield Street in Manchester's second annual soap box derby.

The Town Fire Department's Local Union 1579 is sponsor for the derby. Inspections and trial runs were held for all the racers last Saturday.

The youths in the derby will have a final inspection and weigh-in Sunday morning. The soap boxes can weigh a maximum of 200 pounds, including car and driver.

The double elimination race will be in the junior division only for ages 10 to 12.

The winner will be sent on an expense-paid trip to the All-American Soap Box Derby in Akron, Ohio, Aug. 12.

Last year's winner was Aidaa Breman of East Hartford.

Judges for the local derby will be Mayor Stephen Penny, Town Fire Chief John Rivas, Hank Seflora, 11, of the Bristol Soap Box Derby and Eugene Pinto, winner of the 1947 Manchester derby.

Spectators may view the derby from the Manchester High School lawn and parking will be in the MHS parking lot.

Proceeds from the derby will be used to start next year's derby and special youth fund.

The following participants are listed with their car number and sponsor:

Kimberly Barker, 1, Optical Style Bar; Stephen Lawler, 2, Manchester Jaycees; Paul Morrisette, 3, Al Siefert; Michael Sahr, 4, LeDout Construction; Mark Legey, 5, Lingard-Stank-Israh; Heidi Bauer, 6, Burger King; Robert Lovett, 7, Fuzz Auto Parts; Paul Martin, 8, Wyman Oil; Eric DeStefano, 9, D&R

Pair volunteer to direct camp

Knowing that nearly $2,000 has to be raised and many teen-age and adult volunteers found before the annual Interfaith Day Camp can open in July, Jeanne K. MacAllister and Susan M. Grant have offered to direct the camp this year.

The young women volunteered to direct the camp when they discovered it was in danger of closing if someone did not offer to take over the responsibility of running the day camp for 30 children from Hartford's inner city and an equal number of Manchester disadvantaged children.

The two-week day camp, which is scheduled to open July 1 at Concordia Lutheran Church, is sponsored by the Manchester Area Conference of Churches.

Teen-age volunteers are needed to serve as counselors to the campers on a one-to-one basis, to provide a personal relationship for each child. Many of the children come from troubled homes and need some personal attention and help with and to confide in. Nancy Carr, executive director of the conferences of churches, said.

Adult volunteers are needed to help primarily before and during the meal periods. They are also needed as arts and crafts instructors and in various other posts.

Individuals and organizations are being sought to sponsor one or more campers. A child can be sponsored for one week at camp for about $18, and for two weeks for $35.

The Manchester Junior Women's Club has donated $200 for camping equipment. Funds are still needed for food, art and crafts supplies, a bus to pick up Hartford and Manchester children and to take the children to Globe Hollow for swimming and for, perhaps, a day trip to Gay City. Insurance costs will also have to be met, Ms. Grant said.

The new camp directors for the past year have been associated with Project Open Door, federally funded pilot program in Manchester for the destitute and status offenders.

Ms. Grant was assistant director of Crossroads, Manchester's Drug Advisory Center, before joining the Project Open Door program. She previously was the community program director for Crossroads, and has spent four summers working for the town Recreation Department as a lifeguard, swimming instructor and playground supervisor.

Ms. MacAllister has done crisis counseling for Project Open Door and Crossroads. She has also been an advocate for the elderly at Manchester's Manor Care Assisted Living Home, and an advocate for youth at Crossroads.

The new camp directors have asked all those interested in helping to contact the Manchester Area Conference of Churches office, by calling 649-2093, or writing to P.O. Box 713, Manchester.

Food and fun, booths and a raffie will be featured at the East Catholic High School fair Friday and Saturday.

There will be booths selling plants, baked goods, holiday items, handmade jewelry and attic treasures.

For entertainment, there will be a dunking tank with teacher volunteers, face painting, sand painting and games for children and adults. Refreshments will be available throughout the fair.

Friday from 6 to 8 p.m., homemade New England clam chowder will be served.

Saturday from 4 to 7 p.m., a ham dinner will be available to the public.

Fair hours are from 6 to 10 p.m. Friday, and 10 a.m. to 10:30 p.m. Saturday. A car will be raffied at the close of the fair Saturday night.

The event is free and the public is invited.

Lack of warrant defeats keg in van mock case

The courtroom was filled Wednesday morning as interested observers witnessed a group of youths on trial for a disturbance at Case Mount.

Several boys and girls, some under legal age, were charged with taking alcoholic beverages and also delivering liquor to a minor, on town property.

The 12-member jury was composed of teen-age youths.

Testimony was given by the arresting officer, Manchester police officer James McCooe, who described the partying group which, he said, showed evidence of drinking alcoholic beverage.

Both McCooe and Kathy Smith, one of the youths arrested, identified the beer keg which was produced in court as evidence of that which was at the scene of the arrest.

A murmur went through the crowded courtroom when Officer McCooe indicated he had not a search warrant when he searched the van on the premises and found a beer keg.

After several other witnesses testified under questioning by the prosecuting attorney and Richard Kenny, defense attorney, the jury was excused for deliberation.

The jury was not out long before they returned and handed their decision to Judge Kevin O'Brien. He announced a verdict of "not guilty."

O'Brien explained later that the verdict was probably based on the fact that Officer McCooe did not have a search warrant when he searched the youths' van and found the beer barrel.

If something sounds a little strange about this trial, it is because this incident was a mock trial enacted by members of Elgin Zatorsky's Law and Order class at Manchester High School.

The Clarke Arena was the court room filled with second period students who watched attentively as their fellow students, assisted by members of the legal profession and the Manchester police, went through the motions of a court trial.

The incidents were fictitious, but the application could be real. That was the essence of the demonstration.

Savin awarded contract for Buckland roads

The Manchester Economic Development Commission (EDC) today approved a bid from Savin Bros. of Newtonington for road work at the new industrial park development.

Savin's low bid of $51,463 for relocation of Windsor Street and extending Croft Drive was one of two bids received by the town.

There were five or six outfits that took out plans for the job, Alan Lamson, town planner, said, but only two bids were received.

The commission voted to accept the bid with an alternate which eliminates the disposal of surplus material from the project, an $8,000 item. This will reduce the total bid to $50,000.

Lamson said that Fuss & O'Neill, consulting engineers recommended that another alternate having to do with landscaping be put out to separate bidding. This was listed as a $14,700 item in the Savin Bros. bid.

The other bidder on the industrial park road project was Arute Bros. of New Britain.

Lamson said that water trucks used for dust control at the new industrial park site construction are having a problem drawing enough water from an inland-wetland pond in the area. He said there aren't enough underground springs there to replenish the water as fast as the trucks want to take it out.

He told the commission there is a well on the site that produces 200 gallons per minute. It is the well that was formerly used to irrigate the surrounding tobacco fields.

Poison oak and ivy aren't just in woods

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Staying out of the woods won't necessarily protect you from poison ivy, oak and sumac. The first two also flourish in very dry soil on exposed hillsides. They grow three ways: as woody vines attached to trees or other objects for support; as ground-trailing shrubs and erect woody shrubs that stand without support. They often are abundant along old fence rows and edges of paths and runways. They ramble over walls, climb tree trunks and grow within their vines, where they can be overlooked easily.

Poison sumac grows as a coarse woody shrub or small tree, never as a vine. All three plants are severe skin irritants.

State offers camping guide

HARTFORD (UPI) — Two Connecticut camping guides, one for public lands and the other for private grounds, are available free from the state Department of Commerce.

In the brochures are general information, camping rules and fee schedules. The guide to public areas lists both state parks and forests and contains a complete reservation application. The private campgrounds guide, besides listing the areas, details all facilities and carries a map of Connecticut and a description of many of the state's historic houses.

The Connecticut Department of Commerce is also offering a free vacation kit to out-of-state visitors — a 40-page color book outlining Connecticut's attractions and accommodations together with an official road map.

To obtain the camping guides and/or the vacation kit, write: Travel, Connecticut Department of Commerce, 210 Washington Street, Hartford, Conn. 06106 or call 203-556-3385.

Hazard for joggers

An estimated 25 million joggers and runners are using city sidewalks, streets and highways in this spring weather. Many are taking a chance of running straight into trouble.

The great increase in jogging regularly for exercise concerns safety officials, reports the Insurance Information Institute. Accompanying the jogging boom is growing annoyance and often antagonism from motorists.

Almost one in five fatalities in motor-vehicle accidents during 1976 resulted from a collision between a vehicle and a pedestrian, according to the National Safety Council. About 8,300 pedestrians were killed and about 100,000 were injured.

Whether those totals will increase this year will depend at least in part, on the safety precautions joggers take. It offers these tips for safe running:

- Keep to the sidewalk when one is available. Circling the block several times may be monotonous, but it provides the same exercise as running in the street under far safer conditions.

I DIDN'T TELL YOU THAT I COULD TALK THROUGH MY TEETH - BUT I DID TELL YOU THAT I AM A BIG BASEBALL FAN!

