

Bloodmobile Misses Goal Due to Long Waits

MANCHESTER — Red Cross Bloodmobile might have reached its goal Tuesday if all the walk-in donors could have been accommodated. Several walk-ins couldn't wait for their turn in the long line that formed at the Knights of Columbus Home, and left.

The Bloodmobile collected 156 pints. The monthly goal is 165 pints. Of the 182 advance appointments made, 87 were kept. There were 94 walk-in donors. Twenty-five persons were deferred until another time.

Several high gallon donors topped the day. James McJannet, an officer with the Manchester Police Department, was awarded a certificate and a pin for having donated 15 gallons of blood.

Other gallon donors were: 11 gallons — David R. Pierce, John W. Klein; 10 gallons — James P. Tierney, 6 gallons — Martin Cullen, George Pinto, Frank Serignese; 5 gallons — Antonette Carabino; 4 gallons — Shirley Turk; Also, 3 gallons — Helga Schaller, Rabbi Neil Kiminsky, 1 gallon — Phillip Pierson, Joseph Coscia, Richard J. Danson, William H. Marceau, Nancy Mann, Leon A. LaFreniere Jr.

The next Bloodmobile visit will be Thursday, Oct. 26, from 12:30 to 5:30 p.m. at St. James School.

Mrs. Elaine Sweet, director of the Manchester Branch of the Red Cross, expressed appreciation for the number of walk-in donors who had to wait to be served.

"We hope these people were not able to wait return another time," she said. "The those who did wait, are most grateful. Our apologies to all who did appear and thanks for support of the Blood Program."

WHAT'S NEWS

CETA Workers Get Good News

MANCHESTER — The town's Comprehensive Employment and Training Act employees have received formal word that their positions will be continued at least through October.

There had been concern that funding for the Title III positions might not be available and that the employees, about 25 altogether, would have to be laid off at the end of this month.

But, Monday, the Hartford City Council approved a resolution that would insure that CETA positions will be funded through October.

Steve Werber, Manchester's personnel assistant, said that a letter has been sent to all affected employees today informing them that the positions will be extended at least another month.

Further decisions on funding and continuing CETA positions are expected in the next few weeks.

Also, some of the town's one-year CETA projects, which were terminated early, can be continued, Werber said. He said that the town hopes to restart the forestry clearing project and the survey work.

The police and health projects also may be restarted, he said.

Heart Attack Kills Pope

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Pope John Paul I was found dead of an apparent heart attack in his Vatican apartment today, leaving the throne of St. Peter vacant for the second time in less than five weeks.

The end of his 34-day reign — the briefest in four centuries — stunned his 700 million Roman Catholic followers, still grieving the death of Pope Paul VI on August 6.

Thousands of mourners poured into St. Peter's Square, their faces numb with shock and grief. They fell to their knees to pray for the repose of the soul for what was a homely way had won their hearts.

"It's impossible. It just can't be true," wailed a Vatican attendant weeping thousands through St. Peter's Basilica. "He had opened his arms to all of us and now he is gone so quickly."

The shockwaves of the pope's sudden death rolled around the world and there were similar outpourings of grief from town leaders.

The 26th pontiff of the Roman Catholic church was found dead by his private secretary at 5:30 a.m. (11:30 p.m. EDT Thursday). The Vatican said John Paul, 65, died about 11 p.m. (5 p.m. EDT) Thursday night, apparently while reading in his bedroom.

Within six hours of his death, the pope's body was dressed in his red and white papal vestments and placed on a bier in the Clementine Hall on the third floor of the Vatican Museums, where he was to be buried.

The first person to enter the room was Italian President Sandro Pertini. The Vatican kept the pope's death a secret for two days. Officials announced it at 7:30 a.m. (11:30 a.m. EDT).

"This morning at about 5:30 a.m. the private secretary of the pope, Father (John) Magyes, entered the bedroom of Pope John Paul I. Not having found him in his chapel as usual, he was looking for him in his room and found him dead, lying on the floor with the lights still on, as if he were still reading," the official Vatican announcement said.

Advertisement minutes the centuries-old machinery of the Roman Catholic Church began moving to name his successor. And in further tradition the great bronze doors of St. Peter's were half closed. Chains were placed across the entrance to the Vatican palace as a symbol of death. The red and yellow Vatican flags flew at half staff as the bells of Rome tolled the fearful tidings.

The last rites of the church were said by Monsignor Canisto van Laere. With him was the Vatican Secretary of State, French Cardinal Jean Villot, and Monsignor Virgilio Noe.

Villot has assumed leadership of the church until a new pope is chosen — he had done so when Pope Paul died. He immediately called a conclave to elect a new pope — directions laid down by Paul say the conclave must begin in 15 to 20 days, between Oct. 13 and 18.

Between 20 and 25 cardinals were in Rome at the time of the pope's death and they scheduled a meeting for 11 a.m. (5 a.m. EDT) Saturday to make preliminary funeral arrangements.

Although John Paul had a history of medical troubles, Vatican officials had described them as not serious and said he was in overall good health.

John Paul, the son of a Socialist bricklayer from the Dolomite mountain hamlet of Forno di Canale, had entered health spas twice for treatment of a lung condition caused by a bout of tuberculosis as a youth. During his life, he had undergone four operations — for the removal of his tonsils as a child, another operations to set a broken nose and two to remove gallstones.

The pope's 61-year-old brother Eduardo Luciani said in Adelaide, Australia the pontiff had recently suffered "some bad feelings around the heart," but a medical checkup had turned up nothing to alarm doctors.

"What God wants has to happen," the younger Luciani said.

To commemorate the pope's death, the Italian government ordered all schools closed Saturday and a session of parliament that was just about to begin in the morning was cancelled.

Trade unions called off planned strikes throughout the country.

The first of nine requiem Masses for the late pontiff was scheduled for 6 p.m. inside a chapel of St. Peter Basilica and was to be celebrated by Archbishop Aurelio Sabatini, vicar of the archdiocese of the church.

Catholics Ponder Future of Church

For the second time in eight weeks American church bells tolled the mournful news, people wept and Roman Catholics anxiously pondered the future of their church.

Pope John Paul I was dead, before anyone really got a chance to know him. And a world that buried Pope Paul VI less than two months ago now had to bury his 65-year-old successor to the throne of St. Peter.

Just a short moment ago millions of people scattered across the globe shared the joyous announcement: "We have a pope," said Cardinal John Cody of Chicago, who was elected by seeing his picture and reading his comments and remarks," said Auxiliary Bishop Francis Quinn of San Francisco.

Cardinal Terence Cooke of New York said, "Let us pray for the pope and for the church and for all of the people whom he loved so much."

Father Mitchell Ryan, chancellor of the diocese of Seattle, said John Paul "had a sense of mission with a sense of humor" and Los Angeles Bishop John Ward said "His smile and gesture charmed us all."

But the mourning was compounded with anxious speculation about what lies ahead for the church, which has been buffeted in recent years by the twin currents of change and tradition.

"We have lost a good man and a good pope and face a rather uncertain future," said Arthur Jones, editor and Publisher of the National Catholic Reporter weekly in Kansas City, Mo.

Businesses Go For Wider Road

MANCHESTER — A clump of businesses near Exit 94 of Interstate 89 will be eliminated when the highway is expanded, one of its employees said today.

The businesses that will be affected are Restaurant Ninety Four, Manchester Motel and the M & Tolland Turnpike or McVail Street.

Also, the Oak Lodge Apartments, which includes 18 apartment units, and a couple of homes in the area will be taken by the state.

Howard Monnier, engineer of highway design for the state Department of Transportation, said today that the state hopes to own all property needed for the highway expansion by July 1979.

Advocating for the project is scheduled tentatively to begin next week, and the state, except in rare cases, likes to own all the property by the time it begins advertising the work.

Monnier said that the design has been completed for the highway expansion in the area of the existing Exit 94. Expansion of the highway also is planned near the J.C. Penney Co. distribution center site, but those plans are still in the design stage, he said.

