100th birthday party

Mrs. Nellie G. Johnson smiles during early celebration of her 100th birthday, which is today. Until recently, Mrs. Johnson spent her time working on detailed crocheting and needlepoint. Now she has confined herself to writing letters to friends. She was born in West Avon and has lived on Olcott Street, Manchester, with her only child, Mrs. Robert Carruthers, since 1962. She also has a grandson and two great-grandchildren. Mrs. Johnson didn't want her picture taken at first, but once Herald photographer Reginald Pinto came, she really began to enjoy it.

NRC stops work at Seabrook plant

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Nuclear Regulatory Commission Friday ordered construction suspended on the Seabrook, N.H. nuclear power plant.

The 2-1 decision now leaves it up to the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency to decide if Seabrook's cooling system satisfies environmental requirements.

A spokesman said, "Whether and when the suspension should be lifted will depend upon such factors as the decision rendered by the EPA administrator ... and the outcome or development of the NRC appeal board."

About 250 anti-nuclear demonstrators who have been conducting a 48-day sit-in, broke into cheers when the decision was announced.

They had been waiting all day under the eyes of dozens of policemen while the commission deliberated.

A statement said: "The Nuclear Regulatory Commission by divided vote today ordered suspension of the construction permits for the Seabrook nuclear power plant in New Hampshire, effective at 6 p.m. July 21, on the grounds that this action is necessary to protect NRC's freedom to decide on alternatives to the Seabrook site."

The commission decided that the New Hampshire Public Service Co., the power plant's builder, should consider only alternative sites in northern New England. Some nuclear sites in southern New England originally had been discussed.

The anti-nuclear protestors issued a statement saying: "We applaud the members of the Nuclear Regulatory Commission and their decision to suspend the construction license of the Seabrook Nuclear Power Plant. We view this as a historic breakthrough for the entire anti-nuclear movement in the country."

The plant has been a controversial one since it was first proposed in the early 1970s.

Much of the debate has been over a plan to cool the radioactive nuclear reactor by pumping water out of the Atlantic Ocean around the reactor core and back into the ocean.

Demonstrators have opposed the plant ever since Aug. 1, 1976. More than 1,400 demonstrators were arrested last year demonstrating against construction of the plant and last weekend more than 10,000 protestors opposed plant construction.

NRC commissioners Victor Gilinsky and Peter Bradford voted to suspend the permit. "In choosing to halt construction," they said, "we do not minimize the burdens this imposes on the applicant and the construction workers on site."

"We find the effect on the construction workers the factor weighing most strongly against suspension of the permit."

"We can only say that the opposite course would cause greater harm through failure to comply with the law."

Commissioner Richard T. Kennedy dissented, saying "the equities in this case lie in favor of allowing construction to continue."

The "Seabrook Natural Guard" — main organizers of the demonstration — had warned of civil disobedience actions if the commissioners gave the plant a go-ahead. Police Thursday arrested 56 demonstrators who staged a "die-in" to dramatize the carnage a nuclear accident might cause.

Carter says hands 'tied by intrusions'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter, upset with Congress and the Supreme Court, complained Friday that his hands "are tied by intrusions" from other branches of government and warned that the separation of powers has been "clouded considerably."

Carter did not cite specific instances of intrusion on presidential powers that have created what he called "a problem of mine," but he said the situation has grown worse in the last few months.

His remarks appeared to have been spurred in part by two developments Thursday — a Supreme Court ruling that stripped senior government officials of full immunity from damage suits, and a House vote to give Congress veto power over some regulations issued by the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Later Friday, after a ceremony marking the assumption of duties by Gen. David Jones as chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Carter scheduled a 10-day visit to Camp David, the presidential retreat in the Maryland mountains.

The president chose a Rose Garden welcoming ceremony for the 17th annual National Youth Governors

Conference of the YMCA to describe his frustration with the legislative and judicial branches of government.

Carter said the historical separation of the three branches of government has been "clouded considerably in recent years, and particularly recent months."

"The executive has to have the right ... to execute and carry out laws of Congress, and to do it efficiently," he said.

"More and more the hands of the executive branch are tied by intrusions from other branches of government."

Carter has objected in the past to limits imposed on the White House by Congress, particularly in the area of foreign policy.

During the recent rebel invasion of Zaire, which the administration claims included Cuban involvement, Carter told members of Congress he felt there were excessive restraints blocking him from reacting to the situation.

On Thursday, the House voted 244 to 149 to let either house of Congress veto HUD regulations dealing with housing and community development.

Israelis protest visit by Mondale

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Vice President Walter F. Mondale ran into an anti-American demonstration at the Wailing Wall Friday and was accused by one government official of endangering the "existence and security" of Israel.

Mondale, his wife Joan and daughter Eleanor, paid a personal visit to the Wailing Wall, the holiest shrine in Judaism which Israeli forces captured in the 1967 Middle East War. They inserted notes with the words "Shalom" (peace) in both Hebrew and English in cracks in the 2,000 year old stone wall.

About two dozen placard-carrying demonstrators, shouting "go home," and "no more Vietnam," were among several hundred people at the flag-stoned plaza facing the wall. They carried signs which read: "Pressure Won't work," and "Sadat does not budge — but the U.S. pressures Israel."

The rest of the crowd applauded and cheered as the Mondales — the vice president wearing a black skullcap and his wife and daughter kerchiefs — bowed their heads at the shrine.

The Mondales arrived in a limousine that flew neither the Israeli nor U.S. flags. The United States does not recognize the Israeli annexation of the Arab sector of Old Jerusalem.

Jerusalem Mayor Teddy Kollek, who accompanied the vice president and his family on their tour of old Jerusalem, said afterwards that Mondale took the demonstration in stride.

Mondale's visit was surrounded by the tightest security since the historic visit to Jerusalem last November by Egyptian President Anwar Sadat. A bomb went off in an open market in the Holy City, killing two Israelis, on the eve of Mondale's arrival.

Tentative accord set in police union talks

By GREG PEARSON
Herald Reporter

Representatives of the Town of Manchester and the Manchester Police Union Local 1496 have agreed to a preliminary contract proposal. The proposal, however, still must be approved by the union's negotiating committee before it is voted on by the town or the entire body of the union.

James Taylor, president of the union, met Thursday with Charles McCarthy, assistant town manager, and Steven Werbner, personnel assistant. Both sides said that they prepared a contract proposal that includes all areas — both economic and non-economic — that have been mentioned during negotiation procedures.

"We're close. I think we'll have one more meeting," Taylor said of the progress made in negotiations.

McCarthy met late Friday afternoon with Police Chief Robert Lannan to review the package. He said that the chief raised no major objections.

McCarthy said that he will now send a copy of the package to Taylor. "I'm hopeful the material I send to him will be the basis of an agreement," he said.

Taylor will present the entire package to the union's negotiating team. He hopes to do that within a few days of receipt of the proposal.

If the negotiating committee raises no objections, the proposal could be presented to the entire union for a vote.

Any disagreement would result in at least one more bargaining session between the town and the union.

The tentative package appears to represent a major breakthrough in negotiations between the two parties. Negotiations in recent months had, at times, been rocky. In fact, the negotiations started on a sour note when McCarthy released the union's first set of proposals to the press. This brought an angry reaction from the union.

A fact-finder had been appointed to try to help both sides reach a settlement. He has not yet been in touch with the town, though, McCarthy said. Both sides met Thursday to continue negotiations.

Neither side would release information about the details of the proposed contract package.

Explosion of truck rocks Wall Street

NEW YORK (UPI) — A "Mister Softee" ice cream truck exploded among lunchtime crowds in the Wall Street area Friday, injuring more than 130 persons in a terrifying hail of smashed glass and shrapnel-like steel.

Police said it would take two days of analyzing the debris to determine the cause of the explosion. But officers said two possibilities were a bomb or a faulty refrigerator compressor in the back of the truck.

Manhattan hospitals reported treating 132 persons for injuries in the blast. At least 16 were listed in critical condition. There were no reports of deaths.

The 23-year-old driver of the ice cream truck, Lee Balter, underwent an operation at Beekman to remove shattered metal bits, but officials said his wounds were not serious. The force of the blast reduced the truck to a melted, twisted wreck and forced at least one car off the road, searing its paint with a fireball.

The truck blew up at 1:49 p.m. at the intersection of Nassau and Fulton Streets, just a few blocks from City Hall and the city's financial district in Lower Manhattan.

Hundreds of pedestrians on the sidewalks, enjoying the bright summer day, were thrown to the ground by the force of the explosion, which sprayed the area shards of glass.

Puddles of blood and dozens of women's shoes lay in the wide avenue, a major traffic artery in Lower Manhattan.

That's entertainment

Television shows self-doubt

Television, for all of its evident enormous success as a major factor in American entertainment, has moments of self-doubt, too.

Gene F. Jankowski, president of the CBS Broadcast Group, told the annual meeting of the Broadcast Promotion Association in St. Paul, Minn., the other day:

"It seems that hardly a day passes without television being blamed for illiteracy, for crime in the streets, for corn blight and the common cold... For millions of Americans at and below the poverty level radio and television are their only sources of entertainment. There are millions more in our population who turn to television for rest and relaxation. They don't want to be lectured. They want to be informed and entertained."

The fact that a top network official has given thought along these lines is encouraging indeed, arguing well into the future.

Flushing mains to continue

The Town of Manchester Water Department will be doing water work next week that may affect the appearance of water in certain parts of town. Hydrant flushing will be done in Manchester from Shallowbrook Lane north on South Main Street to Spring Street and east from South Main Street to Gardner Street.

Flushing also will be done in Glastonbury from Hebron Avenue to Manchester Road and north to Indian Hill Trail.

A fire flow test, to determine the availability of water for fire fighting, will be done Thursday from 9:30 to 10:30 a.m. on Progress Drive. The following streets may be affected by reduced pressure and possible water discoloration: Cushman and Scott drives, Kennedy and Colonial roads and Parker and Woodbridge streets.

