Sewer Break Fixed, Water Repair Waits

A sewer line that broke in Manchester has been repaired, but work on a water line problem will not start until at least Monday.

The sewer line on Oakland Street near the Woodbridge Street intersection had a collapsed section. The problem was spotted earlier this week, and a town crew spent Wednesday repairing it.

The work started before 8 a.m. and was completed by 5 p.m., Frank Jodaitis, water and sewer administrator, said.

Town officials believe that the problem may have been caused by construction work completed last year in the area by Cobra Construction Co. The problem worsened gradually and was noticed this week.

"It appears that something may have crushed the pipe," Jodaitis said.

The town apparently plans to charge the construction firm for the repair work done Wednesday.

Another more serious line problem will not be repaired until at least

Monday, Jodaitis said.

The wooden water line that leads from the Buckingham Reservoir is leaking, despite recent repair work done by the town.

The line services 250 Glastonbury customers and also provides water to Manchester from the reservoir.

The town is checking the line to see if it can pinpoint the present problem. Town officials have estimated that between 500 and 1,000 feet of the line may be involved, and replacement could be costly.

Jodaitis said that the start of repair work will be delayed until at least Monday. The problem has not worsened since Wednesday but probably will need to be repaired soon.

Jodaitis said that the town would like to avoid starting a repair project this late in the work week. The seriousness of the problem, however, may dictate starting repair work before the Board of Directors can meet to appropriate money for the work.

City Plans Layoff In All CETA Posts

By GREG PEARSON
Herald Reporter

Hartford officials announced this morning that all Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA) employees in the region will be laid off effective Sept. 8. The step means the loss of about 100 jobs each in both Manchester and East Hartford and will affect manpower in most area towns.

Other sources of funding are being sought to avoid the layoffs, which will affect about 2,000 employees in the Hartford region. It is unclear today, however, if any such funding will be available.

The layoffs were announced because of a deficit in the Hartford office that runs the CETA program for the 26 area towns. Estimates of the deficit have ranged from $400,000 to $2 million.

Officials in suburban towns have been critical of the Hartford offices management of the program. This morning's announcement is expected to increase such criticism.

All Title VI, Title VI projects, and Title II CETA employees will be given two-weeks notice Friday that they are being laid off. The layoffs thus become effective Sept. 8.

Manchester has just under 100 CETA positions.

employed in many town departments.

Three Manchester representatives attended the meeting this morning in Hartford — Charles McCarthy, assistant town manager; Steven Werbner, personnel assistant and himself a CETA employee; and Stephen Cassano, a member of the Board of Directors.

A meeting has been scheduled for Friday in Washington with Hartford officials, U.S. Rep. William Cotter, D-Conn., and representatives of the U.S. Department of Labor. They will try to find emergency funding to continue at least some of the CETA positions through Sept. 30, the end of the fiscal year.

Hartford Mayor George Athanson also announced this morning that he will meet with Gov. Ella Grasso to see if state funding can be made available.

More federal funding for CETA could be available as of Oct. 1, but Werbner said that there would be technical questions about whether laid off CETA workers would still qualify.

Cassano blasted Wednesday's announcement.

"All suburban towns are suffering because of the mismanagement of Hartford," he said. He said that Manchester has run its CETA program well but now loses all its positions because of errors made by others.

Prisoner Swaps Set in Nicaragua

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (UPI) — The government today bused scores of political prisoners to Managua airport to exchange them for 40 to 60 government officials held hostage by terrorists at the National Palace, witnesses said.

The witnesses said the buses containing the political prisoners were heading toward the airport but there was no word of how many prisoners were being released.

"Zero," the leader of the guerrillas who overran the Palace Tuesday, said earlier today that the government had surrendered to all his demands — freedom for political prisoners, payment of a hefty ransom and publication of a lengthy leftist manifesto.

A government spokesman confirmed there had been a "compromise" agreement with the terrorists, and said 83 prisoners would be turned over to them. The manifesto, a bitter, 90-minute-long diatribe against President Anastasio Somoza Debayle and the Somoza family dynasty that has ruled Nicaragua for more than 40 years, already has been broadcast twice over the national radio.

The government also said it would pay a ransom — sources said it would be closer to $500,000 than the $10 million demanded — and allow the 21 guerrillas and the freed prisoners to leave for Panama.

In a telephone interview with UPI, the soft-spoken leader of the Sandinista Liberation Army brigade announced his guerrilla band planned to release the 40 to 60 Nicaraguan legislators and government officials they have held since Tuesday in the National Palace in Managua.

In their place, "Zero" said, Archbishop Miguel Obando Bravo of Managua, the bishops of Leon and Granada, and the ambassadors to Nicaragua from Costa Rica and Panama have volunteered to escort the guerrillas to the airport, 10 miles away, where a Venezuelan transport plane is standing by.

There, the Sandinistas say, they will be joined by the 83 political prisoners whose release they won during tense negotiations with the Somoza government.

"Zero" said he expected to leave for the airport about 9 a.m. (11 a.m. EDT) and take off shortly afterward.

"Everything seems to be going all right, and if there is no obstacle at the airport, we will be in Panama ... The last minutes are dangerous but we will be ready for any eventuality," the guerrilla leader said.

The Sandinistas shot their way into the palace Tuesday as the Chamber of Deputies was meeting, and took 40 to 60 of the legislators hostage.

In the process they killed at least six soldiers, wounded 10 civilians, and trapped over 1,000 people inside the four-story structure — government workers, relatives visiting them at lunchtime, citizens who were in the building to pay their taxes, and others.

About half of the trapped civilians have escaped or been set free, but their captors threatened twice Wednesday to shoot the legislators — they erected a firing-squad wall to demonstrate their seriousness — unless the government met their demands.

"Zero," who said he was 42 and had spent half his life as an active foe of the Somoza dynasty in Nicaragua, said the Sandinistas with him were organized as the Comando Rigoberto Lopez Perez — named after the assassin who shot and killed Somoza's father, Anastasio Somoza Garcia, in 1956.

Vote Today Key To Postal Strike

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Chances of a nationwide strike that would bog down the mail system hinged in large part today on the outcome of a contract vote by the biggest of four unions representing 600,000 postal employees.

The 280-thousand member American Postal Workers Union, representing postal clerks, finished balloting at midnight Wednesday and officials were expected to announce the results of the ratification vote late today or Friday.

The National Association of Letter Carriers, second largest of the unions, already has voted by a 4-to-3 margin to reject the proposed three-year contract. But leaders of that union indicated Wednesday they would await the APWU vote results before deciding whether to set a deadline for an illegal strike next week.

Letter carriers President J. Joseph Vacca said he notified Postmaster General William Bolger of the rejection vote Wednesday and asked him to re-open negotiations by next Monday.

Bolger said in a statement he was "naturally disappointed" by the 78-288 to 58,832 vote, but would not say whether he would reconsider his position that any further dispute must be submitted to binding arbitration — an indication he also is keeping his options open until learning of the APWU vote.