I DON'T CARE? I STILL THINK IT'S A BIT MUCH DURING THE JUST AFTER-THE-WEDDING FORMAL PICTURE-TAKING!

Paper employment

By Martha Angell and Robert Walters

WASHINGTON (NEA) - While Richard Nixon's memoirs may not be setting the publishing world afire, his official papers are likely to keep government archivists gainfully employed for years to come.

The National Archives has just asked Congress for an extra $1.4 million for the four months remaining in the current fiscal year to speed its processing of 36 million pages of Nixon's presidential papers.

While the archivists are not listening to the famous tapes, they are running electronic checks on each one "to determine whether a signal is present or absent on all parts of the tapes," as an Archives press release tactfully put it. More 18-minute gaps, perhaps.

In a March 1975 report to Congress, National Archives officials had estimated they could process all the Nixon Watergate materials in three years with a staff of 103. But Congress wasn't in the mood to spend money on the former president, so the project has inched along with its skeletal staff of 13. The new authorization request would permit the hiring of 96 additional staffers.

Two of the current staff members have been pulled off the main Watergate project to process Nixon's pre-presidential papers, and to prepare them for public inspection.

Some 840,000 pages, just one-fourth of the materials, will be opened to the public. These are the papers Nixon donated to the government in 1968-69 and took a huge tax deduction on, later disallowed.

In Africa, Europe, the Middle East and Asia, said Z.B., the U.S. and Red China "can enhance the cause of peace through consultations and where appropriate through parallel pursuits of similar objectives." And Foreign Minister Huang Hua declared that "the shadow of (Russian) social-imperialism can be seen in almost all the changes and disturbances in almost every part of the world."

Now there is a meeting of minds in plain, unvarnished language: The Russians are villains. In baseball parlance, a dead Washington and Peking - and Barry Goldwater - could live with would benefit all sides.

Summing up problems

The Herald you will know about the elevator to be installed and the ramp to be built for the handicapped. It seems that you are trying to discourage the seniors by your remark about the school being dark. If this school is so dark, how did all the children who went to this school for so many years do so well in their studies?

Summing up your four problems:

1. The school is not easy to get to.
2. Traffic flow.
3. The confusion regarding the two major levels.
4. Hather dark.

The answer to your first reason: No matter where in Manchester we locate we have transportation of two buses to transport any senior citizen in any part of the town to the center. Referring to the traffic: We looked into this and was told by our police chief that this would be no problem. If you have been reading our plans in

Law on barking dogs

The editor:

I heard on the radio the legislative committee has given the Connecticut Department of Environmental Protection the power to quiet down noisy neighborhoods, air-conditions, loud parties and blaring rock concerts, but what have they done for loud barking dogs?

Is it fair to the neighbors (some retired) to have to listen to the barking of dogs whose owners both work but chain their dog outside from 5:30 every morning. Some people like to sleep later than 5:30 a.m.

Many complaints to the dog warden by neighbors have been to no avail. Are laws only for people? Maybe this is a dog's world.

It took Connecticut four years to enact the above regulation on noise control. Do you think we can have a dog control enforced soon? By someone - somewhere?

I suggest instead of raising people's taxes on property, a raise in dog licenses might help the situation. Barking dogs - do they violate the law? Do we have to listen to them all day and all night?

Thank you.

Accept half a loaf

By Andrew Tully

WASHINGTON - Jimmy Carter should invite his national security adviser, Zbigniew Brzezinski, and Sen. Barry Goldwater to dinner so they can get better acquainted.

Z.B. and the Arizona senator implicitly agree that it would be fine if the United States could put more pressure on the Soviet Union to stop meddling in the military.

Africa. Z.B. believes Communist China is just the partner we need in that enterprise. Goldwater probably would buy that, but there's this little snag:

It is that Z.B. wants full diplomatic relations with Peking, if necessary at the cost of tossing Taiwan onto the ash heap. Goldwater is vigorously opposed to deserting our Taiwanese ally so we can exchange tea and sympathy with the Chinese Reds.

Thus, we had Z.B. in Peking telling his hosts that Carter is "determined to join you in overcoming the remaining obstacles in the way to full normalization of our relations." The United States has made up its mind on this issue.

At the same time, the Heritage Foundation released a "Critical Issues" study by Goldwater in which he declared that it would be unconstitutional for the president to abrogate the mutual defense treaty with Taiwan without obtaining the approval of two-thirds of the Senate or both houses of Congress.

And, of course, Peking has insisted that before full relations can be established, the U.S. must sever diplomatic ties with Taiwan, abrogate the defense treaty, and withdraw the remaining 1000 American troops there. The Red Chinese repeatedly have insisted that these conditions are not subject to negotiation.

It seems to me that over coffee at Carter's place, Z.B. and Goldwater could reach a meeting of minds on the situation. Surely they could agree on an obvious fact of life, to wit, that Peking views the Soviet Union as the biggest threat to its national security.

Businessmen, workers urge signing of blue laws

HARTFORD (UPI) - A group of businessmen and workers, fearful Gov. Ella T. Grasso might veto a bill that would close large stores on Sundays in Connecticut, have urged her to sign it.

About 70 businessmen and workers from around the state staged a rally outside the Capitol Wednesday to urge Mrs. Grasso to retain the centuries-old blue laws.

In recent weeks, the governor has indicated she will take some action on the measure reimplementing the latest form of Sunday closings approved by the 1978 Legislature. But Mrs. Grasso has not said yet whether that action will be a veto or a signature.

Apparently, the sign-waving pickets outside the Capitol felt the chief executive might reject the new Sunday closing legislation, designed to replace the state's old law, which was declared unconstitutional by a lower court judge two years ago.

The demonstrators handed out leaflets urging people to write Mrs. Grasso asking her to sign the bill.

"Informed sources in the Legislature say she might veto it," said Leslie Sloan, general manager of the Morrison's Stores and leader of the gathering.

At a news conference at SNET's headquarters, Dick Donofrio, a division staff manager, said the advertising campaign has had only "moderate success."

He said directory assistance calls will cost the phone company about $11.7 million next year if the plan is not approved by the P.U.C.A. If it is approved, Donofrio said the service would only cost the phone company about $7.9 million.

SNET asks to charge for information calls

HARTFORD (UPI) - The Southern New England Telephone Co. wants to start charging consumers who call the operator for a phone number rather than look it up in the book.

The firm filed papers Wednesday with the Public Utilities Control Authority asking to implement the "call allowance" program, which would provide an estimated $1.2 million a year in additional revenue.

The P.U.C.A. will hold hearings on the proposal before making a decision. SNET officials are hoping the P.U.C.A. will approve the plan so it can go into effect by October.

Under the plan, similar to ones already in effect in 22 states, residential and business customers would be given five free directory assistance calls each month. Every call after that would cost 20 cents.

The blind and physically handicapped would not be included. Calls from bookstores, hospitals, hotels, motels and out-of-state exchanges would also be exempt.

In recent years, the telephone company has waged a television and radio advertising war against callers who use directory assistance operators a regular basis.

At a news conference at SNET's headquarters, Dick Donofrio, a division staff manager, said the advertising campaign has had only "moderate success."

Thought

On energy

A youth home, run by a church, and serving 100 boys and girls in the state of Wisconsin, recently constructed a few facility using solar energy.

A news reporter, covering dedication ceremonies, asked the question, "Why solar?"

The director of the home responded, "Because solar represents a decision made in the best traditions of our faith. It exemplifies an informed awareness of our existence within an exhaustive and finite environment of which we are a unique part. We have the power to revolutionize and resurrect, to shape a new world."

The Genesis account of creation which directs us to "have dominion over all the earth," calls us to use wisely and well the resources placed at our disposal.

Evidence is against labor 'reform' bill

By LEE RODERICK

WASHINGTON - As the Senate dived on in its filibuster of the so-called labor-reform bill the other day, a startling indictment of the labor legislation came from an unusual place: an agency of the Carter administration itself.

The president is heavily committed to winning Senate approval of this, the AFL-CIO's priority piece of legislation, which already has passed the House.

To that end, the administration suppressed a key report by its own Small Business Administration for three months. The highly critical report was finally released after Sen. Orrin Hatch (R-Utah) demanded to see a copy of it.

Written by SBA's Office of Advocacy, the previously secret document said the bill "would trip the delicate balance which exists between small business and labor in favor of the latter." It notes that in 1976, unions won 58.6 percent of their organizing elections in firms with 10 or fewer employees, compared to 50 percent in firms with up to 500 employees.

Among other things, the bill would: expand the National Labor Relations Board and allow it to set wages for newly unionized workers if it is believed an employer did not bargain in good faith; award employees fired for union organizing activities time-and-a-half in back pay; and allow unions to both petition workers on company time and property and call for elections in as little as 15 days after an organizing petition were signed by a majority of workers.

The SBA report calls the proposed voting deadlines "quicker elections," labels other parts of the measure "intempestively discriminatory," and says a free and fair election that they desire union representation, our laws should provide them with the opportunity to bargain with their employer within a reasonable time."

