

Killian 'Cooling Off'

HARTFORD (UPI) — For the time being, Gov. Ella Grasso will have to get along without the enthusiastic support of the man she demolished in Tuesday's Democratic gubernatorial primary, Lt. Gov. Robert Killian.

But when Killian emerged from the 20-minute closed door meeting at the Capitol he told a throng of reporters that he will need a "cooling off period" and some commitments from Mrs. Grasso on some key issues before he can give her his unconditional backing.

Nominating Plans Studied

HARTFORD (UPI) — Democratic Senate leaders have put their support behind a move to have the 1979 Legislature consider possible changes in Connecticut's nominating procedure for candidates.

Both claimed that the primary challenge Tuesday against Gov. Ella T. Grasso by Lt. Gov. Robert Killian has a healthy effect on a political party.

Postal Mediation Cuts Strike Odds

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A special mediator Friday awarded 500,000 postal workers unlimited cost-of-living increases, a key job security clause for current employees and slightly higher salaries than previously negotiated with the Postal Service.

Postmaster General William Bolger said the arbitrator's decision will make it harder for him to follow his plan to prevent further postal increases for the next 2 1/2 to 3 years, but said it ends "once and for all" any chance of a postal strike.

President Carter had pushed for an anti-inflationary settlement, and Bolger had taken a hard-line stance on the negotiations in hopes of staving off postal rate increases. The negotiated contract was rejected by the postal workers and the five-month dispute was submitted to a novel 15-day mediation process under which Healy turned arbitrator and issued a binding decision when he was unable to bring about a negotiated settlement.

That's Entertainment

By Allen M. Widem

Milton Berle and a handful of other "names" still very much active in entertainment can readily recall the Long Ago, when television, to a surprising degree, was "live." A show went on the air, bluffers and all, and if the personality of the moment had minutes hours on the program had wound down, the anxiety only triggered greater caution for the next time around.

Print media should not seek to toss bricks at glass walls, in effect, the newspapers of this country — something like 60,000,000 copies a day — have their share of copy, and yes! — those page plates better be on the ready! But, still and all, print media, most especially newspapers, will stay atop a story, ride it through to the end. If deadline has come and gone, then, be assured, that lead story will be pursued for a follow-up reportage.

Missionary Knocks Somoza

HARTFORD (UPI) — A Roman Catholic missionary said Friday the government of Nicaragua President Anastasio Somoza inhibits religious freedom by discouraging some citizens from associating with clergymen.

The Rev. Bernard Survio said government agents intimidate the poor into shunning priests and nuns. He said he knew of two nuns working near the Costa Rican border who left Nicaragua "because the people were afraid to talk to them."

back to the festivities. From then on, he toasted with lemonade. "The Russians tend to be wary of Americans at first. They particularly don't like us taking pictures," said the personable young man. "But after that experience I was their comrade and they were less suspicious. This summer's encounters with Russia are viewed here as the worst period of U.S.-Soviet relations since the cold war. One incident, the arresting of International Harvester businessman, Jay Crawford, in Moscow on charges of currency violation scared the group. "We spoke with Jay Crawford just before we left," Garaventa said. "He spoke cynically against the charges made, but very positively about re-establishing ties with Russia." The group heard about his arrest from the Voice of America, the U.S. Government's official radio network, over a short wave radio. "All local news was blocked out," he said. Garaventa said the Soviets "loved" U.S. Ambassador Andrew Young's comment that there are thousands of political prisoners in the United States. "Most Russians don't like President Carter because of his tough stand on human rights," said the Manchester man. "They would often cite Young's remark saying, 'there are political prisoners in your country, too.' "When certain people would warm up to me and trust me and if they weren't happy with the system, they would say 'President Carter's statements have made it rough on the

Organisms in Water Not Major Problem

By GREG PEARSON
Herald Reporter

The Town of Manchester is keeping a close check on its water and any possibly related stomach disorders to ensure that there are no problems with the drinking supply. Recent tests of town water have shown an increase in organisms in the water, but bacterial counts still are within standards set by the federal government, Frank Jodaitis, water and sewer administrator, said. "I really don't think it's going to be any major problem. We're trying to do everything we can do to ensure that no problem develops," he said. Dr. Alice Turek, the town's director of health, has sent a letter to the medical staff at Manchester Memorial Hospital about the matter. She wrote that she has been asked by the state to monitor any increase in gastrointestinal illness that might be related to the water. She asked that the medical staff members contact her if they suspect such a water-related illness. "This information will help the town decide whether to issue a boiling order, even though the water tests may still be inconclusive," Dr. Turek wrote. Jodaitis said that the bacteria counts in water samples have met standards. The organisms that have been found in the water do not appear to be anything that would be harmful. "We're not taking any chances," he said. The town will continue sampling, as well as heavy chlorination of the system and flushing of the water mains to clean them out, he said. "With an unfiltered water supply, that's the only thing you can do," Jodaitis said. He is concerned because the heavy chlorination could lead to some upset stomachs. This could cause some confusion if an upset stomach is reported as water-related. Also, the town's flushing program could be one of the reasons for the increase in organism growth found in water samples, Jodaitis said. When the lines are flushed, some of the growths that have developed and are undisturbed on the sides of the lines are flushed out and would appear in samples. In August 1977, residents of the southwest section of Manchester had to boil their water for more than a week because of high bacterial counts. That problem was corrected but led to increased concern about the town's water supply. The town is in the process of planning for updating of its system, including a full filtering system for water.

Call From Hostages Questioned by FBI

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (UPI) — The FBI said Friday a dangerous fugitive, one of four convicts who staged a desperate escape from Tennessee earlier in the week, might have coerced two elderly hostages into claiming they were free and unharmed in Kentucky. Agent John Kenney said the early morning call to the couple's son "was just too brief" and that convict Ronald Lyons, 32, probably engineered it "to mislead law enforcement authorities."

