Arms Advances

WASHINGTON (UPI) — High-technology developments that could carry the United States into a new era of weaponry were discussed in an interview Thursday by a senior Pentagon official, who refused to be identified. He said that by the early 1980s the Pentagon will be ready to test a satellite-killing weapon and perhaps be able to decide whether laser beams — sometimes described as a type of "death ray" — will make practical weapons.

Teamster Plan

HARBOR SPRINGS, Mich. (UPI) — In a blistering speech to Michigan Teamsters leaders Thursday, Teamsters President Frank E. Fitzsimmons said he expects the Carter administration to impose a 7 percent wage-hike guideline before December, when his union begins contract talks with the nation's freight haulers. But, he said, the powerful truckers' union will not become a "whipping boy" for government inflation fighters but will resist Carter administration efforts to hold down wages. "When we negotiate the national master freight agreement we are going to see to it that Teamsters remain in the economic mainstream of the American way of life."

Florida Runoff

MIAMI (UPI) — Wealthy developer Robert Graham soundly defeated Attorney General Robert Shubin for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination Thursday in a primary runoff, with 54 percent of the vote. After conceding, Shubin promised to help Graham defeat GOP nominee Jack Eckerd in the Nov. 7 general election.

Eckerd, who watched the returns on television at home, telephoned the Graham camp, offered his congratulations and agreed to a debate at the Miami Tiger Bay Club in mid-October.

Beirut Fighting Fierce

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Fierce fighting between Syrian troops and rightwing Christian forces spread throughout Beirut today, and shellfire hit the grounds of the U.S. Embassy. Rightist forces said they repelled a Syrian tank attack near the road from Damascus.

The State Department in Washington said 13 people were injured in the shelling, including two Marines. One blast blew out the glass in the embassy's front door.

The battling escalated for the fifth day in the battered, burning city and surrounding hills despite an urgent appeal from President Carter for a cease-fire and an Israeli gunboat attack that was seen as a warning to Syria to stop its shelling of Christian strongholds.

In Moscow, Syrian President Hafez Al-Assad ended two days of intensive talks with Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev. Moscow reports said he was expected to leave immediately for Lebanon following receipt of an urgent message from Carter asking his aid in arranging a cease-fire there.

At least six Lebanese employees of the embassy were among the wounded when three shells slammed into the immediate vicinity of the U.S. building in mid-morning. One of the shells exploding on the embassy grounds.

The Israeli-Syrian confrontation — the first between an Arab state and Israel since the 1973 war — posed a threat to the delicate Camp David accords and carried the seeds of a fifth Middle East war.

A high U.S. official at the United Nations said Washington probably will ask the Security Council to force a cease-fire in Beirut if the fighting between Syrian forces and Christian rightists does not end this weekend.

The official confirmed the United States has been in contact with Moscow — where Syrian President Hafez Assad is visiting — in an effort to contain the fighting.

The Beirut fighting, which erupted before dawn Monday, has eclipsed the ferocity of the battles of Lebanon's 19-month civil war — which involved leftist Moslems, Palestinians and Christian militias. There are no reliable casualty estimates.

Police said at least 350 Lebanese have died in five days. There were no Syrian casualty figures, but Christians said they had inflicted "heavy losses" and claimed to have seen truckloads of Syrian corpses.

Philip Gordon of 28 St. John St. explains to Deputy Chief William Griffin and Chief John Rivosa of the Town Fire Department that he was not home when a fire started in his apartment Thursday afternoon. Fire Damages Apartments

MANCHESTER — A smoky hot fire at 28-30 St. John St. caused extensive damage to one apartment and less damage to two others Thursday afternoon.

No one was at home at the time of the fire which was called into the Town Fire Department by two residents around 12:55 p.m.

The fire, which started in the first floor kitchen, appears to have been caused by discarded smoking materials in a waste basket, Deputy Chief William D. Griffin said today. The fire extended into a kitchen closet and spread up the nearby chimney and pipes into the second floor apartment where a wall had to be torn down by firefighters. The fire was stopped before it spread into the third floor, Griffin said, but left extensive damage to the kitchen, pantry and part of a hallway on the first floor, some damage to the second floor and smoke damage to all three apartments.

Griffin said he did not yet have an estimate of the damages, but expects it will be several thousand dollars worth.

The fire was confined and out in about a half hour. Griffin said the firefighters did a "terrific job with the amount of smoke and heat in the fire." A total of 21 Scot air bottles were used by firefighters during the blaze.

Over 50 firefighters, including off-duty paid and volunteer firemen responded to the alarm with three engines and a ladder truck.

Philip Gordon, a resident of the first floor apartment, arrived home after the fire was out.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate today gave new life to the Equal Rights Amendment, voting to extend the ratification period by more than three years.

If its supporters are successful in garnering approval of three more state legislatures in the next three years and three months, the much-debated ERA will take its place as the 7th Amendment to the Constitution.

When the 60-36 vote was announced by Vice President Walter Mondale, onlookers in the galleries burst into applause.

Since the House has already approved it in identical form, the measure now goes to the White House to be signed into law. President Carter is a strong supporter and he, Mrs. Carter and Mondale joined in the lobbying effort to secure its approval in the Senate.

A number of prominent feminists were on hand for the vote as well as the leading ERA opponent, Phyllis Schlafly. In a news conference before the vote, she labeled the extension proposal "a fraud" and predicted a court challenge of the legality of the congressional move.

"I am confident that the states that have continually rejected the Equal Rights Amendment for the last six-and-one-half years will continue to do so," Mrs. Schlafly said. "This so-called extension does not give them even one additional state, and we will continue to defeat the Equal Rights Amendment."

The proposal would extend the March 22, 1979, ratification deadline for 39 months, to June 30, 1982. It is the first time Congress has ever lengthened the period of time state legislatures have to consider a constitutional amendment.

Until the 18th Amendment — prohibition — Congress set no time limits whatever for proposed constitutional amendments. The 18th Amendment and all but one after that have carried seven-year time limits. The sole exception was the 19th Amendment granting women the right to vote which also had no time limit.

The road to final passage of the extension bill was cleared Wednesday when the Senate defeated a key amendment by Sen. Jake Garn, R-Utah, that posed the biggest threat to the extension and the ERA itself.

The ERA amendment would have allowed states that have already passed the ERA to reconsider and rescind that action during the extended ratification period.

ERA supporters were prepared to abandon the extension altogether had a rescission proposal been attached. So far, 35 of the needed 38 states have ratified ERA. Women's groups rallied to the support of the 38-month extension when hard political realities and the scheduling of state Legislatures early next year made it clear it was impossible to add three more states before the March 1979 deadline.

The Constitution sets no timetable on state ratification of amendments, and the seven-year period which is expiring for ERA is only traditional, not required. Congress was free to extend it.

