WASHINGTON (UPI) — The overall increase in food prices is nearly double the rate for other consumer items this year and prices for beef and sugar are running even ahead of that rate. White House inflation counselor Barry Bosworth said today.

But Bosworth said despite gloomy developments immediately ahead for beef and sugar, American consumers can expect lower food prices.

“Fortunately, the rapid rate of food price inflation which we have experienced thus far is not expected to continue and the worst seems behind us,” Bosworth told Congress.

Bosworth said beef prices have soared at an annual rate of 54 percent so far this year to account for most of the inflation in consumer food prices. Food prices have been rising at an annual rate exceeding 17 percent compared with an overall cost-of-living rise of about 10 percent.

“The higher cattle prices (received by farmers) have not yet been fully reflected at the retail level,” Bosworth said. “Hence, further increases in retail beef prices can be expected.”

D.C. subways run again; two cities face strikes

By United Press International
The subways were running again today in Washington and attorneys hoped they had a plan to restore bus service in the nation's capital, but in San Antonio, Texas, police had to protect garbage collectors from wildcat strikers and the chance of a trash collection strike also threatened Detroit.

Besides the municipal strikes, Brauff fight attendants voted 99 percent in favor of a walkout. The Dallas-based company said it still does not anticipate a strike.

More than 8,000 workers in Oregon, Washington and California were idled by a pulp and paper mill strike that began last week.

Guerilla war reaches to Rhodesian capital

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (UPI) — Rhodesia's five-year guerrilla war has finally come to the nation's capital. Police, in an official report issued Monday, said the first fighting between authorities and black guerrillas in the Salisbury area. It began with a black insurgent's attempt to rob the Shangani bar in the black township of Mufakose on the southwestern edge of Salisbury Friday night.

When police arrived, the guerrilla opened fire with an automatic weapon and, after a shootout that heavily damaged the bar, he was seriously wounded and captured. Police said the next morning, police traced “three terrorists” to a house in the Highfield township. “They attacked police with grenades after being shot and were shot and killed,” a police statement said.

Illinois governor moves to avert new prison riot

CHICAGO (UPI) — In an attempt to avert further prison riots in Illinois, Gov. James R. Thompson has put inmates in three state prisons on indefinite lockup, increased guard salaries and approved a guard recruitment program.

Overcrowding and hot weather were blamed for the riot Saturday at the Pontiac prison in which three guards were killed and six injured. Inadequate staffing was cited as one of the reasons for an uprising by 400 inmates three days earlier at Stateville Prison near Joliet. No one was hurt.

Thompson said at a news conference Monday he had ordered the Joliet, Stateville and Pontiac — on indefinite lockup. He said the Joliet Prison was added to the list because of rumors there would be trouble there.

He said other prisons in the state are being monitored hourly by state officials. In order to relieve the overcrowding, Thompson said, the state will “proceed as quickly as we can” with building one of two proposed new prisons. “We will put the majority of the money on (the facility at) Hillsboro.”

A task force report on the Joliet and Stateville prisons shows the major problem is a shortage of guards, Thompson said. Prison officials have to “compete with the Chicago job market” for correctional officers, he said, and guards at Cook County Jail make more money than state prison guards.

He said the salary for a guard trainee will be raised immediately from $766 to $875 per month and a guard's salary will be increased from $876 to $926 per month. Also, the Illinois Department of Corrections will begin a guard recruitment program next week, mainly in the Joliet-Kankakee area.

The governor said he is considering using state police trainees and the Illinois National Guard for “non-inmate contact” work at state prisons so more guards can be used to work with the prisoners.

He said contingency plans also are being drawn up in case of another riot. Thompson said he is exploring the possibility of building modular housing at Stateville, where the older, non-violent prisoners could be transferred. He also plans to speed up the remodeling of a former mental health facility near Lincoln into a correctional center and will look for a site for a pre-release prisoner center in the Chicago area.

Inmates to get reward for saving two guards

ATLANTA (UPI) — Gov. George Busbee plans to reward some prison inmates for saving the lives of two guards in the weekend riot that left three men dead, and he promised the killers would be swiftly prosecuted.

Busbee, an advocate of capital punishment, told reporters Monday night he wants to make sure the men involved in the mutilation murder of guard Dan Harrison and the fatal stabblings of two prisoners — both white — are never again a threat.

He said a group of prisoners — no names were released — had been identified as assailants responsible for the killing and the wounding of guard Frenk Foyke, who was stabbed repeatedly during the Sunday afternoon violence.

Five black prisoners were put in isolation Monday following an investigation of the killings, but Busbee declined to say how many suspects had been linked to the killings. He did say, however, that “we do expect early prosecution of the people involved.”

Busbee praised most of the inmates of two black dormitories where a black guard and a white officer were protected by inmates after Harrison was killed and Foyke was wounded. The two uninjured guards initially had been described by prison authorities as hostages.

“Had it not been for these prisoners, then we would have had further killings of guards, so that's earned time — they've earned some time, good time,” Busbee said.

“But also,” the governor said, “we have some people we've identified who've killed a guard — mutilated him for — we also have some earned time for them.”

“We're going to try and earn everything we can to see that they never injure anybody in society or any guard in the prison.”

Tornadoes and storms continuing in Midwest

By United Press International
Thunderstorms that spawned more than a dozen tornadoes in North Dakota moved into Minnesota early today, bringing along golf ball-size hail and fierce winds.

The National Weather Service said tornadoes were sighted at Crookston and Warren, Minn. No injuries were reported.

In North Dakota, 14 twisters touched down in Walsh County alone. Officials said a machine shed on one farm near Milton, N.D., was destroyed during the storm.

Alarms were sounded in Park River, Edinburg, Hoople and Niagara. When the alarm system failed in Grafton, the county seat, firemen went on the streets to warn the town's 6,000 residents, Johnson said.

The president is gratified, said White House press secretary Jody Powell shortly after the 57-42 Senate vote Tuesday. “This is a constructive and statesmanlike action that will strengthen the security of the United States and the solidarity of the NATO alliance.”

A second issue the administration wants badly to win is due for a Senate vote today or Thursday. Carter opposes an amendment by Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., to lift U.S. trade sanctions imposed at the instigation of the United Nations against Rhodesia 12 years ago.

The Turkish embargo compromise is in the form of an amendment to the $2.9 billion International Security Assistance Bill in the Senate.

Sponsored by Democratic Leader Robert Byrd, it calls for a presidential review every 60 days on progress toward a negotiated solution of the Cyprus problem.

Senate decides to lift Turkey arms embargo

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In what the White House called a “constructive and statesmanlike action,” the Senate has voted to lift the 3½-year-old arms embargo on Turkey as long as progress is made toward a solution of the Cyprus dispute.

The president is gratified, said White House press secretary Jody Powell shortly after the 57-42 Senate vote Tuesday. “This is a constructive and statesmanlike action that will strengthen the security of the United States and the solidarity of the NATO alliance.”

U.S. court ruling favors Fedorenko

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (UPI) — A federal judge, saying the government had failed to prove its case, ruled today that a Ukrainian immigrant who admitted serving as a guard at a Nazi death camp while a World War II prisoner of war can remain his American citizenship.

The government contended Fedorenko, 70, a former Waterbury, Conn. factory worker, had obtained his citizenship by fraud, in that he had lied on his citizenship application form.

The ruling permitting Fedorenko to keep his citizenship was handed down by U.S. District Court Judge Norman C. Roettger Jr., who said: “Because the government has failed to meet the burden of proof, judgment is entered for defendant.”

The government had sought to nullify Fedorenko's naturalization as a step toward deportation to either East or West Germany, Poland or the Soviet Union.

Roettger's ruling was contained in a 54-page opinion released by a court clerk to news reporters and attorneys.

The June de-naturalization proceedings before Roettger brought almost daily demonstrations outside the courthouse by groups of Jewish survivors of Nazi concentration camps and members of the Jewish Defense League.

Trade deficit is now lower

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States recorded its lowest trade deficit in 13 months in June, purchasing $1.6 billion more in foreign goods than it sold overseas, the government said today.

It was the smallest trade deficit since the May 1977 figure of $641 million and the first time since last September that the monthly trade deficit fell below the $2 billion mark.

June's export total of $13.13 billion was a record, mostly because of increased shipments of coal, machinery and transportation equipment.

Imports fell for the second straight month to $13.72 billion. About one quarter of the $70 million import decline was accounted for by another drop in imported oil, the department said.

Dollar slides again

TOKYO (UPI) — A rush to dump dollars in advance of a U.S. balance of payments report sent the American currency sliding to yet another post-war low in Japan today.

The dollar also fell in European markets while gold edged past the $165 mark in London.

The dollar closed at a new low of 195.10 yen on the Tokyo exchange after wavering all day.

It opened at 195.70, up slightly from Tuesday's 195.50 closing price, before rallying to a day's high of 196.20 in late morning trading. But dealers said a “rush to buy yen” in advance of the U.S. balance of payments reports for June sent the greenback sliding back down in afternoon trading.

Turnover was estimated at $870 million compared to $819 million Tuesday. The Bank of Japan bought $200 million to prevent the dollar from falling further, sources said.

Swiss dealers blamed an OECD report forecasting higher inflation and slower growth in the United States for the dollar's decline in Europe today.

Water vote unlikely; some jobs may begin

By GREG PEARSON
Herald Reporter
A November referendum question about water improvements in Manchester now seems unlikely, but town officials who met Tuesday night suggested that work start soon on some of the water-related issues.

The Town Board of Directors met to review the status of the water issues — a meeting that was attended by a handful of residents and most members of the Water Study Committee. Stephen Penny, chairman of the board, indicated the board does not expect to have a November referendum question to approve bonding for the $15 million in improvements to the water treatment and distribution systems.

“While nobody seems willing to say it, it seems very clear to me we're not going to have this on the ballot (in November),” Penny said.

The other directors concurred with that remark, despite a warning from Frank Jodanis, water and sewer administrator, that each day the start of the work is delayed will cost $2,800 based on rising costs caused by inflation.

Jodanis calculated the figure based on a seven percent annual inflationary cost for the $15 million improvements.

Even if the November referendum appears unlikely, members of the Water Study Committee recommended that work start now in other areas.

Test-tube baby well

OLDHAM, England (UPI) — The world's first “test tube baby,” a 5-pound 12-ounce girl conceived outside her mother's womb in a milestone in reproductive biology, is normal and doing fine today — under guard — after premature birth by Caesarean section.

The baby — expected to be named Patricia after Dr. Patrick Steptoe, the pioneering gynecologist who developed the technique — was born nine days early at 11:47 p.m. Tuesday in a delivery awaited anxiously not only by the parents but by science and millions of childless women who hope the test-tube technique can help them, too.

The mother, Mrs. Lesley Brown, who will be 31 Monday, was reported also in excellent health after the delivery. Her husband, railroad truck driver John, 38, waited outside the delivery room during the birth, nervously smoking like the typical expectant father.

Hospital sources said both parents slept late this morning.

“Because she is unique it is unlikely she will be breast fed. Everyone at the hospital is over the moon at the news.”

Egypt rejects summit; plans security meeting

CAIRO, Egypt (UPI) — President Anwar Sadat rejected a message from Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin that reportedly called for a summit between them and Sunday in the National Security Council into emergency session on Wednesday.

Sadat's rejection of the Israeli message, contents of which were undisclosed, coincided with Begin's first public offer to discuss Arab sovereignty of the West Bank and Gaza Strip following a five-year transitional period.

The meeting Wednesday of Sadat's National Security Council will discuss the status of the peace efforts in advance of U.S. envoy Alfred Atherton's visit to Cairo Friday.

Lower bail sought

EASTON, Mass. (UPI) — Attorneys for four Waterbury, Conn., men go to court today to try to get a judge to reduce bail for their clients who are charged with armed robbery, rape, kidnapping and fugitive from justice.

At a six-hour meeting Sunday, the Israeli Cabinet rejected an Egyptian call for the return of Mount Sinai and the town of El Arish, and said this could be done only if Egypt made a “reciprocal gesture.”

A high official, quote by the newspaper Al Ahran, said Begin's “message was a mere reiteration of the Israeli statements of the past few days and, therefore, it was not a message in the true sense of the word.”

Staff told pot is out

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter is making “clear” in no uncertain terms: marijuana smokers and drug users have no place on the White House staff.

Describing himself as deeply concerned over recent reports that some of his staff use illegal drugs, the president served notice in a memorandum circulated Monday that he expects “every member of the White House staff to obey the law.”

On another front, Carter planned an appeal to Democratic congressional leaders today for support of a bill to amend the law repealing the Turkish arms embargo, and defeat of another lifting U.N. trade sanctions against Rhodesia.

Sen. Kennedy calls for 'positive health strategy'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States has 7,000 hospitals and 400,000 doctors to treat people when they get sick. And Americans will spend $200 billion this year trying to cure what ails them.

Sen. Edward Kennedy says some of that whopping medical bill could be saved if the nation had a "positive health strategy" to promote good health and prevent disease in the first place.

"The time has come to formulate a positive health strategy for the United States by concentrating more attention and resources on the prevention of disease," Kennedy told a meeting on strategy sponsored by the American Medical Association Tuesday night.

Kennedy, who is sponsoring a bill in Congress known as the National Disease Prevention and Health Promotion Act, said people today are more sophisticated about health needs than previous generations, and said they would be receptive to a national effort to prevent illness.

"One community, which did not care what ails them, cut the heart disease rate among its residents by 20 percent through a concentrated prevention program, he said.

"I find it difficult to believe that the United States still has no national strategy for the prevention of disease and the promotion of good health," said Kennedy. This "despite our 7,000 hospitals, despite our 400,000 physicians, despite the $200 billion we will spend this year on personal health services." He said any national health strategy would:

- Establish a network of people and organizations who can transmit to Americans the knowledge they need to improve health.
- Make existing preventive services

"Where once we battled the diseases of poverty, now we struggle with the afflictions of affluence," he said.