The department has installed a check valve for Progress Drive and wants to measure the effect of this improvement.

Road work suspended

With the approach of the Fourth of July weekend, one of the busiest travel periods of the year, state Transportation Commissioner James F. Shugrue has announced that construction and maintenance activities which could interfere with normal traffic operation on major highways will be suspended during the holiday weekend including next Wednesday.

"We want to make it as safe and convenient as we can for the motorists traveling on Connecticut highways during this period," said Shugrue.

At the same time, Shugrue urged motorists to comply with the 35 mph speed limit while driving on state highways.

"This is the best way to observe a safe Fourth of July weekend," he said. "Traveling at that rate of speed is one of the surest ways to avoid accidents and to conserve energy. I cannot stress too strongly the need to drive safely."

In addition, Shugrue urged motorists to allow themselves ample time for their trips, to use safety belts and most importantly, to guard against alcohol abuse.

JAWS 2 (PG) — Roy Scheider. Action-thriller. Here we go again, but this time it misses the mark. The story is poor, the direction is weak, the shark looks fishy. Some moments of excitement but generally pretty dull. Compared to the first one, this sequel is strictly a sinker. GRADE: C.

AMERICAN HOT WAX (PG) — Tim McIntire. Musical. The '60s, and the beginnings of rock 'n' roll are giving us for this small-scale offering. It is supposed to be the story of disc jockey Alan Freed, who first made rock 'n' roll big. If you like the music, you'll like this, because there are many musical numbers that really jump. GRADE: B.

BETSY, THE (R) — Laurence Olivier, Robert Duvall, Katherine Ross. Romance. This is taken from the Harold Robbins novel about love and intrigue among Detroit automobile manufacturers. It's all pretty abstruse and not really very interesting. Olivier is wasted, but does his best. GRADE: C.

BIG SLEEP, THE (R) — Robert Mitchum, Sarah Miles. Mystery. Another try at Philip Marlow, the prototype private eye, but this one misses. The direction is heavy, the acting over-emotional and the plot so convoluted you need a road map to stay even. Still, Mitchum makes a fine Marlowe. GRADE: B.

CAPRICORN ONE (PG) — James Brolin, Hal Holbrook, Brenda Vaccaro. Action-adventure. Plenty of action here, and something to think about, too. This suggests that the space program takes a Mars landing — the astronauts are really in a Martian mock-up on Earth — and builds a great chase and survival thriller from that. GRADE: B-plus (and counting).

CAT AND MOUSE (PG) — Michele Morgan, Sergio Reggiani. Romantic. Really Frenchman dies under unusual circumstances, and his wife appears to be the most likely murderer. Of course, she insists otherwise. Fans of French director Claude Lelouch ("A Man and a Woman") find this film one of his best, but others may find the subtitled offering a bit difficult to follow. GRADE: B. (McDowell)

COMING HOME (R) — Jane Fonda, Jon Voight, Bruce Dern. Drama. One of the new wave of Vietnam war pictures, this is a strong, emotional story about a shattered man, the woman who waited for him, and another man. It is very strong stuff, but will leave you quivering. GRADE: A-minus.

DAMNED WOMEN II (R) — William Holden, Lee Grant. Thriller. Sequel seldom lives up to the original, but this one is even worse than usual. Where the first "Open" was scary, this one is ludicrous. The boy — the devil's son — is now in military school and everybody who ferrets out his secret dies a gruesome way. Caution: There are grisly scenes, but the rest of it is more funny than frightening. GRADE: D.

DEAR DETECTIVE (PG) — Anne Girardot, Philippe Noiret. Mystery. Delightful romance between a reclusive Chicago artist and a hard-boiled, yet feminine, woman police inspector makes up for an average murder plot. French fun all the way. GRADE: A-minus. (Händler)

DIFFERENT STORY, A (R) — Perry King, Meg Foster. Romance. Boy meets girl, they're gay, they're both homosexuals. Soon they need each other and they're gone.

We're closing.
(But not for long.)

Every year at about this time we take a break for a well-deserved vacation and the chance to do some additions and improvements. This year, we'll be closed from Sunday, July 2nd to Monday, July 17th. The Sixpence will re-open Tuesday, the 18th.

We look forward to seeing you then.

Phase-in benefits most homeowners

This past February, Manchester completed its first re-evaluation of real estate for tax assessment purposes since October 1966. Because of certain drastic consequences which seemed likely to result from putting the re-evaluation into full effect all at once, the Town Board of Directors voted to utilize an option under state law to phase-in that re-evaluation over a five-year period.

When you consider that the average residential property in our town nearly doubled in its assessed value and that many homes have had their assessed values increase more than 100 percent, this five-year phase-in program seems likely to alleviate the shifting of the tax burden to those homeowners. As each home's assessment increases in five equal annual installments, of $3,000 each, the tax bills which are received this week, that property's assessed value would be $18,000. For next year those tax bills will arrive one year from now, that property's assessed value would be $21,000. For the year thereafter (which would be third year in this five-year phase-in), the assessed value would be $24,000, and so on until the fifth year (four years from now) will that property's assessed value reach the full $30,000 figure placed on it by the recent re-evaluation.

Secondly, for each of those five years, there would be a decrease in the mill rate, even though the inflationary cost of living threatens to force an increase each year in the cost of running our town government. For example, our recently adopted general fund budget increased approximately 7.1 percent over the preceding year's general fund budget (which compares quite closely with the 6.8 percent inflationary rate for general government spending across the country). Yet, at the same time, because of the assessment phase-in, our general fund mill rate decreased by 4.72 mills from $5.06 to $0.34 mills.

Summer job help at Youth Services

By JOY VAN CLEEF

When Sam Clark, executive director of the Connecticut Child Welfare Association, addressed the seminar on youth sponsored by the Manchester Community Service Council May 2, he stressed four areas of services to young people, in which needs can be met only through community coordination of effort.

Fourth, the Youth Employment Training Program (YETP), provides federal funding to hire youth, through the school system; 18-20 placements are available year-round.

Robert Digan, director of youth services, describes these programs as follows: Further information about any of the above can be obtained from the Youth Services office in the basement of Lincoln Center.

According to Digan, there are a number of reasons why it is important for a young person to be able to find work. Energetic adolescents need to be kept busy, using their time and abundant energy constructively. The old adage still holds true, that satan will find mischief for idle hands to do, in all too many cases.

And of course, many young people really need the money they earn, for their own needs or those of their families. The experience of getting and holding a job is of great value in training a teen-ager for future employment. It also helps him make vocational choices. And finally—and this is perhaps the most important consideration of all—is the good effect employment can have on a young person's self-image. Working makes him feel he can do something useful, and get paid for it. He develops skills. He is given responsibility, and wins social approval if he discharges it successfully. Under fortunate conditions, he may make new friends and have new experiences which broaden his horizon and motivate him to keep on learning and growing. Even when his particular task is humble, a well-supervised worker may feel pride in being related to an important organization, business, or public service—being part of the "team."

Another kind of employment service functions in Manchester—this one geared to the needs of children who are off to a bad start, and have been in trouble at home, in school, or in the community. It is part of the process of helping them achieve the sort of stability they need to break out of the bad patterns in which they are trapped. Careful and expert guidance is needed to steer them in the direction of well-adjusted adulthood.

Project Open Door, of which Mrs. Jean Zurbrigen is the assistant director, helps juvenile offenders to establish positive relationships in the community through finding suitable living and working arrangements for them.

Mrs. Jenny Talbot, assistant coordinator of the Youth Service Bureau, (666-5500). By so doing he will contribute to the well-being of himself and of the youth community.

Project Open Door has arranged for some children to take courses at Foot Prints, to develop creative skills and interests. Others have been hired (with DSO funds) to work there. Several have volunteered to work at the center in exchange for being allowed to take classes. In all cases, the experience has been a good one for the young person involved.

The important thing is that, whether he is wielding a paint brush or a scrubbing brush, exerting himself at the barre or with a broom, the youngster at Foot Prints is part of an environment where he receives individual attention and support, develops self-confidence, and learns to contribute to others. The town Board of Education has been made aware of Foot Prints as an employment option of great potential.

Even with all the youth-employment programs described above now functioning, Digan emphasized the fact that there still is a great need for job openings for young people in Manchester. Anyone who can offer any sort of work, or needs any kind of help, should call the Youth Services Center at 666-5500.

U.S. growing smaller trees because we need more wood

Softwood or deciduous trees are the source of most of the wood we use in building and other products. More and more softwoods are needed each year for construction and other uses.

The fact is we need more timber each year for construction, paper, furniture, and other wood products, so we trees at a faster rate and harvest them sooner than we did 100 years ago. We are left with a younger forest full of smaller trees.

Throughout the northeast, research is in progress to improve the way we use our timber resources. One particular group of scientists located at Princeton, W.Va., concentrate on dealing with the changing forest resource, on finding new processes and products, and improving old ones, to ensure that we continue to have the wood we need.

The organization behind this research is the U.S. Forest Service. An agency of the Department of Agriculture, the Forest Service is best known for the large system of national forests that encompasses many prime acres of wooded land throughout the country. The knowledge needed to manage the diverse resources found on national forests is being developed through research conducted at Forest Service experiment stations.

One such station is the Northeast Forest Experiment Station, which is headquartered in Broomall, Pa., and conducts research on forestry-related problems in the northeast. The Princeton laboratory is one of 14 in a 15-state area.

The United States is growing smaller trees. Not because small trees save space, and not because we need less wood. To the contrary, we're growing smaller trees because we need more wood.

The fact is we need more timber each year for construction, paper, furniture, and other wood products, so we trees at a faster rate and harvest them sooner than we did 100 years ago. We are left with a younger forest full of smaller trees.

That's where the Princeton research comes in. Scientists there look for new and better uses for hardwoods, for ways to improve industry operations, and for more efficient means of removing timber from the woods. Very generally they deal with problems in the four areas of productivity, efficiency, utilization, and supply.