Opponents claimed the maneuver was unfair and amounted to changing the rules in the middle of the game, but supporters argued that the constitutional amendment was not a game, and that there should be no timetable on justice.

ERA seeks to add a single sentence to the Constitution, stating: "Equality of rights under the law shall not be abridged or denied by the United States or any state on account of sex."

The final vote followed a summer of intensive lobbying by pro-ERA groups. Ely Smead, president of the National Organization for Women, said for the first time, the entire women's movement was unified.

Jobless Now 6%

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The nation's unemployment rate rose only slightly to 6 percent in September despite a significant increase in the number of jobless teenagers who lost their summer jobs.

The Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics reported the total number of unemployed during September was 6,022,000, compared to 5,968,000 in August.

Employment nationwide was up 290,000 in September to 94.9 million, with adult women proving the bulk of the boost.

In August, the unemployment rate hit 5.9 percent after fluctuating throughout the summer and hitting a four-year low of 5.7 percent in July. The leveling off at 6 percent was in line with administration forecasts, which had predicted a 5.9-percent level at the end of this year.

The unemployment breakdown, by category of population: Adult men 4 percent, adult women 6 percent, Teen-agers 16.6 percent, Whites 5.3 percent, Blacks and other minorities 11.2 percent, Full-time workers: 5.5 percent.

Dworkin Returns Panel's Criticism

By SUSAN VAUGHN
Herald Reporter

MANCHESTER — Michael Dworkin, local pharmacist and environmentalist, has taken issue with the charges against him by the Town Building Committee and has charged the committee with "ineptitude in failing to properly investigate" the procedures involved in termite extermination at Washington School.

Dworkin objected to the extermination process in early September when the Building Committee decided to eliminate an infestation of termites in one ground level room currently under reconstruction in the school. Dworkin claimed then, and still claimed Thursday, that the use of the chlordane pesticide may be harmful to the children in the school.

Dworkin said he had originally asked the committee to wait for six to eight weeks before moving children into the classroom. He said this suggestion was on the advice of Dr. Steven Hitchcock, state director of pesticide compliance for the Department of Environmental Protection.

Hitchcock, however, denied Thursday that he had given that advice. Hitchcock said it would be advisable to allow as much time as possible between application of the pesticide and occupation of the school. He suggested it be done over a weekend or vacation period.

Hitchcock said there are still questions concerning the use of chlordane, the active ingredient used in the termite pesticide, but the state has no set policy on its use other than that it must be used only by registered applicators. The use of chlordane is mostly restricted to sub-surface application for termite control, Hitchcock said.

Dworkin said that it was only after his suggestions did the Building Committee agree to the waiting period.

Paul Phillips, chairman of the Building Committee, said there was never any intention of occupying the classroom immediately after application of the pesticide. He and architect Richard Lawrence named a long list of work yet to be done on the room which could take four to six weeks or more.

The committee wants to have the pesticide applied into the concrete slab of the room through the pressure impregnating method before any other work is done in the room. A layer of two and a half inches of concrete will be poured over the slab, Lawrence said, then other work on the renovations will be completed, but he said a definite completion date is hard to pinpoint. The pre-ratification classroom will be the only room where the pesticide is applied.

Lawrence said he will take bids also on termite control for the new gymnasium in the adjoining West Side Recreation building, but it has not been decided whether that work will be done.

One termite company backed out of doing the work a week ago because of fear of the legal entanglements which could result from Dworkin's charges.

When a new termite exterminator is found, the work will be done on a Friday afternoon when the school is empty, Lawrence said.

Vance Getting Close To SALT Agreement

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Secretary of State Cyrus Vance is close enough to an agreement with the Soviet Union on a new strategic arms limitation pact that he is working on plans for a signing ceremony at a summit meeting in December, diplomatic sources say.

Vance began preliminary discussions about the summit meeting last week with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko. The summit is expected to be held in U.S. territory this time, possibly in Hawaii or Alaska.

At the summit meeting, President Carter and Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev would resolve the major disputed issues and sign the long-term U.S.-Soviet strategic arms pact.

A report published today by the Washington Post that Paul Warnke, chief U.S. disarmament negotiator and head of the U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, would resign later this month could not be immediately confirmed.

A spokesman for the arms control agency conceded, however, that Warnke has talked about leaving the administration to return to his private Washington law practice.

But the agency official said if Warnke does leave the administration, it would be to return to his private Washington law practice.

Warnke has been portrayed by his hard-line critics as being overzealous to reach a SALT II agreement and could conceivably become a liability for the administration in its battle for Senate ratification of the accord.

According to diplomatic sources, Vance, on his trip to Moscow later this month, will be seeking a final resolution of about a dozen issues, many of them highly detailed.

Among such issues to be resolved are the exact principles to guide the next round of strategic arms negotiations, already known as SALT II, and the exact limitations to be placed on the development by the United States and Soviet Union of new types of strategic missiles.

One major issue which Vance is not expected to resolve - and which is to be postponed for a decision by Carter and Brezhnev - is the question of whether the Soviet "Backfire" bomber should be counted under the equal numerical weapons ceilings.

But Pentagon experts maintain the Backfire has sufficient range to strike the United States from the Soviet Union on one-way missions, recovering in Cuba or Mexico.

A compromise seems to be emerging whereby the United States would declare its intention of building a new strategic bomber capable of penetrating to targets within the Soviet Union while the Soviet side would declare that it would not deploy the Backfire in a manner threatening to the United States.

FBI Agent Was Ready To Greet Sub Pirates

NEW HAVEN (UPI) - A smiling Irishman named John G. Devine would have been waiting with a personal welcome if anyone conspiring to steal the USS Trepang had gotten within a fog horn's belch of the boat.

He is the special agent in charge of the FBI's Connecticut operations, and when the big ones go down - Devine is at the scene, ready to lend a helping hand.

So many crazy things have happened in our society in recent years that I don't put anything out of the realm of possibility now," Devine said, reviewing the stranger-hungry fiction plot which his agents helped thwart.

Three men were arrested on charges they conspired to steal the nuclear submarine USS Trepang, kill the crew members, fire on New London and sell the vessel in the middle of the Atlantic Ocean to an unknown purchaser.

The Trepang, almost as long as a football field and named for a sea cucumber, was berthed Thursday at the submarine base in Groton with its regular crew of about 100 men aboard, according to Senior Chief Yeoman Dennis Wade.

"Everybody here was surprised about it although certain officials in the Navy Department have known about the Trepang conspiracy - I mean to use the word 'conspiracy' but they said I could - since mid-September," Wade said.

Wade said during the day the Trepang is manned by a crew of about 100. "During non-working hours the ship is broken into duty sections. At no time is there less than one third of the crew on board," he said.

