HARTFORD (UPI) — Whistling the same fiscal restraint tune as the pretenses to her throne, Gov. Ella Grasso has whistledly endorsed constitutional amendments limiting government spending and outlawing a state income tax.

On Wednesday, Lt. Gov. Robert Killian, Mrs. Grasso's opponent in next Tuesday's Democratic gubernatorial primary, came out for a constitutional ceiling on state budget increases. So did the Republican nominee for governor, Rep. Ronald Sarasin, R-Conn.

But the Beacon Falls congressman went one step further than Killian and announced he was launching a petition drive to outlaw a state income tax.

At her weekly news conference, Mrs.

Grasso Thursday also endorsed constitutional limits on spending and a ban on an income tax. The governor also hinted that Sarasin and Killian were just supporting the fiscal restraint proposal to win votes.

"I'm very interested to see they are proposing limits on spending," Mrs. Grasso said sarcastically at the opening of her weekly news conference at the Capitol.

The governor noted that Sarasin, a three-term congressman from the financially depressed Naugatuck Valley, voted for a bill containing an income tax when he was a state legislator in 1971.

"And now he's against an income tax," Mrs. Grasso said with mock surprise.

Mrs. Grasso also chastised her second in command for even suggesting Connecticut should be looking at an income tax as a possible revenue source.

Killian has said he opposes an income tax, but one may eventually be necessary because Mrs. Grasso has left the state in financial trouble.

"This (an income tax) appears to be inevitable in his scheme of things," she said.

Asked why a constitutional amendment was needed to ban an income tax, Mrs. Grasso replied, "I think we must keep it ban income tax away and we must discourage attempts to bring it closer."

Sarasin and Killian have both accused the governor of not endorsing a specific proposal to limit spending before the November election. Mrs. Grasso said there's a chance she might come out with a detailed plan if a special commission she appointed to look into fiscal matters finishes its report by then.

On another front, the governor said the state needs "a new vehicle" to resolve teacher contract disputes.

Norwalk and Bridgeport currently face teacher walkouts. The teachers have said they will ignore any court order telling them to go back to work.

"I think we need to establish adequate machinery to settle our disputes and we don't have that machinery now," she said.

But the governor stopped short of endorsing binding arbitration in stalemated contract talks.

Source of Leak Sought

NEW HAVEN (UPI) — The Coast Guard continued search for the source of a jet engine fuel leak on the Haven waterfront today.

Coast Guard Commander John Harrauld said Thursday the leak was discovered Wednesday night on a routine harbor search for the source of a heating oil leak that they have been looking for since March.

GSA Managers In Big Shakeup

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Twenty federal building managers of the scandal-plagued General Services Administration have been reassigned to other positions as part of a major personnel shakeup, GSA announced Friday.

The reassignments were ordered "effective immediately" as grand jury investigations in Washington and Baltimore probed widespread fraud and bribery charges involving the multi-billion dollar government building and maintenance agency.

GSA Administrator Jay Solomon has said he expects the investigations to produce indictments against at least 50 employees and office supply and building-maintenance companies.

GSA spokesman Peter Hickman said the 20 building managers in the Washington, D.C., area were transferred "effective immediately" to other GSA posts within the GSA's Region 3, which includes the District of Columbia, Virginia, Maryland, Delaware, Pennsylvania and West Virginia.

Replacements for the transferred managers were also immediately named by John T. Myers, regional commissioner of GSA's Public Building Service.

Mr. Myers described the changes "as part of an ongoing effort to improve GSA's service to its clients, the other federal agencies."

But sources within the agency said the latest personnel shakeup was part of Solomon's efforts to clean up the agency, which has been battered

Auditors Caution On Leases

HARTFORD (UPI) — The board created to police state leasing should avoid approving any future deals similar to the one involving a Hartford building, claim state auditors.

In their review of the state Properties Review Board, the auditors Thursday told the watchdog agency it "should reject or return for further negotiation all lease proposals that deviate substantially from standard leasing procedures."

Auditors Leo Donohue and Henry Becker said their recommendation was based on the experience stemming from the leasing of a building at 88 Washington St.

Contrary to state leasing procedures, the state agreed to pay rent before occupancy and also agreed to pay for all maintenance services and half of the renovations.

Last July, Donohue and Becker charged the deal to rent the former auto showroom near the Capitol was costing taxpayers thousands of dollars more than necessary.

The five-year agreement to rent the 50,000 square foot building at $129,500 annually was approved last April by former Administrative Services Commissioner Daniel MacKinnon.

Gov. Ella T. Grasso fired MacKinnon about a month later, but not because of any leasing problems, she said. Mrs. Grasso said MacKinnon was "a bully" who could not get along with the people in his department.

MacKinnon, who charged Mrs. Grasso injected politics in running his department, is now the Republican congressional candidate in the 6th District.

The auditors said the state had been paying $10,700 per month since April while the building sat empty.

At the time the auditors said the state failed to use safeguards in handling the lease, they blamed it on "lack of experience" with leasing procedures by MacKinnon.

MacKinnon, however, has steadily maintained that the lease is a good one and in the best interests of the state.

He said the basic rental was figured at $2.54 per square foot and the cost of renovations would put it at about $9 per square foot. Renovation costs have been estimated from $450,000 to $500,000.

Worker Status Key To Interim Job Plan

By SUSAN VAUGHN
Herald Reporter

The 11-member forestry crew hired by Manchester under Comprehensive Employment and Training Act funds and laid off Friday could be funded temporarily without jeopardizing their CETA status, if an oral ruling from the Labor Department is verified, Mayor Stephen Penny said Friday night.

Penny said he has asked Town Manager Robert Weiss for a ruling in writing before any action on temporary hiring is taken by the Board of Directors.

