

Auxiliary Aids Patients at Convalescent Homes

By ALICE EVANS
Herald Reporter

Would you like to play pool, checkers, chess, or perhaps cards, just to chat with people? Then why not join the newly formed Manchester Convalescent Homes Auxiliary?

The people you will meet may have some physical disability, but they are just like the people you meet on the street and still need someone to talk with. William (Bill) Rice, president and one of the founders of the auxiliary, said.

Barbara Thomas of Coventry, a member of the auxiliary, says that she is having a lot of fun. I enjoy talking with people and feel awfully important all of a sudden.

However, there are other members, such as Millie Kos and Bernice Reig, who are discouraged because the patients they visit aren't too alert. Others feel that people who have nobody to talk with for a long period of time will become depressed, and visitors may soon eventually make a difference.

A volunteer was recently wanted just to sit with a patient and hold his or her hand, because people even in a coma know there is some near them. Bill has now found a way to entertain one patient at Crestfield while he visits with another. The Library of Congress is issuing its talking books on cassette cartridges, and one patient can listen to a story, while Bill chats with another.

Russell Rice, no relation to Bill, is blind and his spine is fused so he cannot bend or move. He is now reading "Gone with the Wind," the seven-cartridge project. His only contact with the world is his radio. He's an avid Red Sox fan, and I was up on World affairs as well as he is," Bill said. Russell loves cigars, and because he can't move, Bill provides the hands to hold the cigar.

Ted Phennig, like most of the patients, enjoys having another man to talk with and to be able to give him a drumming at Crestfield while he visits with his friends and relatives. Some with failing eyesight also can no longer write, nor can they read the letters they receive. Bill said, "Sil Beaulieu and his wife, Dot, are busy entertaining some of the patients at the Meadows Convalescent Home. Sil said that a number of patients are looking for someone to play pool with, and he is looking for a pool table. The one they are using was old and needed a lot of repairs. Sil repaired the table, and now Dot, who spends most of her afternoon hours in the game room, is kept busy playing pool with patients. The auxiliary has nearly 30 charter members, and Bill wishes that he could find about 300 more so that every patient could have his own special friend.

Walter Joyner, a volunteer patient associate in Manchester's convalescent homes for many years, could well be called the "father of the auxiliary."

A November, he told the town's Commission on Aging about the need for an auxiliary. Volunteers were needed to operate cheer carts so that patients might buy things they wanted and needed, he said. The commission asked the Manchester Conference of Churches to take over the project, and Linda Vesbo of the conference's Project Service staff went to work.

About that time, Karl Vinca, a social worker, and Ruth Converse, recreation director at Crestfield, started operating a cheer cart, but finally had to give up because of the time involved.

Ms. Vesbo recruited women from St. Bartholomew's Parish for the cart, and now the project has another cheer cart in operation at Meadows Convalescent Home. All items on the cart are sold to the patients at cost, and one of the fastest moving items, according to reports, are white hairnets.

Today, volunteers are doing many things. They are showing films, calling for bingo games, or just being good neighbors to those who, perhaps, haven't had a visitor to chat with for many years.

Why not join them?

Rockville Hospital Gets Shorter Accreditation

VERNON — Rockville General Hospital has been granted a one-year extension of its accreditation instead of the usual two years.

The National Joint Committee on Accreditation of Hospitals (NCAH) reduced the period of accreditation because renovations have not been completed that will take the pediatrics department out of the original hospital building which has been termed non-conforming by the committee. The committee sets national standards for health-care facilities.

Construction of the new $2.1 million wing is under way and is scheduled to be completed in mid-1979. Besides the pediatrics department, the kidney dialysis unit and emergency department will also be situated in the new wing.

Other departments such as the cardiology, intensive care and central sterile supply facilities will be expanded with the move.

The hospital's current accreditation doesn't expire until next May but hospital officials do not expect to be

Vandals Damage Vacant School

EAST HARTFORD — Vandals did considerable damage in nine rooms of the former South Grammar School at the corner of Brewer and Main streets, according to Ernest Grasso, school administration assistant.

