Briefly ...

ROCK, Kan. (UPI) — The Air Force Friday shipped in decontaminated rocket propellant that leaked into an underground missile silo, but admits it neither knows if the chemical will work on the chemicals and the propellant will be harmless.

BOSTON (UPI) — The nation's Democratic mayors Friday called for the adoption of a property tax relief policy that would reduce local taxes while still drawing funds into urban areas. The conference of the nation's governors begins Sunday.

NEW YORK (UPI) — The first ballottists to cross the Atlantic returned to American soil Friday and a heroes' welcome that included keys to the city, medals from the federal government, and a citation from the governor.

HARTFORD (UPI) — Southern New England Telephone Co. Friday filed more details with the Public Utilities Control Authority on a proposal to offer customers extended calling areas for a set monthly rate.

STOCK MARKET
NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market closed on a lukewarm note Friday by retreating in fairly active trading as the Dow Jones industrial average failed for the third straight session to break through the 900 level.

The Dow average, up more than 2 points to about 890 at one time, fell 1.82 points to 885.53. Preplanned profit taking at a 900 level thwarted the widely followed blue-chip average, a 35-point winner Thursday. For the week, the Dow added 1.30 points.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two more postal unions said Friday they had rejected a proposed three-year contract, and the government asked for a federal court order to avert a wildcat walkout that would tie up the nation's mails.

A federal judge told both sides to keep talking.

The Postal Service stood firm in its refusal to reopen negotiations despite union threats to set strike deadlines for next week for nearly 500,000 postal workers if contract talks are not renewed.

Joining the National Association of Letter Carriers which voted "no" earlier this week, were the 280,000-member American Postal Workers Union and the 40,000-member National Post Office Mail Handlers.

Following the union announcements, the government asked U.S. District Judge John Pratt for a 10-day temporary restraining order or a preliminary injunction to prevent a strike by the two largest unions.

Union attorneys argued there was still a chance for a settlement during talks being conducted by Director Wayne Horvitz of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, and the judge agreed to delay a decision on the petition.

"If there is the slightest indication the talks are breaking down over the weekend, I will not delay granting a temporary restraining order," Pratt said.

Glean Whittaker, a Justice Department trial lawyer representing the government, said the Postal Service does not view Horvitz's meetings as renewed negotiation.

"As I understand it, they (Postal Service officials) do not intend to negotiate" further, he said.

Horvitz said following a three-hour afternoon meeting he felt renewed contract talks were the best way to resolve the dispute and he was "trying to urge one side (the Postal Service) to get into discussions."

Emmet Andrews, president of the APWU, the largest and most militant of the unions, demanded the Postal Service return to bargaining.

The service showed no signs of abandoning its insistence the dispute be submitted to binding arbitration. The administration was prepared to use "Graphic Hand" the emergency plan under which all available military personnel would be pressed into mail delivery duties in the event of a walkout.

In support of its attempt to get a temporary restraining order, the government petition noted that "as a condition of their government employment, postal workers must renounce the right to participate in a strike."

It said violators are subject to fines of up to $1,000 and a maximum one-year prison sentence.

Citing the seriousness of the situation, the petition said that "in the event of a strike, mail will accumulate and reach levels which will make it impossible for the United States Postal Service to be able to protect and preserve the mail being deposited at receiving points throughout the various districts ... with the risk that untold quantities of mail may be permanently lost."

The petition also noted that in 1970, during the last nationwide work stoppage by postal employees, a federal judge granted the now-defunct U.S. Post Office Department temporary restraining orders to prohibit the walkout. However, the workers failed to return for a week, until Postmaster General Winton Blount agreed to negotiations that led to an 8 percent pay hike.

U.S. Judge Orders More Postal Talks

Hijacker Gone Without Trace

GENEVA, Switzerland (UPI) — A mystery man in a false beard and wig kept an American airliner and 89 passengers and crew on the ground for nearly eight hours with a bizarre hijack scare Friday — then disappeared without trace.

It was the work of a madman, said Stewart Long, vice president of TWA's international division. The drama, which could have been a passenger on Trans World Airline's Boeing 707 from New York, handed to a hostess a letter which made rambling political demands and said the plane would be blown up if they were not met.

The plane was evacuated after spending 7 hours and 40 minutes on the ground when no hijacker was found. Police searches of passengers and luggage turned up nothing.

"We have not found the man who handed over the letter and there was no bomb," said Long, who did most of the talking with the pilot, Capt. Robert Hamilton.

