Shedding socks and belt to make weight, Kimberly Barker, 10, wins Soap Box Derby

By SUSAN VAUGHN
Herald Reporter

Bob Barker, director of Manchester's soap box derby for the second year was especially happy about the derby Sunday because his daughter, Kimberly Barker, 10, emerged the winner.

Barker admitted today that it was his involvement in the derby that spurred Kimberly's interest, but he said he gave her no special tips, except to "drive it straight" as she headed down the steep derby course on Brookfield Street.

Kimberly, in fact, almost did not qualify to race Sunday as she and her car weighed in just a few ounces over the maximum weight requirement of 220 pounds. When that happened, her father told her to take her socks off and when that was not enough she shed her belt, which put her weight "right on the nose."

Kimberly was undefeated throughout the afternoon's heats, which included 58 in all for the 20 derby racers. The final heat placed Kimberly with Todd Jones, 11, of Somers, who had one previous loss.

If Kimberly had not won that race, the two would have been tied and had to race another heat, Barker said.

The third place winner Sunday was Rob Price, of 45 Huckleberry Lane and a sixth grade student at Kenney School. Paul Morrissette of 596 Gardner St. and a grade student at Martin School, placed fourth.

The second annual derby was sponsored by the Town Firefighters Union, Local 1579, and included participants from several neighboring towns as well as Manchester, including Tolland, Coventry, Glastonbury, South Wind and Somers.

The race involved months of work including helping the youth build and prepare their "soap box" cars. The youngsters are required by the national derby rules to do a certain percentage of the actual work on the cars. Barker said Kimberly did lots of sanding and painting and using small tools, but he, as did the other parents, took charge of the power tools in making the racers.

Th videotape cameras at the finish line of the 630-foot race course helped decide five dead heats Sunday, although three others had to be run over.

Although the derby only drew a fair size crowd on a fair weather day, it drew representatives from several other derbies, including Wayne Alley, general manager of the All-American Soap Box Derby in Akron, Ohio, where the national championships are held each year. Alley flew to Manchester especially for the derby and was "quite impressed" with it, Tom Raimondo, assistant director and next year's director of the derby, said.

The regional soap box derby director for New England, Peter Burke of Worcester, Mass., as well as other derby officials from Connecticut towns, were also present Sunday.

The judges for the derby included Mayor Stephen Penny, Town Fire Chief John Rivosa, Hank Sellers of the Bristol Soap Box Derby and Eugene Pinto, winner of the 1947 Manchester Derby.

Kimberly's win maintained the dominance by the female sex since the derby was re-initiated last year. Aldea Brennan of East Hartford won last year's race.

Kimberly will not be able to do any racing until she travels with her family to the national championships in Akron Aug. 12. The car is impounded until then, although it can be checked out to make sure it is safe and has the right weight distribution before the Akron race, Barker said.

In the meantime, Kimberly will keep busy as a third grade student at

Tychsen outlines 10 'realities' facing education

Dr. Alfred B. Tychsen, assistant superintendent of schools in Manchester, Sunday called for more community involvement and a total commitment to education by everyone.

Tychsen was addressing the overall issue of the future of education in the nation during the next 10 years at a meeting of the Unitarian Universalist Society East in Manchester. Tychsen will be leaving Manchester in July to take a position as superintendent of schools in Middletown. He has been in charge of curriculum planning in Manchester.

In outlining his projections, Tychsen named 10 "critical realities" which he said "we must recognize in order to plot the course of education in the next 10 to 20 years."

Those realities include accelerated change, economic realities, technology and science, leisure and work, communications, human population, government and politics, conflict and war and peace and values and lifestyles. Most of the realities are in the area human problems for which "we need to marshal the collective reason of our people" to deal with, Tychsen said.

Tychsen spoke of boredom as a "major affliction, especially of the young." He said the young have come to expect every hour to be packed with high level stimuli which makes an even more difficult task for the schools.

The social and emotional problems which so many children come to school with have to be dealt with first, Tychsen said, before the school can instill any excitement and enthusiasm for learning.

Tychsen stressed the commitment by the business community to provide more opportunities for youth to get training outside the schools. The Manchester businesses are better than most, providing 400 jobs

Restaurant seeks relief from liquor restrictions

The Manchester Planning and Zoning Commission will conduct six public hearings tonight, including one for an application to eliminate a requirement that full-service restaurants be at least 1,000 feet from any other liquor-serving establishment.

The meeting begins at 7:30 in the Municipal Building's Hearing Room.

Steakman Inc. of Manchester, which runs the Mr. Steak restaurant at 244 Center St., has applied for the change.

Zoning regulations now prohibit a liquor-serving establishment within 1,000 feet in a direct line from any building or premises where liquor is "sold, exchanged, or stored for purposes of sale or exchange."

Thus, except in the Central Business District (which has a different rule), a restaurant within 1,000 feet of a tavern, another restaurant serving liquor or even a package store cannot receive a liquor license in town.

Mr. Steak, in a Business II Zone, would like to exempt full-service restaurants from the rule. It is within 1,000 feet of the Blue Moon Restaurant on Walnut Street.

The PZC also will hear a request from Barney T. Peterman Sr. and Barney T. Peterman Jr. for a zone change for a 6.1-acre parcel on the west side of the street at 382 Gardner Street.

The change would be from a Rural Residence Zone to a Residence AA Zone.