"There was great bit of damage," Grasso said today. "The building is in shambles." Grasso said the damage was estimated between $500 and $700 and was done in every one of the nine rooms, the hallways and the principal's office. He said the vandals gained entry by forcing open a door on the south side of the building.

He said radiators, wires and light fixtures were pulled out and the rugs were torn up. He also said nearly half of the glass in the unoccupied building was broken.

The building, closed in June by the Board of Education because of declining enrollment, was boarded up. School officials discovered the damage Tuesday morning and Grasso said the damage was believed to have happened in the past two weeks.

New Plan Due

EAST HARTFORD — The developers of a proposed 20-lot subdivision which would extend existing Timber Trail will return to the Planning and Zoning Commission tonight with a modified plan.

The PZC tabled the application last month because of fears of possible tie-ins from Glastonbury or East Hartford developments in the future.

Under the first plan, the developers proposed an extension of Timber Trail to meet an extension of Brandon Road. The Brandon Road extension would then continue and end with a street stub.

No Accord Seen On Job Measure

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A small group of senators — backers and critics of the Humphrey-Hawkins "full employment" bill — met today to negotiate a compromise that Congress could pass in the last days of this session.

No agreement was reached after a morning meeting held in the office of Democratic Leader Robert Byrd, but the negotiators arranged to meet again early in the afternoon.

Members of the informal negotiating committee included Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis.; Daniel Humphrey, D-Minn., and other sponsors of the bill, and several of its most severe critics, including Robert Dole. They want to attach a parallel goal to cut inflation to zero by 1983.

Sen. Harrison Schmitt, R-N.M., said he would vote for the bill. Baker told the Senate both sides want full employment, but "the question is how and how to control inflation." Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., proposed a 3 percent inflation goal.

Neither Byrd nor GOP leader Howard Baker attended the negotiating session. The same negotiating group met twice Tuesday when the House approved bill reached the Senate Tuesday night, the expected bitter debate did not take place.

Tax Cuts Up to Conferees

WASHINGTON (UPI) — It will be up to a House-Senate conferees to decide the Senate's 229.3 billion tax-cut bill with the $18.3 billion House version into a compromise President Carter can sign. Under the combined pressures of a congressional adjournment target date of Saturday and the threat of a veto if the tax cuts are too big, the task will not be easy.

Late Tuesday the Senate approved its version — nearly twice the size of the House bill and one that includes a one-time $100,000 tax break for some home sellers; reduce the corporate tax rate from 48 percent to 44 percent by 1981; increase from 50 percent to 70 percent the amount of capital gains excluded from regular federal taxes; provide college tuition tax credits scaling up from $100 to $250 between 1978 and 1981, and eliminate state and local gas tax deductions. A Proposition 13-style amendment by Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., would provide a $15 billion cut over the next five years, tied to restrictions on government spending and a balanced budget, stretching the bill's total five-year reduction to $367 billion.

The amendment clearly would lead to a veto and several senators said they expected it to be dropped by the conference. But Long told reporters he liked tying the cuts to lower federal spending.

In addition to the $30 billion cut in 1979, that amendment would cut taxes $47 billion in 1980, $72 billion in 1981, $93 billion in 1982 and $125 billion in 1983.

A family of four earning $17,000 would get a $25 cut under the Senate bill, $15 under the House plan. The same family earning $10,000 would get a $20 cut under the Senate bill, $12 from the House bill.

The Senate bill includes about $20.5 billion in personal tax cuts in 1979, instead of $10.4 billion in the House bill. It also would reduce the corporate tax rate from the current 48 percent to 46 percent in 1979, 45 percent in 1980 and 44 percent by 1981. The House simply would cut it to 46 percent in 1979.

Carter Due to Open Mideast Peace Talks

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter will open the Egyptian-Israeli peace talks at Blair House Thursday on the assumption Egypt's Anwar Sadat will not let the dispute over the West Bank interfere with concluding a peace treaty.

