

Fourteen States Have Tuesday Primaries

By ARNOLD SAWISLAK
United Press International

Tuesday is the kind of day when lieutenant governors of two states try to oust their governors, when nine candidates in one state shell out $6 million seeking the nomination for governor, when Harold Stassen decides it is time for a comeback.

Tuesday is the year's biggest primary day — 14 states and the District of Columbia choose party candidates for Nov. 7. Except for primaries in four more states and some remote action, this week's voting will complete the tickets for the 1978 congressional and state elections.

The big races are in New York and Connecticut, where Democratic governors have palace revolts; Florida, where seven Democrats and two Republicans are spending money like orange juice seeking the gubernatorial nominations; Minnesota, where two Senate seats are at stake and Stassen, the onetime Boy Wonder of the GOP, is after one of them.

There also are governor and senator races in Colorado,

New Hampshire and Wyoming; governor contests in Arizona, Maryland, Nevada, Vermont, Wisconsin and Minnesota; a Senate seat at stake in Rhode Island, and House seats on the line in Utah. The District of Columbia is choosing candidates for the second mayoral election in its history.

The neighboring New York and Connecticut Democratic primaries are the bitterest.

New York Gov. Hugh Carey is being heavily challenged by Lt. Gov. Mary Ann Krupask and State Sen. Jeremiah Bloom. State Assembly leader Perry Duryea has the GOP nomination unopposed.

Connecticut is having its first Democratic primary for governor. Lt. Gov. Robert Killian is trying to take the nomination away from Gov. Ella Grasso. Rep. Donald Sarasin already has the GOP nomination sewed up.

Florida has what may become the most expensive statewide election campaign in U.S. history in its stampede of candidates to succeed Gov. Reubin Askew, who is barred from a third term.

More than $6 million in spending was reported even before the primary and with possible runoff and the general election campaign to go, the Guinness Book of Records is on the alert.

Minnesota is one of two states this year to fill two Senate seats; the post vacated in 1976 by Vice President Walter Mondale and since filled by the self-appointment of former Gov. Wendell Anderson; and the Hubert Humphrey seat, occupied temporarily by his widow, Marjorie.

Anderson is expected to win the Democratic nomination. Rudy Boschwitz the GOP nod, although he is being challenged by Stassen, back in his native Minnesota after years in Pennsylvania. Rep. Donald Fraser and businessman Donald Short are battling for the other Senate nomination; Dave Durenberger is favored for the GOP nomination.

There also are some other potential comebacks and careers on the line in the primaries. Former Sen. Edward Gurney, R-Fla., who was acquitted of kickback charges, is seeking the GOP nomination for a Florida House seat; Claude Kirk Jr., Florida's first Republican governor in a century, is trying to return to the statehouse as a Democrat; former Gov. Wesley Powell is challenging Gov. Melvin Thompson in the New Hampshire GOP primary.

Fighting Bloody In Iran

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) — Troops who fired on demonstrators at point-blank range Sunday in the third straight day of martial-law crackdowns stood guard with machine guns today but another protest march against the Shah fizzled.

Shops remained closed in the riot-torn bazaar of southern Tehran for the fourth day but the march, intended to mourn those cut down earlier by the military, never materialized.

Tanks and armored personnel carriers guarded the tense Parliament square, a few hundred yards from the scene of a bloody clash Friday between demonstrators and army troops, and streets leading to the bazaar further south.

Machine gun-toting soldiers patrolled the sidewalks amid a thin crowd of pedestrians, including veiled women out for the day's shopping.

Earlier, some Iranians said they expected the march to touch off further disorders in the expanding violent opposition to Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi's government.

President Carter telephoned his support to the shah's royal palace Sunday, but it was not certain what effect the United States' gesture of support for its oil-rich ally would have on the turbulent domestic situation.

Nine members of Iran's Parliament walked out at the same time, charging the government's "hands have been stained with blood" by the troops' machine-gunning of demonstrators.

An estimated 250 people have been killed in the past three days of violence.

The government says from 50 to 80 people were killed in the clashes that began in Tehran Friday, after the government declared martial law and banned public demonstrations in the capital and 11 other cities.

The martial-law rules, including a dusk-to-dawn curfew, were the latest step in the government's efforts to control conservative Muslims and other anti-shah protesters.

Demonstrators defied the ban Sunday in the holy city of Qom. Troops again fired directly into a crowd of protesters and one person was killed, Radio Iran said.

The nine members of parliament walked out Sunday when Premier Sharif-Erami, who has been in office only since Aug. 27, pleaded for unity and solidarity and time to continue the liberalization of Iran.

"Your hand is stained with blood of our countrymen," they shouted, leveling the hail. "You've killed so many in so short a time."

The protests against the shah's attempt to liberalize and moderate Iran were begun by conservative Muslims who demanded a return to Islamic law.

But other elements opposed to the shah have joined the protests in the strongest challenge to the shah since he assumed power in 1941.

Bridgeport Judge Jails 13 Teachers

NR United Press International

Thirteen union officials representing 1,150 striking members of the Bridgeport (Conn.) Education Association were sent to jail today by Bridgeport Superior Court Judge James Henery for refusing to return to classes.

Summonses also were served Monday to 175 more teachers. They were scheduled to appear in three separate court sessions today to face similar contempt proceedings.

Besides jailing the union leaders, the judge Monday said he would fine each of the 13 union representatives $50 per day and assess a $10,000 per day penalty against the union.

The five women union leaders were sent to the Niantic Correctional Center and the eight male union representatives were transferred to the New Haven Correctional Center.

Union officials refused to comment on the judge's action, but a spokesman said the strike would continue.

Henery Monday said the union leaders would go to jail today unless they ended the illegal walkout. Court ordered negotiations broke off shortly after 4:30 a.m. today with no progress reported.

Bridgeport teachers voted to walk off their jobs last Tuesday, fulfilling a "no contract, no work" pledge.

School attendance has been low Classes in the schools that were opened were staffed by ad-hoc teachers, substitute teachers and volunteers.

A teachers' strike in Norwalk ended shortly after midnight Monday when the majority of the 923-member Norwalk Federation of Teachers voted to ratify a new contract.

Henery earlier in the day ordered representatives of the 1,250 member Bridgeport union to resume bargaining immediately under the supervision of Superior Court Judge Burton Jacobson and federal mediators.

Bridgeport union President Arthur Pecchillo blamed the contract impasse on Mayor John Mandanici and said the school board was little more than a puppet in Mandanici's hands.

Union officials reported light school attendance in Bridgeport and said the seven or eight elementary schools that were open were being staffed by volunteers and substitute teachers.

CETA Job Losses Still Not Certain

By SUSAN VAUGHN
Herald Reporter

Assistant Town Manager Charles McCarthy could not give the Board of Education any definite answers on the future status of the board's nine Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA) employees, but said the town could assume that there would be a maximum 25 percent reduction in the number of CETA employees after Oct. 1.

The status of the CETA program has been uncertain in recent weeks because of the $15 million deficit incurred in the Hartford office of the federal program, which directs area town's programs.

More permanent funding for CETA is not expected by Congress until January. Funding is set for Oct. 1 to Sept. 30, the federal fiscal year.

McCarthy said it will be necessary to set some priorities on the CETA positions, he said.

Work Begins Early For Primary Voting

By GREG PEARSON
Herald Reporter

Work at Manchester's Municipal Building, polling places and political headquarters started early this morning as people prepared for today's primary election.

