Water deadline worries directors

By GREG PEARSON
Herald Reporter

Members of the Manchester Board of Directors Tuesday night again expressed concern about a tightening timetable for making water improvements in town.

The board did take one step Tuesday for improving water quality. It approved $15,000 for a site study for the town's water treatment plant.

The study will analyze three proposed sites for the plant — the Globe Hollow swimming pool, a site across from the pool north of Spring Street and a site on Fern Street.

The board considered eliminating the pool site from the test, but Jay Giles, director of public works, said this would not save much of the $15,000. The pool site would require passage of a special act by the state Legislature before it can be used for a non-recreation purpose.

Giles said that the site study should take about 60 days.

Director Joseph Sweeney asked Giles if a distribution study being done for the town would be ready for the board's July meeting.

Giles said it is unlikely, although Frank Jodaitis, water and sewer administrator, is expected to see a draft copy of the report this week.

Sweeney and other board members expressed concern about the lack of time that is left before the November election. The town is hopeful that it can place a referendum question seeking funds for water improvements on the November ballot.

"This proposal is one of the furthest-reaching decisions this board will make," Sweeney said of the distribution study and water problem. He expressed fear that the board may have to rush its decisions to meet the proposed November referendum date. A November vote is considered necessary if the town is to meet time guidelines for water improvements established by federal law.

Director Stephen Cassano suggested that the town impose a penalty if the site study is not completed on time. The board has expressed its displeasure with the length of time the distribution study has taken.

"We can't be at their mercy," Cassano said.

Giles said that it is difficult to accurately estimate how long such technical studies will take.

The board tabled action on reconsideration of a detention basin in the Briarwood Drive area. Giles said an alternate proposal, to locate a basin on the Peila farms property, may require more survey and engineering work than originally thought.

Stephen Penny, chairman of the board, asked that Giles prepare a report on what future steps and costs are needed to carry out that alternative.

The directors also took the following actions involving the Public Works Department:

- Approved a rights-of-way permit manual. This will result in contractors and some utilities paying the town to repair roads after they are dug up to install utility lines. The utilities now make their own repairs after installation, but under the new arrangement the town will hire one firm to make all the repairs.

- Tabled action on several road improvement projects that have received federal funding. Members of the board said that they would like to see the final plans before acting.

- Tabled action on a proposal by Giles that sidewalks be eliminated on one side of the street in certain areas in conjunction with repair work.

U.S. plans strategy on economy growth

PARIS (UPI) — Secretary of State Cyrus Vance said today the United States is ready to support a strategy of "sustained" economic growth aimed at pulling the industrial world out of an economic slump.

Vance told the opening session of an annual two-day, cabinet-level meeting of the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development that only joint action by all members can assure economic expansion.

"Each nation must do its share," Vance said. "The challenge before us now is to go beyond keeping our heads above water, to develop a coordinated program that will return our economies to a pattern of sustained economic growth."

Several authoritative reports before the session warn that unless the industrial countries speed up their growth they will slide into a new recession.

Vance spoke at a time when concern about U.S. inflation has forced the dollar into a two-week slide.

"Progress for each of us requires action by all of us," Vance said. He outlined a four-point program for sustained growth for OECD, regrouping the world's richest industrial and trading nations.

- "The United States is determined to reduce its dependence on imported oil and to control inflation."

- "Countries which have trade surpluses and relatively low inflation should seek to grow faster."

- "Others, who have brought their payments deficits and their inflation problems under better control, can now allow some degree of domestic expansion."

- "All of us must go beyond merely resisting protectionist pressures and support positive steps to expand trade and strengthen the trading system."

Vance's speech amounted to a fresh call on West Germany and Japan, the two countries with the largest trade surpluses, to expand rapidly so as to pull along their weaker partners.

Previous such exhortations by the United States to West Germany and Japan, however, have come to naught.

Vance's statement also meant an endorsement of the OECD secretary's proposal that weaker nations that had overcome most of their difficulties — France and Great Britain for example — also join in the Western expansion drive but more cautiously.

Vance spoke after Emile Van Lennep of Holland, OECD secretary general, warned the meeting that unless expansionary measures are taken the industrialized world risks stagnation and paralyzing protectionism.

Foreign and finance ministers are seeking a joint approach to inflation and stagnation — two ills which, according to most expert analyses, will stay with the Western nations for years.

Town and pig farmer dispute right to sty

By GREG PEARSON
Herald Reporter

The Town of Manchester Health Department Tuesday said that a pig farm on Hillstown Road is in violation of the public health code.

The owner of the farm, however, feels that the town is at fault because it allowed homes to be built within 300 feet of his pigsty.

The dispute is one that has continued quietly for a few years. Last week, residents of Debbie Drive presented the Town Board of Directors with a petition complaining about the proximity of the pigsty.

The farm, located on Hillstown Road, is owned by Anthony Botticello.

Tuesday night, the Health Department submitted its report to the Board of Directors. It said that the pigsty is within 300 feet of two homes, and possibly a third. This is a violation of the public health code.

"The Health Department's interpretation of the public health code would place responsibility for the 300-foot separation with the pigsty operation — the pigsty would have to move," the letter from Ronald Kraatz of the Health Department.

The Health Department suggested that it discuss the matter with the town council's office, and the Board of Directors raised no objections Tuesday night.

Objections, however, can be expected from Botticello, who believes the town is at fault in this matter.

He said that he has been farming at the site for 28 years. The development of the surrounding homes did not begin until 1975.

When the proposed Robin Estates subdivision, which includes the Debbie Drive homes, was first presented, Botticello said that he discussed the matter with the town.

He said that he warned all involved town departments that the homes, if built, would be in violation of the health code.

"They just let them go ahead," he said of the town.

"I'm in a rural zone. I'm supposed to be able to farm. I've been there 28 years," Botticello said.

About two years ago, he filed suit against the builder trying to prevent construction of the homes. He said that one of the reasons he dropped the action was the town's interference in the matter.

He said that an agreement that included a provision that he move his pigsty was never reached. Such a settlement had been mentioned at last week's meeting.

When told that the town council's office would be contacted about the matter, Botticello said that the council's office was one he had contacted before the building started.

"Why didn't they do something then?" he said.

"The town has collected taxes on those pigs for 28 years. All of a sudden, I'm in the wrong," Botticello said of the present situation.

Electronic failures cut phone service

The Southern New England Telephone Co. experienced an electronic equipment failure this morning causing the entire town to be without telephone service.

Individual problems occurred on and off between 9:15 and 10 a.m., according to Paula Kraiger, manager of SNET on 52 E. Center St. The entire town was simultaneously without service for a total of five minutes.

Area towns also reported experiencing service disruptions but these were unrelated, according to Miss Kraiger.

"The cause of the failure will probably not be determined today because the equipment is computer-involved and these things take some time," she said.

250 honor Sartor

About 250 persons gathered at the Marco Polo Restaurant Tuesday night to honor Richard J. Sartor, who recently left the post of deputy chief of police in Manchester. Sartor is now police chief in Cheshire. Mr. and Mrs. Sartor were presented shiny pewter Revere bowl from their friends which was presented by Raymond F. 'Sonny' Damato, chairman of the dinner party. The Sartors will also receive a gift of a purse. Superior Court Judge John F. Shea Jr. was master of ceremonies for the event. Other speakers included Monsignor Edward J. Reardon, pastor emeritus of St. James Church, former Police Chief James Reardon, Police Chief Robert D. Lannan and Richard Borden Jr., town manager of Cheshire. Several other town officials were introduced in the evening. Music was provided by the DuBalds Brothers.

Directors take action on financial matters

By GREG PEARSON
Herald Reporter
The Manchester Board of Directors Tuesday night acted on several financial matters, including acceptance of an education contract and approval of a request from the town counsel's office to proceed with a foreclosure action.

The board unanimously voted not to deny a contract agreement between the Manchester Education Association and the Board of Education. The contract would give teachers four percent pay increases in the first year, and 4 1/2 percent in the second year.

Director Joseph Sweeney proposed that foreclosure action be taken by the town against Alex Yakulis, who owes more than $8,000 in taxes, according to information provided by the town counsel's office. Director Carl Zinsner questioned why the board should even have to act on such a matter. He said that the town counsel's office should proceed as it feels necessary in such cases.

Town Manager Robert Weiss said that the counsel's office sought permission from the board for the foreclosure action because a residence is involved. The board voted 4-1, Zinsner casting the lone no vote, to approve the action. (Directors Vivian Ferguson and William Diana were absent.)

A proposal to grant a five percent cost-of-living raise to members of the town pension plan was tabled. Sweeney recommended the tabling because there was no item on Tuesday's agenda to provide the $15,200 needed in the 1978-79 fiscal year to pay for the increase.

The raise, which would be retroactive to July 1, and the funding are expected to be approved at the board's July meeting. The directors agreed to pay a total of $67,813 in reimbursements to firms through the town's industrial guidelines. One of these payments would be for sections of Progress Drive that have been completed.

Director Carl Zinsner questioned why the board should even have to act on such a matter. He said that the town counsel's office should proceed as it feels necessary in such cases. Town Manager Robert Weiss said that the counsel's office sought permission from the board for the foreclosure action because a residence is involved.

The board agreed to continue the current contract agreement with Colonial Empire until bidding is completed. Head librarian John Jackson will work with Maurice Pass, director of general services, to draw up specifications for the custodial services required.

The board is also seeking bids for repairs to the roof and exterior painting at the Whiton Memorial Library. The board will ask the Board of Directors for available money from the Whiton Memorial Fund for the project.

Jackson told the board there is a surplus of books that are no longer needed at the libraries. Board member Roger Bagley suggested asking Town Counsel for instructions on selling the books, because the books are town property.

According to the Town Charter, a bid waiver is required to sell town property. The board approved a motion made by Bagley to request a bid waiver for a book sale. Money from the sale would go to the Collector of Revenue.

DOT seeks to curb Burr lot vandalism

The state Department of Transportation is beefing up security at the Burr Corners commuter parking lot and is seeking riders' opinions on how to stop vandalism at the lot. Thursday morning, the DOT will distribute a letter from Transportation Commissioner James F. Shugrue and a questionnaire seeking input on the problem. The increased surveillance of the lot and the preparation of a questionnaire followed riders' petitioning and a meeting of state legislators and transportation officials last week.

Shugrue told the Manchester area legislators that the DOT would intensify surveillance of the lot, in addition to regular patrols by Manchester Police. Several other proposals were made under the present code. The DOT is studying them, Shugrue said. Shugrue acknowledged concern over vandalism to cars in the Burr Corners lot, saying, "We are aware of the potential impact of these acts of violence on our effort to further increase the use of this form of public transportation. "It is not a good situation," Shugrue said. The Friday meeting included State Sens. David Barry, D-Third District, and Robert Houley, D-35th District; State Reps. Abraham Glassman, D-14th District, Francis Mahoney, D-13th District, and Chester Morgan, D-5th District; and Robert Lannan, Manchester police chief.

Burr Corners is one of the state's largest commuter parking lots. Shugrue said. The Friday meeting included State Sens. David Barry, D-Third District, and Robert Houley, D-35th District; State Reps. Abraham Glassman, D-14th District, Francis Mahoney, D-13th District, and Chester Morgan, D-5th District; and Robert Lannan, Manchester police chief.

Health aides seek strong housing code
By JUNE TOMPKINS
Herald Reporter
A proposed new housing code would give the Manchester health director more authority to enforce the code than the current housing code provides.

The Manchester Advisory Board of Health heard John Salcius, sanitarian, describe a proposed housing code which gives the town health director the power to enforce certain procedures which inspectors do not have under the present code. The proposed code of health allows for appeals, reinspection and follow-ups. Salcius said that with the proposed code, the housing inspectors can follow their cases more closely if any of them ever come up in court.

The stringent regulations provide that the building owners who try to prevent the health director from entering a building where correction orders have been issued and public health and safety are in danger, will be subject to $100 fines for each time they obstruct entry.

The code contains added definitions and several new sections. Besides incorporating current inspection guides, it also gives the housing inspectors more legal rights, Salcius said, and provides for the town to make repairs in some cases. Ronald Kraatz, assistant health administrator, said there may be a workshop during the summer to refine and update the proposal before giving it to the Board of Directors to be put on its fall agenda.

Students questioned on town youth needs
The Manchester Youth Commission this week is distributing questionnaires in the town's junior high schools and high schools including East Catholic High School, Howell Cheney Regional Vocational Technical School, Assumption Junior High School and St. Bridget.

Students' answers on the questionnaire will help the commission evaluate the concerns of the community youth, Mrs. Tomi Frese, commission chairman, said. Some of the things the questionnaire asks are whether there is a need for a teenage drop-in center, a job bank, and if youths are aware of the community services that are available in the town such as legal aid, Meals-on-Wheels, and other social services.

Youths who have not received a questionnaire may inquire in any of the school offices. The Manchester Board of Directors Tuesday night honored a town employee and a retired judge and received an invitation from the Eight Utilities District.

Charles House, a Manchester resident who recently retired as chief justice of the state Supreme Court, was given a certificate from the board. The board of directors expresses its deep-felt gratitude to Charles S. House for his service to the people of the Town of Manchester and the State of Connecticut in so many capacities.

Mayor Stephen Penny, who read a list of House's past achievements and memberships in town and state bodies, said, "You may well be the father of Manchester." The directors also honored Theodore Angel, a Highway Department employee.

Angel was credited for working quickly to prevent further injury during a May 9 accident that occurred with a sewer-clearing machine. One employee suffered a broken arm in the accident, but Angel was honored for his "swift and timely action" preventing any further problems.

Also, John Christensen and Frank Nordavsky, assistant fire chiefs with the Eight Utilities District Fire Department, presented members of the board with brochures about the District's 9th anniversary year. They also invited the board members to the anniversary parade, which will be held Saturday.