Tuesday night, the directors tabled a recommendation by Jay Giles, public works director, and Frank Jodanis, water and sewer administrator, for a permanent forestry staff of at least four persons.

The directors were hesitant to fund the positions with town money because of the unclear status of additional CETA funds from the federal government.

Congress is expected to provide at least additional temporary funds for CETA by Oct. 1 and towns have been hesitant to act on the laid off CETA positions in the interim because of fear of prejudicing the temporary status of the CETA workers.

If funding is provided by the town, it would be only for three weeks, Penny said.

Directors who took a walking and riding tour near the Porter and Lyall Street reservoirs Friday were impressed with the work done by the forestry crew. Jodanis and George Murphy, a member of the crew, accompanied the directors and explained the work that had been done.

The three directors who went on the tour were Penny, Betty Intagliata and Stephen Cassano.

They were also told of a bid which was received since Tuesday's presentation. According to the bid from an outside logger, the town could be promised $2,000 a year for the wood cleared in the reservoir areas and an additional $2,000 could be made on firewood.

Mrs. Intagliata, who was reluctant to act on the recommendation Tuesday because of the CETA problem, said the logging income makes it more conducive for hiring a forestry crew. She also said she was convinced that the work of the forestry crew is needed, not only for the benefits to the forest itself, but for the effect on the quality of water.

If the $18 million referendum for improvements to the town's water system passes, the forest should be maintained to insure good water, Mrs. Intagliata said.

Penny also pointed out other benefits of the forestry clearing, such as a higher level of water in the reservoirs, improved health of the trees, and the ability to provide fire access roads into the timber area.

There are presently areas which are not accessible by fire equipment.

The directors also learned that most of the forest in the watershed areas has never been cleared out since the 1930s. It should be cleared yearly to ensure proper growth and water quality.

About 85 acres of timber has been logged this year in the watersheds, bringing an income to the town of about $8,300, Penny said. About 200 acres could be logged each year, he said.

The town's total watershed area equals approximately 3,400 acres, of which about 2,400 are presently suitable for harvesting lumber.

Mrs. Intagliata said the benefits observed in the forestry work points out that CETA is valuable in terms of providing work for the unemployed.

Both directors said the biggest question related to the proposal to hire the workers is whether the town should provide the temporary funds.

Middle East Talks Entering New Phase

CAMP DAVID, Md. (UPI) — President Carter, offering his own "suggestions" for compromise, held separate parleys with his Middle East summit partners Friday, and the talks seemed to be moving into a new phase.

White House press secretary Jody Powell said Carter, departing from the three-day summit of previous days, met separately for 90 minutes with Israel's Prime Minister Menachem Begin and then for 45 minutes with Egypt's President Anwar Sadat.

There was an explanation of why the Begin meeting ran twice as long. But the limited information coming from the ultra-private summit suggests U.S. efforts at persuasion are starting to focus on the Israeli delegation over the Egyptian.

Although Powell once again would give few details, it was clear the most crucial issues of Middle East peace were now on the table — and it appeared that U.S. and Israeli negotiators were working hard on possible areas of Israeli compromise.

U.S. advisers led by Vice President Walter Mondale and Secretary of State Cyrus Vance spent nearly two hours Friday morning with Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan, Defense Minister Ezer Weizman and other Israeli officials in another in the steady flow of secret U.S. Israeli delegation meetings.

American diplomats have said along with Israel they described as "uninformed speculation at best" a report that the Israel proposed a moratorium on future Jewish settlements along the West Bank, Gaza Strip and the Sinai Desert.

The report was carried in the Boston Herald American and other newspapers of the Hearst group.

Asked about the report, White House spokesman Jody Powell insisted that the news blackout among the Camp David summit has been effective and he said, "There have been no leaks."

Although Begin is willing to stop an introductory ice-breaking talk future settlements on the Sinai, Gaza Strip and West Bank, according to the Herald report, he is reportedly standing firm in his insistence that Jews be given the right to buy land in those areas once Arabs take control.

Both Democrats Point to Record

NEW HAVEN (UPI) — In their last debate, the two Democratic gubernatorial candidates Friday offered the same reason why they deserve to win their party's nomination — Ella Grasso's record as governor.

"This has been an administration of promises made and promises kept," said Mrs. Grasso with some measure of pride as she met Lt. Gov. Robert Killian in the last of their three face-to-face confrontations before next Tuesday's historic Democratic gubernatorial primary.

But Killian, the first lieutenant governor in Connecticut history to challenge a sitting governor, attacked Mrs. Grasso as a weak leader whose administration has featured "blue ribbon commission after blue ribbon commission, delay after delay."

Connecticut's more than 600,000 registered Democrats will have the opportunity to decide which candidate they think is right when the first Democratic gubernatorial primary in state history is held Tuesday.

Relatively little new ground was covered in the hour-long debate taped at WTNH Channel 8 in New Haven for airing tonight at 10.

Mrs. Grasso made perhaps her strongest statements to date on gaining by proclaiming she would be "very happy" if legalized gambling partied company with Connecticut. At the same time, Killian took a hard line on Sunday commerce by saying the state could do without its recent "passed 'blue' law."

But the issue of taxes dominated the candidates' discussion as it has throughout their frequently bitter campaign.

Killian, the state's attorney general for seven years, accused the governor of taking the citizens of Connecticut on the same fiscal "rollercoaster ride" as her predecessor Republican Gov. Thomas Meskill — three years of tax increases and fiscal belt tightening with one year of surplus giveaways to "buy" votes.

"In each case, the fourth year is the disastrous year" because it leads to another three years of tax increases, Killian said.