The Howard Johnson restaurant on Tolland Turnpike will not be affected by the highway expansion, one of its employees said today.

George Risley, owner of the Oak Lodge Apartments, was not available for comment today, but an employee confirmed that the state has notified the office that its building will be removed for the highway plans.

The Manchester Motel is owned by Tranel Inc. of New York City. Judith Diana, a bookkeeper at the motel, said that the state also has notified them of the future taking of the building.

"They've said that they're going to be doing it, but they haven't said when it's going to be," she said.

The state has not yet begun negotiating with the owners for the sale of the property, she said.

The owners of Restaurant Ninety Four and M & R Package Store also could not be reached this morning, but employees at both businesses confirmed that those buildings will be among those taken by the state.

Giles Is Optimistic About Pond's Future

By GREG PEARSON
Herald Reporter

MANCHESTER — Jay Giles, director of public works, has an optimistic view about the future of Union Pond.

He does not think that dredging of the pond will have to be done, and he is hopeful that other steps, such as lowering the pond level, which started Wednesday, will eliminate the odor problem.

The odor problem came to public attention when the Herald reported on complaints from Union Pond area residents on Sept. 2. The Herald learned that one source of the problem was partially treated sewage coming from Vernon's sewage treatment plant.

Officials from both towns and the state met Tuesday to discuss the issue and seek some solutions. Another meeting is scheduled Wednesday at 11 a.m.

Proposals Tuesday included lowering the level of the pond and seeking increased water flow from Snipsic Lake. Union Pond now is acting as a settling basin for the material from the sewage plant, and the changes could increase water flow and help distribute and spread it.

Giles thinks that these steps will solve the problem. The flow should eliminate the odor and buildup of sludge at the pond, but there should be no downstream effects, he said.

Lowering of Union Pond started Wednesday, and it had dropped about a foot by Thursday afternoon, he said.

The increased flow should not be noticed by those downstream, he

'Blue' Law and Others Take Effect Sunday

HARTFORD (UPI) — A shaky new "blue" law, a bill of rights for the mentally retarded and statutory safeguards for teachers and those accused of crimes head a list of laws that become effective Sunday in Connecticut.

The Sunday closing law was resurrected by the 1978 Legislature two years after a judge declared the state's old "blue" law unconstitutional, saying it was archaic, vague and arbitrary.

Of all the laws the Legislature passed last session, the Sunday closing statute probably received the most publicity. Ironically, it may be the first of the laws to be challenged in the courts.

The law is properly known as "An Act Amending the Common Day of Rest." Its proponents say it is the only morally fair way to keep businesses from forcing their employees to work against their religious wishes. Its detractors say it is files in the face of America's free enterprise system.

Essentially, the law allows certain small businesses that provide necessary services or entertainment like drugstores, 24-hour convenience outlets, movie theaters, restaurants and gasoline stations, to stay open on Sundays. It allows all businesses to remain open on the Sundays between Thanksgiving and Christmas.

Some of the large department stores, that will be forced to close, are expected to challenge the law. Criminal prosecution was also on the minds of the lawmakers last year. Five years after Connecticut's most celebrated crime, the Barbara Gibbons murder case, the legislators moved to strengthen a defendant's right to know if the prosecution has information that could clear his or her.

Effective Sunday, the state must disclose to a criminal defendant any information he has that might prove his or her innocence. Also, all law enforcement officers must disclose to the prosecution in writing any "exculpatory" information they have obtained.

Gibbons was slain in 1973 and her son, Peter Reilly, then 18 years old, was charged with murder. He was found guilty of manslaughter but the conviction was eventually tossed out. Still later, Reilly was cleared when it was disclosed the state had withheld for three years evidence that tended to clear him.

Another new law will make public most criminal records held by any state or municipal agency, charges that have been erased and information relating to youthful offenders.

The state also added to $20,000 the amount of rewards leading to the arrest and conviction of suspects in capital crimes. Blaming inflation as one cause, prosecutors said the current $5,000 maximum award does not provide enough incentive for persons to come forward and volunteer information.

Other laws effective Sunday:

—Require persons over 65 from jury duty;

—Allow 18-year-olds to use their photo drivers license as proof to buy alcohol;

—Eliminate requirements that teachers live in the town where they teach;

—Require teachers to turn over to school or law officials within two days any alcohol or drugs taken from students;

—Require that 15 percent of the town's eligible voters must participate before they can reject a proposed teacher's contract in a referendum;

—Require that children under 12 show proof of immunization against rubella. Proof of a rubella immunity test must also be shown by women applying for marriage licenses;

—Establish a bill of rights for mental patients, including the right of unwanted patients to refuse involuntary treatment such as electroshock therapy;

—Prohibit discrimination on the basis of mental retardation by any state agency in hiring practices or by any person contracting to do business with the state.

MHS Study Needs Input

MANCHESTER — Manchester High School is in the process of completing a self-evaluation in preparation for re-evaluating the evaluation team from the New England Association of Schools and Colleges.

As an integral part of this evaluation, 300 parents of Manchester High School students, selected at random, have been contacted through the mail and asked to provide input through a parent opinion inventory.

All parents who have been contacted are asked to take a few minutes of their time to complete the inventory and return it as promptly as possible.

The evaluation process is used primarily for the purpose of accreditation. When a school receives unqualified accreditation, it is endorsed for a period of 10 years. Manchester High School was last evaluated in 1969.

Officials Split on Fund Use

MANCHESTER — A member of the Board of Directors and the town's Health Department have differing views about the use of special state funding to that department.

Because of the difference, Director Joseph Sweeney has sent a letter to attorney David Barry, Manchester's town counsel, and asked for a clarification of the question.

Manchester has received about $9,500 through a new state law that provides a town with 20 cents per resident if the community has its own Health Department.

Members of the department say that the money should be used for new programs or for expansion of existing programs. Sweeney disagrees.

"Nowhere in Public Act No. 78-251 (the legislation in question) does there appear to be any requirement that this state grant money be used for adding to existing programs," Sweeney wrote in his letter to Barry.

The $9,500 was considered part of the General Fund budget to be used to pay costs of the daily operation of the Health Department, Sweeney said.

Ronald Kraatz, an employee in the department, has said that the $9,500 was aimed at new or expanded programs.

"Dr. Alice Turk, direct or health, said today, 'The intent of the legislation always was for new services.'"

She said that legislation being considered for next year would increase the per-person allotment to 40 cents.

The department wants to use the money to fund a staff nurse position funded through the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act program.

Sweeney said in his letter Thursday that the board might cut the department's present budget by $9,500 if the funding in question is used for the staff nurse position.

CETA Jobs Will Remain To Oct. 30

EAST HARTFORD — The town announced Thursday that 39 sustaining level CETA employees will retain their jobs until Oct. 30 instead of Sept. 30, as originally planned.

The 30-day extension is a result of a decision Monday by the Hartford Court of Common Council.

The program was set to end Sept. 30. "Congress has until (today) to pass new legislation," said Thomas Malesky, personnel aide in charge of the town's CETA program.

He said the decision is based on administrative expediency — the fact that it is easier to retain the CETA workers than it is to let them go and be forced to re-hire them if Congress votes to re-fund the program.

"We don't know what the long-term forecast is," Malesky said. "What will happen next is anyone's guess."

The town has sustaining-level CETA workers in parks and recreation, public works, town libraries, Town Hall and the Housing Authority.

On Sept. 8, 54 project-level CETA workers lost their jobs early because of deficit problems in the trouble-ridden Hartford Comprehensive Health Manpower Program, the city agency which runs the program for 25 area towns.

Film Scenes Set at MMH

MANCHESTER — If you should recognize a scene as familiar in a new movie, "Promises in the Dark," it will be because a few scenes will be shot in and outside Manchester Memorial Hospital.

Michael Brandon, who plays a radiologist in the film, has been visiting the Manchester hospital this week learning techniques for interpreting X-rays from the hospital's radiology staff.

Some scenes will show the outside of the hospital. Other scenes with the hospital will show only the lobby, a hospital spokesman said.