In northern sections of the state Friday, policemen with bloodhounds searched the Ozark Mountains for some sign of fugitive Larry Chism, 29, who fled into the dense thickets after wrecking a stolen pickup truck. The other two fugitives — George Bonds, 24, and Floyd Brewer, 26 — were captured Thursday. At midmorning the FBI reported the hostages couple — Mr. and Mrs. John King — had been released and was driving back to their home in Woodlawn, Ark. But within an hour agents were expressing doubts about the authenticity of the call. Kenney said it definitely was Mrs. King who made the two-minute phone call to her son, but "it was a very short call." The call was just too brief and her son felt his mother was evasive about their whereabouts," he said. "It didn't make sense to him. He said it sounded like it was still an ordeal for her." "Another thing that bothers us is that the fellow (Lyons) released them with the car and proceeded himself on foot, which doesn't make sense." Kenney said the call could not be traced and there was doubt it even came from Kentucky. Since shooting their way out of a recreational outing Wednesday at the Bowling Alley in Dickson, Tenn., the convicts' dash to freedom and hundreds of miles. The four commandeered a half dozen vehicles, hijacked one plane and took at least eight hostages, including the Kings.

Police Report

Manchester
Four persons were injured, but none seriously, in a two-car accident Friday afternoon in Manchester. The accident occurred just before 2:30 at the intersection of Spencer Street and Channing Drive, police said. The operator of one of the vehicles, Alice E. Burns, 63, of 282 Pascal Drive, was treated at Manchester Memorial Hospital and released. The three persons in the other vehicle received only minor injuries, police said. They are Linda A. Major, 20, of Naugatuck and two youngsters, Jacqueline M. Major and Christopher Major. Manchester Police Friday charged two town residents with a theft that occurred at 140 Spruce St. The theft of a guitar and money from the residence was reported Friday afternoon, police said. Friday night police arrested two men in connection with the theft. Robert Godfrey, 25, of 609 Main St. and Armand Marques, 43, of 138 Birch St. were charged with third-degree larceny and third-degree burglary, police said. Court date for both is Sept. 25. Vernon
A Rockville resident was arrested Friday and charged with issuing bad checks. Vernon Police reported Susan Rivera, 25, of 22 Ward St., Rockville, was charged on four rearrest warrants and two new warrants, police said. The charges were in connection with the alleged passing of bad checks that totaled $500, police said. The suspect was scheduled to be presented in court Friday. Norman R. Young, 19, of 56 Hillside Ave., Vernon, was charged with operating a motor vehicle while his license is under suspension, disobeying an officer's signal and operating a motorcycle without a motorcycle license, police said. Court date is Sept. 26. East Hartford
East Hartford Police reported vandalism Friday in four parks. A total of $600 worth of damage was done at Gorman Park, where fences were damaged, a baseball dugout was painted and a door to a lavatory was damaged, police said. Fencing also was damaged at Foran Park. Damage was estimated at $550, police said. Police also reported that a motorcycle had been driven inside the Hookmum Pool being built off High Street. The pool was marked by the motorcycles tires. A gate to a tennis court was damaged at Nicholson Park, police said.

Explosion Blacks Out Springfield Coliseum

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (UPI) — Power was knocked out at the Springfield Civic Center complex Friday when the electric transformer exploded, sending two men to the hospital. About 12 workers were in the area of the explosion, but the two taken to the hospital suffered only minor injuries. The civic center lost power Thursday night, and workers from the city, along with employees of the Western Massachusetts Electric Company, were on the scene trying to repair the outage when the blast occurred. Authorities Friday couldn't determine the cause of the explosion, but center commissioner Anthony Ravosa said the transformer was a complete loss. He said officials will have to find alternate sources of power until repairs are made, which he estimates will take several weeks. Some spectators at the scene saw a flash of light where the explosion occurred, and radio station WSPR was knocked off the air temporarily. Springfield fire and police officials spent Friday afternoon clearing debris and trying to piece together events which led to the explosion. OPEN ALL DAY SUNDAY ARTHUR DRUG

'Warm, Friendly People'

By JUNE TOMPKINS
Herald Reporter

One year and 4,000 snapshots later, John Garaventa has returned for a second visit to Manchester and now speaks of the Russians as a "warm, friendly people." He said some of his pictures may possibly be used in a special coverage of Russia in a future issue of the National Geographic Magazine. The brown-eyed young man of 24 appeared to speak somewhat hesitatingly in his native American language after having conversed and even thought in Russian during his visit. "It's not hesitation from thinking how I say it so much as what I say," he said.

He related a story of his first week in Russia with other young Americans who were also there on the 4-H agricultural exchange program.

"We were in a crowded Moscow cafe, four other Americans besides myself and a Russian lady at the same table," he said. "We were having a general conversation, mostly exercising our Russian. Cautiously, the lady entered into the conversation, often correcting our Russian grammar. Later, she invited the group to her apartment for coffee." "We accepted her invitation, and she gave us coffee and refreshments. Then, she brought out a crumpled, torn piece of yellow paper which had been all patched up with cellophane tape." Garaventa indicated that the paper was very precious to the about-40-year-old woman. "It was an immigration request signed by Kissinger," the paper, according to Garaventa, had been torn up unintentionally by her young nephew. A teacher, the woman has been unemployed ever since she expressed her desire to live in the United States about two years ago. As far as Garaventa knows, she will continue requesting to leave for this country. "They are very much aware of our government policies," he said, and added that we as United States citizens, should become more "intent" on our government policies. "Our policy dictates more than detente, our policy dictates countries all over the world," he said. The Russians are very self-conscious about having their pictures taken, he said. They are afraid that they will present a negative image, he explained.

Only after the time it took to win their trust and confidence was Garaventa able to take photos with little restriction.

He has already talked with state and federal officials about his agricultural exchange trip, but said he has hardly had time to evaluate his experience.

Garaventa leaves next week to complete his study for a master's degree at University of Missouri where he is already a month late.

On Tour in Finland Americans Admire Artistry

By SUSAN VAUGHN
Herald Reporter

The Finnish people seem to overflow with creativity. We were constantly impressed during a three-week visit in Finland this summer with the natural artistic ability of the Finns. It is apparent in every aspect of their daily lives—the way they set beautiful tables for every meal, decorate their homes with their handwork and revere all forms of artistry in their communities. The distinctive textiles and clothing designs, furniture and innovative architecture of Finland are world renown. Finnish products are known for their fine craftsmanship, simple, yet striking designs and rich colors. The Finns put these products to use in their homes in practical ways, which also expresses their individuality and creativity. The lovely table linens which are made in Finland are used on every table, whether as tablecloths or placemats and serve as a lovely coordinating backdrop for the beautiful dinnerware, probably the most well-known of which is Arabia.