"When once we fought epidemics and plague, today we fight maladies caused by self-indulgence, self-abuse, the contamination of our environment and the simple effects of living longer in a complex, fast-paced and often troubled world."

Manchester police report

A nine-year-old Manchester boy was treated at Manchester Memorial Hospital after an accident involving his bicycle and an automobile.

The boy, Matthew Coakley of 127C Main St., was treated at the emergency room for a laceration of the mouth and was expected to be admitted today, a hospital spokesman said.

Police said that Coakley was riding his bicycle north on Main Street at about 8:30 a.m. today. Patricia Davis, 31, of 47 E. Middle Turnpike was traveling south in her automobile when she turned into the driveway for the 7-11 Store at 253 Main St. police said.

When she turned, Coakley's bike struck the side of her car, police reported.

Ms. Davis was charged with making an unsafe turn.

An employee of the Sanitary Refuse Co. was hurt Tuesday when his leg was pinned between the garbage truck and a post that the truck backed into, police said.

Clyde Knotts of 134 Clark St., Hartford, suffered only a minor leg injury and was treated at Manchester

Memorial Hospital and released, the hospital spokesman said.

The accident occurred on Buckland Alley, and the operator of the truck, James H. Hurst of 48 Agnes Drive, was charged with improper backing, police said.

Police charged Robert G. Schneider, 26, of 13 Anderson St. with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of alcohol. Court date is Aug. 8.

A 16-year-old girl was referred after being charged with running away from New Hope Manor.

Manchester Police reported the theft of an antique picture frame from a Main Street apartment. The frame is valued at $150.

Town free to enforce law on massage parlors

The owners of local massage parlors apparently will drop their federal court case challenging the town of Manchester's ordinance that would regulate the parlors.

If the federal case is dropped, however, the town can begin enforcement immediately, Thomas Prior, assistant town counsel who is handling the matter for the town, said.

The ordinance establishes guidelines for the massage parlors. It would require certain training and tests for parlor employees and would regulate such things as closing times and outfits worn by employees.

"If they don't want to litigate it, that's fine with me," Prior said of the apparent dropping of the federal case.

The ordinance was proposed last spring by Vivian Ferguson, a member of the Manchester Board of Directors. The original ordinance was drawn up primarily by attorney Victor Moses, who was town counsel at the time.

The directors approved the ordinance about a year ago.

Lieberman to announce his choice on primary

State Sen. Joseph Lieberman will announce today whether he will primary for the Democratic nomination for lieutenant governor.

Lieberman finished second to State Rep. William O'Neill in the race for the lieutenant governor's nomination at the Democratic State Convention.

He received enough votes to primary and has called a press conference for this afternoon to announce whether he will take such a step.

The hearing was postponed because the judge assigned to the case was not able to attend.

Now, attorneys representing the massage parlors have indicated that the federal case will be dropped, but lawyers representing the ordinance had been scheduled last week in court, but lawyers representing the owners did not appear. The case again was scheduled this week, but the hearing was postponed because the judge assigned to the case was not able to attend.

Downtown group backs plan for revitalization

By ALICE EVANS

The plan to revitalize the Downtown area by providing loans to rehabilitate two- and three-family homes as well as apartments located over downtown businesses was endorsed Tuesday night by Manchester's Downtown Coordinating Committee.

The designation of the Cheney Mills Complex as a national historical area has made this possible because the downtown area falls within this National Restoration Area.

No income limits have been set on those wishing to participate in the program, but all units to be rehabilitated must have existing housing code violations.

One of the requirements is that the owners of such housing units must agree to participate in the federal subsidized housing programs if prospective tenants are eligible.

Committee members asked Alan Mason, director of the town's Human Services Department, if similar funding could be obtained to renovate downtown businesses as well as the apartments above them.

Philip Harrison, committee chairman, suggested the committee encourage commercial landlords whose property needs to be improved get together and make use of the program, and that the committee ask the Citizens Advisory Committee on Community Development funds to include this in its next application for federal funds.

Marlyn Walsh, coordinator of the federal subsidy loan program, told the committee that "I get the impression that one of the problems is that everyone in the downtown area is going their merry own way. What they have to do is to coordinate their efforts."

man said that commercial rehabilitation would have to be separate, and that the proposed program would cover the residential units in the stores but could not be used to renovate the facades of the buildings.

"A lot of businessmen in the area don't want spend any money for renovation. If the money is available to fix up the apartments in the downtown area, we should take advantage of that program like this," said Missari, a committee member said.

Heavy demand reported for stand-by air fares

LONDON (UPI) — The demand for cheap trans-Atlantic stand-by fares has increased so much during the past two weeks that flights are being booked out among the thousands of people lining up for tickets, airline officials said today.

Scuffling and shouting reached such a crescendo at London's Heathrow Airport last weekend that airport officials banned stand-by ticket sales in the terminal.

But the sale of tickets at downtown airline offices has not solved the situation. Police had to break up scuffles in the all-night line waiting outside the British Airways terminal Tuesday night, and furious passengers outside Pan Am's terminal threatened to call the U.S. ambassador when they learned there would be no stand-by fares to the East Coast today.

The number of stand-by tickets has shrunk drastically now that the peak vacation season has arrived. Stand-by tickets are only sold when planes have not been filled with regular-fare passengers, and most trans-Atlantic planes are now flying full.

A spokesman for TWA said the airline had not accepted a stand-by fare for Boston for the past three weeks.

Child abuse film scheduled Friday

"Fragile: Handle with Care," a film dealing with child abuse and narrated by Bill Cosby, will be shown Friday night in Conference Room C at Manchester Memorial Hospital.

The showing of the 30-minute film, which is open to the public free of charge, is being shown at noon so that people can see it during their lunch hour, Ann Bonney, child-life specialist at the hospital, said.

Library showing children's films

Films for children, age five and over, will be shown each Thursday, starting tomorrow, at 2 p.m. at the Junior Room of Mary Cheney Library.

Tomorrow's film, "The Emperor's Nightgale," from Hans Christian Andersen's tales, will be at least one hour in length.

Arts Encounter sets performance

Arts Encounter entertainers will give a farewell performance at the band shell at 7:30 p.m. Thursday.

"Contemporary, pop, country, western, and music from the fifties will be included in the performance," said Bill Nemeth, Arts Encounter's music coordinator.

All band shell performances are free of charge. The band shell is located on Manchester Community College campus. For more information contact Susan Hudak at Arts Encounter, 48 Purnell Place, Manchester.

WILLIAMTIC (UPI) — The case of two men charged with threatening and assaulting 72-year-old Ashford First Selectman Thomas Supina Jr. has been continued to Aug. 15.

Labor candidate says ideas taking hold

By GREG PEARSON
Herald Reporter

The ideas of the U.S. Labor Party are beginning to be adopted in worldwide forums, and Donna McDonough sees this as a sign that the party may make a substantial gain in 1978 elections.

Ms. McDonough may not be the area's best-known politician, but she will be running again this year in the First Congressional District.

She ran in the same race in 1976 and received 1,110 votes, finishing fourth to Democratic U.S. Rep. William Cotton, Republican Lucien DiPazio and George Wallace candidate Charlie Burke.

Cotton will be seeking re-election again this year. This time his challengers are one familiar face, Ms. McDonough, and one new face, Republican Ben Andrews, executive director of the state's NAACP.

Third-party candidates generally do not do well in elections, but, Ms. McDonough is hardly discouraged by the past. She looks at the present and sees acceptance of the Labor Party's views.

A recent example was the European economic summit conference held in Bonn.

The European nations approved a plan to use 20 percent of Europe's gold reserves as backing for Eurodollars. The money then would be used to help revitalize the trade market between Europe and eastern, western and underdeveloped nations.

This idea will spur trade and boost economies, she said. This idea also is proposed International Development Bank, she said. The bank would seek three-way trade agreements between eastern, western and underdeveloped nations.

"We've had major leaps in credibility. Our ideas are being implemented," Ms. McDonough said of her party.

She also pointed to the energy program proposed by the NAACP, a program that solidly backed nuclear energy.

The U.S. Labor Party also has been a strong supporter of nuclear energy.

"If the economy is going to grow, we're going to have to have a stable form of energy production," she said.

The party has no opposition to alternative energy sources, such as solar energy, but it feels nuclear power can produce the most real growth in the economy.

Solar energy, by itself, probably cannot heat and run large industrial complexes, she said.

The U.S. Labor Party has developed a legislative packet of laws it would like to see implemented in the country.

It includes a proposed national credit institution, which could provide long-term, low-interest credit to be used for capital investment, research and development.

Higher interest rates would be charged for short-term investment speculation, Ms. McDonough said.

"This would dry up inflationary investment for productive investment," she said.

The legislative packet also seeks to repeal laws that hold back American exports, she said.

She works as a registered nurse for a nursing pool in Hartford. This permits her to set her own hours so she can meet her campaign schedule.

The U.S. Labor Party also supports a move to create more skilled labor training programs in the area. She said that the average age of a machinist in Connecticut is 59.

Training and employment work has centered on creating jobs, many of which offer little training or value.

"They're saying that since there are many unskilled, uneducated people they have to create dummy jobs. We say that's wrong," Ms. McDonough said.

She characterized the federal Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA) as "awful."

"It gives people miserable, unstable jobs," she said of CETA.

Programs aimed at lowering the average age of machinists and developing other similar skills jobs are a must. They will help the economy and help the unemployed, Ms. McDonough said.

"They're demoralized," she said of unemployed people and those in under-skilled jobs. "That's something that can be changed with a couple of good training programs."

Appeals board considers other nuclear plant sites

BETHESDA, Md. (UPI) — A Nuclear Regulatory Commission appeals board opened another round in the six-year battle over the Seabrook, N.H., nuclear plant Tuesday when it began considering other sites for the suspended $2.3-billion power project.

The board held a three-hour, pre-hearing conference with parties to the plant dispute. NRC staff members estimated they would have a list of "leading candidate" alternative sites for the plant by the end of August.

The NRC suspended construction of the plant last Friday so the Environmental Protection Agency could reconsider the plant's cooling tunnels and officials could look at alternate sites.

Party endorses county sheriffs

HARTFORD (UPI) — Connecticut's eight Democratic county sheriffs have been nominated unanimously by their party to run for another term.

In Hartford County, Patrick J. Hogan of Bristol was endorsed by acclamation at a large but brief county convention. Hogan, who has held office since 1962, will face Helen Bergenty, a retired Plainville businesswoman.

In Middlesex County, Sheriff Joseph P. Walsh of Middletown also won endorsement by acclamation. The 20-year veteran sheriff will run against Kenneth King of East Hampton, a clock shop owner.

Francis Curran of Stafford won nomination to seek a second term as Tolland County sheriff. He will be opposed by Republican Edmund Dwyer of Coventry, former chief constable of Vernon.

New London County Sheriff Thomas G. Martin of New London also won Democratic endorsement for a second term. Sam Meehan, the Republican registrar of voters in Norwich, will run against Martin.

Clifford B. Green of Brooklyn was nominated for a second term as Windham County sheriff. Thompson constable Francois P. Marcoux has entered the race for the office.

In New Haven County where Henry Healey Jr. of Derby was nominated by Democrats, a GOP primary was expected. Joseph P. Pugliese of Waterbury, who lost the Republican nod to Edward F. Geremia of North Haven, planned to reveal his primary plans today.

Gloria Rice Clark, the state's first woman county sheriff, was nominated in Fairfield County. Her opponent is Republican Bridgeport city sheriff Edward Mak.

Houley said in line for an appointment

HARTFORD (UPI) — Sen. Robert Houley of Somers, who says he is through with elective office for now, may be appointed as a state commissioner if Gov. Ella Grasso stays in office.

The Hartford Courant quotes sources close to the Democratic senator as saying he has talked with the governor about a commissioner job in a second Grasso administration.

"I don't shut any options out," Houley said, but he denied such a job is certain.

Houley said Monday he will not seek another term as senator from the 25th district, because he said the $6,500 he earns for nine months of nearly full-time work is not enough.

Dempsey Jr. wants to run state party

HARTFORD (UPI) — John N. Dempsey Jr. says he wants a crack at running a party organization.

Dempsey, 32, son of the popular former governor, said Tuesday he decided this week he wanted the state party chairmanship, to be voted on Friday by the Democratic State Central Committee.

Gov. Ella T. Grasso said Monday she supports him, but is not backed by all prominent party members throughout the state. Although they oppose Dempsey, they have not suggested a replacement. Dempsey, who graduated from the University of Hartford in 1969, has worked for Grasso since then. Now her campaign manager, he has also been a congressional and gubernatorial aide. He has never held elective office.

Dempsey was once a candidate for lieutenant governor but dropped out. The race for second-in-command was won by William O'Neill of East Hampton, the incumbent state chairman.

Reports show abuse in elderly services

HARTFORD (UPI) — A new reporting system set up by state law is uncovering hundreds of cases of abuse, neglect, exploitation or abandonment of the elderly that might otherwise have gone undetected.

Jacqueline Walker, ombudsman for state Department on Aging, said Tuesday the department received 217 calls reporting suspected cases in the first six months of the year. Of the total, there was evidence of a problem in 194 of the cases.

Under the law, adopted last year and implemented Jan. 1, persons such as visiting nurses or social workers must report any suspected cases to the department.

Ms. Walker said so far, the state has arranged for services such as a homemaker, home health aide or visiting nurse to help the victim. The state can also appoint a conservator if the victim is incapable of making decisions.

Athanson vetoes Hartford's gay rights ordinance

HARTFORD (UPI) — Connecticut's first gay rights ordinance was vetoed Monday by Gov. James A. Blakely. The local law approved by the City Council Monday night on a 5-2 vote banned discrimination against homosexuals in all city jobs except schools or in any business doing work for the city.