The Manchester hospital was to have been used more extensively for location shots, but the movie company has located a private hospital in California which will be used instead.

November Start Likely For Trunk Sewer Line

MANCHESTER — Digging could start in November for a trunk sewer line that will run from Union Pond to beyond Tolland Turnpike.

Jay Giles, director of public works, said today that an early November start is possible if the contractor agrees to extend its contract bid beyond the Oct. 1 signing date.

Giles expects the contractor, Modern Continental Construction Co. of Cambridge, Mass., to extend its bid until increased state and federal funds for the project are approved.

The Cambridge firm was the lowest bidder of three who bid on the project earlier this year. The bid included a clause that the contract be signed by Sunday, which is Oct. 1.

Problems developed, however, because the firm's price of $1,347,279 was $67,000 more than original estimates.

The Town Board of Directors agreed Tuesday to proceed with the project despite the increase. The town's share is paid entirely through assessments of benefiting property owners.

Those assessments could increase from $15 per front foot to $20-$22.

Much of the funding for the project is from state and federal sources. Funding from both has been provided for the work but will have to be increased to meet the increased cost.

Giles expects that there will be no problem obtaining the increased funding from both the state and federal government. But, the paperwork and formal approval has to be done.

He wrote Thursday to the firm, and explained the present situation. The letter was hand-delivered to insure that it would be received immediately, Giles said. Thomas O'Marra of the Public Works Department drove to Sturbridge, Mass. with the letter and gave it to a representative from Metcalf & Eddy, a Boston engineering firm that is a consulting firm for the town.

The Metcalf & Eddy representative then delivered the letter to the contractor.

Giles said that Metcalf & Eddy has spoken to Modern Continental Construction. The firm has indicated no objection to extending its bid past the Oct. 1 date, he said.

If it does not agree to do so, the town might have to rebid the work, he said. Sure and after the court order which threw out the old Blue Laws two years ago.

Both stores exceed the maximum requirements which state that stores and emergency repair shops and more than five workers must close on Sundays.

Sam Rispino, owner of Supreme Foods, said today, "I don't know what we're going to do." He said it is hard to take a position because he does not know what the bigger stores are planning to do.

Crispino also mentioned the question of whether the law was going to be enforced.

The state's new chief prosecutor Austin J. McGuigan Thursday asked Connecticut police chiefs to refrain from arresting store owners who violate the new law. He suggested instead that police contact the state's attorney to get arrest warrants in trying to enforce the complicated laws.

Police chiefs around the state have expressed confusion over the requirements of the new law.

Police Tolerate Sunday Openers; CCLU To Appeal

HARTFORD (UPI) — Police across the state have begun to refrain from arresting store owners who choose to break Connecticut's new "blue" law when it takes effect Sunday.

At the same time, the head of the Connecticut Civil Liberties Union promised Thursday that the state's second attempt at a constitutional Sunday closing law will face the same fate as its predecessor — a court challenge.

Two years ago, a Court of Common Pleas judge declared Connecticut's centuries-old "blue" law unconstitutional, saying it was confining as the first.

The office of the chief state attorney has been flooded with phone calls this week from concerned businessmen who can't tell whether they can legally remain open Sunday when the new law goes on the books.

Austin McGuigan, who was sworn in Thursday as Connecticut's new chief state attorney, said he has sent memorandums to the state's prosecutors explaining the complicated nature of the law.

But he told reporters at his Capitol swearing in ceremony he is recommending authorities meet with local prosecutors before taking any action against stores that violate the Sunday commerce restriction.

Asked if he expected any arrests when the law takes effect, McGuigan said, "No. We are recommending that they (arrests) do not occur Sunday."

Stores owners who observe the Sabbath on a day other than Sunday may keep their establishments open on Sunday. All stores will be allowed to remain open on Sundays during the holiday shopping season between Thanksgiving and Christmas.

Furthermore, drug stores, movie theaters, gas stations, 24-hour convenience stores and a variety of other operations will also be exempt from the law.

Markets Undecided On Sunday Business

Two Manchester supermarkets apparently prohibited by the new state law from opening on Sunday are still undecided as to whether to open this Sunday. The new law goes into effect Sunday.

Highland Park and Crispino's Supreme Foods on Hartford Road. Both stores have been open on Sunday for years and after the court order which threw out the old Blue Laws two years ago.

Expected challenges to the new law by two major companies, have apparently been dropped. Most of the larger retailers throughout the state have indicated they will not remain open this Sunday.

Peter Devanney, president of Highland Park Market, said he is still unsure of what the store will do Sunday. Highland Park Market is about 15,000 square feet. Crispino's is about 12,000 square feet.

Police Pact Talks Go to Fact Finding

By CHRIS BLAKE
Herald Reporter
EAST HARTFORD — The police union and town labor negotiators were unable to resolve the differences during an hour-long session Thursday, so the two groups will go to fact finding Oct. 13.

The meeting with state fact finder James Brown was set up Thursday by G. William Miller, the town's personnel director, after the Thursday morning session with union officials failed to produce an agreement.

Although Miller said he did not think the two groups were far apart coming into the meeting, he said he changed that view after it was over.

"I thought we were at a point where it could be acceptable, but I found out differently," Miller said.

"They wanted some things in the benefits package that we just cannot give them."

Mayor Richard H. Blackstone also participated in Thursday's meeting. William Wilson and three other union officials from local 1089, council 15 of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees also attended the bargaining session. Blackstone said he could not disclose what the town was offering the police union, but he did say the two groups are "far apart on a number of things."

One of those issues, he said, is the benefits package.

"They're looking for more in benefits than we are willing to give them," Blackstone said Thursday afternoon.

The town has settled with both the fire and the municipal employees unions. They have offered the same basic package to both unions — a 10 percent salary increase over two years and increased medical insurance along with a free prescription rider during the second year of the contract.

Both the public works union and the police union, however, have rejected similar packages from the town. The public works union and the town will go to a state mediator in hopes of bringing about a settlement.

Any fact finding settlement must be approved by both the union membership and the Town Council.

Smith Warns About Silence Over Housing Bias

By SUSAN VAUGHN

MANCHESTER — Wilber Smith, the town's new equal opportunity coordinator, warned the social service workers in the town of the danger of silence in regard to discrimination in housing. He told the members of the Manchester Community Services Council Thursday that they each have roles to play in fair housing, "both as service persons and as individuals."

In his first review to the council of his few weeks of work, Smith said, in his opinion, "the greatest barrier to decent housing rests in the hands of those persons who, while not personally involved in discriminatory acts, are largely silent on the issue."

He said, "Silence is a two-headed creature. One is golden the other is consent. I leave it to your imagination as to which is staring us in the face."

Smith pinpointed the silent citizens in town as the object of his most concern for the second time in the past week. He also told the Human Relations Commission last week that he is concerned about the citizens who have not expressed their opinions on equal opportunity one way or the other. He said he is aware of the opposition and the apparent problems with enforcement. The other two barriers to equal opportunities

Smith asked for the council's help in his role to provide fair housing opportunities in Manchester. He said, "We must rid ourselves of the attitude that anything related to fair housing is not our agency's responsibility. We must rid ourselves of the

Gibbons Case Still Open

HARTFORD (UPI) — Austin McGuigan takes on his new role as chief state attorney confronted with trying to enforce a controversial "blue" law that may turn out to be unenforceable.

McGuigan, 34, sworn into office Thursday, said the state's most celebrated case, the 1973 slaying of Mrs. Barbara Gibbons, remains "an open case" that is still under investigation.

McGuigan was sworn in five years to the day Mrs. Gibbons was found slashed and stomped to death in her Falls Village home.

He was given the oath by Gov. Ella Grasso, succeeding Joseph T. Gormley Jr., who resigned Aug. 9 to return to his private law practice.

A native of Boston, McGuigan said he was "deeply gratified" at being appointed to the post. He has served since 1974 as chief prosecutor for the Statewide Organized Crime Investigative Task Force.

On hand at the ceremonies were his family, other state attorneys and Chief Justice of Connecticut William Cotto who appointed McGuigan to succeed Gormley.