After being approached by Vacca, Director Wayne Horvitz of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation

Service promptly contacted both sides and asked them to meet with him separately "as soon as possible to discuss what steps should be taken."

Reporters repeatedly asked Vacca at a news conference whether he would set a strike deadline — as is mandated by his union's constitution — if the Postal Service refuses to resume negotiations within five days.

"On the advice of counsel, I am not going to comment on that provision of the constitution," he responded each time, almost as if he were on the witness stand.

James Lapenta, secretary of the bargaining-coordinating committee for the three largest postal unions, explained later: "They're waiting to see what the big union (the APWU) does."

Officials were reluctant to predict how the APWU would vote, particularly in light of pressure on the postal workers from President Carter and White House economic adviser Barry Bosworth to ratify the contract, and from AFL-CIO President George Meany to reject it.

APWU members have been among the most disgruntled over the contract proposal, calling for a 19.5 percent pay hike over three years. Some isolated wildcat walkouts already have occurred.

Nor was it clear whether all the unions would honor picket lines in the event of a wildcat strike — in violation of federal law — by one union.

Young Girl In Heaven With Prize

Seven-year-old Meegan Horan of 14 Lawton Road was in "store heaven" one day this week. She wheeled a shopping cart almost as big as she was up and down the aisles of Top Notch Foods filling it with such things as peanut butter, crackers, ketchup, and other tasty things appealing to little girls.

Meegan's shopping spree was made possible because, as winner of the Balloons-to-the-Moon contest, she received a $25 gift certificate from Top Notch Foods, co-sponsor of the contest with the Manchester Recreation Department.

About 200 children sent balloons containing their names and addresses up in the air last June from Charter Oak Field. Participants were members of the town's various summer playground areas.

Finders of the balloons were supposed to notify the sender. The contest winner was determined by the finder the greatest distance away.

Meegan's balloon was found by Bob Mello North Kingston, R.I.

A Top Notch spokesman said about a dozen responses were received. In past contests, one winning balloon was found in Colchester; but the farthest to date is a balloon that went as far as Nova Scotia.

Barely able to see over a shopping cart, Meegan Horan, 7, goes on a shopping spree at Top Notch with a gift certificate she won in this summer's Balloons-to-the-Moon contest. With her are Leslie Sherman of the Manchester Recreation Department and Roy Johnson, store manager. The contest was co-sponsored by the rec department and Top Notch Foods. (Herald photo by Chastain)

Cotter Wants Medicare Expanded

U.S. Rep. William Cotter, speaking Wednesday to an overflow crowd at Manchester's Senior Citizens Center, explained past improvements in Medicare and voiced his support for expanding the program. He and three other panelists participated in a forum about Medicare that was attended by more than 200 people. The crowd filled the center's meeting room and spilled over into adjacent rooms. Some stood for most of the 90-minute forum. Cotter was joined on the panel by Dr. Douglas J. Roberts Jr., the director of the Department of Nuclear Medicine and Radiation Therapy at Manchester Memorial Hospital; Donna Pratt, a field representative for the Connecticut General Insurance Co.; and Pat Brassil, a subscribing member representative for Blue Cross-Blue Shield of Connecticut. Dr. Roberts talked about doctors and their handling of Medicare, and Ms. Pratt and Ms. Brassil explained the insurance angle of the program and what items are and are not covered. Cotter, who is seeking re-election in the First Congressional District that includes Manchester, said that he supports expansion of the Medicare program. "I, for one, would like to see prescription drugs covered by the program," he said. "I get more complaints about this particular item than anything a senior citizen has to pay for." The problem, however, is that such an expansion of the program would add several million dollars to its cost. Medical costs have expanded rapidly in recent years, a factor that particularly affects elderly on fixed incomes, he said. In the past, Cotter said that he and other congressmen, state officials, and medical professionals have met to seek improvements in the program. Improvements that resulted included the following, he said: • Medicare and Blue Cross-Blue Shield have agreed to share claim and filing payment systems. • Action is being considered to simplify Medicare and supplementary insurance forms. • Education programs about Medicare, such as Wednesday's forum, have increased.

Handicapped Riders Below Expectations

The ridership on Manchester's buses for handicapped and elderly riders has been below expectations, but the town still is expecting its permanent buses to arrive this fall. The town's system, which began operating in March, now uses two buses that have been rented for a six-month period. The six months expires in September, but the rental can be extended on a month-by-month basis, Alan Mason, director of human services, said. This far, ridership on the buses has been lower than might have been expected, he said. "I thought there might have been a bigger demand by now. We also haven't been able to reach the handicapped riders," Mason said. The best week thus far was in late July when 550 one-day trips were provided by the two buses. Through the end of June, the average cost per passenger trip was $2.18, he said. Because of this, Mason said that it might have been more economical for the town to adopt a shared-taxi program. This would have been a system that used automobiles that would serve as taxis. In this system, however, the taxi would pick up one customer and then pick up others along the way, similar to a mini-bus route. On the present bus system, there seldom are more than four riders on the buses at one time, he said. This load could have been handled by the smaller vehicles, which would have been cheaper, he said. The cost of the bus purchases primarily is funded through federal grants. Mason said that the federal government began providing funding for such bus service, but it had no way of forecasting how much use such systems would receive. Manchester's two buses may arrive in October, he said. The town had expected its cost for the buses to be about $10,000, and that figure appears to be accurate. The town pays 20 percent of the cost for the two vehicles, and the vehicles, without radio service, will cost $23,274 each, Mason said. The town's share is a total of $9,350 for both vehicles. When radio service is installed, the town's cost will be just about $10,000, he said. Both vehicles will have wheelchair lifts and space inside for at least two wheelchairs. The present bus system operates Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Riders, which must be reserved at least one week in advance of time, can be reserved in different areas on different days. Mason said that an encouraging fact is the steady increase in ridership on Tuesdays, the day reserved for medical appointments. "That's an indication that the doctors are cooperating," he said.

Joyner Petitions To Limit Spending

Walter Joyner, a candidate for the Republican nomination in Manchester's 12th Assembly District, Wednesday started his door-to-door campaigning, which will include seeking signatures for a petition to limit spending and permit referendums on fiscal matters. The petition is one developed by the Connecticut State Taxpayers Association and includes the following four proposals: • Granting state residents the power of initiative and referendum—This would give state residents the power on fiscal matters to propose state laws or amendments to the State Constitution and to enact or reject those at general elections. It also would empower residents to reject by referendum fiscal actions of the General Assembly. • Prohibiting the imposition of a state personal income tax or a statewide property tax—This amendment to the Constitution would prohibit the state from establishing a state income or property tax. • Limiting state spending and taxes—This would prohibit deficit financing, force the state to finance mandated programs, provide for the disposition of a state surplus, and prohibit use of bonds to finance current operating expenses. • Limiting local spending and taxes—This would permit citizens of a municipality to enact limitations on the spending and taxing powers of the municipality by initiative and binding referendum. "I am supporting this and seeking signatures," Joyner said. "It returns to the voter control of spending. It forces accountability," he said.