"Every year virtually two-thirds of our towns have had to increase (property) taxes," Killian said.

But Mrs. Grasso, the 59-year-old daughter of Italian immigrants, said she has been very "prudent and careful" with the taxpayers' money since she became the state's highest elected official four years ago.

She said she helped keep property taxes down by increasing state aid to municipalities by $143 million a year. Mrs. Grasso, four months Killian's senior, said she received a $71 million deficit when she took office and turned it into a $95 million surplus by this year.

"To pay off the $71 million debt over three years, she raised taxes in the first year by about $200 million," Killian quickly shot back. "The rest of the money goes for increased state spending."

The governor said he was proud of the way the increased revenue has been used.

"We've used our money on people for airings tonight at 10."

Both candidates repeated their oft-stated positions on a state income tax, minority hiring, constitutional limits of spending and a variety of other issues.

Mrs. Grasso has frequently expressed her opposition to legalized gambling in Connecticut, but she went a bit further Friday.

"I will be very happy if it should be acceptable to eliminate gambling," she told one of the four reporters from the television station who questioned her. "The end of gambling will not disadvantage the state of Connecticut."

Killian took a softer approach, saying, "Either you have to clean them (gambling facilities) up or shut them down."

Teachers Continue Pact Talk

By United Press International
Court-ordered negotiations continued Friday in Connecticut's two teacher strikes with the fact both sides were talking the only glimmer of hope.

Superior Court Judge James Henebery imposed a news blackout on the Bridgeport negotiations in hopes of hastening progress in the talks. Superior Court Judge Burton Jacobson told principals in the Norwalk bargaining sessions not to talk with reporters.

The negotiators were ordered to continue talking indefinitely. Teacher strikes in Connecticut are illegal.

"I hope they'll settle it any day, any hour. I have no way of knowing when it will be settled, but certainly hope it will be over as soon as possible," Dr. Richard Briggs, Norwalk school superintendent, said Friday.

Asked about Gov. Ella T. Grasso's comment that the state needs "a new vehicle" to resolve teacher contract disputes, Briggs said, "I certainly feel there's got to be a better way to resolve problems than the status quo."

Boys Report the News

By SUSAN VAUGHN and LEN AUSTER Herald Reporters
Two aspiring young reporters found an interesting way to spend long summer afternoons. They looked for news, as it was happening, or hoped for it to happen. They got their opportunity to get a story firsthand when they happened to be at the scene of an accident on Spruce Street one afternoon recently. Ray Luce, 12, of 170 Bissell St. and Matthew Elliot, 12, of 99 Norman St. sized up the situation quickly, talked to witnesses and a driver, and attempted to talk to the police officer in charge. They asked the reporter who drove up at the time of the accident for some paper and began compiling

That's Entertainment
By Allen M. Widom
It's inevitable, this time of year, a calendar when well-intentioned, well-meaning folks start sounding off on the alleged trivia and tedium of television programming, and while I'm not the subscriber to the Pollyannaish theory quick to defend everything to be seen and heard on the small screen, fact of the matter is that simply shooting from the hip, so to speak, hoping that the end justifies the means—i.e., enough screaming will cause marked changes, programming-wise—is far from practicing democracy. Perhaps it was Groucho Marx years ago, or perhaps Milton Berle in more recent months, but I've always, somebody in the entertainment business said in response to the perennial argument, "Who's going to upgrade television, blah, blah, blah?" something to effect, "What do you expect on television—24 hours a day of Shakespeare?"

Whether television will admit this or not, of course, there is simply not gifted, something to project, to pattern so-called "quality" programming in quality. As the man in the carnival milieu would say, you pay your money and you takes your choice. "Television, for all of the humdrum, all of the also-rans, must be cited, commended, honored, heralded, as far as constancy of purpose is concerned: seeking to devise and develop a common 'mix' of programming that will appeal to a vast spectrum of America's lifestyle. Here in Israel is not as easy as might seem. Hammering away at a typewriter with excellence of output is the goal, certainly, of every professional writer in television. But what comes out of the typewriter and "packaged" into a half-hour, an hour format, is not necessarily, by any stretch of the imagination, superlative. There's a flock of light years between intent and impact. And only the writer who's had sleepless night after sleepless night, Henry ("The Fonz") Winkler as one of the best talents in the country. They stay up to see "Laverne and Shirley" and seem to know every nuance expected on "Welcome Back, Kotter."

Days of Heaven (R)

Richard Gere, Brooke Adams, Sam Shepard and Linda Manz. Drama. Terrence 'Reddick' Malick's literate and a propser and bit doneer. 'Tanya' pamphlet what with. 'The usual fare, which makes it worth a look for buffs, even if it isn't wholly successful. GRADE: B-plus. (R)

A Slave To Love (R)

Elena Solare. Drama. Russia's fledgling film community finds itself caught up in the Bolshevik Revolution, with comic and disaster consequences. Superb photography and editing display this gem squarely in the Academy Award competition. GRADE: A. (R)

Animal House (R)

John Belushi, Tim Matheson, Thomas Haden Church. Comedy. Leave your rebarl consciousness at home and witness. All the cliché college characters are here and the cast plays them to the hilt. Rascous and hysterical — a great movie to drink beer by. Warning: Toilet cheerleaders, some verbal no-no's. GRADE: A-minus. (O'Brien)

Bloodbrothers (R)

Paul Sorvino, Tony Lo Bianco, Richard Gere. Drama. Confused Bronx young boys fight against his Italian family/mobster code. Decent, sensitive story and fine performances are marred by a heavy touch and immature resolution. Should have had the once over from a pair of shears. But well worth a look. Caution: strong language, some violence. (Hendler)

Convette Summer (PG)

Mark Hamill, Annie Potts. Romantic lark. This is really a love story between a boy and his car. Mark Hamill, as the boy, tries to survive the silly script, but can't quite manage it. GRADE: B-minus.