The problem, of course, lies in what Williams and Meany on one hand would call "a free and fair election" and how the many opponents of the bill would define those terms.

Most Americans, it appears, come down on the side of those opposed to the labor bill. Again from a source of information close to the White House comes strong evidence to that end. Namely: a recent poll of Cambridge Reports Inc., a respected polling firm headed by none other than President Carter's own pollster, Patrick Caddell.

The survey, taken between April 20 and May 15, showed that "the largest single 'reform' desired by the most respondents was a reduction of labor union power," according to a summary of its findings. The second reform most widely wanted was "controls on strikes."

Fifteen oppose plan for new river dikes

By CHRIS BLAKE
Herald Reporter

EAST HARTFORD — About 15 residents, most of whom live in a neighborhood near the Connecticut River, opposed the raising and extension of dikes along to rivers in town at a public hearing Wednesday night. One person at the hearing spoke in favor of the dikes.

The Army Corps of Engineers is studying plans which involve raising the dike by 4.2 feet and extending it to meet high ground.

Before the hearing, Col. Ralph T. Garver, a deputy division engineer for the corps, said, "We haven't made up our minds on anything yet. We are willing to hear all comments and consider all options here tonight."

In 1955 and again in 1957, she was elected to the board of governors of the Hebrew University.

Garver explained the plans, which could cost as much as $12,425,000 or as little as $5,300,000. The higher option would cost the town $425,000 and the lower plan would cost East Hartford $160,000. The federal government would pay the rest.

The cost depends upon which option, if any, is chosen, Garver said. Most of the residents who oppose the dike live on either Floralade Drive or Mohawk Drive, two areas not covered by the existing dike.

Silvio Conte of 80 Mohawk Drive said, "I like the ducks, the raccoons, the pheasants. I like things just the way they are."

Rose Marie O'Dea of 40 Floralade Drive also opposed the dikes on environmental grounds. Mrs. O'Dea said she represented "me and the ducks in the swamp that you're trying to get rid of."

Mrs. Leo Bourque of 1829 Main St. said a concrete wall planned to divide the back lot properties on Greene Terrace and the adjacent Floralade Drive "is a division of two long-established residences that have existed for 30 years."

Others opposed the dike plan as costly compared to the aim dikes of a major flood. Garver said the existing dike offers protection from all floods except those which exceed the "100 year flood" level.

Casimir Cerniauskas, of 98 Mohawk Drive said, "I've been here 13 years and I haven't seen any flood even reach my property line. And I'm 14 feet from the flood line."

Cerniauskas urged the corps to "take your bulldozers and push them back on the Connecticut River."

Allen S. Freshler of 505 Burnside Ave. introduced himself as "a concerned taxpayer." He said residents of the flood plain "put themselves under a certain risk when they bought their property."

"I do believe it's the responsibility of all taxpayers to provide additional safety measures for these people," he said.

John McMahon was the only person who favored the dike at the hearing. Saying he had lived through a couple of floods, McMahon added, "God pity the people who will lose a few feet of land."

McMahon said, "I also had ducks as a kid. I say let's protect wildlife, not at the cost of protecting people."

Anthony Fornabi of 102 Mohawk Drive said the concrete wall of the dike would become a target for vandals.

"Looking out my back door," Fornabi said, "I don't feel like looking at four-letter words on the walls."

The corps said it would use the comments on the dike to aid in further study of the proposal.

East Hartford police report

Kenneth R. Righenzi was charged with third-degree burglary and third-degree larceny Wednesday. He is being held on $3,000 bond. Righenzi's case was continued until June 7.

James E. Godin, 23, of no certain address, was handed an additional charge in connection with an incident at Pratt and Whitney Aircraft. Godin was arrested Tuesday night and charged with first-degree criminal trespass, failure to keep narcotics in a proper container, criminal impersonation, and failure to submit to fingerprinting.

Police added risk of injury to a female minor to those charges.

William J. Melligan Jr., 32, of Mason Street in Palmer Mass., was charged with four counts of obtaining controlled substance by fraud and four counts of use of a false name and address Wednesday.

Melligan was released on a written promise to appear in court Friday.

Jose H. Salas, 18, of 453 Park Ave. was arrested at his home and charged with escape from custody. Salas was one of 10 prisoners who were taken to the public defender's office Wednesday morning.

Salas thought he had posted a $50 bond, so he went home Wednesday afternoon. His original charge was breach of peace.

Women's clubs plan Hole In One contest

EAST HARTFORD — The Connecticut State Federation of Women's Clubs will host a Hole In One contest Sunday at 40 golf courses around the state including the East Hartford Golf Course of Long Hill Street.

The contest at the local course will be run by the Woman's Club of East Hartford and the Junior Woman's Club. It will run from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Mrs. Sandra Williams, president of the juniors, said the contest will be held at a designated hole as golfers play their regular game.

The course's pro shop will give a $200 gift certificate to all the golfers who get a hole in one. The shop will give $10 and $2 certificates for golfers hitting into the inner and outer circles at the hole. Golfers will pay $1 for each try.

Mrs. Justine Ferris, president of the Woman's Club, and Mrs. Williams are cochairpersons of the event. The contest is under the direction of the juniors and the Professional Golfers Association (PGA).

Grasso signs measure for farm preservation

HARTFORD (UPI) — Gov. Ella T. Grasso Wednesday signed into law a two-year, $5 million pilot program designed to keep real estate developers from gobbling up what's left of Connecticut's farmland.

In a bill-signing ceremony in her Capital office, the governor also penned measures to compensate victims of serious crimes, to allow an accused to use his grand jury transcript to show a witness has lied and to permit state employees to run for municipal office.

Under the farm preservation law, the Department of Agriculture will buy development rights from farmers who are considering selling their land to real estate developers.

The farmers can remain on their land as long as they continue to use it for agricultural purposes.

Under the victim compensation bill, a person convicted of a crime, including a motor vehicle violation, will be required to pay a $10 fine over and above any sentence he or she received for his crime.

Judge criticized
HARTFORD (UPI) — A state legislator has called for an investigation of a judge who told the prosecutor in dismissing an attempted rape charge against a man: "You can't blame somebody for trying."

Rep. Paul LaRosa, D-Hartford, Wednesday said Common Pleas Court Judge Walter Pickett should resign if the comment was typical of his bench conduct.

The case involved Raymond Labelle, 25, of Hartford.

Dumps in parks
HARTFORD (UPI) — Connecticut environmental officials are looking into the possibility of dumping the state's trash in state forest and park lands because of a new law restricting landfill sites.

Environmental Protection Commissioner Stanley Pac said Wednesday he has told department ecologists and regional administrators to check for possible dump sites in the state's 190,000 acres of park.

He said the problem is a new state law that gives communities the right to reject new landfill sites.

Appeal decision
HARTFORD (UPI) — The town of Bloomfield is appealing a court decision ordering that the names of seven police officers disciplined after a stag party be made public.

The appeal, filed in state Supreme Court Wednesday by town attorney Leo Rosen, said the release of the information would be an invasion of the officers' privacy.

Couple fights for parental rights

By MAL BARLOW
Herald Reporter

EAST HARTFORD — "I've been kicked around all my life," said Edward Paquin, 42, of 3 Indian Hill St.

"And so has my wife."
The latest kick to the Paquins is coming from the State of Connecticut. The state Department of Children and Youth Services (DCYS) wants to put Mrs. Paquin's first-born child up for adoption and the Paquins are fighting it. The child, Mary Ann Gutunjan, 4, is now in a foster home downstate.

The couple is supposed to go to court June 12 to contest the state's plan, he said. They have not contested the foster home setup for over two years, he said. What they object to most is the state's refusal to let them see the child and now to the state's insistence the mother give up all parental rights to Mary Ann, he said.

Early kicks
Paquin was a young boy in East Hartford living with his mother alone. She had a great deal of difficulty managing. The state took him and placed him in a series of foster homes in the Manchester and East Hartford areas.

"I went from one place to another," he said. He attended a series of schools before finally leaving school altogether when enrolled in East Hartford High School, he said.

He said he had a series of brushes with the law when young. He married several times and had a child by one of his wives. At one point, he was living on the west coast and both he and his wife had given up custody of the child to the state.

The state sent him papers then and asked him to sign them to allow the state to give his child up for adoption. He refused to sign them. When he returned to Connecticut, he could not find the child. It had been adopted without his consent by a little-used state law allowing the attorney general to sign in his absence, he said.

"I've been in a lot of trouble with the law," said Paquin. He admitted to serving time for arson and forgery.

"There was drinking behind it," he said. "Since 1970, though, I haven't been in any serious trouble. I've been in AA (Alcoholics Anonymous)."

A child mother
Paquin's wife, the former Laura Mary Gutunjan, 22, of Bridgeport, got her kicks also starting in her childhood. Her parents had split up early and she traveled between the two of them as a child.