Regarding the "blue" laws, McGuigan said he has advised prosecutors not to pursue arrests Sunday when the revised "blue" laws go into effect. Instead he wants them to confer and review complaints before they take any action against businesses that may open in violation of the law.

A court challenge of the new law is expected and businessmen as well as local police chiefs say they are not quite clear on how to interpret the new statute.

McGuigan said the Gibbons case is still open and investigation continue by his office, the Litchfield County prosecutors office and the state police.

Mrs. Gibbons's son, Peter Reilly, was found guilty of manslaughter for her death but the conviction was thrown out. He was eventually cleared by the courts when it was found that the state withheld evidence for three years that tended to prove Reilly innocent.

Reilly, now 23, has filed a suit against the state charging the state police continued to regard him as prime suspect despite the court's finding.

Plane Search Continues With Fewer Volunteers

BRIDGEPORT (UPI) — The number of Civil Air Patrol volunteers involved in the search for a twin-engine plane with three people on board is dwindling, but the organization isn't giving up.

Although 20 to 30 Connecticut CAP and National Guard planes were used initially, the number of CAP planes dwindled to four Thursday.

"A number of the flyers were out of work for three days and they had to go back or get fired," said CAP spokesman Lt. Col. Mickey Faust. "But there's no talk of suspending the search. We feel we're still doing the job."

Searchers concentrated Thursday on the wooded and rocky northwest section of Connecticut and eastern New York.

"That seems to be the general area where most everything has occurred so far," said Mrs. Faust, referring to electronic signals, sightings and noises reported by flyers and residents.

The Cessna-310 commuter plane vanished Monday morning en route from Bridgeport to Albany, N.Y. Authorities said the blue, white and orange striped aircraft had fuel to fly four to six hours when it left Sikorsky Memorial Airport.

On board the air taxi owned by Business Aircraft Corp. of Bridgeport were Leonard Schatz of Stratford and James E. Heap of Trumbull, both executives in the industrial gas turbine program at General Electric's Stamford plant.

Mrs. Faust said the reports are confusing because microwave towers used in radio transmissions give off the same signal as electric locator transmitters in aircraft, which activate on impact or when they're turned on.

"We're trying to fly very low, very slow and look carefully," she said.

She said searchers in New York, who used 14 CAP planes, one helicopter and five National Guard helicopters Thursday, also were covering portions of Connecticut.

Dodd Returns For Campaign

Congressman Christopher J. Dodd (D-2nd District) will return from Washington, D.C., today and his weekend schedule will be highlighted by the old time Whipping Post Fair.

Some South Windsor residents would like to know and so would members of the Fair Association.

In spite of the intense efforts on the part of the local Jaycees and the Knights of Columbus, to make the fair a huge success, the fair — a tradition in South Windsor for almost 100 years — drew some criticism this year from faithful fairgoers.

In an informal telephone survey (made by the Herald correspondent) it was discovered that the majority of those interviewed disliked the fact that most of the booths were "all torn down by Saturday night."

Others expressed disappointment that there was "only one float in the parade," and still others said they disliked the fact that, "by Saturday night what should be an old time fair had turned into a second rate carnival inhabited only by teenagers."

"The only thing going on Saturday night were the rides and the beer tent," one resident said adding there was nothing for families or older people.

Another resident suggested that the fair sponsors insist that the booths remain open from the time the fair begins on Friday night until it closes Sunday.

This same resident said that most people come to the fair to browse through the displays and that the fair is really only going full force from Saturday at noon until sundown.

Parenthood Class Name To Be Chosen Carefully

By BARBARA RICHMOND
Herald Reporter

VERNON — What's in a name? The Committee on Public Education (COPE) feels the school system needs a program to teach "girls about planned parenthood" but feels the name of such a program has to be carefully chosen.

Thursday night the COPE group met for its first meeting of the new school year. Items scheduled for discussion were the student body, Rockville High School, Proposition 13, and busing.

James Moore, committee chairman, said that the small turnout at the meeting must indicate that parents are satisfied with everything.

The suggestion for the development of a planned parenthood program was made at a recent meeting of the PTO Council, by Mary Mott, but the PTO indicated it didn't want any part of such a program.

Committee member Earl Scott, said he feels that COPE should put its weight behind getting such a program started. It was noted that the board had approved the program about five years ago and had been allotted an $8,000 grant, but the program was never really implemented.

More said he will contact Dr. Bernard Sidman, superintendent of schools, to discuss the matter and see if it would be appropriate to have it on the agenda for discussion for the next Board of Education meeting.

Under the direction of Clare Albom, supervisor of the health and drug education, a curriculum guide was prepared for the high school.

The program, as stated in the guide, is a planned mini-course for ninth graders under the guidance of a team teaching unit with students to

Vernon Educators Deny Buses to Sykes School

VERNON — After a public hearing Thursday night the Board of Education voted to reject a request of residents of the Pillsbury Hill and Valerie Drive areas to have their children bused to the Sykes School.

The board was presented with a petition signed by some 50 residents of the area asking for bus transportation for their children who are in Grade 6.

The area is within the one and one-half mile limit for busing. This is the guideline set by the state board and observed by the local board.

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Turk were spokesmen for the residents who cited the steep and hilly route the students have to walk to get to the Sykes School which is in the center of Rockville.

These same students rode the buses last year when they attended Northeast Elementary School but that was more than a mile and one-half from their homes.

This was the first group of parents asking the board to bend its rules. The other two groups were from the Fox Hill and Sleeping Giant apartments. They also had their requests rejected by the board.

All three groups now have the option to apply to the state Board of Education for a formal hearing to appeal the local board's decision.

"I'd like to get these filled as we have been very busy," Mrs. Dunbar said. In addition, she can use more people on some of the extra lists."

Regular transportation and telephone workers for the South Windsor FISH volunteer for one specific day each month. "Extra workers" are called when additional staff is needed, and help out at that time they happen to be available. Persons wanting to volunteer or to get more information from Mrs. Dunbar should call the FISH Hotline at Number, 643-1055, and leave a message with the operator.

COEP Students Add New Program

The Cooperative Occupational Education Program (COEP) has been in existence at MHS for many years and has been a big success. First the Distributive Educational Clubs of America (DECA) was created to fill the needs of COEP students. Recently the Business Work Experience Program (BWEPE) has arisen from the COEP department.

BWEPE is a program open only to seniors who have had at least one year of business education or are enrolled in at least one business course, such as legal typing, shorthand or accounting. Students enrolled in BWEPE go to school in the morning and work in the afternoon or evening. Individual skills, attitudes and knowledge in secretarial, clerical and bookkeeping areas are emphasized.

The program's main goal is to graduate not only students but also experienced office workers adjusted to the business world.

Students are involved only in office work. They work in banks, insurance companies and manufacturing plants. One student works for the Town of Manchester. Data processing, accounting, secretarial practice and business law are a few of the areas in which students work.

After a potential employer consults with the work coordinator, work stations are set up and evaluation procedures are started. Students are interviewed and hired at the employer's discretion. Once hired, they are paid at current wage rates.

The employers gain by getting part-time help from those who have many business education. Many businesses also retain graduates of BWEPE students, who by then are completely trained.

The students also reap profits from their participation. They learn skills

Spirit Here and Pride High

SPRIT and PRIDE! They're hand in hand again in MHS.

Yes, the once apathetic student population is no longer visible, the vandalism of recent years has apparently been curbed, and the students are truly taking an interest in the school.

Last Friday the Student Assembly kicked off a spirit campaign which was highlighted by a Red 'n' White Day and several sports events culminating with the opening football game. The Red 'n' White idea was tremendous with over 800 carnations sold. The students were really fired up, and during the morning announcements they received a pep talk of sorts. Rob Saunders, the Student Assembly president, soundly made the point that MHS is something in which we can take pride.

As if in response to the great enthusiasms of the students and faculty, the athletic teams came through in the clutch. The soccer, field hockey, and boys cross country teams posted victories and even the football team found it within their power to put MHS in the win column.