Manchester has two primaries today. A Republican primary to select the party's candidate in the 12th Assembly District involves four of the town's 10 voting districts.

Manchester Democrats, along with Democrats from across the state, go to the polls to select their candidate for governor.

Local Democrats in the 55th Assembly District, which includes Bolton, Andover, Columbia, Hebron, Marlborough and part of Vernon, are choosing their candidate.

Polling places for all primaries opened at noon and will remain open until 8 p.m.

The statewide Democratic primary for governor has attracted most of the attention. Incumbent Gov. Ella Grasso is being challenged in her bid for re-election by her former running mate, Lt. Gov. Robert Killian.

The Manchester Republican primary is between Walter Joyner, the party-endorsed candidate, and

Peace Parley Waits For Egypt Response

CAMP DAVID, Md. (UPI) — Efforts at Camp David to find a formula for continuing Middle East peace negotiations apparently hinged today on an awaited Egyptian response to a proposal to defuse the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip.

The conference, according to designated spokesman Jody Powell, has moved into "an intense and detailed phase to see if approaches to meet the delegations have begun the actual business of drafting the language and details of a framework of a peace settlement, which would be worked out later by foreign ministers."

The sources said the summit has moved into its final and decisive phase, after the Israeli and American delegations worked out proposals to put to Sadat.

They said the Israelis worked in the early morning hours Monday, finishing details of the proposals which were presented to President Sadat in the morning and to the rest of the Egyptian delegation Monday night.

The sources said Sadat's acceptance of a plan for the West Bank would not be final, since he does not take responsibility for an area which used to be part of Jordan. He could only accept it as a basis for negotiations, which would imply that Jordan would become a participant in any conference following the successful Camp David summit.

Powell said there is no basis for informed speculation about the outcome of the conference — apparently a convoluted way of saying what officials were saying privately: The conference, after one week, hangs in the balance, and the outcome depends on Sadat's decision.

The meetings' schedule of information being given out by the official spokesman — has set a pattern which indicated the direction of the negotiations, although the substance of those negotiations are a tightly held secret.

Apart from the usual social amenities, the early meetings were heavily weighted toward American and Israeli negotiations. There was a week-long lull while the various sides paused for reflection and

Year-Long Catfight To Culminate Today

By ANDREW NIBLEY
HARTFORD (UPI) — A year-long political catfight between Gov. Ella Grasso and Lt. Gov. Robert Killian culminates today as Connecticut Democrats head to the polls in their party's first gubernatorial primary.

Election officials expected a light-to-moderate turnout at the polls, which open at noon and close at 8 p.m., but the possibility of bad weather may keep many of the state's nearly 630,000 registered Democrats away.

On the day before the primary, Mrs. Grasso, the first woman ever elected governor without succeeding her husband into office, confidently predicted she would win the historic primary.

Killian, an ex-attorney general who had little to do in the Grasso administration, also claimed victory, but admitted he may have blundered in the campaign's waning days by saying a state income tax is inevitable in the foreseeable future.

Today's election is the first time in state history the Democrats have held a gubernatorial primary. It is also the first time a lieutenant governor has dared to challenge a sitting governor for the nomination.

Rep. Ronald Sarasin, a three-term Republican congressman who has served almost over the years in his predominantly Democratic district, will meet the winner of the primary in the Nov. 7 general election.

Sarasin breezed through the GOP convention in July unopposed after he convinced his lone challenger, Senate Minority Leader Lewis Rome, to be his running mate instead of his opponent.

Killian Monday was philosophically about his candidacy and his chances of upsetting Mrs. Grasso, who is heavily favored in most of the state's 169 communities.

"Tomorrow I will either be a winner or a loser. I will either be acclaimed as a bold politician who defied the odds and won or as one who fell victim to the power of an incumbent's machine, said Killian, who celebrates his 59th birthday Friday.

Killian managed to scrape together only six votes more than the 272 he needed at July's Democratic state convention to force the historic primary against Mrs. Grasso.

"I pray to God to give me the strength to forgive Bob Killian for what he has done to me and my family," said Mrs. Grasso, a 59-year-old daughter of Italian immigrants.

After Killian put together just enough votes at the topsy-turvy Democratic convention to force the primary, Mrs. Grasso accused her opponent of engaging in "gutter" politics.

Still later at a political fundraiser, the governor cursed Killian when he extended his hand to her.

Killian, who claims his boss went almost a year without speaking to him, has relentlessly attacked Mrs. Grasso's record, frequently comparing her to Republican predecessor, Gov. Thomas Meskill.

"I am heartened and encouraged by what I hear," said a beaming Mrs.

School Enrollments Higher Than Officials Expected

By SUSAN VAUGHN
Herald Reporter

This was the first year in five years that the Board of Education has under-projected on school enrollment figures. School Superintendent James P. Kennedy said Monday night, but he still expects the actual enrollment will be within, or just slightly over, the expected projection error of one percent.

Dr. Kennedy said today he could not attribute the higher enrollment figures to any one reason as he has not had time to analyze the figures completely yet.

The newest enrollment count as of Monday was 9,077 for all the Manchester public schools which is 240 students fewer than a year ago.

The board, however, had projected that there would be 270 fewer students as of Oct. 1, the date for official enrollment figures, and that projection has already been exceeded because at least 40 more students are expected to enroll by Oct. 1, Kennedy said. Most of those students are additional students at the level where students sometimes take their time in deciding to come back to school or return to public school after trying other non-public schools, officials said.

Since the first day of school last Wednesday, 36 students have already been added to the enrollment figures.

Kennedy said the only elementary school which caught up with school administrators by surprise the first week was Buckley, where an additional bus run was added. There were more children than expected who moved into new housing in that area over the summer, Kennedy said.

Part of Buckley's increase is also attributed to the overflow of students from the closed Green School. Enrollment at the new Highland Park schools is significantly higher this fall for the same reason.

In other opening school information given to the school board Monday, Kennedy said the schools are now fully staffed except for three positions: a second elementary school teacher for the gifted students, an industrial arts teacher at Bennett Junior High and a COEP (Cooperative Occupational Education Program) position at Manchester High School.

Budget Guidelines presented by the Board of Education budget also began Monday night with a presentation of a budget calendar and budget guidelines by Kennedy.

Some of the basic assumptions Kennedy included in the guidelines were that certified personnel turnover will remain relatively low and well-qualified applicants will be readily available for most programs, and enrollments will decline by about 3 to 4 percent at the elementary level and 2 to 3 percent at the secondary level.

One of the assumptions also stated: "Changing times with different needs will cause the school system, especially the high school, to continue to examine its role and how it should change so as to better accommodate student and societal needs."

Kennedy also included an assumption that the desire for public involvement and participation in the budgetmaking process will continue to grow and the PTA Budget Study Committee will participate fully in budget development.

Other changes and increased costs will be expected because of state, local and federal mandates, Kennedy said.

Kennedy also listed four constraints which may affect the budget considerations. Those include state and federal laws, such as the mandate to make school buildings barrier free for the handicapped within the next three years, fixed costs coupled with inflation limiting the amount of discretionary funds, low staff turnover, resulting in higher average salaries, and enrollment decline, causing consideration of different organizational patterns and definite use of staff resources.

