

House closer to big money vote

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House moved a step closer to approving the largest single piece of money legislation ever considered by Congress, while the fate of several tax-cut proposals awaited action by the House Rules Committee.

The House moved slowly Tuesday toward approval of $119.2 billion to arm, pay and train the armed forces, rejecting attempts to make across-the-board cuts of billions of dollars from the defense appropriations bill.

Amendments Tuesday but put over until Wednesday completion of their work on the bill.

The measure is largest single piece of money legislation ever considered by Congress.

Incumbents favored in four primaries

By United Press International
Georgia Democrats voted for Sen. Sam Nunn and Gov. George Busbee and against Betty Talmaidge, Michigan Republicans renominated popular Sen. Robert Griffin and Missouri voted resoundingly to join the tax revolt.

Mrs. Talmaidge, involved in a messy divorce with Sen. Herman Talmaidge, finished third in a race for the House seat vacated by the retirement of Rep. John Flynt, the Democrat who led the House probe of Korean bribery.

Michigan — Republican Gov. William Milliken was unopposed and Griffin polled more than 80 percent of the vote to defeat Oakland County Prosecutor Brooks Paterik.

Missouri — The state's 10 incumbent congressmen all were renominated — four of them had no opposition.

Food prices drop first time in year

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Wholesale prices rose 0.5 percent in July, but food costs dropped for the first time in almost a year, the government reported today.

The half percent rise in overall wholesale prices equaled the smallest monthly rise of 1978. The improvement in prices of wholesale goods — those ready for sale to consumer outlets — was attributed entirely to a 0.3 percent decline in food, the first dip in that important category since an 0.1 percent drop in September 1977.

The administration has been predicting that food prices would taper off this summer, particularly for meat, after rising at an annual rate of 17 percent during the first half of the year.

Water samples fail test, but no big problems seen

Congressional rush begins

It is the season for Congress to come alive and begin producing. Soon it will do that, because it has to, and when it begins, the volume of output could become dizzying. For members of the House and Senate the weeks between now and Sept. 29 will be filled with legislative action.

Other editors say:

New England Notebook: Campaign '78

By PETER A. BROWN
BOSTON (UPI) — The 1980 election calendar makes President Carter's much-publicized problems with New England's Democratic big wigs potentially more hazardous than they might otherwise be.

The 1980 primary calendar has New Hampshire first, with Massachusetts, Connecticut and Vermont all scheduled the following week.

Democrat candidates must do well in Massachusetts and Connecticut if they have any real hope of unseating Carter. Massachusetts is important because it is perhaps the nation's most Democratic state and the party's nominee must be popular there.

Traditionally New England has not had that much input in picking the Democratic presidential nominee, with the region representing only a

Capital Fare

By ANDREW TULLY
WASHINGTON — This capital of the more-or-less United States is a tough town. Hours after Dr. Peter Bourne lost his white House head for writing a Quaalude prescription to a fictitious person and simultaneously was accused of sniffling cocaine at a party tossed by the illicy drug lobby, scandymongering became the No. 1 sport.

That didn't make bullying either fashionable or respectable.
Thus I find the casual, almost adoring, attitude of Washington's Bright Crowd toward cocaine addiction nauseating. It suggests to me the impressionable that they need not be ashamed, or concerned, or depressed, if they indulge in the drug.

As he put it, that was becoming a problem in movieland: "Drugs are solidly established in these people's life styles. They've become fashionable, even respectable."
Man and boy, my trade has brought me into contact with lots of naughtiness, but my square side finds it had to view a vicious habit as "respectable." I know about Sherlock Holmes and Sigmund Freud and their habitual resort to morphine, but it still seems to me an aberration by characters I otherwise respected.

Little is changed for Padre Pedro

By WILLIAM T. BLASE

HARTFORD (UPI) — Bishop Peter A. Rosazza admits the hours are longer but says little else has changed since he was a parish priest at the Sacred Heart Church. For one thing, parishioners still call him Padre Pedro.

Bishop Rosazza said Wednesday, "If there's a difference, it's that many of the people in his mostly Hispanic former parish in Hartford's North End 'feel a little more 'carino' — affection — for me."

"They don't treat me any different in the sense of being aloof in their relationships with me," said the bishop, whose trademark is the bicycle he rides and the beret he wears.

"Sure, some officials are probably a little more aware of me in the political sense than the Kremlin is aware of the pope," he said winking. "But just how aware, I don't know."

He plans to find out. He's written Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., to protest cuts that have pulled the rug out from under a federally funded neighborhood tutorial program.

"It's terrible. That program was keeping 30 kids busy and off the streets. It was a volunteer grass roots program that was working. Now we have a problem," he said.

Involvement in community problems is just one of many burdens the bishop must shoulder in addition to his duties as one of the archdiocese's two auxiliary bishops.

"It's tough," he admits. "Sometimes there just doesn't seem to be enough hours in the day. I always take desk work home at night. And there are often church functions — and a lot of talks I'm asked to give."

He says he looks forward to speaking, but in the long haul he doesn't expect to find a home on the rubber chicken circuit. "I expect that to die down soon. Every dog has his day."

Rosazza said although he has no preference for a successor to Pope Paul VI he would like to see "some one who throws fast balls rather than curves. I pray that the Holy Spirit is active in the hearts of these cardinals and that they choose the one that will be good for the times."