Sexual Assaults Reported

Police said today that one rape and another possible rape were reported Wednesday. The rape of a 14-year-old girl occurred around 6:30 p.m. in a car driven to the sand pits on Parker Street, police said. The girl consented to enter the car of young white male in the parking area at Union Pond, according to police, and he then drove her to Parker Street where she was raped. The girl was returned to Union Pond and went to a friend's home about 7:30 p.m. The friends reported the assault. The description of the assailant given by Detective Capt. Joseph Brooks was that he was in his late teens, blond, about 5 feet 7, 160 pounds and of slender build. The only description of the car was that it was a dark color. Brooks said the girl sustained no other injuries other than those inherent in the rape. There was no weapon used, but the girl was threatened, Brooks said. The other possible sexual assault Wednesday afternoon involved a severely retarded girl, who is a patient in a convalescent home. Brooks said the police are fairly certain some kind of sexual contact occurred, but whether an actual rape occurred has not yet been determined. Brooks said the incidents were the fourth and fifth sexual assaults reported in the past six weeks. Police have not determined any pattern to the attacks.

Auxiliaries gripe

HARTFORD (UPI)—The city's police auxiliaries say they're poorly equipped and are being treated like second class cops by their brother officers because they work for nothing. About 20 auxiliaries Wednesday complained to Police Chief Hugo T. Masini that it was difficult to walk a beat and report problems because they sometimes lack lights and radios taken by regular policemen. Some said they had been sent into dangerous areas by their supervisors with no more protection than a nightstick. The police volunteers, who can only make citizen arrests, said their professional counterparts often resent them because they think auxiliaries are taking away possible overtime. Michael F. Quinn, 27, of 66 School St., was charged with third-degree burglary and first-degree larceny in connection with an incident on Hathaway Street early today. Police said they were called to the residence on a report that a man was kicking in a door. When police arrived they found Quinn fighting with a woman. Police said he was bleeding from the face. He was held at police headquarters in lieu of $200 bond and was transported to Manchester Memorial Hospital this morning for examination for another physical problem.

Clearing Woods Helps Improve Town's Water

By GREG PEARSON
Herald Reporter

In some cases, it also will help increase the number of softwood trees, such as evergreens, in a wooded area. Murphy said that the increase in softwoods is important to the watershed areas. They provide more shade—a factor necessary when the spring snow-melting season arrives. Bob Young, water treatment manager for the Water Department, knows the importance of increasing the number of evergreens in the watershed area. "It might be 10 to 15 degrees cooler under a pine tree forest than in a hardwood forest," Young said. The lower temperatures produced by the evergreens leads to a slower, more gradual melting of snow. This means that less water is lost because of overflow. The more gradual melting also should result in less erosion of nearby land and less dirt ending up in the water bodies. The crew originally started with 20 members. Some have found jobs elsewhere, others have left, so there are now just 11 members. The reduction has slowed the clearing project, but they have managed to stay fairly close to schedule, Murphy said. The group has encountered other problems since it started. Despite rainy days and hot, steamy ones, the crew has worked most of them. "It's no picnic sometimes," Murphy said. "There were black snakes, but no large ones," Young said. The crew cleared trees along the water line that runs from the Buckingham Reservoir. "There were black snakes, but no large ones," Young said. The clearing work in that area is a project the town eventually would have had to do to replace the antique wooden line. Work around the Porter and Howard Reservoirs included clearing of "The Swallows," an area that sounds like something out of a western movie but actually is a swampy, overgrown section of land. The area is so swampy, in fact, that the work had to be done in the winter when the swamp was ice-covered. The crews also have built structures out of logs to prevent water spillways from becoming clogged with trash or other items. The improved water flow that should result will cut down on algae growth. The wood that has been chopped down is being moved and saved by the Water Department. It later will be sold to town residents for fire wood. Both Young and Murphy feel that the program is one that should be continued. "We're helping the Town of Manchester, the environment and the people who drink water in Manchester," Murphy said.

Schools Can Offer Low-Priced Lunches

The National School Lunch and Special Milk Program has a new policy for providing reduced-priced meals and free milk which applies to Manchester schools. Gross yearly income must be at or below $8,110 for a family of four to be eligible for free meals, and below $12,660 to be eligible for reduced-priced meals, although certain income adjustments for such items as high medical bills or rent are allowed. School principals or directors will review the applications and determine eligibility. All applications are confidential. The revised federal guidelines for the free and reduced-priced meal programs should extend eligibility to more families than ever before, according to the State Department of Education.

Jogging Fund-Raisers

Some political candidates these days are helping to finance their campaigns by inviting their supporters to run along with them. Miniature running marathons and jogging parties are proving popular fund-raising mechanisms not only among politicians but among charities as well.

In some fund-raising runs, the participants actually pay for the privilege of running almost to the point of exhaustion in all kinds of weather. In others, the runners persuade others to sponsor them at so much a mile. An Oregon political campaign manager described the technique as a less painful and more effective way of raising funds than passing the hat.

The lure, of course, is the fact that jogging has become a favorite means of exercise for a growing segment of the population. Making it pay off for a favored cause merely adds to the satisfaction.

The Tie Test

You'll have to take their word for it, but the Neckwear Association of America says you can tell a man's drink by the necktie he wears.

Elegant, basic colors distinguish your basic martini man — this also goes for anyone into the gin game. Bourbon imbibers go for plaids and the vodka crowd for pastel stripes.

Beer? Best not mention it around the neckwear people.

Well, something to think about — although certainly not for very long. But if nothing else, it gives new meaning to the old habit of tying one on.

Politics Pearson

Ben Andrews, the Republican candidate in the First Congressional District, has received the endorsement of a heavy equipment operators' union in his bid to unseat U.S. Rep. William Cotter.

The International Union of Operating Engineers, AFL-CIO, has endorsed Andrews.

"We feel that Ben is the better candidate," Elwood L. "Sonny" Metz Jr., international trustee of the union and business manager of Local 478 said. Local 478 represents 4,000 members in Connecticut.

The heavy equipment operators and other hard-working members of this union know what it's like to labor long, hard hours for a living," Andrews said. "They and other workers in Connecticut are feeling the bite that inflation and excessive taxes are having on their salaries and their standard of living."

"I feel this endorsement reflects their belief that I will be able to deal with those issues effectively," he said.

Another candidate in the First Congressional District, Donna McDonough of the U.S. Labor Party, expressed pleasure with two recent developments concerning nuclear energy.

One was the Nuclear Regulatory Commission's decision to continue construction of the Seabrook, New Hampshire, nuclear power plant. The other was the announcement of a breakthrough in the Princeton Tokamak thermonuclear fusion power research.

The Labor Party endorses nuclear energy which it feels is the most efficient form of meeting energy needs.