Cheney Mill Complex Should Be Restored

By THOMAS P. CONNORS

Hartford Road in Manchester presents an anomaly created by stretches of verdant lawns reaching to beautifully kept mansions, only to be suddenly ended by a chaotic and decadent structure reflecting benign neglect of past glory. Yet each, the green beauty and the grey derelict, is within the pale of the Cheney Mill Historic Complex and both are testimony to industriousness and negotiations for the establishment of the Cheney Family.

Coming in from the back of Hartford Road, there is the delightful neighborhood of well-kept residences that formerly housed the workers of Cheney Mills. Incidentally, these were the homes of countless immigrants from many parts of the world, whose abilities accounted for the renown of Manchester as the "Silk City."

When the resources and services needed for a full life are examined — the schools, churches, shopping districts, banks, government offices, professional services, and library that are within walking distance of Cheney Mills — they more than fulfill quest for gracious living. One is hard not to find a more beautiful core for urban living than the mansions on Hartford Road. All that remains for us in Manchester is to carry those resources to that part of the complex that has fallen on hard times.

Many years ago, I discovered the Cheney Mills when I'd spent time examining fabrics in the most fascinating building in the area — the Mill Hall. It was pitiful to see a beautiful pipe organ muted, high ceilings obscured by blinking fluorescent bulbs and a golden oak floor marred by gravel from the weighted feet of tired shoppers entering from a broken blacktop parking lot.

The Hall was almost rescued after a tremendous effort by William FitzGerald, Judge of Probate, and a hard-working committee, only to fall ever so short of accomplishment.

When Manchester Community College was founded, exploratory negotiations for the establishment of the college in the complex failed, because the state could not afford to renovate the buildings for classroom use. So the buildings have remained for the past decade a crumbling monument of failure.

Many notable suggestions have been forthcoming with few of them outside the pale of accomplishment. The complex lends itself well to light or "cottage" industries, commercial purposes, relocation of the town government, housing, and to the recreational and cultural life of Manchester.

Manchester is fortunate in having a capital project wherein its citizens can participate. It is also fortunate in having two projects already completed through community efforts — the construction of the Bicentennial Band Shell and the replication of the old Keeney Street School. There are models of rehabilitation and rejuvenation in New England that have degenerated the restoration process, and we're in New England here. The Cheney Mill complex, we can all hope, will be restored to a vital role in the community and will be a living memorial to the Cheneys and to the countless workers of Manchester's heritage.

Rawlings' research, detailed in his book "Beyond Death's Door" joins other books on the subject of "Life after Life" — the title of a best-seller by Dr. Raymond Moody and the topic of Elisabeth Kubler-Ross's book "On Death and Dying."

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: After 44 years of marriage, my husband moved out of our home and asked me for a divorce so he could "look for another woman to marry." He is 67 and I am 62.

My husband never refuses her because he doesn't want to deprive his children of anything. Like I said, he gives me everything I want, but it bugs me to see her take advantage of him.

Alley Oop

DEAR ABBY: This is my second letter to you. I wrote to you 20 years ago in care of the Houston Post and asked your advice about marrying a man 17 years older than myself. I was 25 at the time and Mel was 42.

I thought you'd enjoy knowing how your advice turned out. Thanks, Abby. I sure do owe you a lot.

MEL'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: You owe me nothing. Your letter made my day. Thanks for writing, and congratulations!

Taxes: Price of Civilization

TAXATION MYTHS AND REALITIES

American reaction to the increased scope of government and its cost in taxes is complex and seemingly schizophrenic.

In 1776, Adam Smith, the father of the industrial revolution, recognized the need for government to provide for external defense and internal justice.

pressures will remain acute. In part, this reflects the fact that in the last half-century we have given government more jobs to do. In 1950, expenditures were about 25 percent of the nation's total output of goods and services; in 1969, 30 percent, and in 1975, 35 percent.

While government expenditures are high in the perspective of our history, expenditures in some of the pean democracies (Norway, Sweden, and the Netherlands, for example), exceed 40 percent. However, one cannot accurately specify a relationship between the level of taxes and either economic growth or national happiness.

Taxes are also much more than just a mechanism for transferring resources from the private to the public sector. They inevitably affect the relation of individuals and groups to the state; indeed, they may condition the very right of government to govern.

English history reminds us that citizen-taxpayers often responded forcefully to what they considered excessive and unfair taxation. Both Magna Carta (1215) and the English Bill of Rights (1689) illustrated these ancient conflicts and established the government is a prerequisite to valid tax legislation. The failure of George III and Parliament to apply that principle to the American colonies gave rise to the Boston Tea Party and the rebellion without which this republic might not exist.

Perceptions of the fairness of taxes play a part in effective tax policy. In 1971, George Wechsberg, administration persuaded Congress to impose a whiskey excise tax. Many western Pennsylvania distillers considered their product a necessity for the poor rather than a taxable luxury; the "Whiskey Rebellion" broke out in 1794.

Quickly suppressed by the militia, the event, nevertheless, reminds us that a combined sense of justice and self-interest can create substantial tax compliance problems, and, occasionally, much more.