Personnel actions Monday night included acceptance of the retirement of L. Donald Brooks, guidance counselor at Manchester High School for 18 years as of Jan. 31, 1979; and the appointments of Laura M. Cancelliere as a one-fifth time teacher at the Regional Occupational Training Center and Carol D. White to Ralph D. Decker and Deborah S. # Area Pupil-Staff Ratios Close to State Average Schools in most area towns are close to the state average pupil-staff ratio released by the Connecticut Expenditures Council (CPEC), an independent tax research group in Hartford.

The ratios range from 13.1 in Regional District 8 (RHAM) to 22.2 in Andover where there are only 13 professional staff members for 275 students. All the statistics released by CPEC are for the 1977-78 school year. The staff figures include teachers and support staff, but not administrators/staff.

CPEC statistics show that the pupil/staff ratio in Connecticut has dropped from 20.2 a decade ago. The pupil/staff ratio for other area towns include the following: • Bolton: $12,150, 32.3, 66.1. • Coventry: $12,800, 31.8, 48.5. • East Hartford: $15,157, 37.5, 66.3. • Ellington: $13,433, 34.8, 69.5. • Glastonbury: $13,450, 33.3, 65.4. • Hebron: $11,350, 32, 43.8. • Manchester: $14,905, 38.9, 52.9. • South Windsor: $13,683, 33.6, 74.5. • Tolland: $12,223, 31.5, percentage not reported.

167, Hebron, 19.8, Manchester 17.8, South Windsor, 14.8, Tolland, 18.3 and Vernon 15.4.

Other CPEC statistics for all school districts included median salary, median age and percentage of staff with masters degrees. Those statistics, in that order for area towns include the following: • Andover: $10,900, age 34, 46.2 percent. • Bolton: $12,150, 32.3, 66.1. • Coventry: $12,800, 31.8, 48.5. • East Hartford: $15,157, 37.5, 66.3. • Ellington: $13,433, 34.8, 69.5. • Glastonbury: $13,450, 33.3, 65.4. • Hebron: $11,350, 32, 43.8. • Manchester: $14,905, 38.9, 52.9. • South Windsor: $13,683, 33.6, 74.5. • Tolland: $12,223, 31.5, percentage not reported.

• Vernon: $12,347, 34.2, 47.9. • Regional District 9: $12,456, 30.9, 70.8.

The state averages are $14,609 median salary, 35.1 median age and 62.5 percent with a master's degree. The statewide ranges in median salary were $10,418 in Canterbury to $20,971 in Westport.

The CPEC concluded that the towns with low pupil/staff ratios and higher salaries tend to have higher per pupil costs, because well over half of local school budgets go to pay for instructional staff.

The drop in pupil/staff ratios appear to be following the nationwide trend, with Connecticut's ratios slightly lower. Today's teachers and support staff have one-third fewer pupils than they had in the 1940's, the statistics show.

New Hope Girls Will Slug Bag To Purge Anger

The 40-pound punching bag recently donated by the Manchester Lions Club to New Hope Manor, will provide more than a means of physical activity for the resident teen-age girls. The bag will withstand all the vigorous punches and lunges that the girls will give it in an effort to get rid of pent-up emotions and anger, according to Jerome Webber, clinical director at New Hope Manor, a drug and alcohol rehabilitation center.

The idea of the punching bag came from the girls themselves, Webber said. When the Manchester Lions Club approached Webber for suggestions on donating something to the Manor, the punching bag was at the top of the list. Webber said the idea of getting the girls to outwardly express their

String Music Program 'Exciting' Orfitelli Tells School Board

Michael Orfitelli, supervisor of the Manchester schools' music programs, described the first year of the elementary string instrument program as "excitement plus" in a report to the Board of Education Monday night. Since the new program was initiated last November, Orfitelli said he has seen the community involvement in the program "forging ahead" and he expects an even greater turnout as the program reorganizes this fall.

The program started when 40 to 45 violins, four violas, 10 cello and three string basses and "other assorted instruments which cannot be described, Orfitelli said, because of their condition, were salvaged from years of storage in school basements. Orfitelli said the repairs to the instruments cost $1,250 last year and an additional $700 has been spent in this year's budget. Supplies have cost $200 for a total expenditure of $2,200 on the new music program.

Although the beginning of the new string program stressed the elementary level, from Grades 4 to 6, Orfitelli said, a commitment has been made to continue grade instruction for seventh grade students who started in the program last year. The music staff is also considering ways in which a string instrument program can be implemented at the high school level. One way may be through giving school credit to students who play in the Manchester Civic Orchestra.

Court Orders Rehabilitation For Man Who Locked Up Child

EAST HARTFORD — Charges against a Manchester man who locked his six-month old son in a car during 86-degree heat last month were changed Monday from risk of injury to a minor to cruelty to persons.

Superior Court Judge William S. Ewing said in the case of Milton Earlington, 25, of Spruce St. in Manchester six months of accelerated rehabilitation. This means he has no previous criminal record and he must maintain his clean record for a period of six months. If he does, the case will then be dismissed.

Earlington was charged Aug. 29 by East Hartford police after he left his son, Michael, in the car with the doors locked and the windows closed.

The spokesman said an elderly woman passenger suffered a broken arm and two crewmen suffered sprained limbs.

The employee, who asked not to be identified, said the storm damaged

Manchester Town Manager Robert Weiss is one of six persons who has volunteered to serve on a suburban task force that will oversee the City of Hartford's operation of the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA).

The task force was recommended as part of the organization to run the CETA program. The program previously was run through Hartford, but a $1.5 million deficit led to a revamping of CETA's operation.

Council of Governments office said today that Weiss and five others from suburban towns have volunteered to serve on the CETA task force. CROG is seeking a seventh person, someone in a finance position, to serve on the task force. Russell said that letters have been sent to all towns seeking such a person.

If you are a Democrat, you should be voting today to nominate your party's candidate for governor.
If you are a Republican and live in the four voting districts that make up Assembly District 12, you should be voting today to nominate your party's candidate for that Assembly District race.

Capital Fare

By ANDREW TULLY
WASHINGTON - Back at the salt mine after a brief holiday, I discovered under the usual pile of bills a copy of the Republican National Committee's journal, Communique, containing at least one article that indeed did make common sense.
The piece is entitled "If Not The Best, At Least Not The Worst," and its author is Laurence Silberman, a lawyer and former undersecretary of labor, deputy attorney general, and ambassador to Yugoslavia. Silberman offers a workable idea for reducing the size of Big Government, or at least forcing it to be more competent.
Silberman's proposal has the merit of simplicity in the complex world of Washington. He recommends legislation that would oblige the president once a year to rank programs within each department in accordance with their relative effectiveness as compared to other programs in the same department.

Please stay with this; if I can understand it anybody can. And, as Silberman points out, his proposal would not produce just another ruddy government report. He notes that it "has the ingredient that commands attention in Washington - winners and losers" - and thus would attract wide media attention.
Silberman suggests three mandatory sub-criteria to help judge a program's degree of success:
"Coherence of statutory objectives, design of the program, and quality of management." That's how private enterprise judges its workers, for the chairman of the board to typewriter ribbon analysts.
Under the plan, the Office of Management and Budget would make a part of the report that would earmark those programs that have contradictory aims and thus work against each other. And the OMB director would be called upon to propose elimination of any programs he believed should be put out of their misery.