The three nations have not yet resolved their disagreement over the Camp David accord which spelled out in reference to the Jewish settlements on the west side of the Jordan River.

Carter told his 38th formal news conference Tuesday the United States believes the settlements are illegal. Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin contends the settlements may remain during the peace negotiation.

In regard to Sadat, Carter said, "I don't think he would let any single element of the West Bank-Gaza Strip settlement prevent a conclusion to a treaty between Egypt and Israel."

The talks will be held at the ministerial level. Carter conferred with Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan, who arrived in Washington for the talks, and was meeting the Egyptian delegation today.

Press secretary Jody Powell said Dayan and Carter agreed "to attempt to resolve all differences without public debate." That means reporters will be given only sketchy accounts of the talks in progress.

Carter also told reporters the United States is trying to persuade Jordan and "to some lesser degree" the Palestinians who have on tie West Bank and in the Gaza Strip to participate. So far they have declined.

On other foreign policy matters, Carter said — He has not ordered the U.S. Embassy in Moscow to expel the Vashchenkos, a family of Russian Pentecostals, who have been staying at the embassy for several months in search of asylum.

"A strong and independent Iran is crucial" to the Western world but he hopes there can be "peace here, an end to bloodshed in an orderly

Sex Bias in Pay Concerns Board

MANCHESTER — Members of the town Board of Directors expressed concern Tuesday night that two women have been classified in a lower group than they should be in the town's proposed management pay plan.

Both the assistant treasurer and assistant collector of revenue should be boosted to a higher pay grade, two directors said.

These were the first public comments issued by the board about the management pay plan, which has reclassified many management and mid-management positions and changed the salary ranges for most.

Director Vivian Ferguson was the first to mention that she felt the two women are underclassified in the proposed plan. The positions are now being reviewed by the board.

Charles McCarthy, assistant town manager, said that Carter will meet with the board Monday, Oct. 30 when a workshop will be held on his study.

At this meeting, Carter will explain to the board the reasons for his decisions and can answer any questions, such as the ones from Mrs. Ferguson and Sweeney, about the plan.

The board also tables action on an assistant collector position for Controller Thomas Moore. The change would elevate Moore to the new director of finance job, but the present classification specification presented to the board was incomplete.

Directors Ferguson and Carl Zinner voiced their support for the proposal.

Mrs. Ferguson said that some activities should be regionalized. Residents should make the choice, she said.

"We are attempting to maintain our autonomy in choice. What people are looking for is a choice," she said. Zinner said that a regional planning study is something that the townspeople should vote on before Manchester becomes involved.

"If this ordinance would handpick us, it would also be handpicking Hartford, and they seem to be getting along OK," he said.

Mayor Stephen Penn and Director Thomas Connors also questioned what effect the proposal might have on certain programs, including transportation and regional safety programs.

The board unanimously agreed to table action on the matter and wait for more information about the effect the proposal would have.

Scientists Begin Shroud Tests

TURIN, Italy (UPI) — American scientists using the latest techniques of the U.S. space program worked around the clock today to unravel the mysteries of an ancient piece of linen cloth revered by many as the burial shroud of Jesus Christ.

The 15 by 35 centimeter piece of fabric, which is believed to have been used to wrap the body of Jesus Christ, was brought to Turin in 1968. It was first examined by a team of scientists led by Dr. Giulio Fieschi, director of the Laboratory of Forensic Medicine at the University of Turin.

They are studying the shroud in a second-floor hall of Turin's 17th-century royal palace complex in top secrecy, with police sentries manning the gates.

The shroud is a piece of linen 14 feet, 3 inches long and 3 feet, 7 inches wide. It bears the negative image of a bearded man who apparently has been crucified, scourged with a whip, stabbed in the side and continued on the application of Ralph Zahner for a seven lot subdivision on Lewis Hill road. At 9 p.m. another hearing will consider a change to the subdivision regulations that will increase fees from $25 to $50 per lot.