The following requests also will be heard Monday by the PZC:

- Evans Products Co. is seeking a special exception for a parking lot that would hold more than 60 vehicles. The lot, on Spencer Street, would be part of the new proposed location for Grossman's.
- Hayden L. Griswold Jr. is seeking a subdivision for property at the southwest corner of Hillstown Road and Hill Street.
- James Perkins is requesting a special exception to permit the operation of a restaurant at the Red Rock Golf Course.
- Ernest J. Reed is asking for excavation and fill authorization to do work on Summit Street within 50 feet of the north side of Bigelow Brook.

Fault in power line darkens tennis court

Despite some prime tennis-playing weather, the two courts at Robertson Park have been dark the past few days.

It's not that the interest in tennis has slowed. The problem is a faulty electrical line between the baseball field and the tennis courts at the North End park.

And it could take as long as two weeks to repair the line, Herman Pascantelli of the Public Works Department said.

The problem developed last week, he said. The town will test to see if it can locate the exact spot of the problem.

If it can't, the entire line, about 600 feet, will have to be replaced. This would take about two weeks because the town would have to order the wire and wait for delivery before it could begin work, he said.

Jacob John of the Public Works Department said that town crews could dig the trench and do the replacement work. The cost would be for the new materials needed.

Pascantelli said that the problem could be corrected in a couple of days

Quiet week ahead for town in labor negotiation field

This week apparently will be a quiet one in negotiations between the town of Manchester and four unions representing municipal employees.

No agreement was reached with either union, but both unions have avoided advancing to fact-finding, the third of four steps in the negotiating process.

Negotiations with the police and fire unions have advanced to the fact-finding stage, and both have shown more public signs of bitterness than negotiations with MEG and Local 991.

Charles McCarthy, assistant town manager, had said May 24 that he planned to file a charge of not bargaining in good faith against the town's fire union — Local 1579 of the International Association of Firefighters.

McCarthy, however, has not yet filed the charge. There has been speculation that the announcement of the charge was made as a threat to more public signs of bitterness than negotiations with MEG and Local 991.

Summer enrichment program to return for July, August

The summer enrichment program, sponsored by the Manchester Board of Education, will return this July and August, offering a wide variety of "things to do for fun while you learn," according to Lee Hay, program director.

The program will follow the same format as last summer with two 2-week sessions. The courses are open for children entering Grade 4 through adults.

Over 80 courses and activities will

Lions Club installation scheduled for Tuesday

The Manchester Lions Club will install its 1978-79 officers on Tuesday at The Colony in Vernon. Clifford Randall of Windsor Locks, deputy district governor, District 218, International Lions, will be the installing officer at the club's 29th annual installation banquet which is traditionally a special social event and ladies night.

Officers to be elected are Daniel Mosler, president; Maurice (Pete) Laiter, first vice president; Raymond G. Smith, second vice president; Donald O. Bon, secretary; and Lloyd Davidson, treasurer.

The following appointments have been made: James Davis, tail include arts, crafts, sewing, writing, recreation, music, speech.

New to the program this summer will be science fiction, leaving without a loom, rug hooking, fun with art, beginning prinitaking, "living tomorrow today," "travel USA," doll making, kinetic toys, philosophy, basketball for girls and bread making.

Another significant addition to the program this summer will be "maintenance" courses in reading and math for elementary school students. The intent of the courses is to help children keep their reading and math skills sharp over the summer, but are not for those in need of remedial help.

Brochures describing the program in detail will be available at the Board of Education office, all public schools in Manchester and the Manchester libraries. Registration will be by mail until July 1. A walk-in registration will be held in July for those courses which are not filled. Courses will be kept small to insure participation.

The cost of the courses will be a basic enrollment fee with some requiring an additional lab fee. The program is designed to be self-supporting.

Hay emphasized that the program is a "doing" program to provide new experiences in a relaxed and informal atmosphere. There are no grades and no credit for the courses. The sessions will be from July 17 to July 28 and from July 31 to Aug. 11. The class periods in each session will be from 9 a.m. to 10:40 a.m. and from 10:50 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.

Opinion
Big business of pollution

Pollution is a big problem that has developed into big business. U.S. firms expect to spend $1.92 billion for pollution control during the current year, according to a survey by McGraw-Hill Publications Co. That represents a 21 percent increase over the $9.03 billion spent during 1977.

Surprise package

The very short-term future is likely to hold some surprises for consumers. According to the Economics Department of McGraw-Hill, an estimated 14 percent of all sales in 1981 will be accounted for by new products, either unknown today or so changed as to be considered new.

Greenhaven Housing - some called it Vethaven Housing - once occupied the land where now stands Iling Junior High School. There were some differences of opinion about the name for the housing. The houses were built in 1947 with funds furnished evenly between the town and the state.

Those 82 homes were built at a cost of $400,000 and were in violation of zoning because they didn't meet the requirements for the Residence Zone A in which they were built. But it was only temporary housing, and the development was finally removed in 1958 to make way for Iling Junior High.

Back in those days, Manchester's Almshouse was on East Middle Turnpike, and that is the original building of our present Police Department. That's another story itself - the conversion of the Almshouse into a police station.

Watch for sales

CHICAGO (UPI) — Consumers planning to buy housewares would be smart to watch for sales this spring and summer. The 11th annual marketing research study of housewares manufacturers quotes 80 percent of them as saying they expect to raise their prices this year by an average of 7.1 percent over a year ago. The most frequently given reasons for increases were higher costs for materials and labor, and inflation.

