

On second thought The tennis ball saga

By Jan Warren

On the day the moving men came to pack up they found a lot of dust behind our refrigerator. They also found 42-tennis balls behind the sofa in the family room.

Now, I want to instantly establish two facts. First, we are a tennis playing family with a crazy dog who spends all her time chasing tennis balls. Second, I've been busy lately and have been vacuuming around the furniture instead of under it.

Anyway, the movers were so fascinated by the discovery of the tennis balls that they actually stopped to count them. When the official total was in the boss shook his head in amazement. "I've seen some strange things behind furniture in my years of moving... but 42 tennis balls. That tops 'em all."

The kids saw the incident as something that was amazing. They saw it as a way to blackmail their poor mother. "Forty-two tennis balls," chorled Kate. "Mother, I'll bet you've never cleaned behind that sofa!"

"Next time you complain about our messy rooms you won't have a leg to stand on," said Sara.

"You'll be putty in our hands," agreed Tom, deftly juggling three tennis balls in the air.

"Silly putty," piped up John, grinning at his cleverness.

Through this entire barrage I kept my cool despite the fact that I was stunned myself. Forty-two tennis balls? I didn't even know we owned that many!

"Just remember who gives you the juice and cookies when the whole world's against you," I said facing the kids squarely.

At that moment my husband came into the room and pointed to the pile of tennis balls. "Where did they come from?"

"From behind the sofa," said Tom. "They were wallowing in dust."

"Vea," said my husband. "Ask a silly question and you get a silly answer."

"You'll never believe this," cried Sara. "But those tennis balls, all 42 of them, were under the family room sofa."

A few minutes later our neighbor Becky arrived with a pitcher of iced tea. "Where in the world did those tennis balls come from?"

Becky chuckled Sara playfully under the chin. "You kids are always pulling my leg. Enjoy the tea!"

After Becky had left I turned to the kids. "You see. Your blackmail will never work. Forty-two tennis balls behind one little old sofa? And... in the home of Mrs. Clean to boot? Ridiculous! No one will believe you. In fact, 'I said with a supercilious smile. 'I'm beginning to think that we've all just been hallucinating."

Lawn mower safety

Seems like you just finished mowing the lawn a few days ago, but the grass just keeps growing and now it looks like it needs another trim. — go about the task calmly, keeping in mind that 82,000 persons were hurt seriously enough by power mowers to require hospital emergency room treatment last year.

Why so many accidents? From hazard patterns on file with the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission, serious law mower accidents were caused by: objects picked up and thrown by lawnmowers; riding-type mowers tipping over when used on steep slopes; garden tractors or riding mowers used in reverse and running over or into innocent victims; and contact with the lawn mower blade when clearing grass or adjusting the discharge chute or debris deflector.

Keep these safety tips in mind:

When buying a power mower, make sure it has a rear guard to protect hands and feet from blades and a downward-aimed discharge chute to debris is less likely to hit anyone nearby.

Before mowing, rake up wires, cans, rocks, twigs or other litter cluttering the lawn.

Don't cut a wet lawn — since grass often clogs the discharge chute tempting you to clear it while the machine is running.

Always turn off the mower and disconnect the spark plug wire or electric plug before unclogging or adjusting the machine.

Never refuel a mower while it is running or the engine is hot.

Mow across slopes if using a walk-behind mower. With a riding type mower, drive up and down slopes for stability.

If using an electric mower, take care not to run over the cord.

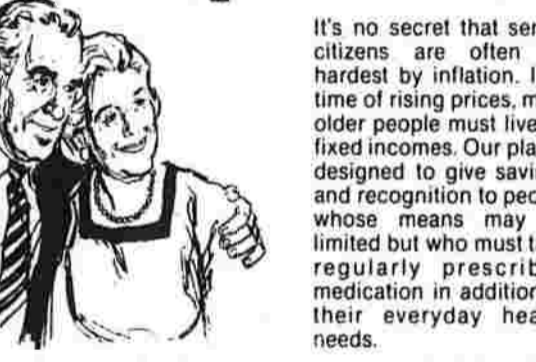

Don't smoke near a power mower or near gasoline.

Keep children out of the area being mowed.

GOP taps Joyner; Peck will primary

By GREG PEARSON
Herald Reporter

As expected, Manchester Republicans Wednesday night selected Walter Joyner and Elsie "Bill" Swenson as their candidates in the 12th and 13th Assembly District, respectively.

And, as expected, Joyner will face a primary challenge Sept. 12 from Fred Peck, Manchester's Republican registrar of voters.

The party nominated no one to challenge incumbent Judge of Probate William Fitzgerald.

The GOP Town Committee members who live in the 12th District chose Joyner over Peck by a 14-8 margin.

After the vote, Peck said that he would primary.

"I knew that when we got into the race late," he said, Peck announced his candidacy for the seat almost three months after Joyner entered the race.

Joyner said that he hoped a primary could be avoided. He said that work on the primary would delay actual campaigning for the seat a month or more.

The seat now is held by State Rep. Theodore Cummings, who will be seeking re-election. Joyner ran for the same seat two years ago and lost to Cummings.

His campaign against Cummings will concentrate on state issues, particularly reducing taxation and attracting small business to the area, he said.

He has made his stand on consolidation known — he feels any such move should develop within the Eighth Utilities District — but he does not expect to make that a campaign issue. Much of the 12th Assembly District is made up of the Eighth District, and Cummings has sought to consolidate the Eighth District with the town.

Joyner, however, must first think about his challenge from Peck.

Peck must obtain signatures from five percent of the 12th District's registered Republican voters by Aug. 18.

Unity stressed by Democrats

By SUSAN VAUGHN
Herald Reporter

In a spirited display of unity, Wednesday night Manchester Democrats unanimously nominated incumbents Ted Cummings and Francis Mahoney for reelection to the 12th and 13th General Assembly Districts and William E. Fitzgerald for reelection as judge of probate.

Nominators noted dedicated service and experience by their candidates and the candidates stressed teamwork by all the Democrats in their efforts to win in November's state election.

Cummings as chairman of the Democratic Town Committee, cautioned that only those residing in the specific assembly districts could vote for the corresponding candidates, but when the time came to vote he urged nomination by acclamation, which gave the lively Democrats a chance to stand up and cheer loudly for their choices.

Cummings himself, caught up in the excitement, got up to make his acceptance speech before the vote was taken for his nomination and was told loudly that he was not nominated yet.

In his acceptance speech, Cummings, in apparent reference to his lack of popularity in parts of the 12th District said, "I'm going down into the 12th District and I'm going to walk straight and tall."

Cummings will oppose either

Walter Joyner, the GOP endorsed candidate, or Fred Peck, who has pledged to primary.