The productivity research might also be called the economics of forestry. Researchers here look for ways to improve our timber supply by increasing efficiency in the labor force, providing information on demand and supply, encouraging productive use of privately owned and previously idle land, and suggesting ways to economically reclaim mined land.

Through in plentiful supply, hardwoods are often found on small, understocked stands full of low grade, poorly managed material, practically locked up by owners who resist entering the timber business. What hardwood industry does exist experiences some problems. Low productivity, low profit, low wages, hazardous working conditions, and labor and capital shortages are not uncommon.

The productivity researchers are trying to improve the hardwood situation by attacking the four problem areas mentioned here. Their project is titled "Economic opportunities for improving productivity of the primary forest industry." Their SEM allows manufacturers to make panel products from low grade lumber, and thus indirectly helps the supply of high quality wood.

The projected shortages in high grade lumber will call for new approaches in all phases of the timber industry. Basic to every other step is the way that wood is handled as raw material, as standing trees or logging residue. This aspect of the hardwood utilization problem is undertaken by Princeton researchers studying the "increased supply of hardwood raw materials."

A big concern will be to look into opportunities for using wood residue as fuel. If the idea proves feasible, researchers may alter the laboratory's heating system to warm the building with wood.

The United States is growing smaller trees, but the people at Princeton are trying to ensure that good things keep coming in small packages. The answer to increasing the timber yield may lie as much in stretching our current resources well as in developing new ones.

Men in the government serve God and are busy doing their work. Romans 13:6.

I believe government is God's order to preserve domestic peace in a nation. And I'm glad we live in such a land where government despite its weaknesses does attempt to preserve the rights of its citizens.

We move closer toward Independence Day remembrance; happy birthday America and all its citizens beginning here in Manchester!

I thank this newspaper and the Manchester Council of Churches for inviting me to write in its column. I'm glad I live in a land where my religious belief or anybody else's is not subject to government intervention.

Wings of morning

Don't drop out or drop dead! My advice to recent graduates is the heading of this paragraph. The second part trumpet the faith in the youth of today and the first concerns your future.

I hear many old and older people complain bitterly about "the youth of today," and, in essence, their hope is that "they ought to drop dead!"—and the world would be a better place for all senior citizens. Sure, there are the "punks" who give the whole group a bad name, but there are those "who are not news" that have ideals, mastered their wills, disciplined their desires into a time schedule, researchers may alter the laboratory's heating system to warm the building with wood.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS
By Eugene Brewer
Do we have difficulty recognizing God's omnipotence, God's love, and human suffering? It all depends upon the lens through which we view the world. The Book of Job teaches that man does not have all the answers to life's enigmas—and that includes the unbeliever. Man's humble pride is crushed all things "good," including rickety the gift of free moral agency to man. Man's sin is not his creation groaneth and travails in pain together now. (Job 1:21)

Suffering is never pleasant, but it can strengthen faith, enhance appreciation, provoke empathy, provoke introspection, lift above the mundane, and inspire hope beyond, as comfort and serenity alone can never do.

Reaction as expected on arbitration ruling

By GREG PEARSON
Herald Reporter

A Town of Manchester official Friday said that he is pleased with a Superior Court decision that struck down the state's binding arbitration law for municipal negotiations.

The leaders of two town unions, however, feel that the decision leaves unions at an unfair disadvantage in labor negotiations.

Charles McCarthy, Manchester's assistant town manager, has been a loud critic of the state law that established binding arbitration for municipal employees. He praised the decision of Judge Joseph Goldberg, who ruled that the process gives too much power to the arbitrators.

Under the present law, three arbitrators are appointed if a municipality and a union are unable to reach a contract agreement in the first three phases of municipal negotiations. One is appointed by the municipality, one by the union, and the third agreement of both parties or the state if the sides cannot agree.

The three-member panel has the final say in deciding the contract between the municipality and the union.

McCarthy said that the binding arbitration procedure "fundamentally undercuts democratic processes. Instead of local legislative bodies making decisions on how much is spent, you have some third party coming in to make the final decision."

Manchester was one of eight towns that funded the suit that challenged the binding arbitration step of negotiations. The negotiating leaders have expressed opposition to the procedure.

McCarthy said that unions have sometimes used binding arbitration as a negotiating tool in early contract negotiations. He said that in a recent meeting with a union, the town presented contract proposals.

The negotiator for the union reacted by commenting how the arbitration panel would react to the proposals, McCarthy said.

"No negotiations were taking place. The third party was already part of the negotiations. This is absurd," he said.

Union leaders mentioned that Goldberg's decision leaves them without binding arbitration or the right to strike.

"If the judge ruled that way, it should give us the right to strike," James Taylor, president of the Manchester Police Union, Local 1492, said. "We should have one option or the other," he said.

Taylor said that he believes the arbitration system did provide a distinct benefit for municipal administrators. If angry taxpayers complained about the salary increases granted in binding arbitration, town officials could point the blame at the arbitration panel and not themselves.

"It took the weight off their shoulders," he said.

Robert Martin, president of Local 1579 of the International Association of Firefighters, said, "I'm sorry to see it go."

He said that the binding arbitration law did have some flaws, but he felt it was a good law.

"It's the only alternative for public employees," Martin said of binding arbitration.

"The town can drag the negotiations forever," he said, referring to negotiations without arbitration or the right to strike.

Goldberg's decision left open the possibility that a revised law could be passed, but it would have to set some standards to guide the arbiters. Lawyers representing municipal unions already have indicated that they will appeal the decision to the state Supreme Court.

Authority approves Purnell lot leases

The Manchester Parking Authority Friday approved leases for the continued use of the Purnell Place parking lots behind stores on the east side of Main Street.

The authority authorized Robert Gorman, its chairman, to sign the leases for a two-year period. The leases would have expired Friday without the authority's action.

One lease was signed with the Purnell Corp. The Parking Authority will pay $955 per month to lease the property.

The authority will have to pay for such costs as snow removal, something it has not had to do under past lease agreements. But, it also will receive revenue from payments for rental spaces, Gorman said.

The second lease is with the Connecticut Bank & Trust Co., which is the administrator of the W.G. Glenney estate, Gorman said. The final details of that lease were still being arranged Friday, he said.

Police report

Manchester
Manchester Police picked up a suspected hashish-type substance while investigating a group of youths in Center Springs Park. No arrests were made, but the matter is still under investigation.

Police said about 35 grams of the substance were recovered during the Friday night incident.

Manchester Police reported making the following arrests Friday:

- Kenneth Ritter, 21, of 330 Adams St. charged with second-degree failure to appear.
- Edward B. Wrobel, 27, of 41 Cedar St., charged with breach of peace. Court date is July 10.
- Randall D. Whitaker, 25, of 77 Tremont St., Hartford, charged with breach of peace. Court date is July 10.
- Steven Briere, 18, of 237 Boston Turnpike, Bolton, charged with driving while his license was suspended. Court date is July 11.
- Earl B. Rose, 19, of Lake Road, Coventry, charged with possession of alcohol on town property. Court date is July 17.

Police reported a break into Bernsten's Generator Sales & Service Inc., 270 Broad St. Nothing has been reported missing, however, police said. A fire occurred in the Broad Street building earlier this week.

South Windsor
Police arrested Steven J. Marsh, 18, of 817 Ellington Road, South Windsor, and charged him with second-degree larceny by possession. Court date is July 24.

Vernon
Vernon Police charged a Rockville man in connection with a theft in late May from an office on Park Street. Police said that Daniel Whitaker, 25, of 24 1/2 Park St., Rockville, was charged with two counts of third-degree burglary and one count each of first-degree burglary and third-degree burglary.

He was released on a $5,000 bond for court appearance July 7.

Fred Linberger of 8 Saddle Mill Road, Ellington, was charged with illegal discharge of fireworks, reckless driving and failure to obey an officer's signal, police said.

The driver of the other vehicle, Terry J. Hart of 134 Grove St., Rockville, suffered minor injuries, police said.

Linberger was released on a $1,000 non-surety bond for court appearance July 11.

Steven F. Plante, 18, of 92 Grissom Road, Manchester, was charged with speeding in connection with a two-car accident on Taylor Street, police said.

The driver of the other vehicle, Terry J. Hart of 134 Grove St., Rockville, suffered minor injuries, police said.

Police charged Dorothy La Fleur, 40, of 29 Mountain St., Rockville, with failure to drive a reasonable distance apart. The charge was lodged in connection with a two-car accident at Union and West streets, police said.

Clamshell claims role in Seabrook work halt

CONCORD, N.H. (UPI) — The group that organized the nation's largest anti-nuclear protest, Friday night said it helped create a climate in which federal officials could halt construction on the Seabrook nuclear power plant.

The Clamshell Alliance said its activities had shown the opposition to nuclear power among the general population and that had allowed the Nuclear Regulatory Commission to suspend construction of the $3.3 billion facility.

The NRC by a 2-1 vote Friday night suspended construction on the project.

"I think we helped to create the climate in which some of the NRC was able to give more serious consideration. We loosened up some of the constraints on the regulators so they would be able to vote more in the public interest," said Clamshell spokesman Don Michak.

"We did that by making it clear there was a very sizeable and growing number of Americans who oppose nuclear power and in particular oppose the Seabrook project," he said.

Michak said the Clamshell Alliance would continue to pressure "both the regulators and the nuclear industry by putting our bodies on the line, by engaging in direct action, and by pointing out that we don't agree at all with the nuclear corporations' plans for our future."

Enjoy an Outdoor Feast on the Fourth

Picnics as well as parades are an important part of America's Independence Day celebration, and fireworks share the spotlight with good food. It's an occasion for a feast to enjoy with relatives, neighbors and friends.

Perplexed by what to serve for this July jubilee? For an ideal salute to the "Fourth", roast a boneless pork loin to tender juicy perfection on the outdoor roaster or in a covered grill. A beer-sparkled barbecue sauce, brushed on during cooking, will supplement that great pork flavor in delicious fashion. While the enticing aroma fills the air and triggers appetites, serve tall cool drinks along with a tasty hot pimiento cheese dip in its own foil "saucapan", a convenient cooking container. Bread sticks or fresh vegetables make ideal dippers.