We had a heyday in the main Arabia store in Helsinki, feasting our eyes on the gorgeous dishes. The glassware of Finland is also known for its beauty and individuality of design. We were fortunate to visit three of the major glass factories and their factory stores which were brimming with tourists. They were the Nuutajarvi, Humpilla and Rihimaki glassworks, all north of Helsinki. Another popular glassware is Hala which can be found in the United States in Scandinavian shops and other fine stores. We were most impressed that our Finnish hosts used all the beautiful dishes, glassware and linens daily and have several sets of each which they bring out for their daily "coffee time" or desserts, as well as the regular meals. Anja Koski surprised us when she pulled a small white linen tablecloth with lace edging out of the picnic basket and laid it on a rock for our picnic on one of the thousands of islands in the Finnish archipelago. We even had egg cups for our boiled eggs.

The finishing artistic touch on every table is a bouquet of fresh flowers. Finnish people display their artwork lavishly in their homes. The walls in most of the homes are painted white or off-white to set off the art, which ranged from more traditional oil scenes, which one family collected, to pastel watercolor paintings by one of our retired cousins to the huge rya rugs, usually designed by the woman of the home. Mrs. Koski had made a huge sea sculpture drape which hung from ceiling to floor over a patio door in her contemporary home. She also had several smaller examples of the unique three-dimensional art. We found that nearly all our Finnish relatives had some special art or craft skill which they do in their leisure time. We decided that perhaps it is the long, cold, dark Finnish winters that have served as an impetus for the creativity. That conclusion was verified by a woman, who was doing her annual rug washing in the harbor at Helsinki. She said, "We wash the rugs in the summer and spend all winter making more rugs to wash next summer." The long strips of rugs, commonly called "rag rugs," which are made of heavy duty cotton woven together are typical in every Finnish home. The Finns prefer the rugs over their clean polished floors to wall-to-wall carpeting.

Many women have their own looms in their homes on which they make the rugs and also weave the wool rya rugs, which also hang in nearly every Finnish home. The rya rugs are often of traditional design similar to an early American sampler with a contrasting color on a solid background forming the picture. Modern rya rugs are also made in striking contemporary designs. The golden era of the Finnish rya rug ran from the middle of the 18th century to the early 19th century with wandering professional weavers doing the work. The pattern design was free and no precise drawings were used. We saw many beautiful examples of the older rugs in the National Museum in Helsinki.

We found that nearly every woman knits or crochets or sews also. Although it is not an economic necessity, Mrs. Koski makes all the sweaters for her family on her knitting machine. If she wants something to wear, Jarkko Koski said, proudly, she makes it. Her daughters are following in her creative footsteps. We watched 15-year-old Ina Koski make a beautifully tailored shirt.

One of our relatives, Helana Niemi of Kuortane, had her own specially designed crafts room, completely equipped with the finest Singer sewing machine and her other articles and crafts supplies. Another unique art which we reminiscences of her family and favorite gathering places.

Mrs. Berta Abrahamson, an American visitor, sits in the living area of Anja and Jarkko Koski's home in Kaarina, Finland. She is surrounded by typical Finnish furnishings: the chairs designed by architect and designer Alvar Aalto, the sofas designed by Koski, a contemporary Finnish wood coffee table, the ornament hanging from the ceiling is a traditional Christmas one which is often used year-round. Bouquets of flowers are in abundance.

YMCA Steps Up Fall Program with New Classes

VERNON —The Indian Valley YMCA, with headquarters at Vernon Circle, has added several new programs to the some 30 it already sponsors.

There will be a Youth Band for children who have played in a band before or who have had at least six months instruction and playing experience. The band will meet Friday nights from 6:30 to 8 p.m. and will put on a concert at the end of the season.

A Judo Club will teach self defense and discipline. Awards for effort and achievement will be presented throughout the year.

Members may perform in matches including the annual Judo championships. This will be a year-round program but interested persons may sign up for a 10-week course to try it. Paul Arel will be the instructor. Classes will meet Thursdays from 5 to 6 p.m.

Disco Dancing, a program the "Y" has sponsored for teens before, will be for adults too this year. Meetings will be Fridays from 7 to 8 p.m. at the Wapping Community Hall. Bonnie Hayes will be the instructor.

Ski conditioning, for downhill and cross country, will be the subject of an eight-session course. Sessions will be two hours each.

Those participating will learn how to get themselves and their equipment in shape for the coming ski season.

Beginner to expert skiers will be accepted. Owning your own equipment isn't necessary. Some sessions will be outdoors at the Vernon Middle School on Thursdays from 3:15 to 5:15 p.m. All members of the family are invited.

There will also be a four-week course on making wreathes for the holiday. This class will be held at the Takoville Congregational Church on Mondays from 7 to 8 p.m. The course will include blow drying, curling with a curling iron, conditioning and styling.

Any questions about any of the programs or registration will be answered by calling the YMCA office, 672-7329.

A two-week course on hair care will be given for boys and girls or adults. These will be held at the Hairy Canary on Tuesdays, Oct. 10 and 17 from 7 to 8 p.m. The course will include blow drying, curling with a curling iron, conditioning and styling.

The banquet will be on Oct. 2. Joe Dupont has the details.

A woodworking class at ROTC will be offered to the seniors free of charge starting Sept. 28 for nine weeks. Contact Wally or myself (Gloria) at the center if you are interested.

Our bridge players had five tables playing with the following winners: Nadine Malcom, 4,780; Jessica Kayes, 4,440; C. Nutter, 3,690; Don Zaimo, 3,490; Mabel Loomis, 3,220.

Next week is the last time the Golf League will meet.

PZC Gets Protests On Cattle

HEBRON —The Planning and Zoning Commission has received a complaint concerning the allowance of the use of less than three acres for the housing of animals.

John and Mary Kelley of Route 85 appeared before the commission to voice their complaint. Kelley said he originally wrote a letter to the board in May and had not yet received a reply.

The complaint concerns property that abuts the Kelley property and the alleged housing of beef animals on 2.3 acres of land when the zoning regulations require at least three acres to house one animal.

The board agreed to ask Richard Keefe, the town's zoning agent, to investigate the complaint and report back to the commission with his findings. Commission members, Wilbur Dennis and Frank Mundt said they also intend to investigate the matter themselves.

The board also heard a preliminary request filed by A. Pete Dallaire of 369 Church St., Armon, for a one-lot subdivision.