Cummings said he will concentrate on the issues in the campaign and "attempt to make the state government serve the people of the 12th district."

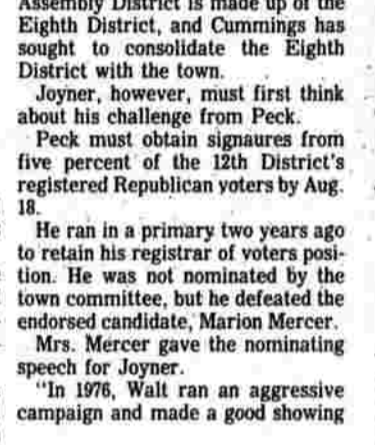

He said none of the legislation passed by the recent General Assembly, such as the phase-in property tax bill which he helped sponsor, was perfect but he said it was a step in the right direction and helps homeowners.

In the nominating speech for Mahoney, Herbert Stevenson, Democratic Registrar of Voters, simply said, "He's a wonderful guy and you all know him." Mahoney is running for his fifth consecutive term in the General Assembly.

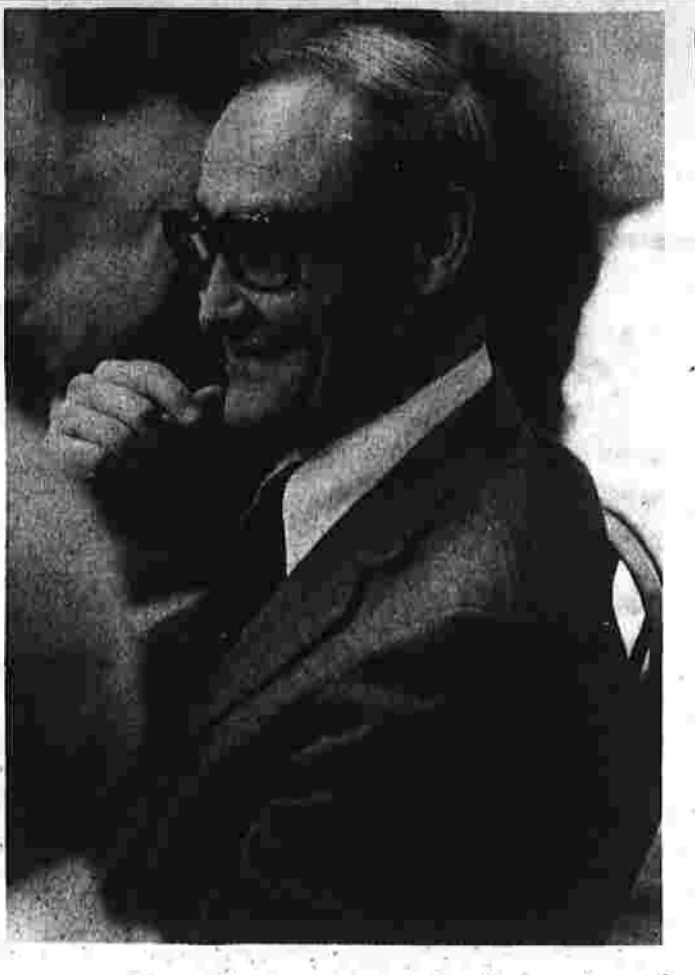

Stevenson also commented that he felt the last General Assembly term was "an excellent one, not only individually, but for the whole Democratic team."

In his acceptance speech, Judge Fitzgerald noted that because of the state law which went into effect in January, he would be unable to campaign or participate in any fund-raising efforts, but he made clear his support of the Democratic candidates. Fitzgerald will run unopposed.

Towns near accord on Buckland roads

By GREG PEARSON
Herald Reporter

Town Manager Robert Weiss this morning said that Manchester will work with South Windsor to attempt to develop an east-west connector road if the South Windsor Town Council will reconsider its vote on road improvements.

Weiss and two South Windsor representatives — Councilman Richard Ryan and Town Manager Paul Talbot — attended this morning's meeting of Manchester's Economic Development Commission.

Dominic Squatrito made pleas for unity among the town committee in

Ryan explained the recent vote of the South Windsor Town Council, which agreed to relocation and improvement work on Pleasant Valley Road, but only if Manchester agrees to reopen Burnham Street or build another east-west road to replace it.

The South Windsor officials said that the closing of Burnham Street will result in increased traffic along some roads in its town that are not equipped to handle it.

Manchester officials, however, have promised residents that Burnham Street will not be a through street once the J.C. Penney Co.

catalog distribution center is completed. All of the road improvements are connected with development of the J.C. Penney Co. project and the adjacent industrial park.

Manchester Mayor Stephen Penny, who also attended this morning's meeting, questioned Ryan's statement that the lack of an east-west road will lead to increased traffic in South Windsor.

He said that travelers from the east side of Manchester could use Tolland Turnpike and the primary

Four towns evacuated in flooding

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (UPI) — Rain-drenched and weary deputies and National Guardsmen evacuated four towns in the flood-devastated Texas hill country today after a 14-inch overnight downpour made new flooding "imminent" on the Guadalupe and Medina rivers.

At least eight persons were dead, dozens were missing and hundreds were left homeless since flooding, triggered by heavy rain from Tropical Storm Amelia, began late Tuesday.

More than 150 Bandera residents — who Wednesday watched while their homes, cars and possessions were swept away by the raging creeks and rivers — had returned to begin salvaging what remained. But the new rainfall brought another crisis, and residents today again moved to two churches in the center of the city and to evacuation centers in Kerrville, Comfort and Center Point.

"We've had additional heavy rain — fall — estimated at 14 inches over the watershed during the night and the rivers are on the rise," said a National Weather Service spokesman in nearby San Antonio.

"A major flood has redeveloped along the upper Guadalupe River. Flooding is imminent."

It was the second straight morning residents in the South Central Texas were forced to flee for their lives.

Late Tuesday and early Wednesday a wall of water — fed by 30 inches of rain from dying Amelia — roared out of the darkness and cut a wide swath through nine Texas communities.

Prior to the deluge which began late Tuesday, the towns — known for their hunting, fishing and summer recreational areas had been in the midst of a year-long drought.

Search for girl begins

Lt. Edwin Carlson, head of the Special Services Unit of the Vernon Police Department holds up a picture of Patricia Luce as a search of the Dart Hill Road area in Vernon started Wednesday night. Vernon and state police and Vernon and Rockville firemen combed the area in search of any clues as to the whereabouts of Miss Luce, 18, who has been missing from her Skinner Road home since July 18. The last time she was seen was when her brother dropped her off at the 7-Eleven Store on Route 83. (Herald photo by Chastain)

Israeli jets retaliate over market bombing

TEL AVIV, Israel (UPI) — An Arab terrorist bomb exploded in a children's clothing stand in Tel Aviv's Carmel Market today, wounding at least 40 people. Israeli warplanes quickly retaliated by attacking Palestinian guerrilla concentrations in Lebanon.