Two Scouts in Troop 27 receive Eagle awards

Eagle Scout awards and troop advancements in Boy Scout Troop 27 were made at a recent Court of Honor at St. Mary's Church. Those receiving their Eagle Scout awards were Jeffrey Cone and William Szarek.

Jeffrey Cone, son of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Cone of 19 Trumbull St., is a senior and honor student at Manchester High School. He was a member of the school wrestling team for two years. While in scouts, he became a member of the Order of the Arrow, a national honor camping society. He also attended the 1973 National Jamboree at Moraine State Park, Butler, Pa.

He has been accepted at Northeastern University, School of Pharmacy. William Szarek is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Szarek of 6 Evergreen Road, and a ninth grader at Bannet Junior High School. He has earned the Scout Life Guard and the Historic Trails awards. He attended Troop Leader Development Camp at Lake of Isles Scout Reservation. He has been a patrol leader, and recently earned his Religious Award in scouting, the Catholic Ad Alteri Dei Award. He has been a Herald carrier for the past three years.

Other troop advancements are as follows: Kenneth Szarek, life scout; John Anlon, Dean Collins and Russell Smith, first class; Gary McDonough, Scott Carone and Bill Hoover, second class; David Courtney, Jason Clifford and Ronald Shack, tenderfoot. New scouts inducted into the troop are Robert Arnold, James Russell, Frank Hoher, Eric Hendrick, James Duffield and Roy Randall.

Trophies from the district swim meet held last March are as follows: First place in the 11-, 12- and 13-year-old groups, and a second place ribbon in the 14 to 16-year-old group. Troop 27 recently competed at the Algonquin District Spring Camporee. The senior patrol won first place, and other patrols within the troop placed well including a second place.

The troop completed its annual June Blast with a trip to Bear Mountain State Park, West Point, and the Aerodrome in Rhinebeck, N.Y. Opinion

We are America again

"I pledge allegiance to the flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands; one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all."

How do you repeat your pledge today, Flag Day? Is it with gusto, or a sing-song, matter-of-fact recitation? Is it with a heart filled with emotion for the United States of America? Or is yours a half-hearted attempt at allegiance? Do you take off your hat when the flag goes by in parade, or do you salute it either by a hand salute or coming to attention under the sign of fidelity?

This nation would like to forget those things which have tarnished the country's image. The Kennedy assassinations, Watergate, Korea, Koreagate. Some lost respect for its government, its flag, and its people.

Inflation accelerated

By ANDREW TULLY
Editor's note: The following column on inflation was written by Leon H. Keswling, chairman of the Council on Economic Advisors under President Truman, and president of the Conference on Economic Progress. Publication does not imply that Andrew Tully agrees with all of Dr. Keswling's proposals for fighting inflation.

By LEON H. KESWLING

During the past quarter century, five cycles of stagnation, recession, and then inadequate economic output have caused us to forfeit more than $3 trillion 1977 dollars worth of national production, to suffer almost 72 million man-months and ten-year-years of excessive unemployment, and thus to lose more than a trillion dollars in tax collections which could have served priority national needs and maintained surpluses in public budgets.

The anti-inflation program (including direct controls needed during the Korean war but not needed now) was largely to overcome specific shortages, and was managed in aid of rather than in conflict with full production and employment. Fiscal and monetary stimuli and restraints were deployed selectively rather than in blunderbuss fashion, because full economic health and restraint of inflation both require that some lines of activity be promoted while others are held back. To promote growth and restrain inflation, interest rates were held low. Sharply rising interest rates, being a cost, are inflationary per se.

The "trade-off" theory continued to be refuted by actual experience. During 1969-1977, with the attempted "trade-off" in full swing, the real economic growth rate averaged only 2.3 percent, unemployment rose from 3.5 percent to 7.0 percent, inflation rose from 5.4 to 5.8 percent, and the average annual federal deficit almost doubled. Today, the underlying and rising rate of inflation is about three times as high as when the economy was last near full economic performance, with unemployment nowhere within range of today's percent.

Yet the "trade-off" attempt still prevails. Why are we still seeking to fight inflation by restrictive financial and monetary measures which five times since 1953 have ended in stagnation and recession (themselves the cause of more inflation) and which threaten to do so again come 1979 or 1980? Repressive and inflationary proposals, such as social insurance tax increases, should be toned down. Tax reductions should be much more selective, with more stress upon stimulation of consumption.

Gather all facts on subject matter

To the editor:
The Town of Manchester is very fortunate to have within its population a knowledgeable and very active citizen-minded gentleman, a man who cares how town officials spend our hard-earned tax dollars.

I agree with Mrs. Sears' remarks (6/5/78) and only wish that more people would listen to Mr. Frank U. Lupien whenever he gets up to speak at the public meetings. He is an excellent speaker, gathers all the facts before he delivers his speech on any particular subject matter. He also writes worthy letters to the editors.

Oh, no, not everyone agrees with Mr. Lupien all the time — after all, he is human like the rest of us — but we all do learn a few new facts whenever Mr. Lupien speaks in public. Yes, he is trying to save our tax dollars from being spent unwisely and indiscriminately.

Psalm 23
"He restoreth my soul,
He guided me in straight paths for his name's sake." (Verse 3)

In the daily struggle of life, the body often grows weary and the soul becomes faint. And in our weariness and moments of weakness, we sometimes deviate from the straight path and go astray in our conduct and our behavior. Faith in God as a redemptive power can help us regain our strength and find our way back to the right path of life.

World armed to the teeth

By DON GRAFF
Considering the sorry record on past efforts to deal with the problem, it is highly debatable that the newly convened United Nations disarmament conference will lead to any significant reduction in world arms stocks.

But it won't be from lack of delectable items on the agenda for the sessions, which will continue through June.

About town

Senior Methodists of South United Methodist Church will have their last meeting of the season Thursday night at the church. Members are asked to bring sandwiches. Beverages will be served.

The United Pentecostal Church will have its regular midweek service and Bible study tonight at 7:30 at the church, 187 Woodbridge St. Everyone is welcome.

Court lauds two lawyers for service

Two attorneys from Manchester were honored by the Superior Court in Hartford for their participation in a special program designed to reach settlements on cases slated for jury trials.

Attorneys Paul Groebert and Sanford Pieper, both of Manchester, were among the 30 attorneys who received certificates for participating in the court's special master's program.

Nursery school visits museum

Children attending South United Methodist Nursery School and their parents and teachers toured the Wadsworth Athenaeum in Hartford recently.

The tour included a viewing of sculptor Duane Hanson's polyester people and a visit to the Gallery of the Senses. The children were most impressed with the mummy, knights' armor and the size of paintings.

Masons to conduct Prince Hall night

Friendship Lodge of Masons will have Prince Hall Night when it meets Thursday at the Masonic Temple.

There will be a dinner at 6:30 p.m. and tickets will be available at the door.

Nature program success, Board of Education told

Juan Sanchez, director of the environmental education program for the Manchester schools, told the Board of Education Monday night that the program is one of the most successful of its kind in the state and the nation.

He said the program was one of the few funded by federal grants that survived. The program is now funded by the local Board of Education and is almost totally for Manchester students. It originally included several area towns and some towns still "buy in" to the program.

Police ask that drivers avoid parade

The Manchester Police Department is asking for the cooperation of motorists during Saturday's Eighth Utilities District 90th anniversary parade. The parade will begin at 4 p.m. at Manchester High School and head south on Brookfield Street to East Center Street, then turn on Main Street at the Center and proceed north on Main to Hilliard Street where it will disband at the Eighth District Firehouse.

A Match for Maltuition

Maltuition: It's a malady spreading in higher education. It afflicts tuition-paying parents and students. Private colleges suffer acutely from it. So do public universities.

In fact, anyone currently connected with the college or university feels the effects of this dollar-debilitating disease. Inflation is its host.

Chamber endorses relays

The Greater Manchester Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors Tuesday voted unanimously to endorse and support the 1978 Manchester Community College-New England Relays.

The Chamber letter to all its members listed several ways in which Chamber members can help during the Relays. The directors urge active support such as displaying posters, selling tickets, sponsoring special events, donating time and merchandise. Some businesses are making store displays and including the Relays logo in advertising.

Nutmeg sells radio station

SOUTHINGTON (UPI) — Nutmeg Broadcasting Co. has announced the sale of radio station WNTY to a Utica, N.Y., man. The new owner, George Stevens, said Monday he will ask the Federal Communications Commission in July to approve the sale.

Bancroft had crisis when patent expired

NEW YORK (UPI) — What can a company do if expiration of patents cuts the ground from under a trademark it has built up to worldwide reputation? That doesn't happen if the company makes and markets the products covered by the patents itself. Then a company goes ahead without patent protection or gets design patents on new models. But Joseph Bancroft & Sons Co. of New York found itself in a real crisis when the domestic patents to its Ban-Lon process or making high quality rayon fibers ran out. Bancroft didn't use the process itself, but licensed it to other manufacturers and built a big testing laboratory in order to require the licensees to live up to its standards.

Although Bancroft still has its foreign patents, expiration of the domestic patents cut away its biggest source of income and the company soon changed management. Next to the Ban-Lon trademark, Bancroft's modern testing laboratory was the company's best money maker, and if the technicians could test a fiber extruding process, they could test a lot of other products and set standards for them.

So Bancroft went into the testing business for many companies with a huge range of products but with a unique wrinkle. The Ban-Lon trademark was converted into something called the "Ban-Lon Blessing," a seal of quality that would win quick recognition because of the reputation it had built over the years in the quality nylon fiber business.

It didn't prove hard to sell the new idea. Literally hundreds of products made by many manufacturers now are sold around the world under the Ban-Lon label, which means they have been tested in Bancroft laboratories and have to conform to standards set by Bancroft.

The list of products tested and given the Ban-Lon label ranges through fabrics, apparel, carpeting, furniture and other home furnishings, wall coverings, sun glasses, digital watches, bedding and even tools.

An eight-year employee of Manpower, Mrs. Seaton received all her secretarial training at Manchester High School while a student there. She goes on secretarial assignments to various businesses in the Hartford area, usually for several weeks at a time. She fills in for employees who are on leaves of absence, vacation and sometimes fills in where an extra employee is needed for short term positions.

Mrs. Seaton said that Manpower has recently opened an office at 800 Silver Lane, East Hartford, to recruit persons from Manchester, Glastonbury, and the East Hartford area in order to supply those areas with temporary employees when asked for.

Although she has been offered many permanent positions, Mrs. Seaton prefers the routine of Manpower where she is not obliged to accept an assignment.

"I work for Manpower so that I have all school vacations off," she said. "If the kids are sick, I stay home and Manpower will replace me with another secretary."

She has two children, Donald 15, and Debbie 13. Her husband, Joseph works at Pratt & Whitney Aircraft in East Hartford.

Business students honored

Students in the business department of Manchester High School were recognized recently for their outstanding accomplishments in the field of business. Tests are conducted in May to determine the recipients of the annual awards. Chosen the Outstanding Secretarial Student was Linda Roy. For the past several years, each outstanding secretarial student has received a watch from Shoor Jewelers. Other awards presented are as follows: Lion's Club Award to the business student with the highest class rank in the graduating class—Mary Ellen DuBald; Best Beginning Typist Award, to the student who reaches the highest speed on a five-minute typing—Julie Lehr.

Business Singer plans Stamford site

NEW YORK (UPI) — Singer Co. announced Tuesday it is moving its corporate headquarters to Stamford, Conn., from New York City where the world's oldest sewing machine company has been based since 1853. Most of the company's 430 headquarters employees will be affected by the move, scheduled to take place in the summer of 1979. Sixty employees in Singer's international division, also based at the company's Manhattan offices at Rockefeller Center, are not involved in the move. Singer said New York's city and state taxes were a major consideration in the relocation decision. Singer will retain a sizable workforce elsewhere in New York state. The headquarters personnel will move temporarily into a building under construction in Stamford's Forum redevelopment area that is scheduled for completion next year. Singer later will build an adjacent building to be constructed for the company by mid-1980.

Rogers planning 5-4 stock split

Rogers Corp. has announced that management intends to recommend to the company's board of directors that, at its regularly scheduled meeting June 16, the board authorize a stock distribution in the nature of a 5-for-4 stock split of the outstanding common stock.

Schools can survive despite budget cuts

The damage will show first in building cleanliness, he said. A total of about eight custodian positions are being cut from this year's budget. Next the building maintenance will deteriorate, he said. "These will be the most vital things," he said. "What you won't see are the programs for kids. There will be no field trips unless parents pay for them. This will cut back on the experiences of kids. "No one will know what they're missing — but it's missed. "And our libraries won't keep up. We're not heavy in that account by anyone's standards, anyway." Dr. Diggs said he meant no criticism of the board in his lament over the budget bloodletting. You can't get the cards you want. You just play your hand the best way you can. He noted parents are already calling his office to complain about the bus schedule changes. Willowbrook stays Chairman Lawrence DePonte asked the board members at one point in the long night if any of them would make a motion to close Willowbrook school in the fall. No one would do it. Dr. Diggs had suggested to them this could save over $40,000 if they closed the small elementary school this fall instead of the fall of 1979 as the board had planned. The children would have gone to the Hockanum School. The portable classrooms there would have been kept open. During the board's debates over what to cut, the large audience of teachers, principals, and residents made frequent comments. Denise Benoit and Elaine Tomko, members of the East Hartford Citizens Action Group (EHCAG) and parents of school children, introduced figures on school maintenance taken from the Connecticut Public Expenditures Council (CPEC) in Hartford. CPEC got its figures from the state Board of Education, said Mrs. Tomko. Board member Joyce Ruggles expressed shock at the figures. "We're not making any accusations," said Mrs. Tomko, mother of a fourth grader, at the Langford School. "We just want to know why these numbers are so high." No one gave the women an answer. However, the board later raised the cut in the maintenance account from the $94,000 suggested by Dr. Diggs to the $125,000 finally agreed upon. "We gave them enough basis to make larger cuts in maintenance," said Mrs. Benoit today. "I believe the board made steps in the right direction." She said she and other parents she has talked to are pleased the board has so far avoided cutting teachers. They fear such cuts will have the worst impact on their children. "Who is this guy?" persons involved in the transaction asked repeatedly during breaks in the hearing. Lawyers were prepared for quick approval of the sale of National Telephone, which is bankrupt, to Acton Corp. of Acton, Mass. The Acton firm is in the cable television business and is involved in telephone interconnects. Coleman said his present and past business interests ranged from real estate and a Scotland brewery to Las Vegas hotels, ownership of a baseball team and soda vending machines. He became riled when hit by a barrage of questions from lawyers about his finances and motives. "I just don't understand all these questions," Coleman said. "I've had some good publicity and I've had some bad publicity. I'm willing to take chances. I've been married and divorced. I drink a little. I've had successes and I've had failures. What else do you want to know?"