Mishap Delays Pipe Truck

A flat-bed trailer loaded with 72,000 pounds of concrete pipe destined for the J.C. Penney warehouse construction site became embedded in asphalt at the Manchester Motor Sales lot at 512 W. Center St. Thursday night.
The trailer was not freed from the asphalt until about 6 p.m. Friday after several hours of unloading in stages with a payload.
Personnel at Manchester Motor Sales said the truck driver from Precast Corp. of Nashua, N.H., had asked if he could park the trailer overnight in the parking lot while his truck was being repaired. The trailer supports began sinking slowly into the pavement shortly after it was parked Thursday at 6 p.m., and sunk deeper and deeper during the night. Ted Halifax of Manchester Motor Sales said the trailer was stuck in the asphalt until about 6 p.m. Friday.

For Two Principals School Experiences Mixed

School opening this year was both a new and old experience for at least two principals in Manchester.
Dr. Isidor Wolf and Edward Timbrell, principals for two years in schools other than the ones they presided at last Wednesday, felt mixed emotions over their new post.
Dr. Wolf was especially thoughtful as he evaluated his first day's experience at his new job in the Richard L. Martin elementary school.
He said it went "beautifully."
"I never could envision when I was at Green School that things could be so nice. The staff, the parents and I, exceedingly well trained kids, I wouldn't have thought it was the first day," Wolf commented. He added that the modern furnishings of the school with its carpeted halls all made for a memorable school opening in his experience.
The Green School, where Wolf had been principal for the past 18 years, he saw the school expanded and became closely associated with a program for a primary and intermediate special education group.
This year, he is assigned as principal of the Buckley School on Vernon Street.
As to his first day with the full student body, he said, "You're so caught up with what's going on where you are that you give all your attention to a new situation." He credited a good staff with being the key to a well-run situation.
Timbrell is still in a familiar situation because at Buckley, there is a program for a multi-handicapped primary age group.
Timbrell's first regular school day was made, he said, when he recognized one little boy he had at Keeney.

Democrats Criticize GOP Call for Probe

Leaders of Manchester's Democratic Party Friday strongly criticized a Republican suggestion that it might call the state's attorney general's office to town.
Some Republicans apparently have suggested a state's attorney's probe because of some recent happenings in Manchester, particularly construction of the firehouse in Buckland.
"I don't want to read accusations about the state's attorney (coming to town)," Stephen Penny, Democratic chairman of the Town Board of Directors said. "They (the Republicans) should either put up or shut up," he said.
He compared the situation to one earlier this week when Vivian Ferguson said she had considered filing a Freedom of Information complaint because she suspected that the Democrats had made a decision in caucus. Penny said then that there was no such violation.
He said Friday that the Republicans should bring in the state's attorney's office because it would find nothing wrong.
"The reason we're reading about this is because we haven't left them anything important to talk about," Penny said of the GOP.
Democratic Town Chairman Theodore Cummings echoed Penny's words.
"Those people (the Republicans) raise so many red flags that people are sick of it," he said.
"We'd love to see the suggestion that the attorney's office look into Manchester. 'We'd welcome them with open arms.'"
Stephen Cassano, vice-chairman of the Board of Directors, said the proposal is "an example of the frustrations of the Republican Party."

The center has expanded its facilities and has installed a large modern equipment board plus other modern equipment.
Ronald Litali, chief dispatcher, said those attending the open house may park in the lot at the nearby Savings Bank of Tolland or the lot of St. Matthew's Church. The center will provide shuttle bus service from the parking lots. People are asked not to park on the Green.

At Home or Abroad CTARNG Serves its Country Well

By BETTY RYDER
Family/Travel Editor
The red brick building at 330 Main St. has been standing there for 55 years and since that time has served as home for the Connecticut Army National Guard (CTARNG).
Built in 1923 at a cost of $8,900, the army is staffed by 12 full-time men who work for the Department of the Army.
While the imposing structure presents a tranquil exterior, inside it's a beehive of activity serving as headquarters for Headquarters Co., 1st Battalion, 169th Infantry, which is comprised of 700 officers and enlisted men.
Rich in history, the 1st Battalion, 169th Infantry, CTARNG, traces its heritage of continuous service to the State of Connecticut and the United States to 1637 when trained bands from Hartford, Windsor and Wetherfield were organized into "The Regiment of Hartford County" following a murderous attack on the settlement of Windsor in April 1637.
This Regiment of Hartford County continued to keep the peace of the Colony of Connecticut until the year 1729, when by act of the General Assembly, units of the militia were re-designated the "First Connecticut Regiment." It is this date, Oct. 11, 1729 that is officially recognized by the U.S. Army as the founding of the 169th Infantry, Connecticut Army National Guard.
The regiment has been awarded campaign participation credit in the Revolutionary War, Civil War, World War I, and World War II.
The 1st Battalion, 169th Infantry is the direct descendant of the "First Connecticut" and continues in active service to the state and nation.

Explaining the two-fold function of the CTARNG, Capt. Roy Pinette, administrative assistant to Lt. Col. Thomas E. Buck, commanding officer, said, "Our mission is to back up the regular Army when necessary, and to serve on a state level when needed under the command of our governor."
"We can be activated for federal service within 90 days, as happened in 1952 when some of our units went to Germany during the Korean Conflict," he said.
The CTARNG was called into service during Bobby Seale's murder trial in New Haven several years ago in an effort to ward off any public demonstrations by followers of the Black Panthers.
"One grandson of whom the CTARNG is especially proud is CW04 Richard Potter of Woodstock. Potter, who will retire in February, is the oldest continuous member of the battalion."
"He joined the Army in March 14, 1958, the Headquarters 43rd Infantry Division and served in World War II in the South Pacific, the Philippines, and New Guinea. He also went to Germany during the Korean Conflict.
"I'm sure some of the Manchester area people know him from his attendance at stamp shows at the Manchester High School," Pinette said.
"He'll be 60 when he retires and he'll be missed."
Other units of the 169th Infantry are Combat Support Group in Rockville, a Company in New Britain, a Company in West Hartford, and C (Charlie) Company in Middletown.
Any men interested in joining may contact headquarter's company at the Manchester Army.