The state-run national radio said the planes struck at an encampment called Bahar al Tutta along the Zaharani River about 9 miles south of coastal Sidon. It said all planes returned safely to base.

"This strike came following the bloody attack mounted by the terrorist organizations on the civilian population in the Carmel Market in Tel Aviv," the radio said. "The government of Israel instructed the security forces to strike at the terrorists wherever they are."

Police initially said the bomb that went off today under a clothing stand in the crowded marketplace killed one person and wounded 40 others. They later corrected the casualty figure and a hospital spokesman said police may have mistakenly thought a critically wounded survivor died.

The Israeli radio, apparently reading an announcement from the military command, said the area struck by the warplanes "is under exclusive guerrilla control."

Coventry policemen will appeal removal

By CLAIRE CONNELLY
Herald Correspondent

Indications are that three Coventry policemen removed from the force will appeal their dismissals and suspension.

Police Chief Robert Kjellquist Wednesday dismissed Keith Lane and Lawrence Fawcett and suspended Ronald Doughty for 10 days without pay.

Fawcett's wife, Lois, said Wednesday night that her husband will appeal his dismissal. Lane and Doughty would not comment, but Roberta Wilmot, wife of policeman Lyndon Wilmot, the police union steward, said all three plan to use the town's appeals procedure.

The normal appeals procedure is first through the police chief, then through the town manager, and finally to mediation and arbitration. Town Council Chairman Jack Myles explained at a special council meeting Wednesday night.

Town officials would not comment on any specific charges against the policemen. Myles said that even the Town Council was not privy to this information while an appeal was being pursued.

Lyndon Wilmot appeared before the council's special meeting to speak as a taxpayer and a resident. "If they win they will get reinstatement and back pay," he said. He added that Officer Donald Rouillard had won his case against the chief about five years ago.

Thomas Stevenson, a local businessman complained to the council that strike within the police department would hurt business in the town. He alleged that the police had "picked on" him in past years by arresting three of his sons on marijuana charges.

After hearing comments from several townspeople Wednesday night, the Town Council went into executive session to be briefed on the matter by Kjellquist. After the closed session, Myles said no action would be taken by the council.

Myles said Town Manager Frank Connelly, now on vacation, upheld Kjellquist's action in a telephone conversation Wednesday morning. Acting Town Manager Donald Holmes, who represented Connelly at the council meeting, said he agreed with Connelly in supporting the police chief.

Top state court limits minority election rules

HARTFORD (UPI) — The state Supreme Court says Connecticut's minority representation law, which limits the number of officials from one party who can serve on certain panels, does not apply to local legislative bodies.
The ruling came in the case of Democratic City Councilor Richard Ludgin, who was elected to the nine-member council last November, edging out incumbent Republican councilor Jacqueline Anderson of Hartford by 116 votes.
Ms. Anderson said the makeup of the new council — seven Democrats and two Republicans — violated the minority representation law.
The high court said in a decision released Tuesday that the law does not apply to the City Council.

Town may expand program for rehabilitation loans

By GREG PEARSON
Herald Reporter
The Town of Manchester will consider a proposal to expand the rehabilitation loan program to include housing units where the owner does not live.
The expansion of the program will provide an incentive to correct housing code violations in some of these units, Marilyn Walsh, administrator of the program, said.
The program now is limited to people who live in the unit that they are improving. It also is limited to those who live in a specified area and meet certain financial guidelines.
The extension of the program, which must be approved by the Town Board of Directors, would provide owners of units, including single-family homes and apartments, to

Carbone verifies favor of Killian

HARTFORD (UPI) — Hartford's Democratic leader, Deputy Mayor Nicholas Carbone, has formally lined up behind Lt. Gov. Robert Killian in his battle with Gov. Ella T. Grasso.
Carbone staged a news conference Wednesday to reaffirm his support of Killian for governor in the September primary and he took several verbal shots at Mrs. Grasso. He accused Mrs. Grasso of abandoning the poor and the middle class to oppressive taxes.
Under Mrs. Grasso low and middle income residents, especially city dwellers, "are being crushed with rapidly escalating utility costs, the unfair burden of local property taxes and a general decline in the quality of life," he said.

Lost job decides Barbieri support

NEW HAVEN (UPI) — New Haven Democratic Leader Arthur T. Barbieri didn't get the job he wanted from Gov. Ella T. Grasso, so he has decided not to support her in her primary battle with Lt. Gov. Robert Killian for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination.
Barbieri wanted to be state party chairman, but Mrs. Grasso supported John N. Dempsey Jr., who was elected by the Democratic State Central Committee last Friday night.
"I hope she gets what she deserves," Barbieri said. He said he is telling political friends not to ask him what to do in the Sept. 12 primary to do as they wish.
Barbieri had supported Mrs. Grasso in the Democratic state nominating convention in Hartford July 22. In the gubernatorial balloting, Barbieri's announcement of support for Mrs. Grasso was a key factor in her nomination victory.
Barbieri was one of two candidates being considered as replacements for Dempsey by dissident Democrats. The other was attorney Howard M. Kiebanoff of West Hartford, chairman of the state's Board of Higher Education.
Hartford Deputy Mayor Nicholas Carbone, who helped organize a meeting to try to select an alternative to Dempsey, complained Wednesday about the "shabby treatment" of state Democratic leaders by Mrs. Grasso when she picked Dempsey.
"It was a major decision, and she made it without consulting party leaders. They were offended by it," he said. Carbone Wednesday reaffirmed his support for Killian.

Ferguson favors elected clerk and treasurer

Vivian Ferguson, a Republican member of the Manchester Board of Directors, said Wednesday that she is opposed to appointing the town treasurer and town clerk.
Both positions should remain as elected ones, Mrs. Ferguson said.
Two proposals by the Charter Revision Commission would alter the status of the two positions, both of which are now elected by the voters.
The commission proposed that the town form a Department of Finance and eliminate the present treasurer's position.
It also recommended that the clerk be appointed rather than elected.
About 20 residents spoke at Tuesday night's meeting of the directors and said that they wanted to keep the treasurer's post as an elected position. One person also said the same thing about the clerk's position.
Mrs. Ferguson said Wednesday, "People feel removed from government." Removal of the elected positions will enhance that feeling, she said.
"If the elected jobs are a good job, they will be returned to office time and time again," she said.