McDonough said that the recent developments should lead Congress to take three steps — increase the fusion research budget to at least $500 million, conduct an investigation about the delay at the Seabrook plant and recommit the country to a program of massive nuclear energy development.

"I am particularly appalled that my opponent, Congressman Cotter, has continued to ignore these matters and has done nothing to advance the country's energy program toward nuclear energy," she said.

The Connecticut Civil Liberties Union rated the state's 16 congressmen on their votes on 16 issues connected with civil liberties and civil rights.

The 16 issues included the use of federal Medicaid funds for abortions, school desegregation, and the constitutional rights of institutionalized persons.

U.S. Rep. Toby Moffett had the highest rating, 86 percent. Cotter, who represents the Hartford area, including Manchester and some surrounding towns, had the lowest rating, 21 percent.

U.S. Rep. Ronald Sarasin, the GOP candidate for governor, received the second lowest rating, 27 percent.

Other ratings were Robert Gianno, 88 percent; Christopher Dodd, 80 percent; Stuart McKinney, 73 percent.

The state's two U.S. senators, Abraham Ribicoff and Lowell Weicker, received 90 percent ratings for their votes on 10 issues in the Senate. The issues included a legal services bill, pregnancy disability bills, and a bill to revise and reauthorize federal criminal law.

Gov. Ella Grasso, who is seeking the Democratic nomination for governor, and Sarasin both have said that the first nuclear-powered submarine, the USS Nautilus, should be retired in Groton.

Secretary of the Navy W. Graham Claytor has suggested that the submarine, which was built in Groton, be retired in Annapolis.

"The submarine will be decommissioned in September 1979."

State Sen. Lewis Rome, the Republican candidate for lieutenant governor, this week traveled to Washington, D.C., to meet with the president of Amtrak. Rome has been a supporter of improved rail service in his state. He took the train trip with other state residents and town officials.

WASHINGTON — If ever there was a lawsuit that should unerringly wind up before the Supreme Court, it is that involving the rape of a nine-year-old girl in 1974 in which NBC is the defendant.

The case was dismissed by a San Francisco lower court, but Attorney Marvin Lewis, counsel for the child, is appealing. The Supreme Court rules in an opinion by Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes that the First Amendment does not protect the individual who raises the false cry of "fire" in a crowded theater.

Lewis' appeal would seem to be based on that decree. He says NBC was accountable for the attack on his client four days after the showing of "Born Innocent," just exactly the same as if they had ordered someone to go out ... and rape her.

I saw the rape scene in "Born Innocent" as part of my job, and found it in extreme, nasty bad taste. It was, as Lewis says, "graphic" and "exceptionally long." It was indeed a how-to-do-it scene. It did show "gratification" instead of punishment of the attackers.

Moreover, NBC showed a lack of judgment. It claims the film exposed "a social problem — the plight of runaways confined in juvenile institutions and learning from other."

when it broadcasts or publishes scenes, or reports, or fictional accounts of violent acts such as rape.

One of the questions concerns incitement. The Supreme Court rules in an opinion by Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes that the First Amendment does not protect the individual who raises the false cry of "fire" in a crowded theater.

Thoughts

Text: "Be doers of the word, and not hearers only, deceiving yourselves ... (for) faith by itself if it has no works, is dead." James 1:22 and 2:17

Further east, down the coast from where we are, is an island called "Mount Desert." It is famous for several things among which are Bar Harbor, Cadillac Mountain (the highest rising directly from the sea on the East Coast), the summer home of Nelson Rockefeller and Thunder Hole.

New Thunder Hole is an interesting phenomenon. It's a crack in the great granite rock which faces the sea. Through the cove, the relentless sea has enlarged this crack and worn a cave into the face at the shore end. When the wind and currents are right, the waves come rolling into that fissure and crash into the cave with a tremendous, thunderous boom which can be heard several miles away.

Sometimes we can be like that, or as Shakespeare might express it, we make much ado about nothing, a sound of fury signifying nothing. It's not the noise we make but the work we do that counts.

Need Great

To the editor:
After years of waiting, a dream finally materialized when on Monday, Aug. 21, at 8 p.m., before a large group of district residents, the board of directors of the 8th Utilities District presented to representatives of Mack Trucks of Hartford a check for $167,000 in payment for the beautiful red and white Aerialscope Platform Fire Truck.

This is a piece of equipment that the entire town can be justly proud of because it may be the cause of saving many lives.

When I was given a demonstration by the Glastonbury Volunteer Fire Department, 75 feet over North School Street, the fireman pointed to the Top Notch store complex, and said that with a fully involved fire within the building the roof would last only about 20 minutes before collapse. With the platform truck the firemen could ventilate from the platform without the risk of being hurled into the flames like what happened in Brooklyn recently.

With apartments two and three stories high being built, the need is great especially for the elderly and the handicapped where escape by ladder would be difficult, if not impossible. The Aerialscope can go directly to the window for evacuation.

There are critics in town who opposed the purchase of the vehicle, but if one life is saved — which certainly would have been lost without it — it will be worth every cent invested therein.

The voters of the 8th Utilities District are to be congratulated for their foresight in authorizing the purchase of this advanced and protective fire equipment. There are only four such pieces in the state — Glastonbury, Hazardville, Darien and the 8th Utilities District, Town of Manchester.

Residents of the entire town should rest easier for knowing that this most modern piece of protection is just a call away, and any interested residents may view the Aerialscope at the Peach Festival on Friday, Aug. 25 or at the District Firehouse, 32 Main St., Manchester.

Screen Doors Unnecessary

The landlords of five apartment complexes will apparently win their appeal not to install screen doors and ceiling window screens based on findings by the Housing Code Enforcement Committee.

Although no vote was taken Wednesday afternoon because of lack of a quorum, committee members agreed that the housing complexes meet minimum ventilation standards and thus would not require the screens.

The committee's findings were based on a study of the apartment's floor plans to see if they met ventilation standards requiring either openable windows equaling at least 4.5 percent of the floor area or air conditioning.

Using the formula, all five complexes exceeded the square footage of ventilation required, according to John Scialoja, town sanitarian.

The original Health Department order to the apartment owners to install screens was prompted by complaints of Dr. Ben Z. Rubin, who had investigated the lack of screens in several complexes, including his own on Highland Street.

An appeals hearing was conducted Aug. 7 by the enforcement committee.

Only three of the five committee members attending Wednesday were on the appeals hearing, including Sargent Fire Chief John Rivos and Police Capt. Henry Minor. Town Planning Alan Lamoan and Deputy

Good enough for pros
One of my favorite characters was big Jerry Fay, a giant in his heyday as a professional football player at 6-8 and 230 pounds, who also was good enough to play one season in the Eastern Baseball League with New Haven and was also a standout basketball player on all levels.

"Mr. Fay died early yesterday morning at the age of 81.

Long before I came to the Herald I was aware of Jerry Fay and his feats in baseball, basketball and football.