The whereabouts of the Trepang on Wednesday had been a closely guarded secret for the Navy. "The home port is confidential. The exact spot where it is now is top secret," a base spokesman said Wednesday.

Wade said there "is absolutely no connection" between the alleged Trepang conspiracy and a minesweeping operation in Long Island Sound in which the Navy said it had been looking for a piece of equipment lost from an unidentified submarine.

Granted that fact can be stranger than fiction, could the plot to steal the Trepang have been carried out? "Yes, it could have happened," said Devine.

"We think of movies like 'Dog Day Afternoon' where people do screw things up, but when you're in the law enforcement profession or you're in the military, you're not going to laugh at any of these things," Devine said.

"At first blush when you hear this, you want to smile but when you stop and think of the reasoning that a lot of people in our society use today and some of the endeavors they get involved in, I have to look at it in a serious vein."

SAT Scores For Seniors Down Again

EAST HARTFORD - The school administration said Thursday that the senior classes at both Fenney and East Hartford High Schools were below the state and the New England average in the Scholastic Aptitude Tests which were administered last fall.

The local students scored an average of 418 in the verbal part and 469 for the mathematics part of the test. The scores have declined in the past three years, according to Sam Leone, assistant superintendent for instruction.

In the state, the average was 438 for the verbal section and 469 for mathematics. The New England scores were 433 for verbal and 468 for mathematics. The state scores rose after nearly a decade of decline.

Leone said there are national studies to determine why students across the nation are scoring lower on the test. The SAT is an exam for college-bound seniors and is one of the guidelines colleges use in admitting students.

Leone said the decline in local verbal scores could be related to the proliferation of English courses which don't necessarily stress reading and composition. The high schools are working to correct this situation, he said.

Leone said comparisons between communities cannot be made by the SAT. He said a better test would be the Iowa Test of Basic Skills and the administration's own basic competency test which could be required for graduation by 1983.

According to school administration figures, 87 percent of the freshmen tested this year passed the reading test and 94 percent passed the math exam.

Small Hobby Shop Set For New Senior Center

MANCHESTER - Senior citizens should be able to use small saws and such in their new center, a site committee member has told the Town Board of Directors.

Some confusion has developed about a woodworking shop proposed in the Green School, which would be the site for relocation of the senior citizens center.

At one of its September meetings, the board received a letter from Herman Passantelli, who said that the Green School site might not be a good one for a carpentry shop.

Passantelli, who works in the Public Works Department, has been seeking a carpentry shop for the department's maintenance crew. He said that a large shop in the Green School would create a problem with storage of materials and odor.

Irene Bissett, chairwoman of the senior building site committee, wrote to the board to say that the seniors would like a small woodworking shop at the school. "With a major woodworking shop, I would have to agree with Mr. Passantelli. There would be much more activity creating many of the problems he has spelled out," she wrote.

"Our ideas are actually to have a hobby shop where our members could come to join their peers in making knick-knacks together," she said. The amount of smelly glues and solvents was minimal, she said.

Passantelli said that he does not think his carpentry shop could be located in the school, although the smaller shop the senior citizens have in mind probably could be located there.

MANCHESTER - The Stairwell Gallery of Manchester Community College will open its 11th season tonight with a group exhibition, "Thirteen from Artworks." The gallery is at 146 Hartford Road.

Man Injured At Work Site

MANCHESTER - A construction worker at the J.C. Penney warehouse construction site on Tolland Turnpike was admitted to Manchester Memorial Hospital and was in satisfactory condition following an accident at the site Thursday morning.

Lyle Stevenson, 24, of Rindge, N.H., was struck by an I-beam, police said. He sustained a laceration on his head and injury to an ankle.

Intersection Repair Put Off Until Spring

MANCHESTER - Despite the optimism of town officials earlier this week, it now appears that the first phase of repairs to the Center and Main streets intersection will not start until spring.

Jay Giles, director of public works, had said Tuesday that the project could start within two weeks.

The first phase of the work includes relocation of traffic islands and signalization improvements at the intersection.

Area Police Report

Police said the alleged offense took place on Aug. 29 on Route 83. He was released on his promise to appear in court in Rockville on Oct. 17.

Vernon Police are investigating the report of a break Thursday into a Cubes Drive home. Police said the owner said he returned home at 2:30 a.m. and discovered the house had been entered through a rear door and a garage door.

Items reported missing included stereo sets, cameras, and tools, valued at about $5,000.

SOUTHURY (UPI) - A 28-year-old New York man was to be in Litchfield Superior Court today on a charge he killed a Columbia University medical school student whose body was found July 30 on his uncle's estate.

State police in Southbury charged Steven Asherman with murder Thursday night after he waived his right to extradition proceedings in New York. He was taken to the Community Correction Center in Litchfield.

Asherman was arrested in New York City Wednesday on a five-year-old justice warrant for the murder of Michael Aronow, 26, of Hastings on Hudson, N.Y. The two were fourth-year students at Columbia University's College of Physicians and Surgeons.

Police Group Names Drum

EAST HARTFORD - The East Hartford police department announced Thursday that Police Chief Clarence Drum had been elected to the board of directors of the New England Chiefs of Police.

Drum was elected to a two-year term at a conference held recently in Newport, R.I. He will represent the Connecticut Chiefs of Police and will participate in planning mutual New England programs in advanced training.

Drum is vice president of the Connecticut Chiefs of Police and serves on several subcommittees, including the Legislative, the Critical Issues and the Policy Board of the Statewide Narcotic Enforcement Task Force.

In addition, he is a member of the East Hartford Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors; a member of the Executive Board of Long Rivers Council Boy Scouts of America; and is chairman of the Police Explorers Advisory Board. Drug Education Program Isn't Meant to Scare Kids

By SUSAN VAUGHN Herald Reporter

MANCHESTER — The purpose of the drug education program in the Manchester schools is not to scare kids about drugs, but to help them get in touch with their feelings about using drugs, according to two counselors at Crossroads who organized the program.

Crossroads is the drug and alcohol information and counseling center at 33 Park St. Drug prevention is a big part of the program at Crossroads.

Elizabeth Peterson, who will be responsible for presenting drug education programs in local schools this year, said she tries to use the information the students already know about drugs in starting a discussion. She said there is no reason to use scare tactics. "It only causes mistrust for the authority."

Ms. Peterson and Neil Yeager, who both organized the drug education programs last year, said they try to focus on feelings, peer pressure, and uses and abuses of drugs. They use a question and answer format, trying to get the students to talk. They use such techniques as role playing to get the youth to examine such questions as, "What would you do in saying no to drugs?"

