The Dow Jones industrial average, which fell 2.08 points Thursday after failing to pierce the 900 level, was ahead 1.38 points to 895.09 shortly after the opening.

Advances led declines, 390 to 142, among the 781 issues crossing the NYSE tape at the outset.

Talks Reach 'Core Issues'

CAMP DAVID, Md. (UPI) — Egyptian and Israeli officials today hinted that the Camp David summit has reached the core issues dividing the Middle East, and the atmosphere remains favorable as the talks grow more serious.

The first crack in the news blackout came after two days of direct talks between President Anwar Sadat of Egypt and Prime Minister Menachem Begin of Israel. President Carter retains the role of a "listener," entering the trilateral discussions only when an obstacle looms.

One Israeli official cautioned reporters that the favorable atmosphere "says nothing about what the eventual outcome of the summit will be."

And an Egyptian official said the negotiations have reached the "core issues," but the substance of the talks have been kept secret from even the most senior officials outside the meeting place at the presidential retreat.

A White House spokesman said Carter met Secretary of State Cyrus Vance and Defense Secretary Harold Brown at breakfast today, and that Vance and Brown then met with an Israeli delegation headed by Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan.

The spokesman said no formal meetings between the three key participants was set for today.

A reminder, of one of the problems — the future of the Palestinians — was present outside the gates to the compound today.

A group of Arab-American community leaders holding a news conference in nearby Thurmont, Md., insisted the Israeli occupation of Arab lands and the violation of Palestinian human rights must end.

The group, dubbed the Palestine Human Rights Campaign, called on the three leaders to reach a solution which would "recognize the legitimate rights of the Palestinian people, including their right to live as a free and independent people."

White House officials said the summit negotiations will continue through the weekend, despite the Moslem, Jewish and Christian religious holidays to be celebrated on successive days within Camp David.

Egyptians at the summit said Sadat will lead religious observances today, but will be free to negotiate. Israeli officials said Begin's strict religious convictions will preclude formal talks on the Jewish Sabbath — from Friday sundown to Saturday sundown — but he will be free for informal contacts.

Carter met Thursday for a total of five hours jointly with Sadat and Begin. In addition, the three leaders spent another 45 minutes together watching a Marine Corps precision drill performance and 30 minutes at a reception hosted by Carter.

Later Carter and selected top aides, including Vance, national security adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski and Vice President Walter Mondale, met with Sadat and his top advisers.

Carter began the day with a two-hour meeting with Israeli delegation.

Fire Call Tests Jurisdiction Ruling

By SUSAN VAUGHN and GREG PEARSON
Herald Reporters

The Buckland fire jurisdiction decision handed down last week by the state Supreme Court was put to its first practical test Thursday afternoon when a fire occurred in a house on Adams Street.

The house, at 399-401 Adams St., is near the boundary line of the Buckland area, which the court decided is under the fire jurisdiction of the Eighth Utilities District.

Both the Town of Manchester and the Eighth District Fire Departments responded to the call for a stove fire and both departments claimed that the house was within their jurisdiction as of Thursday.

The fire chiefs of the two departments, John Rivoso and Granville "Ted" Lingard, met late Thursday afternoon to review the areas of jurisdiction for both departments. The meeting had been scheduled even before the Adams Street matter occurred.

The town department first received the Adams Street call shortly before 2:30 p.m. and immediately called the Eighth District as it normally does in one of the "gray areas" of jurisdiction. Fire engines from each department arrived almost simultaneously at the fire which was already out, but the Eighth District firefighters stayed to remove some smoke from the house.

Wholesale Prices Down 0.1 Percent

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Wholesale prices, led by a decline in food costs, fell 0.1 percent in August for the first decline in two years, the government reported today.

The Labor Department said August's wholesale price performance was the best since a 0.2 percent decline in August 1976. Increases had averaged 0.8 percent during the first seven months of this year.

The figures were another encouraging signal of moderating inflation.

Food prices dipped by 1.5 percent last month, the second consecutive monthly decline and the largest since a 1.8 percent retreat registered in August 1976, the department said.

There were large drops in the costs of processed poultry, fresh and dried fruits and vegetables and eggs.

What may be even more encouraging than the decline in food prices was the moderate 0.4 percent increase for non-food items, which equalled the smallest of the year.

The department's overall Producer Price Index for Finished Goods, which measures those products ready for sale to consumer outlets, stood at 195.3, a drop of 0.3 percent from July. That means goods that cost $100 in 1967 were priced at $195.30 last month.

President Carter and his economic aides have maintained that inflation is the nation's No. 1 worry. And escalating inflation — which rose at a near double-digit pace during the first seven months of 1978 — has undermined Carter's popularity with the public and forced the administration to toughen the fight against inflation.

The White House is expected to announce a second phase of an anti-inflation program later this month. The revamped program reportedly may contain voluntary wage-price guidelines.

The administration has predicted that inflation will be about 8 percent by year-end, considerably above previous expectations.

The 0.1 percent drop in wholesale prices last month compared with an 0.5 percent increase in July and 0.7 percent rises in both June and May.

Inflation at both the consumer and wholesale levels has moderated somewhat since mid-summer, chiefly because of declines in food prices. Prices of non-food items have increased at about the same rapid rate.

Administration economic planners worry that the rapid advance of non-food items might stall efforts to quell inflation.

Food prices have risen sharply for nine straight months until July's 0.3 percent drop.

Beef and veal prices fell again last month. But prices for pork and dairy products turned up somewhat after declining in July.

Housing Advocate Asks Cooperation

HARTFORD (UPI) — Connecticut's new housing advocate today called on state agencies to cooperate in a joint effort to see that all citizens have a chance to obtain and live in adequate housing.

Michael M. Sharpe III told an organizational meeting of the Housing Coordinating Committee that zoning and "systemic discrimination" and the displacement of urban residents were major concerns to be dealt with.

Gov. Ella T. Grasso appointed Sharpe and created the committee under a recent executive order to deal with such problems as rising construction costs, prevention of decay and maintenance of neighborhoods.

Mrs. Grasso, in welcoming the new committee members today, told them their job "is to mobilize the resources of our state agencies to target programs, fiscal assistance and planning and to coordinate efforts to increase the supply of quality housing."