The local law approved by the City Council Monday night on a 5-2 vote banned discrimination against homosexuals in all city jobs except schools or in any business doing work for the city.

He said he thought the ordinance as written would be difficult to enforce. Athanson also said he was worried about its effect on schools, although lawyers had said the law specifically did not cover teachers.

GOP candidate eyes vote rules

HARTFORD (UPI) — Senate Minority Leader Lewis Rome wants polling at the GOP state convention to begin with the sixth congressional district, where he expects to gain considerable support in his bid for the gubernatorial nomination.

But Rep. Ronald Sarasin, the Republican congressman who is expected to win the GOP nomination, wants the balloting to begin with the first district.

The issue will be taken up at the party's Rules Committee meeting before the nominating convention which begins Friday in Hartford.

Rome's backers say that if the order of balloting is changed to begin with the sixth district, he would show a big lead over Sarasin after the first three districts are polled.

But if it begins with the first as planned, Sarasin will be able to get his three strongest districts — the third, fourth and fifth — counted before Rome can post all of his support.

The polling order rotates with each convention. There are six Connecticut congressional districts and each is supposed to get a chance at being the first polled. At the 1974 Republican nominating convention, the fourth district was polled first.

At a special convention held in 1975, which was not a nominating convention but was called to consider party rule changes, the fifth district led off the polling.

At the 1976 convention, the sixth district went first. It is the 1975 convention that is the point of contention for Rome's forces. They say that convention does not count in the rotation.

A spokesman for the Sarasin campaign said the order won't matter in the final analysis, but party rules should be followed.

"It is too late to challenge the order based on the 1975 convention," the spokesman said. "Any challenge should have been made before the 1976 convention."

"The 1975 convention was a bona fide Republican convention," the spokesman said. "But it is important to note that we aren't fighting over the rules. Ron Sarasin is going to win the nomination by an overwhelming margin, no matter what order is used," the spokesman said.

"The only thing that concerns us about the order is that it is set by party rules and the rules must be adhered to," the spokesman said.

Prisoners escape

DANBURY (UPI) — Two prisoners escaped Tuesday after being presented in Danbury Superior Court for a pre-trial conference on felony charges.

Police say it was still not clear late Tuesday how Edward Woolcock, 17, and Timothy Fitzgerald, 16, both formerly from Danbury, escaped from the sheriff who was with them.

Police said a construction worker spotted the two suspects running out of the court building, but none of the deputy sheriffs on duty could offer information on how they got away.

The two were presented for charges including assault and larceny, police said. They are considered dangerous, he said.

Opinion

Spotlight on waste

Yes, indeed, taxpayer pressure is on when officials of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare talk about conserving taxpayer funds - and propose programs to accomplish that end. Not only is HEW the largest dis- pender of federal funds, it also has been the subject of numerous studies of fraud and mis- spent appropriations.

HEW Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr. has issued a set of guidelines he estimates will save about one billion dollars a year in overpayments for the Medicaid, Supplemental Security Income and Aid to Families with Dependent Children programs. The administration estimates $2.4 billion was misspent on those programs last year.

Sweet allure of success

By MARTHA ANGLE AND ROBERT WALTERS
WASHINGTON (NEA) - The chairmanship of the Republican Sentimental Campaign Committee, traditionally at the bottom of the heap among GOP leadership jobs in the Senate, has suddenly taken on new allure.

At least five senators - Orrin G. Hatch, R-Utah, Richard G. Lugar, R-Ind., Harrison J. Schmitt, R-N.M., H. John Heinz, R-Pa., and Pete Domenici, R-N.M. - are reportedly eyeing the job, which will come up for grabs in January.

This unprecedented display of interest appears to stem primarily from the success the current committee chairman, Sen. Robert Packwood, R-Ore., has had in transforming a previously inactive political unit into a money machine of major proportions.

Before Packwood took over two years ago, the committee had never raised more than $1.3 million during any one election cycle. But during 1977-78, the panel has hauled in $7 to $8 million and distributed some $2.1 million to GOP senatorial candidates across the country.

It has built an old 38,000-name direct mail solicitation list up to 300,000 names, and has wooed major donors with monthly dinners at the home of Senate Minority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr., whose

Weinberg battled hard for secretary

(Editor's Note: Lisa Shepard is a Washington correspondent in the offices of Scripps League Newspapers, the parent company of The Herald. She came to Hartford for the Democratic State Convention to watch the Barbara Weinberg race for secretary of state. Several of her photos were in Monday's edition of The Herald.)

She was accompanied to Hartford by Seth J. Jacobson of Westport and Jeffrey Fay of Greenwich, both of whom had worked with Mrs. Weinberg on the Carter campaign, and both of whom were to work on the floor of the convention for the Weinberg candidacy.

Mrs. Weinberg didn't have enough going for her

By LISA SHEPARD
Scripps League Newspapers
HARTFORD - Many at Saturday's Democratic state convention would agree that Barbara Weinberg put up a good fight in her attempt to become the Democratic nomination for secretary of the state. But in the end there were more factors working against her than for her.

To begin, Weinberg ran against four very qualified candidates, who all held elected offices. Audrey Beck is a state senator from Mansfield and Pat Handel of New London and Natalie Rappoport of Waterbury are both state representatives. Barbara B. Kennedy, who won the secretary nomination, is a Hartford councilwoman and daughter of the late John M. Bailey, powerful Democratic state chairman from 1946-75.

U.S. ban on Soviet trips was warning to Kremlin

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The State Department's ban on high-level official travel to the Soviet Union was meant as a deliberate and careful warning to the Kremlin leadership and may be followed by stronger actions.

High U.S. officials said the ban, announced Tuesday, could be followed by other, stiffer measures and the future depends on the Soviet Union.

"Don't assume that there will be further action, but the Soviets should be aware of the consequences of their actions. We are in a cycle of watching and waiting," said one official.

Another said, "Our further steps will be influenced by what they do."

The travel ban, according to a State Department spokesman, will affect only officials at the assistant secretary level or higher, and is not meant to affect lower-ranking officials. The department went out of its way to emphasize it is not trying to discourage private or business exchanges with the Soviet Union.

Officials said the partial ban was carefully chosen to give the president further latitude in stepping up restrictions.

State Department spokesman Hodding Carter III linked the travel ban to Soviet government moves against Soviet dissidents and American journalists.

One official said, "I don't think the president wishes to jump into harsh and precipitous action. He wants to keep it in control."

However, the ban on high-level visits to the Soviet Union came as a day which included two other department actions indicating further strains in the U.S.-Soviet relationship.

Deputy assistant secretary of state Mark Schneider said the United States is concerned about the Soviet post office refusing to deliver parcels and money orders mailed from the United States to prominent Soviet dissidents.

The State Department bluntly said the Soviet version of an incident in which an American diplomat, Raymond Smith, was seized by a Soviet policeman was "at variance" with the facts, and rejected the Soviet version of the event.

The U.S. officials called the American moves a "cumulative warning" to the Soviets.

White House sets policy for staff images on TV

WASHINGTON (UPI) — "Clear it with Jerry" is the new policy edict for White House staffers and Cabinet officials who are invited to appear on television.

That directive from image-maker Gerald Rafshoon came to light after Rafshoon blocked a pre-arranged appearance by presidential assistant Midge Costanza on ABC's "Good Morning America."

Her time slot on the program Tuesday morning was filled by Stuart Eizenstat, the president's domestic affairs adviser, who was on hand anyway for his own previously scheduled appearance.

We decided to let Stu tell the administration story," Rafshoon said when asked about his decision to cancel Ms. Costanza's appearance.

"He does it so well. Two people from the White House would have been overkill."

The Rafshoon order was communicated to the senior staff by top White House aide Hamilton Jordan at a meeting two weeks ago. Ms. Costanza was on an out-of-town speaking engagement and missed the announcement.

Rafshoon said his aim, as the White House consultant on television and other public appearances by the staff and Cabinet, is "better coordination and communication with the public — to get as much mileage as possible. We're not telling them what to say."

He said Cabinet officials also would coordinate their appearances with his office.

Rafshoon was appointed to improve Carter's public image, and to recommend ways the administration's programs and accomplishments could be communicated more effectively to the American people.

Costanza said she agreed six weeks ago to go on the program, but Rafshoon called her early Monday night to cancel the appearance.

She quoted Rafshoon as saying,

"Midge, I understand you're going to be on the David Hartman show. Didn't you know that I issued a directive that all White House senior staff appearances have to be coordinated through my office?"

She said she told Rafshoon, "I didn't get the message and I will not call David Hartman at this late hour." She suggested Rafshoon make the call.

"They called the producer of the show," Ms. Costanza said. "I'm not upset with anyone. I know there is no one more brilliant or who knows more than Stu. He should have had both segments of the broadcast. But it was a sloppy way to handle it, and it should have been coordinated."

Fighting rages in Beirut area

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Heavy weapons fire engulfed a southeast suburb between the presidential palace and Beirut airport today, shattering a two-day lull between Syrian peace-keeping troops and Christian rightist militias.

President Elias Sarkis maintained indirect contact with both sides in an attempt to end the worst Syrian-Christian clashes since fighting raged through the Christian eastern half of Beirut early this month, government sources said.

Sarkis also was striving to implement a plan to send Lebanese army regulars to another trouble area — south Lebanon — for the first time since the 1976 civil war, the sources said.

They said the move, partly the result of pressure from the U.N. peace-keeping force, might be delayed due to the Beirut flareup.

Rightist officials said at least 30 people were killed and more than 56 wounded in the sudden escalation Tuesday evening in Hadath, in the hills just southeast of Beirut. No Syrian casualty figures were released.

Right-wing Phalangist Party radio reported more than 1,000 artillery, rocket and mortar hits in "buildings, schools and hospitals in the Hadath area" by the early today.

The broadcast said that by dawn, the shell and rocket fire had subsided but sporadic sniper fire continued with most residents staying in makeshift basement shelters.

The latest fighting also sprayed sniper fire on the road to Beirut airport for the first time since the civil war and several rifle bullets struck a runway near a cargo terminal, police sources said. Palestinian guerrilla sources reported one woman killed and several other people wounded when several shells hit the Palestinian refugee camp of Bourj Barajneh, near the airport.

Jewish activist freed after Soviet hearing

MOSCOW (UPI) — A Soviet court freed Mariya Slepak without punishment today after hearing charges of "malicious hooliganism" brought against her.

The Soviet court released the 52-year-old woman with a stern warning that the next time she committed an offense she would face three years in exile.

Mrs. Slepak, wife of Jewish activist Vladimir Slepak, was charged in connection with the June 1 demonstration she and her husband staged when they unfurled a banner demanding that they be allowed to emigrate to Israel.

Vladimir Slepak, 50, was convicted on similar "malicious hooliganism" charges in late June and sentenced to five years in exile in a remote region of the Soviet Far East.

Mrs. Slepak emerged from the Moscow courthouse in tears after the trial.

About 25 Jewish activist and dissident friends and Western reporters had waited outside the court for the verdict on Mrs. Slepak. She told them she was turned loose with only a warning that she would face stern punishment if she was brought before the court again.

Vladimir Slepak was sentenced to five years of internal exile in the remote Chita region of the Soviet Far East along the Mongolian border when the same Moscow court convicted him in a trial last month.

The Slepaks are believed to have waited longer than any other Moscow Jews for permission to emigrate to Israel. They first applied in 1970.

Housing Authority plans rent hikes

By CHRIS BLAKE
Herald Reporter

EAST HARTFORD — The Housing Authority plans to raise the rents at four state funded housing projects in town, according to its director.

Nicholas A. Giannalis said Tuesday rent increases are planned for Hutt Heights and Daley Court, both elderly units, and for Veterans Terrace (including the Veterans Terrace Extension) and King Court, both moderate-income housing.

If the increases are approved by the State Department of Community Affairs and the Housing Authority, they can be put into effect in about two months, Giannalis said.

He said, however, he could not disclose the amount of the rent hike until he notifies the tenants in the affected areas.

Tenants at Veterans Terrace now pay $35 a month for four-room units and $147 a month for five-room units. At King Court, 23 tenants pay the same rates as those in Veterans Terrace and $2 pay a different rate because they have their own heating systems, he said.

Tenants organizations at all four units will meet with the authority Thursday to discuss the rent increases. The Veterans Terrace and King Court group will meet Thursday night at 8 p.m. at the Housing Authority at 452 Main St.

The two groups said Wednesday they oppose the increase because of what they call numerous housing and health code violations which have not been corrected by the Housing Authority.

"We want them to bring our building up to health standards before they increase our rent," said Pat Totten, a spokesman for the Veterans Terrace Association.

"The Housing Authority, due to mismanagement, is not living up to its responsibility as outlined in state and local law," Mrs. Totten said.

Lack of drain spoils is another problem, she said. This causes flooding in the cellars of the buildings.

"All of the problems do not exist in every single building," she said. "But, there are problems in just about every building."

Judi Shanahan, a spokeswoman for the King Court Tenants' Association, said her group is also interested in stopping the rent increase.

"Some of the problems are the same and some of them are different," she said. "But almost all of them can be traced to mismanagement by the Housing Authority."

Peter Bisko, a representative of the Daley Court complex for the elderly, said heights representatives will meet at 7:30 p.m. Thursday.

The Daley Court and Hutt Heights projects were built in 1962. Veterans Terrace was built in 1951 and the extension was constructed in 1967. King Court authority at 6:30 p.m. Thursday and Hutt

Blackstone asks DOT to donate I-86 lands

EAST HARTFORD — The mayor has asked the state Department of Transportation to donate to the town three separate tracts of land earmarked for an Interstate 86 corridor which has been scrapped.