Wetlands unit approves apartment complex plan

EAST HARTFORD — The Inland Wetlands Commission Tuesday unanimously approved the plans of Manchester builders Robert Stone and Jack Goldberg to build a 96-unit apartment complex on 5.5 acres of land along Willow Brook at the rear of 442 Main St. The approval requires the builders to "hydro seed" the stream bank during construction. Town Engineer Charles Sheehan suggested the method to prevent silt entering the brook. Sheehan said the town's inland wetlands maps prepared in 1977 by the COMSIS firm of Glastonbury does not rate the one acre of wetlands in the land. It is too small, he said. William Klock, engineer for Stone and Goldberg, showed the commission some of the drainage plans of the firm. They include giving the town a right of way for drainage from other areas across the land and a large storm drain at Willow Brook designed to protect its water quality. Goldberg said they will be following town and state regulations in all respects in the building. Stone said they do not expect to get any state or federal support for their project. Also, they do not expect their tenants to get rent subsidies. But they do expect to have many tenants. "There is a good market for it," Stone said. The builders' plans were before the zoning and Zoning Commission tonight at 7:30.

PZC faces seven items

EAS HARTFORD — Seven items are scheduled for discussion on the public hearing agenda for tonight's Planning and Zoning Commission meeting at 7:30 in the Council Chambers. Robert Stone and Jack Goldberg are applying for a special permit use to allow construction of a four-story, 96-unit apartment building for the elderly and the handicapped to be located between 442 and 450 Main St. Eugene Casale seeks subdivision on his three lots of about 9.5 acres located at 438 and 442 Main St. Casale wants to obtain a lot large enough to construct an apartment building. William P. Helm is requesting subdivision of his property for preliminary and final map approval for four lots on about 8.4 acres of land located at 229, 300, and 316 King St. This application involves no new construction, said John Shemo, town planner. Sal Amat is petitioning for a zone change from residence and industrial zoning to strictly residential zoning for about 35.5 acres of land located at 449 Goodwin St. The Union Meat Co. is applying for a special permit use to allow off-site parking on land located at 435 Park Ave. John Sakon, representing District Photo Inc., seeks a special permit use to allow a photo kiosk to be built on land located at Silver Lane Plaza. John B. Barnini was scheduled to appear for a special permit use for a self-service gas station on the northwest corner of Main Street and Silver Lane. However, Shemo said this application may have been withdrawn because of the death of one of the financial backers of the gas station.

Accord reached on limo strike

NEW HAVEN (UPI) — The Connecticut Limousine Service Inc. says it has reached a tentative agreement with its more than 300 drivers, who went on strike two weeks ago. Company President Edward Kurylak said Tuesday a new three-year contract was drafted, but he did not give the details of the proposed package. Members of Teamsters Locals 145 and 443 were to vote on the contract today. "If the membership approves, we plan to resume full limousine and bus service to the New York airports on Thursday morning," Kurylak said. The walkout at Connecticut Limousine affects about 2,500 commuters daily. The service makes 17 connections in New Haven and Fairfield County on its way to and from LaGuardia and Kennedy airports in New York. The drivers were to vote in Fairfield and New Haven at 10 a.m. and 7 p.m.

Doubts it's really safe

Albert LaVigne of 62 Janet Drive, East Hartford, owner of Alco Auto Body in Glastonbury, gives a skeptical look at the inside of a model safety car on display Tuesday night by the federal Highway Traffic Administration during its town meeting on cars at First Congregational Church, Main Street, East Hartford. "I don't see how anything on four wheels can be called a safety car unless it's geared to go only 25 or 30 miles per hour," the fender mender said. A large crowd turned out for the meeting, many of them auto dealers and auto body shop owners. (Herald photo by Barlow)

Three owe state money for car use

HARTFORD (UPI) — Only three state officials still owe Connecticut mileage money for the private use of state cars, according to Acting Department of Administrative Services Commissioner Edmund Mickiewicz. Sixty-six appointed officials are allowed to take state-owned cars home with them, but the officials are supposed to reimburse the state for mileage. Last week, Republican State Chairman Frederick Biebel wrote Mickiewicz and complained he had heard that several of the appointed officials owed the state thousands of dollars. Stephen Negri, director of the state fleet operation, said Tuesday "less than 12" state officials owed back mileage money and most of them have paid the state back in the past week. In a letter to Biebel, Mickiewicz said Tuesday only three state officials still owe mileage money to the state. The acting commissioner named the delinquent state officials as Deputy Commerce Commissioner Charles Duffy, Deputy Treasurer Paul McDonough and Deputy Comptroller Lawrence Caccola. According to Negri, Caccola owes the state $1,765. Negri said he does not know exactly how much McDonough owes, but he does know the deputy treasurer must reimburse the state for mileage dating back to October, 1976. Negri said Duffy is in Japan doing work for the state and his mileage costs will not be known until he returns. In his letter to Biebel, Mickiewicz said he will try to sever his ties with Parvin.

Telephone firm sale delayed by new bid

HARTFORD (UPI) — The proposed $8.2 million sale of National Telephone Co. of South Windsor to a Massachusetts company has been delayed by a last minute, and higher offer, from a Chicago man. A hearing in U.S. District Court on approving the sale was interrupted Tuesday when millionaire Delbert Coleman of Chicago suddenly walked in with his offer. "Who is this guy?" persons involved in the transaction asked repeatedly during breaks in the hearing. Lawyers were prepared for quick approval of the sale of National Telephone, which is bankrupt, to Acton Corp. of Acton, Mass. The Acton firm is in the cable television business and is involved in telephone interconnects. Coleman said his present and past business interests ranged from real estate and a Scotland brewery to Las Vegas hotels, ownership of a baseball team and soda vending machines. He became riled when hit by a barrage of questions from lawyers about his finances and motives. "I just don't understand all these questions," Coleman said. Police help educators leave protest meeting

HARTFORD (UPI) — Police escorted the Hartford school board out of its meeting room Tuesday night through a crowd of some 25 supporters of ousted school Superintendent Edythe Gaines. Mrs. Gaines, the city's first black and female superintendent, demanded the board say why her contract is not being renewed when it expires June 30. The board voted in April to fire her. She said she spent too much time away from the job, acted too independently and was lax in reviewing teachers up for tenure.

Police report

East Hartford John F. Kelly, 17, of 56 Henderson Drive was charged with threatening, reckless endangerment, and reckless driving Tuesday at 5 p.m. Police said Kelly allegedly told two small children he would run them over if they did not leave the side of the road. Police said Kelly then drove toward the children but did not hit them. Court date is July 10. Martin J. Mozzicato, 16, of 48 Herbert Drive was arrested for bringing liquor into a park. The arrest was made at 9:09 p.m. Tuesday at Gorman Park. Court date is June 30. At 1:44 a.m., police received a complaint concerning a fight at the East-view Cafe on 389 Main St. Brian Buxton, 18, of 266 Tolland St., and Wayne S. Buxton, 23, of 30 Seaman Circle, Manchester, were arrested. Brian Buxton was charged with second-degree assault, reckless endangerment and threatening. Wayne Buxton was charged with interfering with an officer. They appeared in court today.

Politics, a family affair for candidate Marcella Fahey

By MAL BARLOW
Herald Reporter

EAST HARTFORD — "Politics begins in the family," said Marcella Fahey, Democratic candidate for the Third Senatorial District seat which serves East Hartford and the western part of Manchester. She said her political training began at home. She learned how to argue, how to compromise, and how to get some things done in her family. Before she rose this winter and sprung out of political obscurity, she talked with her husband, John P. Fahey, 44, and their two children about it. Should she do it? Could she do it?

The odds against her success appeared to be great. She had never run against anyone before and the man holding the senate seat, Sen. George Hannon Jr., had won many campaigns, all by large margins.

"Between us, we discussed how it was going to affect the family," said John. "It was a family decision."

The children and her husband were firmly behind her from the start. They were her backbone on every job from phoning to canvassing door-to-door.

"A family not agreeable and supportive - it would be a terrible trauma to a candidate," John said. "It would be unbearable."

She checked political observers in East Hartford with her leap into the battle for the Democratic Party nomination. Although her voice shook in public gatherings as she moved her campaign forward, she kept moving forward.

She forced a primary battle with Hannon for the 31 East Hartford delegates to the district convention to be held this July. If she won, she was assured of the party's nomination. Due to the large majority of Democrats over Republicans registered, she appears to be a fairly certain winner in the November election. Her supporters were at first just her family and a few friends. Then she picked up more and more people and groups. Just before the primary vote May 2, she picked up the fervent support of the International Association of Machinists (IAM).

She won the primary by 2,223 to 1,406. She held a shocking 62 percent of the vote total in what was supposed to be a run of a newcomer.

"I think it's great," said John. John went to work at the Aetna Life & Casualty company in Hartford where he soon met Marcella. They married and lived in Rockville Conn. Marcella worked as a secretary-bookkeeper at St. Rose nearly nine years ago. She graduated from Rockville High School in 1951.

John said the pay of a state senator, $7,500 a year, is below what his wife could earn in other jobs. He said she largely stayed home when their two children were young. She then began to do a lot of part-time work such as selling Avon products. She worked as a secretary-bookkeeper at St. Rose nearly nine years ago. She graduated from Rockville High School in 1951.

All of her volunteer work and early job helped her meet a great many people, he said. She would listen to them and learn about their problems. The people she met and the things they told her helped her in the recent primary campaign, he said.

Marcella said she hopes to bring to the Senate some of her family experiences. She said she hopes to become a "facilitator," someone who can get both sides of an issue to sit down and reach a compromise. "Not everybody gets their own way," she said. "We couldn't live together if we did."

Residents are advised that they should place their refuse containers and other items on the day designated for collection at a point immediately to the rear of the sidewalk (if one exists) or between the edge of the pavement and the property-line where no sidewalk exists.

Refuse containers must have handles and not exceed 22 gallon capacity having a gross weight less than 70 pounds. Heavy duty disposal trash bags may be used.

The contract also provides for the collection of bundled paper which will be recycled by the town. Bundles weighing less than 35 pounds should be placed at the curb alongside refuse containers on the regular collection day.

Town contracts with firm for curbside trash pickup

SOUTH WINDSOR — The Town of South Windsor has recently contracted with the firm of E.P. Hayes to provide once weekly curbside refuse collection to all family dwelling units, except apartment complexes, effective July 3. The payment for this service will be made directly by the town at the annual rate of $23.42 per unit, fundable from general fund revenues. There will be no individual billing for this service.

A comprehensive street-by-street schedule for collection days will be published in the newspapers later this month. Residents are advised that they should place their refuse containers and other items on the day designated for collection at a point immediately to the rear of the sidewalk (if one exists) or between the edge of the pavement and the property-line where no sidewalk exists.

Churches. The two church oriented groups met after the MACC Board of Directors decided to extend its services to Bolton residents. Both groups decided a joint meeting would prove helpful in sharing program experiences and outreach in their respective communities.

The Bolton group learned about the extensive social outreach program of MACC and the Manchester group learned about the Bolton Ecumenical Council's regular ecumenical worship services held throughout the Christian year.

Arousing the most animated discussion was the Bolton recent Lenten studies on the Ecumenist, its history and theology as represented in the four different traditions of the council. The Lenten program served as a model for other ecumenical groups throughout the state.

The Bolton Ecumenical Council has 12 members, the four local clergymen and two lay people from each church. The council meets once a month.

Bolton High School will have an open house and arts show Thursday from 7:30 to 9 p.m. For the open house, all departments will be open and faculty members will be in attendance. The art show will feature student work from the art, home economics and industrial arts departments.

Bolton Ecumenical Society establishes rules for youth

By DONNA HOLLAND
Herald Correspondent
BOLTON — Rules and regulations for youth behavior at church functions were discussed and approved by the Bolton Ecumenical Council at its last meeting.

The rules that were adopted follow: • During youth activities the church will not tolerate the drinking of alcoholic beverages or the use of non-prescription drugs or marijuana on church property.

The church will not tolerate inappropriate sexual or disrespectful behavior at activities which they sponsor. • Any and all means necessary will be used to enforce these rules.

The Bolton Ecumenical Council said chaparrones for church events will be empowered to "refuse further participation by any youth known or suspected of engaging in such behavior."

The council will also send every effort will be made to notify the parents (of offenders) and the individual offenders will be forced to leave the property immediately. The council will recommend that the rules be adopted by the school and other public institutions.

Reading program in Hebron will be expanded next year

By PATRICIA MULLIGAN
Herald Correspondent
Plans to expand the reading program in Hebron were explained recently to the Board of Education by Carol Grosso, district reading consultant.

Mrs. Grosso told the board that the program will be expanded to teach students how to read their social studies, science, and language arts books, for content. She also said she will introduce a pre-test skill sheet in the language arts series.