A fine indication of the fresh outburst to support the school was found in the Student Assembly's sale of

Med Club in Third Year

One of MHS's smallest and potentially most valuable clubs, the Medical Club, started its new year Sept. 19, meeting to elect officers and discuss plans for programs. From the enthusiastic turnout at the meeting, we have a lot of hope for a good year.

The officers elected for this year are as follows: Kevin Davis, president; Laurie Patarni, vice president; Mike Wilson, secretary.

These three people will be planning programs and helping to run the club along with our advisor, Miss Andrea Deary.

A lot of you may not have heard much about the Med Club and are wondering what it is all about. The club is made up of a group of about 15 students interested in pursuing a career in some medical field. At our meetings we have speakers from different medical professions who talk about their training and their jobs. Last year our speakers were mostly physicians, but this year we

Losing Bucks Battles

Probably the biggest "growth industry" in American politics is the field of political action committees (PACs) established by corporations, trade associations and other business groups to channel campaign contributions to favored candidates for public office.

With much of that money going to candidates for House and Senate seats, business groups tend to favor the Democratic chairmen of the congressional committees and subcommittees with jurisdiction

Other Editors Say:

The statistics released by the Federal Election Commission on special-interest political fund-raising and where the money goes made a compelling case for public financing of congressional campaigns. As the figures showed for the first six months of this year, special-interest money was flowing disproportionately to incumbents, with challengers largely left out in the cold.

The breakdown was $7.5 million, or 71 percent, going to the officeholders while those who would like to dislodge them had to make do with about 12 percent, only $1.3 million. The rest of the nearly $11 million that had been doled out by interests as of July 1 went to candidates vying for vacant seats.

The 6-1 edge in contributions from the big corporate, union and trade political-action groups is, of course, just one of the advantages that a sitting congressman enjoys. He also has mailing privileges, a paid staff, an office for two in the district and, in most cases, a greater command of the media because of his work in Washington. It is little wonder that, for all the public's dissatisfaction with Congress, incumbents are rarely unseated.

MHS Notes

The football team's 20-15 victory over Fern is a sure sign of things to come. Jack Holli's one win and no loss warriors not only won their first game in '80, but they also share first place in the CCIL.

The total number of sophomores called down to the office of Vice Principal Boudo now outnumbered members of the football team by about ten to one.

If you had intended to buy an SAA ticket, you've blown it. Tickets went off sale Wednesday.

The 1978-1979 Round Table Singers have been selected — 80 of them. Each year the group becomes harder for Miss Martha White to handle, but each year it seems to grow a little larger.

Informed Sources

A prime example was the late Senator Woodworth, chief of staff on the Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation, which worked on energy taxation. A reporter could get all the facts and opinion he wanted from Woodworth, but had to call him on a "committee source" or "former source" or "committee staff." Otherwise, Woodworth's name would have been sprinkled throughout the stories, much more than any congressman on the committee.

At one point in the Senate's tense preparation to vote on sending the natural gas bill back to death in committee, Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., had a tally sheet showing who was on his side and who against and who undecided. But because some of his pledges were conditional and others just shy of an early commitment, Jackson did not want his name used in stories citing the numbers on that tally sheet. So, he became "a Senate source" or "a source who would not allow his name to be used."

Congress: Rule Thyself

When Congress passed the Freedom of Information Act, in mandating that every department and agency in the executive branch of the federal government make available for public inspection the papers and documents in their possession.

Everything Congress does in its official capacity also is the public's business—but in drafting the act, the legislators excluded their files from public scrutiny.

When it became apparent that some Freedom of Information Act disclosures were violating personal privacy, Congress passed the Privacy Act to safeguard government-held information relating to individual citizens. Again, Congress was exempted.

A Parable About Ice Cream
Making homemade ice cream was a traditional summer and fall activity of my family. We started with all the natural ingredients, including the freshest fruits that my home in Ohio could produce. We began using a hand cranked ice cream maker which always resulted in impatient and tired muscles and quick tempers for us kids.

Perhaps to minister to this problem and at the same time alleviate their own muscular pains, my parents bought an electric motor-driven ice cream maker. That was fantastic. We all stood around the kitchen, preparing the mixture and tasting it frequently to make sure it was OK. Then we'd pour it into the canister add lots of ice and salt, flavor the motor, and go for a swim in nearby Lake Erie. And by the time we were tired from swimming, we came home and — presto — the ice cream was ready.

Taxes and Spending

To the editor:
The questions of taxation and government spending have become major issues in this year's political campaigns. The passage of Proposition 13 in California has made us realize that it is possible to reverse the big spending trends of state governments.

I for one have enough trouble dealing with increases in prices. I don't buy the argument that it's necessary to increase state spending and eventually taxes at double the rate of inflation. If government spends our money as cautiously as we as individuals do, the state can still continue to provide the essential services that we need.

You and I have an opportunity to make sure that state spending will increase at a reasonable rate in the future. We can do it by supporting candidates for the State Legislature who support the passage of the amendment to limit increases in state spending.

I don't pretend to understand what political or psychological forces work on our well intentioned legislators when they get to Hartford. I do know that they increased state

Band Shell A Success

To the editor:
A special thanks to all the fine people that helped to make the Bicentennial Band Shell a success this year. A tribute to our 1978 Bicentennial Music Man, Ralph MacCarone, who stood alone and fast, that Manchester would have a music shell that would last.

It was his great love for good music that inspired us all to work with him, that all of Manchester would share in the music programs he would prepare. When we all said, "well our work is done," Ralph's great patience and endurance, many fine programs were conducted this summer and fall at the new and beautiful hand shell.

Ralph's thanks and satisfaction came from all the fact that at last he saw it all, especially the happy faces shining from the good music and sunshine as the people sat on the hillside and listened and clapped.

Thanks again,

World Registers Shock, Sorrow

By United Press International
The world today registered shock, surprise, and sorrow that it had not gotten to better know the smiling little man from the Italian mountains who became Pope John Paul I.

The hierarchy of the church turned to prayer for solace and urged the world's 700 million Roman Catholics to do the same as they grieved over Albino Luciani's unexpected death Thursday, only 34 days into his papacy.

"I couldn't believe it," said Holland's primate, Cardinal Jan Willebrands. "It is so unbelievable that I myself immediately called the Vatican."

Willebrands, whose name was among those mentioned as a possible successor to Pope Paul VI, said John Paul extended a joy "that made such a warm and Christian impression."

The archbishop of Paris, Francois Marty, said the news of Pope John Paul's death was "shock and sadness the entire world." He was throughout the Republic, were lowered to half staff and Irish Republicans scrapped its regular programs to pay somber music.

"The world had lost a great and humble messenger for peace. Mankind would mourn his untimely death," Fraser said.

Hostesses and stewards of Alitalia Airlines ended a strike after only nine hours Friday after learning of the death of the pope in order not to interfere with the travel of cardinals and others coming to Rome as a result of the pope's death.

What we must all do now is pray," he said. Cardinal Leo Suenens, primate of Belgium, said he prayed to God to give the soul of Pope John Paul the rest he never sought on earth because of his devotion.

"This was a very promising pontificate," Suenens says. "The election of Albino Luciani was for me and the others there a source of great peace."

Monsignor Jean Etcheberry, archbishop of Marseille, said he was "dumbfounded and overcome with grief."

Guidry Responded to Grand Entrance Reception With Masterful Showing

NEW YORK (UPI) - When a pennant race is as nervously close as the New York-Boston Red Sox drama is now, with three days remaining in the regular season, the ballpark becomes a theatre and the players seem like actors on a stage of grass.

Ron Guidry, the Yankees' soft-spoken pitcher, made the grand entrance Thursday night in a style John Barrymore would have envied. Like a gladiator about to do battle, Guidry walked 400 feet across the field from the left field bullpen to the dugout before the game with Toronto, to a level draped over his precious left shoulder, while the crowd of 30,400 stood and cheered.