Sharpe, a housing and urban affairs expert with the Urban League, said he did not plan to "impose myself as a commander" in his role as housing advocate but work cooperatively with the various state agencies "at arms length to create objectivity."

He said much more has been accomplished in housing in the state than credit is given. He said criticism has come from the fact there has been no central office to coordinate housing efforts.

Sharpe, who also asked the state agencies to keep him informed of whatever legislation is proposed regarding housing, said his and the committee's responsibility "is to represent the interests of the housing consumers in the state."

Members of the housing coordinating committee include Community Affairs Commissioner W. James Rice; Arthur White of the Connecticut Housing Finance Authority; Anthony Milano, secretary of the office of policy and management; Arthur Green, human rights and opportunities commissioner; James Lash of the central housing committee; Commerce Commissioner Edward J. Stockton; Larry Thompson, regional director of the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development and Linda Hersman of the governor's office.

Green School Is Quiet Now

While other educational facilities were bustling with activity this week, all that was left of such activity at Green School were a few samples of student art and the remains of this chalkboard in a deserted classroom. All the chalkboards in the old school on East Middle Turnpike have been removed and the empty building awaits its fate, possibly as a senior citizens center. The school was closed in June and turned over to the town. (Herald photo by Vaughn)

Judges Consider Arrest Last Resort in Strikes

By United Press International. Judges appear to be saving mass arrests as a last resort in the illegal teacher strikes in Bridgeport and Norwalk, Conn., and instead have ordered both sides into marathon negotiating sessions. About 2,200 teachers in the two cities walked out Tuesday, saying they wanted more money. It's the first such strike for Bridgeport, but Norwalk's teachers first struck there in the 1940s. Superior Court Judge James Henebery Thursday entered the 1,250-member Bridgeport Education Association to sit down and try to hammer out a contract with the school board between 7 p.m. Thursday and midnight Saturday. Henebery had issued an injunction the day before prohibiting the teachers from continuing their walkout, but he postponed a hearing on their defiance of that order until Monday. The judge also imposed a "news

Appeal Likely In Fire Case

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (UPI) — Legal Aid Attorney Stephen Pittari says he plans an appeal in the case of Peter Leonard, found guilty by a Westchester County Court jury of killing 24 young people by setting the 1974 Gulliver's discotheque fire on the New York-Connecticut border. Leonard was convicted Thursday of 24 counts of murder, one count each of arson and burglary, and two counts of petty larceny, by a jury of 10 men and two women who deliberated for nine hours over two days. As the jury foreman Dennis Gillespie announced the panel's decision, the 26-year-old Greenwich, Conn., high school dropout's head sunk into his hands and he began weeping — the first emotion he had shown during the two-week trial. His parents Ann and Joseph sat in stunned silence. Pittari announced he would file an appeal and Judge Theodore Dachenhausen set Sept. 28 for sentencing. Leonard still faces charges of arson for setting his jail-cell mattress on fire shortly after his 1974 arrest. He also attempted suicide twice and Westchester County Correctional Commissioner Albert Gray said officials plan to keep a "special watch" on Leonard until the sentencing.

Only One Firm Bids To Buy Town Trees

A Pomfret firm was the only bidder for the removal and purchase of timber from forests surrounding the Town of Manchester's Porter and Howard Reservoirs. Hill Forest Products of Pomfret bid $8,311.26 for the right to remove and purchase the estimated 134,382 board feet of wood. George Murphy of the 124 Street Department said that the bid is an acceptable one and actually is higher than the town had expected. He feels, however, that the town may not obtain those revenues if it does not have its own forestry crew to oversee the removal operation. The town now has a Comprehensive Employment and Training Act crew, but it will be laid off Friday. The Board of Directors is considering a proposal to hire three persons to continue the forestry crew work.

Peck Criticizes Cummings For Role in Fire Dispute

Fred Peck, a candidate for the Republican Party's nomination in the 12th Assembly District, Thursday criticized Theodore Cummings for his effort to bring about consolidation and his role in the construction of the Buckland firehouse. Peck said Cummings is the incumbent in the 12th Assembly District and also is the Democratic Town Chairman. Peck and Walter Joyner are seeking the Republican nomination to oppose Cummings. "It is very interesting to note that many of the same people who were involved with the questionable Buckland firehouse are also on the Committee For One Manchester, for which Ted Cummings is the main spokesman," Peck said. The Committee For One Manchester has filed a suit against the Eighth Utilities District seeking to bring about consolidation, which is opposed by district officials. "The forced consolidation issue is what is causing the animosity among all voters of Manchester," Peck said. Peck criticized Cummings and the Democratic-controlled Board of Directors for "ignoring" the Buckland and Eighth District voters and proceeding with construction of the Buckland firehouse. The firehouse was built in Buckland by the town, even though Buckland residents had taken action to join the Eighth District and be served by the district's fire department. Last week's Supreme Court decision ruled that the District does have fire authority in Buckland.

CPEC Mill Rate Comparison Ignores Town's Revaluation

A study by the Connecticut Public Expenditure Council shows Manchester as having one of the largest tax rate decreases in the state, but the study does not reflect increases in property values caused by revaluation. The study says that Manchester had the fourth largest decrease, 8.6 percent, in its mill rate. Manchester's General Fund mill rate for the 1978 fiscal year dropped from 55.06 mills to 50.34 mills. Only the towns of Scotland, Middlebury and Groton had larger decreases. The decrease in Manchester's tax rate, however, resulted from completion of the town's revaluation. Revaluation resulted in increases in property values, and property owners in Manchester generally are paying more in taxes this year than last year. Eleven other municipalities were excluded from the CPEC's study because of property revaluations. Donald Goodrich of CPEC said that Manchester was not excluded because it did not implement its revaluation in full. Manchester's Board of Directors approved a phase-in of the new assessments from revaluation. The assessments will be increased over a five-year period, so this year's increases are less than they would have been had the full revaluation gone into effect. Even so, the increases in property value are responsible for the decrease in the mill rate. The study shows that 30 municipalities in the state with a decreased mill rate are misleading. Scotland had the sharpest decrease, 18.6 percent. The largest increase, 15.6 percent, was in Lebanon. Most area towns showed increases in their mill rates. The percentage of change in area town mill rates is as follows: East Hartford, 1.9 percent; South Windsor, 2 percent; Vernon, 2.6 percent; Ellington, 3.6 percent; Hebron, 7.1 percent; Glastonbury, 7.9 percent; Bolton, -1.3 percent; Coventry, -2.1 percent. Andover and Tolland had no change in their mill rates. In the state, 100 municipalities increased their mill rate, the CPEC study shows. Thirty municipalities reduced their tax rate and 27 remained at the same rate.