For other menu selections, prepare Tomato Star Salads and Stuffed Summer Pears. Filled with a delicious spicy raisin-nut mixture and wrapped in foil bundles to keep them tender and flavorful, fresh pears provide a dessert spectacular when cooked on the grill while the barbecued pork is carved and served.

Since a holiday is for all to enjoy, a smart cook counts on aluminum foil to ease preparation and clean-up chores. Cooking food in foil packets on the grill eliminates scouring pans, while a foil-lined grill not only aids clean-up but helps reflect heat for even cooking.

One good outdoor meal inevitably demands another, so plan a pork encore for a future backyard get-together. Picnickers' Pork Steaks, marinated in pineapple juice flavored with soy sauce and ginger, are especially good broiled over ash-covered coals. For other picnic pleasers, combine peas and mushrooms in a foil packet for grilling with the steaks, and heat biscuits, spread inside with a tangy chive-onion butter, in foil, too.

Celebration Pork Loin Roast

4 to 6-pound boneless pork top loin
1/2 cup catsup
1/2 cup vinegar
2 tablespoons brown sugar
1/2 teaspoon fennel seed
2 tablespoons cornstarch
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 can (12 ounces) beer
2 drops hot sauce
1 small onion, chopped

Combine brown sugar and cornstarch in saucapan. Add beer, onion, catsup, vinegar, fennel, salt and hot sauce and cook, stirring constantly until thickened; cook slowly 10 minutes and reserve. Insert roaster end through exact center of roast and balance roast on rod, using prongs to hold meat in place. Insert meat thermometer, angling it so bulb is in center of roast, but not resting in fat or on rod. Place on roaster over foil drip pan surrounded with ash-covered coals and cook at low to moderate temperature for well done (170°F). Allow 2 to 3 hours cooking time. When the roast meat thermometer registers 140°F, brush pork with sauce. Continue cooking to well done (170°F), brushing with sauce occasionally.

Note: To cook roast on covered grill, follow grill manufacturer's directions, turning roast several times during cooking to an internal temperature of 170°F.

Pimiento Cheese Dip

1 package (16 ounces) pasteurized process cheese spread, cubed
1/4 cup dry white wine
1 hard cooked egg, chopped

2 tablespoons chopped pimiento-stuffed green olives
Assorted vegetables and bread sticks for dipping

Mold an 18-inch square of heavy-duty aluminum foil over a large can or other object that will provide a saucapan shape. Remove foil and crimp down edges to make a rim. Combine cheese, wine, egg and olives in the foil-made saucapan and cook, stirring, with a wooden spoon, about 20 minutes, or until cheese melts and ingredients are blended. Use assorted vegetables and bread sticks for dipping, 6 servings.

Tomato Star Salads

1/2 pound bacon, cut in 1-inch pieces
1 cup uncooked elbow macaroni
1 cup diced celery
3/4 cup mayonnaise

1/2 cup sweet pickle relish
1/2 cup chopped onion
8 tomatoes
Salt

Pan-fry bacon until crisp and remove to absorb pan. Cook macaroni in boiling salted water according to package directions; drain thoroughly. Add celery, mayonnaise, pickle relish, onion and half of bacon to macaroni and mix thoroughly. Chill thoroughly. Before serving, cut each tomato into 4 to 5 wedges, leaving wedges attached at base (stem end) of tomato; spread wedges apart and sprinkle cut surfaces of tomatoes with salt. Place 1/2 cup of macaroni mixture in center of each tomato. Sprinkle remaining half of bacon over macaroni, 6 servings.

Stuffed Summer Pears

6 medium-size firm, ripe Bartlett pears
1/4 cup butter or margarine, softened
2 tablespoons brown sugar

2 tablespoons chopped nuts
2 tablespoons raisins
1/4 teaspoon cinnamon
6 teaspoons water

3 to 6 pork blade steaks, cut 3/4 to 1 inch thick
1 can (8 ounces) crushed pineapple in heavy syrup
1 medium onion, chopped

1/2 cup soy sauce
1/4 cup salad oil
3 tablespoons corn syrup
1 teaspoon ground ginger

Drain pineapple, reserve syrup and combine with onion, soy sauce, oil, corn syrup and ginger in small saucapan; cook 10 minutes, stirring to blend. Cool. Refrigerate pineapple. Place pork steaks in a flat utility dish and pour marinade over them; cover and refrigerate 4 to 6 hours or overnight. Remove steaks and place on grill over ash-covered coals so surface of meat is 4 to 5 inches from heat; reserve marinade. Broil steaks at low to moderate temperature, turning and brushing with marinade occasionally, 30 to 40 minutes or until well done. Sprinkle reserved crushed pineapple over steaks last 5 minutes of cooking; time to 45 to 60 seconds.

Pare upper half of pears, core leaving a small plug in bottom end. Trim bottoms so pears will stand upright; place each on a square of heavy-duty aluminum foil large enough to permit adequate wrapping. Combine butter or margarine, brown sugar, nuts, raisins and cinnamon; stuff each pear. Pour 1 teaspoon water over each pear. Bring 4 corners of foil up together in a pyramidal shape. Fold the openings together loosely to allow for heat circulation and expansion. Seal by folding over ends and pressing to package. Grill under a broiler over ash-covered coals for 15 to 20 minutes or until pears are heated through, 6 servings.

Your neighbor's kitchen

By Betty Ryder

During my recent visit to Toronto, Canada, I had a chance to talk with Fred Reindl, executive chef of Four Seasons Hotel.

The Four Seasons Hotels took over the Hyatt Regency (opened since March 1972) on May 1, and it is now called the Four Seasons Hotel.

It is located in Toronto's fashionable Yorkville shopping district on Avenue Road, just steps from Bloor Street.

Fred, the recipient of numerous awards, is a native of Mannheim, Germany. He apprenticed in Heidelberg and later graduated with top honors from the trade school at Bad-Oberkingen.

Fred worked in several leading European hotels in Switzerland and Holland before emigrating to Canada. He had held posts at the Lord Simcoe, Westbury Hotel, Lambton Golf Club and the Walker House Hotel, as well as a sojourn in Mid-Ocean Club in Bermuda, where he created special dishes for world celebrities.

At the Four Seasons Hotel, Fred supervises and controls food preparation for "Truffles," the hotel's gourmet dining room; the "Odyssey," the rooftop dinner-dancing nightclub; and "The Grill," a popular restaurant. Fred also supervises the preparation of menus and cost control.

At the 1976 Chicago Culinary Arts Salon, Fred's team returned with seven Gold Medals and a special award for excellence in ice carvings.

As a member of the central team representing Canada at the World Culinary Olympics 1976 in Frankfurt, Germany, Fred and his group won the Grand Gold Medal, and the Prize of Honor.

The Toronto Chapter of the Ecocofier Club honored him with an award of appreciation of his efforts at the Olympics.

At the Societe Philanthropique Culinary Arts Exhibition in New York in 1976, his team earned four Gold Medals.

While dining at "Truffles" as the guest of Ibrahim Fahmy, manager, we had an opportunity to sample some of Fred's culinary accomplishments.

Fred has introduced La Nouvelle Cuisine, an exciting new style of dining in "Truffles."

La Nouvelle Cuisine is the new and different way of preparation and presentation of the French classics. Creative emphasis is placed on colour, textures and plate arrangements, using only the freshest of seasonal seafoods, meats, vegetables and fruits.

La Nouvelle Cuisine eliminates all starches and heavy sauces and garnishes. Instead of using butter and flour to prepare sauces, sauces are prepared by reduction of the natural liquids of the food products. Desserts are a presentation of fresh imported fruits with yogurt and sauces of their natural sugars.

With La Nouvelle Cuisine, one can continue to dine in the style of Haute Cuisine without worrying about calories and carbohydrates, as each entree is a "light" meal.

For example, we dined on fiddlehead and watercress salad, cream of avocado soup, poached salmon with dill sauce, and tomatoes filled with tiny cucumbers.

"The cream of avocado soup is very easy to make. It is rich so it usually served in small portions," Fred said.

Here's his recipe:

Cream of Avocado Soup
1 ripe avocado, Peel, avocado remove pit and mash avocado with 35 percent cream. Two avocados with 35 percent cream yields 3 cups of soup.

Add avocado and cream and blend in blender until smooth, add tace of white wine, salt and pepper, and a dash of Tabasco sauce. If too thick, add little more cream to desired consistency. Serve cold topped with crushed walnuts.

Since this is very rich, Fred served it in demitasse cups.

Another special treat Fred created was tomatoes filled with cucumbers.

"This is another easy dish," he said. "You take English cucumbers (tiny ones) cut into segments, then half again length-wise. With a knife, shape them into little cones. Soak the cucumbers in olive oil, a trace of white wine and crushed saffron. Then simmer, like in Chinese cooking, till they are just aldente — in and out of the pan quickly. Peel the tomato, fill with cucumbers, and reheat in oven before serving.