In later years, after occupying this desk, our paths often crossed and a warm friendship developed.

Jerry Fay was the first Manchesterer to play in the National Football League with the Philadelphia Quakers, since rechristened the Philadelphia Eagles.

With the National League, Fay, out of little Grove City College in Grove City, Pa., an incubator for many fine pro athletes, had rough going against the big name college stars but before training camp ended he had beaten out Yale's famous All-America selection, Century Milstead, for one of the tackle jobs.

"Professional football will open the way to fame for a number of unknowns. The Philadelphia Quakers have a new star in Jerry Fay, a tackle," the Philadelphia Ledger wrote.

We would be willing to wager no metropolitan city ever heard of him before he joined Bob Fowlwell's team, and yet he played four years on the Grove City College eleven."

The story continues, Fay was recommended to Fowlwell, but the coach was not willing to give him a chance, particularly after he learned Fay was a tackle.

"I have Dehman and Milstead," he replied. "What do I want with this—al—whatever his name is!"

Manchester Woman May Be Joining VFW

WEST HARTFORD (UPI) - A woman was born Jan. 1 and was admitted to veteran of the Pacific Theater in World War II in a waiting confirmation she will be the first woman in the state accepted as a member of the previously all-male Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Joanne Avery, 77, a resident of the Brookview Health Care Facility for 18 months and a long-time Manchester resident, sent an application and a year's membership dues with the state delegation to the VFW's national convention in Dallas, Tuesday the convention voted 9,785 to 4,019 to allow women as full members. Previously they could only join the auxiliary. The state VFW had voted by a narrow margin June 11 to allow women to join pending the national vote.

Members of VFW Post 254, where Mrs. Avery joined, visited her Wednesday and said she may be the first woman admitted from the state. State officials at the national convention could not be reached for confirmation.

Defending Champ Out In Local Softball Play

The field was cut to seven teams as three more combines, including defending champ Bob & Marie's Pizzeria, were ousted last night from the double elimination Town Slow Pitch "B" Division Softball Tournament.

The Pizzeria men were sent to the sidelines as Postal Employees, Eastern League champs, rallied for three runs in the seventh inning for a come-from-behind 6-5 win at Robertson Park.

MCC Vets were also sent to the sidelines with their second loss, dropping an 11-6 duke to Tierney's in the opener at Robertson. Flo's behind a 20-hit attack kept its title hopes alive and dashed those of Alliance Printing for good, 14-7, at Fitzgerald Field.

North End Fire, champs of the Dusty League, and Charter Oak League runner-up Manchester Jaycees, remain the only undefeated clubs. The Hosemen rallied for five runs in the seventh frame to register a 7-5 victory over Turley Package while the Jaycees rapped 18 hits en route to a 12-7 decision over Wilson Electric at Fitzgerald Field.

Four games, two each at Robertson and Fitzgerald, are on tap tonight and when the dust settles after activity, only four clubs will remain. One, either North End Fire or the Jaycees, will have earned a berth in the tournament championship round. The finals are slated Tuesday night at Fitzgerald starting at 7:30.

Bob Judd stroked three hits and Bob Columbe, Bill Hearn and Tom Martin two apiece for Postal, which collected 11 hits. Rick Siczowski and Jerry Robitaille each had a pair of blows for B&M.

Lonny Farrar rapped a three-run inside-the-park homer in the bottom of the seventh frame as North End

Sergio Ferrer of the Mets was tagged out by San Francisco catcher John Tamargo in the eighth inning last night at Shea Stadium.

Zimmer Acts

SEATTLE (UPI) - Boston Red Sox manager Don Zimmer has taken southern Bill Lee out of the starting rotation and replaced him with rookie Jim Wright.

Zimmer made the decision late Tuesday and announced Wright will be the team's fourth starter. Lee, 10-10, the team's stopper in the early season, has lost his last seven starts.

Tigers Cooled Off In Double Defeat

NEW YORK (UPI) - The Tigers, the hottest team in the American League since the All-Star break, have been making a valiant effort to catch the East Division-leading Boston Red Sox and had closed within eight games before Wednesday night's double-header with the Toronto Blue Jays.

Out on Minnesota, 2-0, Seattle downed Boston, 5-3, California topped New York, 6-3, and Baltimore routed Oakland, 11-4.

Brewers 9, Indians 4

Sal Bando hit his 15th homer, singled twice and scored twice to lead the Brewers to their ninth victory in the last 10 games. Reliever Andy Replogle, now 6-2, held the Indians hitless over the last 4 2/3 innings.

White Sox 3, Royals 0

Ken Kravec tossed a four-hitter and Claude Washington drove in two runs to lead the White Sox. Kravec, 10-11, struck out nine and did not walk a batter in beating Dennis Leonard, 14-15.

Angers 2, Twins 0

Steve Comer, 6-3, a rookie right-hander, making only his fourth career start and first complete game, tossed a six-hitter in pitching the Rangers to victory.

Orioles 11, A's 0

Jim Palmer, treated to nine runs in his first three innings, fired a three-hitter for his 15th victory and sixth shutout. Doug DeCinces drove in three runs for the Orioles and playcatcher Elrod Hendricks homered.

RSox Outplayed Against Mariners

SEATTLE (UPI) - The Seattle Mariners aren't playing like a team with the worst record in the American League.

The Mariners posted a 5-3 victory over Boston Wednesday night, making it two straight over the Eastern Division leaders, who hold the best record in the league. Before that, it was two in a row over the world champion New York Yankees.

As Boston's George Scott put it, "We just got outplayed for two games. They're all professional men and they're all playing well lately."

Perhaps the top professionals in the Wednesday win were pitchers Byron McLoughlin and Enrique Romo and outfielder Lee Stanton.

McLoughlin, the 22-year-old rookie right-hander posted his second major-league win against four losses. Romo, the club's relief ace, registered his 10th save, retiring all six men he faced over the final two innings.

Stanton, in a miserable slump and batting under .200, delivered a two-out, two-run bases loaded single to produce the game-winning run.

Even Jim Rice's 31st homer, a two-run shot in the first inning didn't help the Red Sox, who are 4-4 on their current road trip.

The loss didn't sit well with Red Sox manager Don Zimmer, who saw his team's lead cut to six games over second-place Milwaukee.

"You saw what happened," he said. "Wouldn't you say it was

Dairy Queen Third Best

Hartford Road Dairy Queen captured third place in the recent 1978 New England Major Women's Softball Tournament staged in Rollingford, N.H.

Massachusetts captured the title with host New Hampshire runner-up in the three-day tournament which involved nine teams.

Dairy Queen, 77 champs, opened with a 20-1 triumph over Rhode Island, rapping 20 hits. The Queens slugged 14 hits in their next encounter, a 7-2 win over Vermont.

The Queens in their third tilt were on the short end of a 4-3 score to Massachusetts. The local entry was then eliminated, 6-2, by New Hampshire as it mustered only seven hits and committed four errors.