The drug education program in all the elementary schools involves a 45-minute presentation for children in Grades 4 through 6. Ms. Peterson said she will try to do two programs each week. She said she wants to leave time in between for the youth to respond. They do respond by calling Crossroads and asking more questions, both counselors said.

Yeager has recently left Crossroads to take a position at Asmetick Community College, but he said he enjoyed doing the school programs as well as his other work at Crossroads.

Both counselors agreed, however, that it is difficult, in a tangible way, to measure the results of the drug prevention program. Ms. Peterson, however, believes in the value of awareness and the talking that the programs provide.

The Crossroads workers are also hoping to do drug awareness programs in most of the secondary schools and they will do workshops and assemblies on request.

Although the youth do respond to the drug prevention programs, Crossroads suffers sometimes from an identity problem, by the fact that it is drug related, Yeager and Ms. Peterson said.

Sometimes kids are just looking for someone to talk to or for help with some problem and they call Crossroads and apologize by saying, "I'm not on drugs or alcohol, but ..."

Yeager said. Crossroads has identity problems both ways. "Straight kids sometimes view Crossroads' inhabitants as junkies and the stoners think the staff are narcs," Yeager said.

Although Crossroads' primary purpose is to combat drug abuse, Yeager said he does not think it would serve any fewer persons if it were not advertised as much as a drug center.

The Crossroads staff, realizing that drug and alcohol are symptomatic of other problems, are willing to help with any problem. "Rarely do you meet someone who has serious problems who doesn't use drugs or alcohol," Yeager said.

Ms. Peterson said although the identity with drug and alcohol does sometimes work against Crossroads, it also has an advantage, serving as a definite resource for persons who need help in these areas.

Yeager also said, "It's easier to deal with a concrete problem, such as drugs. It is harder when the problem is vague." The counselors, who both have master's degrees in counseling, try to heighten the awareness of the person's problems.

Both counselors expressed concern with the abuse in the use of marijuana and the interpersonal relations connected with it. They said marijuana is still widely used by the youth in the community and hard drugs are used less.

Yeager said he sees more abuse now of prescription drugs and street drugs, such as PPC, or angel dust commonly called an animal tranquilizer. The kids think they are buying HHC or LSD and they are buying the animal tranquilizer which makes one violently ill.

The Crossroads' counselors are also concerned about the increased use of alcohol by youth. "Mixing of alcohol and drugs is the scariest thing going on. It can create a lot of health problems that a lot of kids don't realize," Yeager said.

In dealing with a problem, Yeager said, the counselors try to get past the marijuana or alcohol and ask, "Why is it so important to get high all the time?" They try to set up a program to modify behavior. They may suggest the person not smoke or drink for one party and just observe others.

Crossroads tries not to get involved in enforcement. They don't query the youth as to where or how they got their drugs. If they look over police work they would lose the trust they develop. However, Ms. Peterson questioned whether the relationship between police and youth has to always be antagonistic.

Ms. Peterson is mulling over ideas of how a drop-in center in Manchester could work. "Kids say Manchester is a party town. They say they don't have a place to go. It seems to keep coming back as a theme," she said. She said she is interested in what facilities the youth could handle. Perhaps a drop-in center could provide an atmosphere where youth and police could develop a relationship of respect was one idea Ms. Peterson brought up.

Ms. Peterson said she wants to make the program at Crossroads more pliable to the youth. She hopes to get at least one group of young people, ages 18 to 26 to meet on a regular basis. They may plan such activities as hikes.

Similar activities hikes, camping and canoe trips this past summer were very successful in terms of building relationships among the youth and staff.

Crossroads is not just for youth either. Ms. Peterson has several clients in their 30s and 40s and she hopes to get clients of different ages to mix. "We are so much of a youth culture," she said. "Kids forget they can learn from a 40-year-old." She likes the versatility of working with persons of different ages.

She said that although most of the counseling at Crossroads is crisis-oriented, and short-term, she believes it is important to have an on-going dimension in the programs.

The work at Crossroads is time consuming. Yeager said most counselors can only sustain the momentum for about two years.

Ms. Peterson said, "I'm hoping the energy I get from people will keep me going."

Democrats Report MCC Fund Possible

MANCHESTER — State Sen. David Barry opened his campaign headquarters Thursday with more than the usual ribbon-cutting. He and two other Democratic candidates announced possible funding for a permanent campus at Manchester Community College.

The announcement was made jointly by three Democrats seeking reelection — Barry and State Reps. Theodore Cummings and Francis Mahoney. They said that the State Bonding Commission's Oct. 26 agenda includes a proposal to provide $540,000 for the planning of a permanent campus at MCC.

"I'm excited because a dream held so long and needed so deeply seems to be coming real," he said. Along with the $9 million in construction, the permanent campus also would cost $900,000 for equipment and $800,000 for paving and parking lot work.

The announcement was made jointly by three Democrats seeking reelection — Barry and State Reps. Theodore Cummings and Francis Mahoney. They said that the State Bonding Commission's Oct. 26 agenda includes a proposal to provide $540,000 for the planning of a permanent campus at MCC.

"It's still in the future, but it's coming to fruition," Barry said. "For the first time, we've been able to say, this is getting the green light from the state government. The Board of Trustees for Regional Community Colleges met in August and recommended $4 million in construction projects, including $9 million for construction at MCC. This support from the Board of Trustees is one reason that the proposed funding for planning the permanent campus now is coming before the State Bonding Commission, Barry said.

He said that he expects final approval from both the Bonding Commission and the governor's office for release of the funds.

He called the proposed funding a "cumulative effort" of legislators as well as students, faculty and staff at the school.

Dr. Ronald Denison, president of MCC, attended the announcement and praised the work of the three local legislators involved.

Salvation Army To Host Millers

MANCHESTER — Col. and Mrs. Andrew S. Miller will be weekend guests of the Salvation Army for its Homecoming Festivities Saturday and Sunday, Oct. 21 and 22.

Col. Miller is chief secretary for the Salvation Army in the Central Territory of the United States and is second in command of all religious and humanitarian work in the eleven midwestern states.

He is no stranger to this area. His father, the late Col. Ralph T. Miller, was commander of the Southern New England Division of the Salvation Army in Hartford in the 1930s. Col. Andrew also served on the staff at the Nathan Hale Camp in Coventry.

Col. Miller is a fourth generation Salvationist and was commissioned in 1943 after attending the Salvation Army School for Officers' Training in New York City. He is a graduate of Akron University and attended Asbury College in Wilmore, Ky., where he now is a member of the board of trustees.

He has served assignments in the East and Midwest, was director of fund-raising and public relations, and served on the staff of the Salvation Army International Staff College in London.

