The two occupants of the van towing this utility trailer and car were not injured late Tuesday morning when the van flipped over on its side on Interstate Highway 86, between exits 92 and 93. State police said a tire blowout on the trailer caused the operator to lose control of the vehicle which jackknifed into the guard rails. The driver, Wayne R. Ricker, 22, of 48 Prospect St., Rockville, was issued a warning for unsafe tires. (Herald photo by Pinto)

Murphy will replace Dr. Danyliw on MHA

James Murphy will be appointed to the Manchester Housing Authority to replace Dr. Joseph Danyliw. Danyliw's five-year term expired last month. The new term, to be served by Murphy, will begin this month and last until 1982. The appointment of someone to the term on the MHA was scheduled to be made at Tuesday night's meeting of the Board of Directors. The meeting was recessed before the item was reached, and it will be acted on next week.

Before the meeting ended, however, Stephen Penny, chairman of the board, said that Murphy would be the new appointment to the MHA. Penny was responding to a question from Frank Lupien of 21 Sunset St., who asked whether Danyliw had been "drummed out of the corps."

Building Committee makes changes in construction

By SUSAN VAUGHN
Herald Reporter

The Town Building Committee authorized Tuesday night change orders for the reconstruction projects at the Bentley School and the Manchester Police Station.

The committee lacked by one member a necessary quorum of five to take an official vote, but Donald Kasch, secretary and acting chairman, said and the chairman of the committee have the authority to make change orders and that a vote is not necessary. Paul Phillips, chairman of the committee who was ill Tuesday night, said today that he had the authority to make minor change orders. He also said he had consulted with the architects before the meeting on the proposed changes.

The two major changes authorized included $4,578 to replace all the water pipes in Bentley School and $7,725 for additional renovations to a main corridor in the police station, a shower stall in the officers' locker room and a steel ladder to the roof.

Architect Richard Mankey said the decision by the committee on replacing the pipes in Bentley was highly important at this time because the decision was holding up the work on the entire project. Mankey said at least two major pipes in the old school have started to leak since construction began. He said he feels the pipes are bad throughout the building. They are the

Eight CETA jobs ended to keep program going

The Manchester Board of Directors Tuesday night approved a plan that would end eight Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA) jobs this month.

Four of the employees have found jobs elsewhere. The other four are workers on projects for which funding has expired.

The elimination of the eight Title VI jobs will save about $13,000 in the town's CETA expenditures. The town has to save just under $300,000 in program expenditures to help offset a projected $400,000 deficit in the town's CETA expenditures. Opinion

Presidential papers

Once again the issue of presidential papers has come before a congressional panel. A House Government Operations subcommittee has approved legislation which would declare papers accumulated by a president to be public property, subject only to the provision that some of those papers could be kept sealed for 10 years following a presidential term.

Traditionally, presidential papers have become the property of the chief executive to dispose of as he saw fit. In recent years most presidents have elected to donate their papers to libraries built for that purpose. Most of the material has been made available for public use, with some exceptions.

Other editors say:

Don Sutton, a strong young man who earns his livelihood hurling a baseball for the Los Angeles Dodgers, was thrown out of a game for allegedly scratching the ball with his fingernail.

Immediately upon his ejection, Mr. Sutton announced that he was suing the offending umpire, Douglas Harvey, and the National League for "depriving me of my rights to earn a living as a pitcher."

Basis of the threatened lawsuit was the possibility that baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn could have suspended Mr. Sutton for 10 days because of his transgression. Kuhn, never particularly noted for his firmness unless dealing with Charles O. Finley, refused to suspend Mr. Sutton for even three minutes.

Commissioner Kuhn's failure to back his umpire in this instance appears to stem not so much from Mr. Sutton's innocence, but as from a fear of going to court with the attendant expenses and notoriety.

Byrd: He makes the trains run on time

Byrd climbed to the top of the leadership ladder as a hard-working technician with a gift for bringing some order into the chaos which served as the normal operating procedure in the Senate.

The Nixon papers and tapes, Congress passed a law turning White House papers of his administration over to the General Services Administration. Some of the papers of earlier presidents, taken with them when they left the White House, have been lost. Some also have been deliberately destroyed.

If the subcommittee's wishes eventually become law, there should be less chance of that happening in the future. The Nixon precedent is a good opportunity to make the change permanently. The public, after all, paid for the accumulation of this material.

Several pass CPA exams

Several area residents are among the 129 candidates who passed a written examination qualifying for the Certified Public Accountant certificate, the State Board of Accountancy has announced. Francis J. O'Shea of 113 Maple St., Ellington, was among 23 candidates who have completed all necessary prerequisites. Area residents who passed the examination but must still complete an experience requirement were: Jack A. Goodhajian Jr. of 15 Srinwood Drive, Vernon; Thomas P. Henry of 20 Shady Lane, Bolton; Susan A. King of 1214 Downey Drive, Manchester; John J. LaBanca of 22

Generic perishables sold

Food Marts has introduced perishables into their already expanded generic "no frill" label program which has received a tremendous response from area consumers since its introduction in February, according to Kenneth G. Abrahams, president of Food Marts, a division of Waldbaum Inc. The seven generic perishables selected are four meat items and three dairy items. The meat items are hot dogs, hamburger (ground beef with textured soy protein) bacon, and chunk style chicken Bologna. The dairy items are soft tub margarine, stick margarine and processed cheese spread. "Our new generic label has been so well received by public that we have consistently added many popular products and now in response to customer demand