Old business on the agenda includes a subdivision application by Alfred Heckler for five lots on Boston Turnpike. Seasonal dwelling policy will be reviewed.

Zoning Agent Ernest Wheeler is expected to inform the PZC that the Empire Gas Company has completed its landscaping plans at its industrial park facility on Route 31. Wheeler had hit the Missouri-based company for failure to implement PZC stipulations.

Reinhorn Can Vote On Plans

MANCHESTER — A member of the town's Board of Appeals does not have a conflict of interest with a lot-division question on Biglow Street.

Thus, five ZBA members can vote on the matter at the board's Monday night meeting.

Harry Reinhorn, a ZBA member, had sat at the public hearing, but raised a question near the end about whether he might have a conflict of interest.

Reinhorn had purchased insurance from the business partner of the owner of the Biglow Street property.

The town council's office has ruled, however, that Reinhorn is not in conflict and may vote on the matter.

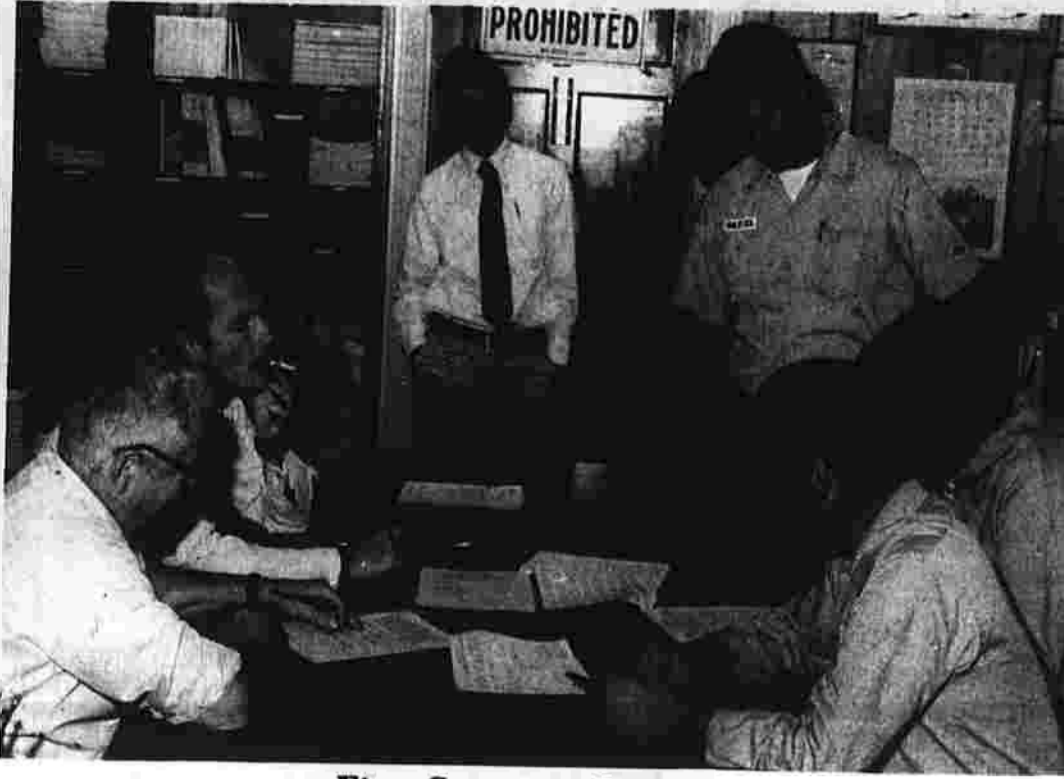

Two other ZBA members, Bernard Johnson and Peter Sylvester, did not sit at the hearing because of conflicts. If Reinhorn also had been declared in conflict, it would have left only four ZBA members to act on the matter. Four votes are needed to overturn the decision of Ernest Macchelli, zoning enforcement officer, in the matter.