Pfc. Eugene Cyr of Manchester inspects his M16 rifle.

Capt. Roy Pinette and Sgt. Maj. Gilbert Bennett display battle streamers on CTARNG flag marking every battle in which the division has participated.

Town Committee Told That Town Attorney Erred

By CLAIRE CONNELLY
Herald Correspondent

COVENTRY — Mitchell Periman of the State Freedom of Information Commission (FOI) told the Republican Town Committee this week that Town Attorney Abbott Schwebel erred in citing the Privacy Act as a reason for disallowing the release of the names and addresses of town teachers.

Residents Nancy Moore had requested the information from School Superintendent Arnold Elman. She is Coventry coordinator for gubernatorial hopeful Ronald Sarasin and wanted to send to the teachers candidate position statements on education.

Ms. Moore claimed that Elman contacted the town attorney after the FOI informed him that it had never had a case on this issue. Schwebel told Elman that divulging the names and addresses of teachers would violate the Privacy Act.

Ms. Moore said she would write to the FOI to determine whether she has grounds for filing a complaint against the superintendent. She also said she might obtain a list of the names of the teachers and send her material directly to the schools.

Periman told the Republicans that the commission was created by a 1975 act of the state legislature to remedy violations of the state's Freedom of Information Act. Town committees are excluded from the requirements.

"We have about six hearings a week, and most agencies comply with the decision of the cases go to court, and we have lost only one of about 40 cases," Periman, an attorney, said that subcommittees of public agencies may be subject to the FOI rules if they serve a specific function beyond factfinding.

Jim Laiki, a member of the town's Board of Tax Review, asked if it would be legal for his group to go into executive (closed) session on complaints that come before it.

Periman replied, "unless it is specifically allowed by the FOI act such as in a case that involves pending claims and litigation."

Are Sox Folding?

This is written in wake of Thursday evening's bombardment by the Yankees over the Red Sox so everything should be taken in perspective. And then again, maybe it is a very viable question. First off, may we not hear from Mike Torrez how he is not getting any hitting support. Anyone who pitches as poorly as he did in such a crucial game as the lead-off in a four-game series should remain silent. He could've slammed the door shut on the Bronx Bombers, put them in a poor frame of mind for the weekend, but instead properly opened the door to an avalanche. One game certainly doesn't decide the realm of possibilities. First off, it does. The physical aspect cannot be overlooked but neither should the psychological end. That, too, can play a big role. If the Red Sox failed to come back and even the score last night, then a sweep is not far out of the realm of possibilities.

Are the Sox folding? If I listened to those around the office, that's the answer. Fans are fickle and some are nervous. When the Sox win, you can't keep them quiet but when they lose... The same applies to Yankee fans but considering there aren't that many in the area it's not so bad.

Pam Shriver Surprise Winner

NEW YORK (UPI)—Pam Shriver doesn't know who she'll play in Sunday's finals of the U.S. Open Tennis Championship and she doesn't much care. She's too happy to worry about anything.

Three-time defending champion Chris Evert was leading 5-1 in her semifinals match Friday against the 16-year-old Australian Wendy Turnbull, when it was postponed after a three-hour rain delay. That match will be resumed Saturday morning.

Shriver will play wait and see. If it's Evert, fine. Shriver has nothing to lose now.

The 16-year-old amateur stunned the tennis world on a gray, rainy Friday with a poised, perfectly-placed 7-6, 7-6 upset of top-seeded Wimbledon champion Martina Navratilova to become the youngest player in the history of the U.S. championships.

In her moment of greatest triumph, Shriver, a 12th-grade student, showed more class than some champions have in a lifetime.

Shriver could have shrieked in delight at the moment when Navratilova had long to lose the second set tiebreaker. She could have done a victory dance or jumped the net. That's what young girls who beat champions are supposed to do.

At that moment, however, Shriver was thinking only of Navratilova's feelings. While a crowd of 16,251 watched the match, Shriver walked straight to the net, reached over and shook Navratilova's hand. Shriver put her long arm around Navratilova's shoulder and played the crucial points.

Thompson Leads

COLUMBUS, Ga. (UPI)—Rocky Thompson, who missed a share the first-round lead by bogeying the 18th hole, came back Friday with a 5-under-par 65 to take a two-stroke lead after the second round of the Southern Open golf tournament.

Thompson, who re-earned his playing card in June after a year and a half off the PGA tour, had a 131 to lead Greg Powers and Rex Caldwell, who had 133.

Bunched at 135 are Andy Bean, who fired a five-under 65 Friday; Frank Wynn, first-day leader Jones, Mike Rhee, who carded a 31-33-64; Bob Comer; George Burns and Miller Barber, who sank an eight-iron on the 165-yard 17th hole for a hole-in-one.

Seventy-six players made the cut of 142 for the final two rounds. Among those who were 1978 Southern Open champion Mac McLendon and 1977 champion DeWitt Weaver.

Bicknell's Black Bears entertain the Dayton Flyers while Griffin takes his Rams down south to take the Delaware Blue Hens, a perennial powerhouse. It is not an enviable opener for either team.

Denver's Friday announced the signing of free agent Tom Boswell, a forward and veteran of three seasons with the Boston Celtics.

Suggests President and General Manager Carl Sherer, the 6-9 Boswell will report, along with Denver's other free agents and rookies, to head Coach Larry Brown next Monday for the start of preseason practice at McNichols Arena.

Boswell, a native of Montgomery, Ala., was the Celtics' first-round draft pick in 1975 following three years of college at South Carolina State and one season at the University of South Carolina.