The 19-page list of demands said two suitcases filled with explosives — including an automatic "combination bomb" — were stowed in the baggage hold.

The demands included freeing Sirhan Sirhan, convicted assassin of Robert F. Kennedy, and 84-year-old Nazi war criminal Rudolph Hess.

The TWA flight originated in Tulsa, Okla., and stopped in Detroit before taking off from New York to Geneva en route to Nice, France.

Capt. Hamilton, whose wife was traveling on the plane, made the final decision to evacuate the aircraft, Long said, although he also went out to the airplane.

"I walked up and down the aisle of the plane several times offering to talk to the apparent hijacker, but no one talked to me and I thought 'let's get off this plane.' But it was the captain who made the final decision," Long said.

Paul Geopon, director of Geneva airport, said all air traffic was closed down for 20 minutes during the evacuation, which was decided on only after the plane had used up all its fuel sitting on the airfield.

"Anyway, in this sort of situation, the longer you wait, the better results you get," Long said.

According to police, the stewardess said the man who gave her the letter spoke "good English," wore a wig and apparently a false beard and false moustache.

Realty Lobby Backs Cut In Capital Gains Taxes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Spokesmen for real estate interests, citing lags in the housing market and high unemployment in construction, Friday urged the Senate Finance Committee to approve sharp cuts in the capital gains tax.
For one thing, the committee was asked to go along with a House-approved provision which would allow individuals a one-shot tax exemption on profits of up to $100,000 on the sale of a principal residence.
But like other business spokesmen who have testified this week, they urged the panel to go even further than the House in reducing the overall capital gains tax rate.
The Senate committee is studying the $16.3 billion package of tax cuts sent over by the House, which includes a reduction from 49 percent to 35 in the capital gains levy.

purchase by younger families." Earlier this month, Treasury Secretary Michael Blumenthal told the committee the one-time exemption would cost the Treasury an estimated $750 million in lost revenues.
Blumenthal said the administration wants the maximum profit figure on the exemption slashed to $50,000, and be made applicable only to people age 59 or above.
Shimberg, however, said current capital gains taxes discourage owners from selling, since the only way they can escape the levy is to buy another house at least as expensive.

"Many homeowners, however, are financially unable to meet the monthly cost of operation of a replacement residence of such cost," Shimberg said. "In addition, homeowners who are retired may well desire to rent rather than purchase a replacement residence."
Another witness, Kenneth G. Hance of the National Realty Committee, three that group's support behind cuts in income and capital gains taxes for individuals and corporations, along with tax relief for small business.

charge of the CETA program, said East Hartford has 24 Title II employees and 18 Title VI employees.
Gary Dayton of the Hartford city manager's office informed Mayor Richard H. Blackstone of the City Council's decision Friday afternoon. Dayton also told Blackstone that the situation with 20 project-level CETA workers scheduled to lose their jobs Aug. 31 is unchanged. They will still lose their jobs a month earlier than originally planned.
The town had planned to lay off 27 CETA project workers Aug. 31, as ordered from Hartford, but that figure shrunk to 20 because some employees left the program early or took vacation time.

Four Held in Burglary

VERNON — Police arrested two men and took two juveniles into custody Friday in connection with a burglary at Duffy's Package Store, 120 Union St., Rockville.
Police said that when the store owner opened the store at about 8 a.m. Friday, he found it broken into and liquor in excess of $300 missing.
At 9:15 a.m., police said the Vernon Special Services Squad took into custody two female juveniles at 157 Union St., where almost all of the stolen liquor was discovered. Later, at 2 p.m., police arrested William M. Kennedy, 21, of Riverside Drive, Vernon, and John Conti, 22, of 70 Turnburook Drive, Vernon, and charged them with burglary in the third degree and larceny in the third degree. They were released on bond and scheduled to appear in court Sept. 5, East Hartford.

One of the female juveniles was taken to the detention center in Hartford, police said.

After explaining the situation, McCarthy said, "I hate to say are there any questions because we don't have any answers."
Town employees who will be affected by the layoffs obviously were not pleased.
"I think we've proved we can do a good job," William Ulm of the forestry crew said.
Another forestry worker, Andy Miller, said, "I don't think so many people, such as us, should have to pay for the mistakes of others."
Tom Perlane, a CETA employee who will be retained, has headed up the labor end of the forestry project. He was disappointed that the project will end.
"We've put a lot of work into it. It's sort of a bad way to end things," he said.
Rick Horton, an employee on the townwide survey, said that the town should try to fund the survey so it can be finished.
Right now, there still is about 30 percent of the town to be surveyed.
"It would cast some doubts on the validity of the survey if it's not finished," he said.