The property in question is at 36-38 Biglow St. and is owned by Thomas J. Crockett.

Crockett has proposed to build a second home on the lot, but this would require a zig-zag division to create two lots and meet front footage requirements.

Macchelli said that the zig-zag division, while not normally permitted because of a loophole in the town's zoning regulations. The loophole has since been corrected.

Neighboring residents are opposed to the proposal and have appealed Macchelli's decision to the ZBA.

Ahearn Challenges Board To Show Pay Agreement

By CHRIS BLAKE

EAST HARTFORD — Aloysius Ahearn, the teacher-policeman who was sued last month by the East Hartford Board of Education, has challenged the board to produce the alleged agreement it says he made with them in 1976.

The board sued Ahearn on two counts last month. One count claims Ahearn "vacated or impliedly resigned his position with the board" when he won and accepted a seat in the General Assembly in 1974.

The suit also claims Ahearn was "illegally enriched" when he accepted $4,104 from the board.

The board alleges in the suit that Ahearn agreed he would teach 70 minutes each day school was in session at a compensation of $16.10 per minute for a total of $969.30 for the 43-day period the Legislature was in session.

The board claims through an error in the payroll department, Ahearn was overpaid $3,411.

The board claims he paid back $1,100 leaving a balance of $1,369. The board alleges Ahearn wrongfully refused to pay the balance.

There was no agreement either written or verbal for 1976, Ahearn said Tuesday. "The payroll department made no clerical oversight," as the board contends, because the payroll department had no authorization to make deductions from my salary.

"The school superintendent and the chairman of the board must be aware that there was no agreement because I wrote to them over two years ago explaining why I could not accept their proposal," he said.

Ahearn said he signed an agreement in 1975 stating he would work 25 hours a week as a teacher during the months the Legislature was in session.

In 1976, Ahearn says the board tried to reduce his work week to six hours a week while the Legislature was in session.

He said he sent the 1976 agreement back to the board unsigned.

"I still have a copy of the unsigned agreement and the superintendent has a copy," he said.

Ahearn said he kept a record of the hours he was absent on legislative duties and at the end of 1976 he paid the payroll department $1,817 to cover the time he spent serving in the Legislature, which the law says employees must grant employees elected to the Legislature.

Ahearn's response Tuesday was in reply to board member Richard Veltri's comments at the Oct. 2 board meeting. Veltri said the board was not against teachers serving in public office, but only wanted Ahearn to live up to his alleged agreement.

"As for Mr. Veltri's reported statement that the board is not trying to exclude teachers from serving in the Legislature, I submit that it is in direct conflict with the language of the East Hartford suit," he said.

"Which clearly takes the position that it is 'unconstitutional' for a teacher to hold both positions."

"As a matter of fact," he added, "the board is using that argument to force me to return all salary they paid me while I was teaching during that session on the grounds that they had no right to pay me in the first place."

Ahearn called the suit "ridiculous and frivolous." He said if the board's claims are upheld, about 30,000 Connecticut teachers would be unable to serve in higher office.

"The whole tenor of this punitive suit is discriminatory and unfair," he said. "They are wrong both on facts and in legal interpretation. I look forward to the day when we meet in court to settle this issue."

Lawrence DePonte, board chairman, said today he supports Veltri's comments and the suit was filed to recover back wages.

"I agree completely with Dr. Veltri's comments," he said. "We encourage political involvement of our teachers."

He said the board, to his knowledge, was never consulted when the school's attorney and the school administration drew up the charges of unconstitutionality against Ahearn.

"The administration and the school's attorney (Lawrence Day) generated that charge," he said. "To my knowledge it was never discussed in front of the board."

DePonte said, "As far as Al Ahearn's statement that he doesn't owe the board and the taxpayers any money goes, he is in complete error."

Police Probing 'Untimely' Death

EAST HARTFORD — Police today are investigating the death of an East Hartford man whose body was found at 6:14 a.m. today at the East Hartford Boat Launch near the Founders Bridge. Police termed the death "untimely."