Make or break Trip for Angels

ANAHEIM, Calif. (UPI) - In 18 years of baseball, the California Angels have never finished higher than third place. This year may be different.

Just a single percentage point separates the Angels and Kansas City in the American League West. California, with a 70-58 record, has not had a winning season since 1959.

But an eight-game roadtrip beginning Friday in Boston will probably make or break them. The team is 28-32 on the road and 41-26 at home.

In Wednesday night's 6-3 victory over the New York Yankees, the Angels were paced by pitcher Dave LaRoche and designated hitter Don Baylor.

Baylor singled, doubled, homered, scored twice and drove in two runs. "We still have a lot to prove," Baylor said afterward. "We don't have a reputation as a winner. This road trip can be a turning point. We haven't played that well on the road. We need to go out and put something together."

LaRoche, 26 with 18 saves, hasn't given up runs in last 19 innings and in the last eight appearances he has five saves and two wins. He pitched five innings Sunday for his longest pitching effort in five years.

Though sore and stiff before Wednesday's game, LaRoche said the pennant race is most important.

"I can't afford to feel any pain," he said. "If you're out of the pennant race you start thinking about next year and you don't want to do anything that might hurt your arm and carry over. This year it's right now or else."

Chris Knapp, given the start after scheduled pitcher Don Asse was shaken up in a minor traffic accident on his way to the ballpark, worked 5 1/3 innings and gave up all three runs in registering his 13th victory in 20 decisions.

Tom Griffin entered the game for two innings before LaRoche was brought in to hurl the final 2 1/3 innings. There was one out with runners at first and second when LaRoche came in, striking out pinch hitter Cliff Johnson and center fielder Mickey Rivers.

"You just have to come in and throw strikes and throw them as long as you can and as hard as you can," LaRoche said.

Baylor singled off loser Ed Figueroa, 12-9, in the first inning to drive in Carney Lansford with the first Angel run. After Lynn Bombeck singled leading off the third, Baylor doubled and both runners scored on consecutive sacrifice flies by Joe Rudi and Ron Fairly. Baylor hit his 26th homer leading off the seventh, a career high.

Graig Nettles hit his 20th homer in the fourth for the first New York run and the Yankees added two more in the sixth. Chris Chambliss drew a leadoff walk and Nettles lashed a one-out double. Reggie Jackson scored Chambliss with an infield single and Roy White doubled to drive in Nettles and chase Knapp.

A team spokesman said Ryan, scheduled to start Tuesday in New York, will report daily to Dr. Louis Yocum.

Surgery Successful

CASTRO VALLEY, Calif. (UPI) - New England Patriots star receiver Darryl Stingley underwent successful spinal surgery Wednesday to "stabilize" his neck, doctors at Eden Hospital reported.

Stingley, paralyzed from the neck down as a result of an Aug. 12 collision with Oakland's Jack Tatum, had his fourth and fifth vertebrae fused in the operation.

"The operation and anesthesia were uneventful and a highly satisfactory body condition was obtained," a hospital statement said. "His post-operative condition is excellent."

Pirates Hopeful Phils Will Fade

NEW YORK (UPI) — While the surging Pittsburgh Pirates are now entertaining hopes the National League East pennant race turns out like something like 1973, the front-running — but slumping — Philadelphia Phillies are looking warily over their shoulders hoping it winds up nothing like 1964.

National League

Remember 1977? The Mets took the NL East pennant with just two games over .500. The Pirates finished third that year, but they have good reason to hope this year's pennant winner won't be too much better than .500. That's because by beating the Atlanta Braves, 4-3, in 12 innings, Wednesday night for their ninth straight victory they have just reached the 500 mark for the first time since June.

“It was must-win situation and we rose to it,” said Dave Parker, who tripled with one out in the 12th and scored the winning run on Ed Ott's single. “We know what's at stake we have to play this kind of baseball the rest of the way out. We have a good chance to win it now.”

Little Sleep No Handicap As Knepper Stops Mets

NEW YORK (UPI) — Bob Knepper felt great picking up his 13th victory Wednesday in San Francisco's 2-1 triumph over the New York Mets but the 24-year-old left-hander would feel a lot better with a good night's sleep.

Knepper is one of the key men for the San Francisco Giants in the National League West pennant race. His 13-0 record and 2.81 ERA are second on the club only to Vida Blue. Lately, however, Knepper has been dragging. His performance didn't reflect it, but Knepper says he's been lying awake nearly every night for a week unable to sleep.

Youngblood walked to open the second inning and moved to third on first baseman Willie McCovey's error of Bobby Valentine's grounder. Doug Flynn's single to center scored Youngblood. The Giants opened the scoring in the top of the second on a double by McCovey and a two-out single by Roger Metzger. The game was still tied 1-1 in the ninth when John Tamargo drew a one-out walk. Johnnie LeMaster ran for Tamargo and Metzger sacrificed him to second. Pinch-hitter Mike Ivie was intentionally walked to set up the force play and Marc Hill, a .231 hitter, was sent in for Knepper. “I don't know why, but I had a feeling Marc would give me the win,” Knepper said. Hill did exactly that, ripping a double to left-center to score LeMaster. “It was a good one to win,” Knepper said. “Heck, maybe I should pitch every game without sleep.”

San Diego Chargers Want Lydell Mitchell

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — The San Diego Chargers want running back Lydell Mitchell. If Mitchell wants them.

Washington was selected to hear the grievance, probably over the weekend. Mitchell indicated Tuesday that a trade might be the best solution to his difficulties, saying, “Maybe it would be best if I were traded.”

Prothro, who praised Mitchell as a “proven, outstanding back, a fine pass receiver and a dangerous opening runner.”

Notre Dame Potent Again Ohio State, Michigan Again Big Ten Powers

CHICAGO (UPI) — In six of the last 10 years, Ohio State has won three Big Ten football championships. Michigan has won one and the two have shared the crown six times.

Don't look for a change at Notre Dame either. The defending national champion, despite losses, should be potent again, particularly on offense, and should Coach Dan Devine find defensive replacements, the Irish will be hard to beat.

Even Devine recognizes this. “I don't think we should be rated No. 1, but I think we can win the national championship again. Somebody is going to have to beat us to take it away. I'm not saying it's impossible, but it will be tough to do.”

The Irish retain quarterback Joe Montana, running backs Vagas Ferguson and Jerome Heavest, wide receiver Jim Haines and a strong offensive line, but need to rebuild the defensive front four. Linebackers and defensive backs are veterans. Michigan was fourth nationally last year in fewest points allowed and

Ohio State, Wisconsin and Northwestern, the latter pair with new coaches, were figured for second division finishes, although each has some standouts. Linebacker John Sullivan may be the best at Illinois but Wayne Strider could be a surprise at fullback. Wisconsin quarterback Charles Green and split end David Charles could be a potent passing combination and Ira Matthews a standout runner.