His wife is the Territorial Home League Secretary for the Central Territory in Chicago, and she directs the activities of the 290 Home League programs. She has also served as director of Women's Services for the Greater Chicago area and Greater New York area and has served appointments as divisional leader for the Army's programs for girls known as Guards and Sunbeams.

The Millers have four children, and two now serve as Salvation Army officers.

Highlight of the Homecoming Festivities will be a Saturday evening banquet.

On Sunday, there will be an Adult Reunion at 9:30 a.m., morning worship at 10:45, and a 3 p.m. Musical Praise Service.

Fight Over Bill Hurts Carter

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter's standing in the polls may jump with his successful veto of a major public works bill, but his rating by the leadership in Congress today stands at ground zero.

And if the situation stays that way, it does not bode well for some of "Carter's most important domestic initiatives — particularly his energy program.

The veto of the $10.1 billion public works bill — Carter objected to the $1.8 billion it contained for water projects — was sustained by a surprisingly high 223-150 vote in the House.

The victory was the second in as many days for the administration, and much of the credit goes to Carter for his extensive lobbying efforts. On Wednesday, he called several senators to request their vote against a crippling amendment to legislation that would give states an extra 39 months to ratify the Equal Rights Amendment.

The amendment in question was defeated, clearing the way for today's Senate final vote on the extension, and ERA opponents concede they expect it to pass by a comfortable margin. The House already has passed the measure.

The Senate also was expected to vote sometime today on a Republican plan to slash taxes across the board by $120 billion during the next three years. The bill is an alternative to a $23 billion tax-cut bill approved earlier by the Senate Finance Committee.

The Senate also was expected to vote sometime today on a Republican plan to slash taxes across the board by $120 billion during the next three years. The bill is an alternative to a $23 billion tax-cut bill approved earlier by the Senate Finance Committee.

In action Thursday, the Senate approved, with only three dissenting votes, a bill providing $116.3 billion to run the armed forces — its version of the biggest single appropriation in Congress history.

The 1979 military appropriation bill now is before House-Senate conferees for resolution of at least 85 major differences in House and Senate versions.

The Senate also passed and sent to the House a bill to establish a $300 million liability fund to pay the costs incurred for cleaning up oil spills.

House and Senate conferees, meanwhile, approved legislation that would make China eligible for most-favored nation status in agricultural trade.

In other action, the Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee in its second vote in two days, approved legislation to set aside about 117 million acres in Alaska as park, refuge and wilderness areas.

The legislation faces tough going in the full Senate, with a filibuster promised. The House version would set aside a total of 124 million acres.

At the White House Thursday, Carter signed bills: • Making it easier for alien adopted children to be admitted to the United States and become naturalized citizens.

• Establishing a single worldwide annual ceiling on immigration by combining the separate ceilings from the Eastern and Western Hemispheres.

• Restricting federal agencies' authority to limit public access to documents in the National Archives.

Band Improves In Play, Spirit

There is a marked improvement in school spirit this year. This spirit has not only manifested itself through the attendance at dances, sports, and other school functions, but also shown up in our school band.

The Manchester High School Band was organized in 1926 by Harold A. Turkington, who is a former mayor of Manchester. Another of Mr. Turkington's significant contributions to the band is a march written especially for the 50th anniversary of the Manchester High School Band, entitled "Manchester Alma Mater March," with the Alma Mater as its major theme.

Members of the band, unlike those who sign up for biology or advanced calculus, have an obligation that often means they must be willing to make extreme sacrifices.

One of the band's functions is to play at all home football games. If a student were to wander by the football field 5th period, he would probably see the band marching up and down the field numerous times, in an effort to perfect the routine for Saturday's half-time show.

There are many other obligations for band members. At Christmas and in the spring, the band joins with the high school chorus to present a program of fine music for all ages.

Feds Join Talks at UB

BRIDGEPORT (UPI) - A federal mediator has conducted informal discussions with striking faculty and officials at the University of Bridgeport while students marched on City Hall to demand that the state conduct to help resolve the walkout. Federal mediator Hesekiah Brown began discussions Thursday to resolve the negotiations' deadlock that prompted the administration to suspend classes and ask students to return home.

"I came up yesterday (Wednesday) of my own accord," Brown said, adding "I have been dis-making items of real problem." These items, he said, concern whether the university has ultimate authority over university operations, tenure for teachers and teacher layoffs as proposed in its final contract offer. The 250 striking professors, all members of the campus chapter of the American Association of University Professors, are demanding a say in hiring and firing procedures and curriculum. "If I see a need to call both parties together at some time, I will," he said. But he added, "they haven't

Legislators Offer Plan To Remedy Tax Phase-In

By GREG PEARSON Herald Reporter

MANCHESTER - People now completing new construction in Manchester will feel the effects of an inequity in the revaluation phase-in, but two local legislators expect to submit an amendment to correct the problem. The phase-in law, however, provided no spreading of higher revaluation assessments over five years, was passed earlier this year by the state Legislature. Manchester was the first community to adopt it.

It is assessed in line with the full revaluation assessments, but the owner of the property actually pays more in taxes than he would if no phase-in had occurred.

This inequity develops because the town's mill rate for 1978-79, the first year of the phase-in, is based on only 50 percent of the increase in assessments resulting from revaluation.

Since 1978-79 is the first year of the five-year phase-in, 20 percent, or one-fifth, of the revaluation increase is taxed.

Thus, the mill rate for the town is higher than it would have been if no phase-in had occurred because there are fewer total revenues, but homeowners also are paying for a lower assessment than they would have.

This benefit, however, does not affect construction completed after Oct. 1. Structures are assessed at full revaluation values, and taxes still must be paid at the higher rate.

Because of this inequity, two local legislators will seek an amendment to the phase-in legislation. (See related story.)

But, the possibility of higher taxes led many new homeowners to push for completion by Oct. 1 to avoid the problem.

Amos Armstrong, 31, of Hartford was charged with carrying a dangerous weapon when he was stopped during an investigation of another incident near King's in the Manchester Parkside Thursday afternoon. Police said he had a knife in his pocket. He was released on bond for court Oct. 16.

Beatrice Williams, 23, of Hartford was charged with fourth-degree larceny in connection with a shopping incident at King's Thursday afternoon. She was held in lieu of bond at the Hartford Police Department for court presentation today.

Edmund Burke, 40, of 921 Burside Ave., East Hartford, was charged with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of alcohol and operating without a Connecticut license Thursday. Court date is Oct. 17.

Timothy J. Donahue, 25, of 26 Walnut St. was charged with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor Thursday night. Court date is Oct. 17.

Vincent J. Callender, 40, of 37 Cherry St., East Hartford, was charged with operating a motor vehicle under the influence of alcohol. Court date is Oct. 24.

representative of the state tax assessor's association to seek a solution to the problem. Cummings said, "We recognize this is a law." He said that they will seek an amendment to eliminate the inequity.