The board accepted the resignation of Kathleen Sawyer, board clerk, effective August 1 and also that of Laura Twine, aide at the Gilead Hill School. Anyone interested in the clerk's position should contact the Central Office Committee for more information.

Dr. David Cattanch, superintendent of schools, recommended that the board appoint Ann Shea as the new learning disabilities teacher at a salary of $10,695; Kathleen Simonon, Hebron Elementary kindergarten, $9,125; Terri Connelly, Gilead Hill School, part-time kindergarten teacher, $6,044; JoAnn Savino, Gilead Hill, Grade 2, $9,941; Maureen Brousseau, Gilead Hill, Grade 1, $13,016. Appointments are effective Sept. 6.

Also on recommendation of Dr. Cattanch, the board appointed Pauline Mahoney as food handler at Reet Us, as a part-time bookkeeper and voted to grant maternity leave of absence to Joan Hogan.

Cattanch then presented a proposed six-year plan for the Hebron Elementary School District. The plan, containing budgetary, staff, maintenance, and program projections for the district, will be considered for action at the board's regular meeting in July.

The board also voted to approve the expenditure plan for its 1977-78 budget and adopted the budget for the coming fiscal year. It also voted to limit the areas in which the administration is to spend any surplus beyond the $14,000. Should the surplus exceed $14,000 the first priority would be the library account and the second, teachers' supplies. A letter will be sent to the Board of Finance concerning the 1977-78 budget expenditures and use of that year's surplus.

June 22 was set for a special meeting of the board at 7:45 p.m. in the library of the Gilead Hill School. On that agenda will be the appointment of a board member to fill a vacancy. And in executive session the board will conduct an evaluation of the superintendent of schools.

The board agreed to change the date of the July meeting from the 13th to the 6th.

Mother of drowning victim is awarded $15,000 settlement

SOUTH WINDSOR — Mrs. Dorothy Alleano of 1519 Sullivan Ave., mother of Donald Alleano who drowned in the Connecticut River the night of Nov. 14, 1976, has won $15,000 in a civil suit settlement this week.

She had sued Raymond Billig, as father of William Billig of 585 Griffin Road, South Windsor, in a wrongful death action in Hartford County Superior Court. Through her attorney, Sanford Piepler of Manchester, she claimed Billig's car had led to the death of her son.

During five days of trial last week and during an investigation of the accident by Hartford County Coroner Henry Rammeda, the following facts came out: Billig, then 18, and Alleano, then 17, had been out riding in Billig's father's car the evening of Nov. 13. There were three other youths with them. Except for Billig, the youths all shared at least 18 beers. Late in the evening, Billig led off the other three youths.

The biennial canvass to determine the number of registered voters in Bolton is under way. The canvass is mandated by state law. This year the registrars of voters have divided the town into small areas for the canvass. It will be done by several newly sworn in deputy registrars.

The canvassers will simply ask the number of registered voters in each house. The purpose of the house to house canvass is to update the registered voter list. William Houle is the Democratic registrar of voters and Patricia Ryal is the Republican registrar.

Students will party in Rockville park VERNON — While Mayor Frank McCoy has ordered the police department to increase patrols in Henry Park and to enforce the state and local laws pertaining to public parks, he said he won't stop the high school graduates class from partying there graduation night.

The students and parents have circulated petitions asking permission of the town to have the students gather in Henry Park after the June 22 graduation ceremonies. The petition said that in the past the graduates have gone out of town for this after graduation activity. "It is our feeling that on this one night a year, it would be nice for the town to join with our graduates in celebrating their new status as responsible adults in our community," the petition stated.

Mayor McCoy said while the town can't sponsor or endorse the use of the park by the graduates, on the other hand he will issue an order to clear the park or to use "Gestapo-like" tactics against the students. For years the residents of the park area have been making complaints about activities at the park, the drinking of beer and such.

Library plans summer series

SOUTH WINDSOR — "Books are Building Blocks," is the theme of the summer programs for children at the South Windsor Public Library. Subtitled, "getting it all together for the new library," the programs offer a variety of reading and book related activities for children of all ages during July and August in the morning.

The programs will include the following: "Miniatures from Discards," a series of dollhouse workshops for fifth, sixth, and seventh graders will be conducted by library volunteer Kathy Oulter.

"Fun with Photography," a series of workshops for fifth and sixth graders dealing with photographic equipment, film developing, and tips on taking pictures, will be conducted by library volunteer, Douglas Stewart.

"Build from Books" six weekly multimedia programs for first through fourth graders will feature stories, songs, games, filmstrips and crafts. The music and crafts instruction will be given by library volunteers Roberta Weiner, Alice Keane, and Cathie Cooney. Storytellers will be Wilma Hawkins and Anne Noordendorp of the library staff.

"Film Fun," a series of film programs will be geared to the interests of older preschoolers, and kindergartners through third graders.

In addition, there will be a "Books are Building Blocks" reading club for children of all ages. Participants will be given a game sheet which show an outline of the new library to be filled in block by block as books are read and illustrative projects completed.

Registration at the library is required for all programs except the reading club and the film showings. Registration will begin immediately until filled. Detailed activity schedules are available at the library.

The programs will be held at the Wapping Community House through the cooperation of the Friends of the South Windsor Public Library. The summer children's programs are planned, directed and coordinated by Wilma Hawkins, children's librarian, assisted by Anne Noordendorp, library assistant.

Renato Nicola dies, held post at UConn

Renato (Nick) Nathan Nicola, 54, of 18 Stephen St., director of engineering technical services at the University of Connecticut and active in Manchester's civic affairs, died Tuesday night at his home. He was the husband of Mrs. Joyce Skates Nicola.

Mr. Nicola was born July 5, 1923 in Manchester, son of Mrs. Margaret Faggio Nicola of Manchester and the late Frank Nicola, and had lived here all his life. He joined the UConn staff in 1967 as assistant director of the Engineering Experimental Station and was responsible for directing the university's program of technological study to help key state industries to meet their own needs for growth and development.

He was a 1949 graduate of the university and received his master's degree in 1951 from Rutgers University, New Brunswick, N.J. He remained at Rutgers for two years as instructor of engineering. He did graduate work at Massachusetts Institute of Technology and designed a system and circuit of special-purpose digital computers for radar data processing and for navigation.

In 1954, he joined the former Newton Co. of Manchester as a development engineer, and in 1956 was named president of the firm. In 1964, he was named a manager of Kaman Aircraft Corp.'s Electronic Systems Division.

At the time of his death he was president of the Intech Co., which he founded, on Elm Street, and a lecturer on electrical engineering along with his other duties at UConn. He had recently been appointed to serve on the newly formed Transportation Commission. In 1961, when he was appointed to be on the Manchester Development Commission, at the age of 38, he was the youngest member to hold so responsible a job.

He was a member of Community Baptist Church and formerly served as a member of its board of trustees for three years and as chairman of the board for two years. He was active in the Manchester Little League for 15 years, he had served as Mrs. Milton Cox, Mrs. Marion (Molly) Cox, 71, of 150 Sherman St., died Monday at Hartford Hospital. She was the wife of Milton Cox and the mother of Mrs. Janette Gray of Manchester.

She is also survived by another daughter and 12 grandchildren. The funeral is Thursday at 11 a.m. at the Glanston Funeral Home, 415 New London Turnpike. Burial will be in Old Church Cemetery, Glanston.

Friends may call at the funeral home tonight from 7 to 9 p.m. The family suggests that any memorial gifts may be made to the American Cancer Society, 640 Prospect Ave., Hartford, or to the Glanston Visiting Nurses Association, 35 National Drive, Glanston.

Richard H. Eschmann, Sr., Richard Henry Eschmann, Sr., 58, of 131 Maple St., died today at Hartford Hospital. He was the husband of Mrs. Clark Eschmann.

Mr. Eschmann was born in Caventon, Ill., and had lived in Manchester for six years. He was employed by Pratt & Whitney in the office of spare parts sales. He was also a WW II Army veteran and participated in the North African and European campaigns.

He is survived by two sons, Paul C. Eschmann of Juniper, Fla., and Richard H. Eschmann Jr., of Colchester; a daughter, Mrs. Elizabeth Cunningham of Manchester; a sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Whitmore of Bethlehem, Pa., and five grandchildren. The funeral will be Friday at 1 p.m. at the Watkins Funeral Home, 142 E. Center St. Burial will be in East Cemetery. Friends may call at the funeral home on Thursday from 7 to 9 p.m.

Henry Allen Coughlin — Henry Allen Coughlin of East Hartford died Tuesday at a local convalescent home.

Mr. Coughlin was born in Boston, Mass., and had lived in East Hartford for 25 years. He retired from Pratt & Whitney Aircraft Group in 1958.

He is survived by several nieces and nephews. The funeral will be Thursday at 8:15 a.m. from the Farley-Sullivan Funeral Home, 50 Nauboc Ave., East Hartford, with a mass at 9 a.m. at St. Augustine's Church, South East Hartford. Burial will be in St. Augustine's Cemetery, South East Hartford. There will be no calling hours.

Mrs. Pauline Haley — Mrs. Pauline Z. Haley, 78, of 33 Leverich Drive died Monday at St. Francis Hospital and Medical Center, Hartford. She was the widow of Samuel Haley.

Mrs. Haley was born March 15, 1900, in Ukraine and had lived in Andover for 15 years before coming to East Hartford about a year ago. She is survived by a son, John Haley of Wood River, Ore.; three daughters, Mrs. Helen Kurecki of East Hartford, Mrs. Nellie Carley of Andover and Mrs. Marion Helm of Clearwater, Fla.; a sister, Mrs. Anna Bayley of Westport, N.J.; 17 grandchildren and 17 great-grandchildren.

The funeral is Friday at 11 a.m. at Holmes Funeral Home, 400 Main St., Manchester. Burial will be in Townsend Cemetery, Andover.

Friends may call at the funeral home Thursday from 2 to 4 and 7 to 9 p.m.

Emil O. Knapp — SOUTH WINDSOR — Emil O. Knapp, 81, of 27 Mountain Drive died Tuesday at a South Windsor convalescent home.

Mr. Knapp was born in Ranberg, Germany, and had lived in Hartford for most of his life before coming to South Windsor 13 years ago. He had been employed as an iron worker for the Iron Workers Local, No. 15 of Hartford for 19 years.

He is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Maria Avery of Simsbury and Mrs. Gertrude Bold of Germany, and a niece, Mrs. Marie Reichle of South Windsor, with whom he made his home, and several other nieces and nephews.

The funeral is Thursday at 10:15 a.m. from the Samsel-Bassinger Funeral Home, 419 Buckland Ave., with a mass at 11 a.m. at St. Margaret Mary Church at 11. Burial will be in Rose Hill Memorial Park, Rocky Hill.

New flag at Bowers for the special day

The stars and stripes, once flown over the U.S. Capitol, is being raised this morning at Bowers School by Michelle McQuade, left, sixth grade student, and Heidi Sullivan, student council president. The flag was presented to the student council by Michelle in honor of Flag Day. The flag was flown over the Capitol last month for Bowers School at the request of U.S. Rep. William Colter. In public address ceremonies today, Heidi and Kathy Pappas presented a Flag Day address, explaining that Flag Day is the anniversary of the day on which the Continental Congress adopted the stars and stripes as the official flag of the United States. The announcers led the student body in reciting the Pledge of Allegiance. (Herald photo by Tompkins)

Vandals linked to fire in barn

A small fire in a former carriage house off Park Street Tuesday morning was the fifth or sixth fire set in the building, probably by youthful vandals, Deputy Chief James McKay of the Town Fire Department said. Tuesday morning's fire was called by an Otis Street resident at 11:22 a.m., and two engines and a ladder truck responded from the Town Fire Department. The fire on the second floor was not extensive and was extinguished quickly, McKay said.

The small barn-like structure, however, is extensively damaged from previous fires and more from vandalism by youths who are known to use the spot frequently, McKay said.

The most recent fire there before Tuesday was about two months ago. Others have occurred over a period of several years. About three years ago, one juvenile was arrested in connection with a fire set in the building. The carriage house, part of the former Cheney Company homes, is owned by Dr. Joseph Massaro of 52 Park St. McKay said Fire Chief John Rivetti and the town's Building Department are aware of the situation and working with the owner on the problem.

Manchester police report

Eugene F. Christie, 17, of 791 Michael Ave., East Hartford was arrested on a warrant Tuesday on a charge of third-degree criminal mischief. Police said the arrest was in connection with vandalism to a light fixture at Cheney Technical School June 2. He was released on a non-surety bond for court June 26.

Manuel J. Soares, 18, of no certain address was charged with second-degree failure to appear in court. He was held overnight for presentation in court today.

David D. Murray, 50, of 59 Birch St. was charged with misuse of registration plates and operating while his license is suspended. Court date is July 11.

An attempted burglary was reported at a Lyness Street home during the day Tuesday. No entry was made.

Legal aid to start soon

By GREG PEARSON

Herald Reporter

The Town of Manchester should have a legal aid program operating next month.

The Town Board of Directors Tuesday night approved a proposal to residents meeting certain income requirements.

Lessner said that the program's office will be in St. Mary's Church. He already has been interviewing candidates who will run the office. The person who takes that position probably will be a legal assistant or paralegal.

Steps also have to be taken to establish a nonprofit corporation to run the program, Lessner said. Tax-exempt status might be sought for the organization, he said.

A five-member Board of Directors also will be appointed to oversee the program. Lessner said that three attorneys and two residents who are not attorneys will make up the five-member panel.

The directors said that they would appoint the two non-attorney members, and one is expected to be a representative of the Community Services Council.

Suite big issue

Life begins at 40, some claim, and one of those who wants to live it up at that age is Willie McCovey of the surprising San Francisco Giants.

Although the Giants are occupying first place in the National League's Western Division at this writing, McCovey is far from happy.