The pierced-ear look without pierced ears

By MICHAEL BAUMSTEIN

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) — Research to put men on the moon has resulted in a new device to pierce the ear.

It's an earring that stays on the lobe by means of a hidden magnet. It's for the woman who's perturbed by pierced ears and who can't stand painfully tight clip-on earrings.

A special magnet encased in metal is soldered or glued to the back of the earring. A second magnet goes behind the ear lobe. The two magnets attract one another and hold the earring on the lobe.

The "samarium-cobalt-rare earth" magnet, as it's called, was developed by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration for use in outer space. What makes it unique is that it doesn't lose its grabbing power.

"This is the most dramatic new long-term product for the jewelry industry that has hit in our time," Richard M. Oster, president of the A.J. Oster Co., a Providence-based jewelry metal supply firm, said Wednesday.

Oster said 200 women polled in Chicago, Dallas, Detroit, New York and San Francisco, more than 195 women said they would try the magnet earrings.

"They don't hurt the ear. They stay on good as a clip. And yet the woman can get the pierced-ear look without piercing her ears.

"The women just love it," he said.

There's only one type of person who might not find the earrings suitable. The magnets could be potentially damaging to heart pacemakers.

The Japanese have been selling magnet earrings for eight months now. American firms should have them on jewelry counters across the country by the middle of this month, Oster said.

The magnets are manufactured in the U.S., England, Japan and Switzerland. Oster predicted that the jewelry industry will use 400 million magnets by the end of the year.

The magnets, which cost between eight and 18 cents each, won't raise the price of earrings, most of which retail for between $5 and $10, he said.

The magnets can also be used to keep bracelets and necklaces closed and to hold pins onto dresses, he said. "For all those applications, it's sensational."

Too much caffeine

HEALTH
Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have a niece who is in a mental hospital and she comes home for five-day visits twice a month. While she is home she drinks a lot of coffee and she has a lot more energy than when she goes back. She is very active and happy. I am wondering if there is any harm in her drinking so much coffee.

DEAR READER — I think you're just a normal grandchild concerned about her grandchild. However, rest easy. There isn't any evidence that drinking the caffeine, even if it gets them very excited, has any bad effects at all. Just be thankful that the daddies love your grandchild and give them a reasonable amount of their time.

It sounds to me like they're developing a good relationship with their fathers which will help them in their total health and the years to go.

The situation you described to me then is really good, not bad, and you should count your blessings.

Town fights union appeal on blizzard

EAST HARTFORD — The town's corporation counsel says the municipal employees union should not be allowed to appeal a decision to lock them for time they missed during February's blizzard.

F. Timothy McNamara says the East Hartford Municipal Employees Union did not follow proper grievance procedures.

McNamara said the Personnel Board of Appeals, which meets whenever it is called, should hear the union's grievance.

The contract says the personnel director must receive a written complaint about the grievance.

G. William Miller, personnel director, said he received a call from a union representative.

"It wasn't a written complaint," Miller said. "I got a phone call from a union spokesman, who asked me some questions about filing a grievance."

"I wouldn't even consider it an informal complaint," Miller said.

The dispute arose when some municipal workers did not work on Feb. 8 because of the blizzard. Mayor Richard H. Blackstone said at the time that workers should have been clear despite the conditions which caused the state to impose a traffic ban.

Transit runs on schedule

HARTFORD (UPI) — Connecticut Transit Co. buses will run as usual today after drivers asserted their right to work in New Haven and Hartford Sunday after a midnight strike by voting overwhelmingly in favor of ratifying a new two-year contract.

Officials said the bulk of the 63-member Amalgamated Transit Union's rank and file is located in Hartford and New Haven, the first two locals to vote on the settlement reached after several weeks of negotiation.

Trial of judge begins

BOSTON (UPI) — A historic proceeding began in Massachusetts Supreme Court today with the start of the judicial misconduct trial of suspended state Superior Court Chief Justice Robert B. Bonin.

The bearded Bonin, accompanied by his blonde wife Angela, slipped into the courthouse by the prisoners' elevator about one half-hour before the start of the trial.

This is the first time in Massachusetts history that a chief justice has gone on trial for judicial misconduct.

Bonin, also accompanied by his attorneys, declared to make any comments as he entered the crowded 13th floor courtroom.

Bonin faced nine charges in connection with his relationship with a former legal client and his presence at a lecture allegedly held to raise funds for 24 persons whose cases were to be tried in the Superior Court system.

In an opening statement before the court — Robert Messervy, attorney for the high court's Committee on Judicial Responsibility, reviewed the charges against Bonin and said he will prove the chief justice was guilty of judicial misconduct in each of the nine cases.

Bonin's attorney Paul Sugarman, reviewed the same charges and added: "He (Bonin) has done nothing improper."

Teacher leaves post, scrapping over CETA

By MAL BARLOW
HERALD Reporter

EAST HARTFORD — Mrs. Jean McEvers, outgoing president of the East Hartford Education Association, finished her year in office still scrapping with the school system's administration.

Her last fight, as head of the bargaining unit for more than 600 teachers, was over Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA) workers.

She charged the system with violating CETA and state Board of Education regulations in the use of CETA workers. They were doing the work of certified teachers. Mrs. McEvers said in the areas of guidance, fine arts and reading, she said. And there were plans for them to do even more next year.