Experience Not Numbers Concern of East Soccer

By LEN AUSTER Herald Sportswriter

Numbers are not a problem for fifth-year East Catholic soccer Coach Tom Malin as he notes over 70 went out for the sport, in comparison to 22 when he first assumed the reins in 1974.

What concerns the hard-working Coach Malin is the lack of experience in the '78 campaign which gets under way Thursday afternoon with a road date at Bolton High is his club's relative inexperience.

"We are young, energetic, enthusiastic but relatively inexperienced," proclaimed Malin. "At most we'll have five seniors out of the 70."

Five starters return from last year's 5-3 squad with at least one having switched positions. Veterans Jim Neiswanger, a junior who has been selected captain, and sophomore Kyle Ayer will be at fullback, sophomore Mike Clinton will be one of the halfbacks and sophomore Terry McConville and junior Mark Marciano man the inside forward posts.

Malin has indicated senior Matt Tobin and junior Jesse will lead the wing positions. Senior Lou Dumont, junior Bill Furlong and sophomore Kevin Byrne could see action up front.

"I feel we have a competitive team. If we can overcome our inexperience," Malin noted, "we should win the schedule."

Thompson Leads

COLUMBUS, Ga. (UPI)—Rocky Thompson, who missed a share the first-round lead by bogeying the 18th hole, came back Friday with a 5-under-par 65 to take a two-stroke lead after the second round of the Southern Open golf tournament.

Thompson, who re-earned his playing card in June after a year and a half off the PGA tour, had a 131 to lead Greg Powers and Rex Caldwell, who had 133.

Bunched at 135 are Andy Bean, who fired a five-under 65 Friday; Frank Wynn, first-day leader Jones, Mike Rhee, who carded a 31-33-64; Bob Comer; George Burns and Miller Barber, who sank an eight-iron on the 165-yard 17th hole for a hole-in-one.

Seventy-six players made the cut of 142 for the final two rounds. Among those who were 1978 Southern Open champion Mac McLendon and 1977 champion DeWitt Weaver.

Bicknell's Black Bears entertain the Dayton Flyers while Griffin takes his Rams down south to take the Delaware Blue Hens, a perennial powerhouse. It is not an enviable opener for either team.

Vacation over? Your feet can't walk another step? Do your tired, aching feet a favor; stop by Parkade Shoe Repair and step out in newborn Comfort. Parkade Shoe Repair is owned & operated by Joseph B. Vallee Jr. Carrying on in his father's footsteps, Mr. Vallee started his trade 12 years ago as an apprentice cobbler in a small side shop in Bristol. He purchased the Parkade Shoe Repair 3 years ago, and now his younger brother Dave has joined him here. During the past 3 years Mr. Vallee's operation has grown considerably and now includes several "pick-up" stations from Southington to Stafford Springs. He also built a shop in Terryville, operating exclusively for the work from the pick-up stations.

Not only are Mr. Vallee and his brother excellent cobblers, they have, on occasion, repaired everything from saddles to torn sleeping bags. Shoes, pocket-books, belts, just about anything made of leather can be seen somewhere in the shop, waiting to be picked up by someone. No job is ever too little; and few are turned down as unrepairable. The Parkade Shoe Repair is located at the foot of the staircase on the lower rear level of the Manchester Parkade Shopping Center. Banjoist at Band Shell

Bernie Bentley, Manchester banjoist, will play and lead a singalong Wednesday at 7 p.m. at the Manchester Bicentennial Band Shell. Rain date is Friday.

Bernie will supply his own song sheets which will include songs for everyone, but especially the "older young adults."

The 69-year-old entertainer has appeared on radio, television, at Bushnell Memorial and Mark Twain Memorial, both in Hartford, and at the Hartford Civic Center, to name a few. He has had several publications printed in the F.I.G.A. magazine, which is about fretted instruments.

Bentley is a certified music teacher by the Connecticut State Music Teachers Association, and is associated with the Landerman Agency, Layne Artists Management Bureau, and the "Bobby" Kaye and Al Gentile orchestras.

The event is co-sponsored by the Manchester Bicentennial Band Shell Committee and the Music Performance Trust Fund in cooperation with the Hartford Musicians Association.

On Monday at 7:30 p.m., the 76th Division Army Reserve Band will perform.

Sept. 17 at 2:30 p.m., a concert by the 102nd Connecticut National Guard Band will be heard.

The Sphinx Temple Shrine Band will conclude this season's band shell program on Sunday, Sept. 24, at 2:30 p.m.

All band shell events are free. The band shell is located on the Manchester Community College campus off Wetherell Street.

Art Events

• The arresting impact of western commercial art on the native dress of an Indian tribe living on remote islands off Panama will be illustrated in an unusual exhibition at the University of Connecticut's William Benton Museum of Art in Storrs.

"The Mola and Madison Ave.: A View of Acculturation" is on view through Oct. 8 in the Edith Mosler Feder Gallery.

There will also be a slide lecture Thursday at 4:30 p.m. in the main gallery on "Molas: Folk Art of The Cuna Indians," by Ann Parker and Avon Neal.

"Mola" means clothing, dress or blouse in the dialect of the Cuna Indians, who inhabit the San Blas Archipelago off the east coast of Panama. The Cuna developed their intricate reverse applique technique of clothing design about a century ago as an extension of body painting, and using tools and materials bartered from Yankee traders.

On view simultaneously is the 13th annual UConn art department faculty exhibition, and a selection of art from the museum's permanent collection.

The museum is open free Monday through Saturday from 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. and 1 to 5 p.m. Sunday.