It's not that he's underpaid and he's not involved in any salary squabble. The 22-year major league veteran is making $90,000, from the Giants, plus thousands more from outside interests and endorsements.

What's bugging McCovey is the San Francisco club's refusal to pick up his suite fees when the Giants are on the road, which is half the season.

As a result, McCovey has not signed his 1978 contract, willing to go along with last year's figure, $90,000.

Ball clubs don't provide single rooms, or suites, unless a player so desires and is willing to make up the difference out of his own pocket over a double room figure. The club provides free double rooms for all players.

For McCovey to enjoy the luxury of hotel suites at the ball club's expense, the figure would be approximately $5,000.

The Giants feel that McCovey, if he wants that extra privilege on the road, should contribute. McCovey strongly feels his request should be granted — at the expense of the Giants.

While last year he collected 28 homers and drove in 86 runs, the Giants finished fourth in the West, 23 games behind Los Angeles, and won the National League's Comeback-of-the-Year Award. McCovey isn't setting any world on fire this time.

According to the latest figures, the hulking first baseman/designated hitter has just 5 home runs, driven in 40 runs and has a .220 batting average.

Wright spent eight years in the minors and was on his last option with the Red Sox this spring. He knew it was his last chance to make the team, especially with a staff including Mike Torrez, Luis Tiant, Bill Lee and Dennis Eckersley.

"I knew I'd have a tough time with this staff. But I didn't put added pressure on myself by saying 'You gotta go out there and pitch or else you're gone.' I think it's been the confidence in myself. It took me a long time to tell myself I could do it. I wish I had told myself that six years ago," he said.

"I know he'd make it this spring, if not with us, then with some other team," Zimmer said. "I would say there was not time this spring he was ever a question mark."

George Scott, who drove in three runs with a homer, his fourth, and a sacrifice fly, said Wright was the sleeper the team needed to win the pennant.

"You need someone you don't expect to win who can come up with 15 wins for you. The Yankees got that last year from (Ron) Guidry. He killed everyone down the stretch," Scott said.

Rescued year ago

Last spring, McCovey was rescued from the free agent list by the Giants after being cut loose by the Oakland Athletics. He spent 15 years with the Giants, three with San Diego before Oakland.

During his most productive years with the Giants under the reign of Horace Stoneham, the club had picked up the suite tab run up by McCovey. Current owners turned thumbs down on Big Mac's request and he's been brooding ever since. Before he hangs up his spikes, McCovey hopes to become the 12th major league to collect 500 home runs in a career.

That will put him in some pretty good company.

McCovey, a native Alabamian, was born on his father's home in San Francisco where he lives in the four bedroom, 4,000-square-foot home he designed.

On the road it's a different story. One will have to add his request is an unusual one for a man his age and in his salary bracket.

Willie McCovey

'Consistent Yankee' appropriate name

NEW YORK (UPI) — He performs without flair and his style is not the kind that kids on the sandlots would want to imitate. There will never be a candy bar named after him, and he could walk up Fifth Avenue without turning very many heads.

Yet, day after day, he performs his job with the workmanlike precision of a diamond cutter and, unlike so many others in his profession, he gives you a full day's work for his pay.

"The Consistent Yankee" is the appropriate nickname for Roy White.

White has been with the New York Yankees longer than any player on their roster, and his contributions to the success of the team through the years can't be measured in mere statistics. But often, as was the case Tuesday night, the team would win without the quiet man in left field.

White hit two home runs — one from each side of the plate — and drove in three runs to help the Yankees defeat the Oakland A's 3-2 and hand the American League West leaders their sixth straight loss. It was the fifth time in his career that White had hit home runs in a game from both sides of the plate.

"I think it's something special, especially since I'm coming off a hamstring pull," said White. "I've been swinging the bat real good the last five games. I can't swing the bat any better."

White's hitting helped Ed Figueroa win his seventh game in 11 decisions. Figueroa went 5-2-3 in three games before going to Rich Gossage, who pitched his ninth save. Figueroa's effort was especially good, however, considering he suffered a severe burn on his pitching arm in the afternoon while putting a lasagna in the microwave oven at his apartment.

Miller's status remains same

BOSTON (UPI) — Rick Miller may not have found the playing time he thought was available in California, but he has discovered there are fewer financial clouds in the Land of the Sun.

Miller labored seven seasons for the Red Sox, all but one as a part-time outfielder. He signed last Dec. 8 with the Angels after playing out his option with the Red Sox. It was the deal which brought Jerry Henry to Boston.

But Miller, always labeled a good-glove, adequate-but player, has found the bench warmer tag is back again.

"I won the job (right field) in spring training and (Manager) Dave Garcia told me I was going to be his right fielder. But I haven't played there since (Jim) Fregosi became manager (June 1). That was the 'day' of 'so to speak,'" he says, his skin a little tanner, his mustache a little lighter.

"But if he's going to ride the bench, Miller says he prefers the California pine to the Boston version.

"I'd do it over again if I had to. I tripled my salary and got a good team. I'm more financially secure. If I had stayed here (Boston), I wouldn't have been," Miller says.

Miller is riding the bench while Fregosi looks at rookie Ken Landreaux, once a minor league player of the year, and one who fits in big in the Angels' future plans. The other starting outfielders are free agent outfielders Joe Rudi and Lyman Bostock.

"I've been frustrated for four or five years now and I finally decided to do something about it. I may trade back. I don't know, but I don't

Year's best pitched game keeps R Sox streak alive

BOSTON (UPI) — The word on Jim Wright had been he probably would have made a better cheerleader than pitcher. But no more.

The 22-year-old Red Sox right-hander tossed a two-hit shutout Tuesday night to lead Boston past the California Angels, 5-0. It was the fifth straight win for the Sox and the team's 30th in its last 40 games to keep them six games up on second place New York.

"This guy always had the reputation of being great on the sidelines," said an exultant Red Sox skipper Don Zimmer. "But this spring he showed he could pitch. And what an absolute super game he pitched. He's my fifth starter."

Wright fanned six, walked one and did not allow a runner past first. He credited his shutout, his second whitewash job of the season, to his curveball.

"That's my best pitch, my out pitch. My curve is better now than it ever was in the minors but I can't say why. This is probably the best game I ever pitched," said the soft-spoken Michigan native.

Wright spent eight years in the minors and was on his last option with the Red Sox this spring. He knew it was his last chance to make the team, especially with a staff including Mike Torrez, Luis Tiant, Bill Lee and Dennis Eckersley.

"I knew I'd have a tough time with this staff. But I didn't put added pressure on myself by saying 'You gotta go out there and pitch or else you're gone.' I think it's been the confidence in myself. Pelletier second best, wins $1,500, sets mark

Former Manchester duckpin champ George Pelletier of East Hartford finished second in the National All-Star Duckpin Tournament at the Holiday Lanes which ended last night and pocketed a check for $1,500.

Pelletier rolled 5,345 for his 16 games, 11 pins less than winner Jeff Ferrand of Salisbury, Md. First place was worth $3,000.

Carol Bank of Glanston paced the women with a 2,604 score and was $2,500.

Before qualifying for the 16-man head-to-head championship rolling yesterday and last night, the husky veteran United Technologies worker in East Hartford established a world record for 16 games.

Currently the fourth ranking male high average bowler in the National Duckpin Bowling Congress membership, Pelletier totaled 2,918 for an average of 162.2 per game in setting the standard.

Pelletier, for several years the No. 1 average roller in Connecticut, called the All-Star circuit an "endurance race."

Third official seen for NBA in '78-79

NEW YORK (UPI) — A third referee may soon be calling the shots at National Basketball Association games in an effort to halt violence on the courts.

A committee of the NBA owners Tuesday proposed a tougher set of rules with the addition of a third referee, instead of only two.

"We have rules," said Joe Axelson of the Competition and Rules Committee. "We're proposing that the third pair of eyes will help."

Axelson pointed out that the Big 10 and Atlantic Coast Conference already use three referees and it has proven practical.

"We're all upset that the zone isn't called," he said. "The consensus of everyone is 'let's call the book.'"

The suggested change was only one of 11 on the way to the NBA Governors. But they must pass two other hurdles — first the coaches and general managers, who will vote on the proposals, but purely in an advisory manner.

Fifty-one percent of the NBA's Competition and Rules Committee must approve the changes before they go to the board, where a two-thirds vote is required.

The anti-violence committee, which suggested the third referee, also suggested the elimination of hand-checking.

Other major changes would establish a restraining line for coaches — three feet around each side of the bench, and another call for ejection of the coach the second time a zone is called. The first time would result in a technical foul.

"We all know zones are being played," Axelson said. "We're going to try and stop it."

MONTREAL (UPI) — Helmets will be mandatory for all players in the National Hockey League starting in the 1978-79 season, the NHL Directors have decided at their annual meeting.

The governors voted unanimously after discussions with the players to have this ruling in effect. NHL Commissioner John Ziegler said Tuesday after the second day of meetings. He now must receive agreement from the NHL Players Association.

Gottlieb brightest star

High netmen looking up to '79 year

By LEN AUSTER Herald SportsWriter

For two years running, Manchester High boys' tennis team finished third in the Central Connecticut Interscholastic League (CCL) standings.

The Indians, with a 12-0 overall record, placed behind Hall and Simsbury. "We just can't seem to get over this hump," viewed Tribe Coach Dave Flanagan.

But the Silk Towners next year "will definitely be able to challenge them," Flanagan states.

Next year we might have the best player in the league and possibly in the state in Scott Gottlieb - if he does't prep," Flanagan announced.

Gottlieb could be the best in the league and possibly the state if he continues his enthusiasm and dedication to the game," Flanagan repeated.

Gottlieb wound up with a 13-2 personal record and reached the quarterfinals in the CIAC Class LL tournament.

At Iling Junior High Band blossoms with new leader

By SUSAN VAUGHN
Herald Reporter

Less than three years ago Iling Junior High School had a band of only 12 members, barely enough for a band. This spring the band members number 55, enough to warrant complete participation in parades, concerts and other performances throughout the school year. When James Bosco took over as Iling's first full-time band director in the fall of 1975, his first teaching assignment looked rather grim. "There was no enthusiasm at first," he said. But he said that slowly began to change and he gained more cooperation and respect from the students. Now, he said, the band students work very hard and are very cooperative. Bosco said he enjoys teaching the junior high level, "even though it gets wild at times." When the students are in front of the public, they really perform, he said. Bosco credits the "feeder program" of sending students from the elementary music classes into the junior high for most of the expansion in the band. There are many more students in the schools now taking music lessons, Bosco said. He also said if student comes to administration and teachers who he said have given him 100 percent backing and cooperation with the band program. For instance, the teachers are willing to let him take students out of classes for special performances by the band outside school. Bosco said Ralph MacCarone,

Sabino begins runs

MYSTIC — Mystic Seaport's steamboat Sabino has begun making daily passenger runs in the Mystic River. Sabino's schedule started later than usual this season because major restoration work needed on her hull, interior, steam engine and boiler system took longer than expected. The historic vessel, built in 1906, is the last coal-fired, passenger-carrying steamboat still operating in the United States and requires constant attention each year at the Mystic Seaport preservation shipyard. Sabino makes short daytime runs in the upper reaches of the Mystic River for seaport visitors. A longer evening run is open to all, and does not require seaport admission. The hour-and-a-half evening voyage, which begins at the seaport, goes through Mystic's Route 1 bridge and downriver as far as Nonesuch and back. For reservations and further information on Mystic Seaport's Sabino cruises contact the Sabino ticket office, 203-536-2531, extension 251.

Knife show planned

HARTFORD — Several hundred knife collectors will converge on the Hartford Civic Center June 30 for the first major show of the National Knife Collectors Association to be held in the Northeast. To run through July 2, the show will have over a million dollars worth of cutlery on display, including the largest knife collection in the United States, owned by Dr. Frank Forsyth of Winston-Salem, N.C. Many knife authorities will be at the show, giving free appraisals and discussing the hobby with anyone who is interested. Knife collectors in the Hartford area are urged to bring out their collections and compete for one of the 13 trophies to be awarded.

Stevens boycott losing

HARTFORD (UPI) — A coalition of Connecticut labor, civil rights, political and religious leaders say its year-long boycott against the J.P. Stevens Co. has been only partially successful. Backers of the boycott in Connecticut textile manufacturer with a plant in the nation with 35 plants and 44,000 employees, has been found guilty of violating federal labor laws by interfering with the rights of labor to organize their plants. Lieberman said there has been some success in asking Connecticut stores not to handle Stevens products. "In the past year, a number of retail stores in Connecticut and around the nation have decided to discontinue selling Stevens textile products," he said. He named only two chains, Caldor and Bradlee's, that have stopped selling Stevens products. Lieberman also read a letter from Gov. Ella T. Grasso, in which she said she supports the boycott of Stevens products "as a personal protest against the way the company has flouted the labor laws of our nation."

Labs to furlough 147

NEW LONDON (UPI) — The Naval Underwater Systems Center will lay off 147 employees at its New London and Newport, R.I., operations in August, officials at the center say. Officials said the center will lay off 66 workers at its New London laboratory and 81 workers at the Rhode Island facility, effective Aug. 23. The Navy in March ordered the center to cut its staff to 2,832 by Sept. 30. The center now has about 132 employees above the limit authorized by the Navy. Rep. Christopher Dodd, D-Conn., Tuesday criticized the lay off, claiming it will impair submarine research vital to the nation's defense. Dodd said he sent a letter to Navy secretary W. Graham Claytor asking him to reassess the impact of personnel cuts on Navy research and development.