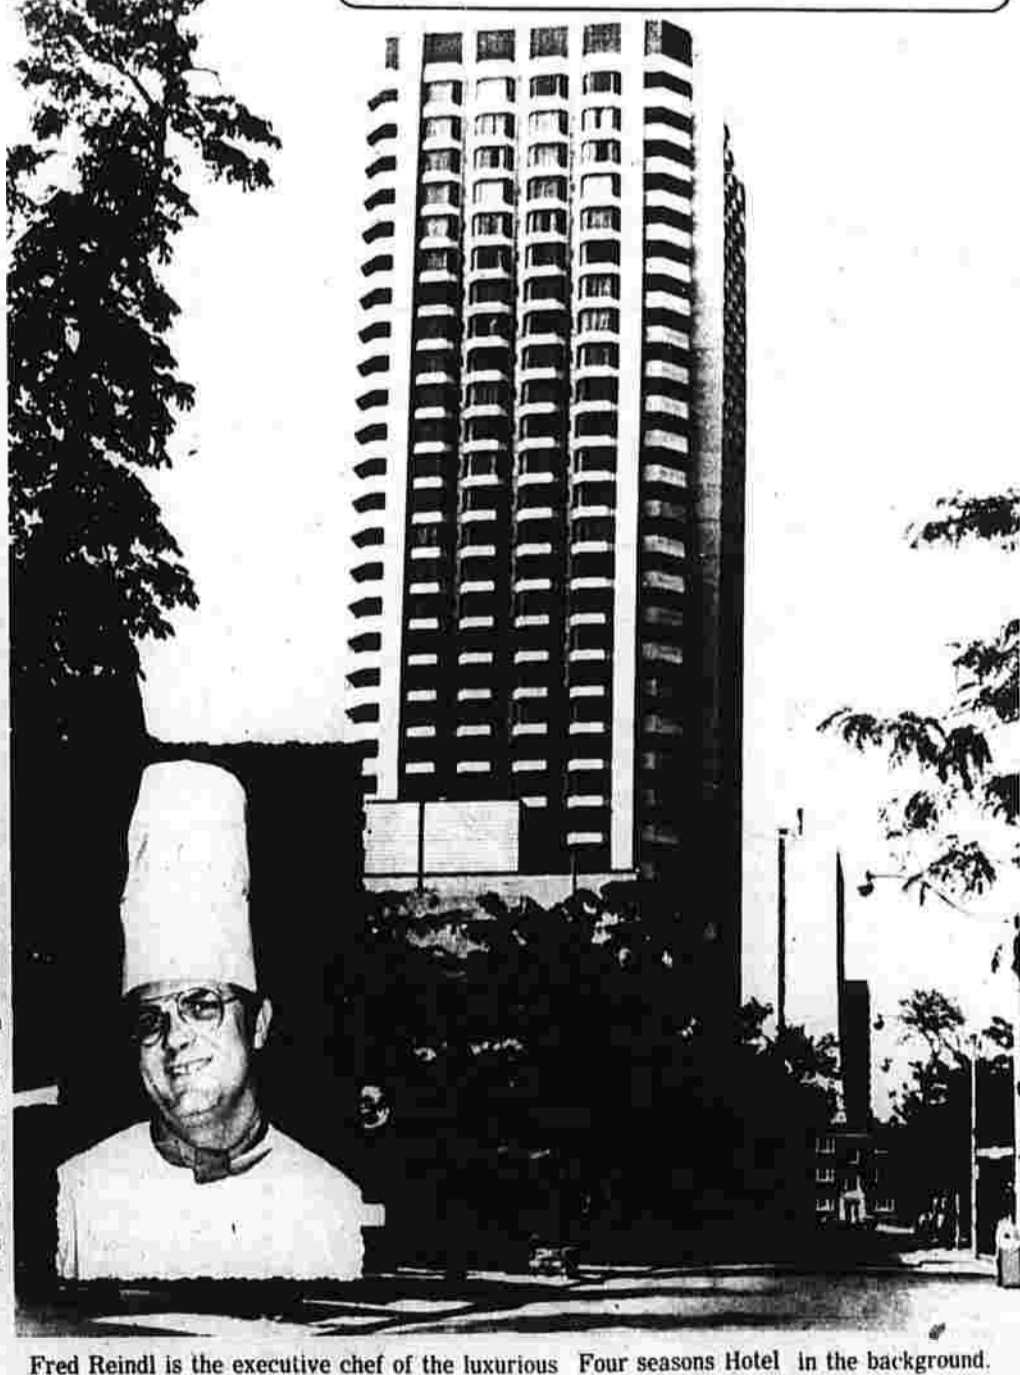

Discussing the salad which was served, Fred said, "The fiddleheads (small unopened fern) are native to Canada. They only have about one month harvest and are often found in the woods, under shaded trees. The Indians used them in great quantities. I searched for several miles in the suburbs here, and only located one patch so far. They make a delicious salad, resembling spinach in color and texture."

Fiddleheads are sometimes available at supermarkets in the frozen food section and are considered a delicacy.

Topping off our dinner was Brie cheese, a soft, white cheese imported from France, and plump green grapes.

I'll be passing more of Fred's recipes in this week's ahead so you may add them to your file.

Frank's sells Jesso label

Frank Tornaquidici, president of Frank's Supermarkets, has announced that Frank's will carry a new variety of products with the Jesso label. While other supermarkets have promoted introduction of generic name products, Frank's has decided instead to offer a label which has passed years of taste and quality testing and has gained customer approval, Tornaquidici said. "I don't believe the shopper will be pleased with the inconsistency found in generic products," Tornaquidici said. "Buying Jesso will give the customer a known name, with more consistent quality. And she'll know for sure what is in the can."

SBM interest rates up

The Savings Bank of Manchester has implemented changes in its Individual Retirement Accounts plan which will enable customers to earn higher interest than ever before. Customers can now earn 8 percent interest on eight-year certificates of deposit giving them an effective annual yield of 8.45 percent. "In addition to the substantial increase in the interest rate, we have made other changes which make these accounts even more appealing to our customers," Raymond Tucker, IRA & Keogh manager of the Savings Bank of Manchester, said. "We will now issue passbooks to customers with Individual Retirement Accounts. These passbooks will immediately provide customers with their IRA's current status and will make depositing much easier for them," he said. In the past, customers were supplied periodic statements showing the status of their accounts.

Stamp on photography first 15-cent commem

By RUSS MacKENDRICK This photography stamp appeared June 26 at Las Vegas. It is the first 1978 commemorative stamp with a 15-cent face value. The first day ceremonies were slated to coincide with the annual convention of the Professional Photographers of America Inc. at Vegas. The design was conceived by a New York photographer, Ben Somoroff. We see a view camera, lens, adapter ring, a monstrous studio light bulb, and a snapshot album. The stamp will probably look better in its true colors of yellow, red, blue, gray and black. The philately for this last month was so hectic that a recap is in order. June 3 - A 15-cent stamped envelope had its first day at Williamsburg, Pennsylvania with no fanfare. The embossed area shows Uncle Sam's hat in red and white. The envelope comes in sizes of 6 1/2 and 10 inches - plain and with windows. To get an FDC write the "Uncle Sam Envelope," Postmaster, Williamsburg, PA 16663, and enclose the no-bargain price of 18 cents. They will send the smaller one unless the number 10 is requested. Also enclose a similar label with your address. The order must be postmarked on or before July 10.

June 16 - A 15-cent Oliver Wendell Holmes stamp in coil form and booklet was issued quietly in Boston. This is the same design as on Scott 1288 in the Prominent Americans definitive series. For an FDC "Oliver Wendell Holmes" stamp, Postmaster, Boston, MA 02109. Specify whether a stamp from coil or booklet is wanted. If booklet, you have to take the whole pane of 8 stamps. The last day is July 14. June 18 - The 10-cent John Hancock postal card was released at his hometown of Quincy, Mass. on this date. You will remember the no-price card that came out May 19. Both versions may be ordered as FDCs by addressing "John Hancock Card," Postmaster, Quincy, MA 02169. The last day is July 21.

The 'stop, talk and walk' policeman: East Hartford merchants wanted it

By CHRIS BLAKE Herald Reporter EAST HARTFORD - "The idea is to provide contact between the officer and the pedestrian public and the business community. There are those who feel that we may have lost touch with the days of the beat man." That's how Police Chief Clarence A. Drumm explained the police department's new system designed to put policemen back on foot patrols during selected hours during the day. The system, called "stop, talk and walk," was put into effect about six weeks ago on a section of Burnside Avenue and on two sections of Main Street. Police are being placed mainly in commercial and business areas of the two streets. Several merchants brought up the idea to Drumm and he responded by ordering the new system into effect. Gordon Elliot, owner of Elliot's Gun Shop on 514 Burnside Ave., said the system may offer a disadvantage. "It would be easy for someone with a criminal intent to pinpoint the exact location of an officer at a certain time because the officer is visible," Elliot said. "I feel that if it's in addition to a cruiser patrolling the area, it's one thing. But if it's just a stop, talk and walk, it's another thing," he said. Elliot said his store has not been burglarized. The store's alarm system, which is an infra-red system sensitive to body heat as well as movement, is hooked up to the police station. Elliot also said he has installed "the latest in protection equipment," at his store. A Burnside Avenue pharmacist who refused to be named said, "I just feel it's better to have someone out there. The people seem to be happy about it, but whether or not it's going to be a success, I don't know." "It's going to stop some of the incidents of shoplifting," he added. Lewis B. Nikita, a pharmacist and part-owner of the Burnside Drug Store on the 700-block, said the foot patrolman has added his store. "It's stopped the crowd that used to congregate around the building," Nikita said. "We had a problem for quite a while with that, especially around the time East Hartford High School was in session." "We've had no problems with vandalism in the past nine months and it's a large measure to police protection," Savage said. "We guessed the police department for the fact that they have heeded to the requests of the citizens and for listening to the problems and coming up with a solution that we hope will solve the rash of situations that have occurred in the past," Savage said. branch of the East Hartford Citizens Action Group. Since its formation last August, the group has been concerned about getting policemen back on foot patrols. These physicians are also located in Willimantic, and plan to work in Hebron on a part-time basis, with plans to expand services with the addition of another physician by the end of the year to cover full time. At this time, the services of a full time nurse will be available. Instrumental in recruiting these physicians have been the Community Health Agency, and the Hebron Health Agency. The Rev. Stanley Eaton of the Community Health Agency said that the search for local physicians has been going on for at least the past 2 1/2 years. While Sean Leonard was the third top fund-raiser, they received a record and a shirt, respectively, for their efforts. Among the programs slated are dance run by dance teacher Richard Risley, arts and crafts headed by recreation director Lionel Jean and his wife Sally, and tennis lessons. Programs already in progress will continue, including swimming, which has been funded by a special council appropriation. Scheduled athletic programs include girls' softball, boys' and girls' basketball. Some programs may have to be cut, commissioners said. The council severely cuts the recreation budget. The council had raised Jean's salary as a part-time director from $1,500 to $4,000 and to date has not made a cut in that appropriation. Last month the commission and the council squabbled over whether the director should have regular hours scheduled, with the recreation commission aping for flexibility. East Hartford deadlocks Manchester for Zone lead