The three parcels total about 87 acres.

Mayor Richard H. Blackstone said he is acting on a recent decision by U.S. Transportation Secretary Brock Adams to return land taken for canceled highway projects back to the communities.

The state had planned to build an I-86 route from the Putnam Bridge in Glastonbury to I-86 just north of Silver Lane, but local opposition stopped those plans, Blackstone said.

The three parcels include 33.33 acres north of Gorman Park, 37.70 acres southeast of Veterans Memorial Park and 11.41 acres southwest and east of Lombard Drive and northeast and west of Patricia Drive.

Blackstone said the land north of Gorman Park could be used to extend the park, possibly providing for another entrance.

He said the 11.41 acres would be used to develop a north-south street between Fors and Main streets, now called Meadows subdivision off Silver Lane.

Blackstone said the land will be used in a "manner consistent with the urban revitalization goals set forth by President Carter."

Public meeting scheduled on flood insurance study

EAST HARTFORD — The town has scheduled a special public meeting for Wednesday, Aug. 2, at 7:30 p.m. to review a preliminary draft of the Housing and Urban Development-sponsored Flood Insurance Study.

The meeting, which is being held by the town in conjunction with the Federal Insurance Administration, is scheduled for the Council Chambers.

The purpose of the Flood Insurance Study is to investigate the existence and severity of flood hazards in the town. In addition, the study is designed to aid the administration of National Flood Insurance Act of 1968 and the Flood Disaster Protection Act of 1973.

Initial use of this information from the study will be to convert the town to the regular program of flood insurance by the Federal Insurance Administration.

Further use of the information will be made by local and regional planners in their efforts to promote sound land use and flood plain management.

Representatives of the Federal Insurance Administration will be present at the meeting to discuss the nature and purpose of the study, the areas studied and the use to be made of the data obtained.

A preliminary copy of the study is available for public inspection in the Town Clerk's Office at the Town Hall.

Ms. Fahey, who won a delegate primary on May 2, will be nominated at the Third Senatorial District convention at the Veterans Memorial Clubhouse. Deputy Mayor and Town Council Chairman George Dagon is expected to convene the delegation.

Former Senator Harry S. Burke of East

Hartford will deliver the nominating speech for Ms. Fahey.

Several second speeches will be given, including those by Michael Dorsey, president of the Greater Hartford Labor Council, Dorothy Brindamour, vice-chairwoman of the Manchester Town Committee and Carol Colbeth, deputy principal campaign treasurer.

Ms. Fahey's opponent for the seat is Republican Minority Leader Esther B. Clarke.

Man charged in slaying

NEW HAVEN (UPI) — A 36-year-old New Haven man is being held for the weekend slaying of a nurse whose nude body was found in her bathtub, police say.

Police Tuesday said they have charged Raymond D'Antonio with murder. He is being held on $100,000 bond pending court arraignment today.

D'Antonio was taken into custody early Tuesday afternoon by detectives working on the case since the Sunday night slaying of 24-year-old Karen Jourd for the Miss Mount's mother notified authorities when her daughter, a nurse at Yale-New Haven Hospital, did not answer her telephone.

Firemen entered her second-floor apartment on Chapel Street through a window and found her body. Miss Mount had been stabbed repeatedly.

East Hartford police report

An East Hartford man was charged with reckless driving Tuesday afternoon after his motorcycle struck the left rear fender of a car turning from Willow Street onto Main Street.

John J. Beas, 31, of 36 Lawrence St. was charged with reckless driving at 5:42 p.m. His motorcycle struck the fender of a car driven by Paul E. Sarosky, 27, of 63 Goodwin Ave. in Westfield.

Beas suffered cuts and bruises and was taken to the hospital, where he was treated and released, police said.

A man walked into the office at the Mobil Service Station on 499 Silver Lane while an attendant was pumping gas and stole an undetermined amount of cash, police said.

The unidentified man walked into the gas station at about 10:40 p.m. Tuesday, took the cash box, and walked away, police said.

Police said the man was later seen on Silver Lane getting into a silver late model vehicle.

Earl N. Peckham, 17, of 40 Cumberland Drive was charged with fourth-degree larceny (shoplifting) at the Stop & Shop store on Silver Lane Tuesday. Peckham was released on a promise to appear in court Aug. 7.

'Loner' peddled here from San Diego home

How far is it from San Diego, Calif. to Manchester? Joe Willadsen isn't sure, just how far he traveled as he peddled his bicycle across the country, because his odometer gave out after the first 30 miles.

Although Atlantic City, N.J., was his goal when he left San Diego May 21, he decided to come to Manchester to visit Mr. and Mrs. Harry Young of 12½ Church St., who were neighbors when they lived in California.

Joe, who says his left hand "doesn't work too good" and that "it shakes like hell if I try to hold it out straight like this or try to hold a glass of water in it, said he still can ride a bicycle better than anybody else, and has proved it.

It was an accident 12 years ago in Azusa, Calif., that left him with a practically useless hand, "some brain damage," and "no equilibrium."

He started his trek from San Diego with two purposes, one to advertise the book he published last winter, and the other, to prove that all Americans aren't "lazy and just jump into their car or on their motor cycles when they want to go somewhere."

The book, "Simple Dilemma," deals with such things as abortion, women's lib, and even Watergate, Joe said. He called it an autobiography, and said that everyone could learn something out of it even if you disagree with it. "He writes under the name of 'Solo Joe Nobody' because 'I've established a status as a loner. I just like a nobody—a square in a round hole," he said.

Two sets of tires to make the 3,000-mile trip, and he arrived in Manchester with his gloves in shreds. When Jack McVeigh, owner of the Egyptian Tavern, gave him a new pair for the trip home, Joe handed the remains of his old gloves to McVeigh to keep as a souvenir.

He has something to think about as he peddles his bicycle across the country. Each night as he moves into a private "motel" in back of trees or bushes along the highway, he writes a little more of his adventures, which he hopes will become his second book.

Egypt's security council debates Begin invitation

CAIRO, Egypt (UPI) — President Anwar Sadat called his National Security Council into emergency session today to debate a possible invitation to Cairo for Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin, Egyptian officials said.

Diplomats said they thought such an invitation was unlikely, however.

Sadat said he would give his highest policy-making body, at the Mediterranean city of Alexandria to decide the government's next move.

The officials said he added the possible Begin invitation to the agenda at the last minute.

Only two days ago, diplomats recalled, Sadat would not even accept delivery of a message from Begin, because the Israeli leader had declared to his parliament that Israel will not return an occupied Arab land except in return for mutual Egyptian concessions.

Egyptian officials also said they were disappointed at Begin's refusal to return to El-Arish and Mount Sinai to Egypt as a gesture of good will.

Begin forgets that this is our land and by refusing to give it back, he is violating international law," one official said.

U.S. trade deficit lower

The dollar firmed on foreign exchange markets in London immediately after the announcement. Analysts said the trade figures were better than expected.

For the first half of 1978, the department said, the U.S. balance-of-trade deficit stood at $16.37 billion compared with $11.49 billion for the same period in 1977.

Officials said the deficit for the full year should be somewhat above last year's record $25.5 billion total.

Government experts have said the deficits would have to average $1.7 billion for the remainder of the year if the United States is to approach last year's total.

Nine of the 10 export categories increased last month while imports fell in seven of 10 categories, the department said.

Oil imports, the department said, decreased to $3.20 billion from May's $3.32 billion.

Among other import categories that posted declines were: iron and steel products, sugar, coffee, radios, television sets and motorcycles.

'Great to do it in New York' - Rose

NEW YORK (UPI) — The ball hit Pete Rose's bat and landed in Shea Stadium's left field at 8:39 p.m. EDT Tuesday night.

For that moment, time might have seemed to stand still — but 38,158 fans would not.

They rose for Rose en masse and cheered lustily for five minutes at his third-inning single which set a modern National League record by extending his batting streak to 38 games.

"It was really great to do it here in New York because they had such a big crowd and they were really milling for me," said Rose, who eclipsed Tommy Holmes' mark of 37 straight games set in 1946 for the Boston Braves.

And it was Holmes who ran out first to congratulate the Reds' third baseman after Rose lined a 1-1 pitch from Craig Swan into left field in the third inning of Cincinnati's 9-2 loss to the New York Mets.

"When he got the hit, I couldn't wait to get out there," said Holmes, who now works for the Mets. "He gave me the ball but I gave it back to him and said, 'No, Pete, this is for you.'"

The 37-year-old Rose has now posted the fourth longest batting streak in modern major-league history. Still ahead are Ty Cobb's 40 straight games, set in 1911. George Sisler's 41 straight in 1922 and the all-time mark of 56 set by Joe DiMaggio in 1941.

"I've got half a building up," said Rose. "And now I have to build the other half. I've beaten or equaled every one of Cobb's other records and I want this one too."

New York's winning pitcher Craig Swan, 3-5, was glad to see

Rose end the suspense early.

"I wasn't too upset when he got the hit," said Swan. "Actually it was more of a relief. It was a circus atmosphere out there and when he got it over with, I could concentrate on winning the game."

Swan surrendered seven hits — including three to Rose — and the Mets broke the game open in the fourth inning, when they combined five hits and two Cincinnati errors on the same play for five runs.

Steve Henderson and Willie Montaner stroked one-out singles to put runners on first and third.

John Stearns doubled past Rose to third to tie the game and Lee Mazzilli was walked intentionally by loser Tom Hume, 4-10, loading the bases. Len Randle then broke an 0-for-14 slump with a two-run single, which was bobbled by right fielder Ken Griffey, and Joe Morgan's relay of Griffey's throw, skipped past first, allowing Mazzilli to score and moving Randle to second. Doug Flynn greeted reliever Pedro Borbon with an RBI single to put the Mets ahead 5-1.

The Reds scored in the fifth when Rose doubled, moved to third on a flyball and scored on Joe Morgan's infield out. But the Mets responded with a pair of runs in both the seventh and eighth to seal the game.

But nothing could chill the heat of the night for the effervescent Rose.

"Hey fellas," Rose said, beckoning the cluster of photographers around him, "make sure you get me smiling because you all had Martin (retired Yankee manager Billy Martin) cry yesterday."

Martin exits
 Biggest news on the baseball front in the past 48 hours has been shared by Billy Martin who tossed-in the low as manager of the New York Yankees and hot-hitting Pete Rose of the Cincinnati Reds who set a modern National League record by extending his batting streak to 38 games.

Monday afternoon he quit rather than be fired. Either decision had been evident for months.

Over the years, from his playing days with the New York Yankees and during managerial stops in Minnesota, Detroit, Texas and the Yankees, our paths often crossed during spring training and during the regular championship American League seasons.

This corner was never an admirer of the fiery Martin during his playing days but when I got to know him as a manager, there was much respect until he came back to New York to fulfill his dream of managing New York.

Many an hour I spent in company with baseball writers from around the country and Martin, especially during the spring.

He was great copy. Never one to pull any punches, if you asked a question of mine you got an honest answer, that was until he came back to New York to manage the Yankees.

Pat Martin's managerial career after Stengel, whom he described as the greatest teacher in the game. Like the beloved Casey, he had his ups and downs.

Inability to get along with club owners, his bosses, led to his dismissal in Minnesota, Detroit, Texas and now New York.

Despite his personal feelings, he was not bigger than management.

Changed man
 After coming back to the Big Apple, Martin was a changed man. He was sure, sarcastic, belligerent and in plain English, a man you didn't care to be closely associated with.

His language was of the strongest order.

Perhaps it was the media that he couldn't cope with in the big city, although he provided the group with plenty of copy during his playing days.

The hardest part of managing is to keep all 25 players happy, which is almost an impossibility these days.

Despite his personal feelings, he was not bigger than management.

Clark challenger to NL hit skein

NEW YORK (UPI) — San Francisco's young right fielder Jack Clark Tuesday extended his hitting streak to 26 games with a double in the Giants' 3-2 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

"I feel real good about the hitting streak," said Clark, who trails Cincinnati slugger Pete Rose's modern-day National League mark of 38, but just try and keep it going. As surprising as it may seem, I don't feel any pressure at all."

Rose lined a single on a 1-1 pitch from New York right-hander Craig Swan in the third inning of the Reds' 9-2 loss to the Mets. After hitting his 38th game to surpass Tommy Holmes' string of 37 games set in 1945, Rose's streak of 40 games.

"I'm just starting now... I've got half a building and I gotta build the rest of it," Rose said, after a Shea Stadium crowd of 38,158 gave him a long standing ovation and Holmes ran out on the field to congratulate him with a 22 average and is second in RBI with 76.

In San Francisco, before 39,289 fans, Clark, whose streak has been a silent one compared to Rose's, smacked his hit in the fourth inning.

"Everyone on this team is playing hard and I'm just going along with the crowd," said the 22-year-old Clark, who leads the league in hitting with a .322 average and is second in RBI with 76.

But it was Mike Vitek who provided the real fireworks—blasting a two-run pinch-homer with one out in the bottom of the ninth to give the Giants the win and increase their lead in the NL West to two games over the Reds.

In other NL games, Atlanta blanked Philadelphia, 4-0. Houston edged Montreal, 3-2, in 13 innings. San Diego beat Pittsburgh, 2-1, and Los Angeles defeated Chicago, 3-1.

Rose off, running after Cobb's record

NEW YORK (UPI) — With Tommy Holmes safely eclipsed, Pete Rose is now off and running after the one baseball immortal he's been relentlessly pursuing throughout his entire 16-year career — Ty Cobb.

"I'm just starting now... I've got half a building, I've got to keep building the rest of it," said Rose, who surpassed Holmes' 33-year-old modern National League record by hitting safely in his 38th consecutive game Tuesday night — a 3-for-4 performance against New York Mets' right-hander Craig Swan. "I've got to get me another hit tomorrow so I can be in reach of Ty Cobb."