Dallaire was told that he would have to provide the commission with a sketch of the total piece of land showing the existing building, septic system, and wells.

John Hibbard, chairman of the commission, informed the members that he had signed a concession and liquor permit for Blackledge Golf Club in Hebron.

Osborn Backing Sarasin

VERNON —Nancy Osborn, Republican candidate for state representative for the 9th District (Vernon) said she has received a very good response in asking local residents to sign a petition that would limit government spending and prohibit adoption of a state income tax.

Mrs. Osborn will oppose incumbent Democrat Chester Morgan.

"People want to do something about their taxes. We have definitely lacked leadership in the area of limiting government spending," Mrs. Osborn said, while pointing out that her opponent voted for what she termed a record-high $2.25 billion state budget for 1978-79.

"We cannot afford that 14.4 percent increase, nor can we afford a representative who would vote for such an increase," she said.

The petition endorsed by Mrs. Osborn calls for candidates for the Connecticut General Assembly to support Congressman Ronald Sarasin's proposed constitutional amendment limiting government spending, prohibiting a state income tax, and restricting bonding for current expenses.

Speaker Andrew Morgan of Ellington will be the speaker at the Men's Union dinner meeting Sept. 27 at the Union Congregational Church. Dinner will be at 6:30 p.m.

Morgan took part in the 10-day Friendship flight to Israel. He will tell about his travels while in that country. Robert Jenks of Tolland, who also took the flight will assist Morgan in showing slides and the lecture.

News for Senior Citizens

Hi everyone! It seems one just writes this column and you have to write another one. It's a little on the cool side these days but at least the weather has cleared up for Wally and the gang at the Cape.

The good news is the Board of Directors voted unanimously that the Green School will become the new home of the Senior Center. I think the Building Site Committee did an outstanding job with many thanks going to their Chairlady Irene Bissett.

I was amazed how busy we were on Wednesday with one bus load away. In the morning the Fellowship Circle was meeting in one part of the downstairs room while the Blood Pressure Clinic was meeting in the other half. By the way, 91 persons had their pressure taken. Many thanks to all the seniors who helped Phyllis Saich, our Public Health Nurse with the clinic.

Pinochle

Upstairs the seniors were playing pinochle with the following winners: Mike Desimone, 619; Marge Kayser, 606; John Gally, 597; Vincent Borello, 581; Martin Dakstan, 572; Helena Gavella, 572; Josephine Schuetz, 555; Marjorie McLean, 541; John Derby, 541; Josephine O'Connor, 535.

Chief Named For U.N. Day

Patricia Sullivan of 81 Redwood Road has been named the Town of Manchester's coordinator for United Nations Day activities.

Mayor Stephen Penny announced the appointment Friday.

United Nations Day will be Tuesday, Oct. 2. Persons or groups interested in participating in the day's activities should contact Mrs. Sullivan by calling her at 643-9824 or at Iling Junior High School, "Sun Maid" Raisins $1.09.

VFW Officer To Visit Here

Arlene McDermott, of Concord, N.H., recently elected national president of the Ladies' Auxiliary to the Veterans of Foreign Wars, will make her official state visit next week.

Her headquarters will be at the Ramada Inn in East Hartford, and she will be here from Tuesday through Thursday.

Guest Speaker

Sunday at 11 a.m., the Unitarian Universalist Society: East will host the Rev. Joanne Papenek Orlando, a recent graduate of Harvard Divinity School and a chaplain at Norwich State Hospital. Her topic will be "The Gift of Grace: On Loving the Unlovable." Unitarian Universalist Society: East meets at the Community Y, 78 N. Main St., Manchester: Coffee and discussion, Sunday School and nursery care are available.

CPA Honored

Tony Lin of 3671 Hebron Ave., Glastonbury, will receive a Gold Medal Certificate from the Connecticut Society of Certified Public Accountants at its annual awards ball tonight in Bridgeport.

The Gold Medal Certificate recognizes outstanding achievement in the national CPA examination given by the State Board of Accountancy in May.

Notes Off the Cliff

Making the committee "look good" to date in the Hartford Insurance City Open Tennis Tournament is Jack Redmond, pro at the Manchester Racquet Club. Redmond, playing top-grade tennis, is seeded No. 1 in Men's Singles, with Phil Coons is No. 1 in Men's Doubles and with Cherie Dow is No. 1 in Mixed Doubles. Redmond and his doubles partners have advanced to the semifinal round this weekend. Dow, the Manchester High senior, and Kim Murphy of East Hartford are seeded No. 1 in Women's Doubles and have yet to taste defeat.

Tim Kane, the young New Britain runner who crossed the finish line second in the Connecticut AAU 12-mile championship run last June in the Manchester Community College Relays only to be disqualified as a non-registered participant, has been the top UConn cross country runner this season. He's a threat to Andy Barfoot in the Five Miler here Thanksgiving morning.

Mention of the Five Mile Road Race. Applications have not been printed as yet and they will not be available at the Herald. The start and finish of the race will be changed from Oak and School Street to Main and Oak Street. Will Hadden, chairman of the sponsoring Nutmeg Forest, Tall Cedars of Lebanon, said.

Wilfred Dancer "died" earlier this month in Fort Lauderdale, Fla. His death revived memories during the years when he boxed professionally in New England under the name of Danny Falcone. The 111 lb Manchester man won the New England bantamweight championship shortly after World War II and was as good club fighter as before hanging up his gloves. He appeared in several main events.

Bob Hamilton, former Manchester High and University of Maine football player, is again coaching the Yarmouth-Bathurst Regional High School football team. Hamilton's squad scrimmaged Rockville High two weeks ago. The two schools met on the gridiron two years ago on Cape Cod.

Field hockey team will not be fielded at Bennett Junior High this fall as no coach could be found, Dave Noonan reports.

Henry Rockwell, chairman of the Greens Committee at the Manchester Country Club, notes in the latest club newsletter that a course ranger has been recommended to the Board of Governors for next season. The club has been without a ranger for two seasons.

John Snuffer experienced a "first" on the golf course last weekend. His drive on the fifth hole struck and killed a swallow. The ball landed in the cup and the swallow in the rough. The "bird" was witnessed by Father George, Snuffer reported.