Foreign Investors Find State Alluring

MIDDLETOWN (UPI) — Foreign investors find Connecticut one of the nation's most alluring states, says an economist with the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston who used a variety of measurements to reach the conclusion.
Connecticut's Commissioner of Commerce, Edward Stockton, said the state's effort to attract foreign firms is "going like a house on fire. Business is going like crazy."
Beyond that, Stockton said all the companies coming into the state "have not only done well, but are expanding. If we get out and sell hard, Connecticut's got a lot going."
He claimed that the geographical, cultural and educational similarities attract European investors and that the state's proximity to New York City and Boston is a big selling point.

In an article in the July-August issue of the magazine, New England Economic Review, economist Jane Sneddon Little cites figures which back up Stockton's optimism.
Little's article has 10 charts, ranking the relative attractiveness of different states to foreign investors.
When compared solely on the number of foreign manufacturing plants in each state in 1975, Connecticut ranked 17th with 44 plants.
But, after adjusting that figure for the relative size ranked fourth in the nation in 1975, New Jersey, Rhode Island and Massachusetts ranked 1st through 3rd respectively.

She says that "it is frequently assumed ... that foreign investors favor the Sun Belt to the exclusion of other areas."
Indeed, "most foreign direct investment activity ... between the end of 1974 and the third quarter of 1977 occurred in northern industrial areas."
By "direct investment activity," Little means purchases of U.S. companies by foreign firms and construction of new factories in the U.S. by foreign firms, both measured on a per square mile and per capita basis.
In the northern industrial area, Little shows that Rhode Island and New Jersey are regularly more attractive than Connecticut to foreign investors, but Connecticut still ranks among the top states.
Little said she wasn't sure why some other New England states did better than Connecticut, but she mentioned that lower wages in the other states might be a factor.
In charts that use recent statistics Connecticut ranked anywhere from back up Stockton's optimism, depending on what measurement is used.
Connecticut has about 100 foreign operations, ranging from factories to Westcoast offices in the state.
Connecticut residents, according to David Driver, executive assistant to the Commissioner of Commerce, ranked last in the nation in 1975.
But, after adjusting that figure for the relative size ranked fourth in the nation in 1975, New Jersey, Rhode Island and Massachusetts ranked 1st through 3rd respectively.
She says that "it is frequently assumed ... that foreign investors

Manchester Police Report

Manchester Police Friday arrested a South Windsor resident who they said gave false identification following a chase and subsequent accident July 29.
Harold J. Levesque, 20, of 491 Avery St., South Windsor, was charged with driving while his license is suspended, disobeying the signal of an officer, passing on the right and operating a motorcycle without a license.
On July 29, police said they pursued a motorcycle that had been operating in a reckless fashion. The operator, who was wearing a white shirt and a black jacket, was chased for a while by his license is suspended, disobeying the signal of an officer, passing on the right and operating a motorcycle without a license.

Bonding Set

HARTFORD (UPI) — The State Bond Commission Friday allocated $82 million for highway improvement projects.
The $82 million approved by the panel will be used in part for improvements and additions to Route 6, Route 2, Route 15 and Interstate 84.
Hartford officials attended the meeting to watch the commission allocate $5 million in state funds to help with the reconstruction of the civic center coliseum roof, which caved in last winter.
Insurance, federal loans and Hartford taxpayers will pick up the rest of the estimated $7 million tab it will take to put a new roof over the coliseum.
The bonding commission also approved $5 million for the farm preservation program passed by the Legislature last session.

The tour will begin at 7:30 p.m.

Theft Charges Lodged

Manchester police are holding a man on a $10,000 bond in connection with a stolen car incident.
Police Friday arrested Bruce Green, 27, of no certain address, and charged him with criminal attempt at robbery in the first degree, larceny in the second degree and assault in the second degree.
According to police, Arthur Johnson, 38, of 50 Summit St., met Green for the first time about noon Friday in Bushnell Park, Hartford. Police said they soon learned they had a common interest in music, and Johnson invited Green to come to his home in Manchester and listen to some of his music.