The bishop grew up in Torrington, where his parents still reside, and he is a Dartmouth College graduate. I was at the Hanover, N.H., school that has its interest in the religious life was fostered by a Roman Catholic chaplain.

Rosazza, 43, who describes himself as a social activist and still rides around the city on a bicycle clad in a black suit and sandals, says he has not changed since his June 24th elevation.

He said that while he got a promotion — from parish priest to bishop — he didn't get a raise. He receives $449 a month, the same as any other priest with his amount of service, 17 years.

All the same, he says, he's "happy being able to speak in the name of the church ... to be able to preach to the world."

There have been some concessions, however. For one thing, Rosazza says he has a 10-speed bike now that someone gave him for his ordination. "But I like the three-speed better," he said. For special occasions — the bishop now arrives in a style with which he's not accustomed.

A 1978 Oldsmobile has been put at his disposal.

Educators meet today on Head Start cutback

By CHARLES MAYNARD

HARTFORD — School officials will meet with representatives of the Community Renewal Team in Hartford today to discuss a cutback in federal funds for the Head Start program.

"We're going there to see what they're talking about in regard to this cutback in funds," said Sam J. Leone, assistant school superintendent for instruction. "If it's too severe a cutback, we will bypass the program this year."

The Head Start program is a preschool curriculum for economically disadvantaged youngsters and is slated to begin Oct. 1.

The major differences between the two programs, Leone said, is that Head Start provides money for transportation of students and a breakfast before the morning session while Title I does not.

Leon said that Head Start was first proposed, a master schedule including the average teacher's salary was produced. However, because of the shifting enrollment toward Head Start, the costs were inflated because more experienced teachers would be hired.

The department was informed of the cutback in federal funds after the CRT met with federal officials in Boston Monday. The CRT representatives said there would be less money for the Greater Hartford area than they had originally planned.

Only five council members were present for the meeting. Since all five votes were needed to pass a proposal, Havens' vote against an alternative plan was enough to defeat a motion.

Havens, however, who has been in favor of Manchester's proposal, said he voted against the alternative because he believed the proposal would be unacceptable to Manchester.

Four alternatives were presented Monday night. Three were found generally unacceptable by the five council members, and Havens' opposition to the fourth alternative — an industrial spur — defeated the first proposal.

School board restores career specialist's post

By CHRIS BLAKE

HARTFORD — William East will be back this fall as career education specialist after all. It had appeared that Schmidt would be leaving that post, which he held for five years, because of a school administration decision to re-assign him to fill a vacancy in the guidance department at East Hartford High School.

However, the Board of Education voted Monday night to restore his position for this year and not curtail the master plan for career education.

Schmidt's position was funded by federal and state school aid funds until 1978. Then, the high schools absorbed his salary as part of their budgets last year.

This year, however, the principals at Penney High School and EHHS said they could not afford to do so.

When a guidance position became vacant, the administration assigned Schmidt to fill it. Schmidt had been a guidance counselor at Penney High prior to 1978.

Jerry Marcus, assistant school superintendent for personnel, said today that Schmidt would get his salary of $19,700 a year. This would have been his salary as a guidance counselor this year. Marcus said.

Until last month, he reported Schmidt would be going to EHHS as a guidance counselor. However, board member Richard Daley attempted to stop the action.

Daley said the re-assignment would seriously hamper the growing career education program at the high school level.

Daley then moved that "the superintendent insure that the career education plan that was adopted by the Board of Education be realized in the 1978-79 school year to the extent that what was done last year not be curtailed in any way and to the extent that the plan calls for an enhancement of what was done on the previous year and to continue on with the plan."

The board tabled that motion at its July 17 meeting and brought it up again late Monday night.

Mr. Daley's motion was helpful in setting forth the board's priorities," said Marcus. "Both high school principals will work with the central administration in making whatever reassignments are necessary to insure the continuity of the career education program at the high school level."

The board's decision means that the school administration will have to fill the guidance position with funds from this year's budget.

Eugene Diggs, superintendent of schools, said today the money would have to come from the budget, but he is not sure what will be cut.

Diggs said he will set up a meeting with Donald Kramer, Penny High's principal, and John Callahan, EHHS's principal, next week when Kramer returns from vacation. They will discuss the future of career education.

Diggs said the position will be posted and existing school personnel, as well as outsiders, may apply.

Marcus said the salary range would depend on the qualifications and experience of the candidate who is selected to fill the guidance post.

Ryan blames Havens in road problems

SOUTH WINDSOR — Councilman Richard Ryan said today he believes the only future alternative open to South Windsor in dealing with the Manchester proposed relocation of Pleasant Valley Road and the closing of Burnham Street, may be through the courts.

Ryan said he blames Councilman Edward Havens' "negative vote Monday night" which he said "closed off all options in dealing with Manchester on the potential traffic problem created by the massive J.C. Penney warehouse now under construction."

The special meeting Monday was called to discuss four alternative east-west routes to accommodate traffic which will result when Burnham Street is closed. South Windsor officials have asked the closing of Pleasant Valley Road contingent on their leaving Burnham Street open or planning another east-west traffic road," said Ryan.

Havens, however, said that he voted against the plan because it was basically the same resolution once all five votes were needed to pass a proposal, Havens' vote against an alternative plan was enough to defeat a motion.

Havens, however, who has been in favor of Manchester's proposal, said he voted against the alternative because he believed the proposal would be unacceptable to Manchester.

Four alternatives were presented Monday night. Three were found generally unacceptable by the five council members, and Havens' opposition to the fourth alternative — an industrial spur — defeated the first proposal.