She and Paquin said she began drinking heavily and "running around" as a teenager. She became pregnant and gave birth out of wedlock to Mary Ann when she was only 17. The father denied in court he was the father and Mrs. Paquin was on her own to raise the child. She went on state welfare and got an apartment without a bathroom.

Paquin met her in November of 1975 and took her and the baby to live with him and his last wife. He is proud of his part in making sure Mary Ann got decent clothing and food.

"The child was protected when I was there," he said.
Mrs. Paquin said her father convinced her to lie to police and say Paquin had beaten the baby. He was arrested and charged with risk of injury to a minor child and spent 37 days in jail waiting for a trial. But before trial, she withdrew her story and said she had lied. A doctor said the child had not been beaten, he said.

"Under no circumstances did I ever touch the child," he said.
The state DCYS took the child June 2, 1976 and placed her in a foster home. Each time Mrs. Paquin went to see her accompanied by Paquin, the state would not allow her to see the child, he said.

"They were using my past record against me," he said.
Second child
After the Paquins married, she gave birth to Edward Paquin Jr. in October, 1976 at Manchester Memorial Hospital.
During their care of the child, Mrs. Paquin "got mad one night" and broke the baby's leg, he said.
Edward Jr. went to a foster home and later went to an adoption home through the Lutheran Family Services. The Rev. Ronald Fournier of Emanuel Church in Manchester helped the Paquins through this.

"He has helped more poor people than anyone knows," said Paquin.
"I feel it was the right decision to make at that time. But they (the state) is using it to get Mary Ann away from us now."
Mrs. Paquin suffered greatly at the time, he said. To help her, he took her to Oregon for many months. But both of them missed their home and they came back.
Still, the state would not let them see Mary Ann. In fact, the state now wanted her to give up her rights and allow the child to be adopted.

Mrs. Paquin said, "I was afraid. I was drinking and unhappy. I'm not afraid now. I'm better."
She pointed a tattoo on her right arm with "Eddie" printed in it.
"See," she said. "I'm his forever."
He said she is now learning to cook and care for their home they share with his mother. He expects her to now be a fine mother as well as the wife he has loved the most, he said.

About her child due in June, they both said they are now ready to take the best care of it.
"I want this baby very much," she said.
"We are going to raise the child the best we can," he said.
It will be either James Edward or Janet Marie Paquin and will be born by caesarian section at Hartford Hospital, they said.

"Laura gets depressed about the children," he said. "She feels she hurt me by losing the two children. I had intended to adopt Mary Ann."
"Then the welfare stepped in."
He said they are going to fight the new court action by the state despite having no money and no lawyer of their own.

Highway department will open new exit ramps on Monday

VERNON — The State Department of Transportation has announced it will open the new on and off ramps in the Vernon area of Interstate 86 on Monday at 9 a.m.
The new ramps were put in conjunction with the highway reconstruction project in the Vernon and Tolland areas.
A new off-ramp will be opened from the highway westbound to Mile Hill Road (Exit 58) and the present off-ramp will be closed.
In addition, the on-ramp from Bolton Road to the highway, eastbound, will be opened to traffic at the same time.
The highway is being widened to accommodate three additional lanes.

AARP banquet
The Vernon Area Chapter of the American Association of Retired Persons will have its annual banquet June 12 at noon at the Rockville United Methodist Church on Grove Street.
The banquet will be held from 6 to 8 p.m. at the Rockville United Methodist Church on Grove Street.
The program will include a dinner, a presentation of the year's award for the best member, and a performance by the choir.

The choir group, made up of members and Mrs. Joan Mortimer, will entertain with vocal selections. The deadline for obtaining tickets for the banquet is June 8. For tickets contact Ann Loos, 14 Maple Ave., Broad Brook, 823-5381.

Council will have special meeting on budget tonight

By CLAIRE CONNELLY
Herald Correspondent

COVENTRY — The Town Council will hold a special meeting tonight at 7:30 at the Town Hall to map a plan of action, following defeat of its 1978-79 budget proposal at a referendum on May 25.

At an emergency meeting following the vote in which more than 1,600 residents participated, embittered councilmembers Patricia White and Karen Nash introduced a motion urging the council to re-submit the same budget to another town meeting.

They wanted another $1,700 tacked onto the package to pay for the referendum, which after officials said, cost the town nothing extra since the Salvation Army land purchase was also scheduled for a referendum on that date. This motion was defeated.

Council chairman Jack Myles was undecided which action to take, believing that some people voted down the budget because it was too high, and others because it was too low. Councilman Douglas Whipple proposed cutting the education budget and slicing the police chief's pay from $18,000 to $15,000.

Roberta Koontz could not suggest any cuts. She proposed that the council appropriate such surplus and other revenues in order to hold the mill rate down.
Town Manager Frank Connolly told the council that annual tax notices will not go out on July 1 as scheduled because the mill rate has not been set. The council's $4.8 million budget would have hiked the rate from 70 to 72 mills.

The Coventry Business Association and the Coventry Taxpayers' Association had both taken out advertisements urging a "no" vote on the budget because it is too high. The Republican Town Committee had formed a referendum on the budget by circulating petitions that required the council to adjourn the town meeting to the ballot boxes.

Thomas Welles, chairman of the business association, pointed out that the real increase in spending proposed by the council was 11.43 percent. He added that the town faced re-evaluation of property in two years, which would result in higher taxes for most homeowners.
Welles also suggested that a full-time town planner was no longer needed now that DeCo had dropped its plans to increase the town's population by 20,000 people. "Perhaps our ex-planner, now town manager, could assist part-time," Welles stated, adding that "35 to 40 new houses per year does not warrant five to six people in the building and planning office."

Former Town Councilman Robert Olmstead also placed an ad opposing the budget. "In reality you are being asked to approve an eight plus mill increase in spending in a year in which our revenues and grand list will have increased 6 mills," Olmstead said. "Thus the 2 mill increase."

Board vacancies
Town Clerk Elizabeth Ryehling is seeking volunteers to fill several vacancies on local boards and commissions.
William Lott has resigned from the Cemetery Commission leaving vacant a term that will expire on Nov. 7, 1979. A seat is open on the Board of Health due to the resignation of Geraldine Hansen. This term runs through Nov. 7, 1979.
William Ayer has left his place on the Parks and Recreation Commission. The term was to run through Jan. 1, 1979.

Anyone interested in serving should contact the town clerk at the Town Hall or write directly to the Town Council. Republicans should contact their Town Committee chairmen. Larry Knight to obtain party endorsement. Democrats should contact Ruth Benoit, chairman of the Democratic Town Committee.

Mission accomplished
As you can see, the project was a success, the lift-off was perfect. The rockets were made as a final activity of a science unit on space. More than 50 rockets of various sizes were launched at Bolton Elementary School Wednesday. Some rockets even carried payloads. One fragile payload consisted of a raw egg. It was unbroken when it parachuted down. While fourth graders launched, Grade 7 and 8 students used some geometry skills to calculate the height each rocket achieved. (Herald photo by Pinto)

Complex is rejected by referendum vote
HEBRON — In a referendum Wednesday, the voters of Hebron voted overwhelmingly to reject a $990,000 proposed Town Office Building Firehouse complex.

A total of 793 residents voted, approximately 29 percent of those eligible to vote. Only 53 voted in favor, while 740 voted in opposition.
First Selectman Aaron Reid said that he was sorry to see the project defeated after years of study. However, he said he will strive to present the project again in a "more acceptable form."

Emery N. Taylor of Bass Lake Road, one of the residents who circulated the petition calling for a referendum, said "I believe a firehouse is really needed, but it should be put at a different location at some time in the future."
The proposed project was to be connected to the town office building on Church Street. It included renovations to the town office building, 3,600 square feet at a cost of $15 per square foot; new office space, 4,600 square feet at a cost of $50 per square foot; and an 8,400 square foot fire station at between $60 to $65 per square foot.

Fire Chief William V. Borst said that while he was disappointed the project was not approved because of the work that went into it, it appears that it was the wrong proposal at the wrong time. However, the department does appreciate many expressions of support for a separate firehouse and thanks those who expressed support for a new Company One fire station.

John Baron of Burnt Hill Road said "Now that we won it, I have nothing to say. This is what (the referendum) we should do on (the town) budgets... put them on the machine, too."
Raymond Bart, Selectman said "It looks like we start over again."

Republicans will host candidate
COVENTRY — State Rep. Gerald Stevens, House minority leader, will address the Republican Town Committee at its regular monthly meeting on Tuesday at 8 p.m. at the Town Hall on Route 31.

Stevens is seeking the GOP nomination for governor, along with State Sen. Lewis Rome and Congressman Ronald Sarasin. Both Rome and Sarasin have conflicting meetings on June 6 but asked if the town committee could set an alternative night to meet with them.

Stevens attended a town committee function in Coventry earlier this year and was sharply critical of Gov. Ella Grasso's fiscal policies. He is expected to discuss his budgetary recommendations Tuesday night.

The Republicans will also take up the Town Council's proposed budget, which was defeated in a referendum on May 25. The town committee had sponsored the petition drive that brought the budget to a referendum, instead of being decided at the annual town meeting, as in past years.