His brown-tinted, larger-than-life image was video-beamed on a giant screen in centerfield and his face seemed expressionless as he tipped his hat just before the dugout steps. "It was a good feeling, being out there alone and hearing the crowd like that," Guidry said later.

Guidry was larger than life all season for the Yankees and against the Blue Jays he was once again simply too good. It was not his best performance of the year, but rather a game going into the final three-game series, hosts Toronto Friday, Saturday and Sunday while New York is at home against Cleveland.

If the Red Sox can catch the Yankees, Guidry will likely face ex-Yankee Mike Torrez on Monday in a playoff. That game will figure in Guidry's regular season statistics and would affect his bid for the regular season.

His 889 winning percentage is the best in Yankee history by a 20-game winner. His 1.72 ERA is the lowest by a left-hander in either league since Carl Hubbell's 1.68 ERA in 1933.

His 243 strikeouts gives him the all-time Yankee single season record, four more than Jack Chesbro's 239 in 1904.

Boston, which trails New York by a single game going into the final three-game series, hosts Toronto Friday, Saturday and Sunday while New York is at home against Cleveland.

The good news is the Los Angeles Rams have rebounded impressively from a disastrous pre-season and appear to be a powerhouse; the bad news is the Rams may be too good. Rozelle, constantly emphasizing "competitive balance," has it in five of the NFL's six divisions, but if the Rams beat the New Orleans Saints this Sunday, they will vault to a three-game lead with more than two thirds of the season remaining.

The Saints, 2-2, are big underdogs at home to the 4-1 Rams, but New Orleans has tradition - and the French Quarter - on its side. The Rams have beaten the Saints in 14 of their 18 meetings, but all four New Orleans victories have come at home.

What's deadly serious as far as the Saints are concerned is the fact that the Rams' strength is the Saints' weakness.

Los Angeles has allowed only four yards rushing through four games and New Orleans has rushed for only 400 yards, so 100 looks like the not-so-magic number for the Saints' rushing game this week. In their victory last

LeFlore for Lynn Trade Talk Denied

DETROIT (UPI) - General managers of the Detroit Tigers and Boston Red Sox reportedly have denied the two American League clubs were ever considering swapping their star center-fielders, Ron LeFlore and Fred Lynn.

LeFlore, who sat out Thursday night's 1-0 loss by the Tigers to the Red Sox with a badly bruised heel, has had his third outstanding season in a row, leading the American League in stolen bases. He also has pushed his far and a near 300-batting average and a league-leading 129 runs scored.

Some fans have become disenchanted with the slick-fielding LeFlore. The Red Sox glamour boy three years ago as a rookie.

"I've had no discussions whatsoever along those lines," said Jim Campbell, Tiger president-general manager, of a Lynn-LeFlore trade in an interview in the Detroit Free Press.

"In my conversations with (Boston general manager) Haywood (Sullivan), I've never even mentioned Fred Lynn's name. And Haywood has never mentioned Ron LeFlore to me."

"I don't know, but I don't think Detroit's manager is interested in making a deal like that," said Sullivan. "In any event, there's nothing to it. It's just a rumor somebody made up."

"To tell you the truth, I think this is the best year I've ever had," said LeFlore, whose life story detailing his rise from Southern Michigan Prison at Jackson where he was serving 5-15 for armed robbery to the Tigers, was chronicled this week on national television in "One in a Million."

"My batting average is not as high as it was last year (.325) but my production overall is way up."

"In fact, I'd say I've had three great years in a row. Not just good years, great years. I've improved my fielding, my running, everything."

Doug DeCinces slammed his 27th homer and Jim Palmer and Don Stanhouse combined on a four-hitter, leading Baltimore to a three-game sweep of Cleveland.

Detroit's snafu drove in four runs with his eighth homer and a single, and the Angels spotted Chicago a 4-0 lead in the first inning before rallying for a triumph over the White Sox.

Rangers 4, Mariners 3
Toby Harrah drove in a pair of runs with a seventh-inning single, Jim Sandberg drove in the go-ahead run with an eighth-inning forecourt and Texas reliever Jim Umberger yielded one hit over the final three innings to lead the Rangers to victory over the Mariners.

Astro 4, Braves 3
Rafael Landestam drove in Reggie Baldwin with the winning run in the seventh inning and J.R. Richard, 18-11, surpassed the 300-strikeout mark, lifting Houston over Atlanta.

Reds 8, Dodgers 1 and ended a wild six-run, ninth-inning rally with singles, knocking in the winning run with two out and leading Cincinnati over Los Angeles.

help. We're one back and I don't have much to smile about," Zimmer said, cracking a grin. "It would be great to have Torrez pitch on Monday (in a tie-breaker against the Yankees). I'll tune him up for Monday ... I hope."

Boston has the entertain the Toronto Blue Jays tonight in the final series of the season. Bob Stanley, 14-2, was scheduled to start with Boston. Jim Clancy, 10-11, was slated to pitch for the Blue Jays.

"I made up my mind before the play what I was going to do," Lynn said. "I know Jason wasn't running well because of a sprained ankle. I knew if I fielded it cleanly I'd have a good chance to get him."

Rice moved to within three of the coveted 400 total base mark when he launched a Kip Young fastball through a stiff cross-wind into the center field seats. But the Tigers couldn't win it for the Kipper, whose record dipped to 6-7.

"I got behind him and that was the first mistake. The second mistake was giving him a fastball. Sometimes you get Rice and sometimes he gets you," said Young, who yielded just three hits.

"I'm convinced now that if he (Rice) doesn't win the MVP award, it will be a crime," said Bob Manager Don Zimmer. Of Rice's 45 homers, 30 have either tied the game or put the Red Sox ahead and 28 have come with men on base.

Zimmer was pleased with Torrez's performance, despite the seven walks. But he again sent out a plea for help on the part of Yankee opponents.

"We need help, oh, do we need it?"

"I've been wondering if I'm not used to it. The last three weeks have been very disappointing. It's a feeling I would not want anyone to have."

Catcher Carlton Fisk said he thought Torrez was more in control mentally than he had been in the past.

"His concentration was good and he had just one thing in mind - to keep the ball down. He seemed more focused win again."

CSEA May Not Make Any Endorsement

HARTFORD (UPI) — The bitter memory of a massive Christmas layoff three years ago may keep Connecticut's largest state employees union from backing either of the gubernatorial candidates.

"They got stung the last time they endorsed someone," Al Marotta, president of the Connecticut State Employees Association, explained Thursday. The union represents about 32,000 of the state's 40,000 workers.

At its annual meeting four years ago, the CSEA endorsed Ella Grasso, then a two-term congresswoman. It was the first time in the union's 34-year history that the CSEA had endorsed a gubernatorial candidate.

The following Christmas, Mrs. Grasso, citing the need for austerity measures, laid off 800 low-level state employees. They have since been rehired.

But Marotta said the bitter memory of the layoffs still weighs heavy on the minds of many of the delegates attending the 37th annual CSEA convention at the Hartford Hilton.

"There is a feeling maybe we should not make an endorsement," he said. "Both Mrs. Grasso and her Republican challenger, Rep. Ronald Sarasin, made a pitch Thursday for the state workers' support."

Sarasin, a three-term congressman from the economically depressed Naugatuck Valley, poked at the tender wound left by the Christmas layoffs.

"Austerity does not begin and end with the people who work in the state government nor with the citizens they serve. Austerity begins at the top with cutbacks in political pay off jobs," he said, prompting an outbreak of applause.

"I will not, I repeat, I will not lay off state employees at Christmas time or any other time," he said. "I can think of nothing that would result in mass layoffs of people."

Mrs. Grasso, who had a cordial chat with Sarasin in a side room before the speeches, reminded the union members she helped push through the first collective bargaining law for state employees.

The governor also fired questions from the delegates during a 15-minute question and answer period.

She told the state workers she would push for some sort of binding arbitration law in the upcoming legislative session.

Accord Due At University

BRIDGEPORT (UPI) — With luck, the six-day strike by professors at the University of Bridgeport will be settled by next week. The question, according to some school officials, is how.