Only five council members were present for the meeting. Since all five votes were needed to pass a proposal, Havens' vote against an alternative plan was enough to defeat a motion.

HEBRON — The executive committee of Jones-Keeble-Batson Post 95 American Legion has announced its slate of nominees for the coming year. Elections will be tonight at 7 p.m. at the Post House, Hebron Green.

The proposed slate includes: John Kulyryk, commander; Richard Grant Sr., senior vice commander; Clarence Michael Jr., junior vice commander; Warren Holbrook, adjutant; George Barst, assistant adjutant.

Also: Joseph Simmons, finance officer; G. Earl Porter, judge advocate; Howard Grant, historian; Daniel Porter, sergeant-at-arms; Roger Thibodeau, assistant sergeant-at-arms; Richard Keeble, service officer; George Smith, assistant secretary.

The plan puts a high priority on state purchase, waterfront land, expanding existing facilities, building Olympic-sized pools in areas that lack enough natural water bodies, and offering more water access for boating and fishing.

The plan says private landowners' opposition to public acquisition of waterfront property "has created major difficulties for the state. It suggests more communication between citizens, public officials and private owners on the issue."

Also: Joseph Simmons, finance officer; G. Earl Porter, judge advocate; Howard Grant, historian; Daniel Porter, sergeant-at-arms; Roger Thibodeau, assistant sergeant-at-arms; Richard Keeble, service officer; George Smith, assistant secretary.

Swinging shadow ...

The sun came out for awhile Tuesday after more than a week of rain and so, in fact, did the children participating in the Head Start Program in Vernon. Monster bash to end library program

VERNON — The summer reading program at Rockville Public Library is winding down to a close. Invitations to the "Monster Bash" are being issued to parents of children who have done a minimum of five book projects during the program.

The Monster Bash is scheduled for Aug. 16 from 2:30 to 4 p.m. in the Edith Peck Room of the library. Arts Encounter of Manchester will entertain with music, clowns, and improvisational theater.

Refreshments and a raffle will also be featured and children are invited to come dressed as their favorite monster if they wish.

Monsters were the theme of this year's reading program. Janet Smith, children's librarian, said the children participating in the reading program have shown a great deal of originality in their projects. Projects created include mobiles, dioramas, puppets, a telescope, and a spider fashioned from a coconut. Parents and friends are invited to view these items as well as the reading folders on display in the children's room.

HEBRON — Three trees have been removed from Hebron Green by the highway maintenance crew of the Department of Transportation and several residents of Hebron wonder why.

Residents especially wonder why the diseased trees had to be cut down. Robert Elliott of Marlborough, who is in the process of restoring an old Hebron property and building, asked to have the three trees trimmed. However, when the crew started to trim it was discovered that the tree was diseased and it, too, was cut down.

Raymond Burt, selectman, said that he had received several complaints about the trees. He said after some research it was discovered that the trees were the property of the state and thus no warning or removal had to be posted.

First Selectman Aaron Reid, who is also the tree warden, wasn't available for comment.

Lawsuit claims neighbors pollute state's air

HARTFORD (UPI) — A coalition of groups, angry because Connecticut's air is polluted by neighboring states, have filed suit against New York, New Jersey and federal officials for failing to enforce the Clean Air Act.

Connecticut's air is dirtier than that anywhere in the nation except Los Angeles, in part because winds bring tons of pollutants from New York and New Jersey to Connecticut.

The federal government has been pressing Connecticut to clean up its air. The suit, filed Wednesday in U.S. District Court in Hartford, is a counteraction to force the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency and New York and New Jersey environmental officials to help Connecticut.

The suit was brought by the Connecticut Business and Industry Association, the Connecticut Conference of Municipalities and the Boston-based New England Legal Foundation.

It asks the EPA to stop awarding grants to New York and New Jersey until the states revise their plans to clean up air pollution and to enforce air pollution standards regionally instead of state by state, a CBI spokesman said.

Among those named as defendants are New York Gov. Hugh L. Carey, New Jersey Gov. Brendan Byrne, the heads of both state's environmental protection agencies, and the Long Island (N.Y.) Lighting Co. which burns 2.8 percent sulfur fuel oil.

Also cited was EPA Administrator Douglas M. Costle, who was previously Connecticut's commissioner of environmental protection.

The CBI spokesman said the suit also asks the court to order that EPA require the states to revise their clean air plans and the Long Island Lighting Co. to stop using 2.8 percent sulfur fuel. Connecticut is allowed to burn only .5 percent sulfur fuel, he said.

NELF attorney Wayne S. Henderson said, "It's generally acknowledged in the scientific community that of all the pollutants, ozone travel the farthest. Everyone recognizes the problem but until now, no state has been willing to stick its neck out."

"If Connecticut were to simply shut down tomorrow, it would still be in violation of federal clean air standards for ozone by virtue of that which is blown into this state from New York and New Jersey," he said.

Kenneth O. Decko, CBI's vice president and general counsel, said prevailing westerly winds tend to bring air from the Midwest and sometimes from the South to Connecticut where it hovers over the state.

"We're geographically at a location where the weather forces merge," he said. "We have the second worst ozone problem in the United States, next to Los Angeles."

Henderson said Connecticut's geographic position has caused it additional problems because the state is assigned to the EPA Region One, headquartered in Boston which covers the New England area. That region has strict pollution control.