The group is also expected to endorse candidates to local boards and commissions and to finalize plans for the upcoming delegate conventions.

Pittsburgh in Hamburg
HAMBURG, West Germany (UPI) — The Pittsburgh Symphony orchestra under chief conductor Andre Previn will give six concerts in West Germany in late May and early June — in Munich, Stuttgart, Bonn, Frankfurt, Berlin and Hannover.

The Berlin-born Previn became chief conductor of the Pittsburgh in 1976. He also is chief conductor of the London Symphony.

Bloodmobile will visit Rham Friday
ANDOVER — A bloodmobile will be held at Rham High School Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. The event is being sponsored by the student faculty senate under the supervision of the American Red Cross.

The Columbia chapter of the Red Cross which comprises the towns of Andover, Hebron and Marlborough has five blood-mobiles each year. The quota for each one is 80 pints of blood.

Persons from age 18 through 66 may donate blood. Seventeen-year-olds may donate if they have a Red Cross permission slip signed by a parent or guardian.

Mrs. Susan Tracy Topfiff, 65, of 54 Union St., died this morning at Manchester Memorial Hospital after suffering an apparent heart attack at her home. She was the wife of Harold A. Topfiff Sr.

Mrs. Topfiff was born June 6, 1912 in Windham and had lived in Manchester most of her life. Before retiring five years ago, she had been employed as lead lady in maintenance personnel of Pratt and Whitney Division of United Technologies Corp., East Hartford, for 18 years.

She was a member of Second Congregational Church and the Mary Williams Group. She also belonged to the Aircraft Club, Manchester Senior Citizens and Manchester Chapter, American Association of Retired Persons.

She is also survived by three sons, Harold A. Topfiff Jr. of Manchester, Walter E. Topfiff of Vernon and Robert A. Topfiff of Coventry; two daughters, Mrs. Melvin (Betty) Jewell of Manchester and Ralph (Lois) Franklin of Tolland; two sisters, Mrs. Irene Copeland of Manchester and Miss Florence Tracy of Somers; 18 grandchildren and a great-granddaughter.

The funeral is Saturday at 1 p.m. at Holmes Funeral Home, 400 Main St. The Rev. Dr. James MacEachern, pastor of Second Congregational Church, will officiate. Burial will be in Buckland Cemetery.

Friends may call at the funeral home Friday from 3 to 5 and 7 to 9 p.m.

The family suggests that any memorial gifts may be made to the Second Congregational Church Memorial Fund.

Directors postpone sewer rate changes

By ALICE EVANS Herald Reporter

Manchester's Board of Directors, after hearing complaints on proposed sewer rate changes from three major users of the system, including the Eighth District and industries, the board has decided to postpone consideration of the rate change until its Tuesday night meeting.

Under the rate change plan, the board would raise the sewer rate for most users of the system, including the Eighth District and industries, the largest users of the system, would be paying higher rates. The average sewer rate would either decrease or remain the same. This change is necessary because the federal government is requiring communities to charge for sewer service on a flat-rate basis, which would eliminate a discount for large users.

Spokesman for the Eighth District, Lyndee, Inc. and Cheney Bros., all complained that the town had not provided enough notice for the proposed changes. Leonard Jaskol, president of Colonial Fiber Division and group executive of Lydall Inc., said he was dismayed when he read in the newspaper that the town was considering a sewer rate increase, having received no prior notice of the increase from the town.

He said that the change would add about $25,000 a year to Lydall's bill and that the change was "a town and a half."

The board is expected to meet Tuesday, Mayor Penny said he had been wrestling with the problem for several days and had not decided how the town should handle charges for the large volume users.

"I think we should digest what we have received tonight as input and come to a decision Tuesday," Penny said.

East Hartford squad blanked

By LEN AUSTER Herald Sportswriter

You couldn't fault the strategy of East Hartford baseball Coach Al Lussier of electing to go with No. 2 hurler Bob Ouellette. You win the first round tilt, go with ace Gregg McEowan in the quarterfinals and follow the cycle until you arrive in the finals with McEowan pitching.

It was sound reasoning as Ouellette, junior right-hander, pitched superbly in yesterday's Class L Division first round tilt in East Hartford. But first rounder Pierce was better, losing a three-hitter as the 15th-ranked Blue Devils upset the "B" CCL champion Hornets, 2-0.

It was a classic pitcher's duel, featuring sparkling defense on both sides, with Plainville breaking through with two outs in the bottom of the eighth inning the Devils won the coin flip determining home team. They threatened in the seventh as Paul Palmese walked a lead off double out Ouellette retired the next three in order.

The strike, however, ran out in the eighth as Brian Fico drew a walk. Pierce then won his own contest with a double just inside the third base bag and he scored as left-handed swinging Jim Cummings forced off a go. Ouellette offering on his first and dumped a single to shallow right.

"What an ending!" Lussier sadly observed. "We didn't hit. We did everything but hit. When we did hit they came up with the defensive plays. And the kid pitched a heckuva game."

Pierce, 41, silenced the hard-hitting Hornets on three hits and didn't allow a runner to reach third. "I don't have what you'd call an ace. We like to consider the kid on the mound for the day our ace," voiced a happy Plainville Coach Ron Jones.

Pierce had excellent control walking none while striking out seven. He was most of the Devil offense with three of the five safeties collected off Ouellette. Plainville, now 14-1, advances to Saturday's quarterfinals where it'll face Naugauk at a site and time to be announced. East Hartford finishes 16-3.

Ouellette, 6-3, was touched for five hits, walked three and fanned nine. "It's too bad we have to go away with a bad taste after a super season we had. But you always remember the last game," Lussier stated.

He likes to consider the kid on the mound for the day our ace," voiced the services of senior second baseman Joe Scanlon, a .315 stickler, who sustained a broken right index finger when hit by a pitch in the regular season finale against Perryville.

Clancy takes boom out of Boston bats

BOSTON (UPI) — Jim Clancy

has taken the boom out of the Boston Red Sox bats. The 21-year-old right-hander fanned eight Wednesday in leading the cellar-dwelling Toronto Blue Jays to a 6-2 win over the American League East leader. The win snapped a four game Toronto losing streak and ended Boston's eight game winning streak. The Red Sox remained three games up on the New York Yankees, who lost 3-2 to Baltimore.

Rockville, Coventry winners

Two area clubs had first round State Baseball Tournament tilts yesterday and both advanced to the quarterfinals with victories.

Sixth-ranked Rockville High advanced to the Class LL Division quarterfinals with a 10-1 rout of 11th-seeded Fitch High in Rockville. The Rams, now 14-5 for the season, will face third-ranked Trumbull High Friday at a site and time to be announced.

Coventry High, sixth ranked in the Class S Division, moved to the round of eight with a 9-4 win over 11th-ranked Torrington yesterday in Coventry. The Patriots, now 14-5 for the season, will face third-ranked Woodstock Academy Saturday at a site and time to be announced.

Russ Allen gained the pitching win for Rockville, striking out 11. Tom Balon and Mark Moccio each had three hits with the latter driving in two runs.

Coventry exploded for seven runs in the second inning and that was all for Torrington. Curt LeDoy went five innings for the Patriots and recorded the win.

Ready or not

NEWPORT, R.I. (UPI) — Ready or not, Newport is getting another summer visitor from the brass Ted Turner.

Turner, who piloted Courageous to the 1977 America's Cup, said he'll return this summer as a "skipper in Coventry" to the U.S. Open Fitch team.

Boats from six countries are expected to compete in the week-long competition. The final event is the Newport-to-Bermuda race, which takes about five days.

Police report

An 18-year-old motorcyclist received multiple abrasions as the result of an accident in front of Manchester High School Wednesday morning. John W. Pinkham, 18, of 29 Bank St. was treated and released from Manchester Memorial Hospital following the accident.

Police said Pinkham's motorcycle was struck by an eastbound vehicle on East Middle Turnpike when he pulled out of the high school driveway. The other vehicle was driven by Thomas K. Orlovski, 18, of 176 Brent Road. The motorcycle skidded on its side across the road and came to rest against a pole where Pinkham was thrown off. Police said Pinkham was charged with failure to yield the right of way to traffic when emerging from a driveway.

Edwin Perez, 19, of Hartford was charged Wednesday with improper use of marker plate and operating a motor vehicle without a license. Court date is June 13.

Martin J. Hansen, 17, of 95 W. Middle Turnpike was charged with misuse of a registration plate and operating an unregistered motorcycle Wednesday morning. Court date is June 13.

John J. Piscitano, 41, of 225-Center St. was charged with fourth-degree larceny in connection with a shoplifting incident at King's department store Wednesday. He was released on a non-surety bond for court June 12. Police made 16 motor vehicle arrests Wednesday.

A burglary was reported at an Oakland Street residence Wednesday night. About $1,200 worth of stereo equipment was stolen.

Attempted burglaries were reported at an Oak Street apartment early today and at an Ott Street residence Tuesday afternoon. There was no injury in either case.