The job specifications for the about 95 CETA positions in the schools sounded "vaguely like the jobs of certified teachers," she said.

She protested in town. She wrote to Mark Shedd, state commissioner of education. Finally, she got through to Gabe Simches, director of student services in Shedd's office.

Simches met separately in recent days with Superintendent Eugene Diggs, Assistant Superintendent Jerry Marcus, and Mrs. McEvers. She said there were three main results of the meetings.

First, the CETA workers in the school system will be supervised by certified teachers. They will not be working on their own.

Second, the school system must be careful that no CETA workers replace certified teachers. Mrs. McEvers felt this might surely happen as the school system trimmed staff in guidance areas saying it was due to declining enrollment. But then it would add the federally funded CETA workers in guidance, she said.

Finally, she got through to Gabe Simches, director of student services in Shedd's office. She said she should follow a program prepared by a certified school worker, she said.

"I think what we've done will be very helpful," she said. "I was told our work will lead to better guidelines on CETA worker use throughout the state."

Mrs. McEvers has argued forcibly on behalf of the town's teachers since her election in the spring of 1977. Her main object has been to block the setting up of a RIF (reduction in force) policy by the school administration. A RIF policy would allow the administration a method other than seniority to cut out teachers as the student population declined.

"I'm physically exhausted," she said over the weekend. "But I'm proud of what we did. We could have let them pass those RIF policies but we didn't."

"We physically held them back," Mark Waxenberg, a teacher at the middle school level at Center School, said. "I think he can handle it."

Dr. Marcus comments
Dr. Marcus said today Mrs. McEvers is not fully accurate about the CETA program in East Hartford schools.

"We have been very careful in designing the program (for use of CETA workers)," he said.

For example, a CETA worker may be assigned as a tutor in a reading program. There is a thin line between tutoring and teaching, he said. They are careful not to let the CETA worker step over the line.

Dr. Marcus refused to comment on his year of arguing with Mrs. McEvers. About Waxenberg he said, "We get along very well. He's level-headed."

"We have been using CETA workers properly," he said.

He admitted that in some cases CETA workers were not doing exactly the job they had been hired to do.

"They have capabilities and you want to use those capabilities," he explained.

"But he insisted there has never been an intent to replace certified staff with CETA workers. He also said the main result of his meeting with Simches was merely to gather data on the use of CETA workers in East Hartford schools for him."

"We have been very careful in designing the program (for use of CETA workers)," he said.

Proposed RIF policy on education agenda

EAST HARTFORD — RIF (reduction in force) is on the Board of Education's agenda for its meeting tonight at 7:30 at Penney High School.

RIF is a set of letters handed by many in the East Hartford Education Association, the bargaining unit for the more than 600 teachers in the town's school system. It is the policy by which the school administration may let teachers go without going by seniority, says Mrs. Jean McEvers, outgoing EHEA president.

RIF is a necessary tool for preserving quality among the staff for the benefit of the students, says Dr. Jerry Marcus, assistant superintendent in charge of personnel.

The board has rejected each RIF plan offered by Dr. Marcus' office so far this year. Teacher cuts have been made for next year by cutting non-tenured teachers (teachers with less than three years experience).

Other items on the agenda include: New hiring plans to save money; approval of a Head Start program for East Hartford; and adoption of new textbooks.

Fast supports Chileans

HARTFORD (UPI) — Several members of the Hartford Chile Solidarity Committee fasted over the weekend to call attention to the plight of their countrymen who are "los desaparecidos" — political enemies of the Chilean state.

Former Latin American Peace Corps worker Robert Trafford said the Hartford area is part of a nationwide effort to show support for a hunger strike by 200 Chileans, all relatives of those who disappeared.

"Practically everybody knows somebody who has disappeared or been murdered or put in prison or driven into exile," he said, referring to the Hartford group.

Reunion with child makes couple happy

By MAL BARLOW
Herald Reporter

EAST HARTFORD — Mr. and Mrs. Edward Paquin of 3 Indian Hill St. had their first chance in over two years to see her daughter, Mary Ann Guntunjan, 4, since the state Department of Child and Family Services took her from them.

State welfare workers allowed the couple to come to the welfare office in Stamford where they could spend a moment with the girl in what is called the governor's room, said Paquin.

The state has had custody of the child since the spring of 1976 when she was allegedly found to have been beaten with a strap, said Paquin.

The state placed her in a foster home where she has stayed since. Recently the state began procedures to strip Mrs. Paquin of her parental rights of Mary Ann. Mrs. Paquin bore Mary Ann as an unwed 17-year-old in Bridgeport.

"She was shy about us," said Paquin. "She couldn't quite remember us. She looked at us in a curious way."

Mrs. Paquin had moved in with Paquin and his previous wife bringing Mary Ann with her after Mrs. Paquin failed to make it on her own. Paquin said he took care of her for nearly a year before the welfare department stepped in. He said he had been accused of being the one who beat her but he insists it was the former member of Mrs. Paquin's family. Charges against him were dismissed.

"She came right up to me," he said. "She sat in my lap and I read a book with her."

The Rev. Ronald Fournier, pastor of Emanuel Lutheran Church in Manchester, had taken them down to Stamford and he went with them into the room with Mary Ann and the welfare workers. While they spoke with the girl, he took several photos.