New York and New Jersey are in Region Two which, Henderson said, is less tough on the states in forcing them to clean up their air.

SCM jury to hear more

HARTFORD (UPI) — The jury in the historic antitrust suit brought by SCM Corp. against Xerox was to reconvene today to hear evidence on one more claim, its last task in the longest jury trial in federal court history.

The nine-member U.S. District Court panel said Wednesday SCM was entitled to the $11.5 million in damages it had sought for lost profits from 1969 to 1976, but left another claim of $48.5 million undecided.

The jury said if SCM had not been excluded from the plain paper copying market in 1969, the company would have earned $23.6 million dollars in 1976 alone. It must now hear evidence on what SCM estimates the value of a plain paper copier division would be if it had been created.

A Xerox spokesman said the company will file a motion against the jury's $11.5 million "and ultimate judgment will be in our favor."

well as evidence presented today. Any award would be trebled under antitrust law.

Following Wednesday's court session, Richard Sexton, SCM vice president, said "we are gratified with these results, although naturally we are disappointed that our other claims were not sustained."

A Xerox spokesman said the company will file a motion against the jury's $11.5 million "and ultimate judgment will be in our favor."

Thousands view pope's body; conclave Aug. 25

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Thousands upon thousands of faithful, many sobbing, passed before the body of Pope Paul VI today as it lay in state in the awesome majesty of St. Peter's Basilica. And during the solemn procession the Vatican announced that a conclave to elect his successor would begin Aug. 25.

The body of Giovanni Battista Montini, who reigned for 15 years as Paul VI, was removed from its plain pine casket and placed on a bier in front of the central altar of the confessional, dwarfed by the towering Bernini bronze canopy with its twisted columns.

The Vatican announced that the Saturday funeral service for the pope will be held outdoors in St. Peter's Square instead of in St. Peter's Basilica as originally planned because of the vast throngs — up to 250,000 — expected. The basilica holds 30,000 at most.

All cardinals present in Rome will concelebrate mass at the rite, which will be followed by burial in the Vatican grottoes below the basilica. The body will be placed in an 800-pound triple coffin of oak, lead and cypress before it is lowered to the grottoes.

The Basilica's doors were opened at 7 a.m. An estimated 40,000 people were waiting outside with thousands more arriving all the time.

The College of Cardinals decreed today that the conclave to elect a successor to the pontiff will open Aug. 25. They also decreed that the nine days of requiem masses for Paul's death will begin with the funeral.

The cardinals said the conclave would be held in the Vatican's Sixtine Chapel, the narrow hall just behind and to the side of St. Peter's, famed for its fresco of the Last Judgment by Michelangelo.

Forty-three of the 130 cardinals attended today's congregation, which decided on the date of the conclave. They included four Americans — William W. Baum of Washington, Humberto S. Medeiros of Boston, John J. Carberry of St. Louis and Terence J. Cooke of New York.

Paul was dressed in red and gold ceremonial robes over a white lace surplice, red slippers, a rosary in the hands clasped in prayer on the chest, a white and gold mitre on his head, the papal staff with silver crucifix at his side.

The bier was covered with red and gold satin.

The Vatican said on Wednesday that it would break with tradition and seat the body in the final triple casket for the lying in state, "for sanitary reasons."

But instructions from the College of Cardinals, however, were to have the body on an open view if possible. It was removed from the casket shortly before the crowds began pouring in.

St. Peter's, the largest church in Christendom, was to have been opened at 9 a.m., but the size of the waiting crowd, which gathered soon after dawn and church officials to advance this by two hours.

The thousands of mourners moved into the church at a fairly rapid speed into the Swiss guards standing before the massive bronze doors in their medieval uniforms of blue, red and gold. But they soon packed solid in the center nave and it took 45 minutes to move down to the bier.

People sobbed as the body came into view and ushers in front of the bier had difficulty in keeping the line moving as elderly people, tears streaming down their faces, fell to their knees in prayer.

The sound of weeping echoed through the Basilica, especially from the many small side chapels where masses were officiated.

For the first two hours there was a solemn religious atmosphere in the cathedral.

This changed as the morning went on with the arrival of tour groups, their leaders waving numbered flags and gaily-dressed tourists disregarding the ban on taking photographs.

At one moment, a priest among the first mourners noted the pain of those around him in the center nave. He offered to say the rosary. Dozens of voices implored him to do so.

"We will do it in Latin for the benefit of all the foreigners around us," the priest said.

As the crowd moved slowly down the nave hundreds of voices echoed the rosary responses.

Two electric fans played on Paul's body. There was a brownish yellow tinge to the skin.

Paul, spiritual leader of the world's 700 million Roman Catholics for 15 years, died last Sunday one month before his 81st birthday. He had been at the papal summer palace at Castel Gandolfo, 15 miles from Rome.

The body was brought to St. Peter's Wednesday evening.

Oil subsidy compromise pleases region's solons

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A half-loaf is better than none, and East Coast senators especially those from energy-hungry New England — were happy to get that.

The issue concerned imported residual oil, important to the New England because it is a major industrial fuel.

The government requires oil refiners in the rest of the country to help out easterners who must depend on higher-priced imported oil, by requiring them to pay a subsidy to equalize the price between domestic and imported residual oil.

The administration wanted to go all the way, boosting the current 30 percent called an entitlement — to 100 percent of the difference.