By LENAUSTER
Herald Sportswriter
Stringing together four-run frames, East Hartford managed to withstand a last inning rally to top previously unbeaten Zone Eight leader Manchester, 8-7, in baseball action last night at Eagle Field. The win draws East Hartford to second place, one game ahead of the Zone Eight leader, Manchester, which is 8-5 overall, East Hartford 11-5. Manchester took a 2-0 lead in the first and held the upper hand until the fourth when the Post 77 visitors knocked it against unexpected starter

Ken Brasas. Pete Kiro was scheduled to start for Manchester but quit the team Thursday. A wild pitch and Jeff Scanlon single produced the tying markers with a pair of fifth-inning tallies giving East Hartford a 4-2 advantage. Tony DeAngelis scooped home from second base on an infield grounder for the first marker in the fifth. Mike Furlong, who seems to be in the middle of everything whenever the two clubs clash, sent a roller down the third base line. Third sacker Mike Freiheit pegged to first for the out but DeAngelis turning all the way, dove home before catcher Mike Linsenbigher could recover to take Don Martin's throw.

Rick Lewis and DeAngelis each drove in a run in the sixth and East Hartford plated two decisive runs in the seventh. Carl Guzzardi single and Phil Shiner doubled. Jeff Scanlon's sacrifice fly plated Guzzardi and when Martin tipped the toss from right fielder Dave Blake into the Manchester dugout, Shiner was awarded home. Manchester, which will be the underdog in the Zone Eight chase because of apparent lack of pitching, comes to Manchester on a hot streak. Pinch hitter Eric Gauruder doubled with Mike Gilbertto running for him. The latter stayed at third as Ray Mazzetta errored on error. Gilha, who had two hits early, was inactivated.

Manically walked to load the bases in the fifth. That strategy paid off as Gary McGowan fanned Martin. Martin came through in the final stanza with an RBI single followed by a Frank Livingston's fielder's choice. Linsenbigher singled in a run and both runners moved up on a wild pitch.

Brasas bounced a grounds rule double over the right field fence bringing Manchester to within a run and chasing McGowan from the hill. Left-hander Jeff Huot took over the chutes and he earned a save by striking out pinch batter Dave Bolivar.

Gilha and Livingston each had two hits for Manchester while Guzzardi had a pair of blows along with three runs scored for the winners. McGowan got credit for the win and Brasas was charged with the loss.

CHICAGO (UPI)Larry Doby, the first black player to break the color barrier in the American League, was named manager of the Chicago White Sox Friday succeeding Bob Lemon.

Doby became the second black ever to manage a major league team. Frank Robinson was the first when he managed the Cleveland Indians.

Lennon was fired after 11 years as manager of the White Sox following the 1976 season.

Veck also announced Bruce Dal Canton, 36, will succeed Stan Williams as the team's pitching coach. Dal Canton has been a player-coach for the Sox Triple A farm club in Des Moines, Iowa. He played 10 years in the major leagues, with Pittsburgh, Kansas City, Atlanta and the White Sox.

Sox President Bill Veck said Doby, whom he signed when he was president of the Indians in 1947, would take over the job during Friday night's Sox game at Minnesota.

UPI selected Lemon as American League manager of the year after the 1977 season, when he guided the Sox to the American League Championship Series.

Doby coached for Cleveland in 1974, then returned as a coach for Montreal in 1976. In 1977, he joined the White Sox as a coach and batting instructor.

Schedule battle rages

owner George Steinbrenner and American League president Lee MacPhail.

Steinbrenner had originally blamed the American League schedulers for the 24-hour odyssey that took the Yankees on a trip from New York to Milwaukee and back July 27-28 with the exhausted players staggering into both cities at about 5 a.m. ed. The odyssey followed a June 26 12-inning game Tuesday in the Bronx that ended at 12:15 a.m. ed. Tuesday.

MacPhail immediately countered with a shot from his Park Avenue office that landed in the middle of Steinbrenner's Bronx office and placed the blame on - you guessed it - Steinbrenner or one of his assistants.

Jim Spence, vice president of ABC-TV who sensed early Thursday that he was being made the scapegoat of the situation, fired a new blast directed at both Yankee principal MacPhail's statements said the Yankees and Brewers made the change themselves after the original schedule made up by the league office gave the Yankees June 28 and 29 off.

Steinbrenner came right back with his shotgun blasting in all directions.

"Regarding Mr. MacPhail's statement that the Yankees were actually the culprit in this matter because they approved everything, let me set him straight," said Steinbrenner. "Perhaps someone in my organization went along with the request from the league office because in the past meetings with the American League office, every time we raised points which concerned us about the schedule, they got into consideration and even less remedy."

Steinbrenner also implied that television scheduling may have had something to do with the switch.

"That did it as far as Spence was concerned. Letting go from his air conditioned office, the Avenue of the Americas in mid-town Manhattan, Spence countered with the following rocket:

"ABC makes its Monday night baseball game selection strictly from games made available to it by major league baseball," Spence said. "At no time did ABC pressure anyone in baseball to change a game to June 28."

"That is a matter that I have never discussed with anyone at ABC."

Certain facts are known, however. The Yankees beat the Red Sox 6-4 in 14 innings in the Monday night game. The Yankees lost two games to the Brewers in Milwaukee Tuesday night. The Yankees are in third place 10 games behind the first-place Red Sox in the AL's Eastern Division. The Yankees look like they're up a creek without a paddle.

And nobody has yet blamed Billy Martin for changing the American League schedule.

Baldwin said. "What's happened over the last couple of days is a significant fact for the sport of hockey that's what I love above all else."

"We didn't accomplish a whole lot but we did break down a lot of barriers," he said.

Both men agreed the obstacles standing between the merger of four WHA teams into the older league could have been overcome had there been more time. The WHA will make sure there is more time next spring.

Too many teams from both leagues lost money last year and most folks with a lot of money don't like to

Vilas first big name to become upset victim

WIMBLEDON, England (UPI) - Holland's unseeded top Okker swept through fourth seed Guillermo Vilas in straight sets, 6-3, 6-4, 6-2, today in the biggest upset so far in the $510,000 Wimbledon tennis championships.

While defending champion Bjorn Borg was having an easy passage on Tuesday, Okker, the 19-year-old champion lost a serve game in each of the first two sets.

McNamara scrambled after everything and rallied well when he was down. But his ground game deserted him and Borg had much too much all-over power.

Okker fought back to break Vilas in the ninth. Vilas blew two advantage points in the game, then threatened to repeat Thursday's total washout of play kept Friday's crowds low. Some 30,000 were in the stands an hour after play began.

All the women seeds made it safely through the second round, led Friday by No. 2 Martina Navratilova, who beat Australian Pam Whytcross in a set of left-handers, 7-5, 6-1.

Defending champion and No. 4 seed Virginia Wade beat Lesley Bowrey, 6-1, 6-4. No. 5 Billie Jean King, saying she likes her chances to win a seventh singles title here, beat Marie Delorme, 6-3, 6-2. No. 6 Betty Stove defeated Stacey Margolin, 6-1, 6-3, and, No. 10 Kerry Reid beat Mariana Simionescu, 6-1, 6-0.

Also, No. 12 Virginia Ruzici beat Laura Baumgartner, 6-1, 6-4. No. 14 Sue Barker beat Tanya Harford, 6-1, 6-3. No. 13 Regina Marsikova beat Lesley Hunt, 5-8, 4-6, 6-3. And No. 16 Maria Redondo beat Sharon Walsh, 6-2, 6-2.

In what was probably the most dramatic match of the day, Billy Martin beat his doubles partner and close friend Erik Van Dillen, 5-7, 7-5, 6-8, 6-4, 7-5. The third round match was held up for almost an hour at 5:55 in the final set.

After before the championship is even a week old, England lost its final Cox fell to Tom Gorman, 4-6, 8-6, 8-6, 7-5.

Champions in the Lipton Ice Tea Mixed Doubles tournament, held in conjunction with National Tennis Week and Tennis Magazine, last weekend at Manchester Racquet Club are Monica Murphy and David Shinn.

Murphy and Shinn, both students at East Catholic High, defeated Suzy Young and Bill Frantz in the finals 6-1, 7-8. The Murphy-Shinn tandem topped Mike Lucke and Andy Picard in the semifinals 5-8, 6-3, 7-6.

The Manchester Racquet Club will host the next round, the state finals, on July 22-23.

What may have spurred the talks this time was when the WHA asked its eight member teams to come up with $300,000 apiece to show their intentions of operating next season and seven of them did it.

"You guys have been saying for six years the WHA was going to fold and you've been wrong every time. If I happen, the WHA clubs, however, I wouldn't have it very long," Baldwin said.

The talks aimed at putting Edmonton, New England, Quebec and Winnipeg in the NHL as expansion teams lasted three days, indicating both sides wanted the merger to happen. The WHA clubs, however, came away feeling the older league

Five all-star berths open

NEW YORK (UPI) - With just three days to go before the July 2 voting deadline, American League All-Star starting spots at second base, shortstop and the outfield are still undecided, according to the fourth weekly tabulations released Friday by Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn.

The tentative All infielder lineup for the All-Star game scheduled for July 11 at San Diego Stadium includes the Minnesota Twins' Rod Carew at first base, Willie Randolph of the New York Yankees at second, shortstop Fred Patek and third baseman George Brett of the Kansas City Royals, and catcher Carlton Fisk of the Boston Red Sox.