Legal query delays track

WETHERSFIELD (UPI) — A legal question involving a proposed horse track in Wolcott has temporarily held up action on an application for a dog track in the same community. The state gaming commission said Tuesday it has asked Attorney General Carl Ajello to decide whether two pari-mutuel licenses can be issued for facilities in the same town. The issue involves a horse race track sought by the Old Rock Road Corp. since 1974 and a dog track recently proposed by Connecticut Park Greyhound Inc. Applications by two other groups for dog track licenses in Ansonia and Watertown are pending before the commission. The commission earlier decided by resolution to permit only one more gambling license for a facility in western Connecticut. Noel Bernstein, one of the backers of the two tracks, said if the courts O.K. the horse track and the commission grants a dog track permit, "We'll go ahead with one or the other but not both." If the application is approved, Bernstein noted, the proposal must then go before a public referendum.

Feds eye Seabrook plan

CONCORD, N.H. (UPI) — At about the time the Clamshell Alliance is staging a demonstration against the Seabrook nuclear power plant June 24-27, the federal Nuclear Regulatory Commission will be deciding whether to order construction halted. The NRC announced late Tuesday it would decide by June 20 whether to suspend the Seabrook building permit. Meanwhile, in anticipation of the Clamshell demonstration, the Public Service Co. of New Hampshire, builder of the $2.3 billion, 2,300 megawatt plant, Tuesday obtained a court order barring unauthorized people from the main construction site. The injunction issued by Rockingham County Superior Court Judge Arthur Bean does not affect a state offer of 18 acres of land near the plant to allow the Clamshell to carry out its planned demonstration. Anti-nuclear forces, which are battling the plant in the federal courts, have asked the NRC to suspend construction until the Environmental Protection Agency has reconsidered its decision approving cooling tunnels for the plant. That reconsideration was ordered by the 1st Circuit Court of Appeals in Boston. NRC spokesman John Koepke said to expedite the decision, the panel would hear oral arguments in Washington June 28. The issues to be heard include whether Seabrook should be allowed to build its planned cooling system using ocean water or more costly cooling towers, whether the NRC should limit the number of alternate sites to be considered for the project with cooling towers.

Clamshell split over plans

HARTFORD (UPI) — Connecticut members of the Clamshell Alliance, which plans to occupy the Seabrook nuclear power plant site June 24-27, are split over a new proposal for the demonstration. Clamshell organizers said Monday they would hold a lawful demonstration on 18 acres of state-owned land if the state agreed to 11 conditions, most dealing with public access to the occupation site and support for the demonstrators. New Hampshire Attorney General Thomas Rath is conferring with officials from the Public Service Company of New Hampshire, builder of the $2.3 billion plant, about the Clamshell proposal. He expects a formal reply "in a few days." Tom Kegelman, a Connecticut Clamshell member, said Tuesday the alternate plan was offered because local Seabrook residents are "beginning to feel the tension of nationwide publicity, and were looking for a way to participate in the demonstrations without risking arrest."

U.S. and Cuba continue dispute over Zaire war

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States and Cuba continued in hostile disagreement today over whether Cuba tried to prevent the Katangese invasion of Zaire. A U.S. spokesman says efforts to improve relations between the two nations are in abeyance. The administration maintained its refusal to reveal its evidence the Cubans prepared and trained the Katangese in Angola and failed to try to stop their May invasion of Zaire. President Carter was certain to face a barrage of questions about the situation, along with other questions about U.S.-Soviet relations, at his televised and broadcast news conference today. An administration official said Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro

Carter to speed process of relations with China

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter will speed up the process of seeking full diplomatic relations with Communist China, but is insisting on three conditions to safeguard Taiwan's future, administration officials say. National security adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski told Peking's leaders last month the United States is determined to move toward full relations, but did not start negotiations, officials said Tuesday. Rather, he sought to widen political consultation between Washington and Peking on strategic issues, and in the process outlined the administration's view of Soviet military strength as contained in a National Security Council study known as PRM-10. In a related development, UPI learned Peking has invited Rep. Lester Wolff, D-N.Y., to visit China for a three-week beginning June 28. Wolff, a backer of full ties, is chairman of the House subcommittee on Asia and Pacific affairs. During the past two days, Carter and his aides have outlined to the Trilateral Commission, an elite

Senate candidates named for two southern states

By United Press International
Arkansas Gov. David Pryor, winner of the state's Democratic primary, is virtually assured election to the Senate in November and the chance to join the growing ranks of "new South" moderates in Washington. Investment banker Charles "Fug" Ravelen, another reformer Democrat, would like to have the same chance in South Carolina. But first he must defeat one of the last surviving stalwarts of the old "cotton South." Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C. Pryor and Ravelen both won their state's Democratic state primaries easily Tuesday. South Carolina and Maine also nominated candidates for governor. In the race to pick a successor to the late Sen. John McClellan, Pryor defeated Rep. Jim Jay Tucker. The

House, Senate ready to fight

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The stage is set for another long fight between the House and the Senate on a bill encompassing two of the most emotional social issues in the country: federally funded abortions and hiring quotas for minorities. At issue are provisions in a bill appropriating money for fiscal 1979 for the Departments of Labor and Health, Education and Welfare. On a 212-196 vote Tuesday, the House rejected a compromise that could have headed off another long abortion battle with the Senate, and insisted on language allowing federally funded abortions for poor women only if the continued pregnancy would threaten their lives. It also voted 222-177 for an amendment blocking use of federal funds to pay for abortions aimed at increasing minority college enrollment and minority hiring or promotion. Then the congressmen gave final approval to the $56 billion appropriations bill, which went to the Senate's $1.8 billion lighter than when the House started work on the measure last week. The Senate, meanwhile, prepared today for what was seen as a major test on the controversial labor law reform bill, which has been held up by a filibuster. The third try to invoke cloture came Tuesday, but was six votes short of the needed 60 to limit debate. The fourth vote was scheduled late today. In other action, House and Senate energy conferees settled final details of a compromise bill that would lift federal price controls on newly produced gas by 1985. Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., the chief Senate negotiator, said Tuesday's action meant it now will be possible to move quickly on final approval of three of the five bills in the administration's energy package; those dealing with industry conversion to coal, utility rate reform and natural gas pricing.

Resolution on fishing

Lack of import duties hurts region fishing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Treasury Department's refusal to impose an import duty on Canadian fish is only part of a "confronting" national policy which threatens to spell "the economic death of the New England fishing industry," Sen. William D. Hathaway, D-Maine, says. The decision, announced Tuesday, effectively means Canadian fishermen, who are now subsidized by their government, may continue to sell their catch for lower prices in the U.S. than their American counterparts. American fishermen complained the practice amounts to unfair price competition and asked the government to protect them by placing a duty on Canadian fish imports. Hathaway and other members of Maine's congressional delegation strongly criticized the Treasury Department's refusal to grant the request. "This poses a grave threat to the livelihood of Maine fishermen. I am deeply disturbed by the Treasury Department action and the State Department's apparent role in the decision," said Rep. William S. Cohen, R-Maine. "This situation points up the conflicting national policy which we are not pursuing

Businessman's arrest Soviet relations threat

MOSCOW (UPI) — The forcible arrest of an American businessman on charges of currency violation threatens to worsen U.S.-Soviet relations, already strained by worldwide political tensions and allegations of espionage. F. Jay Crawford, 37, of Mobile, Ala., a Moscow representative of International Harvester, was dragged from his car at a traffic light by Soviet militiamen. Crawford was held incommunicado for a day before U.S. officials were allowed to meet with him at Moscow's Lefortovo Prison Tuesday. The U.S. Embassy has delivered a written protest over "the behavior of Soviet authorities in this case." The embassy declined to discuss the conversation between its officials and Crawford, but said the Soviet Foreign Ministry announced he was accused of violating Section 78 of the Russian Criminal Code, which deals with smuggling and illegal contraband. But Soviet sources said the arrest involved alleged currency violations, a charge that carries a sentence of three to 10 years. Crawford, who has been in Moscow for more than two years, was driving with his fiancée, embassy employee Virginia Urbich of Philadelphia, when he was picked up Monday. Miss Urbich was freed. In Chicago, International Harvester said it believed Crawford was innocent of any violation of Soviet law. "We don't think he's guilty," a company spokesman said. Crawford's arrest came at a time of increasing tension between Washington and Moscow over Soviet moves in Africa and American charges that the Russians planted listening devices in the U.S. Embassy in Moscow. State Department officials in Washington said they were not yet prepared to draw any direct relationship between the Crawford case and other recent incidents involving the two countries. The Soviet government newspaper Pravda Monday said a U.S. Embassy employee was caught last summer as she tried to deliver money, microphones and poison capsules to a spy. It said a previous supply of poison was used to kill an innocent Soviet citizen.

Little change seen in teen-age beliefs

MUNCIE, Ind. (UPI) — Many of the political and social beliefs of the 1920s are accepted by today's teen-agers in "Middletown, U.S.A.," but the young people are less religious and more tolerant than their grandparents were. "In this Midwest town, we found much less disintegration of traditional social values than is commonly described by observers who rely on their own intuitions," the leader of a major sociological study said Tuesday. Dr. Theodore Caplow of the University of Virginia is in charge of "Middletown III," a federally financed research studying the attitudes and beliefs of Muncie's residents. The results were compared with previous studies — "Middletown" made by sociologists Robert and Helen Lynd, first in the mid-1920s and again during the Depression. A survey of 3,200 high school students in Muncie, a city of 130,000 where they were oriented nearly as strongly as their grandparents to patriotism, the work ethic and social conformity, but were less religious and more tolerant of dissent. "It appears that in this middle-sized, Midwest city some of the attitudes of the post-World War I era have persisted with remarkable tenacity," said Dr. Howard M. Bahr of Brigham Young University, one of the researchers. For example, three out of four students believed the United States was "unquestionably the best country in the world" and half accepted the slogan "My country right or wrong" — a drop of only 15 and 10 percent respectively from 1924. More students today felt the Colonies were entirely right and England entirely wrong in the American Revolution, with nearly half agreeing with the statement compared with 40 percent two generations ago. The teen-agers held many of the same religious beliefs as their grandparents, but fewer felt it was wrong to go to the movies on Sunday or to read the Bible as an adequate guide to modern problems (53 vs. 74 percent or so) and that Jesus Christ was "perfect" (67 vs. 83). They percent said the theory of evolution offered a more accurate account of the origin and history of humanity than a literal interpretation of the Bible, up from

Reporters strike New York paper

NEW YORK (UPI) — The New York Daily News, hit by a reporters' strike, published today as drivers, ignoring the union's "scab" crossed picket lines to take the nation's largest circulation paper to newsstands. A spokesman for the morning tabloid said it appeared that something less than half the normal 2-million copies would be distributed. The News ran a 64-page edition, roughly two-thirds the normal size, and did not publish its separate suburban sections. No new contract talks were immediately set between the News and the striking Newspaper Guild, which represents some 1,300 editors, reporters, photographers and commercial employees. The Guild, whose contract expired last March 20, walked off the job shortly after 2 p.m. Tuesday, when contract talks broke down. Key issues were how wage increases would be distributed, the paper wanted some hikes based on its determination of merit — and union opposition to alleged retrogressions sought by management. The teen-agers held many of the same religious beliefs as their grandparents, but fewer felt it was wrong to go to the movies on Sunday or to read the Bible as an adequate guide to modern problems (53 vs. 74 percent or so) and that Jesus Christ was "perfect" (67 vs. 83). Israel accuses U.N. of aiding Palestinians

TEL AVIV, Israel (UPI) — Israel has accused U.N. peace-keeping troops of cooperating with Palestinian guerrillas and warring it will interfere militarily if its Lebanese Christian allies are attacked. Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan made the accusation in a strongly worded letter Tuesday after a 31-day occupation. "On the other hand," Dayan said, "according to reliable information, hundreds of terrorists... in the wake of the Israeli withdrawal, returned to southern Lebanon." "Moreover it appears that the U.N. force is permitting the transit of food and other supplies to the terrorists, and that the latter are clandestinely introducing arms and other military equipment into the area." Dayan said "some units" of the peacekeeping force "treat these PLO elements with indulgence and even cooperate with them..." "These facts stand in contradiction with the position expressed by you at our meeting in Jerusalem," Dayan said. "The present situation is not only in violation of your statement to me on this matter, but also bores ill for the future." Maj. Gen. Avigdor Ben-Gal, commander of Israel's northern front, warned of renewed military intervention should Christian Lebanon be attacked by the Palestinians or their leftist Muslim allies. "The Israeli government is standing by its commitment to continue to protect the Christian minority in south Lebanon," Ben-Gal said. "I will certainly recommend a military action" should either Christian or Israeli settlements along the border be attacked, Ben-Gal later told a television interview. "All Israeli forces handed some 14 positions over to U.N. forces and another 20 to 800 Christian rightists."

Pact foes plan protests for Carter's Panama trip

PANAMA CITY (U) — Nationalist groups opposed to the new Panama Canal pacts they consider humiliating and unconstitutional are gearing up for President Carter's visit for a formal "treaty exchange" ceremony Friday. Leftists have begun a war of spray-painted slogans along Balboa Avenue leading to the American Embassy, urging Carter not to come for the ceremonies. "Don't Come Carter" and "Panama Yes, Carter No" read messages written by the Student Revolutionary Front and the Camillo Torres Circle, named for the late revolutionary priest. The University of Panama law and political science faculty has approved a resolution predicting that Carter's trip would "produce problems." They resolved that the Panamanian constitution demands a new plebiscite to approve the canal treaties amended by the U.S. Senate. Panama's chief of state Gen. Omar Torrijos says the Oct. 23 referendum, which approved the pacts by a 2-1 margin, would stand and no new plebiscite was required.