"I've tied or beaten almost everyone of his records already and I'd like to get this one too."

By that time he was returning to Cobb's hitting streak of 40 games, accomplished back in 1941. It's not a record — just the next "milestone."

Pete's next milestone would then be Joe DiMaggio, who holds the all-time major league record of hitting safely in 56 straight games in 1941.

Rose's historic hit Tuesday night came on his second at-bat in the game eventually won by the Mets, 9-2. Reds starting pitcher Tom Hume drew a walk from Swan on four straight pitches to precede Rose and set up an obvious but situation.

"Sparky" Anderson, the Reds manager, told me he wouldn't take the bat out of my hands," Rose said.

Thus, after fouling off one pitch and taking another for a ball, Rose hit a liner to left field and the crowd of 38,158 leaped to its feet in a thundering ovation.

"I fouled that first pitch off after hitting 'right' on the trademark," said Rose. "So I choked up about an inch and the next pitch was right there."

"I wasn't upset when he got the hit," said Swan. "It was more of a relief. I was glad he got it over with so I could concentrate on winning the game."

Ford in spotlight as Red Sox learn

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (UPI) — Dan Ford played a couple seasons under the dual shadow of superstars Larry Hise and Lyman Bostock, but when they left Minnesota via the free agent market, it was his turn in the spotlight.

Ford responded to the new role Tuesday night as his triple and single accounted for three of the Twins five runs that stopped the Boston Red Sox 5-2.

"Dan Ford is realizing the potential he always has shown," Minnesota Manager Gene Mauch said.

The victory gave the Twins a 2-1 edge over the leaders of the American League Eastern Division Metropolitan Stadium. For the Red Sox, it was their sixth loss in eight games.

They are still 5-12 games ahead of the second place Milwaukee Brewers, who also lost Tuesday night.

"I knew during the winter that I would be called on," Ford said. "I was pleased when I got the word from Tony Oliva that I would be playing center field. I really think that helped settle things for me psychologically."

Ford had played in right field while Hise and Bostock shared center field.

"I always considered myself a center fielder," said Ford, who raised his batting average to .301 and who also has been exceptional on defense this season.

Fisk gave the Red Sox a brief lead in the fourth when he singled, stole second and scored on Butch Hobson's single. Hobson doubled and scored on Jerry Remy's single in the seventh.

Tonight Boston's Dennis Eckersley (11-3) will face Doc Medich (4-5) at 7:30.

Ron Guidry checks Royals' win streak

NEW YORK (UPI) — Ron Guidry has the reputation of starting the New York Yankees to winning again after their losing streaks and Tuesday, after the team lost a manager, he made sure the new manager won.

"It's nice to break with a 15-1 pitcher," said Bob Lemon, in his first game as new manager.

"I've got a lot harder after we lose," said Guidry, who blanked Kansas City, 4-0, on six hits to end a 10-game Royals' winning streak that included four of its last five wins.

"I'm still learning how to pitch," said Guidry, who in his fourth start of his major-league career, lowered his first-inning ERA to 1.99. "I was real hot and hungry, but in the fourth or fifth inning I started throwing hard again."

The lean left-hander has now struck out 153 this season, tying him with California's Nolan Ryan for the American League lead.

New York scored the only run Guidry needed in the third when Mickey Rivers reached first on a throwing error by shortstop Fred Patek, second came home on a double by Willie Randolph.

In other AL games Tuesday, Minnesota doubled Boston, 5-2. Chicago tripped Milwaukee, 4-2. Baltimore nipped Texas, 7-4. Cleveland topped California, 5-1. Detroit popped Oakland, 4-2, and Seattle trimmed Toronto, 11-2. Twins 5, Red Sox 2.

The victory gave the Twins a 2-1 edge over the leaders of the American League Eastern Division Metropolitan Stadium. For the Red Sox, it was their sixth loss in eight games.

They are still 5-12 games ahead of the second place Milwaukee Brewers, who also lost Tuesday night.

"I knew during the winter that I would be called on," Ford said. "I was pleased when I got the word from Tony Oliva that I would be playing center field. I really think that helped settle things for me psychologically."

Ford had played in right field while Hise and Bostock shared center field.

"I always considered myself a center fielder," said Ford, who raised his batting average to .301 and who also has been exceptional on defense this season.

Fisk gave the Red Sox a brief lead in the fourth when he singled, stole second and scored on Butch Hobson's single. Hobson doubled and scored on Jerry Remy's single in the seventh.

Tonight Boston's Dennis Eckersley (11-3) will face Doc Medich (4-5) at 7:30.

A hospital spokesman said phone lines have been jammed ever since the announcement of the birth. Children's couples, particularly from the United States and Germany, have been offering themselves as guinea pigs in test-tube baby research, he said.

Ron Guidry checks Royals' win streak

NEW YORK (UPI) — Ron Guidry has the reputation of starting the New York Yankees to winning again after their losing streaks and Tuesday, after the team lost a manager, he made sure the new manager won.

"It's nice to break with a 15-1 pitcher," said Bob Lemon, in his first game as new manager.

"I've got a lot harder after we lose," said Guidry, who blanked Kansas City, 4-0, on six hits to end a 10-game Royals' winning streak that included four of its last five wins.

"I'm still learning how to pitch," said Guidry, who in his fourth start of his major-league career, lowered his first-inning ERA to 1.99. "I was real hot and hungry, but in the fourth or fifth inning I started throwing hard again."

The lean left-hander has now struck out 153 this season, tying him with California's Nolan Ryan for the American League lead.

New York scored the only run Guidry needed in the third when Mickey Rivers reached first on a throwing error by shortstop Fred Patek, second came home on a double by Willie Randolph.

In other AL games Tuesday, Minnesota doubled Boston, 5-2. Chicago tripped Milwaukee, 4-2. Baltimore nipped Texas, 7-4. Cleveland topped California, 5-1. Detroit popped Oakland, 4-2, and Seattle trimmed Toronto, 11-2. Twins 5, Red Sox 2.

Sir John Stallworthy, president of the British Medical Association and chairman of Science and professor emeritus of gynecology at Oxford University, said it was likely to be many years before the technique is widely available.

But before the birth, some voices were raised to point to the possible moral and other dangers.

Leo Ahe, a Labor party member of Parliament and crusader for moral rights, wished the yet unborn infant well, but said its birth could be the first step toward the deliberate production of a "master race" to dominate the rest, unless proper precautions were taken.

Anglican and Roman Catholic spokesmen differed on the issue.

Lemon alters Yankee lineup

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — George Steinbrenner was on the phone again to his manager late Tuesday night.

But for the first time in a long time, the New York Yankees' owner was not complaining, berating or offering lineup suggestions to a man who calls the shots for the defending World Champions.

Steinbrenner was offering congratulations.

"I can't lose them all," Bob Lemon told his new boss following the Yankees' 4-0 victory over the Kansas City Royals.

Red Sox comfortable despite latest slump

BOSTON (UPI) — Can the Boston Red Sox, suddenly shaken from the summer of their content, silence the annual critics and fair-weather fans predicting the usual fold job over at Fenway Park?

The team has faltered since the All-Star break, winning games at a 500 pace and losing ground to the Milwaukee Brewers, their closest pursuers. But the thought of George Bamberger's Suds Sluggers chasing the Red Sox is about as nerve-racking or exciting as reading an eye chart.

The Red Sox still hold a pretty substantial lead over the only team which really poses a threat — the Yankees. Assume the Red Sox continue to play .500 ball the rest of the season — and they've played at a much better clip than that all year. The Bronx Bumblers would have to blaze out at a .667 pace — which they haven't come close to approaching all year — to overtake them.

As for the Brewers, Bamberger has done a splendid job with those free agents and pitchers. They'll get Cecil Cooper back soon, but Luis Tiant hit better than Cooper did in a 500 pace and losing ground to the Milwaukee Brewers, their closest pursuers. But the thought of George Bamberger's Suds Sluggers chasing the Red Sox is about as nerve-racking or exciting as reading an eye chart.

The pitching staff has been wondrous all season and could not be expected to continue without some form of letdown. The addition of Andy Hassler gives them added support from the port side and rids them of Allen Ripley, who was getting so shell-shocked he looked the German army retreating from Leningrad.

The Red Sox hitting problems are more complex. The Sox have four starters batting around or over .300. But the team continues to have trouble with the big hit and the big inning. Lynn, despite his hefty batting average, has been leaving a lot of men on base. George Scott isn't booming, but killing rallies instead. Jim Rice, although batting around .320, has been a table setter lately rather than a long ball threat.

Carl Yastrzemski has been struggling, at least that's what he says, but Yaz is hitting the ball as well as anyone on the club. Fisk is starting to find his groove again after a slow start.

Manager Don Zimmer said the 1978 team won't lose seven or eight in a row because the pitching is too strong. But strong pitching can be undermined by weak hitting whereas there's always a chance weak pitching can be saved by strong hitting.

When Burleson returns, the Red Sox should continue their winning ways and take their division without too much of a struggle. That's if they can stay healthy for the remainder of the year.

To ask them to play like they did the first half of the year is unrealistic. To think they will play the rest of the year as they have the last two weeks is absurd.

'The Bird' comes back

Mark 'The Bird' Fidrych worked three innings for the Lakeland Tigers in the Florida League Monday night and was impressive. He blanked Fort Meyers in his first start since tendonitis sidelined the one-time Detroit pitching ace last spring. The Tigers hope he'll round into shape and rejoin the American League club next month. (UPI photo)

Sam Snead
A bad hole can be a blessing in disguise, according to Sam Snead.
"How often have you come off a green after just blowing a putt, and stepped up to the next drive with just a little bit more fire?" Snead asks. He says that if a mistake gets you just a little fired up, it might snap you out of a "honey state of mind."
"You're probably mad, and strike the ball down the fairway with greater concentration and purpose of mind," he says. "You're still a little mad when you hit your iron shot to the green. And you hit that shot with purpose, too."
Take advantage of that edge you get from being fired up, Snead advises, and prevent disgust over a bad hole from forcing another mistake.

Nationals defeat Somers with one big run inning

Scoring all five runs in the third inning, the Manchester Nationals advanced in District Eight Little League Tournament play last night at Leber Field with a 5-4 decision over Somers.

The victory advances Manchester to the semifinals against the Ellington-Stafford winner.

After the first six batters were struck out, Steve Byam led off the Manchester third inning by drawing a walk. An attempted sacrifice resulted in a throwing error to second base, the ball winding up at the fence as Byam circled the bases and Gallagher reaching third. Dave Ostuni walked but an attempted double steal was foiled with Gallagher being tossed out at home.

Matt Mirucki drew the third walk of the inning and the runners moved up on a wild pitch.

Mark Holmes bunted down the first base line and Somers pitcher Paul Musco slipped and fell as Ostuni scored. One out later, Paul Hohenthal delivered a three-run homer over the centerfield fence for a 5-0 lead.

The visitors tallied once in the fourth frame and staged a three-run rally in the last inning.

Losing hurler Paul Musco allowed just two hits but bases on balls proved to be his undoing. He fanned 13 Nationals.

Formal Inn in easy win

Backing the six-inning one-hit pitching by Karen Kachowski, Formal's Inn women's fast pitch team in the CCWFPL trimmed Glastonbury last night, 10-1.

Kachowski lost a shutout bid in the final inning when she was reached for two hits.

By that time, the locals had built up a 10-run lead in gaining their ninth decision in 11 league starts and 13th in 18 games.

Donna Landmann and Dawn Pawlich led the winners with two hits each with Danyl Ryan's two-run single triggering a six-run fourth inning.

Thursday night the Inns face Stafford at Fitzgerald.

Moriarty nine one-run loser

It's been a long, long season for Moriarty's in the Hartford Twilight League and last night the winningest team in loop history absorbed another setback.

The Imaginers tacked a 3-4 defeat on the locals at Mt. Nebo when Scott Eagleston gave up three second inning runs and two more in the third before the MB's got on the board.

Two runs in the third cut the lead to 5-2 and Bud Silva's homer for Moriarty's in the fourth shaved the margin again.

The locals added a fourth tally in the seventh before running out of gas with two men on base.