Outfielder Jim Rice, Boston, 2,212,200; Fred Lynn, Boston, 2,121,290; Carl Yastrzemski, Boston, 1,724,567; Rick Barry, Oakland, 1,657,541; Bobby Bonds, Oakland, 1,657,541; Tony Gwynn, San Diego, 1,657,541; Steve Garvey, Los Angeles, 1,657,541; Tom Seaver, New York, 1,657,541; Tom Seaver, New York, 1,657,541.

Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn said the league will announce the final All-Star lineup on July 10.

"I don't know if any players are involved or if there is going to be a change of personnel. I'll just have to wait and see," Auerbach said.

Auerbach's contract expires Aug. 1, and he may be headed for the New York Knicks or retirement, rather Suddenly, along the riverbank, a small commotion... the dorsal fin and upper quarter of a tail break the surface as a trout chases another, starting to pop to the surface... at the head of a pool, where a fast glide starts to slow down and form the arch, a small taking trout, then another, and another... the trout have begun to take some of the mayflies hatching and floating down to the water's edge.

Two fishermen enter the water, and where a small island separates the river momentarily, they part company, both casting upstream, one going to the right, one to the left. An hour and a half later, they meet at the same island having worked their way back down the river. Slender fish disappear in the clear water. They compare notes, raising their voices slightly to compete with the sound of the rushing water. The tally... 14 trout caught and released (11 browns and 3 rainbows)... all between 8" and 14" with the majority between 10" and 12"... one trout hooked and played for 10 minutes... lost because of too much slack... questimated weight... 3 pounds... species... brown trout.

At this attempt at a word picture sounds like a description of the Ausable in Michigan, the upper reaches of the Snake River, the Saco in Northern New Hampshire... it isn't. It's one of Connecticut's own, not more than 20 minutes from here. The Willimantic River at the Fly Fishing Only Kill area of the upper "Willie."

You don't have to travel 800 or 8,000 miles to enjoy some really wonderful fishing. You can have it right here at home. The thanks for this go to the State of Connecticut and the Connecticut Fly-Fishers Association under past president Ken Parkany, a Manchester man and a dedicated fly fisherman.

The CFFA is continuing to help maintain this river with stockings of their own, streamside policing, maintaining trails and a general stream and river improvements. It's an on-going thing with them. I take my hat off to this organization and the state people making giving a place to enjoy some of the finest fly fishing in the Northeast.

Sundberg acclaimed in Texas as the best

By MILT RICHMAN
NEW YORK (UPI) - Everywhere I went in Texas, from the smallest whistle stops to the big cities, the one name everybody kept throwing at me was Jim Sundberg.

He was the best catcher in the American League, possibly in all baseball, the people in Texas informed me. Carlton Fisk and Thurman Munson got all the publicity but Sundberg was better than both. It would be a mortal sin, an absolute disgrace, if he didn't make the All-Star team.

All those fired-up fans in Texas fans can relax. Their man has made the team.

The complete makeup of the American League squad hasn't been announced yet because voting is still going on, but barring injury between now and then, Jim Sundberg will be in San Diego for the All-Star game July 11.

For the second time in the American League balloting show Fisk far out in front among the catchers with Sundberg, who had been third, climbing over Munson into second place.

As manager of the American League, Billy Martin picks the rest of the squad after the fans vote for the starting players for each position except the pitchers. What generally happens before all All-Star game is that the manager of the team has a talk with the league president regarding the rest of the squad. The manager doesn't have to select the runnerup in the voting at each position. He can choose anyone he wants. In this particular case, Martin might be considered partial to one of his own, meaning Munson, who catches for him every day, but the Yankees manager and league President Lee MacPhail met earlier this week, even before seeing the latest voting figures, and both agreed Sundberg belonged on the team no matter how the final balloting came out.

It'll be the second time he has been chosen although he didn't play the last time he was selected four years ago.

Martin, who had him when he managed the Rangers, is one of Sundberg's biggest boosters. Bigger, though, than his present manager, Billy Hunter, who calls him flat out the best catcher in the league.

"He's my Brooks Robinson," says Hunter, who has 14 seasons marveling over Robinson's performance while coaching for the Orioles. "You name it, Sundberg does it. Nobody catches or plays any better than him. And look what he's hitting! Only (Red) Carew is out-hitting him!"

For some reason, Sundberg has never received a whole lot of publicity. He doesn't generate it the way a Reggie Jackson or Pete Rose does. He's not nearly so outgoing as they are. He's a quiet, steady, consistent performer who can do as well as either of them. He can play.

The lack of recognition doesn't bother him, Sundberg claims. "I don't feel I'm being slighted," he says. "I feel I'm being recognized. It takes time. Look at Ted Simmons. He's done quite a bit, but he doesn't seem as well known as Johnny Bench, Carlton Fisk or Thurman Munson. Defensively, I think I was recognized in 1976 when I won the Gold Glove award and last year as well when I won it again. The only question with some people was my hitting. I think I'm proving I can do that, too. Over the last seven months, I've been hitting better than 300."

The big thing Sundberg is striving for most is consistency. "My ambition," he says, "is to be the best, and to be the best you have to be consistent. I'd say Thurman has been the most consistent catcher in the league over the past three years. Carlton has had some good years and it hasn't come now, but for consistency I'd pick Munson. If you're talking about power, then I'd have to say Bench is still No. 1 among the catchers."

Even if he wasn't picked to the All-Star team this year, it wouldn't have broken Sundberg's heart. The All-Star game is only third on my list of priorities," he says. "Being consistent and winning the pennant are much more important. If I was in a game to be on a pennant winner."

Joe Cohen said it was likely the swap would be approved by the league. Cohen said he had not heard from Levin, who announced the tentative agreement in Los Angeles. "We've been left in the dark pretty much all along. We're waiting to see what develops like everything else," Cohen said. "It's hard for us to react. We don't know if players are going to be involved or what. I don't know. It's a matter of fact, I'm fed up and I'm fed up with the way the board of governors, and there is nothing, unsurprisingly, to them. The odds are very good that it will be approved, but then again, we won't know until it happens."

Cohen said he had not heard from Levin, who announced the tentative agreement in Los Angeles. "We've been left in the dark pretty much all along. We're waiting to see what develops like everything else," Cohen said. "It's hard for us to react. We don't know if players are going to be involved or what. I don't know. It's a matter of fact, I'm fed up and I'm fed up with the way the board of governors, and there is nothing, unsurprisingly, to them. The odds are very good that it will be approved, but then again, we won't know until it happens."

Wait and see attitude adopted by Auerbach

BOSTON (UPI) - Red Auerbach, who molded the Boston Celtics dynasty, says he will expect to await and see attitude before deciding if he will leave the team after nearly three decades as coach and general manager.

Auerbach Thursday said he would want to discuss details of the proposed franchise swap which would install John Y. Brown as the new Celtic owner. Brown's Buffalo Braves would be sold to current Celtic owner Irvin Levin who would then transfer that team to San Diego. "I've got to sit down with him (Brown) and talk and see what his attitude is," Auerbach said. "I don't know if any players are involved or if there is going to be a change of personnel. I'll just have to wait and see," Auerbach said.

Auerbach's contract expires Aug. 1, and he may be headed for the New York Knicks or retirement, rather

China matches Russia in nuclear advances

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) - American scientists permitted to visit secret laboratories in China for the first time have learned the Chinese are farther along in nuclear research than previously believed, according to the former chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission. Dr. Glenn T. Seaborg, 66, head of the old AEC under three presidents, said in a UPI interview Thursday China has caught up with the Russians in some theoretical nuclear research and is on schedule in matching U.S. nuclear development by the year 2000. "I was surprised by what they knew," said Seaborg, recently back from 3 1/2 weeks in China over his U.S. citizenship. "We'll be moving, too. We're a moving target, but they could come close. It's a national priority." Seaborg, winner of the Nobel Prize in chemistry for the discovery of plutonium during World War II, said he and his group were the first Western scientists allowed into the Institute of Modern Physics in Lanzhou, where basic research in nuclear physics is being conducted. Scientists at Lanzhou are building a modern heavy ion accelerator, basically the same as one used by the Soviet Union. "I'm somewhat surprised because the research is working doubly hard at present to make up for time lost during China's 'Gang of Four' political turmoil following the death of Chairman Mao Tse Tung in 1976 when graduate schools and advanced scientific training institutes were closed, Seaborg said. Mountain village braces for appearance by Nixon HYDEN, Ky. (UPI) - Richard Nixon will be welcomed to this mountain village in something of a presidential style - a 21-gun salute and ruffles and flourishes - when he arrives Saturday to dedicate a new recreation center named in his honor. County Judge C. Allen Muncy, who arranged the naming of the $2.5 million facility for the former president, said he also alerted the Army Band to play "Hail to the Chief," but the Pentagon vetoed the idea. As far as Muncy and many other southeastern Kentuckians are concerned, the Fourth of July weekend, the former president deserves the honors they will accord him. Nixon will be making his first public speaking appearance since he left office on Aug. 9, 1974. He was scheduled to arrive from San Clemente, Calif., accompanied by aides and Secret Service agents. The dedication of the center, built partially with revenue sharing funds under the Nixon program as far away as Hawaii, says, "Thank you for what you're doing." Muncy, a lifelong Republican, said, "This is not a political event. It's a homecoming." He also said the five-member court in this predominantly Republican county voted unanimously to name the center "Richard M. Nixon." He would be greeted by a name something after a Democrat in Leslie County."