Carbone verifies favor of Killian

"She follows the principles of the Republican Party and not the Democratic Party," Carbone told the City Hall news conference.
Carbone delivered 45 of Hartford's 67 delegates to Killian in the lieutenant governor's successful bid to gain a primary at last month's Democratic State Convention. The primary will be held Sept. 12.
Carbone, who long ago fell out with the governor over what he calls her failure to aid the cities, especially Hartford, said Killian has an open mind toward tax reform and Mrs. Grasso doesn't.
Her alleged failure to work with local governments has forced municipalities "to level local property taxes which in many instances have become confiscatory," Carbone said.
Later in the day, Mrs. Grasso issued a brief statement in which she said, "My concern has always been the careful use of every tax dollar. I never forget that we in government spend the taxpayer's dollar."
The governor said, "Tax reform should not mean an income tax, although too often it does."
Carbone did not say outright he was in favor of a state income tax but indicated one would be acceptable to him as long as other taxes were eliminated or reduced.
He charged the Grasso administration "caters to the interest of the very rich, who benefit from a tax system that assures them of a virtual free ride."
Meanwhile, Republican State Chairman Frederick Biebel called for Howard Kiebanoff to resign as chairman of the State Board of Education.
Kiebanoff was named by Mrs. Grasso Tuesday as head of her re-election campaign to succeed John Dempsey Jr., who was chosen last week as Democratic state chairman.
Biebel said "there is an obvious conflict of interest" in Kiebanoff serving as board of education chairman, while heading up Mrs. Grasso's campaign.
Biebel noted that the governor earlier had tried to place Kiebanoff on her staff but "was soundly criticized" and changed her mind.

Dollar bounces back

TOKYO (UPI) — The dollar staged an impressive comeback today, closing in Tokyo at 188.80 yen against Wednesday's 184.70.
The dollar bounced back on European markets as well, and the price of gold in London fell.
The U.S. currency opened trading in Tokyo at 188.10 yen and jumped to 190 yen shortly before the day's close.
Turnover came to $669 million, compared with $647 million Wednesday.
In Frankfurt, the dollar climbed to 2.0445 marks from Wednesday's 2.0415 marks. In Zurich it was up from 1.7150 Swiss francs to 1.7185 francs at the market opening.
London prices for the dollar were 1.9135, cheaper than Wednesday's $1.9280. In Paris the dollar improved from 4.3660 francs to 4.3775 francs.
The dollar also improved in Amsterdam, where it was up from 2.2030 guilders to 2.2090. In Milan, it gained from 842.55 lire to 843.60 lire.
Brussels was the sole European exception, where the dollar fell from 32.97 Belgian francs to 32.965 francs.
Gold lost nearly $2 an ounce in London, opening at $201.75 an ounce compared with Wednesday's closing price of $203.825. It dropped $1 in Zurich to $202.375.
The advance in Tokyo — the first in over a week of daily record lows — eased to some extent the Japanese government's tight controls on an influx of foreign capital.
The Bank of Japan official expressed skepticism across the Fukuda government tightening exchange controls, saying he doubted that the government means business. He added the dollar's basic weakness is still uncorrected and said today's rally was not significant.

PLO mission attacked

PARIS (UPI) — Three gunmen attacked the Palestine Liberation Organization office today and killed a PLO branch chief in the second raid on an Arab mission in Paris this week, police said.
Police said Paris PLO chief Izzeddin Kalek was killed, two aides seriously wounded and a stenographer slightly wounded.
All three gunmen were arrested. The raid began shortly after 11 a.m. (8 a.m. EDT) when the three men entered the Arab League building near the Madeleine church and dashed up to the PLO office on the fourth floor.
A score of shots was heard. Some persons said they also heard a grenade explode but this was not confirmed.
Two of the men ran out of the building, at least one of them a Palestinian. They were arrested immediately.
During the following hour the third man came to the window several times, gesturing and holding one of the wounded as if to demonstrate his determination.
After an hour, however, the remaining gunman was led out of the building by police. He was calm until he saw cameramen and photographers. He waved his arms and shouted "Palestine Palestine" as he was taken off to police headquarters.
Kalek took over as PLO chief in Paris in 1973 after his predecessor in the French capital, Mahmoud Hamdani, was assassinated. Kalek had a reputation as a moderate.
Today's raid came three days after a terrorist attack on the Iraqi embassy in Paris. A gunman seized hostages in the embassy in the Monday incident that ended in a shootout that killed one Arab gunman and a French policeman.

Fire blamed on accident

NEW YORK (UPI) — Fire officials say a preliminary investigation blames the blaze at a Brooklyn supermarket that killed six firefighters on the worst disaster for the department in 12 years may have been caused by a "construction accident."
The six were killed Wednesday when they fell to their deaths through the roof of a burning Waldbaum's supermarket that collapsed and engulfed them in a ball of flame.
Fire Commissioner Augustus Beaman scheduled a news conference for this morning at Fire Department headquarters to discuss the investigation.
A Fire Department spokesman said Wednesday night, "A preliminary investigation determined the fire probably was the result of a construction accident."
However, he said a full investigation had not been completed and "we're not going to go off half-cocked."
The department reported Wednesday night that seven of 34 injured firemen were admitted to area hospitals, with two reported in critical condition at Coney Island.
Witnesses said four employees of the Waldbaum's supermarket, four customers and an unknown number of workmen renovating the 30-year-old brick structure walked calmly out of the smoking building shortly after 8:30 a.m.
Firefighters arrived minutes later and some 25 of them began opening holes in the roof, apparently unaware that the fire had spread to the supermarket's wooden beams.
Two brothers working in the building, Bob and Arthur Stanley, said the fire apparently started in the compressor room where the store's air conditioning and refrigeration equipment were located.
They battled the fire with a garden hose for five minutes but "then one of the refrigeration lines blew and we ran out," said Bob Stanley, 38.
Joan Guinan, who watched from her apartment window across the street, said "The firemen were punching holes in the roof to let the smoke out, then all of a sudden the fire came up through the roof and the firemen fell right down in it. I saw six go down and four fell to the side, grabbing onto the ledge. It was just horrible."
The wife of one fireman who rushed to the scene to check on her husband burst out screaming when she saw he had been trapped and killed inside the burning supermarket.

Postal workers will vote

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A court ruling has cleared the way for postal workers to vote on a proposed new contract, but results of the balloting will not be known until late this month.
The Pittsburgh local of the Postal Workers Union sought to prevent the ratification vote, but a federal judge ruled Wednesday the contract could be submitted to union members.
The ballots were to be mailed out today, but no results are expected before Aug. 25, union officials said. The Pittsburgh local argued that the vote was not in order because the union's advisory committee had already voted to reject the new contract.
But U.S. District Judge Barrington Parker ruled that the committee was acting within the scope of its powers when it voted 33-10 to let the union membership make the final decision.
The tentative three-year contract was negotiated between the Postal Service and four unions, including the APWU, late last month, but a number of locals quickly raised objections to the agreement.
The Pittsburgh local contended that carrying out the APWU mail balloting "will confuse and disorganize the general membership" in that the rank and file would be led to believe the tentative agreement had been approved by the advisory committee.
The committee voted 29-15 last Thursday to reject the Postal Service's latest offer, but supported a call by union president Emmet Andrews for a nationwide vote.