Major Net Upset Achieved by Pecci

BROOKLINE, Mass. (UPI) — Victor Pecci didn't need a crystal ball. He already knew what was going to happen next.

For two and a half hours Wednesday night, the 25-year-old Pecci of Paraguay used an uncanny ability to figure out where the next shot was going to upset top-seeded Eddie Dibbs in the second round of the $200,000 U.S. Pro Tennis Championships, 4-6, 6-3, 7-5.

Pro Tennis

Dibbs, Miami Beach, Fla., who has won his last two tournaments including the Canadian Open, had trouble throughout the match with Pecci's mixed bag of tricky drop shots and sharp volleying.

Fire Kills 31 Thoroughbreds

HENDERSON, Ky. (UPI) — Officials say it could be several days before the exact cause is determined of the $400,000 fire that swept through a barn at Ellis Park early Wednesday and killed 31 thoroughbreds.

Kentucky fire arson investigator Mike Owens and other officials today continued sifting through the remains of the barn where the horses were killed and five persons sustained minor injuries.

Owens and track officials said they doubt the fire, which erupted around 1:15 a.m. CDT and took about three hours to get under control, had anything to do with a jockey strike that hit the track last month.

Kenneth Morrison filled his window box with compost before setting out flower plants. Cucumbers and tomatoes grew from seeds in the compost pile. (Herald photo by Pinto)

Gardening

By Frank Atwood

The Kenneth Morrises on High Street have a combined flower garden and vegetable garden in a window box. The combination small garden is an accident. Mr. Morrison set plants of white petunia and red geranium in the window box and expected them to make a nice show with the contrasting colors of their blossoms. He had filled the box with material from his compost pile, and seeds of cucumbers and tomatoes, discarded in the kitchen and tossed on the compost pile last year, have sent up both cucumber and tomato plants.

Both cucumber and tomato plants have blossomed and tiny fruits have since appeared. The tomato vines have been tied up with strings from an awning above the window. The cucumber vines are climbing, without help, up the window blinds. The window is in the dining room and Mr. Morrison suggests that he may be able soon to push up the screen, reach out and pick a ripe tomato or a crisp cucumber for lunch.

The compost pile in the back yard is where Mr. Morrison puts his grass clippings, leaves he rakes in the fall and vegetable refuse both from the garden and the kitchen. The vegetable seeds are doubtless from hybrid varieties and since hybrid seedlings may revert to some remote ancestor, nobody can say what kind of cucumbers and tomatoes will grow.

To Mr. Morrison his experience means that any apartment dweller with a window box can grow these vegetables which will make a small contribution to the family larder. With so much foliage growing from the soil in the window box he has to water it every day. Mr. Morrison is a retired electrical contractor. Mr. and Mrs. Morrison were recently honored by their family and friends on reaching their 60th wedding anniversary, an event that has been noted in The Herald. The party was a few days ahead of the anniversary date, which is today, Mr. Morrison is 83.

Traveling with lilies Last week in this column I told about the remarkable progress made by a beginning lily grower, Warren Summers of Tolland, who is not only producing beautiful blooms over a long summer season but cross-pollinating his plants to produce new combinations of color and form. I promised to describe how Mr. Summers prepares his lily blooms for a long trip, by car or plane, to a lily show. The lily stem, to be at its best for the judges, should have the bottom flowers almost fully open with partially opened buds above these are buds and tight, smaller buds up to the tip of the stalk.

One problem is that the lily may flower a week too soon. If allowed to grow another week, or even another day, it will past the peak of perfection. The lily is cut when at its best placed in water and kept in a household refrigerator at around 40 degrees. This effectively stops development.

If lilies bloom within 15 or 16 hours of the show, they are cut and put in a cool place, in vases but without water. At the same time the refrigerated blooms are taken out of water and also left dry in a cool place. The lilies will, and this is the secret of carrying them long distances.

Conclave Is a Mixture

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — The conclave that will choose the next Roman Catholic pope is a mixture of ancient ritual and the latest in electronic spy gadgetry. The rules governing the assembly of cardinals are the legacy of the late Pope Paul VI, who in 1975 issued an edict revising the election process set forth by the Third Lateran Council of 1179. Paul set out in minute detail each step of the process and gave unprecedented emphasis to secrecy. On Friday afternoon, the 111 cardinals file into the Sistine Chapel for the conclave and their chamber is locked from inside and out. With them will be various Vatican officials, nuns who will act as maids and cooks, priest confessors, physicians, barbers and the two electronics technicians. The cardinals get down to the actual election Saturday. Paul's document specifies three possible methods of election: acclamation, delegation and scrutiny, or the casting of ballots. The first two processes have not been used for centuries. To choose a pope by acclamation, the cardinals would have to spontaneously and unanimously proclaim the name of the new pontiff without having taken any votes beforehand. By delegation, the church princes delegate the choice of a pope to a smaller group of nine to 15 electors. Vatican sources say this method would probably come into play only if there is a serious deadlock. The third method is that of scrutiny — the casting of ballots by each cardinal, with the new pontiff being the votes cast plus one more ballot. If all the 111 eligible cardinals take part in the voting, the man chosen pontiff will have to receive 75 ballots.

War of Words MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union escalated its war of words with China today and warned Peking's leaders they are on a "militarist expansionist course" that could lead to a real war and cause vast destruction and loss of life in China. The threat and ominous warning were contained in a lengthy commentary published by the official Soviet Communist Party daily Pravda, and signed by "Obyerov," a pseudonym usually taken to indicate it comes from the highest levels of Kremlin leadership. The Pravda article denounced China as an international warmonger and troublemaker grasping for Western military technology to pursue a goal of world domination. "The Soviet Union will resolutely oppose China's militarist expansionist course," Pravda declared.

Dollar Opens Lower LONDON (UPI) — The dollar opened lower again on most European markets today and fluctuated wildly against the Japanese yen as traders waited to see the effects of American measures to defend the dollar. The dollar ended the day at 191.65 yen, down from 192.10 at Wednesday's close, the Bank of Tokyo said. After opening at 192.60, the dollar moved wildly between 191.65 and 193.00. Market sources said dealers were skeptical about the effectiveness of stabilizing measures announced recently and were waiting for the next step by Washington.

Enrollment Declines HARTFORD (UPI) — Public school enrollments will show a decline for the seventh consecutive year, according to the Education Commissioner Mark R. Shedd. Fall enrollment at public schools is estimated at 582,000 students, compared to last year's 604,000 and a peak enrollment of almost 687,000 in 1971. The state vocational schools will add 17,000 students to the total. The number of students in nonpublic elementary and secondary schools is also expected to decline slightly, with about 87,000 students enrolled as compared last year's 90,300.

Whitney told other reporters the summons did not specify what was to be discussed but it was presumed that it would be about the lawsuit brought against them in June by officials of the Soviet state committee on radio and television. New York Times reporter Craig Whitney, 34, and Baltimore Sun reporter Harold Piper, 39, were summoned by telephone to appear at the Foreign Ministry press department.