Mrs. Laura Mary Paquin of East Hartford holds her daughter Mary Ann Guntunjan, 4, for the first time in over two years last week at the state welfare office in Stamford. Firm to be hired to set user charge

By BARBARA RICHMOND

VERNON — Since the new sewage treatment plant is expected to be in full operation by late July or early August, the Sewer Authority has authorized the administration to hire consultants to aid the town in the development of a user charge and industrial cost recovery system for the plant.

The council will discuss the matter at its meeting tonight at 8 in the Memorial Building, Park Plaza.

The new system, which is required by the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) is essentially a sophisticated cost accounting procedure which will separately account for all operating and maintenance costs associated with the new plant. Stanley Hoeller, director of administration said.

The costs will be distributed among the various classes of users, residential, industrial, and commercial, in accordance with a user charge formula which will be based on engineering input (strength and volume of effluent), Hoeller said.

He said it is necessary to develop the new financial system as soon as possible so that the town can begin billing the users to recover the ongoing expenses of operating the new plant.

The Sewer Authority has selected the accounting firm of Peat, Marwick, Mitchell and Co. They said the firm has had extensive experience in the development of cost accounting systems and has worked closely with EPA on waste treatment plant user charge and cost recovery systems.

EPA grant regulations require that the administrators of treatment works implement improved financial management systems and procedures to ensure that all users properly share in the costs of operation and maintenance of the treatment systems and that industrial users repay the federal portion of plant capacity that was constructed in their behalf.

Michael J. Turillo Jr., manager of the accounting firm, said Vernon's

Finance board votes transfer of funds

HEBRON — At a special meeting Thursday night, the Board of Finance voted to transfer a total of $1,565.50 from the Street Lights account at the request of First Selectman Aaron Reid. However, the board did come to a consensus and agreed that this was a worthy cause. They also voted that the Board of Finance had the authority to appropriate up to $5,000 without requiring town meeting approval.

At the next regular meeting, June 28 at 8 p.m. in the Town Office Building, Reid said that these accounts will require action, welfare, gasoline and Social Security funds.

Council will study renovation project

SOUTH WINDSOR — The Town Council will discuss an expenditure of $6,000 for architectural schematic drawings for high school renovations when it meets tonight at 8 p.m. at the Town Hall.

Public hearings on several items will precede the council meeting.

The council is expected to approve the findings, and set a time and place for a public hearing to consider the transfer of the monies from the Capital Nonrecurring Fund.

The drawings and the application must be submitted to the state Department of Education by July 1 in order to qualify for state funds, expected to amount to half the cost of the renovations.

The renovations to both the high school and Wapping Elementary School are expected to run about $346,000.

Wapping Elementary School will close as an elementary school on June 23. A portion of Wapping will be used as a high school annex, with the remaining portion turned over to the town for community use.

Three Hartford architectural firms submitted an estimate of between $5,000 and $6,000 for the preliminary schematic drawings for the renovations.

Howard Fitts, chairman of the Public Building Commission, told the council, however, that the architectural firms were concerned about the accuracy of the estimated renovation cost figure.

Goals set for COPE

By BARBARA RICHMOND

JIM MOORE, a member of the Steering Committee of the Committee on Public Education, (COPE), was elected chairman of the committee Thursday night.

Other officers elected, in the group's first official election since it was formed about a year ago, are: Rosemarie Mitchell, secretary; Rosemarie Belcher, treasurer; Ron Paul, member-at-large; Paul Sack and Donna Hanselman, teacher representatives; and Earl Scott, chairman of the Gifted Studies program. Nancy Chappellet is past acting chairman.

When the committee was formed it decided it would first concentrate on two areas of concern expressed by parents, one was the kindergarten program and the other the high school program. Both of these concerns and others have been explored thoroughly by committees of the group.

Moore said, after being elected, that they will continue to explore concerns about curriculum, educational funding, communication, drug and alcohol abuse and the program for gifted students.

He also said the group would like at least one student representative on the committee.

During this past year the committee conducted an extensive study of the kindergarten screening program and issued a detailed report on the findings.

It has also studied the problems with discipline and attendance at the Study shows Coventry has zoning problems

By CLAIRE CONNELLY
Herald Correspondent

COVENTRY — Coventry has been listed as one of the state's 69 towns having "most severely restricted" zoning practices that help make housing expensive and lead to the exclusion of minorities and the poor.

The listing appeared in a study conducted by the Urban Action Institute of New York and was conducted on behalf of the Connecticut Commission on Human Rights and Opportunities (CCHRO).

According to the report, zoning restrictions separate high and low income groups in the state and also white and nonwhite populations by prohibiting or inhibiting apartments and low-income housing. The report attacked "debates over local autonomy" as smokescreens thrown up to mask discrimination.

Input needed by committee

BOLTON — Input from townspeople as to the needs of low-income housing is being sought by the Human Services Study Committee. The Rev. John Holliger, pastor of St. George's Episcopal Church, is chairman of the committee.

At a recent meeting committee members compiled a list of needs, both fulfilled and unfulfilled, of Bolton youth.

They discussed transportation problems for junior high school students, youthful idleness, vandalism, littering, health care and child abuse.

At its next meeting the committee will continue to discuss youth needs. Committee members are also seeking information about current effective programs for youth as well as suggestions for new programs.