Opinion

Promises in Bonn

Aside from the welcome agreement to blackball countries providing haven for air-plane hijackers, much of what came out of the Bonn economic conference consisted of little more than promises. President Carter promised the United States would do more to lower oil imports and protect the dollar.

One after another, the European and Japanese leaders promised to help the U.S. effort by expanding their own economies in order to reduce exports to America. There was no attempt to lessen the influence of the U.S. dollar, as some economists thought there might be.

For appearances sake, then, the conference was a success. Whether it also be an economic success depends upon how successfully the promises made in Bonn are carried out back in the respective countries. At the very least, it was one of the few conferences among the Western nations which didn't give the Kremlin something to smile about.

Phil Crane: next U.S. president?

By LEE RODERICK
WASHINGTON — Glib quips fall easily from the lips of Rep. Phil Crane. "The tragedy is Jimmy's doing the best he can," or "A moderate is a liberal with two teen-aged daughters."

Crane, has become the first official candidate for president in 1980. For those who ask "Just who is Phil Crane?" he is quick to note that the precise question was asked about another unknown two years before and last presidential election. And that unknown Georgia peanut farmer is now you-know-where.

"Are you trying to corner the nominating of a conservative by announcing early?" Crane pondered the reporter's question over breakfast a few mornings ago. "Yes... Jimmy showed the earlier you get in the better."

Crane, who will be 65 Aug. 16, is little different from when he assumed power in June 1977. He was even bolder in his public statements 14 months ago after his upset election victory when he went to his Jewish constituents in the occupied West Bank and proclaimed the region "liberated Israeli territory."

Menachem Begin: does the man make the times?

By RICHARD C. GROSS
TEL AVIV, Israel (UPI) — Menachem Begin is at his peak despite erratic behavior that provoked the opposition Labor party to all but brand him crazy. To put it simply, Begin is Begin.

Egyptian President Anwar Sadat recently described the Israeli prime minister as a "blunt, unhappy man who is unable to bring happiness to others. The obvious suggestion: Begin does not want peace."

But even the opposition Labor party says he doesn't want peace. The problem is that Begin's physical and mental well-being is being questioned at a time when the Middle East may be closer to peace than at any time since the founding of Israel in May 1948.

It is fact that Begin has exhibited a variety of moods in public. He has gone the extremes from lethargic, pale and hoarse to peppery, flushed and forceful.

Presently he is at the peak of a new "up" cycle. He appears energetic and the sarcastic barbs fired at his political foes show him at his best. He hasn't that way a month ago. Then he felt so ill that, by his own admission, he was too weak to exert his usual influence on the position Israel should take regarding the future of the West Bank. And his position, a new one, was a softer line than that only emerged in July 23.

"I was sick," Begin was quoted as saying by David Glass of the National Religious party. "I wasn't ready for a confrontation."

How Much Will It Cost To Fix It Up?

Thought

A soldier's last bugle call!
So strange the silence of my ending day —
'Tis evening — to him — who gave me life — I go my way
The bugle sounds — calling my soul — now wearied — worn —
I must bid farewell to travails of my earthy sojourn!
I cry out to God in bitter, sorrowing remorse
That I tried to be a good soldier to help bear his cross
That in battle I tried to give my best — my duty to complete.
The torch of freedom I helped to hold — I now entrust

That it be placed in younger, stronger, patriotic hands
With unselfish sacrifice — for what our America demands;
For the struggle of true peace — seems scarcely begun —
Our victory — with blood, sweat, tears must be nobly won!
To you dear soldiers, in God — know you are in our prayer —
Your duties of battle — well done — now God keep you in his care!
May the precious gift of love — for your country you gave —
Instill in our hearts — spark of patriotism that made you brave!

Capital Fare

By ANDREW TULLY
WASHINGTON — Reading Joan Kennedy's story in McCall's magazine of her battle with alcoholism stirred the memory of an interview years ago with the late Winthrop Rockefeller, the playboy of that prestigious clan.

That is part of Mrs. Kennedy's story. It is also devilish hard to be a Kennedy — perhaps harder than being a Rockefeller, who's enormous family wealth has always been a moot point with his members and the public.

Moreover, not even Nelson Rockefeller, who became a career politician, ever reached the national fame achieved by John and Robert Kennedy. There was never a Rockefeller cult, whereas the Kennedys have always been viewed as an uncrowned royal family. This, it seems to me, is what got Mrs. Teddy Kennedy. The spotlight was too bright, the public's expectations too demanding. And she was not, after all, a Kennedy. She was only a beautiful and charming woman who married into that dazzling royal court. She was loyal to her Senator husband, but she could not, or would not, play the wife of the heir to the throne.

It was hard to live in Washington "and have a life of my own," Joan Kennedy told McCall's. Ethel Kennedy, widow of Robert, managed it because she is an enthusiastic politician in her own right, at home with politicians. Besides, Ethel was born secure as a member of a family even wealthier than the Kennedys. She didn't have to adjust to celebrity or to Washington.

Rep. Crane to attend Andrews fund-raiser

U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane of Illinois, who has announced his intention to seek the Republican nomination for president, will attend a fund-raiser for Ben Andrews Saturday in West Hartford.
Andrews is the Republican candidate in the First Congressional District. He is challenging Democratic incumbent U.S. Rep. William Coffer.
The fund-raiser will be held at the Crossroads Bowling Plaza, 17 Crossroads Plaza, West Hartford.
Crane will appear from 4 p.m. to 6 p.m.
The Illinois congressman is the author of a constitutional amendment to limit federal spending to one-third of the national income. The bill has been described as a "national equivalent of Proposition 13." Crane has said that the movement to limit taxes will become a leading issue in his campaign for the party's presidential nomination in 1980.

Bay State increases truck safety checks

BOSTON (UPI) — Massachusetts officials Wednesday began stepped-up safety inspections of trucks carrying hazardous materials such as liquefied natural gas within the state.
State Public Works Commissioner John J. Carroll Tuesday said regulations were to be adopted today by the state Board of Public Works. The regulations were based on federal rules pertaining to packaging and shipping of 350 hazardous substances.
The rules were drawn up by the U.S. Department of Transportation, which says it lacks the manpower to enforce them. In New England there are only four federal inspectors available.
A U.S. General Accounting Office report released Monday in Washington criticized lack of enforcement of the Transportation Department laws, and lack of regulations for LNG truck construction.