Charlie Boggin, who paced the amateur golfers in the recent Manchester Open with a two-over-par 73 score despite unusually strong windy conditions, is nearly ready to store his golf equipment and bring out the tennis gear. Green Bay Unveils New Passing Unit

NEW YORK (UPI) — Some of the most feared passing combinations in pro football history have been produced by the Green Bay Packers.

Cecil Isbell and Don Hutson in the late 1930s and early 40s. Tobin to Willington in the 50s and Bart Starr to Carroll Dale and Max McGee in the 60s.

The next Green Bay pair to make defensive backs pay extra special attention may be David Whitehurst and James Lofton.

The Oakland Raiders, who visit Green Bay Sunday, will surely have Whitehurst and Lofton in mind after what they did to New Orleans last week.

Whitehurst, the second-year quarterback from Furman, brought four touchdown passes to spark the Packers' 27-17 victory over New Orleans. Three of the scoring passes went to Lofton, Green Bay's No. 1 draft choice from Stanford, to help the Packers to their second victory without a loss and their best start since 1969.

"We felt we had to come out of the first two weeks with wins if we're going to develop a base of confidence that will help us later," said Coach Bart Starr, whose job figures to be in jeopardy without an improvement over last year's 4-10 record.

Whitehurst, an eighth-round pick in the 1977 draft, got an opportunity to play when Lynn Dickey was hurt last week and displayed the arm and leadership abilities of a potential star despite being an unknown in college. He guided the Packers to their 18th regular season attempt.

"David is extremely coachable," says Starr. "He knows when he makes a mistake. He has a unique competitive spirit we haven't seen in

Indian Girls Place Eighth In Farmington Invitational

Turning in a fine job according to Head Coach Phil Blanchette at yesterday's Farmington Invitational was the Manchester High girls' cross country team.

The Indians took eighth place in a field of 15 teams. Penny High of East Hartford took fourth place while the top two berths were held by fellow CCIL schools, Conard High and Hall High, both of West Hartford secured the top two spots.

Blanchette noted, "The purpose of this meet was to give this team with only one senior experience running in large groups such as they will encounter in state competition at the end of the season. This meet broke the ice for the juniors and sophomores."

Eagle Gridders Open Tonight

All the preparations and planning will be put to the test today and tonight as the 1978 scholastic football season kicks off.

Locally, East Catholic High, 2-8 the past two years, gets out of the starting gate first as the Eagles entertain a defending CVC titlist South Windsor High, 8-2, tonight at Mt. Nebo at 7:30.

Manchester High is idle with the Indians kicking off their campaign next Saturday at Memorial Field against Fern Hill.

Area games on top today pit Newtoning at East Hartford High and Rockville High entertains Hill.

Suffering first game jitters, Manchester High girls' field hockey team found itself constantly deep in its own end and wound up on the short end of a 2-0 defeat to Hall High yesterday in West Hartford in the 1978 season opener for both schools.

Senior tri-captain Lois Ann Diana kept the locals close. She held the homecoming Warriors to a single point in the first half by Mary McClean and a second tally in the second half by Marianne Payton.

Manchester took the jayvee contest, 1-0, with Jenni Hedlund out ahead of me, suddenly "freezer" on a solid point. I got turned on. Or ... if in the woods ... I see the dog, nose to the ground, start to track or "make game" ... and then, slowly come to a stop as though he was literally turning to stone, ending up around a pond ... the high coloration of some of the fungi or toadstools growing around stumps ... These, and so many other little unnoticed things, make it a photographer's fun time.

There you have it ... This is my "sweet of the year." I hope you have one that you enjoy, as much as I do mine.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Laz Barrera sat in the converted tackroom with a flyswatter in his hand, accurately dispatching the luckless insects while he talked about Saturday's historical meeting of Triple Crown champions Affirmed and Seattle Slew in the $300,000 Marlboro at Belmont.

"Seattle Slew is a great horse," Affirmed's trainer was saying. "If he is ready, he will be tough. But his workout on Thursday (a slow 49:25) has me confused. And his last race (losing to Dr. Patches in the Paterson) might have done him as much harm as good. He has raced only three times this year and going from 7-4 mile to 1 1/2-mile can take a lot out of a horse. Who knows?"

Affirmed has won eight of his nine starts this year and in his only loss was disqualified and placed second to Alydar after crossing the finish line first in the Travers at Saratoga Aug. 19.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Air Force quarterback Dave Ziebart may quit the Saturday night air with footballs, but the Boston College are likely to turn the aerial show into a crash landing.

The Eagles launch their 1978 season as solid favorites to shoot down the Air Force passing attack and score their ninth straight win over a service academy. Rookie Coach Ed Cizek has a healthy respect for the Falcons, especially receiver Dennis Dent. "We want to hand him the ball as well as throw it to him."

"Air Force is well coached, very disciplined, hard-nosed and tough. Ziebart is one of the better passers we are going to see this year. Anytime you play someone who has been under fire, it's that much tougher," Cizek says.

"I can't believe we played that poorly and won the game. We were Holy Cross, traveling to Southern Connecticut and Coach Bill Bowles tougher team in Massachusetts," Bedesem says.

Brookline, Mass. (UPI) — The names and numbers have changed but Boston Celtics General Manager Red Auerbach said Friday he has the makings of another playoff contender in the mold of the once-powerful team.

"We're going back to the old Celtics tradition," said Auerbach as he puffed on his ever-present cigar and watched the opening day of the 1978 title season at the Boston Garden.

"Everybody has to play for me," Auerbach said. "I'm not going to let anybody else play for me. I'm not going to let anybody else play for me. I'm not going to let anybody else play for me."

Penney High Booters Win

Doing all its scoring in a 10-minute span of the second period, Penney High kicked off its 1978 soccer season on a successful note with a 3-1 win over CCIL for Fern Hill in Eastfield.

John Costello tallied the first two goals for the Black Knights at 6:03 and 13:30, the first on a breakaway and the second on a blast just inside the penalty area up into the right corner. He combined with Paul Fitzgerald on a give-and-go at the 16-minute mark with the latter getting Goalie Chris Ruggles was called on to make five saves with Ferni getting its lone tally in the third period. Carli Schultz, center halfback, wing halfback Marty Borowski and inside Archie Laura were standouts for Penney, which outshot Ferni, 25-10, and hit two posts in the second half.