Hazards at Work

Every year thousands of American men and women suffer from injuries and illnesses related to their employment. Some are permanently crippling, and many of the industry-related illnesses become chronic. In the aggregate, the number afflicted is far larger than need be. An estimated half million workers each year lose time from work because of job-related illnesses and several million may be suffering from chronic illnesses contracted in their employment. Most of these cases are preventable. Only careless employees, disinterested managements and an unresponsive bureaucracy make it possible for so many to suffer physical or mental breakdowns caused by their employment at this point in the twentieth century. Part of the problem may be that it seems almost inconceivable that industrial hazards can exist on so wide a scale in an age of technological wizardry and scientific emphasis. But they do exist, and in more exotic forms than the well-known, but still to be controlled, black lung of the miners.

Local Color

Boston is color conscious this summer, but for a change it has nothing to do with race. Traffic light poles are the issue between Mayor Kevin White and diehard traditionalists. The poles have been yellow. The mayor wants to paint some 3,500 of them black, which he thinks adds more class to Boston's appearance. Opponents say the change is less reflective of the city's image than of the mayor's temperament. So it's going. Who said politics are no longer colorful?

Reforming the Form

Despite almost annual changes in the context and design of federal income tax forms, the General Accounting Office believes there still is considerable room for improvement. In a report to Congress, the GAO complains the forms and instructions are too difficult for many taxpayers to understand. Of course they are. But the fault may be more the complexity of the tax laws than the design of the forms. The Internal Revenue Service has been making a sincere effort at simplifying the filing process in recent years. The question is how much simpler the IRS can make the filing process without some tax code simplification from Congress.

Manchester's 12th Assembly District and the six-town 35th Assembly District will see a unique when they have their own primaries Tuesday. Along with the statewide Democratic primary for governor, there will be primaries in eight of the state's 36 senatorial districts and 38 of the state's 151 assembly districts. Fred Peck, Manchester's Republican registrar of voters, and Walter Joyner, who ran for and lost two years ago in the 12th District, will be the opponents in the primary for the Republican nomination. Democrat Theodore Cummings is the incumbent. The 5th Assembly District includes six towns - Andover, Bolton, Columbia, Hebron, Marlborough and part of Vernon. The primary race in that district is for the Democratic nomination and is between three candidates - Aloysius Ahern, a teacher and a former representative from the district, Dr. Edward Williams, a veterinarian, and Louie Matsikas, who owns the Marlborough Tavern. Republican Dorothy Miller of Bolton is the incumbent and, like Cummings, is seeking re-election. Ahern is from Bolton; Williams and Matsikas are from Hebron. There will be five Democratic primaries and three Republican primaries in senatorial districts. There will be 25 Democratic primaries and only four GOP primaries in assembly districts. Interestingly, both parties have a primary in the 4th Assembly District, a five-town district that includes Borrah, Colchester, Lebanon, Montville and part of Norwich. Seven of the primaries, including the one in the 5th Assembly District, will feature three candidates. One primary, the Democratic one in New Britain's Sixth Senatorial District, will include four candidates. There also will be a handful of primaries across the state for judge of probate and registrar of voters positions. The primary interest Tuesday, of course, will be on the Democratic bid for governor. A majority of observers have predicted a win for Gov. Ella Grasso, but Lt. Gov. Robert Killian is expected to make a strong showing in Hartford County and Manchester. Campaign time ... The second debate on Tuesday between Gov. Grasso and Killian was relocated because of a teachers strike in Norwalk. The debate was scheduled at the Roton Middle School in Norwalk. Both candidates, however, expressed reservations about crossing possible picketlines, so the debate was moved to Holy Town Junior High School in Westport. Law Rome, GOP candidate for lieutenant governor, this week proposed tax credits for businesses as an inducement for companies to expand. Business taxes in Connecticut are among the highest in the country, he said. "We must help industry purchase new equipment and thus create new jobs. I believe that an investment tax credit is a good way to do this," Rome said. Ben Andrews, the Republican candidate in the First Assembly District, has received the endorsement of the Ripon Society, the national organization of moderate and liberal Republicans.

ACTION Deserves a Chance

By MARTHA ANGLE and ROBERT WALTERS
WASHINGTON (NEA) - One federal agency has developed a daring strategy to revitalize the nation's cities by relying on individual initiative and self-help efforts instead of massive infusions of billions of dollars in government funds. The White House has enthusiastically endorsed the innovative approach to confronting urban problems and the Senate has authorized the necessary spending - but the program is threatened by a petty vendetta waged by a handful of House Republicans. The comprehensive new program was conceived by ACTION, the federal volunteer agency, seeking congressional approval to spend $40 million to aid the approximately 22,000 neighborhood groups and community organizations already functioning around the country. But the House Republicans, led by Minority Whip Robert H. Michel, R-Ill., refuse to forgive or forget ACTION Director Sam Brown's record of sometimes-radical political activism during the 1960s. Brown was a leader in mobilizing broad-based public opposition to the war in Vietnam and in efforts to unseat former President Lyndon B. Johnson. He has recruited a number of colleagues from those campaigns to fill policy-making posts at ACTION. Most of those young men and women now are committed to seeking social reforms by working through the established political system. Brown, for instance, came to Washington after serving as Colorado's state treasurer, an elective job hardly conducive to revolutionary activity. Michel convinced the House Appropriations Committee to assign a full-time investigator to conduct a detailed examination of Brown's operations at ACTION. After months of work, the probe has uncovered isolated examples of petty mismanagement and poor judgment - but no evidence of anything approaching a scandal. Undaunted, Michel and others hostile to Brown's ideology are making plans to delay or emasculate, if not kill, ACTION's urban program when it comes up for House floor debate next month. The first component of that program is the Good Neighbor Fund, which would provide small grants (typically $5,000 to $7,000) to neighborhood groups seeking "seed money" to finance locally originated projects. The funds might be used to buy sewing machines for a sewing cooperative, implements and seeds for a neighborhood vegetable garden project and building materials needed to turn vacant lots into mini-parks. The second component is the Urban Volunteer Corps, which would enlist volunteers, both craftsmen and professionals, to share their skills with the often-untrained residents of low-income urban areas. Accountants and bankers could provide financial counseling to block clubs, community art groups or other grassroots organizations; architects, urban planners and artists might help with local beautification projects; and carpenters, plumbers and electricians would offer guidance to those undertaking repair and rehabilitation efforts. In addition, the Fixed Income Consumer Counseling Program would recruit volunteers to provide guidance on nutrition, consumer affairs and financial management to widows, widowers, retirees, senior citizens and others living on pensions. Social Security allotments or welfare payments. Perhaps in the public interest, Mr. McCarthy would be so kind as to inform us what his salary is, (including pension, overtime, benefits and the like) so that a comparison might be made between the administration and the best offer. Yours truly, Patricia Coburn South Windsor