It has a rule-making procedure in process to implement the 100 percent figure in about two weeks, but Sen. J. Bennett Johnston, D-La., from a major oil producing state, was prepared with an amendment to block the administration entirely.

"Our head-count showed that we would lose it (a vote to defeat the original Johnston amendment)," said Sen. Edward Brooke, R-Mass., who led the New England group. "We felt that half a loaf under these circumstances would be better than no loaf at all."

The Energy Department proposal would have boosted total subsidies from the current $120 million to about $400 million.

Under a compromise worked out by Johnston and New England senators, and passed 53-40, the entitlement would be raised from 30 percent to 50 percent — or to about $200 million. That would be about $1

House to debate tax cutting plan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House, having sent the Senate the largest money bill in history, meets today to take up a number of tax-cut proposals cleared for debate and votes.

The tax proposals cleared for floor action by the Rules Committee Wednesday include an administration-backed $18.1 billion plan intended to shift more benefits to lower-income individuals, the $18.2 billion Ways and Means Committee bill and several alternatives.

The rules panel barred any effort on the floor to either reduce higher Social Security tax rates taking effect in January, or to offset them with income-tax breaks.

The tax bill goes to the floor today after the House approved 338-40 and sent to the Senate a $119.3 billion defense appropriation, the largest money bill in history.

The measure contains $1.1 billion for a nuclear aircraft carrier President Carter doesn't want and was amended at the last minute to bar use of funds for military abortions except to save the woman's life.

The legislation carries over $29 billion for the Army, $33 billion for the Air Force and $41 billion for the Navy in the fiscal year starting Oct. 1.

Sen. Lowell Weicker, R-Conn., says he will introduce an amendment to delete the funds to try to force former South Korean envoy Kim Jong-il to cooperate with the House Ethics Committee's investigation of Kim's alleged cash payments to congressmen.

A Senate permanent investigations subcommittee continues its hearing today with confessed crime syndicate "hit man" Gary Bowdach testifying.

Changes in bus service suggested by commission

Manchesters Commission on the Handicapped will ask that various changes be made in the contract for the Phone-A-Ride bus service for the elderly and handicapped when it is renewed next month. Barry Bernstein, commission chairman, said Wednesday night he was "happy with the progress of the bus service." However, with the charter scheduled to be renewed by Sept. 21, he and the other commissioners would like to see some additional services to be provided. The commission would also like to see some mutual arrangement between the Manchester and East Hartford free transportation systems for the elderly and handicapped. Manchester's service only provides rides within the town, while East

Hartford's brings people to Manchester and to Hartford for shopping and medical appointments, according to Miss Gertrude DeLoe, a member of Manchester's commission. The present Phone-A-Ride charter calls for at least 24 hours notice given for service. The commission would like to see this enforced. The present 48-hour notice required is unreasonable, especially when one has to call on Thursday for a ride on Monday. The commission hopes to be involved in writing the new contract. Laine Dyer of the town's Human Services Department said today that he would like to see the Manchester and East Hartford systems merged. Manchester's service only provides rides within the town, while East

Former teammates haunt Red Sox

BOSTON (UPI) — The Boston Red Sox had nobody to blame but themselves. They not only played poorly, they supplied the Cleveland Indians with the two players who beat them. Ted Cox and Rick Wise, who were dealt to Cleveland for Dennis Eckersley last March, combined Wednesday night to lead the Indians to a 5-1 victory over the East Division-leading Red Sox. Wise, who upped his slate against his former teammates to 3-0 this season and 9-14 overall, mystified Boston, limiting them to four hits and one run in 6 1/2 innings. And nothing could have pleased the bespectacled right-hander more. "This year it's something special to beat Boston because the revenge factor is still there. But, on the other hand, I just want to win and I don't care who I beat. It's tough enough just winning," he said. Cox, who played his first game ever in right field for the Sox, driving the ultimate winning run in the seventh inning with a line double off the left field wall, also got a special kick out of the victory. "I had what I thought were two game winning hits against Texas over the weekend only to have us lose the game. So, to beat the Red Sox gives me a special feeling," he said.

The Red Sox did the rest. In the seventh inning with pinch runner Gary Hancock on second base and Butch Hobson on first with two outs, Rick Burderson grounded a single to center. Thinking Cleveland centerfielder Rick Manning would throw to the plate in an attempt to nail Hancock, Hobson took a wide turn at batting. He was a mental blunder. Jimmy Barked. "He got trapped, that's all!" Wise, who gave up only four hits before retiring in the seventh inning, won't concede Boston the American League East title. "Realizing his chances of playing with a pennant winner in 1978 are minimal at best, Cox sees the division flag flying in Boston this year."

"I've been looking to get out. But, I'm going to see what happens for the rest of the season. Then, I'm going to talk with Seggie (Indiana's General Manager) and find out what the plans are for me. But, to be honest, I don't see any change coming next year," he said.

Originally touted as a third baseman by Boston, Cox has played six positions for Cleveland thus far this season, and it's up to him. "The only positions left for me are catcher, second base and center field and I've been told to be ready to play them. It's been a long season."

"Before, I was never worried about my hitting and now with all the work I have to do learning new positions, I've started preening at the plate," he said. "Realizing his chances of playing with a pennant winner in 1978 are minimal at best, Cox sees the division flag flying in Boston this year."

"I think the Sox will win it. I know they had the hitting and the pitching has been better than I expected. It took them three and a half months to hit a slump and if they don't have another one they should win it easy," he said.