Reporters Summoned MOSCOW (UPI) — Two American reporters convicted of libeling Soviet television officials were asked to report to the Soviet Foreign Ministry today. The 37-year-old salesman for the International Harvester Corp. said his interrogator kept asking the same question presented during three earlier visits to the prison, demanding to know what Crawford did with rubles he says he never received.

Connecticut Today HARTFORD (UPI) — Although the three key members of an alleged gambling syndicate left Connecticut some time ago, subordinates were still betting for them until a few months ago, according to a professional gambler Harvey Ziskis. A Call for Help HARTFORD (UPI) — Still more meetings were planned and a call for help was sent to the city manager, who is vacationing somewhere in Europe, as controversy escalated around the Hartford area manpower program's million-dollar deficit. Deputy Mayor Nicholas Carbone, still on vacation himself, called City Manager James B. Daken Wednesday, asking him to return home. Carbone asked that Daken be prepared to explain the cause of the deficit, to outline a plan to eliminate it and recommend specific actions to the City Council Monday night. Hartford administers the program, financed by the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act, for itself and 24 surrounding towns. Carbone estimates had placed the deficit at $400,000, then $2 million. The latest estimate is $1.2 million.

Ella Grasso's use of National Guard helicopters for officials trips. Freund said Wednesday investigators were in Connecticut and "talked things over with me and a number of my people." Freund repeated his contention that Mrs. Grasso's use of the choppers "has been well within her rights. There has not been anything illegal or unauthorized."

Senate Kills Plan to Outlaw Forced Busing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate narrowly defeated an amendment that would have outlawed court-ordered busing for racial desegregation unless there was proof of deliberate attempts to deny equal education opportunity. It was defeated, 49-47, Wednesday during consideration of a $5.1 billion bill to authorize money through fiscal 1983 for elementary and secondary education programs. The Senate also voted to strike from the bill a new $2.5 billion aid program for private and parochial elementary and secondary schools and eliminated a provision that would have given impact aid to schools with students from federal public housing projects. The Senate was scheduled to continue work on the measure today. Carl Lyon, senior vice president of the Association of American Railroads, testified Wednesday before the Senate Finance Committee that the capital gains tax cut in the pending tax bill would release investment capital needed for new equipment so railroads can carry more coal to help ease the shortage of oil and natural gas. The Senate breathed new life into tax credits for home insulation, solar installations and other energy saving devices Wednesday by taking the measure out of the energy package.

The reauthorization credit bill was attached to an unrelated bill already passed by the House which would reduce the excise tax on the investment income of foundations. The move to attach the insulation credit bill to it and send it back to the House was accomplished on voice votes. Sen. Herman Talmadge, 22-year veteran senator whose financial affairs are under investigation, apparently will be charged interest on more than $37,000 he repaid for improper expense payments he collected from 1973-77.

Advertising Ends HARTFORD (UPI) — A New Jersey insurance company, without admitting guilt, has agreed not to run any more advertisements in the Connecticut Insurance Department might find "misleading." Insurance Commissioner Joseph Mike said Wednesday the Crum & Forster Insurance Cos. of New Jersey, one of four insurance firms accused of using misleading advertising, has agreed not to run the ads in question, or ones like them, again. Connecticut Today HARTFORD (UPI) — Although the three key members of an alleged gambling syndicate left Connecticut some time ago, subordinates were still betting for them until a few months ago, according to a professional gambler Harvey Ziskis. The Newington resident said Wednesday when jail fronts first opened in Connecticut and Rhode Island three professional gamblers who have become known as the "Miami Syndicate" moved in and divided up the frontons between them.

Monument biethed in Connecticut. The Nautilus was launched Jan. 21, 1964 as the world's first nuclear powered submarine, and was named for the underwater vessel conceived the century before in the vivid imagination of Jules Verne. When the Nautilus — its long voyage done — is decommissioned next year, it will either be moored in Annapolis or in Groton. The decision is up to Clayton and he hasn't made up his mind.

KKK Recruiting Worries Boston

BOSTON (UPI) - In two weeks Boston public schools reopen under the fifth year of court-ordered desegregation, and school officials say the Ku Klux Klan is attempting to recruit white students who attend racially mixed schools.

Wednesday they said strategies are being developed to insure safety of students returning to classes. State officials condemned distribution of racial material in some neighborhoods by the KKK.

"We are aware of the efforts by the Ku Klux Klan to recruit white students," said John Callahan, a spokesman for city school superintendent Robert Wood.

Carl Hand, a national organizer for the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, said Wednesday in a telephone interview from Metairie, La., that they are attempting to recruit members for their Youth Corps.

Joseph Carlson, assistant special agent in charge of the Boston FBI bureau, said the agency is forbidden to collect information on the Klan's activities due to new guidelines on collection of domestic intelligence.

"But if they get into the ballgame of violent acts, then we get into the ballgame too," Carlson said.

Boston has been the scene of many racial incidents during the last four years of school busings.

Pamphlets displaying racial epithets and giving a Boston post office box number for the Klan have been distributed in the Boston neighborhoods of Hyde Park and South Boston, both areas of racial incidents in the past.

Rhode Island Sus Dump

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) - Rhode Island has begun legal action to force New Jersey, Connecticut and Delaware firms and the owners of a local landfill to share the cleanup cost at a pig farm used as a dump for out-of-state waste.

A motion to add the firms as defendants to a cleanup lawsuit was filed Wednesday. It was the latest step in an 11-month effort by the state Department of Environmental Management to force removal of toxic and explosive materials from a dump on Warren V. Picillo's pig farm in Coventry.

The state asked that three out-of-state companies and four individuals be made defendants to a suit against Picillo and be forced to share the estimated $300,000 to $500,000 cleanup cost.

Medicaid Payments Probed

BOSTON (UPI) - The allegedly improper payment of more than $72,000 in Medicaid benefits to the late mother-in-law of Sen. Edward W. Brooke, R-Mass., will be investigated by the Massachusetts attorney general's office.

The decision to pursue the matter was made Wednesday at a half-hour meeting of the state's Welfare Fraud Control Commission, according to Attorney General Francis X. Bellotti, who is a member of the panel.

Brooke, 58, the Senate's only black member who is seeking a third, six-year term in November, already faces a tough re-election fight as a result of a messy divorce proceeding earlier this year from his former wife, Remigia.

Warm, Sensitive Person

BURLINGTON, Vt. (UPI) - Kristina Berster is not a West German terrorist but a "warm, sensitive person" who has spent several years doing medical work in the Third World, according to a supporter who spoke with her this week.

Supporters of Ms. Berster, who is charged in this country with immigration violations and in Germany with activities as a member of an alleged terrorist group, said Wednesday they have formed a defense committee for her.

At a news conference, supporters said they have commitments for $30,000 in cash and property toward meeting Ms. Berster's $100,000 bail.

They said they will begin a survey soon to determine whether she can get a fair trial here.