Explanation Wasn't Fair

To the editor:
Certainly few citizens will be naive enough to believe the hogwash presented by Charles McCarthy as his explanation of the $22,000 salaries of Manchester policemen (Aug. 30). Such an explanation tends to appear as a gross misrepresentation rather than a fair statement of facts. As an alternative, why not present the median salary of patrolmen? Lumping patrolmen with detectives and supervisory personnel will not result in an accurate figure for the typical beat officer where the vast majority of police work.

Including overtime in the salary figures is absurd. Overtime is not a gift; it is compensation for work above and beyond the regular work week. Certainly not all officers work or receive the same amount of overtime, which tends to cast doubt on the accuracy of McCarthy's salary figures. As a former officer of the Phoenix, Ariz., Police Department, I must add that Mr. McCarthy failed to mention a few of his benefits, including a 20-year retirement plan with no minimum retirement age, time and one-half for court time, and pay differentials for second and third shifts. Since Mr. McCarthy brought up the comparison, maybe Phoenix could be used as a guide in contrast negotiations.

Regardless of salary, some things can't be replaced - have you ever spent holidays and weekends away from your family? Worked rotating shifts? Weekends? All three? Would you risk your life on patrol, where you are highly visible and available to both the concerned citizen and the hardened criminal - and where everyone knows who YOU are but you can only guess who they are?

With the high turnover rate of police officers in general, perhaps it would be more economical to provide a higher salary than to hire and train replacements for officers who leave. And anything else, you get what you pay for. It's my personal opinion the public would be willing to trim expenses elsewhere and pay police a salary commensurate with their duties. Yours truly, Patricia Coburn South Windsor

Doesn't Like Being Victim

To the editor:
Residential home owners versus sow farmer - Who is the victim? Recent public opinion has indeed indicated a sense of criminal injustice being displayed towards the pig farmer, A. Botticello, a pig farmer for some thirty odd years. For shame on those residential homeowners who, for lack of anything constructive to do, petitioned the town and state health departments because a zoning violation, a public nuisance, and a health hazard exists in their neighborhood. Not only did they do this unforfeitable act, these residents accomplished it without monetary expenditures - how frugal of us. Opinion, is as American as baseball, hot dogs, apple pie, etc. I love it, we seldom live without it, but it should be supported by fact. Fact is reality. Some facts should be brought to light in this matter. Fact I, and others, purchased homes without prior knowledge of an existing pig farm, our fault, maybe, the builder certainly didn't tell me. Fact I cannot utilize my property as I wish due to the offensive odor emanating from the farm and the ever present hoards of flies in our yard and inside our home. Fact: The law states a pig sty cannot operate within 300 feet of a residence. Fact: A building permit was issued by the Town of Manchester to a developer in violation of this statute. Fact: A. Botticello withdrew his own injunction against the building of these homes and the homes were allowed to be completed. Fact: I am a victim and I don't like it. A.J. The Way to Christian Truth
Jesus Christ organized a church. It focused on principles necessary for each of us to return to the presence of God. These have been variously interpreted and indoctrinated until most Christians don't know what to believe. But it wasn't meant, nor is it necessary, for anyone to live by blind faith. Because there has always been a means by which any sincere Christian might learn precisely what Jesus intended: Simply abide by the directions given in James 1:5 of the New Testament. Anyone can know the will of God by praying aloud in secret, without prescription or repetition, and in the name of Jesus. For God, by the power of the Holy Ghost, will make it clear. Urban R. Correction

A letter to the editor from Evelyn Grogan in Wednesday's edition of The Herald contained an error that was not corrected. Mrs. Grogan's letter said that Mayor Stephen Penny was the Board of Directors at the time of the vote on the Buckland firehouse. Penny did not begin serving on the board until last year, well after the Buckland firehouse vote. The Herald regrets its failure to correct the letter's error.

No Resurgence Seen In Legion Disease

Federal health officials believe there has been no resurgence of Legionnaires' disease in the United States despite recent reports of outbreaks in New York City's garment district, Washington, D.C., Rochester, N.Y., and the area around Memphis, Tenn. Instead, officials said Thursday, more cases are being discovered because advanced techniques are helping doctors to identify the disease. "We're going to be seeing more and more cases of Legionnaires' disease because of the growing ability to identify the organism," said Don Berrett, a spokesman for the Center for Disease Control in Atlanta. New York City, which reported five confirmed cases, including two fatalities, washed down streets and subway stations with water in the garment district, and Mayor Edward Koch asked area merchants to shut down their air-conditioning systems. State, city and federal health officials, he said, were "taking air samples and water samples" to try to locate the nesting place of the bacteria. In most of the rare cases in which the Legionnaires' bacterium has been located in the environment, it was found in air-conditioning towers. The latest spot to report the disease was Baptist Hospital in Memphis, where hospital Vice President Maurice Elliott said there were five confirmed cases and four more suspected. One of the confirmed cases, he said, was from a town in north Mississippi - which he refused to name. He said two of the patients were in intensive care. Elliott said he knew of no link between any of the patients. Nobody knows how long the pneumonia-like disease has been around, doctors say, but it burst into prominence when it ravaged American Legion conventioners at a hotel in Philadelphia. It finally was isolated and identified as an airborne bacterium, not a communicable disease. "We now know a good deal about Legionnaires' disease," Berrett said, "but we still must find out how the bacterium moves about in the environment and how it can be stopped from spreading to people." The nation's capitol reported one confirmed and one probable case of the disease. The probable case was Allan Wlanichard, Washington bureau chief of the Detroit News, who was in an intensive care unit. In Rochester, health officials confirmed a 50-year-old man died last month of Legionnaires' disease. Health officials in New York City listed five additional cases as suspected Legionnaires' disease. They set up a telephone hot line and asked anyone working in the garment district who had come down with symptoms such as high fever, coughing, headaches and chest pain to call.