New principle replaces Peter

TULSA, Okla. (UPI) — The Peter Principle may have shaken up the business community a decade ago, but now the Pishel Principle is here to calm the nerves of corporate executives. The Pishel Principle, the subject of a book written by L.J. Peter in 1968, proposed that each employee in an organization or business tended to be promoted until he reached his level of incompetence. The Pishel Principle is embodied in Selindex, a computer test developed and sold by Dr. Robert Pishel Jr., a social psychologist, to help businesses hire and promote the right people. Pishel said he has no idea how much money is wasted each year by American corporations hiring or promoting the wrong people, but he is sure his system would cut down on that waste. "Selindex was developed to assist in correct personnel selection, promotion and individual self-development," according to a synoptic review used to sell the procedure. "It is all based on the individual. The idea is that an individual's self-concept establishes the way he is and the way

Delicacies marketed in Asia

NEW YORK (UPI) — Exporting tea from the United States to Japan seems at first a rather unrewarding proposition: the Japanese are big tea drinkers but they also are among the world's biggest tea producers. Nevertheless, Boston Tea Co. of Secaucus, N.J., has shipped about 2,000 cases of its fancy tea to Japan in recent months by air and the company's founder, Jerry Jacobs, says he believes one or two other blenders of fancy black or fermented teas in the United States also have been able to sell on the Japanese market. Like the Chinese, the Japanese blend and drink unfermented or green tea traditionally. Boston Tea Co., so named because it used to be in Boston, blends such specialties as creme de menthe tea, Bing cherry, cinnamon and chocolate tea and Darjeeling tea. It also makes a decaffeinated tea, and it considers the market prospect for that in Japan very good. Caffeine-free tea like decaffeinated coffee, is often recommended for persons with heart conditions or other health problems. "Exporting tea to Japan may be like carrying coals to Newcastle but that's not the real significance of the business," says Alex

Caldor gets report award

Caldor Inc. has won a merit award from Financial World Magazine for its 1977 annual report, which met the judging standards of "the ability of a report to give essential information in a manner that is comprehensible to the average investor." The cover of the Caldor financial report features an enlarged detail of the Caldor rainbow logo in brown, orange and yellow on ivory stock with an overprint message by Carl Bennett, president and chairman of the board. The back cover in brown ink on ivory shows the "Caldor Country" illustrated map with historical sketches and the locations of 48 stores in Connecticut, New York and Massachusetts. Inside pages of glossy yellow and orange-bordered white contain the company's financial statements along with the president's report and photos of top executives.

Social Security for husbands

Some men are beginning to discover unexpected benefits from the woman's liberation movement. For more than half of married women work full time and have earned sufficient Social Security credits to qualify for Social Security in their own right.

This change reflects the increasing participation of women in the work force. More than half of married women work full time and have earned sufficient Social Security credits to qualify for Social Security in their own right.

benefits on the work record of a deceased mother, and disabled widowers at age 50. The change did not come quickly. Benefits became payable to dependent husbands at age 65 in 1950, 10 years after such benefits were payable to dependent wives when Social Security benefits were first paid in 1940.

POLLY'S POINTERS

Spray smell stays

By Polly Cramer

DEAR POLLY - Help! I sprayed a bedroom, including the mattress, with a well-known commercial product to solve a bug problem and now have an odor problem as the mattress and bedding absorbed all the smell. What can I do to get rid of this? - Sally.

DEAR POLLY - You might try spraying the mattress with a strong vinegar and water solution but do be very careful to not let any soak into the filling. This would doubtless work better if the mattress could be taken out of doors and then left to dry and air in the sun. If the mattress must remain indoors, folded sheets of newspapers between the bed pad and mattress might absorb the odor if left for a week or two. But do protect them from any rubbing off of the printing ink. The bedding could be laundered and rinsed in white vinegar water, aired and summed. Good luck. - POLLY.

DEAR POLLY - When I want to take a hot pie to my large fryer pan that has a handle, it is easy to carry the pie by the handle, and spills, etc. are avoided. - MRS. T.K.

DEAR POLLY - To clean small-necked bottles such as vinegar cruets, antique bottles or vases I put in a handful of unpopcorned popcorn kernels combined with hot water and/or vinegar, a detergent or cleanser, and shake vigorously. It is amazing how the dirt and stains disappear. - WINNIE.

DEAR POLLY - I use pink embroidery floss to make a French knot in the lining of each of my coats just below the armholes. Recently I was in a doctor's office and there was another rain coat just like mine so all I had to do was show the other lady this colored knot that identified one coat as mine. This can also be done in men's coats. - VIOLET.

DEAR POLLY - I have an easy way to remove fresh ballpoint ink stains from shirt pockets and other clothing. Place a paper towel under the stain and spray hair spray directly on the spot, blot with another paper towel. Repeat this until the stain fades and then pour a bit of liquid soap on the area where the stain was and rub gently before placing the garment in the washing machine for the final step. - MRS. A.C.

DEAR READERS - The use of hair spray for ballpoint ink stains has been given in this column before but Mrs. A.C.'s method for its use is a bit different and an improvement, I think. - POLLY.

YOUR SAFETY IS OUR TOP PRIORITY. 1. There were less fatalities in boating accidents in 1977 than in 1976. 2. The amount of property damage due to boating accidents in 1977 amounted to: A. $16.1 million B. $4.5 million C. $11.5 million

The Denver family moved into a new home and soon began to notice the foundation was sagging. Reason: Soil subsidence. Until 1974 the owner would have been out of luck unless he wanted to go through a long, expensive court proceeding. But in Denver the family held a Home Owners Warranty and appointed an impartial conciliator.

THE U.S. AND YOU

(Federal agencies offer many services to individuals and groups, but sometimes it's hard to learn about those services or how to benefit from them. This weekly column provides such information.)