Judge changes mind on Fedorenko case

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (UPI) — U.S. District Judge Norman G. Rosen intends to take a rear seat in a bid to denaturalize former Nazi death camp guard Fedorenko. Roetter had said last week it might take up to 18 months to reach a decision on whether Fedorenko lies about his activities at the infamous Treblinka concentration camp in World War II Poland when he applied for immigration to the United States. But Roetter had apparently changed his mind Tuesday. "I don't want to wait a year and a half, a year and eight months. I don't want to do that," Roetter said after Fedorenko's second day of testimony. The delay would be caused by efforts to reach six Ukrainians who Fedorenko says could clear him of accusations he killed Jewish prisoners at the camp. Roetter said there is "always the possibility" he will be able to rule without them. Prosecutor Jon Sale said "we've done everything humanly possible through diplomatic channels" to find the six men who live in the Soviet Union.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Someone wrote in on behalf of quiet people, saying that most quiet people are shy, sensitive and insecure, and they're embarrassed when someone says, "Good morning."

I've been quiet all my life and it doesn't bother or offend me if my quietness is mentioned. As a matter of fact, with so many noisier talkers in the world, I think we quiet ones deserve some applause. If everyone talked all the time, who would listen?

Furthermore, the quiet ones are often intelligent people who wisely refrain from blurring out every thought that pops into their heads.

Let that quiet one speak up for himself. Although I'm considered "quiet," I'm neither shy nor insecure. I also notice that because I'm not always talking, when I do say something, people listen.

PROUD TO BE QUIET

DEAR PROUD: Thanks for speaking out for those who prefer to be quiet. (P.S. I know you're right. I've been married to a quiet, intelligent man for 39 years.)

DEAR ABBY: I am a 22-year-old, fairly attractive woman who was born cross-eyed. I had surgery at a young age, which corrected the problem somewhat, but it's still quite noticeable.

Abby, my reason for writing is to ask why comedians and cartoonists think that portraying a person with cross-eyes is considered either funny or a sign of stupidity. I have developed a severe complex about it. It finds it difficult to look someone in the eyes or even have my picture taken. I try my best to conceal my defect because I have been humiliated and embarrassed to the point of tears when inconsiderate people make fun of me.

Being cross-eyed is a handicap. Why do so many people think it's funny? And what can I do about it?

DEAR HURTING: Intelligent, sensitive people do NOT think any kind of handicap is "funny." And comedians and cartoonists who use cross-eyed characters to get laughs do so more out of thoughtlessness than malice.

Much in being good today in modern surgery, I don't give up until you've explored every possibility of further corrective surgery. (P.S. Try to develop a little compassion for the ignorant who ridicule the handicapped, for they know not what they do.)

DEAR ABBY: Your letter from OVER 70 IN MISSOURI certainly touched home with me. My mother recently passed away leaving no will. Now my father must pay tax on her share of everything that she worked years to provide.

I don't know about that law elsewhere, but here in Oklahoma we have found that it's very expensive NOT to have a will.

The sad part is that it takes time to handle all these legal entanglements, and this keeps your grief alive while you're waiting.

Everyone should have a will to protect the survivors as well as to insure that their possessions go to the right people. The cost of a will is minimal compared to what you must pay if no will is left.

NOT OK IN OKLAHOMA

DEAR NOT: What's true in Oklahoma is true in the other 49 states.

Scarecrows endangered in region

By United Press International
They have become an endangered species—a part of our heritage that over the years has slowly disappeared from the farms and gardens along the backroads of New England's towns and villages. They are victims of modern times, a voiceless minority harking back to a less sophisticated age when they played a vital role in the life of the American farmer.

Scarecrows. There just are not many left in these parts anymore. In towns where scarecrows once stood sentinel in every cornfield and vegetable patch, today only a handful remain. Now, each spring, fewer and fewer scarecrows can be seen in the countryside of New England—a part of the nation where they were once abundant.

They are a controversial character—praised by some, laughed at by others, but always humble in appearance as they stood uncomplainingly in the middle of a field under a hot sun, doing a chore no ordinary farmhand would welcome.

"I can't deny that they are a vanishing breed. I can remember that it wasn't long ago, when it seemed that just about every other field in town had a scarecrow. I guess it was just part of the way things used to be around here in the old days," said Mrs. Hollis Magoon of Fremont, N.H.

The Magoon farm, off Route 111, which passes through a small town of less than 1,000 inhabitants, is one of the few farms in the area which still employs a scarecrow to stand guard over the crops.

As with so many other American traditions, New England is a haven for the sloppily dressed figure immortalized in the minds of children the world over in the captivating adventures of the "Wizard of Oz."

"I really can't understand why they are disappearing," says Irving Potter, a farmer in Berwick, Maine. "I've always used one and I can say truthfully they've always done the job for me. Sure, sometimes you get birds like the red-wing blackbird, who won't pay as much attention to the scarecrows. But hell, they don't always pay attention to me."

"I think one of the reasons people have gotten away from scarecrows is that they have found that most birds are smarter than you think and they won't take them long to get used to the scarecrow," said Professor Robert Young of the University of Massachusetts College of Food and Natural Resources.

"We've found that how you scare a bird depends on the bird and the type of crop. There are a lot of different methods used. For example, some birds would be frightened by explosives while others would practically sit on a cannon before they'd move. So sometimes you really can't tell what will work."

Retiree nabs raccoons throughout Connecticut

WEST HARTFORD (UPI)—For a solid month, Barbara Blanchfield had refused to leave. She finally had to call Raccoon Man to evict them. Holed up in the Blanchfield home was a chattering family of chimney sleepers. Raccoons. Five babies and the mother.

Enter Charles Daniels, a 68-year-old retired oil burner serviceman who has been snaring raccoons at his own expense throughout Connecticut for more than 12 years. He got into it when state lawmakers first considered a call for a raccoon bounty.

"The chicken farmers and corn farmers were up to the Legislature kicking up a fuss and wanted a bounty put on them," he recalls. "Some folks figured that if they ever put a bounty on them, well, they just would wipe them right out, so all the game clubs sent representatives up there."

Finally, a bargain was struck. The game clubs agreed to snare raccoons which unwittingly intrude on the premises or good grades of state residents. And the state agreed to forget imposing a bounty.

The Connecticut Department of Environmental Protection now issues permits to game clubs, which send someone out to pick up the raccoons.

That's usually Daniels. He says he's not surprised raccoons are taking up temporary residence in Connecticut homes.

Hi! We started signing up for a Boston Red Sox game in August last past Monday morning and by early afternoon we had 90 tickets sold.

We called Boston and they told us to send the money in right away. Keep your fingers crossed that we'll be able to get the tickets.

Before we could send for tickets we have to know how many wanted to go because we ordered 90 one other time and then only had 45 register. If it wasn't for Pauline Maynard, who stood outside the ballpark peddling them, we would have lost a ton of money.

Well, the Stevensville trip is over and from all reports everyone had a good time. Now the Wildwood trip is just about here, in fact it starts this coming Monday morning. The four buses will be leaving our center at 7 a.m. meaning everyone should be at the center around 6:30 a.m.

Speaking of trips the fly-cruise excursion scheduled in November is pretty well set and we remind those who signed up that another payment is due.

Right now we are planning a few more trips, most of them one-day visits and we remind those who signed up that another payment is due.

Tomorrow is the big gambling day as one has track and hopefully some will come home a little richer for the day.

Those going should be at the center around 10:15 a.m. as the bus will take off shortly after.

Meals ending. A reminder that our meals program has come to an end for a few weeks. Starting June 26, we will start our summer meals under the direction of Geri Kelley, our good friend. Thanks to UNICO, which is once again sponsoring the five-week program.

The food action will start with an outing and cook-out at Norman Fendall's apartment house. There will be swimming, games, and real good old-fashioned hamburgers, salads, beans and the trimming. Tickets are available at the center for $1.50.

North End parade
This Saturday afternoon the North Enders will be celebrating their 90th birthday with a huge parade. Thanks to Manchester Honda, which is donating their float in the parade. Also, thanks to John Scheibpflug and Al Christensen who are making the plans to decorate the float.

Happenings here at the center start with our set-back scores of this past Friday. The winners were Martin Bakstan, 129; Archie Houghlating, 128; Josephine Schuelz, 125; Bill Stone, 125; Gertrude Hermann, 124; Marjorie McLean, 124; Yvonne King, 123; Michael Haberern, 119; Ernestine Donnelly, 118; Mike DeSimone, 118.

Salad bars popular so new chain starts

NEW YORK (UPI)—Nearly all posh restaurants and some not so posh have salad bars these days and restaurateurs say a growing number of customers pass up entrees and dine on soup and salad.

Noticing this, Bruce Zenkel, a New York financial consultant, decided there was a golden opportunity to start a chain of restaurants serving only salads, soups and desserts. He has been in business two years and already is preparing to open his fifth restaurant in Manhattan and Atlanta.

Eighth District fire fighters

Mark 90 years of service

By BETTY RYDER
Family/Travel Editor

The fire department of the Eighth Utilities District is currently celebrating its 90th year of continuous service.

Its 88 active volunteers, many of whom answer more than 75 alarms a year and who respond to more than 150, are on the rosters of the department's three companies.

Times have changed since the Manchester Fire Department (that's how it is chartered) came into existence in 1888 after a serious fire on Depot Square destroyed a large commercial structure there, but the dedication of these unsung volunteers has continued steadily through the years.

Chief Granville (Ted) Lingard is obviously proud of his team and credits the department's fast response to fire calls to the fact that many of the volunteers work in town.

"We have about 10 or 12 men who work nearby and others who are on the night shift and are available should an alarm come in during the day. The volunteers are notified of fire at home or office by 75 tone activated alerting radios operating on the same frequency as fire communications. The men are given the location of an emergency call and if it is close to their home, they respond directly to the scene to render whatever assistance they can until apparatus arrives. By the time they are alerted we usually have approximately 22 volunteers on hand," Lingard said.

Three companies
The department is organized into three companies with related staff and line officer positions. The chief and three assistants are appointed by the District Board of Directors. Captains and lieutenants are elected by the members of their companies. The conduct and course of action to be followed in handling emergencies are outlined in the standard Fire Department Procedures, which are reviewed annually. The officers of the department meet every two months to discuss operations and any inter-department problems.

Lingard said 38 men have completed Emergency Medical Technician (EMT) training and 17 others have taken various first aid and cardiac pulmonary resuscitation (CPR) courses.

Fred Sweet, retired assistant chief, has noted some changes during his 24 years of active service. In 1928, he joined Hose Co. No. 2. After returning from the service during World War II, he was elected captain of Hose Co. No. 2.

In 1950, he was appointed assistant chief, a position he held until his retirement in 1971.

"During my association with the department we started out with two engines and brought it up to four."

Recalling some of the dramatic fires over the past several years, Sweet spoke of the fire which hit the grain company on Apple Place.

"It was raging in the corn elevator and we had to cut into the room. But the potential for it to blow up and endanger other properties in the area was great," said Lingard.

He also cited the spectacular Bon Ami company fire which devastated its buildings.

"We also had a fire bug in town right after the war. He'd hit four or five barns and also the junk yard. He really knew what he was doing, because when we arrived on the scene the fire would be well under way."

Steele served four years as United States Congressman from the Second District (Eastern Connecticut).

During his term as congressman, Steele was active in the areas of combatting drug abuse, assisting the elderly and promoting fire prevention and control. He served on the committee which was responsible for the establishment of the National Fire Academy in the Washington, D.C., area.

The parade will form at Brookfield Street, proceed west on East Center Street to the Post Office and north on Main Street to the Eighth District firehouse. Eight divisions of units including school bands, other fire departments, veterans organizations, etc. will participate. A crash truck from Pratt & Whitney Division of United Technologies Corp. in East Hartford, which will have its own police escort, will also travel the parade route.

Perhaps the efforts, dedication and untiring service of the volunteer firemen is best summed up in this anonymous poem which appeared in the department's 90th anniversary program:

Fireman's Prayer
When I am called to duty, God
Whenever flames may rage,
Give me strength to save a life
Whatever be its age,
Help me embrace a little child
Before it is too late
Or save an older person from
The horror of that fate,
Enable me to alert and hear the weakest shout
And quickly and efficiently
Put the fire out
I want to fill my calling and
To give the best in me,
To guard my neighbor and
Protect his property,
And if according to my fate,
I am to lose my life,
Please bless with your protecting hand
Another project which emphasizes
My children and my wife.

Surgery for gallstones

DEAR DR. LAMB - My husband was suffering recurrent attacks of pain from gallstones.

DEAR READER - A sty is a small boil. It's caused by bacteria (usually staphylococci).

The reason they occur in crops is because it is a bacterial infection and the bacteria manage to progressively affect different eyelashes.

DEAR READER - There is a national study program being conducted mostly by university hospital centers to study different ways that gallstones may be dissolved.

You didn't tell me anything about your husband's age or the rest of his medical status but if he is reasonably good health otherwise, probably the quickest and easiest approach to his problem would be surgery.

Now another value choice from Stop & Shop. Now, in addition to the wide variety of national brands, our Stop & Shop and Sun-Glo brands, we offer you another value-choice we've labeled "Economy" and priced to give you significant savings on an everyday basis.

Economy is good, wholesome foods of USDA standard grade or better, such as canned vegetables and cereals.

DEAR READER - The gallbladder itself can become infected and cause a severe acute illness very much like you get from acute appendicitis except the location of the pain is higher.

I believe that your husband would be very well advised to follow the doctor's advice. If he doesn't trust his doctor he can get a second opinion.

To give you a better idea about gallstones, what problems they can cause and what can be done about them, I am sending you the Health Letter number 49, Gall Stones and Gall Bladder Disease.

DEAR DR. LAMB - What causes styes on the eyes? I have them removed and then they come back again.

College notes At a recent Alumnae Council meeting of the Lassell Junior College Alumnae Board, Mrs. Harvey H. Shore of Manchester was appointed a director.

Margaret A. Mistretta, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Joseph T. Mistretta of 112 School St., was elected to Phi Beta Kappa at Trinity College.

Susan Marteney, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Pietro Marteney of 218 Hackmatack St., a senior at Hartwick College, has been named to the dean's list at the college.