Deaths Linked To Crime Mob

NEW YORK (UPI) - Two reputed members of New England's Patriarch crime family, both wanted in Massachusetts on charges they counterfeited $3.2 million, have been found shot to death, wrapped in plastic bags and stuffed in the trunk of a car parked on a New York City street. Detectives Thursday called the slaying of Joseph "Little Joe" Napolitano and John Jannoni a gangland-style execution. Each had been shot in the head three times with a handgun at close range. "Napolitano apparently was working both sides of the street," said a Queens homicide detective working on the case. An FBI agent, testifying in the counterfeiting case where it came up in Massachusetts' Suffolk County Superior Court, said Napolitano had been working as a government informer but participated in the bogus money scheme. Napolitano and a co-defendant, Ethel Shapiro of Dedham, Mass., were convicted on conspiracy charges April 12, when he failed to appear for a hearing in the case, which charged the pair and four others with running the operation from the woman's home. Also among those arrested in a September 1977 raid on the residence was Napolitano's 62-year-old father, Orlando Michael McKay, 71, of Napolitano, of Portland, Me.

Troops Kill Protesters in Iran

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) - Military troops fired into a crowd of anti-Shah protesters today killing up to 250 people, eyewitnesses said, and helicopters roamed over Tehran to enforce a martial law imposed in 12 Iranian cities. Leaders of the opposition to Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi were rounded up in their homes in an early morning government crackdown against dissenters that began Thursday with the imposition of martial law in major urban areas. Bursts of machine gun fire mixed with shouts of rebellious slogans from the pockets of opposition groups that took shelter in the streets of east Tehran after the early morning shooting. Government troops fired into crowds gathering for a demonstration in East Tehran's Zialeh Square. Eyewitness reports said up to 250 people were killed and scores more wounded. The tanks rumbled into Tehran, firing into the air, within hours of a declaration of martial law in the capital and 11 other cities to counter what the government described as a plot to overthrow the shah. The soldiers hurled tear gas at the demonstrators and then began firing in steady bursts of machine-gun fire. The military also clamped a dusk-to-dawn curfew on the capital and it was expected to be similar curfew would be ordered in other major cities rocked by riots, marches and demonstrations against the shah.

Callahan Wears Many Hats In Role of EHHS Principal

By CHARLIE MAYNARD

Herald Reporter
EAST HARTFORD — Jack Callahan wears many hats in his role as principal of East Hartford High School. He assumes public relations duties when dealing with the community. He grapples with budgets as an administrator. He is a counselor and friend of students and both boss and co-worker of teachers. Callahan is beginning his 10th year as principal and is enjoying every minute. Asked what makes the job so satisfying, he replied: "Oh, that's a tough one. A lot of things, I suppose. I like the action. I enjoy dealing with youngsters and being able to provide guidance. Like working with teachers and I also like the administrative aspect of the job. And I enjoy the extracurricular activities of the students. East Hartford High School has a projected enrollment of 1,811 students this year as opposed to an actual enrollment last year of 1,544 students. It was the town's lone secondary school until the George J. Penney High School was built in 1951. East Hartford High has been at its present Burnside Avenue facilities since 1953. With another school year beginning, the teaching staff is preparing a self-evaluation of the school curriculum in advance of a visit next year by the New England Association of Schools and Colleges (NEASC). The NEASC will make its evaluation in October, 1979. If a school wants accreditation, it must undergo this evaluation every 10 years, Callahan said. Callahan has a plaque on his office wall testifying that the school has been accredited for 1978. "All this means," he said, "is that this association has sent representative people to look over the school program and it feels sure that a reasonable education is being offered to the students." Callahan said there are no other major curriculum changes to be made this year. He sees this as a stabilizing period after the upheavals of the early seventies which saw a proliferation of courses, particularly in the English department. As for the co-called basic competencies, East Hartford High is in its second year of testing and Callahan said the school hopes to make it an annual exam. Ninth graders take the exam and keep taking it until they have passed it. Most of the students pass the first time, he said, while a few have to try again as sophomores or even juniors. Callahan said he will make a full report to the Board of Education on the first year results early this fall. It's unclear whether the school will opt for a standardized test or continue with one created by the staff.

sure that the students' needs are being met. The students will join the evaluation process later in the year. Callahan said he would like to see the students write more compositions. A major gripe about schools in the past decade is that students were not exposed to enough writing. Consequently, young people entered college with poor writing skills. "I don't think that's a fair assessment," he said. "I think that's a tough one. A lot of things, I suppose. I like the action. I enjoy dealing with youngsters and being able to provide guidance. ## Bridge May Open in Spring; Council Is Working on Plans

COVENTRY — The Pucker Street Bridge, which has been closed for nine months, may be open next spring if the Town Council proceeds swiftly with engineering plans discussed at a recent meeting. The council met with John Lenard, who owns an engineering firm in Storrs, and with members of the Columbia Board of Selectmen to determine the best way to reconstruct the bridge which connects Coventry with Columbia. The structure collapsed last December after an overweight oil truck applied its brakes on the span and plunged through the wooden decking into the Hop River. The cab of the truck remained on the Columbia side, and the driver was unhurt. The truck itself came to rest in a vertical position, with the rear portion dipping into the river. Town Attorney Abbot based on a formula which Schwebel has filed a suit against the M&M Oil Company of Bolton to recover about $12,000 in damages fully notified the council caused by the 15-ton vehicle that the John Rockwell

House at Hemlock Point is being considered for nomination to the National Register of Historic Places. The site will be evaluated by the Connecticut Review Board at its next meeting. A letter from John Shanahan, State Historic Preservation Officer, states that the "property should be treated as an important cultural resource in all federal projects, although the owner's rights to use or change the site will not be limited. Shanahan added that the preparation for a nomination may take up to two years. Another area being studied by the reviewing board for listing in the National Register is the site of the old Coventry Glass Factory on Route 44A. Some original buildings still remain on the property, and it is hoped that a digging at the factory's foundation will uncover pieces of rare flasks that were manufactured there. Shanahan requested the engagement of an historian with specialized knowledge of the property to assist in the preparation of the nomination for the site. Connolly recommended Jesse Brainard of South Street, a former Town Council chairman. "Mr. Brainard has long been recognized as a local resident with specialized knowledge of this property," Connolly said. "He has done an extensive amount of detailed research."