This medal with a portrait of John Dickinson commemorates the Articles of Confederation and is just getting over the hump of the Bicentennial era. It is No. 39 in the series of 76 being issued by the American Bicentennial Commemorative Society. They went past the half-way mark in June with this one. The "Year" is over but the "Era" goes on and on.

The medal this month will be for George Rogers Clark, the October one will mark the Battle of Monmouth, the November will commemorate the discovery of Hawaii.

The beauty of this society is that the members have a say in what's to come next. The vote for the December winner, Hawaii, was 39 percent, against James Madison with 37 and William Penn with 18. Benjamin West trailed with 6 percent. The runners-up, Madison and Penn, will have another chance in January.

The society publishes a little newsletter and a forum for correspondence. One letter from a girl in Weedsport, N.Y. (pop., few), suggested a medal for the horse Justin Morgan. This stallion was the founder of the first true American breed. Legend has it that he won a bet for his owner by practically running away with a log that a team of larger horses couldn't budge. There was not enough backing for the Weedsport girl's campaign, but a medal for J.M. would be refreshing.

The almost-forgotten man, John Dickinson (1732-1808), was called "The Penman of the Revolution." He was the leading spokesman for the colonists in the early stirrings against taxation. In his famed writings of 1766-67 called "Letters of a Farmer in Pennsylvania," he made a distinction between legitimate taxation to regulate trade and unfair taxation to raise revenue.

Dickinson drafted the Declaration of Rights of the Stamp Act Congress and also the Articles of Confederation for the Second Congress. He opposed the Declaration of Independence, perhaps thinking it too much and too soon, and fell from favor. However, through his influence, Delaware and Pennsylvania were the first two states to ratify the Constitution.

He founded Dickinson College in Carlisle, Pa., in 1773, and was the first president of its board of trustees. The college is still thriving, co-ed, with an enrollment of about 1,600.

Information about joining the society may be had from Jack Hamilton, ABCS Headquarters, Box 1776, Springfield, PA 19064. The medals are struck by the Medallic Art Co. — "America's foremost medallists since 1900." They are in silver and bronze, both in proof, at $17.25 and $10.35.

This is also an opportunity to "collect" sculptors. The society spreads the work around, this giving a break to many artists. The Dickinson medal was done by Daniel Calmi, the Clark by Gladys Gunzer, the Monmouth was assigned to Clayton Blake and the Franklin to Georgann Schroeder. This adds up to a kind of talent show by current artists.

Fall Activities Begin

The Manchester Philatelic Society will meet at Mott's Community Hall on Tuesday, Sept. 12, to kick off its fall stamp activities. The doors will open at 7 p.m. About eight o'clock the new president, Harry Cion, will rap the gavel in high hopes of attracting the membership away from the circuit books and trading encounters for a business meeting.

Tomorrow at Plainville

Tomorrow at Plainville — MPS member Gerry Gerath is a leading light at putting on the PLAINPEX '78 stamp exhibition and bourse. Admission is free. The hours are noon to 5 p.m. A special show cancelations will be offered. (Plainville High School, Walnut Street, off Route 10).

CB Convac

It is estimated that there are more than 20,000 CBers among the nation's 33,000 rural letter carriers and that probably half of their 4.5 million customers also have mobile CBs and base units.

"The people we serve every day use CB constantly," says Leland Sorteberg, secretary-treasurer of the National Rural Letter Carriers Association. "As a matter of fact, CB is so much a part of the life of a rural mailman, I was surprised that no one introduced a motion at our convention in Indianapolis to start a mailman's CB club."

The stories of the use of CB in times of emergency (particularly with the bad winters of recent years) abound when rural letter carriers get together. In Ohio, it was reported, many carriers simply had to spend the night at homes of their customers because they couldn't go any further, and they couldn't retrace their routes.

The only way they could report to their post offices and to their families that they were well and out of danger was CB radio. All phone lines were out of order.

"The stories are really fantastic," says Sorteberg. "It's not at all uncommon for a carrier to be warned by a customer that a road is impassable, or for the carrier to ask ahead whether a road is passable. The carriers know their customers, and they all work together.

"When they know a carrier is getting near their road, and it's blocked, they'll send one of their heavy duty tractors down to clear a path for him. And, perhaps, even take him on to his next stop. All the tractors are equipped with CB too."

Sorteberg, who has held his elected union position for about five years, is a CBER himself. His handle is "Minnesota Mailman" and his license is KFR 3604. He plans to return to his route in Minnesota when he leaves his union post. And his CB will be at his side.

"Our main concern is that the rural letter carrier not use his CB indiscriminately," he remarks. "They also must protect the privacy of the mail. This is most important. When he knows one of his customers is anxious for a package to arrive, he can call ahead and say he has a package for her. But to say that it is COD, and she should bring X dollars to him, would be a distinct invasion of privacy.

"He must also be aware that others can listen when he calls one of his customers, and they may note that there is no answer for several days, indicating they are away. That is good news for a burglar with plans for a robbery. This is the reason that constant caution must be exercised."

The intimate relationship between the rural mail carrier and his customers makes CB an ideal communications form. The rural mailman is actually a complete post office on wheels. The carrier performs any and all duties that the main post office affords: writes money orders, sells stamps, handles CODs, registers mail, insures packages, etc.

The two million miles the carriers travel daily are not shortened by CB. But CB is constant affirmation that, within their reach, is a listener who can and will help them if they need it.

Dial-ogue

BIG SIS — I have the soundtrack to "Grease" and on the back the members of the cast are listed. It lists the waitress as being Ellen Travolta. I was wondering if she is any relation to John Travolta. — Wondering, Moorhead, Minn.

Wonder no more. Ellen is John's big sister. The Travolta's are a very theatrical family. Expect to see older brother Joey on screen soon, too.