Boston will get a chance to even the loss Thursday afternoon when Eckersley, 34, faces his old teammates. Cleveland's hurler will be another player involved in the swap, right-hander Mike Paxton, 37.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Larry Gura, who fluctuates between starting and relieving — depending upon the Royals' pitching situation — tossed a four-hit shutout against his favorite patsies, the Baltimore Orioles, as he outdueled Scott McGregor in pitching the Kansas City Royals to a 2-0 victory.

"I think this game will keep me in the rotation," said Gura, who has won his last five games and is a sizzling 2-2 since coming to the royals without a baserunner for 6 2/3 innings before Kansas City scored six runs in the seventh on run-scoring singles by Al Cowens and John Walsh.

In other AL games, Toronto blanked Chicago, 8-0, Cleveland beat Boston, 5-1, New York downed Milwaukee, 8-7, Detroit topped Texas, 5-2, and Seattle defeated Minnesota, 4-1.

Blue Jays 8, White Sox 0. Jesse Jefferson fired his second shutout of the year, a three-hitter, Rice Carly lashed three doubles and five hits in nine games with Baltimore this season.

McGregor was sailing along until the decisive seventh inning. He held White Sox batsmen in check. Catcher Buck Martinez muffed Lou

Tea Men eliminated from NASL playoff

FOXBORO, Mass. (UPI) — The Fort Lauderdale Strikers scored three goals in an 11-minute stretch in the second half Wednesday night to beat the New England Tea Men 3-1 in the opening round of the North American Soccer League playoffs.

The win eliminated New England and advanced the Strikers into the second round.

The Strikers scored what proved to be the winning goal when Tea Men defenseman Peter Simpson mistakenly took the ball past his own goalie, Kevin Keelan, at 88:00 to give Fort Lauderdale a 2-1 lead.

New England opened the scoring with another goal at 24:46 when Strikers defenseman John Hilday accidentally sent the ball into the Fort Lauderdale net while trying to clear a centering pass into the goal area by

Walton after money, too

By MILT RICHMAN — BILL WALTON has some pretty set ideas on any number of subjects, one of which happens to be sports medicine, and that supposedly is the overriding reason he's asking the Portland Trail Blazers to subject him to the subject of money, however. That's always a compelling reason, even with such a supposedly indifferent free spirit as Bill Walton, who keeps saying money isn't the only thing in life.

Don't rule out the subject of money, however. In one breath, his long-time friend and confidant, Jack Scott, says other things like working conditions and medical principles are just as important to Walton as money, but in the next breath he says Walton most likely will want to renegotiate his salary with his new team.

Gardening

By Frank Atwood

The garage was well filled with armfuls of roadside plants, some with blossoms, some with seed pods, all intended for later use in dried arrangements. Mrs. Robert Delcambre of Bolton had enlisted the help of her husband and two children to sort the plants and tie them in bunches. They were hung upside down to dry.

The family had returned recently from a trip to the Pennsylvania Dutch country around Lancaster, and Mrs. Delcambre had seen tassel growing there beside the road. The Delcambes harvested a basket of the prickly stuff to bring home. The seed pods of tassel are covered with stiff, hooked bars and, in an earlier day, these were used to raise the nap on homespun woolen cloth. Their use now is ornamental.

There were many bunches of goldenrod from roadsides nearer home, and Mrs. Delcambre said that, dried in a dark room, the flowers would keep their yellow color, while the green stems would turn brown.

There were Lantana, which Mrs. Delcambre calls Money Plant, raised from seed and recently harvested. Another name is Silver Dollar but Mrs. Delcambre observes that the pods are really not as large as silver dollars. The Lantana had been given space in the family vegetable garden where it could have full sun. The flower beds near the house are shaded by large trees.

From the vegetable garden, too, came strawflowers. The small, gay blooms in white, orange, red and yellow, had already been cut from their stems and strung on fine wire like beads.

There was yucca, already dried naturally in the field. It had been planted as a cover crop at the nearby Treat Nursery and most of it plowed under, but some plants escaped the plow. There was, also, ripe pumpkin naturally, found in a field near Birch Mountain Road.

Learned from mother
"I'll try anything," said Mrs. Delcambre. She likes the curiously shaped seed pods of columbine and the shiny red of rose hips. Soon she will go out to look in swampy spots for Joe Pye Weed. The pink color in the buds can be kept if the flowers are dried before they are fully open. Dock, said Mrs. Delcambre, if cut early, will stay green. Cut later, it will be pink, and still later brown.

"My mother always picked wild flowers to dry," Mrs. Delcambre said. "That's where I got the idea."

An ornamental seed pod that she valued for dried arrangements is growing now on a Cucumber Tree. The garden encyclopedia says it is Magnolia acuminata, and Mrs. Delcambre showed it to me when I called early in the spring to see her Christmas roses. I asked her then to tell me when the "cucumbers" appeared.

"They are strange fruits, resembling cucumbers in size and shape, growing on a small tree with very large, flat leaves. Large white blossoms appeared in early summer and fruitlets which were green when our picture was made, are turning

Whale faces greater danger

SEA ISLE CITY, N.J. (UPI) — The baby Beluga whale which scientists thought was in danger of dying because it was separated from its mother is facing a greater danger — man.

The lost and confused whale has been eluding marine scientists since it swam into Townsends Inlet Sunday. Scientists predicted the baby, which became separated from its mother, would starve without her and wanted to capture it to care for it.