"Fairness and balance - that's what we want," he said. A possibility might be taking a new home, assessed at the full revaluation rate, using the tax rate that would be in effect if no phase-in had occurred.

Such a system would be used only during the five-year period of the phase-in, he said.

One resident, Rosemary Karas of 106 Strawberry Lane, complained about the present situation for new construction when she spoke at this week's directors comment session.

She plans to build a new home on Spring Street and was surprised at the amount of taxes she would have to pay on that home.

Michael Nimirovski of the tax assessor's office said that he has received similar complaints about the inequity now for new homes.

He does not expect that the problem will lead to a decrease in construction. "People will be hesitant at first to build, but indications are that builders will continue building," he said.

State Sen. David Barry has vowed to work for repeal of the law. Crispino and Devaney are scheduled to appear in court in East Hartford on Oct. 23.

Both markets have been kept open on Sundays for many years. Crispino said this morning that he had no comment about the charges and Devaney was not available for comment.

Their arrests are believed to be the first enforcement of the revised Blue Laws, which prohibit most retail stores from operating on Sunday.

The Connecticut Civil Liberties Union and a supermarket owner in southeastern Connecticut reportedly have promised to test the law's constitutionality in the courts.

Although small in stature, there is bigger rigger and supporter of the Red Sox in town than Eray. Over the years, he has died a hundred deaths, as have all Boston fans, when the team went into its annual September swoon.

It doesn't seem possible that three decades have passed since Gene Bearden was called upon in that historic first American League playoff and stopped the Red Sox cold except for a homer by Bobby Doerr and a double by Johnny Pesky, plus three harmless singles.

Boudreau started the fireworks with a homer in his first at bat and after Boston tied the score, the Indians went ahead with four runs in the fourth inning off surprise starter Denny Galehouse. Boudreau and Joe Gordon had singled before Ken Keltner homered over the middle of the field. That finished Galehouse and Ellis Kinder came on but the damage was done.

"The Boston manager was a guy with a name like mine," Ed McCarthy said and he was correct. Joe McCarthy was calling the shots for the Red Sox from the dugout.

McCarthy's selection of Galehouse, who had only an 8-6 win-loss record, to start the biggest game of the season drew criticism in many quarters. Galehouse lasted just six innings and yielded five hits and as many runs.

Not any of the front line pitchers offered to face the Tribe, big winners like Jack Kramer, Mel Parnell and Joe Dobson.

McCarthy gambled in his first year after taking over the reins from Joe Cronin and lost.

Current New York Manager Bob Lemon was a member of that '48 Cleveland cast. The one-time third baseman who made it big as a 20-game winner with the Indians, was in the bullpen in his fifth year with that club.

That was before he put together a string of 20-win seasons. After that 1948 game, en route home to Manchester, we stopped for dinner in Framingham and Doerr occupied a table next to ours and his wife.

"I had a feeling that we were going to lose," the fine second baseman said, "and we checked out of our apartment and loaded down our station wagon for the trip home to Oregon." Outside, Doerr's wagon looked so loaded down the carriage was just inches off the road.

We did meet any Red Sox players after Monday's game. When I checked into the lockerroom it was as quiet as the church of my choice when the priest was in the middle of his sermon. That was easily understandable. It was a tough loss to take and it's too bad somebody has to lose.

"It was a great game, well worth the trip," Bray said as we walked to the MTA trolley stop.

The conductor for that scene of humor as when we reached the last stop at Riverside he announced, "Last stop, Yankee Stadium!"

Playing in royal fashion, Kansas City bounced back off its hard arid weather (turf) Wednesday and clubbed New York, 10-4.

Left-hander Paul Splittorff will start for the Royals against the Yankees tonight in Yankee Stadium, and after feeling "really disappointed" about Game 1, he said he "was proud of the way our guys came back."

"The Yankees today had a chance to pitch Ron Guidry, the slim southpaw who sent baseball statisticians scurrying to the record books as he compiled a 25-3 record, but Manager Bob Lemon has opted for the veteran Hunter.

"Actually, I changed my mind when we won on Tuesday night," said Lemon, who earlier had planned to use Guidry. "I decided to give Ron the extra day of rest since he had a tough game on Monday. Catfish is well rested and will go Friday."

"There's no pressure on me," shrugged Hunter, who has played on four World Championship teams in the 1970s. "I'm just going to try and pitch like I'm supposed to, that's all."

Wilson didn't see anything wrong with his actions. "I felt it was the only way I could score," he said. "I was too far away from the plate to slide. He jumped up, pointed a finger at me and said 'I was trying to show you up, that's a rookie trying to show up a veteran. If that's the way he feels, I'll try to steal second and third on him the first chance I get.'"

For Kansas City to win the playoffs, they will have to continue their aggressive style of play. They don't have the power the Yankees have, so they have to make up for it with speed and daring. And hard-messed play can lead to flying lists.

Hardest Part Over for Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES (UPI) - The hardest part of the National League championship series is over for the Los Angeles Dodgers and they could be sipping champagne tonight at Dodger Stadium.

The defending NL champions, behind Tommy John's four-hitler and Davey Lopes' home run and three runs batted in, made it two straight victories over the Philadelphia Phillies at Veterans Stadium Thursday with a 4-0 win over Philadelphia.

The sky-high Dodgers need one more victory in this best-of-five series to wrap it up and they'll send veteran Don Sutton to the mound tonight (8:30 p.m. EDT). The Phillies will pitch lefthander Steve Carlton as they attempt to become the first team in playoff history to come back from a 2-0 deficit and win three straight.

Los Angeles has established such dominance in the first two games before roaring Philadelphia crowds that a sweep looks a cinch, but that far, wasn't as cautious as his manager. "They're a very explosive team, but I feel confident we'll end this thing tomorrow night," he said.

"It is obviously the toughest way to win this series to go to LA," Phil's reliever Ron Reed said. "But honestly, I don't think this team is going to put its tail between its legs. I haven't lost confidence."

Using a sinking fast ball that tailed away from an all-right-handed hitting lineup, the 35-year-old John got 21 outs on ground balls. Only two outs were registered by the outfielders - liners by Bob Boone in the second and Garry Maddox to end the game.

"I threw mostly fastballs today because that's what I consider my best pitch," John said. "I had a good curve today and I went to it more than I usually do."

Lopes smacked a fourth-inning home run off loser Dick Ruthven after Ruthven had retired the first nine batters in succession. He singled in Steve Yeager in the fifth to make it 3-0 and tripled home Rick Monday in the seventh.

In two games, Lopes has six hits, including two homers, one triple, one double and five runs batted in. But he sure exactly what my capabilities are," he said. "I'm not surprised by anything I accomplish. But at the stage right now, it doesn't matter who's throwing the ball. It seems to stop and I'm hitting the hell out of it."