University President Leland Miles told students Thursday that the university intends to resolve the current problem before Tuesday, Oct. 3, when classes are scheduled to resume after Rosh Hashanah, a Jewish holiday.

"I earnestly hope the resolution will be a contract settlement," he said. "The 50-member campus chapter of the American Association of University Professors went on strike last Friday, objecting to changes in contract language demanded by the administration."

Robert Goldstein, a union lawyer, said Miles' statement was "vaguely threatening," but added, "I don't know what it means."

Union President Norman Douglas said if the president was "ready to deal," the strike could end Thursday night.

"All he has to do is accept the old contract," Douglas said.

The professors are angry because the administration wants to revise contract language which gives the faculty a voice in academic programs.

"A better way of banking means giving you the loan you want, fast."

Sometimes the view from a window leaves much to be desired. In some cases what's outdoors may be no more visually exciting than a blank wall or a neighbor's weed-infested backyard. One way to avoid such "eyesores" is to design a window treatment that draws attention to itself rather than what lies beyond.

Built-in shelving to focus attention on your taste in books or bric-a-brac, for instance, could serve to banish the visual monotony of a room without a view. Or, to divert attention from the outdoors, you might install glass shelves in the window to display your favorite plants.

Another decorative suggestion is a macramé hanging situated over the window. Surround the window with hanging plants and floor plants & the effect is very pleasing to the eye.

Another solution with hardly any bother is to install movable wood shutters. Actually, the shutters are operating louvers, which lend either casual or formal decor. They come in stock sizes and can be purchased at local lumber dealers or home centers.

Movable wood shutters can be painted or stained to bring out the rich, natural wood grain. When completely closed they look like rich wood paneling.

A special advantage in using movable wood shutters to hide an unattractive view is that even when closed, some light and air comes through, yet the window area retains a "eat, uncluttered look."

DEAR ABBY: I have never seen this subject in your column, but I think it's worth mentioning. I am constantly baffled as to why so few people, male or female, lower the toilet lid after use.

Oldest Tapestry

NEW YORK (UPI) — The oldest surviving piece of European embroidery, the Bayeux tapestry, was done on a strip of linen 231 feet long and 20 inches wide. In 72 embroidered tableaux worked in eight colors of thread, it pictured the Norman Conquest of England in 1066 and is thought to have been worked by Matilda, the wife of William the Conqueror, and her ladies.

Sporty Camaro "Berlinetta" debuts . . . a sporty and luxurious new top-of-the-line model joins the popular Camaro for 1979. The Berlinetta has unique pin striping, bright two-tier grille treatment, black painted rocker panels, body-color styled wheels and special rear lamp styling. Inside, Berlinetta has a new custom interior and special bucket seats, available on other Camaro models as options. Berlinetta's standard paint striping includes dual pin stripes across the front and rear bumpers, around side and rear windows, across the rear deck over taillights, along rocker panels and around sport mirrors. Standard power is the 4.1 litre (250 CID) L-6 engine, with options of a 5.0 litre G305 CID and 5.7 litre (350 CID) V-8 engines. Both of the V-8s have new exhaust gas recirculation and cold driving improvements. The complete Camaro lineup includes z28 Sport Coupe, Rally Sport Coupe and Sport Coupe, in addition to the Berlinetta Coupe.

Corvette's 26th Edition . . . comes refined for 1979 in engine, handling and interior comfort. The standard 5.7-litre engine has increased horsepower and improvements to aid cold engine driveability. Automatic transmission-equipped Corvettes have more responsive performance throughout the speed ranges due to engine modifications and an increase in the rear axle ratio from 3:08 to 3:55. The highback bucket seats introduced on the mid-1978 Limited Edition are now standard. The seat has a high pivot point which allows the right-hand back to fold flat, level with the luggage area load floor. A savings of about 24 pounds per car is accomplished by the use of fiberglass reinforced plastic for the seat shell.

Mid-size Malibu Classics . . . for 1979 feature new front and rear styling and present two new optional engines. A new horizontally divided four-tier grille and new taillight design are styling highlights. More power and performance variety are offered with two new optional engines: a 4.4 litre (267 CID) V-8 generates 31 percent more power than the standard 3.3 litre (200 CID) V-6. At the top power range, a four-barrel carburetor version of the 5.0 litre two-barrel V-8 of 1978, provides 28 percent more power than the middle-range option. (Two engines, a 3.8 litre (321 CID) and 5.0 litre four-barrel V-8, are available for California.)

Nova appeal for 1979 . . . is enhanced with a new front end appearance. A massive new grille, which is common to both Nova and Nova Custom models, has prominent horizontal bars inset with clear rectangular parking lamps. All models have new single rectangular headlamps. The rear has a single treatment for all models, also, with dual segment tail lamps. The line features an improved anti-theft steering column lock, and the available 5.0-litre V-8 has improved exhaust gas recirculation and cold starting systems.