Approval Expected For Factory Conversion

VERNON — Final federal approval for funds to develop the former U.S. Envelope factory on W. Main Street, Rockville, into apartments for the elderly, is expected to come sometime today. Florence Mills Associates and Barkan Development Corp., which is handling the development of the mill, have been notified that the building, which was constructed in 1864, has been recognized for its historical status. Final approval of $52,038 in federal rent subsidies is expected to come today with the signature of Larry Thompson of the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD). The mill has been placed in the National Register of Historic Places through the efforts of the Connecticut Historical Commission. This allows the developers to become eligible to participate in other federal programs. Application was made about a year ago. Barkan plans to convert the mill into 114 apartments for the elderly and to have some of them outfitted for handicapped

Conditional Approval of Plan Recommended by Planner

COVENTRY — Town Planner Gregory Padick has recommended that the Planning and Zoning Commission (PZC) conditionally approve the application of Khalig Satri for a four lot subdivision on the western side of Carpenter Road. Several residents had attended preliminary public hearings to protest potential development of the site in a lot that contains a swamp and extensive wetlands. The Conservation Commission noted that the land harbored rare plants, and an abutting landowner contended that a variety of wildlife was sheltered there. Padick suggests that no development take place on the remainder of the site unless it is approved by the PZC. "If and when the remainder of the site is submitted to the PZC for development," he said, "the applicant shall, at a minimum, reserve as open space the required portion of the original tract of land." In addition, Satri must note on the map that "a concerted effort shall be made to protect and preserve wildlife and rare plants and trees, including the following species identified on the property: Canada lily, swamp sarracenia, false heliopsis, swamp pink, mosses, ferns, trailing arbutus, and American chestnut trees." The drainage swale along Carpenter Road must be lifted as necessary to avoid damage to large trees and the discharge points of the swale must be blended into existing contours to avoid ponding areas. Other stipulations involve town approval of drainage improvements, staking out of front property lines for the review of town officials, and the insurance of adequate sightlines onto the roadway. Padick is also recommending the approval of an eight-lot subdivision known as Section 2 of Coventry Woods on the corner of Carpenter Road and Broadway. The application was made by attorney Joseph LaBelle on behalf of the owner, R.G. Snyder. The planner has asked the PZC to make the approval conditional upon the developer's approval of a location map. The driveways may have a maximum slope of 10 to 12 percent.

PZC Chairman Called to Court
VERNON — Herbert Slicer, chairman of the Zoning Commission has been summoned to appear in Tolland County Superior Court to answer an appeal filed by an Ellington restaurant owner. Steven Bellinghri, co-owner of Steve & Tom's Pizzeria on Route 83, just over the Rockville line, has appealed a decision of the commission to amend the town's liquor regulations to benefit a Rockville restaurant owner. The pizzeria is less than a mile from Athena's Restaurant Inc. which is in the center of Rockville. Appeals granted a variance to the liquor regulations to the Rockville restaurant and at that time Bellinghri was one of six residents who appealed that decision also.

Conditions at Herrick Park Upset Two Bolton Selectmen

BOLTON — Two selectmen, after attending a picnic at Herrick Memorial Park recently, are complaining about the building and grounds maintenance and vandalism at the park. Selectman John Carey said "The condition of the park and building is disgraceful, both inside and outside the whole thing is a mess." Carey said many townspeople have put a lot of time and effort into the park grounds and building and we are not going to let this happen. He said there is money in the budget for maintenance and money is being spent for maintenance but whatever they are doing, "it is not visible." "People are being paid to do work and if the work they are doing is not visible, supervision must be lacking," he added. Carey, reiterating a suggestion of the past, said, "We will try to get the park and other town facilities under the jurisdiction of a public works department." He said the department could be responsible for town roads, public buildings and grounds. Selectman Aloysius Ahearn said

Bates said the people on the committee are all interested, eager, helpful and cooperative when they come to a meeting but the problem is getting them to attend meetings. He said he sends cards to all committee members in advance of each meeting. The park advisory committee is scheduled to meet Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. at Herrick Memorial Park. The committee was established by the selectmen in November 1977 with six members appointed. The committee members are T. First Selectman Henry Ryba, referring to the problems at the park, said, "I have been suggesting a public works department for some time. Things are not being supervised properly in town." Ryba said he believes costs can be cut and there will be better maintenance of property when one person is responsible for the maintenance of town property. Bates added there are problems

Town GOP Mulls Asking State Probe

Manchester Republicans are considering asking the state attorney general to look into some recent local happenings. The idea, however, apparently is in the talking stage and may never develop. Several local Republicans confirmed that the idea has been mentioned, including some discussion of it at a GOP executive committee meeting this fall. One item that appears to have triggered the idea is the construction of the firehouse in Buckland. Democratic members of the Board of Directors in 1975 voted to build the firehouse, which is in an area where the Eighth Utilities District provides fire protection.

Violations were mentioned by Republicans. Republican Town Chairman Thomas Ferguson said that the idea of calling the state's attorney has been mentioned but he considers it a "remote possibility" at this time. Carl Zinsler, a member of the Town Board of Directors, said a couple of people have mentioned it to him. There is some thinking that there may have been improprieties. But, there has to be some proof to back it up. Zinsler said that he does not think there is enough such proof to warrant a call for action by the state's attorney.