Pastor Holliger said the committee hopes to have a complete report about human services for all age groups by late fall. The committee was appointed by the Board of Selectmen at the suggestion of Selectman Joann Neath.

Women runners

NEW YORK (UPI) — In 1971, only two women — Beth Bonner and Nina Kuscsik — finished a marathon in less than three hours.

Discrimination against women runners, says "The Runner's Hand," kept women out of prestigious marathons like Boston's until 1972, when Ms. Kuscsik entered and won.

By 1972, 29 women racers ran the Boston Marathon in less than three hours.

Council meeting expected to attract townspeople

By CLAIRE CONNELLY
Herald Correspondent

COVENTRY — Tonight's Town Council meeting is expected to attract residents who either strongly support or oppose the $4.6 million budget proposal that will be brought before a town meeting next Friday.

After the council's $4.6 million budget went down to defeat last month in a referendum forced by a petition drive, the council voted to keep education and government spending the same. However, revenue-sharing items were cut from the package, and surplus funds were applied to appropriations to reduce the proposed tax hike to one mill instead of two.

The council will consider a request from the Sewer Authority asking that an application be filed for a state grant to finance the design costs of a municipal sewer system.

The authority abandoned plans for a regional system to be shared with Mansfield after that town decided to construct its own facilities.

The engineering firm of Griswold and O'Neill, who drew up the facilities plan for the regional system, has estimated that design work on a municipal plan will cost $15,500. The state and federal governments are expected to cover 90 percent of the fee.

Matching funds for private roads

Authority Chairman Richard Breault said his group would now reconsider alternatives to sewerage as a method of complying with a pollution-statement order placed against the town in 1971 by the State Department of Environmental Protection.

Town Manager Frank Connelly has recommended Leonard Benjamin to the council for the position of town agent of record. Benjamin owns an insurance agency on Lake Street and would serve as agent for the town for fiscal year 1978-79.

The agent of record works with the town's Insurance Advisory Committee to provide specific information, solicit quotes, and select an insurance carrier. He also provides detailed estimates of insurance premium expenditures on a line-item basis to the town manager.

The council recently voted to send 12 resolutions, with the Coventry seal, to the Board of Education for the annual awards to be given at the high school assembly on June 17. The board has been authorized to choose the recipients of the awards in various categories.

The council also voted to release

Cocky bunch of A's not afraid of Yanks

OAKLAND (UPI) — For a young team that figured to go nowhere at the start of the season, the Oakland A's are a cocky bunch these days.

Before 19,289 fans, biggest Coliseum crowd in more than a year, Oakland outslugged the New York Yankees 6-4 Sunday for a 2-1 series victory.

"We were not afraid of the Yankees and there is no reason we should be frightened of Boston, either," said manager Jack McKeon. "If we can get good pitching, we can stay with the big boys."

McKeon had to go with reliever Bob Lacey in the fifth inning and he said "normally, I don't like to use him that early, but against a club like this, you've got to take chances. We had to win, you know."

Yankee Manager Billy Martin was far from reaching for the panic button. "We did all right," he said. "There is nothing to worry about." He said Gullett will start again in a week. "He's just rusty."

Ex-Oaklander Jackson noted that

Herald sports

"It is a lot of ball about the so called lesser clubs not being able to play with the stronger clubs. They are all big leaguers in this league and none are to be taken lightly."

"We have seen some of the Yankees and they are really making us confident. I think that in the first inning of the first game (last Friday), we were intimidated by the Yankees. But then we settled down and came back and made a game of that one and then we won the next two games. Every time they came back against us, we went ahead. That has to show something."

Tanana continues mastery of RSox

NEW YORK (UPI) — Frank Tanana became the American League's first nine-game winner Sunday when he led the California Angels to a 4-2 victory over the Boston Red Sox with a four-hitter over 8 2/3 innings.

"It's always nice to beat a team that's considered one of the best in baseball," said Tanana. "I've always pitched well against Boston here, though."

Ken Jackson and Ken Landreux powered solo homers to lead Tanana and give Jim Fregosi his first victory as a manager. The win snapped a seven-game losing streak for the Angels.

Tanana struck out five and walked two in his record to 2-3 and became the second pitcher in the majors to win nine games. Ross Grimsley of Montreal was the first.

Dave LaRoche nailed down the final out of the ninth inning to record his seventh save after Tanana fielded a sacrifice fly to Carl Yastrzemski and a run-scoring single to Carlton Fisk.

"Tanana really knows how to pitch, doesn't he?" asked Fregosi. "He's a great competitor and he knows how to keep hitters honest."

Jack Morris picked up his first win of the year when Jim Workman snapped a 3 1/2 tie with a run-scoring single in the sixth inning. Glenn Adams had a pair of solo shots for the Twins.

Ken Singleton drove in all of Baltimore's runs with three hits and Mike Flanagan tossed a seven-hitter that led the Orioles to their fifth straight win as Seattle suffered its seventh consecutive loss.

NBA playoff set now best of one

LANDOVER, Md. (UPI) — What started as a best-of-seven NBA championship series is now a best-of-one series, home-court advantage to the Seattle SuperSonics. Even a 35-point loss at Washington Sunday couldn't smuff out the Sonics' enthusiasm.

"Every game they play here, they and Greg Ballard (12 points, 12 rebounds) are the best players in the franchise," said Seattle's John Johnson.