Gervin Boycotts Spurs' Practice

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (UPI) — George Gervin, the National Basketball Association's leading scorer last season, Friday boycotted the San Antonio Spurs' first pre-season workout because of a contract dispute with the team.

Spurs publicist Wayne Witt said Gervin, who also was the only veteran who missed Wednesday's physical and did not appear for Thursday's media day, was not present for Friday's workout at Blossom Athletic Center.

The Spurs agreed to renegotiate the pact, but Gervin and his agent rejected a new contract with certain incentives totaling $500,000 a year. Witt said it probably would be early next week before the team made a statement on the situation.

Gervin, a 6-7, 185-pound guard from Eastern Michigan, scored 27 points from the bench last season to pace San Antonio to the Central Division title and agent Denver's David Thompson and injured Pete Maravich of New Orleans for the scoring title.

Ernie D. Retires After Five Years

BOSTON (UPI) — Ernie DiGregorio, one of many flashy Celtics to play at Providence College, has retired after five seasons in the National Basketball Association, the Boston Celtics announced Friday.

"I just didn't fit into the Celtics' plans," said DiGregorio from his Lincoln, R.I., home. "I decided it would be best to call it quits now. I'd rather sit at home than sit on the bench all season."

DiGregorio, a 6-footer, was a free agent and was offered a contract by the Celtics. General Manager Red Auerbach said. But salary was not the issue because the 27-year-old DiGregorio is financially set for the next three decades.

"Ernie has a lot of pride. He knew with Jo White, Tiny Archibald and Earl Tatum around that he wouldn't be playing that much," Auerbach said. "He decided it wasn't worth it to kill himself for another year. We

'Old Men' in Baseball Holding Own McCovey, Rose, Yaz in That Class

NEW YORK (UPI) — They are the "old men" of the major leagues. The zip has gone out of the fastball and the sprint down the first base line gets a little harder each season. Playing a boy's game with teammates young enough to be their sons, they fight off the pulled muscles and aches and pains as well as the rookies after their jobs.

They live by a calendar all their own. Hat they choose another line of work, they would just be hitting their prime. But now, somewhere shy of 40 years old, they hear the talk of being "washed up" or "over the hill." They are the old men of major league baseball, all right, but they somehow manage to come around every spring.

"I didn't know how old I was, but only watched me swing the bat, they wouldn't be so quick to judge that I need rest," says Willie McCovey, the 40-year-old first baseman of the San Francisco Giants. "When they know your age, ideas get planted in their heads." But when the home runs cease, the transition to retirement from the excitement and attention afforded as professional athletes can be painful. How does a baseball player know when his time to quit has come? "The trick of the whole thing is not to fool yourself," says 37-year-old Lou Brock of the St. Louis Cardinals. "I've got monitors to tell me how I'm doing, how well I'm chasing the ball, how well I'm hitting and how I'm running the bases."

Cincinnati's Pete Rose, always in top shape, uses his personal statistics as his "monitor." "I don't feel I'm old," says Rose, who still a model of consistency at 37, set a National League record by hitting in 44 consecutive games this season. "Besides, age doesn't make any difference as long as you produce — and I'm producing. I take good care of my body. I don't smoke or drink and get plenty of rest. No reason I can't keep on going. My legs are the strongest thing about me."

Says 38-year-old Carl Yastrzemski of the Boston Red Sox, "You sit around in the winter and think maybe it is the last year, then you go to camp and start enjoying it. You wonder if it's not just temporary. Then you get into the games and something happens and the concentration is there. But I don't want to think two or three years ahead."

According to Jim Kaat, Philadelphia's 39-year-old pitcher, the key to remaining in the major leagues is "making adjustments." "When I first came up with the Minnesota Twins in '61, I had a great fastball. Some coaches back then were comparing me to Herb Score," he says. "But when I lost my fastball, I was able to stay in the major leagues by using my curve ball. But making adjustments along the way is just part of the fun. I'm still trying to improve myself as a pitcher."

John Hiller, the Detroit Tigers' premier reliever, has made an incredible adjustment. Since suffering a heart attack in 1972, Hiller has been one of the most durable players in the American League. "The heart attack kept me in the game. It changed my attitude," says the 35-year-old left-hander, who has appeared in nearly 500 major league games, including 45 this season up to

Sept. 13. "Since the heart attack, I've kept myself in good shape. I take baseball after a two-year hiatus and I'm still going. What I'm doing more seriously." Willie Stargell, who at 37 has been plagued by a series of injuries in recent years, is a leading candidate for Comeback Player of the Year honors in the National League. Recently, he compared his ability to cope with infirmities to that of an oak tree. "Strong roots, a sturdy trunk and branches that go out in all directions," the Pirate first baseman was quoted as saying. "When a big storm comes, I bend but don't break and bloom again next year."

One player who doesn't worry about staying in shape is California's portly Ron Fairly. Though 40, Fairly continues to play another two years and join the select group of players who have played in four decades. "I never could run very well so age hasn't meant much. I never really enjoyed much energy playing baseball, anyway," says the 20-year veteran. "I don't know where else you can have so much fun and be paid for it."

"I feel better now than I did when I was young," says the Houston Astros' Jesus Alou, 36, who has the rare distinction of returning to the playing career in 1977 — can be more painful than the natural death. While most players try to play hang on as long as possible, some like Gaylord Perry of the San Diego Padres face retirement in a different way. "I still enjoy the challenge of the game, but it's not going to bother me when I'm not able to play," says Perry, who with 264 career victories has won more games than any active pitcher. And at age 40 this season he is a Cy Young Award candidate with an 18-6 record through Sept. 13.

Elrod Hendricks, who at 37 batted just 17 times up to mid-September with the Baltimore Orioles, perhaps best describes why the "old men" stay around. "Baseball is still a lot of fun. There's something special to wearing a baseball uniform — wearing the uniform really lightens me up. I can't afford to let the ball park in a lonely mood down and out. As long as I get that uniform on my back — my mind is into something else."

"I'm proud of the number of games I've been in," says the 36-year-old veteran of eight major league teams. "Though I don't have good stuff, it shows I have durability. Barring injury, I feel I can pitch another four or five years."

West Side Old Timers Holland, Conran To Be Honored

Two athletes of another period, Ray "Gumpy" Holland and Tom Conran, will be called front and center as the honored guests at the 18th annual West Side Old Timers' Reunion Oct. 7 at the Garden Grove.