Registration for evening classes at Howell Cheney Technical School will be held Sept. 11 and 12 from 7 to 9 p.m. Courses in conversation and electronics and blueprint reading are being offered during this fall. All classes will be closed when maximum enrollment is reached.

Housewife sells 'glass plate' for $40; worth $1,700 MORTON GROVE, Ill. - The story of a small fortune, lost because a housewife had no idea her glass plate was a collector's item, recently came to light. In a letter to J. R. MacArthur, chairman of The Bradford Exchange, world's largest trading center in collector's plates, a Madison, Wis., woman wrote: "I had a Lalique 1965 plate... which I sold to a friend for $40. I had not heard of you at that time."

The plate she sold is actually valued at more than $1,700. Although MacArthur points out that this price is exceptionally high, he said, "I'm afraid others may be losing hundreds or thousands of dollars by not knowing what their plates are worth."

To aid in identifying valuable plates, the Exchange issues a report that includes current prices on more than 900 plates, guidelines on how to look for and when to buy, and the plate evaluation checklist used by the Exchange. To obtain a copy without cost or obligation, send your name, address, and zip code by Oct. 8 to: The Bradford Exchange, Dept. 21336, 9301 N. Milwaukee Ave., Niles, Illinois 60068.

Yankees Embarrass RSox in Opener As Bombers Explode for 21 Hits

BOSTON (UPI) - It was overcast in Boston Thursday night, but all the men in pinstripes could see was a Bronx Bombers moon.

The New York Yankees banged out a season-high 21 hits to rout the Boston Red Sox 15-3 and move to within three games of the American League East leaders. The fast-charging Yanks have won 18 of their last 23 while the Red Sox have dropped five of their last seven. The Yanks have not been as close as three games since May 31.

The only good thing about this is that it only outlasts game. We're in serious trouble if we don't start hitting," Zimmer said. "We will not let tonight affect us tomorrow," added Rick Burleson. "Milwaukee came in here for a big series and we lost the first and came back to win three straight. We just have to start hitting and score runs."

The Yankees were quiet and confident in the locker room after the game. Mickey Rivers said the team is over the injury jinx and is starting to play the kind of baseball expected of world champions.

"The last month and one-half we've started to play fundamental baseball. We've won games we shouldn't have. We're not talking split here. We're going to take them all. We've got to prove we're the best," said Rivers, who had an RBI and scored a run.

Clay, who fanned four and walked one while giving up a pair of runs, said 1978 is beginning to look a lot like 1977, when the Yankees caught and passed the Red Sox in September.

"This team is amazing. They always seem to win the big games. We did it last year and we can do it again this year. We just have to keep on winning and I don't see why we can't win the next three games," Clay said.

The Cardinals struck Pittsburgh's 11-game winning streak with a 5-4 victory while the Braves pulled out a 6-5 decision over slumping San Francisco at Atlanta.

"I didn't know if it was going to stay fair or not, but I knew it was on the move. I had a two-run homer off the foul pole in left field that gave the Cards the win and left the Pirates 14 games behind Philadelphia in the East."

The Pirates had six men cut down on the bases - three stealing and three trying to take extra bases - as the longest winning streak in the National League this season came to an end.

Rookies played the key roles in the Cardinals' victory. Hubert, Dale Murphy and Bob Horner helped send the Giants to their third straight defeat. Hubbard singled in Murphy from second base with the winning run in the eighth inning.

Horner belted his 18th home run off Atlanta and Jack Clark smashed his 23rd for the Giants, who fell four games behind Los Angeles in the West.

His absence a year ago was a big answer why the Huskies finished under the mark at 9-11, nine of the losses by one goal. Maybe it won't be the same this year as the defense is more experienced and Morrone has stated his netminders are far ahead of those from the previous campaign.

A freshman, Barry Stringfellow out of Wilmington, Del., takes over as the No. 1 netminder while a youngster from the area is not that far removed.

Joey Tomasselli, a freshman out of East Hartford who guarded the nets for Punney High, is on the sub-varsity squad. He was a very fine keeper for the Knights, but never received the recognition because of poor support.

While at the outset it seemed Howard was going to overwhelm UConn with its superior skills, that defending champion Jerry Pate, who set a Southern Open record last year with his seven-stroke victory, is at 3-under 67 along with Miller Barber, Doug Tewell, Fred Marti, George Johnson and Perry Leslie. Wadkins, who three-putted from 18 feet on the par-4 ninth hole, the last of his round, said, "The greens are very tough to putt. The greens are very hard to use and I'm not very good slow green putter."

"I missed a few very makeable putts. Otherwise I could have knocked it right off the charts. I only missed two fairways and hit every green. The putts I missed were all uphill."

Jones Holds Slim Lead Over Seven

COLUMBUS, Ga. (UPI) - Grier Jones' one-stroke lead over seven other players going into today's second round of the Southern Open golf tournament is even slimmer than it looks.

Though Jones' 5-under-par, 32-35-65 over Green Island Country Club's 6,791-yard course held up through the day, at one time or another three others tied him during their respective rounds.

But both Lanny Wadkins and Rocky Thompson missed short putts on their final holes to break back to 4-under 67 while Frank Barber failed at the end of his round to wind up at 68, leaving Jones alone on top of the pack.

"Everything went right," Jones said. "I putted well, and I got off to a decent start and the momentum stayed with me. The last few weeks I haven't been putting up to par, or what I consider par. But on Thursday Jones' putt was working well enough to account for six birdies, including three on the first four holes he played.

The Cardinals struck Pittsburgh's 11-game winning streak with a 5-4 victory while the Braves pulled out a 6-5 decision over slumping San Francisco at Atlanta. Hobson Struggling

BOSTON (UPI) - Butch Hobson has a dying arm and has 38 errors to show for it. Because he's not hitting, but he impresses the manager, says the error bummer also said removing Hobson at this time would be a poor move because second baseman Jerry Fryer also is ailing.

"To rest Hobson, I'd have to put with bone chips in his right elbow, a condition which will necessitate surgery at the end of the season. His injury has slipped considerably the past few weeks, but he is left in the lineup because his better-skillet style of play is an inspiration."

"The toughest thing when you have something like that is that you start pressing," said Carl Yastrzemski, wase locker is adjacent to Hobson's. "You concentrate on it so much it's not natural anymore. It's like hitting."