At this stage of my career I'm not sure exactly what my capabilities are," he said. "I'm not surprised by anything I accomplish. But at the stage right now, it doesn't matter who's throwing the ball. It seems to stop and I'm hitting the hell out of it."

But Ozark disagreed, citing the over-aggressiveness of his ballpayers. "Lopes said after starting with pitcher Tommy John in the Dodger's 4th shutout of the Phillies Thursday to take a 2-0 lead in the best-of-five game series which resumes in Los Angeles later today."

"We come out swinging," said Lopes, who had a home run, a single and a triple to bat in three runs in Thursday's game at Veterans Stadium. "We've got only got two guys, (Ron) Cey and Reggie Smith, who are selective hitters. The rest of us come out of the dugout swinging."

Most of the Phillies agreed that John hurled an excellent game yesterday.

But, with the flood waters already up to his neck, so to speak, Danny Ozark paid no attention to the plumbing problem from the floor above. After all, what's a little leak compared with your halibut being only one game away from drowning?"

Upon returning to his office after the Los Angeles Dodgers sank his straight line 4-0 Thursday, Danny Ozark sat wearily at his desk, lit a cigarette and didn't say a word.

Neither did any of some two dozen newsmen around him. What was there to say? Finally, one writer asked the Phillies' manager about his starting pitcher, Dick Ruthven, who Ozark "satisfied" with Ruthven's stuff during the four-and-two-thirds innings he worked before departing?

"He threw 'em all right," Ozark said, evenly. "You never could be satisfied with a loss even if your pitcher had great stuff."

There were some other questions and Ozark answered them. Eventually, most of the reporters left and Ozark also got up and headed for the shower in the back of his office. When he got to the doorway of the shower room, he stood there a few moments wrapped in deep thought.

How do you feel about the Philadelphia fans?" he was asked. Many of them had booed both him and the Phillies players during Wednesday's and Thursday's losses. Ozark didn't take long to consider the question.

"I feel very badly for them, but I'm not in any position where I would be packing their gear for Los Angeles where Game No. 3 is on tap this evening."

"We're not in any position where I would be packing their gear for Los Angeles where Game No. 3 is on tap this evening."

"I've been in before," said veteran pitcher Jim Kaat, trying to find some ray of sunshine in the bleak situation. He was making reference to the Phil's two previous playoff losses last year and the year before. "If anybody's used to this, we are."

A few lockers away, outfielder Jerry Martin said losing two straight games was bad enough but losing three in a row would be "unbearable."

Catcher Tim McCarver, in the big leagues nearly 20 years, volunteered he had never seen a team "more relaxed" than the Phillies, despite their two consecutive setbacks.

Tunney Ailing GREENWICH (UPI) - Former world heavyweight boxing champion Gene Tunney has checked into Greenview Hospital with an undisclosed illness, a hospital spokeswoman said Thursday night.

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) - Los Angeles second baseman Davey Lopes says the Dodgers are winning because they are aggressive. Philadelphia Manager Danny Ozark says his team is losing because it may be too aggressive.

According to the two, it is the way the batters approach the plate in the National League playoff series.

Aggressiveness is the key to our success," Lopes said after starting with pitcher Tommy John in the Dodger's 4th shutout of the Phillies Thursday to take a 2-0 lead in the best-of-five game series which resumes in Los Angeles later today.

"We come out swinging," said Lopes, who had a home run, a single and a triple to bat in three runs in Thursday's game at Veterans Stadium. "We've got only got two guys, (Ron) Cey and Reggie Smith, who are selective hitters. The rest of us come out of the dugout swinging."

Most of the Phillies agreed that John hurled an excellent game yesterday.

But, with the flood waters already up to his neck, so to speak, Danny Ozark paid no attention to the plumbing problem from the floor above. After all, what's a little leak compared with your halibut being only one game away from drowning?"

Upon returning to his office after the Los Angeles Dodgers sank his straight line 4-0 Thursday, Danny Ozark sat wearily at his desk, lit a cigarette and didn't say a word.

Neither did any of some two dozen newsmen around him. What was there to say? Finally, one writer asked the Phillies' manager about his starting pitcher, Dick Ruthven, who Ozark "satisfied" with Ruthven's stuff during the four-and-two-thirds innings he worked before departing?

"He threw 'em all right," Ozark said, evenly. "You never could be satisfied with a loss even if your pitcher had great stuff."

There were some other questions and Ozark answered them. Eventually, most of the reporters left and Ozark also got up and headed for the shower in the back of his office. When he got to the doorway of the shower room, he stood there a few moments wrapped in deep thought.

How do you feel about the Philadelphia fans?" he was asked. Many of them had booed both him and the Phillies players during Wednesday's and Thursday's losses. Ozark didn't take long to consider the question.

"I feel very badly for them, but I'm not in any position where I would be packing their gear for Los Angeles where Game No. 3 is on tap this evening."

Undefeated Football Marks on Line For Eagles and Indians Tomorrow

By LEN AUSTER
Herald Sportswriter

Success breeds success and both Manchester High and East Hartford will try Saturday afternoon to keep their unbeaten marks unblemished.

The revitalized Indians, 2-0 in the CCIL, will be after their third straight against slumping 0-2, 0-3 East Hartford High at Memorial Field. The Eagles, 2-0, meanwhile travel to West Hartford to make their initial Hartford County Conference (HCC) start against dangerous Northwest Catholic. The latter is 0-1 in the HCC, 2-1 overall.

Both engagements have 1:30 starts.

In area encounters, 1-1, 1-1-1 Penney High hosts 2-0 Conard High always have something for us. "I think it'll be a physical game. They're a little bigger than us so up front we're going to have to be quick and nasty."

Five-foot-nine, 165-pound senior Steve Byrum, through his play the first two weeks has taken over a linebacker post, freeing 5-foot-10, 195-pound senior Mickey Colombe for one-way service at offensive tackle. Senior Bill Stokes, penciled in pressman at middle guard, is ready for full-time service and will move in at defensive left tackle for injured Jeff Coughlin, out 10-14 days.

"We had a real good practice Wednesday after a so-so one Tuesday," Holik related. "We've been stressing to the guys that every game is new and we can't sit back on our laurels. We have to be ready, we can't let up."

East Hartford "made progress against Simsbury," states East Coach Jim Dakin states. "We played a good game."

"We've played three big, physical teams and have had to pay the price. We have taken a heavy pounding, as well as administering some, and we have some problems," Dakin continued, not wishing to expound further.

Some key personnel may, or may not play for the Hornets, based on several criteria. If they do play, they might not be at 100 percent.