Assault probed

The Manchester Police detective bureau was continuing an investigation today of an attempted sexual assault of a 17-year-old student at East Catholic High School Tuesday morning.

Police said the incident occurred when the student went to his locker at 6:45 a.m. and was confronted by a white male between the ages of 25 and 30. He was grabbed around the neck and pulled into the men's restroom where the attempted sexual assault occurred. Police said the student screamed and the assailant ran off and escaped from the building.

Valentine attacks ball and then rival pitcher

NEW YORK (UPI) — Mont-

real's Ellis Valentine, who had helped stake Rudy May to a 4-0 lead with a three-run homer to complete a three-game sweep of Chicago Wednesday night, attacked Cub catcher Dave Rader after drawing a fifth-inning walk, claiming the Cubs were throwing at him.

After the Expos rolled to a 9-1 victory, Valentine said, "I'd been getting knocked down lately and I'm up to my neck with it."

Valentine punched Rader to the ground, both benches emptied. When order was restored, Valentine was ejected by home-plate umpire Doug Harvey. Rader was removed later in the same inning — by his manager.

Valentine's attack on Rader was the first time in the 100-year history of the major leagues that a pitcher was ejected for hitting a catcher.

"I thought that was off the wall," said Cubs manager Leo Durocher.

The incident occurred during the eighth inning of a 9-1 victory by the Expos over the Cubs. Valentine, 25, was ejected for striking Rader, 36, in the head.

Sinicropo paces scholastic golf

Manchester High golf team dropped a pair of decisions yesterday at Rockledge Country Club in West Hartford. The Indian linksman fell 4-1 to East Hartford High and 3-2 to host Hall High.

Manchester now stands 6-11-1 in the CCHL and 12-14-1 overall. It finishes regular season play Wednesday against Berlin and East Saybrook at Clinton Country Club in a makeup match.

East Hartford's Al Sinicropo took medalist honors with a one-over par 73. He toured the back nine in even par 36. Manchester's Dave Thomas also had a fine round carding a three-over par 75. Hall had two other performers, Larry Stein, Bob Kent and Jon Zieky, each finishing 77s.

Results: Manchester vs. Hall — Thomas (M) def. Stein 1-up, Kent (H) def. Zieky 4-3, Zieky (H) def. Dolin 4-2, Bickford (M) def. Sheppard 1-up, Hall won medal point, 314-323.

Three times and out...maybe

They say the third time is golden and that's what it'll be for Manchester High girls' softball team as it will face Fairfield for a third time.

Enfield, 1978 CCHL champs, topped Bridgeport Central yesterday, 6-4, and will meet the Silk Towners in a Class II, Division quarterfinal Friday afternoon at the KofC Field in Plainville at 3:15.

Manchester, 16-3, advanced to the quarterfinals Tuesday with an 8-1 win over Stamford High.

Two of Manchester's three setbacks have been to Enfield, 11-3 and 8-3. The Raiders have a 17-2 record.

East Catholic girls bow in tennis event

Hopes of being three-time state Class M Girls' Tennis champs went out the window for East Catholic High as its two doubles teams were ousted in first round play yesterday at Roger Ludlowe High in Fairfield.

"It was a much tougher division this year," confessed Coach Jack Redmond. "They changed the numbers (moving schools from higher classification in process) and it was much stronger this year."

The top-seeded tandem of Anne Marie Cannata and Kathy Viola was eliminated by a pair from Branford by 6-4, 2-6, 7-5 scores. The second edge pair of Sharon Kuczyński and Katie Sullivan were sent to the sidelines by another pair from Branford by 6-2, 4-6, 6-3 scores.

Freshman Monica Murphy suffered her first loss of the year, 6-3, 2-6, 6-3 to Maloney High's Nancy Filipek, who is second ranked with an unblemished mark.

"Monica played a helluva match," Redmond stated. Murphy served at 3-4 in the final set and the game took 20 minutes before Filipek broke through, winning the match by holding serve in the ninth game.

The lone East survivor is senior Kellie White, state Class M runnerup in 1978 and semifinalist a year ago. She topped Nancy Snow of Watertown 6-3 to advance to today's second round.

"It was a disappointing tournament performance after a great season," Redmond stated. East had a perfect 10-0 record in the campaign just completed.

Manchester High in the Class I Division tournament at Wilton High had its two doubles teams eliminated in the first round. Laura Burnett-Cindy Formica was ousted by a pair from Southington High, 6-4, 6-2. The team of Kathy McCann-Diane Whiter was ousted by a pair from Andrew Ward High in Fairfield, also in straight sets, 6-0, 6-0. Lori McCurry was the lone individual winner, topping Cindy DeLoe of Southington in singles in straight sets, 6-0, 6-4. McCurry advanced to today's second round.

Manchester's other entry in singles, sophomore Sue Roth, was eliminated by Debbie Kallen of Comard, 6-0, 6-0.

16 Eagle qualifiers set for State Meet

One of the top contenders for the State Class M Boys Track Championship is East Catholic and the Eagles proved it yesterday with 16 qualifiers at the Class M Sectional at Guilford High.

The Class M Meet will be Saturday at Middletown High beginning at noon. "We have a shot at the state title," notes East Coach George Sallor. He added that Middletown High will be the favorite.

Sophomore Rudy Mendes led the list of Eagle qualifiers by winning the long jump and triple jump, setting a sectional record in the latter with a leap of 46-feet, 1½-inches. He won the long jump at 21-feet, 4-inches. Junior Mark Fourrier qualified in the javelin, pole vault and high jump with senior Harry Carr advancing in the 120-yard high hurdles and 300-yard intermediate hurdles. Dave Roberts with a leap of 46-feet, 10-inches also qualified for the class meet in the triple jump while senior Pat Ross moved ahead in the long jump.

Tom Meyer qualified in the shot put, Jim Kline in the 800, Brian Ross and Tom Spillitoff in the 220-yard dash and sophomore John Clifford and senior Rick Walsh running easily qualified in the 200-yard dash. The mile relay quartet of Mendes, Carr, Jim Fleming and Dave Gay qualified but he 4x100 foursome which placed fourth didn't qualify as it was disqualified for an "infringing" ruling.

Transactions

Scored half their runs in the fifth inning, Army & Navy Club rolled to its seventh win in eight starts Tuesday night in trimming Bob's Gulf, 14-5, at Waddell.

Jimmy Hare was the big man with the bat, homering twice among his three hits. Pete Adams, John Mazurek and Ben McCarthy all collected two hits for the Cluemen.

Brad Freeman came up with two of Bob's two hits.

NATIONAL

Two runs in the last inning snuck a 4-4 tie and enabled Carter's to whip Auto Trm Tuesday night at Buckley, 6-4.

Mike Byam notched his fourth pitching decision while striking out 14 batters. He also collected three hits in as many plate appearances. Ken Perry added a single and double to the offense.

Dave Stepper homered and singled in defeat.

INTERNATIONAL

Starting off with seven runs in the first inning, the Oilers racked up their sixth win in seven starts Tuesday night with a 12-4 decision

Dock Ellis in hot water like Linz was as Yankee

By MILT RICHMAN
NEW YORK (UPI) — Hey, Dock, Phil Linz says you're stealing his stuff, kicking up all that fuss on the bus, but he's glad to hear you didn't finish off the whole thing with a little "Flight of the Bumblebee" on your harmonica.

"If he'd have done that," Linz says, speaking of Dock Ellis' recent rebellion on the team bus that got him into hot water with Texas Rangers Manager Billy Hunter, "he would've blown my only claim to fame. How could he do a bus trick, though? That's my number."

Linz played for three clubs during his seven seasons in the majors, the Yankees, Phillies and Mets, earning the nickname "Superstar" because he was always filling in for someone or other.

Although it has been 10 years now since he quit baseball, he's still remembered best for the run-in he had with Yankee Manager Yogi Berra on the team bus during the 1964 season.

Now a decade later, another bus passenger, Dock Ellis, has managed to infuriate his manager the same way Linz did when Ellis chose an entirely different method.

Linz got Berra hot by playing "Mary Had a Little Lamb" on his harmonica. That took place in Chicago on the Yankee bus right after they had lost four in a row to the White Sox.

Ellis made Hunter's blood boil when he stood up on the team bus in Minneapolis last Thursday and urged the rest of the Rangers to break the manager's rules regarding the consumption of alcoholic beverages.

Two of his players got out of line, after having a little too much to drink on a Seattle to Minneapolis flight 10 days ago, so Hunter said there would be no more drinking on plane flights or in the bars of hotels where the Rangers stayed.

As the Rangers' player representative, those nine rules of Hunter's upset Ellis. They upset him so much, he got up in the bus Thursday and told his teammates to forget about the new rules.

Listening to Ellis, Hunter felt he couldn't take anymore.

"Sit down and shut up," he said to his pitcher.

Dock Ellis' feelings were hurt by that.

He called Hunter "a Hitler," and said "he ain't gonna make no lamphade outta me."