The Bulls' 117-82 triumph ended the series at three games apiece, with the deciding game at the Seattle Center Coliseum. The Sonics have won 22 straight in that building, but Washington's Elvin Hayes isn't playing in his "home-court" theories.

"Now they have to think about it. They know we can put points on the board, and that has to concern them," said Hayes.

"It wasn't meant to be a game. It was just a matter for them to play. Their fans won't put the ball in the basket for them."

That was something the Sonics couldn't do in Game 6. They shot just 24 percent from the field, their worst performance of the series, and were outscored, 69-49.

Washington's margin of victory was the largest in a championship series game. The previous record, 34, was set April 2, 1961 by Boston, in a 129-85 win over the Los Angeles Lakers. The Bulls got outstanding games from many players, including Hayes (21 points, 15 rebounds), Bob Dandridge (19 points), Mitch Kupchak (19 points), Charles Johnson (17 points), Wes Unseld (14 rebounds) and Larry Bird (14 rebounds).

Phils sweep Dodgers as Kaat wins 255th

NEW YORK (UPI) — Jim Kaat, 39, scattered seven hits Sunday afternoon to record his 255th career victory — tops among all active major league pitchers — when he helped the Philadelphia Phillies to a 9-4 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers.

"I'm a little faster than last year," Kaat said. "I worked this winter on weights and flexibility. I also made some adjustments in my pitching. This year is different."

Kaat's victory completed a three-game sweep over the Dodgers and left Los Angeles' 1-2 games behind San Francisco in the National League West.

The Phils used a five-run second inning to rout the Dodgers, ace left-hander, Tommy John, and Philadelphia outfielders recorded 14 outfield putouts — including 10 in center fielder Garry Maddox, just two short of the NL record.

Winnery rally with a double and singled to Richie Hebner. Bobe after a run. Jim Morrison's single tied the game 2-2 and after a walk by Jerry Mattern, Maddox stroked an RBI single. Greg Luzinski's two-run single capped the assault.

In other National League games, the Philadelphia Phillies won 4-2, Pittsburgh topped Cincinnati, 4-1, Chicago ripped Atlanta, 6-1, San Francisco edged the Padres, 10-4, and Oakland's Steve Lisle defeated Houston, 4-2.

Bert Blyleven and Grant Jackson combined on a four-hitter and John Miller and Bill Ringer accounted for seven hits between them to lift the Pirates over the Reds.

Gottlieb bows in quarterfinals

One pair reached the semifinals and two individuals made the quarterfinals as performers from Manchester High, East Catholic and Cheney Tech took part in last weekend's CIAC State Boys' Tennis Tournaments. Manchester's sixth-seeded Scott Gottlieb made the quarterfinals at the Class II Division tournament at Southern Connecticut State College in New Haven before being ousted. Gottlieb, No. 1 singles performer for the Indians this season, drew a bye the first round, topped Ken McNally of Greenwich 6-4, 6-3, in the second round; bested Neal Bernstein of Staples, 6-4, 8-3 in the third round; before being eliminated in Saturday's quarterfinals by third-seeded John McLean of Westhill High of Stamford 6-2, 7-6.

Coaching changes

Two coaching appointments have been made to the staff at Manchester High, announced Dick Cobb, director of athletics. Fred Freihut has been named to the football coaching staff as an assistant. He replaces Mike Zarolinski who resigned. Freihut previously was an assistant coach for 12 years at cross-town East Catholic High. Bill McCarthy was selected assistant varsity soccer coach, succeeding Doug Pearson. McCarthy was javvyee soccer coach and that position now has to be filled, Cobb stated.

Manchester High girls will be in a CIAC State Tournament semifinal for the first time over Tuesday afternoon when the softball team faces Southington High at the KOTC Field in Plainville at 3:15. Manchester, seventh-ranked in the Class II Division, advanced to the semifinals with two close triumphs, 7-4 over Stamford and 5-3 over Eastfield. Ashe gets chance to test strength

PARIS (UPI)—Arthur Ashe gets a chance to test the strength of his comeback Monday when he meets defending champion Guillermo Vilas of Argentina in the fourth round of the $400,000 French open tennis championships. The 34-year-old former Wimbledon champion from New York says he has completely recovered from a recurring eye infection and a serious heel operation which kept him out of serious competition last year. And Ashe, one of the world's most attractive players to watch with his slicing forehand and finesse approach to a game dominated by power play, has made good headway so far through three rounds on the red clay of the Roland Garros stadium.

He dropped only seven games in a first-round match against No. 12 seed Phil Dent of Australia, who advanced by defeating a former Wimbledon champion, in the third round Saturday. The sharp contrast to Ashe's striking form, Vilas, the No. 2 seed behind Sweden's Bjorn Borg, has looked shaky. The 25-year-old left-hander from Mar Del Plata was stretched to five sets by Billy Martin, Palos Verdes, California, in the second round and then dropped a set to 18-year-old newcomer Yannick Noah of France and Cameroon in the third round. Also on Monday's card is a clash between No. 13 seed Tim Gullikson, Oakland, Wis., and Spain's Manuel Orantes, the No. 5 seed.

Standings Bean on beam winning Open

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (UPI)—Andy Bean is known for his distance over the tees, but now, the Kemper Open champion says, he's right up there with the best of the putters on the tour. "For a person my size (6-foot-4, 210-pounds) to develop a soft touch around the green takes work—and I have worked at it," said Bean, who finished with a 66 for a 15-under-par 273 total. Bean, winner of last year's Doral Open, started the day one stroke behind Alan Fale but picked up three consecutive birdies and an eagle on the second hole to move to 14-under.