Assembly candidates nominated

EAST HARTFORD — Both political parties have nominated candidates for state representative seats in the 10th and 11th districts.

The Democrats nominated incumbent Richard C. Willard (D-11th District) for a sixth term and Timothy D. Moryhan (D-10th District) for a third term at a Democratic Town Committee meeting Wednesday night.

Tuesday night, the Republicans nominated David H. Carlson to the 11th District seat and John C. Lancaster to the 10th District seat.

Carlson has served as a justice of the peace and selectman for several years. He is presently employed by the Hartford Fire Insurance Co.

Lancaster has also served as a justice of the peace. He has been a Republican committee member for 20 years.

The Republicans voted Tuesday night to leave the position of judge of probate vacant.

The Democrats nominated incumbent Probate Judge Francis C. Vignati Wednesday night.

In addition, the Democrats nominated Registrar V. James Dellapira for the post.

The Republican Town Committee nominated Mary S. Mourey for registrar of voters. On Monday, Harry Bost retired as registrar of voters after a long career in the position.

Water tower will go

The red-and-white checkerboard water tower which has stood since 1943 outside of the Pratt and Whitney Aircraft plant on Main Street is being disassembled. A Pratt and Whitney spokesman said the tower was used to maintain water power for the plant's fire hydrant system. It is no longer needed because the plant is now using the Metropolitan District Commission system. The tower was 189 feet tall and could be seen all over East Hartford. (Herald photo by Blake)

EAST HARTFORD — East Hartford homeowners who wish to get federal flood insurance can expect a subsidy of 25 cents for every $100 of insurance they purchase.

A spokesman for the Department of Housing and Urban Development, which administers the flood insurance program, said individual homeowners will be able to purchase up to a maximum of $185,000 in flood insurance when the town enters the program.

East Hartford is now under the emergency flood insurance program, which is the first step for joining the federal program.

The emergency program is based on preliminary maps and engineering studies on the limits of flooding caused by a 100-year flood.

With the recent completion of a more finite study, the town is about 10 months away from being able to join the regular phase of the program, said Robert Archila, flood plan management specialist from HUD.

The final map contains a floodplain zone which, if adopted by the proper town committees, will become the floodplain zone. It would then be incorporated into the comprehensive plan of development, which is now being prepared by C.E. Maguire Inc. of New Britain.

Archila said some who are now in the floodplain may no longer be in it after the new maps are adopted. These persons would no longer require flood insurance.

Archila said the town cannot maintain eligibility in the flood insurance program unless it adopts the final maps prepared by HUD.

Individual rates will be determined by the type of structure which sits on the floodplain, the elevation of the lowest floor of the building and the elevation of a 100-year flood.

Premiums will range from one cent to $2 per $100, depending on the risk involved.

The study outlines different zones with different rates for each zone. Within each zone, there are different risks depending on the elevation and the building involved.

Archila said small businesses may purchase up to $200,000 of federal flood insurance under the regular program.

He added that some areas have been designated "floodways" by HUD. Floodways are areas which cannot be built upon because they serve as corridors for the flow of water during a flood.

No new or substantially improved building can be built in a floodway unless it meets the design standards that do not touch the floodway.

Archila said the town is designed to discourage new construction in high risk areas. The rates are computed to proper building in the floodplain," he said.

East Hartford joined the federal flood insurance program in 1974. It was the first town in the state to join.

Signorelli said he received a $74 towing charge from Munno's Service Station in Middletown after his auto was hauled several blocks last February in Connecticut's worst storm in almost a century.

Council adopts merit plan; will include appeal proviso

By BARBARA RICHMOND Herald Reporter A merit pay plan for town employees, other than those who are union members, was adopted by the Town Council Tuesday night after agreement was reached on a provision for appeal procedures. The plan was discussed at the two meetings. At the first meeting a town employee strongly objected to his classification and Mayor Frank McCoy expressed concern about how many others there might be who would have the same objection. It was suggested that the council subcommittee, appointed to work with technical assistants given by the U.S. Civil Service Commission, act as sort of an appeals board but subcommittee objected. Tuesday night, Marie Herbst, chairman of the committee, said the administration will investigate and review each appeal and report their findings to the Merit Review Board, which will be activated. The committee also recommended the insertion of a time table in the plan with the initial specifications review to begin upon adoption of the plan and end on Sept. 15 to give employees time to address themselves to what might be considered a lower level. The committee suggested that a technique called "red flagging" be used for these positions which would mean they call for a classification review when the positions become vacant. The plan consists of 16 grade level criteria and benchmark positions. Job evaluation identifies and measures differences in job content systematically determines the worth of a position to an organization in comparison with other positions in the organization. Civil service personnel said this enables establishment of pay systematically on the recognized difference in work. They said the number 16 is not an arbitrary one but rather is a reflection of the actual significant distinctions that became apparent when classes were examined in terms of relevant classification factors. They said the plan needs continuous review and updating to keep the picture accurate. They said a plan may become outdated for a variety of reasons such as organizational or technological changes, reassignment of duties from one position to another, establishment and abolishing of positions and union pressures to obtain pay increases for certain classes. Plans are to give each employee a copy of the class specification applicable to his or her position and then updated information thereafter. There will be an annual review of class specifications by incumbents. This procedure is designed to promptly identify individual classification problems. The civil service workers also said it is important to periodically re-evaluate the entire classification plan. Along with many functions Stanley Roessler, director of administration has resigned to take a position in Westchester.

Senate candidate killed in Virginia

RICHMOND, Va. (UPI) — Republican U.S. Senate candidate Richard Obenshain and two other men were killed late Wednesday when their plane crashed and burned as it was about to land at an airport, officials said today.

The death of the 42-year-old former GOP national co-chairman was confirmed by Richard Lobb, his press aide, although police said the bodies of the three victims were too badly burned for immediate identification.

Police said only that the charred bodies of three white males aboard the twin-engine Piper Seneca were turned over to the state medical examiner. Positive identification was expected later in the day.

"We're all in shock here at the headquarters," said Lobb, who had worked closely with the candidate since 1972. "We can't quite believe it yet."

Authorities said the fiery crash occurred about 11:10 p.m. as Obenshain, his pilot and a third, unidentified man approached the Chesterfield County airport in the small plane.

An aide who was at the airport confirmed that the number of the wrecked plane was the same as that

Apartments to be checked for variances on screens

Associates, owner of the Highland Street apartments, said that screen doors are now being installed in the apartments but questioned the need for screens at basement windows.