Reporter gets subpoena in Killian-Grasso case

NEW BRITAIN (UPI) - Attorneys for Lt. Gov. Robert K. Killian have subpoenaed an Associated Press reporter in an apparent attempt to prove New Britain voters were deceived by a newspaper advertising campaign preceding the city's May 2 Democratic primary. The AP Friday mounted a legal drive to have the subpoena thrown out of court. "We are resisting the subpoena," AP Connecticut Bureau Chief Ambrose B. Dudley said. It was the only comment the news service would make. Killian has filed a lawsuit in New Britain Superior Court that accuses supporters of Gov. Ella T. Grasso's re-election bid of using a misleading newspaper advertising campaign to win the May 2 primary. Mrs. Grasso's state of 44 delegates to the July Democratic convention won over Killian's state by a more than 2-1 margin. Killian wants the primary results thrown out. James F. Smith Jr. of the Associated Press wrote a story just before the May 2 primary that erroneously listed New Britain at

Massacre probe expands

BOSTON (UPI) - The international law enforcement agency Interpol Friday was asked to provide information about some of the apparent trans-Atlantic money dealings of one victim in a gangland style massacre of five men in a Boston disco-restaurant. The money was reportedly borrowed from the U.S. Small Business Administration and was to be used as a down payment for property in downtown Boston which was owned by Blackfriars' Pub where the shotgun slaughter took place. Investigators said Solomonte returned from Switzerland where he had been arrested for using another person's credit card. According to Boston homicide detectives Solomonte apparently had written permission from the owner to use the credit card, but that there had been a mixup and he was detained by Swiss authorities. Investigators are curious as to why

HMO program in disarray

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Health maintenance organizations, which gave early promise of becoming a popular means of holding down health care costs, are not living up to those expectations, a federal official said Friday. HEW Undersecretary Hale Champion said the HMOs, as the organizations are commonly called, offer many advantages. But in testimony to a House health subcommittee, Champion said federal efforts to promote the cost-cutting system have been lagging. "No other program held such promise or was in such disarray," Champion told the panel, headed by Rep. Paul Rogers, D-Fla., in a review of conditions he found when he took office. HMOs provide a pay-in-advance, subscription approach to health care, in contrast to the traditional system of paying a separate fee for each visit to the doctor. One advantage of the system, Champion said, is that it allows the HMO to spread the cost of care over a large number of people. But in testimony to a House health subcommittee, Champion said federal efforts to promote the cost-cutting system have been lagging. "No other program held such promise or was in such disarray," Champion told the panel, headed by Rep. Paul Rogers, D-Fla., in a

WARTIME HERO

Sam Elliott stars as Sam Damon, a Nebraska farmboy who volunteers for Army service during WW I and excels as a combat soldier, winning a battlefield commission. In Part I of "NBC's Best Seller: Once An Eagle," on "The Big Event," Sunday, July 2.

When Sam leaves for France with the American forces, he has already risen to the rank of sergeant. When his leadership qualities are tested in battle he receives a commission from Maj. Caldwell (Glenn Ford), and soon afterward he meets another officer — Lt. Massengale (Cliff Potts) — his nemesis.

(Stations reserve the right to make last minute changes.)

MONDAY

Damon's excellence as a soldier in World War I not only encourages him to make a career of the military but finds him a lifelong enemy of arrogant Courtney Massengale. (Part 1 of 3) (R)

Jackie B. ignored Jackie O.

A lot of movie viewers and critics alike will be muttering "Tell it to the Marines," but here's what Jackie Bisset told US magazine about her oh-so Jackie O performance in "The Last Tycoon." "I don't play Mrs. Onassis and never in my mind was I playing her while making the film."

The actors and producers claim it's just another love story — that it bears no resemblance to reality. They say the portrayal of a wealthy, beautiful wife of a President who sees her husband assassinated and then marries a Greek shipping tycoon is just another romance. Still, they deny, deny, deny.

"I think this picture is a fairy tale," says co-star Anthony Quinn. "It's a beautiful fairy tale about two of the most glamorous people in the world who fall in love."

And Bisset concluded: "It was a good part, quite dignified and nothing to be ashamed of on the exploitation level. My character had tenderness, love, strength and an aura." And got to wear a swell wardrobe, to boot.

Love stories for millions

No explicit sex, no violence and a happy ending. Those are the restrictive rules by which Harlequin Books, the world's largest publisher of romantic fiction, is run. So far it's a motto that's also run their sales into the millions for the past year.

At 26, Pamela Galsworthy is an executive in the company that specializes in "clean" love stories. She could also pose for the cover art on almost any of the pulp romances, or be one of the heroines (her favorite word is "enthusiasm"). Galsworthy is also as determined in defending the romances as any Harlequin heroine would be.

"Men will often express a kind of contempt for 'that love stuff women read.' What gets me is the women who go along with this, without realizing it's just another put-down. Women enjoy fantasizing about love and romance, and that's what novels are — fantasies on paper."

"Women don't call men silly because they read fiction that is based on male fantasies. I mean the kind of adventure or detective novel in which the gun-slinging hero punches and shoots his way through the plot, overcomes every obstacle and always manages to come across three or four absolutely gorgeous women, all of whom are totally — and instantly — available to him. Aren't love fantasies a lot more positive than fantasies about violence and easy-come, easy-go sex?"

Maybe that's why out of 150 authors spinning these sugary tales for Harlequin, not one is a man.

Nancy Drew undrapes!!!

Pamela Sue Martin

While Suzanne Somers pin-up past is catching up with her, Pamela Sue Martin is just getting into the centerfold game.

Somers was recently made to regret a former pin-up when High Society magazine unveiled a six-year-old nude photo she posed for as a struggling actress, which was apparently a little hotter than her current million-selling bathing suit poster.

On the other hand, 26-year-old Pamela Sue Martin, who recently quit her role as ABC's Nancy Drew, is willingly posing for some "tasteful" nude stills in the July issue of Playboy.

BREAKING A TRADITION of 102 years is John Travolta, who will be the first man to grace the cover of McCall's in that magazine's history. The cover story in the July issue is an interview with Helen and Sam Travolta, parents of the disco-dancing teen dream. According to McCall's, they discuss from their home in Englewood, N.J., their baby boy's spectacular rise to stardom through "heart-warming personal anecdotes."

Family affair on Top 40

When Andrew Gold first hit the charts big with "Lonely Boy," a neglected son's lament, people wondered how something like that hit his parents. According to Gold it wasn't too traumatic.

"Well," he explains, "I made sure they knew it wasn't a literal representation." Actually, Gold is more than happy to mention his parents' accomplishments beside his own. His father, Ernest Gold, is a noted film composer, best known for the sweeping theme to "Exodus," while mother, Marni Nixon, is the opera singer who was the real voice for such actresses as Natalie Wood in "West Side Story."

"My father never said anything about the lyrical content of the song," says Gold, "but he would always tell me how he liked the little bridge in the song — da, da da-da — conducting it as he went along."

"My mother, on the other hand, would always go 'Ohh, Andrew!' each time she heard it. They liked it though."

"My sister thought it was weird because the sister in the song is married and has a child; people would come up to her and say 'oh, you got married!' She actually is getting married now, though it has nothing to do with the song."

To keep the record straight, Andrew's next hit was "Thank You for Being a Friend," where instead of lamenting, Gold showed his true upbeat colors. Some might say the song is for his new girlfriend — "Saturday Night Live" star Laraine Newman — but whomever it's about — Andrew Gold isn't a lonely boy anymore. — Rob Patterson

Sex-changes for sale?

Hot-shot lawyer Melvin Belli is working on a very hot subject these days — sex change operations. In an article in the current Journal of the American Medical Association, Belli sets transsexuality as a bona fide medical problem that requires treatment like any other, including sex-change surgery.

But the answer, says Belli, should be neither an absolute right nor a prohibition of surgery. This way society can be protected from sex-change mills that will sell surgery to anyone who will pay the price.

After the blood bath CB entering growth period

By Ink Dipper

The turmoil and marketing confusion resulting from the Federal Communication Commission's actions of two years ago is now history. It was a bloodbath for manufacturers, distributors and retailers of CB units. Forty channels and rigid design requirements, flushing the 23-channel units out of the distribution system, left corporate bodies strewn all over the landscape.

Is CB now dead? Has it rolled back to a few hardcore enthusiasts? Like the hoola hoop, is its time is over, has it been relegated to those who are just plain garrulous and love to yak?

No way.

The figures from the leading manufacturers are beginning to prove it right where it most counts — at the cash register. CBers are putting their money where their mikes are. Most of the major manufacturers are beginning to smell the sweet scent of profits again after a disastrous two years that forced many into bankruptcy or insolvency. The FCC's order on 49 channels forced a disgorgement of 23-channel sets and caused a total disruption in all areas of the business.

E.F. Johnson recently announced it would show a profit in 1978. This is quite a turn-around after a $17 million loss in 1977. Royce, which is a subsidiary of a major company and does not have to show its CB figures broken out, reported to this column it expected CB to do very well this year. Motorola and RCA are not required to show their CB figures either, because CB is only part of a total profit picture. They, too, have indicated they expect to have a reasonably good year in citizens band radio manufacturing.

This all boils down to the "whys" of profits now. The replacement can't be more than four-to-five million units. All the manufacturers are predicting that there will be between six and seven million units sold this year. And they're betting on this with their pocketbooks. Citizens band radio is, therefore, growing at the rate of several million adherents each year.

"We're going to have four or five major manufacturers in the arena," Richard Horner, president of Johnson, predicts. "The units will be better, easier to operate, less static, and more rewarding as an instrument. They are now superior to those we were producing two years ago."

Acknowledging that there will be some imports from Japan, Taiwan and Korea, Horner said, "I think that the fact we are building 4,000 sets a day indicates there is a price stability and that the CB business is showing signs of a return to good health. It is a growing business."

Ross Castrianni, of Joyce, would not offer figures. But he, too, was optimistic about the future.

"Personal radio is going to grow, and it is going to be more meaningful to everyone in the country," he responded to the question about its status. "There are going to be about six to eight million units sold this year. Certainly a percentage of these will be replacements. But the newcomers, entrants into CB, indicate its vitality."

Most manufacturers think of CB as being a business that was born in 1958. Horner considers this a gestation period, with sales averaging about 100,000 per year. He feels that the three-and-a-half years of boom, starting about 1972, introduced the public to CB's great benefits.

The turmoil that ensued had many causes. But the net result, as seen by the experts, is a strong and continuing endorsement of personal radio.