Hobson has refused to aili for his misuses, two of which came in the 15-3 loss Thursday to New York. Teammates know the pain he is going through and wonder if the problem is more than physical.

"This thing has got to be in his head. It affects him psychologically and he has the physical problem, too. He makes plays okay, but everytime he gets it, he either throws it in the dirt or in the stands. He's got to get out of the psychological rut," said Burleson, in an instructive, not critical, voice.

Hobson said the problem was not psychological, but acknowledged he was struggling in the field. "I'm just trying to throw it and I'm not. I'm trying to throw the ball in the stands but it keeps going down."

Manager Don Zimmer said he had no plans to rest Hobson during the pennant drive, although he has asked the third baseman on occasion to take himself out of the game.

"I asked him in the fifth inning (Thursday) if he wanted to come out and he said 'That isn't going to help me one bit. Just let me stay out and find it.' The errors are magnified

Shriver to Offer Challenge

NEW YORK (UPI) — She is only 16 years old, yet there wasn't a trace of fear in her bright, green eyes nor the sound of concern in her energetic voice.

Indeed, one might even detect a note of soft defiance in her tone, a sense of challenge.

Today, on center court, Pam Shriver gets to play Martina Navratilova, currently the most awesome force and strongest player in women's tennis.

It is a nail-biting, heart-throbbing situation that should send a shiver through the most experienced player.

East Needs Depth After Top Three

Strong at the top but questionable in the vital fourth and fifth slots. That should be the configuration of the East Catholic 1978 cross country team which opens its campaign next Saturday in the Wolcott Invitational.

Second-year Coach Jack Hull's Eagles are led by defending state Class L champion John Clifford, a junior. (East is Class M this year) "I would like to think he's one of the top five in the state," Hull voiced of his prize find.

Considered in the top grouping also are junior Dave Kittredge and senior Ben Patrick, the latter called vastly improved by his coach.

Men's and women's flag football teams and Parks and Recreation soccer teams should apply for practice permits at the Rec office.

Pats Ink Lineman

FOXBORO, Mass. (UPI) — The New England Patriots Thursday added strength to a defensive line crippled by injuries by signing defensive end Greg Schaum, who was released earlier this year by the Dallas Cowboys.

The signing of Schaum was prompted by injuries to Greg Boyd and Julius Adams, which left the Pats off four-deep along the defensive front.

Schaum was placed on the Cowboys' injured reserve list last year after coming up with a knee injury. As a rookie in 1976 out of Michigan State, he backed up Harvey Martin and Ed "Too Tall" Jones.

Coach Chuck Fairbanks said minor knee surgery on Prentice McCray was successful and he hoped to have the strong safety back in at least three weeks.

Plunkett Approached

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Jim Plunkett, unexpectedly waived by the San Francisco 49ers last week, has been approached by six National Football League teams, his attorney said Thursday.

Wayne Hooper declined to name the clubs inquiring about the 30-year-old quarterback and said, "Most of the clubs are asking for time. I can understand this since they've played just one game and they're getting to know their roster."

"We're on a holding pattern, which is okay as long as it doesn't last past the second game. Jim wants to play this year and that takes learning a new playbook and getting to know new teammates."

"If I knew the reason for the Jet loss I'd be coaching instead of playing," said Dolphin middle linebacker Steve Turt. "Not knowing that's the worst part. You can't know whether to be suspicious and change your routine during the week or to do things the same way to prepare. Speaking for myself, I thought I was ready."

Baltimore Coach Ted Marchbroda just wanted to put the Dallas game behind him as quickly as possible. "It's over and the important thing is how we react and get ready for Miami," he said.

In 1977, the Colts and the Dolphins both ran 10-4 records, but the Colts won the division due to statistical advantage. The teams split their two contests with the Colts winning the first, 45-28, but losing the second, 17-6.

This season, without Griese running the show for Miami and without Mitchell running the ball for Baltimore, there might be a race for the cellar instead of the divisional tie.

In other games, Tampa Bay hosts Detroit Saturday night, while on Sunday it's Dallas at the New York Giants, Atlanta at Los Angeles, Oakland at San Diego, Cincinnati at Cleveland, New England at St. Louis.

But that's not energetic enough for nearly 100 people from the U.S. and Canada who have signed up for Sunday's fifth annual Mt. Washington Valley International Bicycle Grand Prix.

The races are sponsored by the chamber and by the Manchester Union Leader.

Chamber spokesman George Cleveland said cyclists who have raced up the Steinhorn in Austria have said it takes about as much time to ride a bicycle to the top of Mt. Washington as it does to run up. The record is just over 64 minutes for a runner.

"I still maintain smoking is better for you than riding up this mountain," Cleveland said.

NORTH CONWAY, N.H. (UPI) — Some people take the Cog Railway up 6,288-foot Mt. Washington, some people drive cars, and some take a leisurely hike up the Northeast's highest mountain.

But that's not energetic enough for nearly 100 people from the U.S. and Canada who have signed up for Sunday's fifth annual Mt. Washington Valley International Bicycle Grand Prix.

It's only an eight-mile sprint, but what a sprint — complete with a vertical climb of 4,700 feet. Then there's the weather. The climb, there's a choice of a 32-mile race in the North Conway area, or a 113-mile race from Manchester, New Hampshire's largest city to the Mt. Washington Valley Chamber of Commerce in North Conway.

The races are sponsored by the chamber and by the Manchester Union Leader.

Chamber spokesman George Cleveland said cyclists who have raced up the Steinhorn in Austria have said it takes about as much time to ride a bicycle to the top of Mt. Washington as it does to run up. The record is just over 64 minutes for a runner.

"I still maintain smoking is better for you than riding up this mountain," Cleveland said.

Verhoff, who developed the lacrosse program at the school, took the University of New Haven from club status in 1973 to national status in 1977.

Over a five year period as varsity coach, Verhoff's teams compiled a 39-32 win-loss record.

Among these were the NCAA Division III nationals both years.

Back Sidelined KINGSTON, R.I. (UPI) — University of Rhode Island starting fullback Joe Brooks will be on the bench for about one month because of a separated shoulder, the school has announced.

Brooks, a sophomore from Middletown, suffered the injury in a scrimmage last weekend against American International College in Springfield, Mass.