Fran Mahoney, general chairman, made the announcement. Holland played amateur and semi-pro baseball for more than 30 years and in the twilight of his career in 1950 now defunct Manchester Twilight League he was an outstanding and versatile performer. A long ball hitter, Holland was at some other pitching or catching and also in the outfield.

For many years he was also a member of Moriarty Brothers' crackjack volleyball team which ranked with the best in New England. Most past honored guests have been products of the West Side but the committee has jumped over the line in following Conran, a North End native.

Tickets are now available and may be purchased at Bill Pagani's barber shop or from any committee member. The committee will meet Sept. 21 at Willie's.

Jones Still Ailing For Battered Colts

FOXBORO, Mass. (UPI) — Coach Ted Marchbroda of the soreness and injury-plagued Baltimore Colts says he still has reason to be optimistic despite his team's poor health and 0-2 record.

"Once we get our club healthy again and once we fully know our system, we'll be stronger than ever," Marchbroda predicts. "The Colts, outscored 80 in their first two starts, are underdogs for Monday night's nationally televised game with the New England Patriots. The back-to-back shutouts are the first time the Colts have been whitewashed two straight times in the club's 26-year history."

Baltimore quarterback Bert Jones, sidelined with a shoulder sprain, is not expected to play. Other Colts casualties include linebacker Stan White and offensive tackles George Kuntz and David Taylor.

"I think the big thing about all this is that I sort of feel we could have been in the position we're in — maybe not as drastically hurt — but 0-2 if we were healthy with the teams we played (Dallas and Miami)," Marchbroda says.

"It isn't always the people injured, but we lost a lot of leaders," he says. "We definitely have little hopes. I'm sure a lot of people counted the New York Yankees out early in the season."

The Colts are last in the NFL in winning yards per game (102) and 24th in offense in yards per game (187). The Patriots are third in offense and eighth in defense. New England's offensive tackle Leon Gray still respects the Colts' defensive line which has not yet been crippled this season by injuries.

Browns Ride High Under Rutigliano

NEW YORK (UPI) — Under rookie Coach Sam Rutigliano, the Cleveland Browns, who visit Atlanta Sunday, have jumped off to a 2-0 start and have allowed the fewest points (17) in the American Football Conference.

And although Rutigliano may be new on the Cleveland scene, he is careful about keeping the season in perspective. "We have to be realistic in terms of how we won," he said. "As the season goes on, we're just not going to beat teams like Cincinnati, making the kinds of mistakes we make — penalties and all that. It was a big win for us, but it wasn't very artistic."

The Browns may lack overall grace, but they possess two of the NFL's most fluid performers. Greg Pruitt is the second-leading runner in the AFC, 22 yards behind Houston rookie Earl Campbell. Wide receiver Reggie Rucker leads AFL receivers with a whopping 27.1 yards per catch.

Asked if he was afraid the early-season success might mean his young club is headed for a fall, Rutigliano said, "I'll leave that stuff to the psychologists." "The Browns will be facing an Atlanta team that seems a carbon copy of last year's club. The Falcons' defense allowed the fewest points in modern NFL history last season (129), but won only seven of 14 games due to a plodding, ineffective offense."

This year the Falcons are 1-1, having gained the fewest yards (244) of any team in pro football. Quarterback James Jones, who beat out incumbent starter Steve Bartkowski, has completed only 15-of-38 passes.

Asked if he was afraid the early-season success might mean his young club is headed for a fall, Rutigliano said, "I'll leave that stuff to the psychologists."

Winter Olympic Costs are High

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — Organizers of the 1980 Lake Placid Winter Olympics had hoped to stage the Games for $100 million, but then "reality" struck.

Now, they say, the cost of putting on the games will run as high as $117 million. At a hastily called news conference, officials of the Lake Placid Olympic Organizing Committee said the construction costs will be $14 million more than anticipated.

Fell said the additional costs reflected "reality" and a "change of scope in our program." "I've said the additional costs reflected environmental monitors and the construction of a new 70-meter ski jump," he said. "The new 70-meter jump was required because environmental advisers had told the organizing committee that the existing jump was 'medically unacceptable.'"

While stressing that he did not expect a deficit at the conclusion of the games, Fell said if one did occur, he was not sure where the additional funds would come from. "I don't know where I'd look," he said. "I might go on television and ask every American to donate 50 cents."

This hasn't changed what we set out to do," Fell said. "The Lake Placid Olympics will still be Olympic quality athletes."

"We would be in bad straits when we can't afford to put on an event like the Olympics."

TV Dial-ogue

BIG EDDIE — We enjoy watching "The Courtship of Eddie's Father," and we were wondering about Brandon Cruz. How old is he now and what is he doing? — Betty Jordan, Guerneville, Calif.

Cruz has grown up into a fine young man and actor. He and Bixby were recently reunited when the now 16-year-old Cruz guested on "The Incredible Hulk."

GREAT SCOTT — I am a fan of Eric Scott who plays Ben Walton on "The Waltons." I would like some information about him such as his age, birthday, height, weight, color of hair, eyes, etc. — Diane Edwards, Midland, Tex.

Scott's vital stats are such: It's hard to believe, but he'll be 20 on Oct. 20. He stands 5'6" and weighs in at 128, with red hair and blue eyes. He is currently attending Pierce Junior College in Woodland Hills, Calif.

MARRIAGE-GO-ROUND — Could you tell me if Buck Owens was married to Bonnie Owens and if Buddy Allen, being Buck's son is also her son? Also, is Buck Owens presently married and to whom? — L.J., Barnesville, Minn.

From the top — Buck and Bonnie were married and Buddy is also her son. They were divorced in 1955. Buck later remarried, but he and Phyllis Owens were also divorced in 1972. At the moment he's playing the (corn)field.

Send your questions to TV Dial-ogue, Pepper O'Brien, NEA, 290 Park Ave., New York, N.Y.

GOODBYE FOREVER? — I saw a movie a few years ago called "Say Goodbye, Maggie Cole," starring Susan Hayward. I believe it was an ABC movie, and since I enjoyed it so much the first time, I was wondering if it is scheduled to air again? — Gail Ross, Norfolk, Va.

So you like sad movies, eh? Well, hate to disappoint you but the chances of a 1972 TV movie turning up again on a network in prime time are next to nil. However, it may turn up on the movies that run after the late news. The problem is that the networks tend to fill this slot with re-runs of old series. But there's a chance.