Separators conquer oil spills

NEW YORK (UPI) — The struggle to conquer oil pollution of the world's seas and beaches is arduous and tedious but a Bayonne, N.J., firm says there is no doubt it can be done within a few years. Butterworth Systems Inc. makes a gravity oil and water separator that is used on 10 to 15 percent of all the world's tankers to recover oil from bilgewater and ballast tanks and cut discharge of oil to a safe minimum. At least 10 American companies and some European and Japanese firms make these separators. They have been in use since the early 1960s and have resulted in a substantial reduction in ocean oil pollution. Petroleum pollution of the oceans can only be controlled, however, it cannot be ended because, as a study by the National Academy of Sciences showed in 1975, natural crude oil and gas seepage from geologic faults in the ocean's beds causes 10 percent of the pollution and atmospheric fallout another 10 percent. The ocean bed seepage has been going on for millions, perhaps billions, of years. Of the estimated total of six million tons of petroleum hydrocarbons discharged into the seas each year, only 35 percent comes from ships. Twenty-five percent of this oil is lost from tankers, the rest from other vessels. But land runoff, oil pollution of streams and rivers in the highly industrialized world, accounts for 41 percent of the oil pollution of the oceans. This land runoff pollution can be conquered by the use of gravity separators just as oil discharge from ships can be controlled, according to Butterworth. It's a matter of installing on light controls and the use of separators. An indication of what can be done is seen in the fact installations that handle the largest volumes of oil, shore-side refineries and offshore drilling platforms, between them contribute only 4 percent of the spillage and seepage. Naturally, Butterworth says its gravity separator is distinctive but it works on the same basic principle as others. It is a 43,000-pound cylindrical device 18 feet in diameter and 15 feet high. It is used both on shipboard and by land-based industries to recover and recycle oil and chemicals from wastewaters. Aboard a ship, the separators are used in addition to the "load on top" principle which puts oil on top of the heavier ballast water in the cargo tanks for easier cleaning. Before the high volume gravity separators were invented the best the shipboarders could hope to achieve was 500 to 1,000 parts of oil per million remaining in the ballast water and only under the best conditions could they achieve a recommended maximum oil discharge of 60 liters to the nautical mile when disposing of ballast and engine cooling wastewater. Typical of the improvement with the gravity separators, a study of 44 voyages by three ships using Butterworth separators showed the discharge was reduced to less than three liters to the mile. From 1,200 to 1,500 barrels of oil were recovered per voyage by the separators. No. 1 Rexall account The Liggett Rexall Parkade Pharmacy at 404 W. Pioneer results improve Pioneer Systems Inc. has reported results of operations for the quarter and six months ended June 3, 1978. Consolidated sales for the second quarter of 1978 amounted to $13,371,000, resulting in net income of $766,000, or 27 cents per share for the period, as compared to sales of $10,859,000 and net income of $82,000, equivalent to 3 cents per share in the second quarter of 1977. For the first half of 1978 sales increased to $28,194,000 as compared to $20,942,000 in the prior year, and net income amounted to $1,609,000 or 6 cents per share, compared to $476,000 in 1977 or 17 cents per share. Non-recurring currency translation losses in 1978 reduced net income for the first half year by approximately $1,100,000 from the prior year. In the second quarter the company incurred a currency translation gain applicable to the company's Swiss franc debt issue amounting to $163,000, as compared to a currency translation loss of $106,000 for the similar period of 1977. However, the currency translation loss for the full six-month period amounted to $911,000 in 1978 as compared to a currency translation gain of $171,000 in 1977. The company announced that it has made arrangements to repurchase this Swiss franc debt issue prior to its maturity date in November 1978, and that no further losses would be incurred by reason of currency fluctuations related to this debt issue. The company also released operating results for its three major divisions, all of which are 80 percent owned. Pioneer International Corp., the parachute manufacturer, generated sales of $8,815,000 for the six-month period as compared to $6,485,000 in 1977, and net income of $1,091,000 as against $792,000 as against $547,000 in the prior year. Vogart Crafts Corp., a manufacturer of needlework and paint craft products, reported sales of $6,380,000 for the six-month period as compared to $5,790,000 in 1977, and net income for the period amounted to $1,091,000 as against $792,000 in the prior year. The Putnam-Gellman Corp., a textile processor and manufacturer of automated sewing equipment, reported sales of $6,589,000 for the six-month period as compared to $6,122,000 in 1977, and net income for the period amounted to $163,000 as against $13,000 in the prior year. Optical Systems Corp., another 80 percent owned subsidiary engaged in pay-television, reported revenues of $1,887,000 for the six-month period compared to $2,532,000 in 1977, and a net loss of $927,000 for the first half of 1978, compared to a loss of $346,000 in the prior year. The Optical loss for the 1978 period includes $475,000 applicable to currency translation losses as compared to a currency translation gain of $83,000 in 1977.

Bank reports increases

People's Savings Bank of Rockville has reported increases in assets and net income for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1978. At the recent annual meeting, Frederick S. Winkley, president, reported an increase of 9 1/2 percent in total assets, which reached a new high for the 108-year old banking institution, of $48,790,785. Surplus, undivided profits and reserves increased to $1,488,595. Real estate mortgages increased 7 percent while savings registered an increase of more than 9 percent during the 12 months. "We are delighted with this performance considering the rising inflationary pressures placed upon consumers during the past year. People's Savings Bank is very strongly committed to serving the financial needs of the surrounding communities of Rockville, Vernon and Tolland," Winkley said. Winkley also announced the re-election of the following officers for the forthcoming year: Frederick S. Winkley, president and treasurer; Malcolm W. Thompson, vice president; John S. Mason, vice president; J. Robert Lessard, secretary and assistant treasurer; Frank L. Jaworski, assistant secretary and assistant treasurer; and Dorothy K. Morganson, assistant secretary. In addition, Winkley announced the appointment of Elizabeth L. Gessay as mortgage loan service officer. People's Savings Bank's main office is located in downtown Rockville, with branches in Vernon Circle at the Tri-City Plaza, and at 351 Talcottville Road in Vernon.

Telephone customers in Connecticut will soon be getting faster answers to their service questions, thanks to a new information retrieval system that Southern New England Telephone is now introducing in its 32 business offices around the state. COMBO, or Computer Output Microfiche Business Office, all but eliminates paper records of telephone accounts. According to Bob Toothaker, SNET planning and administration manager, "COMBO will save us and our customers more than $800,000 per year in operating costs. Besides increasing speed and efficiency, it will also eliminate the 156,000 pounds of paper we were consuming each year to maintain these records." The new system employs a type of microfiche called microfiche. Each four-by-six-inch microfiche contains all the record information of about 350 customer accounts, including basic bill, toll charges, other charges and credits, plus service and equipment records. When a customer calls an SNET business office with a question about an account, the service representative selects the microfiche containing that customer's record from a file tray on his or her desk. The representative puts it into a special microfiche reader about the size of a small TV set, finds the customer's account and responds to the question. This process takes about 35 percent less time than previously, meaning faster service for customers. By year end, all SNET service representatives, as well as service order clerks and cashiers, will have microfiche trays and readers on their desks to quickly handle customer inquiries. At present, representatives in many public offices have to call a records office for information on customer accounts. Or they must go to the one desk in the business office that contains the customer's records and dig through reams of paper files to find the information before answering the customer's question. Because of the time savings gained from giving customers faster service, we estimate the COMBO will have paid for itself six months after our last business office acquires the system in December," Toothaker said. He added that COMBO is an interim step to an even more efficient system, eventually all business office positions will be connected directly to a computer data bank which will even eliminate the need for microfiche.

New technique in Rhody

Oyster farming improves

PRUDENCE ISLAND, R.I. (UPI) — The contraction floating in the man-made pond on this little island looks like a dock covered with wire mesh instead of planks. Luther Blount says it will revolutionize oyster farming. Hanging off the 150 by 75 foot patented structure are 600,000 oysters. Come September 1979, Blount says each one will be "nice and plump" and ready to serve raw on the halfshell with a touch of cocktail sauce and lemon. Blount, 62, is a craggy shipbuilder whose sentimental feelings for oysters date back to childhood. He is intent on perfecting his oyster farming technique and at the same time repopulating Narragansett Bay with oysters. Blount recalls that as a child in the 1930s, he would pick the wild mollusks from the shores of the bay. Then — during the Depression — so many people needed money that all the oysters were picked to be sold, he said. Now, if his new method is successful, he expects to grow at least 500,000 oysters annually from his pond on this 8-mile long island. The larvae from the oysters will be free to float into the bay and repopulate it, he said. "If all I ever do is bring oysters back to the bay, boy, I'll feel that I really did a job." Blount built his 200 by 75 foot oyster pond on a part of Prudence Island that is only three-eighths of a mile wide. Natural estuaries let the bay's tide waters flow from one side of the island to the other, right through his pond. The moon's tidal powers push 4 to 6 million gallons of water through the pond daily, bringing the dense oyster population a constantly fresh supply of oxygen and food. The sun acts as a natural heater to warm the 4-foot deep pond. "You bring in all the water laden with nutrients and oxygen and the oyster is going to grow at the optimum rate. Like with a human, you give him good sunshine and good food, and you're going to have a robust boy," Blount said. The oysters grow on scallop shells attached to 10 gauge wires suspended from his floating grid. It holds 7,000 wires, each with eight scallop shells three inches apart. The grid's capacity is about 1 million oysters.

Computer dating system is building a better cow

BRATTLEBORO, Vt. (UPI) — There's nothing new about computer dating services for people. But the Holstein-Friesian Association of America has added a new wrinkle: It's using their computer to match up cows and bulls. "We are now using new technology to build a better cow," said one spokesman. It hasn't produced any storybook romances, but HFA officials say it has resulted in a dramatic improvement in the milk production of Holsteins — the country's most popular dairy breed. "The average type is constantly improving throughout the country," said public information officer Lois Seter. "I think some of that has to be credited to this (computer)." The first batch of oysters went in when the pond and grid were completed last summer. Although most oysters need three or four years to grow to maturity, about 2 1/2 inches wide, Blount expects his to be ready by September 1979. improve and promote the breed, which spokesmen say accounts for 90 percent of the nation's dairy cattle. In addition, HFA owns a commercial subsidiary which offers technical services to dairymen in such areas as marketing, breed development and herd management. According to HFA Program Development and Research Director Ray Kiewer, the identities of more than 10 million registered Holstein cattle, dating back almost 100 years, are stored either on microfilm or in the memory banks of the organization's computer. That system allows the parentage, pedigree and characteristics of any registered cow or bull to be determined almost instantly. Top registered bulls are also listed in a booklet that includes general data about them, their production records, physical characteristics and traits that can be expected in their offspring. Registered cows also are rated by the HFA's teams of evaluators. Farmer-members can thus determine their herd's weak points, consult the listing of available sires, and select genetic improvements by individually matching each cow with the bulls most likely to produce better offspring. As a result of the program, Kiewer said, the average Holstein has improved milk production by 1,000 pounds over a four year period. The key to the system is artificial insemination. Any HFA member has available frozen semen from thousands of bulls across the country. According to the HFA, some 75 percent of the cows are bred artificially.

This brand new siding from Johns-Manville doesn't do what other sidings do. (And that's why it's so much better.)

Doesn't show scratches. Driftgrain's color goes all the way through so scratches don't show.

Doesn't rot or corrode. Unlike metal siding, vinyl siding is resistant to weather.

Doesn't dent. High end baseballs make their marks on metal siding but not on vinyl.

Doesn't peel, blister, chip or crack. The color of Driftgrain is 40 times as thick as the color on painted siding.

Doesn't ever need repainting. Maintenance-free vinyl is the only siding that never needs repainting.

Doesn't rot. Vinyl is totally resistant to rot.

Doesn't show its age. All siding looks good when it's new. Driftgrain stays that way.

Doesn't sound like a drum when it rains. Vinyl siding is much quieter than metal siding in a hailstorm.

Doesn't interfere with your TV. Metal siding can adversely affect your TV reception. Not vinyl.

Doesn't conduct electricity. Vinyl siding is safe during electrical storms.

Doesn't support combustion. Protecting your family and belongings is always important.

Asner's success story

By VERNON SCOTT
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Seven or eight months ago Ed Asner, normally a gruffly warm and amusing man, was just plain gruff and irritable. He had grown accustomed to winning as a costar of "The Mary Tyler Moore Show," one of the most popular situation comedy series in the history of the tube. For seven years Asner had good reason to be cheerful. Last fall he embarked on a new series, an hour-long drama of a metropolitan newspaper editor, "Lou Grant." His character was the same as on Mary's show. After eight episodes "Lou Grant" was in danger of being canceled by CBS. Asner and company, in fact, were getting their brains beaten out by the opposition. MTM, headed by Grant Tinker, backed the show with a top budget and some of the best brains in Hollywood, including its troupe of producers, Allan Burns, Gene Reynolds and Jim Brooks, all veterans of "The Mary Tyler Moore Show." The scripts were of high quality, production values unstinting and the cast was both attractive and gifted. But the opposition all but blew the fledgling series out of the pond. In its first three weeks the "Lou Grant" show was pitted against a baseball playoff game and two World Series games. In its fourth week the series faced the first televising of "The Godfather," followed the next week by a gangbuster two-hour "Police Story."

Arts center needs funds

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts needs financial help. Trustees of the center named for the late president asked Congress for legislation waiving millions of dollars in bonding interest, and requested that the National Park Service take over maintenance costs. "I don't know what the alternative is," a spokesman said. But another official said the center is merely attempting to resolve its financial problems before they reach crisis proportions. The center's main trouble stems from compounded interest on $20.4 million in 50-year revenue bonds which paid for the parking garage. The rest of the building was financed by $55 million in private donations and $25 million in matching federal funds. The Government Accounting Office reported last winter the center has been filling its halls to more than 80 percent of capacity, and raising substantial private funds, but the income is not enough to maintain the center and fund the free educational and public service programs mandated by Congress.

Coming Onassis wedding worries Greek officials

ATHENS, Greece (UPI) — The forthcoming wedding of Christina Onassis, daughter of the late shipping tycoon Aristotle Onassis, to a Soviet official worries some Greek business and security officials. Family friends revealed Tuesday the heiress to Onassis' $500 million fortune will marry Sergei Kauzoff, 40, an executive of the Soviet state shipping line, Sovfracht, by Monday. Christina, 27 and twice divorced, met Kauzoff while he was on assignment in Paris last year and followed him to Moscow when he was called home. Onassis family friends report. Confirmation of the long-romanced union was brought to Athens from Moscow by former Onassis associate and shipowner Costas Gratos, who said preparations for the wedding were complete. Onassis died in March 1975, leaving most of his $500 million shipping, real estate, tourism and aviation empire to Christina, his only surviving child. The rest of the Onassis estate went to his widow, Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis, but later was bought out by Christina for $25 million. A family friend said Soviet law provides for separate property holdings and will allow Christina to retain control of her fortune and enterprises. But it "still will be controlled from within the Soviet Union," he said. Greek security officials voiced concern over the island of Skorpios off western Greece, which Christina owns outright after buying Jacqueline's one-fourth share. "It is one thing for Onassis or Niarchos or any legal Greek to have their own island, but the idea of a Soviet official controlling Skorpios poses several problems," a security official said. Another apparent problem concerns Kauzoff's freedom to leave the Soviet Union after the wedding. A friend of Christina's father, who asked not to be identified because of his official status in Greece, said "If they are allowed to live abroad there will be no problem, but if she has to live there all the time it will be said." "I hate to think that Christina will have to live in a two-room apartment in Moscow and that she will have to wash dishes," he said. Christina divorced her first husband, California Realtor Joseph Bolker, a few months after their 1971 marriage. In 1975, within a few months of her father's death, she married Alexandros Andreas, 34-year-old heir of a Greek shipping and banking magnate, but that also ended in divorce after 14 months.