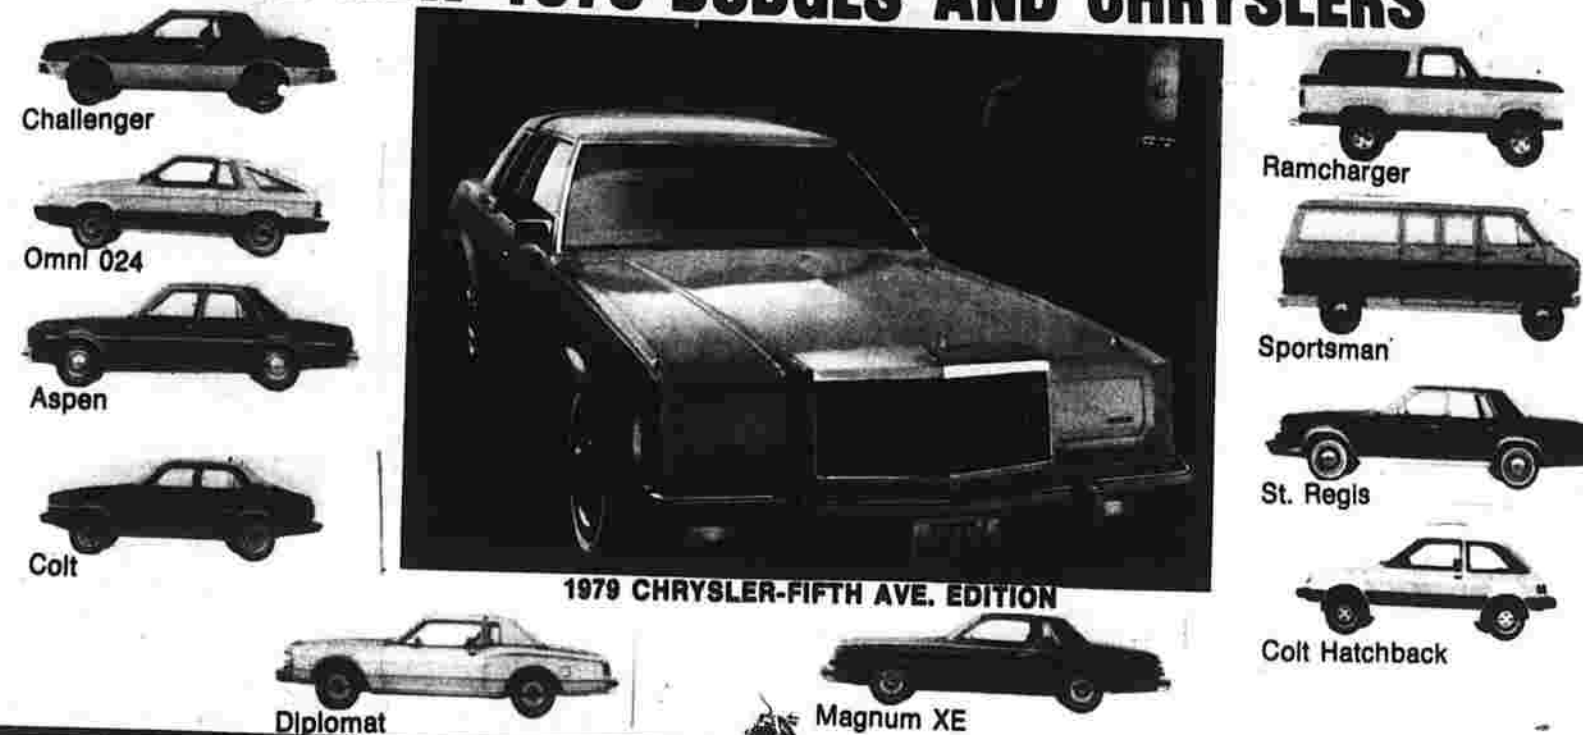

CARTER CHEVROLET

Caprice Classic — Car and Wagon . . . share new front and rear styling for 1979, and a number of engineering improvements. Styling features a new, segmented grille for more vertical look and a reinforced-fiberglass, molded header panel which gives crisper definition to the front while providing weight savings. The rear has wider taillight clusters with backup lights positioned beneath them. The car's standard 4.1 litre L-6 engine is combined with a new 2.56:1 axle ratio (replacing the 2.73:1 ratio) for improved fuel economy. And the optional 5.0 litre engine (which is standard on the wagon) has new Dualjet carburetor, designed to improve economy, driveability and emission control with its accurate, precise metering system. And both the 5.0 V-8 and top power option 5.7 litre V-8 have new exhaust gas recirculation systems to aid in reducing emissions and offer improved cold start capability through a system that traps the vacuum spark in an advanced position during cold engine operation. (Note: The trapped vacuum spark system is not available in California.)

'79 Monte Carlo gets broader power . . . Monte Carlo's distinctive styling for 1979 is complemented with a new look front and rear, along with the addition of two new V-8 engines. The standard engine remains the 3.3 litre (200 CID) two-barrel V-6; optional engines include a refined 3.8 litre V-6 (231 CID), new 4.4 litre (267 CID) V-8, and 5.0 litre (305 CID) four-barrel V-8. (The 3.8 litre V-6 and the 5 litre four-barrel V-8 are available in California.) All of the optional engines have refinements to improve operating efficiency. There's a new grille with prominent vertical bars, and wrap-around side marker lamps add more integrated appearance to both front and rear. Both Monte Carlo (above) and Monte Carlo Landau have new anti-theft steering column lock, improved exhaust gas recirculation and cold start systems. (Note: the cold start system is not available in California.)

Corvette is set for 1979 . . . the Chevrolet Chevette has styling and engineering refinements to solidify its position as an American subcompact favorite. A distinctive new grille and shortened hood add class to the front appearance. Both standard and optional 1.6 litre engines have extensive refinements including new staged, two-barrel carburetor that provides steady, positive power in the first stage and good freeway acceleration and passing ability in the second stage. Heavier pistons add to durability and there is a replaceable air cleaner element which cuts maintenance cost. Power trains are the same in all states. The line consists of two and four-door hatchback models, and "Scooter" hatchback coupe. (The two-door, hatchback with "E" striping is shown.)

The Brownstone Restaurant

The Brownstone at Asylum and Trumbull streets in Hartford is ready to serve you in a plush atmosphere.

The building is one of the few remaining brownstone structures in Hartford.

The first tenant was the Charter Oak Bank. Greer's Hartford Directory for 1865 lists the bank and an advertisement for the National Fire Insurance Co. of Hartford, which occupied the second floor.

The Brownstone offers luncheon Monday through Saturday, 11:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. and dinner, seven days a week. Dinner is Monday through Thursday from 5 to 10 p.m.; Friday and Saturday from 5 to 11 p.m. and Sunday from 4 to 9 p.m.

There is also a brunch on Saturday and Sunday from 11:30 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Happy hour is 4 to 7 p.m. daily.

The atmosphere is Victorian. Chandeliers and wrought-iron railings from the demolished Bigelow-Sanford Mill in Enfield, stained glass windows from the First Church of Christ in Wethersfield and lumber from an 18th century Willimantic home were used to decorate the restaurant.

Disco music is offered in the Rumbottom Room, Tuesday through Saturday nights, and piano music on the terrace.

Davis Family Restaurant

Stop in and say hello to the Davis Family Restaurant owners, Agnes and her sons James and Butch.

The Davis Family Restaurant is located in the Caldor Shopping Plaza, Burr Corners, in Manchester. The menu features U.S.D.A. choice beef, fresh fish, and Italian food which is personally prepared by Butch and James. Their specialties include homemade soup, onion rings, and scrumptious desserts.

Monday through Wednesday, the Davis Family Restaurant features twelve dinner specials at only $3.49 each. They include soup or juice and baked potato with tossed salad. BYOB if you desire.

Boyd's Steakhouse

Bob and Jean Bogue, the host and hostess of Boyd's Steakhouse in Windham are celebrating their ninth year in business and invite you to join them.

The specialty of the house is their popular baked stuffed shrimp with salad bar and a potato fixed to your taste. Homemade Maine style chowder is always available along with a variety of other homemade soups. Steamers are also served nightly.

A clean, pleasant atmosphere complements a menu that includes a large number of appetizers, sandwiches, Italian dishes, cold platters, and a children's menu.

Boyd's Steakhouse and Lounge is open all legal liquor hours and is on Route 6 in North Windham, just off I-86. Phone 423-6433.

Fiorello's Restaurant

When George and Ray Farino decided several years ago to convert their successful West Hartford nightclub into an Italian restaurant, they weren't thinking in terms of the usual Italian-American culinary compromise. "We wanted something completely authentic," says George, "something that would bring a great deal of style and sophistication to Italian dining in Connecticut." The result was Fiorello's, which the Farinos describe as one of the most unique Italian restaurants in the state. "The type you would find in Rome or New York."

Not only does Fiorello's offer more than 60 delectable, abundant and painstakingly prepared items on its exclusively Italian menu, but it surrounds its patrons with an elegant and tastefully aesthetic Italian provincial motif that includes a picturesque fountain and murals which practically transport you to the provinces of Italy while you enjoy the fare. The atmosphere is further enhanced on weekends by strolling violinists who serenade diners with Italian folk melodies and operatic arias in addition to taking requests.

Among the many tantalizing Italian specialties available is Mediterranean Pesce Mistar, a seafood dish for two that features a whole Maine lobster, shrimp, scrod, clams, scallops, king crab, scungilli, and calamari, cooked to order in one of three clam sauces, and served over a bed of linguine.

Fiorello's also features business luncheons and a congenial cocktail lounge with entertainment, and has semi-private areas to accommodate small parties.

Fiorello's is located at 904 Farmington Avenue, West Hartford.

Tommy's Pizzerias

Lovers of fine Italian food can be doubly pleased for now there are two Tommy's Pizzerias.

One is located at 206 W. Center St. and Tommy's Pizzeria II is at 269 E. Center St., both in Manchester.

Tommy has been in the pizza business for 12 years. Each store has a clean open kitchen so you can see your meals being prepared to your individual taste.

Tommy makes his own sausage, meatballs, dough, lasagna, ravioli, pizza sauce and spaghetti sauce.

Not only is there pizza and grinders, but ravioli, spaghetti shells or lasagna are cooked to order. Every item on the menu can be put up to take out.

The store hours are Sunday, noon to 10 p.m.; Tuesday through Thursday, 11 a.m. to 10 p.m.; and Friday and Saturday, 11 a.m. to 1 a.m.; closed on Mondays.

For a real taste treat, try Tommy's Pizzerias.

Casa Nova Restaurant

"Benvenuti a Casa Nova" reads the large plaque in the newly remodeled dining room at the Casa Nova.

Head chef and owner Victor Benaquista and his partner, Gino DiGennaro invite you to join them for a leisurely evening in a relaxed Italian atmosphere. Both Victor and Gino are from Italy and have brought with them the fine art of Italian cooking, making Casa Nova one of the finest family restaurants in the area.

Besides Italian food, Casa Nova specializes in seafood and a select list of fine wines enhances the flavor. Banquet facilities for 10 to 60 people are also available for any occasion.