"A Disaster"
Most Republican "technicians" - the nuts-and-bolts men on national, state and local committees - wish Richard Nixon would disappear before the 1980 presidential campaign.
A hush-hush check by the GOP National Committee showed that most of the technicians nationwide wanted Nixon to become politically active again. Most of the others said the former president might be helpful in certain rigidly conservative regions.
RNC Chairman White is reported to have told aides that Nixon's emergence in the public print and electronic media "is a disaster."

A Familiar Latin Story

by DON GRAFF
Trujillo, Batista, Somoza.
What's in a name?
In these, and a number of others which similarly have strong-armed their way into power over the years, it's a case of the continuing miseries of much of Latin America.
Most of the hemisphere to the south was not too many years behind the United States.
Authoritarian regimes are the rule, either military juntas or petty dynasties in cases where tyranny happens to run in families. Government by repression is the practice. And revolution is the consequence, with the usual result being to begin the cycle over again. Out with the old strongmen and in with the new.
The American connection must also be noted. In its traditional manifestations - economic domination, support of the status quo and occasional intervention with marines - it hasn't represented a particularly maturing influence.
There are many common denominators to the situations of a Batista in Cuba, a Trujillo in the Dominican Republic, a Ubico in Guatemala, a Somoza in Nicaragua. Predictability is not the least of them.
All wrote the scripts for their own downfalls. Dissent is suppressed, liberalization rejected, channels of peaceful change blocked until there remains only one means of resolving national tensions: violent upheaval.
After him the Marxist deluge. Somoza warns, the visible opposition, however, would appear to suggest otherwise. It derives its leadership and momentum from the educated elite and the business community. But if Somoza should turn out to be correct and Nicaragua becomes another Cuba, he will have done nothing himself to forestall such an outcome.
Poet-philosopher George Santayana may not have had Latin America specifically in mind in delivering a much-quoted observation. But there is no more apt summing up of most of the region's political progress.
"Those who cannot remember the past are condemned to repeat it."

Bracing For New TV Season

By LEE RODERICK
The Herald's Washington Correspondent
WASHINGTON - "The real answer to controlling TV in the home is for families to become electives rather than addicts, in their viewing habits; that is, to carefully select what they watch, rather than watching whatever comes on."
That advice, compliments of the Rev. Morton A. Hill, head of the national citizens group Morality in Media, is timely as America's families brace for the start of the new television season.
"Families can do the selection in various ways," suggested Hill in a telephone interview from his New York office.
"Parents can get together at the first of the week with a TV listing and decide what is coming up that is suitable for their intellectual, spiritual, and family life.
"Some families then post the list as a reminder to members. Many newspapers and other publications also give thumbnail sketches of program plots to help viewers know what they're in for."
What viewers are "in for" this fall, according to early evidence, is more programs with a high sexual content - the so-called "figgers" - but possibly less violence on the tube.
CBS already has introduced its "Flying High" series to compete with ABC's "Charlie's Angels." The first show, about three stewardesses, was quickly blasted by the president of the 18,000-member Association of

Betty's notebook

By Betty Ryder

Well, I finally got to see old blue eyes (Francis Albert Sinatra) last week and he gave a great performance.

The acoustics in the Hartford Jai-Alai are not exactly the best for a concert, but they again I guess the Jai-Alai players don't have to speak, it's their actions that count.

Frank, sipped a little vodka from a shot glass midway in his concert, chatted about the presidents who had married off their daughters while in office (one he referred to as a "barracuda" — the daughter, that is) and spoke affectionately about his pals "old red eyes" (Dean Martin) and "old one-eye" (Sammy Davis).

He presented a new style to his songs adding a little soft shoe shuffle and more hand gestures than I'm used to seeing. At the Old State Theatre in Hartford, he had all he could do to hang onto the mike, so this was an improvement.

I had hoped he'd sing such tunes as "Saturday Night is the Loneliest Night of the Week," and "That Old Black Magic," but he didn't. Although he hit upon some memorable numbers such as "The Lady is a Tramp," and he recreated his role of Nathan Detroit in "Guys and Dolls."

The security at the Jai-Alai complex was TIGHT as I'd read it would be, but it was more than I expected.

A young man with a camera walked down toward the stage during one of Frankie's numbers, and before he got 20 feet from the stage, I saw a blond-headed man zip across the first row, place his hands on the cameraman's chest and push him back about 10 rows.

Women fans were escorted to the stage bearing flowers, photographs and bottles of liquor, and the old pro was gracious, but brief, in his acknowledgement of the gifts.

I didn't see him when he left the parking lot, but some who had left before his last song "America, the Beautiful" said he zoomed off in a Cadillac with a police escort heading for Bradley Field and his private plane.

Oh, I'm glad I saw him. Well, maybe SAW is the wrong word to use. Let's say I saw a figure from my series 400 seat and heard a voice I had heard before. Little did I know 325 tickets meant you would have to settle for hearing.

But, it was a happening and I was glad to be a part of it. After all, there aren't too many of the old-timers around anymore. No comment, please.

Pop Corn Balls

Received the darnest gadget in the mail the other day and until I discovered the package also contained two cans of popcorn, I couldn't begin to figure out what it was.

It was in two parts, two red plastic pieces which fit together to form a ball with a handle on each one actually resembling a top.

Reading the literature accompanying it, I was informed that it was a Pop Corn Ball Maker from Jolly Time. Can you believe it? I always used my mitts, but this certainly would be less sticky.

Anyway, I passed it on to a co-worker who has a young daughter she said would be delighted to make pop corn balls.

Come Christmas time I hope to be munching on a perfectly shaped, caramel popcorn ball.

Shaw-Diggs

DeAnn Diggs of East Hartford and Lt. Thomas R. Shaw, USMC, were married Sept. 9 at South Congregational Church in East Hartford.

The bride is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Eugene A. Diggs of East Hartford. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert T. Shaw of Fairfax, Va.

The Rev. Gordon Bates of South Congregational Church officiated at the double-ring ceremony. A program of wedding music was presented by Richard Sterner of East Hartford, organist.

Education Board Hears Push for Driving Class

By CHARLIE MAYNARD

EAST HARTFORD—As they promised, parents, students and teachers appeared before the Board of Education Monday night asking that driver education be reinstated at both East Hartford and Penney High School.

About 60 persons attended in support of the program, with nearly half of them speaking, and they were spearheaded by Phyllis Cassidy and Renette Chase of Sisson St. The two women presented statements for reinstatement and a stack of petitions with more than 2,000 signatures.

The school board voted to eliminate the program from both high schools in June because of budget constraints. The cut generated a savings of $23,000, primarily in the two teachers' salaries.

Mrs. Cassidy, who drives a school van each morning, said driver training benefits everyone because it leads to fewer accidents.

"It's much too important to drop," she said. "All of us benefit from driver education makes for safer driving on the road. This is proven by statistics from insurance companies and the town prosecutor giving their support for the reinstatement."

Mrs. Chase said some students were unable to drive after school because of activities or they could not take driver's training from a commercial driving school. She also added that it costs too much for some people to take the outside driving course.

East Hartford High School Principal John Callahan also supported the program, saying it was the most popular course for the past 10 years at the high school. He said more than 300 students take it each year at East Hartford High and 99 percent of the students pass the course.

Mrs. Cassidy, a licensed commercial driver instructor from East Hartford, spoke to defend the private schools. She said such a school was available in East Hartford, that prices were not exorbitant, and that there were ways for people to finance such a private course.