Owner tries to save gilded Fox theater

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — The Fox Theater, one of America's last gilded, roccoco movie houses, may become a white elephant. James H. Arthur, 69, president of Arthur Enterprises Inc., which controlled 40 theaters in the 1940s, announced this spring the Fox no longer would show weekly motion pictures. Instead, it would try to stay open with live shows and special attractions. "In ancient days, 25 or 30 years ago, theaters were built in the central location of a city," Arthur said. "But there has been a tremendous movement out of the cities, and people now don't want to drive downtown to see a movie." But what the movie goes left behind is much more than a theater. "What the Fox really is," Arthur said, "is mankind put to work, given the freedom because the money was available, to exert the greatest in artistic creation." The Missouri Advisory Council on Historic Preservation recommended the Fox be registered as a national landmark, calling it "the last opulent movie house in the nation." The state's historic preservation officer said the Fox "has tremendous architectural significance." At its peak, the Fox had more than 250 people on the payroll, a barber and tailor shop in the basement, and three organs — including a Wurliitzer that rose majestically from the pit in front of the stage. Giant marble pillars line the lobby where guests confront a pair of gilded lions, their eyes twinkling with orange lights. A globe-shaped, 2½-ton chandelier in the central decoration of the 10-story-high, domed ceiling. The theater cost about $5 million to build. To duplicate it now would cost 10 times that amount.

Michigan plane crash nurses have been worse

KALAMAZOO, Mich. (UPI) — It had the makings of a major air disaster — 43 passengers and crew members, 11,200 pounds of fuel, fog and engine failure. Authorities say it was a miracle no one was killed.

A North Central Airlines prop jet carrying 43 people lost power shortly after takeoff from Kalamazoo-Battle Creek Regional Airport Tuesday and crashed in a fog-shrouded cornfield about one mile away.

"They said if they ever had to go down again, they would want him (pilot Harold Moe) at the controls," said Michael Fisher, a spokesman at Bronson Medical Center where the 21 people injured in the crash were treated.

"I never saw anything like it," said Charles Smith, the farmer who owns the field where the plane skidded to a halt.

"I heard the engine and it sounded different. Not nothing. The sound just cut off like someone turned off the key," Smith said.

Smith said by the time he got outside, everyone already had gotten off the plane.

"They were walking like they were getting off a plane at the airport. One guy asked me if he could use my phone to call his wife. When she got here she was in a lot worse shape than any of the passengers," Smith said.

Thirty-one of those on board were treated at Bronson Medical Center, but only six required substantial treatment and only two of those were admitted.

Newspaper will appeal reporter's notes case

TRENTON, N.J. (UPI) — The New York Times intends to appeal a New Jersey Supreme Court decision upholding a lower court order sending a reporter to prison for refusing to hand over his notes in the case of a doctor charged with murder.

The state's high court ruled, 5-1, Tuesday against reporter Myron Farber and the Times. Only Justice Morris Fashman dissented from the majority.

But Farber was allowed to remain free pending an appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court. The state Supreme Court gave Farber and the Times until noon Friday to file the appeal.

Farber's notes are wanted by the defense in the trial of 51-year-old Dr. Andrew, head of the largest of four major postal unions, sent mailgrams to major postal workers' locals urging them to abide by the results of mail balloting on the proposed contract. Those results are expected to be completed in about two weeks.

On March 18, 1970, postal workers in New York City walked off their jobs and were soon followed by the rest of the nation in the first strike in the federal postal system's history. The walkout lasted eight days.

During the strike, President Nixon ordered National Guardsmen to help restore mail service in New York City — the first time in U.S. history that soldiers were called in to replace federal police.

During negotiations on the present proposed contract, the Pentagon said it was ready to provide as many as 90,000 troops to answer any presidential call to postal duty.

Postal strike likely to start in New York

By United Press International

Eight years ago the nation's first postal strike began with a New York City walkout. Some union leaders say they believe the nation's second mail strike will start next week.

Since the proposed national postal contract was agreed upon in Washington last week, there have been wildcat strikes at bulk mail centers in California and New Jersey.

The U.S. Postal Service seems to have weakened those walkouts by firing almost 100 strikers and imposing more dismissals as soon as other wildcat strikers can be identified from pictures and videotapes.

In Jersey City, N.J., where 40 workers were fired, a spokesman for the New York Bulk and Foreign Mail Center said about 60 percent of its workers showed up Tuesday — up 20 per cent from Monday.

Attendance at the San Francisco Bulk Mail Center in suburban Richmond, where 42 workers were fired, was reported as about 70 percent Tuesday.

But the most serious threat to mail service so far will come Monday when some 25,000 New York City postal workers will vote to decide whether to strike. A union spokesman said if the vote is yes, the walkout probably will start at dawn Tuesday.

Joe Biller, leader of the New York City local, predicted a New York City strike would mean a national mail strike.

Leaders of a number of postal union locals around the country, who said their members were against the proposed contract, said they would be watching the New York strike vote.

In Washington, Ernest Andrews, president of the American Postal Workers Union, said Tuesday he did not think a New York City strike would mean a national walkout.

"I don't think everybody's going to blow the situation in New York," he said. "In fact, it is questionable in some people's mind whether members in New York will vote to hold a strike."

Panel OKs coin of suffragette

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Susan B. Anthony has advanced a step toward becoming the first woman to have her image on a coin of the United States.

A House subcommittee, voting Tuesday to author a new 1-cent coin, agreed the famous suffragette — rather than the symbolic Miss Liberty — should be on the coin.

The Treasury Department pushed Miss Liberty, but women's groups lobbied vigorously for the image of an actual woman.

The full banking panel is expected to consider the bill before Congress recesses Aug. 18.

The Treasury estimated that issuance of dollars annually in printing costs — the new metal dollar will replace the unpopular Eisenhower version. It will be smaller than a half dollar but larger than a quarter.

Cruise missiles flop

SAN CLEMENTE ISLAND, Calif. (UPI) — Two cruise missiles, the weapon the Carter administration is depending on to fill in for more expensive weapons that won't be built, were test fired from a submarine publicly for the first time Tuesday, with Defense Secretary Harold Brown looking on.

Both flopped.

"We've just had a second complete failure," a Navy officer's voice announced over a loudspeaker to Brown and reporters, watching the test from a barren island off the coast of Southern California.

The second $1.7 million weapon had just splashed harmlessly into the ocean.

"That completes the events for the day."

Both missiles broke the water's surface, propelled by booster engines, but the cruise engines failed to ignite.

Designers said they apparently had not liked the problem of keeping salt water out of the rocket engine as it rises to the surface.

"Some times they'll work and some times they won't," Brown philosophized. "The two failures did not change my view at all about the cruise missile program — particularly the air launched missile," he

Addict-run rehab centers become a political issue

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (UPI)—An experimental drug addict rehabilitation program, run mainly by reformed junkies, has become a multimillion dollar crusade that is shaking Puerto Rico's political structure.

Hogares Crea, as the program is known, began 10 years ago when a former addict who had just left jail—Juan Jose Garcia—opened a home to treat four junkies with assistance from health department professionals.

Garcia, a soft-spoken but tenacious man, raised money and won assistance from businessmen, health officials, and politicians and formed a network of rehabilitation homes. In the process, he won a pardon from Gov. Luis Ferrer for conviction on drug possession.

Known as "Che Juan" to his friends, Garcia at the age of 37 now directs 60 Hogares Crea (literally "Creative Homes") where he claims 3,000 junkies are under treatment.

One Hogar Crea has been established in Bethlehem, Pa., and five have been set up in the Dominican Republic.

Another 20 are being planned for New York's South Bronx. This effort is receiving support from New York State Sen. Olga Mendez, who recently visited Puerto Rico and was impressed with Hogares Crea.

The program has set off a political uproar between the two major political parties in Puerto Rico, the pro-statehood New Progressive party and the pro-Commonwealth Popular Democratic party.

About $750,000 of Hogares Crea's $2.5 million annual budget comes from the Puerto Rico government, and it receives about 17.7 percent of all the government money granted to charitable organizations.

Garcia was expecting the legislature to grant him another $200,000 this year for the project's expansion, especially into a retreat service in penal institutions.

The increase failed because of opposition from Gov. Carlos Romero Barcelo, the chief of the New Progressive party that controls the legislative majority.

The governor said he wanted to see more concrete proof of results and told a mass meeting of Hogares Crea members and backers that "we can't continue giving money away like this."

Rafael Hernandez Colon, a former Governor and president of the Popular Democratic party, accused Romero at the same rally of increasing the public bureaucracy while denying $250,000 "to an organization with a history of significant achievements."

Garcia said in an interview he is fed up with dealing with politicians. "You can't trust them," he said.

"They will promise you money one day and the next day it's not there."

He said the Hogares Crea must work to become financially self-reliant, engaging in more small industries and businesses to raise money—small farming, street sales of consumer items, repair shops and gasoline stations.

The inmates of Hogares Crea are put through a rigorous, military-style re-education and rehabilitation routine that normally takes from two to three years.

The process is voluntary, but discipline is strict, and residents are required to go through an intricate series of graduate stages of therapy before they are released.

The first step is known as "detoxification"—a fast stage of withdrawal that Hogares Crea leaders say removes physical dependence on drugs. The tougher and more prolonged treatment is psychological and is far more difficult, they say.

"It takes about 40 days for a methadone addict, three or four days for a heroin addict," said Garcia. "We've found that methadone is much tougher to treat."

Methadone has been used on the mainland for treatment of addicts, but its use has fallen into disrepute because it has become just as addictive as heroin and other hard drugs.

FIX IT Herb Alexander

By HERB ALEXANDER
A garden walk can be both useful and attractive. It is the sort of project a homeowner can complete in a weekend or work on occasionally through the summer. The materials are varied in appearance, style and price. Some can be used in combination with others.

When most people think of a path through a garden, they think in terms of flagstone. They are expensive but you can cut down on costs by using them as stepping stones instead of trying to make a solid path.

If you are just going to flop them on top of the ground, the thicker and heavier ones are better, more stable. For a more formal walk, dig out enough earth for about two inches of sand to serve as a base. This will compensate for different thicknesses of stone. Make wood forms for the walk before pouring the sand. If you want to make it a semi-permanent walk, the easy way is to sweep in a mixture of one part cement, two parts fine sand or a ready-mix of about the same proportions) and, with the cracks filled, set down with a fine spray of water.

For a really permanent walk, make a standard concrete walk for a base first—about four inches of gravel and a couple of inches of concrete. Place the stones, sweep the dry mix into the cracks as mentioned above and wet down.

Bricks make an attractive walk and can be set in a bed of sand or in a concrete base just as flagstone. Since they are regular in shape, they are easier to butt together for a smooth walk.

Wood makes a different and attractive path. Whatever wood you use should be treated with a preservative. Redwood, cypress and cedar will be the most durable but you can make others durable by treating them.

Two-inch slabs cut from logs can be set in sand or right in the soil for a quick and easy walkway. Old railroad ties, cut into blocks, can be used the way you would bricks. If you plan to make your wooden path more lasting by setting the pieces in concrete, make certain the wood rests on gravel and not the concrete. This will allow for better drainage and lengthen the life of the wood.

Gravel, crushed stone and other loose material can make an appealing walk. Mix colors and textures for effect. To keep the material from scattering, edge the walk with wood strips or bricks set in the ground. Make the path about two inches thick.

Stones such as pebbles can be edged with a line of larger stones, since they do not scatter as easily.

With time, patience and a little energy, you can make your own paving material. Use a concrete mix or make your own of one part cement, two parts sand and three parts gravel.

Make forms out of 1x2 lumber, about 20 inches wide, 2 1/2 feet long. Put the form on newspaper, fill with mix and smooth it off. You can use the slab as is or break it for irregular shapes. Or save work—dig wide, shallow holes (about two inches deep) where the path is to be and fill with concrete.

On second thought We're going to miss y'all

By Jan Warren

About the time I had conquered the Mississippi fire ant problem, learned to make a crisp meringue in 103 degree weather, and acquired a sweet-as-honey southern accent ... my husband announced that he'd accepted a new job and we were moving again to a state 915 miles away.

It means leaving Miller's Drygoods Store where overalls, onion sets, upholstered furniture, fine ladies fashions and a complete line of groceries are available under one roof.

It means leaving in the middle of the "Mexican Fiesta" dinnerware sale at the local gas station and having to live the rest of my life with a closet full of "Mexican Fiesta" saucers and no cups.

It means leaving Mississippi fish fries that boasts catfish, hush puppies, and cole slaw with boiled dressing. When the frying is done outdoors in big black iron pots, it's almost as much fun as the New England clam bake.

It means leaving a paperboy who not only remembers to tuck the paper under the doormat but embellishes the news with juicy tidbits. For example, when a respected local banker absconded with $10,000, he filled us in on the local woman who drove him to it. One thing we don't have to leave behind ... thank goodness ... is our southern accents.

Fourteen-year old John has developed the best one in the family and I'm sure it will open many doors to him.

For example, I think John will win over the girls in our new neighborhood with his Bluet Butler droll. I KNOW he'll win over their mothers with his courtly "Yes, Ma'ams!"

Revenge: a shark barbecue

NEW YORK (UPI) — Barbecued mako shark with bacon and mushrooms is as easy to prepare as barbecued hamburgers, steak or chicken.