Collectors' Corner

By TOM JAY

Can two Wrights make a wrong? That question is part of the mixed reaction from collectors to this pair of airmail stamps honoring the Wright brothers to be issued Sept. 23 in Dayton, Ohio.

On the favorable side, most collectors approve of the subject matter. Certainly the 75th anniversary of powered flight is worthy of commemoration. Also specialists in airmails are delighted to learn that this is but the first in a series that will honor American aviation pioneers in the next few years. Fears that the amalgamation of domestic airmail into the first class rate would mean no more commemorative airmail stamps are now proved false.

But the questions persist: Why two when one would suffice? Both designs by Long Island resident Ken Dallison are attractive, but very similar in nature. Both vignettes feature likeness of Orville and Wilbur Wright (they don't even reverse the billing on the second stamp) and their aircraft. Near the lower right corner of the bottom stamp is a replica of the shed used by the Wrights to work on aircraft. Did the Citizen's Stamp Advisory Committee resolve its indecision by choosing both of the leading designs, or is this another instance of the U.S.P.S. "milking the stamp collector" as it has been frequently accused?

Also questioned is the size of the stamps. They will be regular definitive size issued in sheets of 100 with one plate number (thank goodness). Most commemoratives are larger. Whether the designs will be effective in the small size remains to be seen.

Orders for the FDCs should be sent to: First Day Cancellations, Postmaster, Dayton, Ohio, 45401, and postmarked before Oct. 8.

Storage Problems?

Where do you keep your collection? On a bookshelf? In a drawer or safe? Think about the collector of antique and classic cars. His storage problems dwarf those of most other collectors. A '36 Packard in the garage, a Model A in the rec room, and a Model T in the living room are hardly compatible with a happy marriage.

Another problem faced by those bitten by the old car bug is that more and more of the best examples of true antiques and classics are entering the hands of investors rather than collectors and are seen only at auctions where they are brought to make their owners rich.

Thus collectors turn to "special interest" cars of the '50s, '60s, and even '70s. Name a car that was ugly, unpopular, and sold very few models, and maybe even put its parent company out of business and you have a definitely collectable car. If you can find one that has avoided the crushers and still has a floor, you have a gem.

Copyright U.S. Postal Service 1978

But problems continue. Where do you get parts for the old clunker? Fall finds many auto shows and flea markets where collectors flock to search for that hard to find tail light or fender. Three are listed below, the four-day Pennsylvania shows being giants in the field.

Tomorrow (Sept. 17): Roaring 20s Auto Club Show and Flea Market, Southbury Training School.

Sept. 28 to Oct. 1: Carlisle, Pa. — one of the largest flea markets and auctions of postwar cars in the nation.

Oct. 5 to 8: Hershey, Pa. — gigantic flea market and car show sponsored by AACA.

Even if having a clunker does not fit your life style, there are many auto-related items found at these shows to collect. Model cars built from kits, promotional models, and car sales literature are popular examples. As with any collection, all you need is time and money to enjoy a great time.

KILLED OFF — I would like some information on Michael Nouri who plays Steve Kalso on "Search for Tomorrow." Does he actually write songs and are their copies available? I would also like to know where I can write to him. Is it true he is leaving the show to work on Broadway? — Joan Napp, Waterbury, Conn.

By the time you read this, you probably will have learned that Steve Kaslo succumbed to his mysterious disease, and Michael Nouri is no longer on "Search." He indeed left the show for brighter lights on stage and in films. Nouri does write music and had a record released in 1977: "Daisies." Ask your record dealer if they can dig a copy up for you. It will be listed on their catalog. You can still write the big guy in care of the show at CBS Entertainment, 51 West 52nd St., New York, NY 10019.

GUN TALK — Could you tell me the name of a western series that John Payne played in? I think it was on in the late '50s or early '60s. Could it have been "The Restless Gun"? — David R. Waldri Sr., Palm Springs, Calif.

Not only could it have been "The Restless Gun," it was. The series began in 1957.

There is a small, unnoticed war going on between single-sidebanders and the AMers who do not want to give up any of their 40 channels for SSB access.

Citizens band radio is AM with a power level of 4 watts. Single sideband is FM and has an envelop power of 12 watts. It has several distinct advantages over its cousin, not the least of which is virtually no interference. Right now with the sun spot problem beginning to affect all AM radio, this represents a considerable plus.

The war that has developed is one over access channels. The single-sidebander does not transmit a carrier when his mike button is pressed, as is the case with the AMer. The consequence is that the sidebander needs to make his contact on an AM channel, then switch to the upper sideband. In many parts of the country and in Canada, Channel 16 has been reserved for the SSBers by a sort of gentlemen's agreement. In other places the "top five," 35 through 40, belong to the sidebanders in much the same way that 19 is the truckers' channel.

It seems strange that a simple thing like making available several channels for the exclusive use of the SSBers has grown into a monumental problem, but it has. And it does not look as though there is any resolution coming. Neither the Federal Communications Commission nor its Canadian counterpart have been responsive to the letters and complaints received from the sidebanders.

Early this year this column reported that SSB might be important to all CBers because it is clearly the way to avoid a lot of interference as the sun spot dilemma becomes more severe. Letters in response indicated that many regular CBers were not familiar with single sideband and its inherent characteristics. Some stated that they didn't understand why more manufacturers didn't build their sets with dual capability.

This column was also overly optimistic about the increase from 23 to 40 channels eliminating some of the access problems sidebanders were having when traffic tied up the smaller number of channels. It did not work out that way: the trouble has gotten keener and sidebanders' complaints for channel recognition have increased.

Just how many single-sidebanders there are right now is hard to report. There are no reliable figures available. It is obvious, though, that the number has increased considerably this year. SS clubs have sprung up throughout the United States and Canada. These clubs are behind the development of the "top five" channels as their domain. They feel they have firmly established their rights to them. The battle continues because there are many places in the country where all 40 channels are heavily trafficked. The AMers resent the sidebanders' "fraternal approach."

Of course, all this will be solved if, as this column has reported, all citizens band radio is required to change to 900 megahertz (where there could be as many as 300 channels available). One expert stated the FCC will be forced to make this move by 1980 and that it had few if any alternatives.

Whatever happens, this fight between the AMers and SSBers is senseless.