She also said the parents speaking to the board were a small minority compared to the taxpayers and senior citizens who were paying for school instruction and were not directly affected by the training of students.

Board Chairman Larry DePonte allowed the people to speak to get as much input as possible. But he could not see the program reinstated at the high school this year. He said the issue would be brought up at other meetings but he did urge the other members to ponder the problem.

School Times Changed For Barnes, O'Connell

EAST HARTFORD—Acquiescing to parents' demands, the school administration has changed the opening and dismissal times at the Barnes and O'Connell schools to keep a 20-minute dismissal time between the two schools.

Barnes students, in kindergarten through Grade 5, will begin classes at 8:40 and be dismissed at 3 p.m. The older O'Connell students will begin at 9 a.m. and finish at 3:30.

The administration had shifted the schedule for Barnes from 9:05 to 3:25 and for O'Connell from 8:58 to 3:25.

Parents protested the moves, claiming there wasn't enough time between the two dismissals. Both groups of students were on the playground at the same time and some of the older students were harassing the Barnes children.

Mrs. Dorothy Sellman, a spokesman for the group, said that if the Barnes students were dismissed 20 minutes earlier than the O'Connell students, they would be off the playground by the time the older children got out.

Soccer Program Ready

EAST HARTFORD—Parks and Recreation officials are making some last-minute adjustments to complete a couple of rosters for their first-year soccer program for youths in Grades 4 through 8.

But, otherwise, the program is ready for its opening, which is scheduled for Sunday, Sept. 17, at the town's four soccer fields—Burnside, Nicholson, Penney and Gorman.

Bret Balet, the director of parks and recreation, said rosters were closed in June because they were filled.

However, over the summer some of the youths who signed up either changed their minds or forgot to come out for the teams.

As a result, a couple of teams "are shy a couple of players," Balet said. Parks and Recreation officials have done some juggling of rosters, shifting some youths from crowded rosters to other teams in the same geographical area.

Balet said if rosters are not filled by the end of the week, there are two options. One is to fold the few teams that are short of players and put the remaining players on other teams.

A second option is to re-open registration in the schools. Every team has a coach and there are enough adult volunteers to get the program off the ground.

"We're always looking for more adult volunteers to help us with coaching and officiating," Balet said. "But on the whole, we're very pleased with the first-year response to this new program."

The 16-team league is divided into two eight-team divisions. Games are played on Sundays and the schedule runs through Oct. 29.

Campaign Schedule Set

EAST HARTFORD—The two candidates for the Third District State Senate seat have planned appearances during the next two weeks.

Esther B. Clarke, Republican minority leader of the Town Council, is scheduled to appear on Wednesday, Sept. 20, at 8 p.m. at the Anna Norris School in the teacher's lounge between 7:30 and 9 p.m.

Marcella Fahey, Democratic candidate for the Third District seat, is scheduled to appear at the Democratic Women's Club meeting at the Senior Citizen's Center, 30 Remington Road, on Wednesday, Sept. 13, at 8 p.m.

Friday, Sept. 15, through Sunday, Sept. 17, supporters of Mrs. Fahey will hold a tag sale at 218 Maple St. from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

On Saturday, from 1 to 4 p.m., Mrs. Fahey will lead a campaign kick-off parade beginning at the Town Hall at 337 Main St., East Hartford.

The route will go south to Maple Street, back to Forbes Street, to Hills Street, to Oak Street, to Forest Street, back to Forbes Street. The route will continue west on Brewer Street to Main Street.

It will move north to Burnside Avenue and go to the Manchester Parkade, to West Center Street, to Main Street. The parade will drive south to Hartford Road, to Spencer Street and back to Forbes Street. East Hartford. It will conclude by taking Burnside Avenue to Wickham Park where there will be brief speeches.

Educators Move Slowly On Making Budget Cuts

By CHARLIE MAYNARD

EAST HARTFORD—The Board of Education is adopting a go-slow policy with regards to budget cuts in other areas to make up for a deficit in the special education account.

Nearly all members agreed with Chairman Larry DePonte who advocated going back to the Town Council at the end of this month with additional information about the deficit and get some commitment from the council about underwriting the shortfall. Board members were hesitant about applying the tax to other school programs because of the negative impact on the typical student's education.

The board is faced with a potential deficit of $24,000 because of a state mandate to provide an appropriate education for mentally and physically handicapped students. Some board members attended last Thursday's Town Council meeting and asked for a supplemental appropriation to cover the deficit.

At the meeting, DePonte said it costs an average of $4,000 per child if the student is placed in an institution outside the district because the local school can't provide a suitable education.

The board thought going back to the council was a good idea, although board member Richard Daley was concerned about a financing a program which had unclear guidelines.

"In no other area of our $21 million budget are we operating with such a minimum criteria of 156 spaces. I've been trying to get this on the agenda. I've been trying to say that we shouldn't recommend more money until we get that definition. I thought in a month we could come up with a definition. But since we don't, we may have legal action taken."

The vague guidelines and the effect of financing the special education on the typical student's education was his main concern, he said.

Chairman Larry DePonte said, "I share all your concerns and I agree with you, Dick. But the courts will uphold any suit initiated against the board if we do not adhere to the regulations at this time."

Another board member, Joyce

Ruggles, said the laws were not specific about who qualifies as a special student, but said the proper course of action was in the courts. She said the board could initiate a suit to get a clearer definition.

Eugene A. Diggs, superintendent of schools, said the school district has had court action pending for nearly a year. One student was determined to have a special need and was placed despite administration objections. The suit was initiated to get a clearer definition on just what a special student is.

New Office Building Gets First Approval

EAST HARTFORD—The Redevelopment Agency has given its preliminary approval to an application for a four-story, 43,000 square foot office building east of Founders Plaza on Tract 200.

Frederick A. Osmer and John Everett of Billings and Co., a subsidiary of Avest Group Inc., said the office building would be the first of its kind in the area.

Plans call for 181 parking spaces, which would meet the agency's minimum criteria of 156 spaces. It would not, however, meet the town's parking regulations, which call for a minimum of 216 parking spaces for a building of this type.

"Everts said he will seek a variance at the Sept. 28 meeting of the Zoning Board of Appeals to permit the parking plan to remain intact.

The proposed structure, designed by architect Don Hammerberg of Farmington, will cost an estimated $2 million plus. It would be constructed with a steel frame, aluminum and glass exterior.

The first floor would be slightly indented and the top three floors would overhang. It would be occupied by several tenants.

Everetts and Osmer still must return to next month's agency meeting with more detailed drawings of the building, which the agency must review.

In other business, the agency denied a request from Judy Ouellet, who owns a management company for office space, for permission to display a rotating sign at 109 Pitkin St.

Agency requirements bar moving or flashing signs as conditions for sale of agency land.

Agency members said the sign would set a bad precedent and would do an injustice to the sign regulations.

Mr. Ouellet can still display the sign, but it may not be rotated. In addition, the agency approved parking modifications for the Connecticut Bank and Trust Co. parking lot near 99 Founders Plaza.

The plans, which the agency approved for this type, accommodate a heavy volume of cars during overlaps in shifts at the building.

Stan Babiarz, a representative from Founders Plaza, said the parking changes would mean a loss of one tree in the area. But, he said four new trees would be planted for a net gain of three trees.