A reliable source told The Herald at the time the offer was made, the majority of the board of directors of the Courant voted to take no action on the offer.

The "expression of preference," is being sought to gain input from the certificate holders although voting on the matter will be left to the board of directors.

According to reports, the expressions being sought concern the questions of selling the newspaper, not selling or not selling the newspaper until a better offer is received.

The source said the offer made by the Courant to a New York City-based group is currently being solicited from certificate holders and shareholders of the newspaper.

An offer to buy the Courant, Connecticut's largest daily newspaper, was received earlier this year from Capital Cities Communications.

The Courant directors had no knowledge of a subsequent offer.

The preference of the certificate and stockholders is to get a sense of their feelings and ideas.

Many of the certificate and stockholders are employees, past employees or persons who have had a close relationship with the newspaper during the past years.

Although the expression of preference is non-binding, it is expected the subject of the offer to buy will be discussed at future monthly board meetings.

The non-binding options will be sought through Oct. 20.

Police withheld the man's name, age and address pending the notification of next of kin.

Police said Officer Matthew Maloney discovered the body.

East Hartford police and the state Medical Examiner were at the scene this morning. The body was taken to the state Medical Examiner's Office in Farmington for an autopsy.

Police could give no further details about the man's death.

Gun Sought

TORRINGTON (UPI) — Almost a dozen state police sifted through tons of recently dumped garbage in the Torrington landfill but didn't find the handgun used to kill a 42-year-old machine shop owner.

State police said Tuesday they had received information from the gun user to kill Alfred Schmid of Harwinton had been tossed in a garbage container dumped out at the landfill.

Schmid's body was found by police Sunday at 7:15 a.m. slumped behind the wheel of his car in East Litchfield. Police were responding to an anonymous telephone call reporting someone had been shot in his car.

Police said two shots were fired.

Dental Clinic Need Must Be Redefined

By JUNE TOMPKINS

MANCHESTER — In a surprise turn of events, the Manchester Dental Clinic Committee Tuesday backed off from its former stand on the need for a dental clinic in town.

The original need for a clinic to care for the welfare patients in town has apparently diminished, according to committee member Michael Gallacher.

"For the first time in about two years, private dentists are accepting children whose bills are paid by the federal government, according to Lynn Gustafson, head school nurse.

Until the original estimated cost for constructing a clinic in the renovated Bentley School rose to unexpected proportions, the clinic had been approved and was going to be in the school. Now the committee is waiting for another less costly location to be found.

"We have to go back and redefine the need," Gallacher said.

"I don't think we have the number of needy patients we thought we had a year ago," Dr. Ronald Stephens, a committee dentist member said. He said he thought that with the state of the economy and the influx of several new dentists, the welfare school-age patients were being cared for with little public help.

With this change of patient need, Gallacher said that the committee should no longer consider the clinic in the same concept as in the past.

Dr. Stephens said he doesn't think there has been change in the situation. "I just don't think we investigated it thoroughly enough," he said, adding that he has reversed his original opinion 180 degrees. "The feedback I keep getting isn't what I heard a year ago," he said.

Mrs. Gustafson said that there are some dentists who, when asked by a school nurse to take a welfare patient, say they aren't taking any new patients. "What do we do then?" she asked.

"Just keep calling until you find one who will," answered Dr. L. Norman Dutton, also a committee member. Dr. Dutton has said he accepts welfare patients.

After discussing the need to identify a different group of patients, those who don't qualify as welfare patients but who feel they can't afford dental care, the committee approved Mrs. Gustafson's suggestion to ask permission from School Superintendent James Kennedy to circulate survey sheets among the schools. The questionnaire, designed to determine who is not seeing a dentist because of cost factors would be filled out by the parents and returned to the school, and evaluated by the school health department.

The committee was supposed to move on a proposal made by Dr. Michael Goodman last month offering the services of his dental suite and associates to treat welfare patients for an interim period until a clinic was established, but tabled their decision.