Knowing Billy Hunter 25 years, I can assure Dock Ellis that such a thing never even entered his manager's mind. Billy Hunter has all he can do to rake up all the leaves in his back yard. Making lamphades are completely out of his line.

Ellis, who resigned as the Rangers' player rep, insists his entitlement to his personal opinion. He's absolutely right, but by the same token, Hunter is entitled to his also, and it looks to me as if Ellis could be losing sight of that fact.

Linz agrees.

"I think Hunter has every right to do what he did," says the former utility infielder, now operating a successful midtown disco called Kotalis. "We were allowed to drink on the plane when I was with the Yankees and it led to fights a number of times."

"The thing between Yogi and me on the bus didn't have anything to do with drinking, though. It was just that he wasn't a music lover and he told me what I could do with the harmonica. If I played it better, he might've permitted it," laughs Linz.

"Looking back," I can't blame Yogi for having gotten as upset with me as he did. We had come into Chicago two-and-a-half games out of first place and we walked out six-and-a-half games back. The day after the episode on the bus I went to Yogi and told him he was right and I was wrong. He said, 'I gotta fine you,' and I said, 'that's fine.'"

The Yankees came back to win the pennant that year and some felt the bus incident was the catalyst that turned it all around for them. Maybe the same thing will happen with the Rangers?

"I can't say one way or the other about that," Linz says. "I'm not even sure we won in '64 because of what happened on the bus. But we did win 28 out of 32 right after that and we won the pennant by one game, so maybe it did have something to do with it."

"We played the Cardinals in the World Series and after we lost to them, Yogi was fired. That's one thing I'm still sorry for."

Penney and EHHS tracksters advance

Several members of the East Hartford High and Penney High boys' track squads turned in fine performances at Tuesday's Class L Sectionals at Windham High and qualified for Saturday's state Class L Meet, also to be held at Windham High.

Maurice Gibson paced the East Hartford effort by winning the triple jump with a leap of 41-feet, 11¼ inches. Ron Ravalese of the Hornets qualified in the shot put where he took third place and the discus where he garnered fourth placement.

Tim Lewis qualified in the mile run by taking ninth place. Steve Downes was second in the 120-yard high hurdles and third in the 330-yard intermediate hurdles. Joe Borrman was eighth in the 880; Steve Brennan and Al Jardin were second and eighth respectively in the two-mile run and Paul Vignati rounded out the East Hartford qualifiers by taking eighth place in the javelin.

Finalists

CINCINNATI (UPI) — A Playboy bunny, a head teacher at a bank, a nuclear instructor, several school teachers and housewives and even a woman who describes herself as a "mother and a belly dancer" are among the 88 finalists picked from 224 applicants to become the new look "sexy and disdancing" Cincinnati Bengals cheerleaders.

The finalists were selected in tryouts at Riverfront Stadium during the Memorial Day weekend. The 88 will compete June 5 at the stadium for the 24 cheerleading positions.

Back in baseball

SEATTLE (UPI) — The Seattle Mariners signed veteran Tom Paciorek, a first baseman and outfielder, to a contract with the Class AAA San Jose Missions of the Pacific Coast League.

The 210-pound Paciorek played in 10 games this season with the Atlanta Braves and was hitting .333 before he was given his unconditional release.

Deer season

AUGUSTA, Maine (UPI) — Fish and Wildlife Commissioner Maynard Marsh has announced the dates for the 1978 deer hunting season in Maine.

The northern two wildlife management units open Sunday, Oct. 29, and the southern six units open on Saturday, Nov. 4. A law, effective last year, provides that the first day in each area will be for Maine resident hunters only, Marsh said.

Veteran signed

PONTIAC, Mich. (UPI) — Coach Monte Clark has signed veteran former Detroit Lions wide receiver Larry Walton, a player out last season by Clark's predecessor.

Gardening

By Frank Atwood

One gets a lesson in geography on a visit to the garden planted and carefully tended by Mrs. Anton Latawic on Ash Street. You see a flower whose ancestors grew in Siberia. Here is one from Scotland. The next one grew originally in the Rocky Mountains.

Milred Latawic is an enthusiastic member of the American Rock Garden Society and she belongs to similar clubs in England and Scotland. They all exchange seeds and in the winter the mailman will bring small packages of seeds to the Latawic home that have been collected by other gardeners in both the United States and Europe.

This spring Mrs. Latawic has found buds forming for the first time on a plant she started from seed seven years ago. The name is Martagon and she knows there are plants with red flowers and others with white flowers. She doesn't know which color to expect.

Many rock garden plants are small and many have their origin in the high places of the world, in the Alps, the Rockies and other mountain ranges. In their native habitat these plants might have to wait until July before they have enough warm sunshine to blossom. In the Connecticut Valley they may bloom in April.

One of the first to blossom this year was a little yellow flower of the mustard family, named Draba, and it comes from Europe. As Mrs. Latawic remembers it, the seed was sent to her from Scotland. It blossomed, indeed, in April.

From Arctic Circle
Another early arrival was Dryas octopetala, a plant from northern Canada, growing close to the Arctic circle. It has white blossoms. It could be considered a wild flower.

Blossoming in May was another wild flower, Aquilegia canadensis, or columbine. Its flowers are red and yellow and there is a large clump of it near an artificial pool in the garden. Goldfish live in the pool and stay alive there through the winter, ready to be fed when the ice melts.

Anemone, with white flowers, was in bloom when I was there. It is given the common name of wildflower, but Mrs. Latawic has trained herself to stick to the Latin names. There is no other way to keep things straight, she feels, and cites as an example the Dianthus, with more than 50 varieties. To call them all pink leads to nothing but confusion.

Tony Latawic says the garden is his wife's, and that his job is to mow the lawn. It also has been his job, however, to do much of the digging and the lifting and lugging that went into the building of a rock wall along the driveway on one side of the garden.

Apple trees
An addition to the garden, definitely a contribution by Mr. Latawic, has been the planting of several apple trees. There is a semi-dwarf Baldwin tree. There is a variety called Rib-hston, which comes from England and bears large green apples which the Latawics consider "the finest in the world." There is a French variety, Fameuse, well known to an earlier generation of Americans. The tree I remember from years ago on our farm in Vermont had red fruit, quite small, and delightfully crisp and juicy. There is a Russian, another old variety, which we used to think kept better than any other apple through the winter months.

The apple trees are small and mice have gnawed the bark on some of them, working under the heavy snow cover we had in late winter. Tony says they have depended on the neighbors' cats to control the mice, but the cats fed down on the job. He says he'll have to repair the damage. Next winter he will place wire mesh collars around the trunks.

A splendid white dogwood, shown in our picture, came through the

Newsroom search ruling said threat to freedom

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The Supreme Court's decision on police searches of newsrooms is viewed by journalists as a frightening invasion of press freedoms and by law enforcement officers as an appropriate aid to criminal prosecutions.

The main thrust of media comments was that the opinion opens the way for officials to try to turn newspapers into an arm of law enforcement.

"On a quick reading of the heart of Justice (Byron) White's opinion, I don't think he understands the animal he has let loose here," said Anthony Day, editor of the editorial pages of the Los Angeles Times. President Ernest Schultz of the Radio-Television News Directors Association, said "the possibility for abuse is tremendous up to and including shutting down the entire (news) operation."

But William Ellingsworth, public affairs director for the International Association of Chiefs of Police, denied that Wednesday's 5-3 ruling signals "the beginning of mass raids on newspapers throughout the country."

He said law enforcement people have managed to live with court decisions they didn't like and the media can do the same. While he held that police armed with a warrant may make a surprise search of a newspaper office for evidence such as pictures that would help solve a crime, even though there is no indication the paper, or its employees, was at fault in any way.

The Stanford (Calif.) Daily, the student paper involved in the case, had argued the evidence should be obtained by means of a subpoena, which can be resisted in court before the material is produced. While said warrant requirements and the special attention of the issuing magistrate are sufficient protection against the harm journalists fear would be done to confidential sources and the task of reporting.

But dissenting Justice Potter Stewart noted that a warrant allows police to "ransack the files of a newspaper, reading each and every document until they have found the one named in the warrant, while a subpoena would permit the newspaper itself to produce only the specific documents requested." But Ellingsworth said, "the main thrust was the right to seek a warrant and we don't seek to invade freedom of the press in any way, shape or form."

If a worthless case is presented, the warrant will not be issued, he said.

California Deputy Attorney General Eugene Kaster said the interest of law enforcement groups stemmed primarily from the broadness of a lower courts' rule against searching the premises of blameless third parties, rather than a particular application to newspapers.

But Schultz, news director of KTVU, Oklahoma City, said in many cities and towns "it could become an open season on journalists." He urged his colleagues in the profession to make plans now to carefully document and widely publicize abuse of search warrants in an effort, eventually, to find a legislative remedy for the problem.

Another country
With Princess Margaret's divorce only a week old, Queen Elizabeth had another marital problem to cope with. Her cousin, Prince Michael of Kent, asked permission to marry Baroness Marie-Christine von Reibnitz of Austria, a divorced Roman Catholic.