Damage Award
HARTFORD (UPI) — Superior Court Judge Brian E. O'Neill has awarded $82,500 in damages to the estate of a University of Hartford student killed in a one-car crash more than four years ago.

The award went Monday to the estate of Philip W. Olinisky of Hewlett, N.Y. The defendants were Steven L. Peinemann, a fellow student killed while driving the car, and his father Aaron Peinemann.

Principal Sees Bright Future for Penney High

By CHRIS BLAKE
Herald Reporter

EAST HARTFORD — It was Abraham Lincoln who uttered the historic phrase, "A house divided cannot stand."

However, if Abe were alive today, he could never prove it by Donald Cramer, Penney High School's principal.

Penney High, the school the town built in the last 1950s and early 1960s and opened in 1962, entered its 17th year last week.

Its brief history has been filled with change and confusion, but Cramer sees a new era of stability ahead. He said the school is more united and manageable because of a plan he instituted which divides students into three houses.

Skyrocketing Enrollments
Penney High was built to service residents of the south end of town, whose children previously attended the town's only high school, East Hartford High on Burnside Avenue.

However, the post-World War II baby boom and the long distance to EHS for students in newer residential areas in the south end made the building of Penney High a necessity.

When Penney opened, the town thought it had addressed the problem of skyrocketing enrollments. But it would not go of hand again.

In the early 1970s, Penney High had one of the highest enrollments of any high school in the state. The high school would have to be enlarged physically, but meanwhile the enrollment problem forced an unpopular decision of the school board to put the school on double sessions.

Double sessions lasted from 1972 through 1974. During that time, the physical facilities were greatly expanded and a new library and swimming pool were added.

Now, the enrollment problems have ebbed. Cramer expects a slight decrease in enrollment this year with the heaviest figures in the lower grades.

The school is expected to enroll 1,789 students. The breakdown is: 530 freshmen, 472 sophomores, 413 juniors and 374 seniors.

Last year's graduating class numbered 398.

Cramer's House Plan
Although enrollments are declining, Penney High is still a large high school.

One of the reasons it can maintain a "small school atmosphere," Cramer said, is the house plan which he implemented after taking over as principal in 1974.

Penney High is divided into three houses for administrative, maintenance and guidance purposes.

Each house is its own unit and has its own principal, vice principal, two counselors, department chairmen, teachers and students.

The objective of the plan is "to create a program that will generate direct involvement and interaction by everybody in the operation of our school."

After the annual spring sweeping, the town rented a portable screening machine to separate the dirt from the other debris. It was able to reclaim 80 percent of the sand it used.

"We're going to see how it works out this year," Mulligan said. "Right now, it's a one-shot deal."

Whether the town can use the sand more than two years depends on the quality of the sand after this winter.

Mulligan said little specks called "fines" can make the sand unusable because they absorb water and make the sand stick together so it cannot be spread.

But, he said the sand looks usable this winter.

After the annual spring sweeping, the town rented a portable screening machine to separate the dirt from the other debris. It was able to reclaim 80 percent of the sand it used.

school and most particularly in the day-to-day lives of our students."

He stressed that the houses are not academic divisions, although house academic departments are placed in each house.

House A is the smallest house with 410 students. It encompasses an area which includes part of its first floor of the school, which is staff responsible for maintaining.

In fact, each house is responsible for maintaining its assigned area.

House B is larger in terms of physical area than House A. It has 665 students and an area which includes a large portion of the first floor and the language department on the second floor.

House C has 664 students and is housed on the second floor. Its territory includes the school's media center and library.

Students placement in houses is purely alphabetical. Placement means that a student will be assigned to one of the guidance counselors in that particular house.

But, it does not mean students will attend classes only in that house.

As Cramer stresses, it is not an attempt to involve everyone in the day-to-day operation of school and to improve staff-student relationships through increased contact.

Every house has a monthly meeting where items such as administration, control of students, student behavior modification and assistance and student programming and planning are regularly discussed.

Weekly meetings of the administrative team deal with varying house concerns.

Each house also has a student referral process from teachers in the house to house administration. Teachers who have students with conduct problems or academic deficiencies can notify the proper administrator in the student's house.

Is the house system working? Cramer thinks so.

His biggest goal when he came to Penney High in 1974 was to bring stability after a period of upheaval.

The house plan has aided this goal tremendously, he said.

"My number one goal has been achieved," he said. "That goal was to take Penney High from a most difficult period of renovation and physical upheaval to one which now has more cohesive and stable structure, with a faculty that is truly working together to give students a meaningful education for four years."

Cramer credits the willingness of the faculty to follow through on the house plan with much of its success.

"All of this is due, in no small measure, to the willingness of the staff to get behind me and support my ideas," he said.

Programs at Penney
The house plan is just one feature of Penney High. The school's academic curriculum is another feature.

Not every student who goes to Penney High is college-bound and the school administration realizes this.

Last June, just over half of the graduating class continued their education in some form and only 28 percent continued at four-year colleges.

With this in mind, there are four separate curricula for students at Penney High.

For the students who plan to go directly into technical or industrial training, there is the Cooperative Work Experience Curriculum. It provides a general and vocational education for both boys and girls.

The Industrial Park plans prepared by Manchester and submitted to us for our approval include substantial provisions for the protection of residents in the Manchester Court Drive area," said Mayor Calfryn.

"Although these plans protect the area, our staff has raised considerable concern over the impact these changes, particularly the closing of Burnham Street, will have in redirecting traffic through our residential area."

"In response to these concerns, the town has hired a traffic consultant to study the possible effects of the proposed changes will have on our town," said Mrs. Calfryn.

"I can assure the citizens of South Windsor that I encourage the council to proceed with legal action if necessary to protect our interests."

Mayor Calfryn said the council will continue to assess the situation as additional information becomes available.

The plan was rejected by the commission and Verdone was told to make permanent arrangements to correct the violation.

Verdone has been given 30 days to correct the situation or be subject to legal action by the town.

Enrollment Figures
The enrollment figures for Bolton schools for the current year show an increase in students at Bolton High School and a decrease at Bolton Elementary Center School.

At the elementary center school there are 510 students currently enrolled compared to 530 in June.

In June the enrollment figures were: Grade 8, 71 students; Grade 7, 74; Grade 6, 67; Grade 11, 42; Grade 12, 58. The current enrollment figures are: Grade 7, 70; Grade 10, 75; Grade 11, 69; Grade 12, 39.

Clerk's Conference
Bolton Town Clerk Catherine Leiner and Andover Town Clerk Ruth Anderson attended a two-day town clerk's conference in New Haven Thursday and Friday. Both ladies will return to their respective offices Monday.

plans for students with definite plans for college. It is designed to give them the minimum requirements for college admission and the varying requirements which different colleges have set for admission.

A fourth category is Special Programs. This includes several unique approaches which Cramer has implemented.

One is the Pre-Apprenticeship Program, which is starting its third year. It is designed for students with average ability who do not want to go to college. It provides them with a prescribed program consisting of English, mathematics, social science, career exploration, drafting and other shop experiences.

The school administration has set a maximum enrollment of 20 students in each Pre-Apprenticeship Program. Most of these students hope to qualify for apprenticeship programs when they are graduated from high school.

The School Within A School (SWIS) Program also falls under the umbrella of Special Programs. SWIS is a small school at Bolton atmosphere for about 40 freshmen who may have difficulty adjusting to high school.