If you can't get mako, substitute 1 1/2 inch chunks of a Pacific coast variety of lake sturgeon or any firm-fleshed fish, suggests George Morlogon, who supervised the preparation of shark four ways at the Oyster Bar Restaurant for a promotion lunch on behalf of the movie "Jaws 2."

His directions: marinate the chunks in lime or lemon juice and salt and pepper for a couple of hours at room temperature. Wrap each chunk in a bacon strip to taste and keep it from falling apart.

Cut stems of 1 1/2-inch diameter mushroom caps off flush with the bottoms of the caps, and skewer the caps alternately with the fish chunks, running the skewers through the bacon-wrapped stems. Start and end each skewer with mushrooms.

Brush the food with peanut or corn oil and broil about 6 minutes per side in a preheated broiler. If you use an outdoor grill, adjust the time as necessary to cook the fish. Baste first with oil and sprinkle lightly with salt and pepper and bread or cracker crumbs. When you turn the skewers, baste with the lime marinade and oil. Serve with lemon wedges.

Save a life

DEAR DR. LAMB — In one of your columns answering a letter about heart attacks you mentioned that all adults should know how to aid someone who is having a heart attack. Do you think you could send me information on how to do this or discuss it in your column?

I'm sure this would be important to millions of people if they knew how to administer first aid to a person having a heart attack. I believe you stated it would save a great many lives.

DEAR READER — Yes, I have mentioned that and I'm sending you "The Health Letter" number 7-4.

Save a Life: Heart and Lung Arrest. Other readers who want this issue describing the simple mechanics of the first aid procedure for heart attack victims can send 50 cents with a self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of The Manchester Evening Herald, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

This issue describes how to maintain the circulation if the heart stops pumping effectively and also what to do about providing mouth to mouth respiration. We sometimes call this the A.B.C.'s of respiration and circulation. I do think every adult should have an awareness of how important it is to do this procedure is done. In addition, most communities either through the Red Cross Chapter or their local heart association offer courses for adults to learn how to do this procedure.

I would strongly encourage all of my readers to investigate this possibility and learn what to do in the case of an emergency. It has already been proved that in communities where most of the citizens know how to do this, the death rate from heart attacks before people get to the hospital is cut in about half. That's because no matter where a person is when he has a heart attack, there is usually someone nearby who is able to provide adequate first aid assistance until competent professional help can be obtained.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Is it possible for a woman who had a sterilization operation to have it undone? According to her operation was done through her naval which in the end sealed her tubes. She said that there is an operation that can undo this and I said there isn't. Now this has become so out of hand that I would appreciate it if you will kindly settle this matter with an answer.

DEAR READER — She's right at least up to a point. We do know that when the tubes are tied or sealed that they can be operated on surgically and the blockage removed or the cut ends reconnected.

The highest success rate with this has been with microsurgery where the surgeon can actually observe what's going on under a microscope. It's fairly delicate surgery and not all such operations are successful. Successful results may occur in only one out of four such operations.

There is always the problem of scar formation that occurs around any cut and the tubes must be open for the operation to be a success. But technically it does happen in some cases.

Because of the unpredictability and difficulty in obtaining success, any woman who has a sterilization operation should consider it as a permanent birth control procedure and not something that she can have reversed at will at some later date.

Buying meat in bulk

In these days of high food prices many people are trying to cut their grocery bills by buying meat in bulk. This can be an effective means of saving money, but caution is advised before entering into any contract.

bulk, each pound costs you the same whether it is steak, roast or hamburger. You might end up paying more for the inevitable ground beef which will make up much of your purchase.

For your information, a side of beef or a quarter is usually sold as "hanging weight"; which means you pay for all of it, bones and excess fat included.

An average side of beef weighing 300 pounds will yield about 225 pounds of edible meat to take home, but you will pay for the entire 300 pounds, including the approximately 75 pounds of fat and bone. This means the actual cost of the edible meat will be higher than the listed cost per pound. The average beef carcass will yield 25 percent steaks, 25 percent roasts, 25 percent ground beef and 25 percent waste.

Use care in selecting the quality of meat you want or you may not be satisfied with your purchase. Although all meat offered for sale in this state must be federally inspected, you may not find the stamps for the two types of grading - by quality and by yield grades, on meat offered for sale at retail.

One more thing - don't forget to find out if the cost of cutting and wrapping the meat is included in the price per pound or if the charge is extra.

Answer to questions of general interest will appear in this column. Address questions to: "Of Consumer Concern," Department of Consumer Protection, State Office Building, Hartford, 06115.

Q Some of the laws passed by the 1978 General Assembly won't take effect until some time in the future. Would you explain these laws and tell me when they take effect?

A Two laws in particular affect motor vehicle operations - right turn on red and emissions inspection.

The "Right Turns on Red Traffic Lights" Act takes effect on July 1, 1979, and applies to all such lights, unless a sign has been posted at a signal prohibiting the movement.

The act concerning the control of motor vehicle emissions takes effect on Jan. 1, 1979. It says that the Commissioner of Motor Vehicles "shall provide for the commencement of vehicle emissions inspections on Jan. 2, 1980, and provide for the initial emissions inspections during 1980."

The act concerning the control of motor vehicle emissions takes effect on Jan. 2, 1980, and provides for the initial emissions inspections during 1980.

Flounces: a bully look

By ELLIE GROSSMAN NEW YORK (NEA) - The word for flounces is "bull." The people who potty around digging up old pottery shards and dental floss can cry out, "No, it isn't!" but we're telling this story and bull is the word.

First of all, you know what a flounce is because it's flaring out all over the place this summer. It comes on skirts in tiers, one after the other, or sometimes just hangs there by itself on the bottom.

They came from a bull. The pottery people are going to say there are cave drawings around showing women wearing long, bell-shaped tunics or skin skirts and that flounces started then.

Or that the people running around the Near East when Sumer was the going civilization started it because they - "They" often being men - liked to climb into sheepskins sewn up in one fleecy flounce after another.

They're going to say the idea was copied when people started making clothes out of cloth because you could weave that and didn't necessarily have to hit an animal over the head to get it.

So there they were, bare-breasted, bell-hipped, flaunting their flounces and sometimes wearing a couple of inverted pots on their heads for added spark.

The bull comes into the picture because at that time the big thing in Crete was earthquakes. No one knew when one was coming, but everyone knew what was causing them: that big bull, the earth-shaker who'd moved in under the island, who knew when, without even signing a lease.

Cookbooks good gifts

By JEANNE LEBEIM UPI Family Editor

What do you take the weekend host or hostess whose country kitchen and patio already look like a fancy farmhouse?

Fire & Smoke by Maggie Waldron (101 Productions $2.95 hardcover, $4.95 paper) is a natural for indoor cooking fans, a superlative collection of charcoal cooking recipes divided according to nations of origin.

Another welcome gift, this one for working wives, would be Jean Hewitt's Family Circle Quick Menu Cookbook (Times Books $10.95).

Some of the best lasting recipes are the simplest: recipes cooked in marsala or sherry and butter, cold first courses of rice-stuffed tomatoes and peppers with a bread stuffing lacy with anchovies, capers, currants, pine nuts and olives.

Among the desserts are amaretti, delectable little almond-flavored macarons, expensive to buy but not to make; and the best cannoli we've ever eaten.

Home cooks who pride themselves on doing everything from scratch with non-electric utensils and appliances are sure to rally round Robert Farrar Capon, author of Food for Thought (Harcourt Brace Jovanovich $7.95).

His irreverent attitude toward the kitchen gadget revolution of the 1970s and the writing of cooking instructions are refreshing in a publishing area overburdened with pontificators.

As an example: his directions for Moros y Christianos, a Spanish-style dish of rice and beans, call for cooking them "the consistency of latex housepaint with little lumps in it."

Planned incompetence?

DEAR DR. BLAKER— When I went back to work after 15 years of staying home with the children, I knew I was going to have problems with my husband. But I never expected such frustration!

We discussed the change for several months before I took the job. It seemed as though everything would work out fine.

Although he admitted it would be hard to do things he had never done around the house, he agreed it would be hard to do things he had never done around the house. He agreed it would be hard to do things he had never done around the house.

Pierro-Kozlovich

Mr. and Mrs. Gary J. Pierro

In the service

Navy Boiler Technician Fireman Apprentice David A. Wentworth, son of James and Nancy P. Wentworth of 37 River Mead Blvd., East Hartford, recently visited Pusan, South Korea. He is assigned to the destroyer USS Hull, homeported in San Diego and operating as a unit of the U.S. Seventh Fleet in the Western Pacific.

Air Force Outstanding Unit Award—Sang Yong IX near Pohang, South Korea, along with other Navy and Marine Corps units, plus units from the Republic of Korea. During the remaining cruise, Hull is scheduled to participate in various training exercises with other Seventh Fleet units and those of allied nations. Port visits are scheduled in several Far Eastern countries.

A 1977 graduate of Penney High School, Wentworth joined the Navy in July 1977.

Diane Marie Kozlovich and Gary James Pierro, both of Manchester, were married June 24 at St. Mary's Church in Manchester.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Kozlovich of 122 Sunny Brook Drive. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Pierro of 181 Dartmouth Road.

The Rev. Stephen Jacobson of St. Mary's Church officiated at the single-ring ceremony. The church was decorated with pink gladioluses and white carnations. Kenneth Woods of Manchester was organist and Debbie LaRoche of Cheshire was soloist. Gary Kozlovich of Manchester, the bride's brother, served as acolyte for the service.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore an ivory chiffon gown designed with Bishop sleeves, venise lace-covered bodice, sheer English net yoke and full skirt with attached chapel train. Her chapel-length veil was edged with matching lace and attached to a lace headpiece. She carried a cascade bouquet of pink roses, stephanotis, baby's breath and English ivy.

Kathryn L. Kozlovich of Manchester was her sister's maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Judy Corbett of Manchester, Mrs. John Antoski of Coventry, Miss Mary McGuire of Bristol, Mrs. Libby Leary of Waterville, Maine, and Miss Wendy Pierro and Miss Nancy Pierro, both of Manchester and sisters of the bridegroom. Rebecca Stevens and Lisa Sainia, both of Middletown and cousins of the bridegroom, were flower girls.

William Troy of Manchester served as best man. Ushers were John Antoski of Coventry; Dennis Burtleigh of East Hartford; Paul Richard of Brockton, Mass.; Rob Snyder and Joe DiMinico, both of Manchester; and David Kozlovich of Manchester, the bride's brother. Steven Salafia of Middletown, the bride's cousin, was ring bearer.

A reception was held at Willie's Steak House in Manchester, after which the couple left for Nantucket, Mass. For traveling, Mrs. Pierro wore an off-white pantsuit.

Mrs. Pierro received a bachelor of arts degree from the University of Hartford this year. Mr. Pierro received a bachelor of arts degree from the University of Connecticut in 1973 in biology and is employed as a sales engineer for Henry Sansons & Sons of Bristol, Pa. (McKinney photo)

Bolton beefsteak draws record-breaking crowd

Enjoying the festivities under the striped tent at the Bolton Fire Department's annual beefsteak Saturday are, from left, Sandra Broda of Birch Mountain Road, Bolton; Louise Braider of Florida; and Helen Soma, also of Birch Mountain Road. More than 10,000 braved the near record-breaking temperatures to attend the two-day event on the grounds of the Bolton Riding Academy. (Herald photo by Betty Ryder)

Fashion and beauty tips

For neat, trim braids, minutes in a solution of warm water, soap and baby oil.

Full illusion— Too thin? Create the illusion of a fuller figure by wearing pants with full, unpressed pleats and tops with tucks and yokes.

Never match an argyle or patterned sock with a stripe shoe. One or the other should be a solid color.

How-to: Hint— Camouflage low-legs under skirts that reach to mid-calf, or hide them in side pants.

The original plan of the U.S. Capitol was drawn by Dr. William Thornton of Toronto, West Indies, and accepted April 5, 1793.

POLLY'S POINTERS

DEAR POLLY— I have a synthetic suede suit and after returning from dinner at a restaurant found I had "set on some wax" that had dripped from a candle. I "scraped the big pieces off but how can I remove the remaining stains?" — DOROTHY

DEAR DOROTHY— I think you should take your suit to a cleaner who specializes in suede. Anything strong enough to remove the stains may take the finish along with it. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY— I sprinkle automatic dishwasher soap in scoured pots, pans or glass baking dishes and let them set overnight. The next day all the scorch will slip away without much scrubbing. — MRS. H.C.B.

DEAR POLLY— To keep my dish cloths looking clean from wash to wash I keep a bar of soap by the sink. Before using them to wash the sink I rub soap on them and it works. — MARIE

DEAR POLLY— I save all the string that comes on packages and use it to crochet durable dish cloths. I also crochet six small granny squares and sew them together to form a ball, fill this with plastic bags and have a fine ball that children can throw indoors without fear of breaking the lamp. Also, I cut plastic bags into one-inch strips and crochet them into very pretty, durable floor mats. Granny squares are also good for this.

For camping or outdoor use I put pillows in plastic laundry bags and then cover with a zippered pillow case. The pillows stay fresh and dry. The zipper is to keep the children away from the plastic bags. Colorful wash cloths sewn together with fringe on them make pretty pillows that can also be inexpensive gifts.

I cover my old torn blankets with squares of leftover material that I have sewn together to make inexpensive quilts that enhance any room. To get the quilted effect I draw lines diagonally across the blanket squares and sew along these lines on the sewing machine. — DIANE

DEAR POLLY— I have found a way to end the searching for that certain recipe using a special product, mix or ingredient that I might not otherwise buy. Instead of putting the recipe in one of my many cookbooks or files I now tape it to the special product used in the recipe. When replacing the product I tape the recipe to the new container and it has proven to be a real time saver. — D.E.