The English have a 277-year-old law barring members of the royal family from marrying Catholics or divorced persons, but on Wednesday the queen approved the match to the 33-year-old beauty - provided Michael, 36, renounces any claim to the throne before the wedding, which - again by law - must take place in another country. That will be Austria, next month.

West Virginia Secretary of State A. James Manchin feels his state is being insulted by the Armour Meat Packing Co. in a contest promoting its hot dogs. He figures the dog represents native brands from the 50 states - the Hawaiian Hula Dog, for instance, is smothered in pineapple - and West Virginia is stuck with a plain Mine Dog, which Manchin describes as "very plain, with dirty smudged fingerprints right in the middle."

Manchin said in Farmington, W.Va., Wednesday he'll sue if the ad isn't changed. He suggests the Mountaineer Dog for West Virginia, and is scouting for recipes.
Have you ever been sued?
Olivia Newton-John is suing MCA Inc. to get out of her contract, and the recording company is suing her back, saying she didn't honor it. Miss Newton-John charged in a Los Angeles court that MCA failed to keep up its standing as a "first-line pop label." It did not promote her albums adequately, used her name without her permission and paid her less than $6,000 a year, excluding royalties. MCA says the singer failed to complete albums on time, with one due last October still unfinished. By MCA's count, it has paid her $2.5 million in the last three years.

Art groups reject grants

HARTFORD (UPI) - Four community arts groups in Hartford have rejected grants from the Greater Hartford Arts Council, saying the organization favors the city's large arts institutions.
Paul LeMay, spokesman for Peace Train, the city's largest community arts group, said the council stipulates that organizations which receive grants can't conduct fundraisers. LeMay said their $4,000 grant simply isn't enough.
"The $4,000 awarded by the arts council is disproportionate to the contribution Peace Train gives the community," Peace Train's board of directors said. Peace Train provided entertainment for more than 200,000 people in the

Stronger NATO due; detente plans made

Leaves the Army

Maj. Gen. John K. Singlaub left the Army Wednesday after 35 1/2 years and renewed his criticism of the Carter administration which prompted his early retirement. Singlaub, whose retirement became effective at mid-night, attacked the foreign policies as "amateurish and naive" and said the nation was on a "general path of disarmament." (UPI photo)

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The NATO allies have agreed to strengthen their own defenses while simultaneously pursuing a guarded detente with the Soviet Union. The fifth summit session of the NATO leaders ended in basic agreement on dealing with the Warsaw Pact nations, but unresolved differences remained on some side issues: the Greece-Turkey dispute, how to deal with the Soviets in Africa and how deeply NATO should become involved in Middle East negotiations. After reviewing a staff study on the future of East-West relations, the leaders agreed, according to their final communiqué, "to maintain security and pursue detente," while expressing concern at the "continued expansion of Warsaw Pact offensive capabilities."

The leaders gave final approval to a long-range defense study, which would coordinate NATO military forces into a more coherent, efficient fighting unit against a Soviet attack. President Carter began the summit Tuesday by urging alliances to counter Soviet intervention in Africa. But several Western European leaders, including British Prime Minister James Callaghan, expressed skepticism that East-West differences were at the basis of the NATO summit. In the final communiqué, "regional conflict in the developing world" was mentioned, but the word "Africa" did not appear.

President Carter said there were some "heated exchanges" and on the subject of Greek-Turkish relations. Greek Prime Minister Constantine Karamanlis boycotted a luncheon on the final day of the conference to underline his point that the alliance, as a whole, should not advocate lifting the U.S. arms embargo against Turkey. After some last-minute negotiations, a reference to that was struck from the final version of the communiqué. The compromise was regarded by Greek diplomats as a victory for Karamanlis. Israeli objections, exercised through several alliance partners, succeeded in removing language which said that the Middle East dispute should be settled on the basis of a U.N. resolution, which calls for Israeli withdrawal from occupied territories.

Brezhnev says West frustrates detente

BRATISLAVA, Czechoslovakia (UPI) — Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev cited the West's "bloody intervention" in Zaire as evidence of political efforts to frustrate detente and bring on a "chilly" — if not cold — war.

Brezhnev told Czech Communist Party leaders in Prague Wednesday the hypocrisy of NATO leaders making military plans in Washington and speaking on disarmament at the United Nations has him wondering if his "main partners" are serious about detente at all. But political circles appeared to obviously are out to frustrate the process of detente, and not only in Europe, and to return, if not to cold war, then at least to a "chilly war," he said.

Brezhnev says West frustrates detente

Refugees in Zaire risk starvation

LUBUMBASHI, Zaire (UPI) — An estimated 100,000 black Zaire refugees from the death sentence passed on the local army commander for cowardice during the rebel attack. Hundreds of rebels have been reported lurking in the bush surrounding Kolwezi following a French and Belgian paratrooper operation to rescue Europeans May 19-20. Fear for their lives is making many white residents leave the rebel-infested Shaba province in apprehension of what may happen when the French and Belgian paratroopers are withdrawn. In Brussels, the Belgian development cooperation ministry said 67 whites had been buried during a sanitary cleanup of Kolwezi, of whom 42 were identified. But the ministry also issued the names of about 240 other whites believed to have been living in Kolwezi at the time of the rebel attack who have not since been heard from. Officials believe many of them were killed, bringing the unofficial death toll of whites to about 300 and the total death toll from the nine-day rebel occupation and its aftermath to more than 1,000.

Maine asks court to cut postage rate

AUGUSTA, Maine (UPI) — The state of Maine, acting on behalf of five other states, has asked a U.S. appeals court to rollback the new 15-cent rate for first-class mail, saying the two-penny increase is "discriminatory." A similar suit was being filed in Washington by the National Association of Greeting Card Publishers, the state attorney general's office said. The increase from 13 to 15 cents for the first ounce of first-class mail, which took effect Tuesday, is expected to raise an estimated $1.9 billion annually for the Postal Service. Deputy Attorney General Donald G. Alexander said the suit, filed by the six states in the 1st Circuit Court of Appeals in Boston, contends the hike in first class rates forces some postal users to subsidize other classes of mail. "According to the courts the postal rate structure cannot discriminate against one class of mail users," he said. "In fact the new rate structure does discriminate against first-class mail. The rate structure appears to be illegal."

House tackles tuition credit bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — While the Senate continued its long Memorial Day recess today, the House is tackling a proposal that has been kicked around for years, to give a tax break to parents of college students. Proponents of the tuition tax credit bill, which would provide a maximum tax saving of $250 by 1980, managed to force the House to schedule debate on the bill today and on an amendment that would extend the credit to private elementary and secondary schools such as church schools. The House cleared its desk of a sticky issue Wednesday by voting overwhelmingly to threaten South Korea with the loss of U.S. economic aid unless former Korean Ambassador Kim Dong Jo testify about reported payoffs to congressmen. In an unusual move, the House voted down a $100,000 study, recommended by a powerful committee chairman, for parliamentarians' conferences. Women's rights advocates were in Capitol Hill again Wednesday to pressure Congress to honor a real woman — and not the mythical Miss Liberty — on a planned new $1 coin.

LEGAL NOTICE

The Planning and Zoning Commission of Andover, Connecticut will hold a public hearing on Monday, June 12, 1978, at 7:30 PM in the Lower Level of the Town Office Building. For a Special Permit to be issued to David A. and Catherine Corlier for the construction of a 66 foot by 66 foot steel building to be used for Heavy Equipment repair, on the corner north of Route Six and West of Handle Road, with entrance and exit on Handle Road. Proposed for Approval by the Planning and Zoning Commission of Andover, Connecticut.

At this hearing interested persons may be heard and written communications received. A copy of the application is on file in the office of the town clerk, Town Office Building, Andover, Connecticut.

PUBLIC NOTICE

ENCROACHMENT OF REGULATED FLOODPLAIN

This office has under consideration the application of DEW Architects, Bushnell Plaza, 1 Gold St., Hartford, CT, to place fill, parking areas and access roads riverward of established stream channel encroachment lines for the Hockanriver River in the Towns of Manchester and Vernon.

Plans are on file for public inspection at the Town Clerk's Office of Manchester and Vernon, and in Rm. 215, State Office Bldg., Hartford, CT.

The Department is required to consider the proposed work in accordance with Section 25-4a through 4g of the 1977 Revision to the General Statutes. The Commissioner shall issue or deny a permit for establishing this encroachment based on his findings of the effect of the encroachment on the flood-rapid and water storage capacity of the waterways and flood plains, flood height, hazards to life and property, and the protection and preservation of the natural resources and ecosystems of the state, including but not limited to ground and surface water, animal, plant and aquatic life, nutrient exchange and energy flow, and due consideration given to the results of similar encroachments constructed along the reach of waterway.

We would appreciate your views concerning the proposed work, which should be received by this office on or before June 27, 1978 in order that they may be given due consideration in processing the application.