Students in the SWIS program take the usual courses, but these are supplemented by a program in values clarification.

Close contact with teachers and counselors is sought in the SWIS program.

The SWIS program is a non-departmentalized approach to academic programs for students who show a lot of ability but seem to be immature," he said.

Facilities "among the best" Penney High is the newest high school in town and it is also the largest both in enrollment and in terms of its physical plant.

Penney High has 96 general classrooms, four art rooms, three music rooms, two home-making rooms, six industrial arts rooms, two media gyms, one small gym and a Media Center and Library.

"Penney is one of the finest schools anywhere in New England when it comes to facilities," Cramer said. "And it is well maintained and kept clean."

This is not to say there are not problems maintaining a building as large as Penney is, he added.

When he talks about the physical plant, Cramer is quick to add, "We're strong in facilities, but we think we also have a good staff."

"We have a staff which promotes real initiative to educate kids with a certain amount of commitment to innovation and ideas," he said.

The faculty numbers 117 and the average faculty member has a masters degree or better.

Cramer says a good teacher must have "a true interest in students with an understanding of that relationship between the working with kids and teaching academic subjects."

"That's the first thing I look for. I also look at the academic transcript and the professional references of prospective teachers," he said.

"To do well as a teacher, I believe a person must have been a good student," he said.

When hiring faculty, Cramer makes recommendations to Eugene Diggs, the superintendent of schools. Diggs has the ultimate say on who is hired.

Cramer said every position has been filled for this year and the faculty is ready to go as Penney starts anew in its 17th year.

Statistics show that that figure has been reduced. There were four accidents in May, three with injuries and seven accidents in June, three with injuries.

In August there were six accidents, only one with an injury.

Kalkus said the north sector police will continue to operate radar and conduct spot checks on Route 6.

He said during August a traffic survey was conducted and it showed the average speed for that section of Route 6 was between 45 and 50 miles per hour. The figures are below the posted speed limits.

Kalkus said the lower speed enforcement drivers more reaction time and drops the potential for injuries.

Program Reduces Accidents

BOLTON — The selective enforcement program that began May 1 has proven successful in reducing accidents on Route 6 through Bolton and Andover, according to Anthony Kalkus, north sector police supervisor.

Kalkus said there were an average of 13 accidents per month on that section of the highway at the beginning of the year.

Statistics show that that figure has been reduced. There were four accidents in May, three with injuries and seven accidents in June, three with injuries.

New Planner Arrives

VERNON — George H. Russell starts his duties as town planner Monday. He replaces John Loranger who resigned last summer.

Russell comes to Vernon from Bowling Green, Ohio, where he was happy to be caught in traffic jams after having to drive on the flatlands of the mid-west.

He has a master's degree in city planning and has done post graduate work in public administration.

While with the planning department in Bowling Green, which is a college town, he also had considerable experience in preparing federal grant applications and long-range city planning.

He also taught planning and public administration courses at the university there.

His salary to start will be $17,500. Russell has moved to Vernon and said he is already impressed with the town.

He said he and his wife had commuted several times from Boston while searching for an apartment in Vernon and that they were almost registered to be back in the city of Boston, Mass. and he and his wife are very happy to be back in the city of Vernon.

Russell said that one of his first projects will be to work on a Bureau of Outdoor Recreation grant which will soon expire. He will also be working on the housing rehabilitation program, plans for a second industrial park and a capital improvements plan which Loranger started.

Suspect Fire Damages Empty House in Bolton

BOLTON — The house on Route 4A in Bolton, known as the old McKinney house, was damaged by fire that started about 10 o'clock Monday night. Preuss said the call came in shortly after 10 p.m. and the fire was knocked down shortly after. He said structural damage was minimal but there was a lot of smoke damage and the firemen remained at the scene cleaning up and investigating until about 1 a.m. today. Preuss said the house hasn't been occupied for some time. Through the Tolland County Mutual Aid service the Andover and North Coventry fire departments assisted the Bolton department and the Vernon department was on stand-by.

Town Fails To Post Notice, Delays Hearing on Screening

The Town of Manchester's Housing Code Enforcement Committee postponed today its scheduled meeting because of a complaint that it failed to properly publicize the meeting. The committee is expected to vote on an appeal of a ruling by the Health Department that certain apartment owners install screens on doors and cellar windows. Ben Rubin of 124 Highland St., who has been active in the fight to have screens installed, sent a letter to Francis Conti, chairman of the committee, protesting the lack of proper notification. The committee had been scheduled to meet today at 2 p.m. in the

Citizen Says Giles Lied About Blockage in Culvert

By JUNE TOMPKINS Herald Reporter Carlo DiPace of 46 Campmeeting Road verbally complained to Town Manager Robert Weiss today charging Jay Giles, public works director, with lying in the wake of Monday night's hearing at the Planning and Zoning Commission hearing on a proposed drainage installation on Carter Street. DiPace maintains that Giles knew the culvert was blocked because about three months ago, when DiPace asked Giles to clear the culvert blockage, Giles said he had cleared it out three times already, but that Dion had filled it in afterward each time, according to DiPace. DiPace added that Giles said he wouldn't do anything further until town counsel had ruled on the legality of diverting the flow of drainage from the culvert in question. DiPace said he filed a complaint with Town Counsel David Barry, and about a week ago, Barry told DiPace that because of a heavy caseload, and because the culvert complaint was low on the priority list, he hadn't been able to get to it, but that he would discuss it with Weiss. DiPace said he told Barry that if the town doesn't do something to clear the culvert, he will get a writ of mandamus which will force the town to comply. "It's the only alternative I have," DiPace said today that former public works director, John Birchall, had told him that Dion had filled in the culvert drainage with sand. At the hearing, Dion's attorney, Richard C. Woodhouse, denied that DiPace had filed a complaint with Weiss. Road fear that the $20,000 project will divert water from the street to the brook in their back yards. DiPace told the commission that if the culvert can't handle the water flow, the culvert can be widened, according to DOT. Earlier comments had been made that much of the additional drainage was caused by two Bolton developments. But DiPace said that drainage from those developments follows the natural water course in a nearby water shed that flows eventually into Sand Pond. DiPace recommended that the commission consider cleaning out the existing unmaned brook and treat with chemicals to control vegetation. He recommended that the town do a comprehensive study on the drainage system in the area with a Financially Sound

While baseball is looking ahead to expansion, the National Basketball Association will stand pat. Larry O'Brien, the Springfield, Mass., man who now controls the NBA, 1 hoop, told his Boston audience that "there are no provisions for expansion. "I foresee international competition in the future, with Canada and other parts of the world. "The projected attendance this season is 10 million... an enthusiastic O'Brien said. "The NBA is not hurt at the gate by other sports. The league is financially sound with solid franchises. We are so well off we have bonds to our office by 12 percent. While the NBA is in its 33rd season, O'Brien, a onetime prominent lawyer in Washington, is starting his fourth year as commissioner. "Pro basketball a few years ago was at the crossroads," O'Brien said. "We had two leagues fighting, player law suits and many court battles. Those have all been resolved." O'Brien was elated with one recent happening, the signing of a new television contract which will run for four years. "It will bring in substantial increases in revenue for all clubs," the prey said. The NBA man told his listeners that the three-point play will be given a fair try during the preseason exhibition schedule, as well as the use of a third official and a closer look at teams violating the zone defense rule. Double Vision Plagues Evans

BOSTON (UPI) — Dwight Evans, the nonpareil right fielder of the Boston Red Sox, says he's been told he could be plagued by double vision and lack of depth perception for up to one year. Evans has had problems with his eyesight ever since he was beaten by Seattle's Mike Parrott Aug. 28, 1978. Gold Glove winner, acknowledged by many to be the best defensive right fielder in baseball, cannot play the outfield because of dizzy spells brought on by looking up or down. "The doctors told me this could bother me for three weeks to one year," said Evans. "Right now, I just can't see the ball. I look up and I get dizzy. I can't see the ball and I have no depth perception. I can handle line drives all right, but not fly balls. Evans said he can hit because the head is steady. He served as the team's designated hitter Monday night, getting one hit and driving in a run with a sacrifice square. "If I can contribute, and I think I can, I'll help this team," Evans said.