"These apartments were erected in 1974, and in the 12 years preceding that, apparently the code was not enforced and was never brought to the attention of the developers in the four years following," Gussak said. He then asked, "Why are they being enforced now?"

Dr. Ben Z. Rubin, in resident in the complex, whose investigation into the housing code resulted in the apartment's hearing, agreed that screen doors were in the process of being installed in his section of the apartments. However, he had tenants of other apartment complexes told of the need of cellar window screens to not only provide ventilation but to keep out insects, rodents and squirrels as well as to help dry out damp, wet or occasional-

Yankees-R Sox to try again tonight to reach decision

NEW YORK (UPI) — What began as a laugher, graduated into a mid-inning duel of million dollar relievers and finally deteriorated into a rain-soaked state of suspension.

The New York Yankees, hoping to make further inroads on the Boston's dwindling lead in the American League East, started out that way Wednesday night when, thanks to a two-base error by Jim Rice, they opened a 5-4 lead over the Red Sox after three innings.

But the Red Sox pecked away at Yankee starter Dick Tidrow with a pair of runs in the fourth and sixth innings before tying the game in the eighth of Rich Gossage, the $2.8 million reliever. Rice started the eighth with a double and, after the first of two rain delays, moved to third on a wild pitch by Gossage before coming home on Carl Yastrzemski's sacrifice fly.

Weaver's 'most bombastic' lived up to expectation

By JAMES V. HEALON
HARTFORD (UPI) — The kids in the class of 1945 at Weaver High School voted Sophie Feldman "the most bombastic," and she lived up to their expectations. The world got to know her later as Totie Fields.

Her pungent comments came naturally. Entertaining in places like the Oakdale Musical Theatre in Wallingford, Totie made it all seem as if she weren't a skilled comedienne, but just a funny fat woman who lived down the block.

Lawrence Noone, one of nine Burnham Street area residents, who attended the meeting, said that the residents would oppose any east-west road within 1,000 feet of them.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Now that he doesn't have to worry about Joe DiMaggio's 56-game hitting streak record, Pete Rose can now concentrate on something really "important."

Mitchell blasted for walking out

NEW YORK (UPI) — Baltimore Colt quarterback Bert Jones Wednesday criticized running back Lydell Mitchell for walking out on his contract negotiations and said the Colts' all-time rushing leader was "not necessary" for the team's success.

The Colts reportedly offered Mitchell $175,000 but he is asking for $200,000. If he does not sign, the Colts are left with running backs Leece, Don McCauley and Roosevelt Lewis.

Grossfeld fighting mad over magazine article

By MILT RICHMAN
NEW YORK (UPI) — The only thing that can compare with a woman scorned is a woman wronged.

Muriel Grossfeld figures she has been wronged. She's so riled up, she's spitting nails, and when she gets through doing that, she says she's going to sue her lawyer.

For those of you who confine yourselves to such less esthetic sports as baseball, football and basketball, Muriel Grossfeld still ranks as one of the foremost female gymnasts this country ever produced, having competed for the United States in the 1956, 1960 and 1964 Olympics as well as in numerous other international competitions.

What's got her so exercised now is an article in the September issue of Penthouse written by Robert Stephen Spitz, who compares some of the places in America where young boys and girls are trained in athletics to a Marine boot camp. Among those places he zeroes in are Mission Viejo, Calif., where swimming is revered over even godliness and Grossfeld's School of Gymnastics in Millford, Conn., where he says Maribel runs some 400 girls gymnasts ranging in age from 12 to 17 as if she were some kind of female Captain Bligh.

"Look, I do anything I have to produce a winner — and these girls are all winners," Grossfeld is quoted by Spitz. "I have to keep them scared. If it takes a little abuse to achieve my ends, then that's the price they pay. They'll thank me later."

Grossfeld's practice sessions, according to Spitz, have been rumored to be "tantamount to slave labor camps and many of them end with her girl trainers crying hysterically out of pain and humiliation."

She's even said to regulate the girls' sex lives. "We don't stand over the girls with hammers. I've never seen any of them cry or get scared. The kids we have are sent here by their parents. If the kids didn't like what they're doing, they wouldn't come in the first place. Some of them live here and others in their own homes. We have what we call an 'elite program' for those we think might qualify for international competition, but we don't allow anyone to try for that level unless we feel they have the necessary personality and physical ability."

"No one at the school regulates the girls' sex lives. That's sheer nonsense. We have no dating rules for those who live here. For the ones who come here to date the girls, the same way any responsible parent would. Is there anything wrong with that?" Grossfeld certainly doesn't consider herself a martinet. "I've heard it said I'm very tough," she says. "I don't think my kids would defy me. A coach has to use whatever weapons he or she has in order to help the child move forward. Motivation that's positive is 100 percent better than motivation that's negative. That's my feeling about it, anyway."

Generally rated the top women's gymnastic coach in the nation, Grossfeld, who still works out regularly on the bars and doesn't look her 36 years, sometimes talks the same way Al Davis of the Oakland Raiders does.

"My whole bag is the pursuit of excellence," she says. "Back in my day when I first started to train, the United States traditionally was last in gymnastics. We're trying to improve that. At the moment, I'd say our women's team is highly respected in the World Championships in France in October, has beaten Japan, and many regard the Japanese the best in the world."

Turk stalks NFL rosters

SANTA ROSA, Calif. (NEA) — From the time he puts on pads in a Pop Warner league, he is nurtured to believe he is special, an achiever, a star. This goes on through high school when he is flown to college campuses around the country. And college he is treated deferentially. So when he is drafted by the pros, it's a natural consequence — he knows he's going to make it in the National Football League.

Turk stalks NFL rosters

His ego won't concede any possibility of failure. But here, at a motel complex in the Sonoma Valley, and in 27 other locations around the country, egos are getting bruised.

The Raiders, one of the most successful teams in the NFL, knocks on a door at the Raiders practice field in the team trains. He tells the player inside, "Coach Madden would like to see you. And bring your play book."

When the player gets to Room 175, where Madden has his office, he is no longer with the Raiders. He is in the middle of the gridiron, the toughest part of the business.

But the 42-year-old coach, who has been in charge of the Raiders since 1969, claims he doesn't lose any sleep over the matter. "The only time it would be a problem," he elaborates, "is if you get into a situation where a coach is going to give the kid a chance to show what he can do. And that doesn't happen here."

Madden is a Florida-faced man in a dark suit and tie. He is dressed in a dark suit and tie. He is dressed in a dark suit and tie. He is dressed in a dark suit and tie.

There is an urgency to the training camp since the NFL will inaugurate a 16-game regular season schedule (up from 14), cutting out two exhibition games (the NFL prefers to call them euphemistically "pre-season contests") and forcing the coaches to make quick decisions on paring personnel to meet the 45-man roster.