But on Wednesday, videotapes of the 500-pound creature indicated the whale is in no immediate danger

Christina is going back

MOSCOW (UPI) — "It's not true," Christina Onassis Kazov said. "I'm coming back."

And with that, the 27-year-old Greek millionairess dismissed rumors that her nine-day-old marriage to Russian Sergei Kazov is on the rocks.

Christina canceled her plans for a honeymoon in Siberia and flew to Greece last Saturday, four days after her marriage, for what she said was urgent business.

In a telephone interview from Athens Wednesday, Christina told UPI she will return to Moscow and rejoin Kazov.

"I don't know the exact date because I've got things to do," Christina said. "But when I'm finished, I'll be back."

In Moscow, Kazov also denied the reports that his marriage was foundering.

"I am speaking to her regularly," the 37-year-old former shipping executive said.

Rumors of a split surfaced after Christina's abrupt departure alone from Moscow. She said her family had called her back on business.

"I've got all kinds of documents that I have to sign and things to finish. That's all there is to it — nothing more."

"This is something I have been expecting," he said. "The newspapers are going to say some nasty things about me."

Christina denied that. "But when I'm pressed they have absolutely nothing against Sergei and they're just wanting to be happy," she said.

Christina also dismissed published reports that Kazov once worked as a KGB agent and was responsible for placing agents on Soviet merchant ships.

"I know my husband and I know that's not true," she said. "I don't believe what the papers say."

Kazov also denied the rumor emphatically.

"This is something I have been expecting," he said. "The newspapers are going to say some nasty things about me."

It took 12 hours, 47 minutes and 51 seconds for Cindy Cleveland to swim the treacherous Santa Barbara Channel round trip, but she still had the energy to jog out of the water to greet her backers.

The 23-year-old California State University student is believed to be the first person ever to make the two-way crossing. She went into the 68-degree water at Port Hueneque Beach at 10:09 a.m. Tuesday, swam to Anapaca Island, then turned around and emerged triumphant Wednesday.

Geographically, the distance was 22 miles, but tides and currents made it longer.

Pressmen's strike closes newspapers in New York

NEW YORK (UPI) — New York City was without its three major daily newspapers today because of a pressmen's strike.

The walkout by pressmen against The New York Times, the New York Daily News and the New York Post was the city's second newspaper strike in two months and brought back bitter memories of the 164-day walkout — New York's and the country's longest — in 1968.

Wednesday's strike began after the Publishers Association, rejecting a request for a delay from a federal mediator, decided to post new work

Ground union strikes Pan American Airways

NEW YORK (UPI) — The union representing some 7,500 ground personnel employed by Pan American World Airways struck the airline in the United States and its possessions early today in a dispute over job security.

William Genesse, secretary-treasurer of Teamsters Local 722, said the walkout by reservations, cargo and other employees began after a strike deadline of 12:01 a.m. Tuesday passed without agreement on a contract.

"Teamsters officials said the unions representing flight attendants, engineers and pilots planned to honor the union's picket lines. Genesse said the strike would affect the entire

Women have best tool to fight breast cancer

BOSTON (UPI) — Doctors have proven what many women already believe — perhaps the best tool for fighting breast cancer is a woman's own hands.

A woman can save her life by examining her breasts for lumps once a month, two studies in The New England Journal of Medicine reported today.

One of 13 American women develops breast cancer — the most common cancer killer of women in this country. Survival depends on how soon it is caught, and that is the value of self-examination.

The studies suggested a renewed campaign to teach women the value of monthly self-exams. Despite the

Vitamin added to liquor may help avert disease

BOSTON (UPI) — Thiamine, the vitamin essential to life which already is used to fortify milk and bread, should be added to alcoholic beverages, two medical researchers said today.

Vitamin-fortified alcohol could keep thousands of alcoholics from developing a disease that forces them to be put in institutions permanently because their memories have crumbled to nothing, the researchers said in The New England Journal of Medicine.

And keeping alcoholics out of the hospital would save society millions of dollars, in part because the program would cost, they suggested.

The study was performed by Brandon S. Centerwall, a medical student, at the University of California-San Diego, and Dr. Michael H. Criqui, an assistant professor of community medicine at the school's La Jolla campus.

It's easy to joke about vitamin-fortified booze, but Criqui said the study addresses a quite serious problem.

"We're talking about saving the lives of thousands of people by virtually eliminating a disease in a country. That opportunity occurs very rarely," Criqui said in a telephone interview.

The disease is called Wernicke-Korsakoff syndrome. Its main cause is thiamine (Vitamin B1) deficiency, and alcoholics are practically the only ones who suffer from it because most people get thiamine in food. It's present naturally in beans, green vegetables, liver, egg yolk, brown rice and sweet corn.

The disease starts with mental confusion, uncoordinated walking and, if alcoholics are not treated, gradually worsens to a state of severe amnesia where a victim engages in "confabulation" — constantly making up stories to fill the frightening gaps in his memory.

It's easy to joke about vitamin-

Nuclear protestors arrested

By United Press International
More than 170 people were arrested Wednesday in New York and laid down in Sunnyside, Calif., to remember the last atomic bomb dropped in anger, which killed tens of thousands in the Japanese city of Nagasaki.

Seventy-nine people were arrested in a "die-in" at the Rocky Flats nuclear weapons plant in Golden, Colo., including "F Pentagon Papers" informant Daniel Ellsberg and poet Allen Ginsberg.