Police said that sometime later, Green pulled a knife, asked Johnson for his money, his wallet, and car keys. Johnson talked Green out of taking his money and wallet, according to police, but he gave Green his car keys, and Green left. Police said a few minutes later, Johnson noticed his car was gone.
Police arrested Green in East Windsor, and returned the car to Johnson. The car is in East Hartford.
Court date is Sept. 11 in East Hartford.

Bonding Set

HARTFORD (UPI) — The State Bond Commission Friday allocated $82 million for highway improvement projects.
The $82 million approved by the panel will be used in part for improvements and additions to Route 6, Route 2, Route 15 and Interstate 84.
Hartford officials attended the meeting to watch the commission allocate $5 million in state funds to help with the reconstruction of the civic center coliseum roof, which caved in last winter.
Insurance, federal loans and Hartford taxpayers will pick up the rest of the estimated $7 million tab it will take to put a new roof over the coliseum.
The bonding commission also approved $5 million for the farm preservation program passed by the Legislature last session.

School Tour Planned

Manchester's Board of Directors will tour the Green School Monday night. The school is the proposed site for relocating the town's Senior Citizens Center.

Head Start Program Offers Varied Activities

The Manchester Head Start is currently enrolling youngsters for the 1978-1979 school year.
The program is federally funded by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) through the Community Renewal Team, which is the grantee agency, and administered and subsidized by the Manchester Board of Education.
Manchester Head Start, which is housed at South School, has been in operation since 1965.
It is funded for 72 children and has four classrooms. There is ongoing registration. Children attend school four hours a day from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m., five days a week, Monday through Friday, throughout the public school calendar year. But transportation, snack, and hot lunch are provided and there is no cost to the family.
The eligibility requirements for the Manchester Head Start program are that a child must reside in Manchester and be four years of age by April of the school year and meet the economic guidelines set by the federal guidelines.
Ninety percent of the children must come from families whose income from the previous calendar year or the previous 12-month average is within the low income guidelines set by the Federal Government. Ten percent of the children, which numbers seven or eight children, may come from a family of any income level.
However, Head Start programs are required to have 10 percent of their enrollment children who are handicapped or have a handicapping condition which would prevent them from having a successful public school experience. Since many of the children referred, as handicapped, materials for exploration and gaining mastery of their environment. Language activities, art and music activities, small and large muscle development activities and nutrition activities are presented daily.

The program approach is based on the philosophy that, "a child can benefit most from a comprehensive, interdisciplinary program to foster development and remedy problems as expressed in a broad range of services and that the child's entire family be involved, as well as the community. The family, which is perceived as the principal influence on the child's development, must be a direct participant in the program."
Marilyn Watt, a Head Start social worker, said, "To effectively carry out the program goals for Head Start, there are four components: Education, health and nutrition, social services and parent involvement."
The staff which is responsible for developing the program consists of a teacher/director, nurse, social worker, parent coordinator, three teachers, a permanent substitute teacher, four aides, speech clinician, two foster grandmothers, secretary, cook and helper, custodian.
"We also have students from nearby colleges and universities and parents volunteering," Mrs. Watt said.
The education component is designed to meet the individual needs of the child. Children learn to play together and to use a variety of

Head Start students in class

Premiere week: little substance

By JOAN HANAUER

NEW YORK (UPI) — By the time the fall television season officially opens, some of the new shows may already be into reruns.

That's only a mild exaggeration in the make-believe world of television programming, where networks pretend there is a starting date for the season so they can anticipate their own schedule by bringing in new shows as previews, sneak previews, warm-ups and other euphemisms for the fact that they are racing each other to the starting gate.

According to the official announcements, ABC begins its new season Sept. 11 and CBS and NBC unveil beginning Sept. 18.

Now to reality:

Last year the television networks spent millions of dollars on the week beginning Labor Day, as ABC preceded its regular schedule with the week-long showing of "Washington: Behind Closed Doors," and NBC and CBS responded with expensive counter-programming.

ABC has done it again, this time announcing it would repeat television's most successful entertainment program — "Roots" — beginning Sept. 5, the day after Labor Day, and running through Sunday, Sept. 10. "Roots" will skip Saturday, Sept. 9, to make way for college football.

Fred Silverman, who caused all the hullabaloo last year at ABC, wasn't about to let his new network, NBC, get caught with its repeats showing. So NBC will begin "sneak preview week" on Sept. 5.

Why the debut of a new show qualifies as a "sneak preview" in the first week of September and a premiere in the third week in September we leave network executives to explain.

The network also is counter-programming with specials.

Sept. 5 NBC goes with "Little Mo," the story of