Home Run Touch Back As Red Sox Halt Slump

BOSTON (UPI) — It may have been four days too late, but the extra batting practice finally paid off for Boston Red Sox slugger Jim Rice. Rice belted his 39th and 40th homers of the year Monday night to help the Red Sox snap a four-game losing streak and defeat the Baltimore Orioles 5-4. The win moved the Sox back into first place, one-half game ahead of the idle New York Yankees. Rice took 23 minutes of extra batting practice after Sunday's 7-4 loss to the Yankees after failing to drive in one run in the four-game New York sweep. "I wasn't swinging the bat well and I wanted to do something about it. All I want to do is make contact," said Rice, whose second homer, an eighth inning shot into the centerfield bleachers, was the winning blow. "I think a win like this could keep it around, especially when you beat a Jim Palmer."

The Oriole ace left the game after giving up the first Rice homer in the sixth, complaining of forearm problems. "Palmer had forearm problems. That can be diagnosed two ways—either he has forearm problems or Oriole Manager Earl Weaver," quipped Oriole Manager Earl Weaver. "I think he wanted to come out before then." Baltimore's three-run rally in the eighth chased Boston starter Luis Tiant, with the win going to reliever Bob Stanley, 14-2. Tiant said he was pleased by the team's performance, especially after their miserable series with New York. "We lost four in a row and the way we lost them was embarrassing. But that's over. The guys showed something tonight. They played like champions and that's what we're going to be," Tiant said. Boston Manager Don Zimmer, who refused to start Tiant Sunday against the Yankees, said he was glad the losing streak had ended. "I don't know whether to laugh or cry. We have a one-game winning streak going and we just have to keep winning. I'd love to go into New York Friday with an edge again," Zimmer said. "I knew they'd start hitting sooner or later," said Weaver, whose team left 7 1/2 games off the lead. "I don't look like it was tonight. You can't count on us but it will be hard." The Red Sox set a home attendance record, drawing 25,575 for a season first time in 11 games and a total of 2,057,421, which surpassed the 2,057,421 set last season. The club also played an errorless game, their first time in 11 games and they have failed to commit a miscue. Boston was to start Mike Torrez, 19-9, tonight against Dennis Martinez, 12-1. Dodgers Step Closer Flag on Cey's Homers

NEW YORK (UPI) — While most players stare on the serivings of the San Francisco Giants' pitchers, Ron Cey feeds on them like a Fisherman's Wharf blue plate special. And because of that the Los Angeles Dodgers are another step closer toward locking up their second straight National League West pennant. Cey hit two home runs Monday night and led Los Angeles to a 7-2 triumph over San Francisco, which increased the Dodgers' lead over the Giants in the NL West to five games. The stocky third baseman hit solo homers in the fourth and ninth innings to help hand Blue Blue his eighth loss against 16 victories. "I like hitting in this park (Candlestick)," said Cey. "I just have a good feeling playing here, even though everybody boos me." In the NL's eastern half of the battle for the pennant, Philadelphia had little trouble with Pittsburgh, crushing the Pirates, 10-3, to increase its lead to five games. Pittsburgh grabbed an early 3-1 lead on a solo homer by Dale Berra and a two-run shot by Willie Stargell, but the Phillies broke the game open with a six-run, fifth-inning outburst.

National League

to win their seventh game in their last eight starts. Duke McBride slammed a two-run homer and winning pitcher Steve Carlton singled home a pair of runs in four runs to spark a 16-hit attack by the Cubs. Murcer extended his consecutive hit streak to eight, two shy of the NL record. Braves 7, Padres 2. Gary Matthews had five hits, including his 16th homer, to lead rookie Larry McWilliams to his eighth triumph in nine decisions. Gene Garber got the last two outs to preserve the victory. Today's Games TORONTO (UPI) — John Ziegler, Jr., President of the National Hockey League, said Monday night negotiations are continuing between the league and members of the NHL Officials Association. The NHL opened its annual pre-season camp for its referees and linesmen with 21 officials in attendance but 27 veterans did not participate. "Because negotiations are continuing and because we are hopeful of concluding an agreement in the near future," said Ziegler, "it would be inappropriate to publicly discuss the issues presently under negotiation." The National Hockey League opens its 1978-79 season on October 11.

Dear Abby
By Abigail Van Buren
DEAR ABBY: On November 16, 1977, my wife and I read the following item in your column in the Herald-News in Joliet, Ill.
"Dear Abby:
I've just had the biggest slapdown in my life. My insurance company has allowed the prostheses I bought for the mastectomy I had four years ago.
It's not a case of vanity, or of replacing a piece of female equipment. It's a case of restoring equilibrium. Without proper balance, a woman cannot walk straight. Also, she can't work. At my son's wedding, I was dancing and having a marvelous time, when my sister caught my eye and checked my "bust" (it had worked its way up to my shoulder!).
After that, I phoned my local American Cancer Society to find out where to get a properly fitted prosthesis. Just two days after I had it, my neck and shoulder pain disappeared. I had a good look and looks so natural.
Abby, if you print this, maybe some bright insurance executive will see it and realize such a prosthesis is not simply cosmetic. It's vital to the health of a woman who has had a mastectomy.
St. Louis Woman"

And then they reply:
"DEAR WOMAN:
Here's your letter. Insurance executives? Well, this is what ensued:
My wife, Barbara, who is also my business associate, read to find out if you answer letters for people who want prosthetic devices should be considered a legitimate expense for insurance purposes.
In addition to altering current practice, we were able to be complimented for bringing this matter to the attention of the public.
Very truly yours,
BEN C. HILL, C.L.U.
LEMONY, ILLINOIS

DEAR BEN: Your letter made my day. Thanks for writing.
DEAR ABBY: I really should be calling you "dear" because you let me down twice, but I am giving you another chance. Before I waste another postage stamp on you, I want to find out if you answer letters for people who want prosthetic devices. I wrote you two long letters and you never answered either one of them.
I would also like to know if there is some box number I can write to instead of sending my name to your newspaper here. I live in a small town where everybody knows everybody else, and I have a close land my relative who works at the newspaper, so I'm not about to spill my guts to a stranger.
One more question: Must a letter be signed to make your column?
DEAR PROBLEMS GALORE:
By a stamped, addressed envelope. If you do not send the required stamped envelope, I am not obligated to respond. Letters may be unsigned, but make the return address.
And yes, I do have a Post Office box. It's ABBY: Box 6709, Los Angeles, Calif. 90068.