"We hope to be competitive with Manchester. We are not the same club we were the last four years but we hope to gain respectability," Dakin cautioned.

Stan Hilinski Wins 1978 CCGA Title

Although he didn't win individual honors yesterday in the final Central Connecticut Golf Association Tournament at Pequotuck, Stan Hilinski came home from Bristol with the season championship.

The 60-year-old Manchester gage shop owner settled for a tie for third place yesterday with a 74 round, but on the strength of two individual wins earlier in the two toughest courses on the annual swing - Lyman Meadow and Black Hall - walked off with the season's top prize, the Michaels Trophy.

Winning is nothing new to the local man. Five times he won the coveted Club Championship at Manchester Country Club and four times he held a like honor while in the Ellington Country Club membership.

Hilinski started the day one shot behind Ron Angotta of Blackledge in Heron, but wound up with a two-shot advantage. Angotta fired an 80 yesterday. The top six scores in rela-

Derek Sanderson
FITCHBURG, Mass. (UPI) — Derek Sanderson, the colorful and once combative Boston Bruins center who never completely recovered from bouts with alcohol, pain-killing drugs and injuries, retired Thursday.

The announcement was made by the Bruins, with whom Sanderson has been practicing at the team's training camp. Sanderson, 32, has been plagued by hand and back injuries this fall.

Rich Gossage
NEW YORK (UPI) — New York Yankees ace reliever Rich Gossage and San Diego Padres bullpen specialist Rolfe Fingers were named by the baseball commissioner's office Thursday as winners of the Rollins Relief Men awards for 1978.

Gossage, with his save against the Boston Red Sox in a sudden death playoff, won the American League award with 73 points. Fingers, the 1977 National League winner, repeated this season with 73 points.

Bob Griese
MIAMI (UPI) — Miami Dolphin quarterback Bob Griese, sidelined since the last preseason game with a knee injury, worked out in full pads Thursday but was listed as doubtful for Monday night's game with Cincinnati.

It was the first time the veteran quarterback had been listed as high as doubtful since Tampa Bay linebacker Cecil Johnson decked him Aug. 25 with a clean tackle and caused a partial tear of the medial collateral ligament in Griese's left knee.

Trinity Football
HARTFORD (UPI) — Split end Pat McNamara and quarterback Mike Poye of Trinity College were among the top offensive football players in the nation last week, NCAA statistics show.

Joe's World

Random Thoughts
Before we know it the bird season will be upon us. Right now I'm sure hunting "briches" are being tried on to see if they still fit after a summer of the "good life."

Hunting jacks are being removed from their hiding places (mine is so old, disreputable, and dirty, I have to hide it, to keep it from being thrown out).

Shoguns are being oiled again, wiped down, and in cellars, living rooms, dens, backyards, brought to shoulder, swung and dropped... as if to get the body used to swinging the "old bucket of bolts" once more.

Sheet and trap fields are being frequented whenever possible, so that eyes, "swing", and follow through, are being put back into use, as well as the shotgun that has been laid up for so long.

Incidentally, the Manchester Sportsman's Association Skeet Field on Merril Road in North Coventry is open every Sunday to the public from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. if you want to get yourself in shape.

Another good field open to the public for both trap and skeet, is the East Glastonbury Fish & Game Association located off Route 9 on the Marlborough East Glastonbury line. They are open Sundays to the public from 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Both clubs have excellent facilities for shooting, and novice shooters are readily helped by the experienced members.

The hunters fortunate enough to have "good" bird dogs, or any bird dogs, have really sharpened and honed up their training. A good dog has to be worked fairly constantly all season, not just to keep him well trained, but to make the partnership between dog and man a smooth working relationship. There will be more about this in a later column.

Most "partridge" or ruffed grouse hunters are out checking the grouse covers, trying to locate and count how many birds in each cover.

Patched, Trimmed NHL Hopes to Avoid Red Ink

NEW YORK (UPI) — The National Hockey League, patched and trimmed and striving to escape red ink, begins its 62nd season Wednesday with the Montreal Canadiens spotlighted on ice and a potentially landmark case pending in court.

Two clubs with financial woes — the New York Islanders and the Colorado Rockies — will continue under new ownership. And the Minnesota North Stars, after merging with the chronically troublesome Cleveland Barons franchise, hope to make a new beginning.

In removing two weak teams with the expectation of creating a stronger league also took aim on another glaring weakness — lack of parity.

"We're not happy about the situation that made the move necessary," NHL President John Ziegler said. "But since something needed to be done we're glad the Board of Directors was enlightened enough to handle it in this way."

Ziegler also noted the Pittsburgh Penguins, often near bankruptcy, are steadily increasing their attendance. The Penguins underwent a corporate reorganization in April when former owner Edward DeBartolo assumed virtually all voice in running the club.

Pittsburgh's goal is to cut $1 million off its annual $2 million operating deficit this season.

St. Louis and Atlanta will play in sparsely filled arenas and face huge crowds.

Woodcock cover is another area I check out before the hunting season starts. For years I only looked for them in the alders in low marshy areas. Then one day I read an article by H.G. Tappley (you can see a lot of birds in my mind) that made his point. The bird has that nice long beak so that it may feed on earthworms, and naturally, one can find earthworms in marshy alder territory. But what about all the other good black earth areas on hillsides, along brooks, where there is supposedly no woodcock cover? Know something... I've missed just as many birds there is in the alders.

As I said before, the signs are with us, the air is getting cool and crisp, and the season will open shortly. Good luck, good hunting, but don't forget to leave plenty of bird stock... I know I will.

Vitale Tops Race Entries

John Vitale heads the list of nearly 200 entries in the first annual pre-colonial Bay Road Race Sunday in East Hartford. Starter's gun will sound at 1 o'clock with the starting and finishing point McCallie Park.

In addition Vitale, a former national champion over 18 miles, the field includes Ray Crothers, Jim Uhrig and Bruce Clark. The latter is a former Yankee Conference cross country champ while at UConn while Croves and Uhrig are two of the better club runners in Connecticut.

Steve Gates, Manchester Community College coach and former Eastern Connecticut State College standout, is also entered.

The course measures 5.3 miles. Runners and joggers are invited with post-entries being accepted until 10 a.m. Saturday.

Among the entrants are 30 women and 10 youngsters under the age of 12. Merchandise awards will be presented.

Money Problems?
If you encounter temporary financial problems that will prevent prompt payment on your mortgage, inform your lender immediately. Don't delay. Often, if your payment record is good, an arrangement can be worked out to help you through your difficulties. If your lender will not offer assistance, contact the nearest HUD-FHA office. They may be able to help.
Don't forget that once the closing has taken place you must continue to make payments according to the terms of the mortgage, no matter what defects you find in the house or who is legally responsible for correcting them.