Nancy Siraiani, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Siraiani, 262 Green Road, has been named to the dean's list for the spring semester at Notre Dame College in Manchester, N.H.

Tarnished spoons

DEAR POLLY - What is the best way to remove heavy tarnish from silver spoons? I have several antique spoons that are quite heavily tarnished and polish does not remove it all. Also, is there a lacquer one can coat such spoons with to prevent tarnishing? - BERNICE

DEAR BERNICE - The makers of baking soda suggest placing such silver on aluminum foil that lines an enamel pan, add boiling water and four teaspoons of baking soda, let stand for a bit, rinse well and rub to a shine with a soft cloth. DO NOT use this for raised patterns or ornamented handles. I always rinse cleaned silver in very hot water before drying.

Just last week a friend told me that she had asked the owner of one of the big silver shops in Mexico what he used to keep his silver so gleaming and bright. The answer was "a paste of baking soda and lemon juice." I recently bought a silver tray at a garage sale and tried cleaning it with this mixture and it looks bright as a new silver dollar. I would never use lacquer on spoons or any pieces that someone might use for food. It is only for purely decorative pieces such as candlesticks. - POLLY

DEAR POLLY - My Pet Peeve is with those who insist on buying toys for children without reading the suggested age group that is usually printed on toy boxes. I have enough carelessly bought toys in my attic to open a toy store. - ROSE

DEAR POLLY - I, too, have two pot lids with metal rings on the top. I also used a wooden clothespin to lift these lids off the pots until I found a better way. I tied a piece of heavy twine around one end of the ring and then wound it over and under the ring until it was all covered with the twine. Then I tied it to the other end of the ring. Now I can lift the lid without even a pot holder because the ring stays cool. I do hope this helps some of the other readers. - GRANDMA G.

DEAR POLLY - Before putting a new silicone cover on my ironing board I cut a 5-by-5 inch piece from the good part of the old cover and lay it on the area where the iron sits. It is not bulky and gives extra strength and protection to the new cover.

In order to save on fuel last winter my husband fastened large plywood boards, covered with heavy foil, on the wall back of each of our radiators. The heat reflects back into the room instead of just warming up the cold walls. - HILDE

DEAR POLLY - I use my old eyeglass cases for holding nail clippers, files and so on. They are great for traveling and neat in the dresser drawer. - ETHEL

Of consumer concern

Product recalls

Recent product recalls which may affect consumers are listed in this column. All recalls were made by the manufacturer or distributor in cooperation with the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission.

Information listed herein is summarized, but further information may be obtained regarding these products by phoning the CPSC toll-free hotline, 1-800-638-2666, or the Product Safety Section of the Consumer Protection Department, 1-800-842-2649.

Ladies' Sweaters - GAP Label.

Failure to comply with federal flammability standards resulted in recall of ladies' sweaters sold by GAP Stores on a nationwide basis last year. The garments have sewn-in black labels at the back of the neck reading "GAP" and separate labels say "Made in Hong Kong." The item is being recalled by the San Francisco Shirt Works, California.

Bassett Baby Crib Warning. Bassett baby cribs with bamboo-like motif are subject of a warning issued by Bassett Furniture Industries, Inc., Virginia. The CPSC says the design of the headboards and footboard in Bassett cribs (model numbers 5121, 5621 and 5225 may permit infants to become entrapped and strangle while standing in the cribs.

Consumers who have such a crib are urged to immediately remove all four finials (the top part of the corner post which unscrews) by rotating them counterclockwise until they unscrew and can be lifted off. Possession of the model which is subject of the warning should be reported to the retailer from whom the item was purchased.

Electric Hot Pot Recall. Recall of electric ceramic hot pots marketed under the names "Wide Mouth Hot Pots" and "Brew Masters" was announced as the result of an investigation which had its origin in this state and was handled by the Consumer Protection Department's Product Safety Section.

The hot pots, distributed by the Jack Eckerd Corp., Clearwater, Fla., contain a heating coil at the bottom of the pot. If the pot is heated when the coil is not immersed in liquid, the coil will be damaged. If a user, while grounded, should stir the liquid in the pot using a metal article, such as a spoon, the user could receive a severe electric shock.

Answers to questions of general interest will appear in this column. Address questions to "Consumer Concern," Department of Consumer Protection, State Office Building, Hartford, 06115.

Fickle washer

"If light goes off and machine stops," says the sign in a laundromat, "redistribute load and push red button."

The light did go off and the machine did stop, so Amy cashed in to redistribute her load. But as she did so the machine began to spin, injuring her hand.

When Amy sued afterward for damages, the company protested that this was a "pure accident." But the court, noting that the machine was old enough to be junked, decided the company was indeed liable. The court said a reasonably careful inspection would have shown that the machine might start up at the wrong moment.

Since laundromats are open to the public, they must be maintained with all due attention to safety. Otherwise, the company may be held responsible not only for personal injuries but also for harm done to garments.

In another case involving a dryer, there were no instructions at all on the machine. When a woman put in two girdles and two rugs, they promptly caught fire and burned up.

In court later, the company pointed out that she should have had better sense than to entrust rubberized articles to the dryer. But the court held the company liable. The court said any risks in the use of the machine should have been spelled out for customers.

On the other hand, the premises need not be kept absolutely accident-proof. One man, walking out of a laundromat, bumped into the glass front door. Suing, he claimed in court that the door was hard to see.

But he admitted having used that exit on many occasions. Furthermore, there were metal fittings on the door that should have alerted him to its presence.

Dismissing the man's claim, the court said a person who "did look but did not see" was guilty of negligence.

Social Security

Q. My husband worked in the coal mines for over 30 years up to 1973 and died last year. Am I eligible for survivors benefits under the new black lung law?

A. As long as your husband had at least 20 years of coal mine employment before June 30, 1971, and was at least partially disabled by black lung (pneumoconiosis), you can receive monthly payments of $219. Contact any Social Security office.

Q. I'm 69, and because I have no income of my own, I live with my son and daughter-in-law. Does living with them make me ineligible for SSI payments?

A. You may be eligible for supplemental security income, but the SSI payment will be reduced. If an eligible individual lives in another person's household and receives support and maintenance in kind from that person, the basic SSI payment is reduced by one-third. This reduction takes place of counting the dollar value of the support and maintenance as income.

Q. I'll soon be eligible for Medicare. I know it covers inpatient hospital care, but what about outpatient hospital services? For example, if I have to go to an emergency room, will Medicare cover my treatment?

A. Medicare medical insurance helps pay for covered services you receive as an outpatient from a participating hospital. Covered services include services for diagnosis or treatment of an illness or injury in an emergency room or outpatient clinic, lab tests and X-rays billed by the hospital, medical supplies such as splints or casts, and drugs which cannot be self-administered. More information is given in "Your Medicare Handbook." If you don't have a handbook, you can get one at any Social Security office.

Q. I'm a 57 year old widow and receiving disability benefits on my deceased husband's work record. I plan to get married early next year. How will this affect my Social Security benefits?

A. Under both the old and new law, benefits generally are not payable if a widow or widower remarries before age 60. The change relates only to widows and widowers age 60 and over who remarry.

Q. My son is 22 and has been working full time since he was 18. Recently, he was injured in a boating accident. The doctor says he won't be able to work again for over a year. Has he worked long enough to get Social Security disability benefits?

A. A person who becomes disabled before age 24 needs Social Security credit for 1 1/2 years of work in the three years prior to the time he or she became disabled. If your son has been working in covered employment since age 18, he probably has enough Social Security credits to be eligible for disability benefits. To get payments, though, he also will have to meet the Social Security disability definition. He can apply to any Social Security office.

Wife's place

What a difference a couple of decades can make - especially to women. As the 1950s began, says the American Council on Life Insurance, only 1 in 4 wives was in the U.S. labor force.

But at the start of the '70s, according to the U.S. Census figures, some 2 in 5 wives were employed, and the American Council of Life Insurance predicts are the ratio will reach 1 in 2 by the decade's end.

Johnson-Jensen

Mrs. Jeffery P. Johnson

Beverly Eileen Jensen and Jeffery Paul Johnson, both of Manchester, were married June 10 at Emanuel Lutheran Church in Manchester.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold C. Jensen of 73 Ferguson Road. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Johnson of 42 Alexander St.

The Rev. C. Henry Anderson of Manchester, retired pastor of Emanuel Lutheran Church, officiated at the double-ring ceremony. Jim McKay of Manchester was organist and Paul Paulson of West Hartford, soloist.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore an imported silk organza designed with Queen Anne neckline trimmed with venise lace, raised waistline with an A-line skirt with a double-tiered edged hemline which cascaded into an attached train. Her fingertip illusion veil was attached to a Camelot cap trimmed with scalloped venise lace.

Mrs. Kathleen Wierchowski of Vernon was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Theresa Lukas of Manchester; Miss Cathy Copeland of East Hartford; and Miss Patricia Jensen of Manchester, the bride's sister. Miss Cherie Soucier of Orleans, Vt., the bridegroom's niece, was flower girl.

Ronald Wierchowski of Vernon served as best man. Ushers were Stephen Yaworski and David Herbert, both of Manchester; and Russell Jensen of Manchester, the bride's brother.

A reception was held at Willie's Steak House in Manchester, after which the couple left for Disney World, Fla. For traveling, Mrs. Johnson wore a three-piece peach color vested suit. They will reside in Ellington.

Mrs. Johnson is employed at Hair Design in Ellington. Mr. Johnson is employed as a computer operator and programmer at Lydall Inc. (Loring photo)

Wedding

Aftabzari-Dougan

Elizabeth Lucia Dougan of Glastonbury, formerly of Manchester, and Karim Aftabzari of Washington, D.C., were married June 2 at Emanuel Lutheran Church in Manchester.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roger Dougan of Glastonbury and Mrs. Lucia D. Kelly of Hartford. She is also the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ward Dougan of 110 Strickland St.

The Rev. Ronald J. Fournier of Emanuel Lutheran Church officiated at the candlelight, single-ring ceremony.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a crinoline and satin gown designed with Queen Anne neckline edged in lace, Empire waist, long sleeves and bodice trimmed with pearls. She wore a mantilla trimmed in matching lace and carried a spray bouquet of white roses, dotted with yellow and pink roses, baby's breath and greens and white lace streamers.

Mrs. Andrea H. Clancy of Manchester was matron of honor.

Kamal Chandari of Washington, D.C., served as best man. Ushers were Christopher Dougan of Glastonbury and Dowe Winchell of Avon.

A reception was held at the bride's home, after which the couple left for Cape Cod. For traveling, Mrs. Aftabzari wore a lemon-yellow scoop neck dress with flared skirt and short sleeves. The couple will reside in Glastonbury.

Mrs. Aftabzari is currently attending the University of Connecticut where she has a double major in romance and classical languages, and international relations. Mr. Aftabzari recently graduated from George Washington University with a master of science degree in computer science.

Museum for poster art

PARIS (UPI) — Located in a turn-of-the-century exhibition hall at 18 rue du Paradis, Paris' newest museum, the Musee de l'Affiche, specializes in poster art from the 18th century to the present.

Its current exhibition, "Three Centuries of French Posters," includes 150 examples from the permanent collection of 70,000. The range of posters exhibited covers 18th century recruitment notices for the royal Dragons to publicity for Larousse by Jean-Michel Folon, with fine works by Bonnard, Cheret, Toulouse-Lautrec and Mucha in between. A Charles Loupot show is slated for September.

The Musee de l'Affiche, housed in the late 19th century building that was a "faïencerie" producing Paris' first glorious Metro tiles, is open daily except Saturday 10-6. Admission is 5 francs, and poster reproductions and post cards are sold.

On second thought
By Jan Warren

There's a puppy in our nest!

Last month I came home with a new puppy ... a squirming bundle of black fur, with sad brown eyes and floppy ears.

My husband was appalled! He said I must be suffering from the early symptoms of the empty-nest syndrome (two children in college, two still at home) and that I should seriously reconsider my decision.

"Remember," he said, eyeing the puppy distastefully, "it's YOUR baby. And a baby is exactly what you'll be taking on."

Four weeks later, I feel that my husband grossly underestimated the situation.

We've had four babies and I never once had to walk them in the backyard at 4 a.m. Nor did I have to stand in the wet grass in my nightgown saying "That's a good boy. That's a good boy."

And when our babies were teething they chewed on conventional things like silver spoons and teething rings. But not our puppy. He ignores his rubber doggie bone and has chewed and partially digested two socks, one table leg and a big chunk out of my best foam rubber pillow.

Our babies did cry. I won't deny that. But the neighbors were very sympathetic and after a raucous night would say, "Poor little tyke!" Our puppy's late night howls have evoked a very different response. The worst was a visit from the dog warden. The best a veiled comment, "I haven't seen your new puppy, but I've certainly heard him."

When it came to taking vitamins, our babies were cooperative. I mixed the vitamins with their milk and chug-a-lug, that was that. Our puppy must be part bloodhound, for when I mix the vitamins with his food, he won't go near it. I have to hold him between my knees and pry his mouth open forcibly. It's an exhausting performance and by the time I get through, I need vitamins, too. All our babies accepted the fact that they slept in their cribs and we slept in our bed, and with the exception of a few thunder storms and nightmares, that's the way it was. Our puppy is something else. We bought him a lovely wicker basket, but instead of appreciating his good fortune, he howls and scratches till in desperation we carry him upstairs and dump him on our bed. That's all it takes. He snuggles up to our feet and is asleep in no time.

Now, despite all my complaints, I'm not anti-puppy. In fact, I'm really sold on ours. The thing I like best about him, is that he likes me. No matter how horrible I am he greets me with a jump and covers me with licks and laps. Even when he grows up to be a big dog, he won't change. He'll always think I'm the greatest.

You know, maybe in this one department, puppies have a slight edge over babies.