Madden compensated for the Raiders from the college camp, which started July 10, there were 64 bodies — including quarterbacks and some veterans coming off injuries who needed special work. The rest of the squad came in 11 days later.

So the opportunity is there, no matter what reputation, or lack of it, a kid brings with him. "It's a natural separation," shrugs Madden at the idea of cutting people. "By the time you have someone, they know it. The greatest emotion is relief. Where they're really told it on the field, where they see it for themselves. They know it's coming."

That goes for veterans as well as rookies. Last year, Marvin Hubbard, the longtime Raiders fullback plagued in recent seasons by injuries, knew that he was gone. He had it all planned. When he got the official word from Madden, he was going to have a helicopter fly to the Raiders practice field behind the El Rancho Triunfo, swoop down and land in the middle of the gridiron. A valet would step out with a bottle of chardonnay champagne and a glass. Marvin would break ranks, run off the field, and take a step into the "copter and fly off forever."

The Raiders traded him to the Detroit Lions.

House authorizes foreign arms aid

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Foreign policy questions have been dominating action in Congress all week, and Wednesday was no exception. In working its way through a stack of amendments before passing the authorization bill, the House:

Decided, 229-180, to permit President Carter to end economic sanctions against Rhodesia on Dec. 31 or thereafter if that white-ruled nation has installed a freely elected government representing all political factions.

Rejected, 257-147, a proposal to end all military aid to South Korea unless the Seoul government allows former Washington Ambassador Kim Dong-jo to testify in connection with Capitol Hill influence-buying.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Gary Bowdach, the confessed Miami gangster "hit man" and arsonist, today was giving a Senate subcommittee details of his association with one of the Southeast's largest traffickers in marijuana and cocaine.

Bowdach, 35, star witness of Senate Permanent Investigations Subcommittee hearings on organized crime, confessed being an associate of Richard Douglas Cravero, the former boss of marijuana and cocaine operations.

Bowdach, for example, told the subcommittee Wednesday that most of the rising tide of arson for profit is while Cravero, the narcotics ex-convict, is serving current life sentences in a Florida prison for multiple murders.

In his prime, Cravero smuggled wares found their way into large Eastern cities as well as the Southeast, subcommittee records say.

Cravero's gang was put out of commission in 1975 after a joint federal, state and Dade County task force worked on it 24 hours a day for several months, the records show.

Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., who is conducting the hearings, said Bowdach is especially valuable as a source of inside information about organized crime because his own activity was diversified and he had high-level connections.

Justices endorse TV in courtroom

BURLINGTON, Vt. (UPI) — Television viewers could see real life courtroom drama if a resolution adopted by the nation's chief justices takes effect.

The justices Wednesday endorsed a resolution favoring television, radio and photographic news coverage in courtrooms as long as it does not interfere with trial proceedings.

The resolution, adopted at the conclusion of a four-day Conference of Chief Justices, was approved by supreme court representatives from 43 states and Puerto Rico.

Only Chief Justice Jay Lewis of South Carolina voted against the proposal, while Maine Chief Justice Vincent Kusick abstained.

Former Florida Chief Justice Ben Overton, who led a 16-member panel of judges studying the issue, emphasized the resolution was not a mandate, but would give the states' high courts authority to allow or ban the expanded media coverage.

The resolution calls on the American Bar Association to amend its Code of Judicial Conduct which currently bans broadcast, television, audio or photographic news coverage in court.

In addition, the resolution advises the states' supreme courts to adopt specific "conditions, limitations and guidelines which allow such coverage in a manner that will be unobtrusive, will not disrupt the trial participants and will not otherwise interfere with the administration of justice."

The proposal was presented by Edward Pringle, chief justice of Colorado, which in 1967 became the first state to allow expanded courtroom coverage. Since then, 13 other states have permitted such coverage in varying ways.

Pringle said "only one or two people" had ever captured the presence of television cameras affected a trial.

The Colorado chief justice said it was important the public be able to view courtroom proceedings and said jurors who know a camera is watching them are "liable to pay more attention" to the trial.

Ohio Justice William O'Neill, conference chairman, said the issue of allowing coverage is "almost non-controversial" in the appellate courts where there are no witnesses and no jurors.

The resolution will be forwarded to the ABA which is expected to vote on a similar proposal at its meeting later this week in New York City.

Patty Hearst says lawyer's aid poor

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Patricia Hearst has asked for a new trial on grounds F. Lee Bailey, one of the nation's best-known lawyers, did not represent her adequately.

In a nine-page affidavit filed Wednesday by her new attorney, Miss Hearst said Bailey was "falsified" and "shaking" and had swallowed what appeared to be hangover medicine during her 1976 trial.

At least several months of the months asking U.S. District Court Judge William Orrick to "vacate, set aside or correct" her seven-year sentence for bank robbery, which the newspaper heiress now is serving at Pleasanton inameda County. She will be eligible for parole within two years.

The petition also asserted that Bailey coerced Miss Hearst into signing a release for a book about the trial.

The affidavit said that during the trial "it was necessary for (Bailey) to ingest what I considered to be hangover medicine... that he seemed to be suffering from the effects of insomnia... that during his summation he seemed to be falsified, that his words were shaking so badly that it was necessary to hold one of my hands over his eyes."

"I believe these symptoms to have been the result of trial conduct pursuing interests of his own, which caused demands on his time and on my physically..."

Miss Hearst was kidnapped in February, 1974, by the Symbionese Liberation Army from her Berkeley, Calif., apartment. The following April she participated in the holdup of a San Francisco bank. She was arrested in 1974 and convicted in 1976.

In the petition presented by her new attorney, George Martinez, it was asserted the publicity deprived her of a fair trial, yet there was no motion for a change of venue.

New locks prompted by escape

DANBURY (UPI) — After two teen-agers were waiting in the state courthouse lockup for court appearances used playing cards to spring the doors on their cells, the state has taken the hint.

State workers have installed new locks on doors in the $58,000 prebuilt lockup placed behind one of the old courthouses last month. The Fairfield County sheriff's office said Wednesday.

The two teens weren't the only ones who took advantage of their situation. Last Friday, another prisoner used a piece of milk carton from his lunch to flee.

Once outside cells, prisoners apparently fled through a door equipped with a lock designed to open from the inside only.

Two of the escapes are still at large, Danbury police said Wednesday. They are Edward Woolcock, 17, of Danbury and Peter Quinn, 24, of Ridgefield. James Fitzgerald, 16, of Danbury, turned himself in after his escape, police said.

After the third escape, Chief Deputy Sheriff Philip M. Pittoco ordered his deputies to use an old lockup in the courthouse building itself until new locks were installed.