Historic State Capitol grows old dangerously

HARTFORD (UPI) — Her marble skin is cracking, her wrought iron hair is falling out and her stained glass eyes have lost their sparkle. Connecticut's grand dame is an old lady who needs a great deal of help.

The State Capitol building, a five-story Venetian Gothic structure with a gold leaf finish, first opened her oak doors to the public in 1878. Then, she was a stunner, a sensitively sculptured castle looming above Bushnell Park, the first urban renewal project in America.

Now, a century later, the building is in serious trouble.

"The basic building is in pretty good shape," said Dominic Cimino, the architect the state has hired to restore the Capitol to her former glory. "But there are some areas in the building that are downright dangerous."

Architect says repairs will be long, expensive

HARTFORD (UPI) — Since last July, Dominic Cimino and his architectural firm, Olson & Miller, have been researching, photographing and "crawling through every inch" of the State Capitol to try to determine what needs to be done to restore the building.

"We found out it's going to be a long, expensive proposition," Cimino said, adding the initial $2.5-million the state has allotted for the project will not "begin to cover the work that needs to be done."

"The roof has to be done over and when we look under it we may find beams half rotted away. All the windows in the building will have to be replaced and the stained glass restored. This will not be an easy task."

Cimino said that to get to one set of windows on the Capitol's north face, his workers will have to remove huge sections of sculptured walnut paneling that form the backdrop for the speaker's podium in the Senate.

"The entire building has to be rewired, and chances are we're going to have to build some stairs inside for fire safety."

"But the most pressing problems is finding a method of slowing down or stopping the Capitol's marble from eroding and destroying the character of its statues and architectural design."

"Stone stabilization is a very serious problem all over the world and no one has really come up with a definite answer on how to solve it."

But the architect said he is impressed with an erosion control plan that has been used in Venice, Italy.

"We're 99 percent it will work on the Capitol," he said.

Under the Venice method, a building is intermittently soaked with water and a chemical called barium hydroxide. Cimino said his men will start the treatment on select areas of the Capitol this summer and if it works they will do the whole building next year.

All this cleaning, rebuilding and repairing will take a while.

"A couple of years at least," Cimino said. "And there will be inconveniences."

"The inconveniences and the expense of the project are sure to disturb some people who don't believe the Capitol is in danger. They're saying, 'The building has been there 100 years. What are you worried about?'" Cimino said.

"That's exactly what we're worried about. 'What it's going to be here another 100 years.'"

States to get funds for scholarship aid

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government said today it is giving $64 million in matching college scholarship funds to the states to help 255,000 students attend school next year.

The money will be provided to all 50 states and territories on a matching basis, meaning at least $28 million in federal and state money will be available to students under the program in September.

Actually, the $64 million is a drop in the bucket of federal grants for undergraduate college students. During the current year, the government is providing some $2.5 billion in direct and supplemental student grants.

"But this matching grant program is important," said an Office of Education spokesman. "It gives the states incentive to keep their own scholarship programs going."

Labor, spending in the spotlight

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The first effort to break a Senate filibuster on a proposed labor law revision shares the spotlight in Congress at midweek with a marathon House effort to pass all its appropriations bills in one 11-day period.

Senate Democratic Leader Robert Byrd announced some time ago he would try to break the filibuster by debating it in Congress at midweek with a marathon House effort to pass all its appropriations bills in one 11-day period.

Byrd scheduled his first cloture vote for Wednesday.

He has said he will set a new vote every day until the opposition, consisting of a Southern-conservative coalition, folds.

Backers of the bill — despite help from organized labor — have no assurance of the 60 votes needed to kill a filibuster. Most observers feel the goal can be reached, but only after a number of tries.

And opponents may propose a series of time-consuming amendments after that in further efforts to delay voting on the bill that would make it easier for unions to organize and provide new penalties for anti-union actions by employers.

Meanwhile the House at mid-week begins an intense 10-day effort to complete the appropriations bill.

Among the first to come up — Thursday and Friday — is funding for the Health, Education and Welfare Department and Labor Department. The bill reported to the House is slightly under $53 billion and another $17.6 billion in programs was deferred pending authorizing legislation.

The amount is certain to provoke a fight and the Labor-HEW money bill once again carries the seeds of a Senate-House showdown on the question of federal funds for abortions for poor women.

The Senate ethics committee meets Thursday on two problems — Sen. Herman Talmadge, D-Ga., and Edward Brooke, R-Mass.

The committee has begun an inquiry into Talmadge's long-standing practice of accepting small cash gifts for day-to-day expenses, free clothing and hotel accommodations.

It also has been disclosed that Talmadge was reimbursed nearly $27,000 for campaign expenses in 1973 and 1974, although his report to the Senate said there were no expenses, and he had not reported receiving cash gifts at his annual birthday parties.

An investigation by the Boston Globe disclosed last week that Brooke, in a deposition related to his divorce proceedings, had said he had a 10-year, $40,000 loan provided by an old friend, but he did not list it as a liability in his Senate disclosure statement as required.

Brooke said he made a "mistatement" in a deposition and the loan was only $2,000, which he would not have to disclose.