Seventy-two people were arrested late Wednesday for invading the grounds of the Trojan Nuclear Power Plant near Rainier, Ore., for the fourth time in four days. Nearly 200 people had been previously taken into custody.

Protestors also spread symbolic ashes in Philadelphia, prayer in New York and laid down in Sunnyside, Calif., to remember the last atomic bomb dropped in anger, which killed tens of thousands in the Japanese city of Nagasaki.

In the Colorado protest, an orange frocked Buddhist monk held a ceremonial drum — the chanting members of a procession fell to the road, written in pain and "die."

The arrests began at the Rockwell International plant, where plutonium plants are made for nuclear bombs. All but 10 arrested once before were given stern warnings and released.

ABA endorses ads on TV

NEW YORK (UPI) — Despite warnings that it may lead to abuse and increased malpractice suits, the American Bar Association has endorsed lawyer advertising on television for the first time.

The 140-4 vote by the group's policy-making House of Delegates is not binding, but may have an important influence on state courts and state bars that regulate the professional conduct of lawyers.

Agreement on fishing seems likely in West

SOUTH KINGSTOWN, R.I. (UPI) — An American negotiator says Canada seems more willing to resolve its West Coast fishing dispute with the U.S. than the one on the East Coast.

In June, the U.S. asked Canada to stop salmon fishing for two months off British Columbia. Canada asked the U.S. to reduce its catch in the Georges Bank area off New England.

When neither side complied, both countries closed its waters to fishermen from its neighbor.

Thomas A. Norris, a member of the U.S. negotiating team, Wednesday said the Canadians have apparently reversed their stand and are ready to work toward individual settlements on the West and East Coasts.

"The Canadians seem to be having second thoughts about the ban they imposed on reciprocal fishing," Norris said after reporting on negotiations to a New England Fishery Management Council meeting at the University of Rhode Island.

"Previous to last week's meeting the Canadians said they would not consider settling the West and East Coast disputes separately. But I think that they are changing their minds," he said.

Norris, vice chairman of the fishery council, said talks over the East Coast dispute are at a standstill. He predicted the dispute will have to be settled through international arbitration, probably by the World Court in Brussels.

New York and Vermont near pollution accord

MONTPELIER, Vt. (UPI) — Gov. Richard Snelling says new cooperation with New York state may finally give Vermont a handle on pollution of Lake Champlain by the International Paper Co.

Snelling said Wednesday New York recently has won from the federal government the right to enforce the terms of its own water pollution permits.

"The new era of cooperation between New York and Vermont... will have long ranging and far-reaching consequences," Snelling said.

He said Vermont Environmental Conservation Agency officials will travel to Albany, N.Y., next week to begin working out details of the cooperation.

Snelling also told reporters at his weekly news conference he expects the Vermont Yankee nuclear plant in Vernon to begin operating next week after a six-week shutdown for repairs. He announced there will be a news conference Friday for the press to question two independent welding experts hired by the state to make sure the repairs made the reactor safe.

"Now it's a whole new ball game," Snelling said. "New York can literally shut down the plant if it doesn't adhere to its permit."

IPC has violated its federal pollution permit on many occasions, and recently Vermont officials expressed annoyance with the Environmental Protection Agency for refusing to fine the company for a number of violations.

"The new era of cooperation between New York and Vermont... will have long ranging and far-reaching consequences," Snelling said.

Dear Abby
By Abigail Van Buren
DEAR ABBY: I just read about that father who broke his nose when he fell off his 14-year-old son's skateboard. I can understand why he would be upset, but I think throwing his son's skateboard in the trash was inexcusable.
I'm a 65-year-old grandmother. Last year I fell off my grandson's skateboard and broke my wrist, but it was my own fault, and I certainly don't punish my grandson for it. It was great fun, and I may even try it again sometime. I took a lot of ribbing from everyone who knew about it, but I just laughed right along with them.
If you can get in touch with that father, Abby, please tell him for me that a nice move would be to buy his son a brand new skateboard.

Dear Abby
By Abigail Van Buren
DEAR ABBY: I'm going with a wonderful man who wants to marry me. I am a widow, and he is a widower who has lost two wives. We seem so right for each other, but something bothers me.
His still wears two wedding bands. I haven't worn my wedding ring since I started to date after my husband's death. The sight of it brings back so many memories, and I don't want to live in the past.
I'm supposed to wear it, but I don't want to. I've seen so many women who wear it, but I notice he is still wearing his rings.
Should I bring it up again? It really bothers me to see those reminders of his former wives.
RING PROBLEM
DEAR ABBY: What do you "wonderful" prospective husband wear on his fingers? Is it important that what he has on his head not be his heart. If he's right for me, I want to marry you, don't let his jewelry get in the way.
DEAR ABBY: My problem is me. I never know what to say when someone asks me a question that I prefer not to answer. For example, questions of a private family nature, such as, "What happened between your sister and her husband?" or "Why doesn't your son marry that girl he's been living with for so long?"
Other questions that aren't all that personal also irritate me, such as, "How much did you pay for those shoes?" I don't have the nerve, so I find myself answering a lot of questions I don't really want to answer.
If you have a solution for my problem, please put it in your column because I'm sure I'm not the only one who would like to know.
TONGUE-TIED TERRIE HAUTE
DEAR T.T.: When you're asked a question you don't want to answer, don't be defensive or apologetic. Say, "I'd prefer not to answer that."
Try it. You'll be amazed at how effective it is.