Dr. Goodman was not available today for comment.

"Anything less than a complete pay back is not acceptable," DelPonte heatedly said.

DelPonte said an agreement was worked out between the school board and Ahearn. He said the school board overpaid Ahearn based on the agreement.

Eugene Diggs, the superintendent of schools, could not be reached for comment this morning.

Investors Surveyed On Sale of Courant

An "expression of preference" concerning the possible sale of The Hartford Courant to a New York City-based group is currently being solicited from certificate holders and shareholders of the newspaper.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — There may be shades of Allan Bakke's "reverse discrimination" charges in a sensitive new case involving veterans and women and Supreme Court has agreed to hear.

At issue is a Massachusetts law that puts veterans — most of whom are male — ahead of all other applicants for state civil service jobs.

The state said the law was needed to reward those who served their country in time of war and to help rehabilitate lives disrupted by military service.

Burial Costs Going Up in Manchester Cemeteries

MANCHESTER — Getting buried in town cemeteries will cost you more after Jan. 1.

The Town Board of Directors Tuesday night approved proposed price increases for cemetery services that the town provides.

The major increases would be from $160 to $200 for a grave space, from $110 to $160 for a grave opening from $65 to $100 for a Saturday service and from $85 to $150 for a holiday service. They will go into effect Jan. 1.

The price increases will reflect more accurately the cost of the service to the customers. Approximately one-third of the cemetery costs now are funded from town monies not obtained from customers who use the service. The price increases will reduce this subsidizing figure to 10 to 15 percent.

Director Joseph Sweeney supported the change. He said that even with the increase the town's rates would be "modestly lower" than surrounding towns.

Director Vivian Ferguson said of the cemetery service, "It should be supported by the people who use it." Director Carl Zinsser cast the lone vote against the increases.

"I have a hard time going along with all these increases," he said.

Responding to Sweeney's remarks, Zinsser said, "I don't want to judge what we're doing in Manchester by what they're doing in West Hartford or Newington."

Zinsser also said that some funeral homes have been concerned about the lack of flexibility in regulations and time deadlines for burials in town cemeteries. These sometimes lead to delays in the final burial date, he said.

Mayor Stephen Penny said that these concerns have been mentioned to Robert Harrison, cemetery superintendent. Harrison will implement some changes on a probationary basis, Penny said.

Holmes Says Hikes High

MANCHESTER — Arthur Holmes, vice president and secretary of Holmes Funeral Home, has met with town officials to discuss the proposed increase in cemetery rates.

The increase in rates was approved Tuesday night by the Town Board of Directors.

A public hearing was held last week, and no one from Holmes or any other local funeral home spoke. Holmes, however, wished to make it clear that his business had had input on the matter.

"We are alert and have followed this thing through," he said.

Holmes said that he felt the price increases for cemetery services are high, unless the town plans to adopt a policy where users of the service are paying the full cost.

The increases were proposed by Robert Harrison, cemetery superintendent.

Holmes said that he feels Harrison and the Cemetery Department do a good job, but he does feel that the cost increases are high.

Proposed price changes include the following: Grave space, from $160 to $200; grave opening and closing, from $110 to $160; Saturday service, from $65 to $100; holiday service, from $85 to $150.

Holmes Funeral Home would be affected more than any other by the increases. It does 60 to 65 percent of its funerals in town-run cemeteries.

and uses those cemeteries more than any other home, Holmes said.

Holmes recently met with Mayor Stephen Penny, Manager Robert Weiss and Harrison to discuss his concerns about the proposed increases.

"If it's a service of the town, it's a big increase," Holmes said of the proposed changes.

He also mentioned the perpetual care fund, which was discussed at the public hearing. The $600,000 fund is established for the care of cemetery property and is intended to obtain additional funds.

He said that it is important that the town make sure the money is invested for the best possible return.

New Case Is Like Bakke

WASHINGTON (UPI) — There may be shades of Allan Bakke's "reverse discrimination" charges in a sensitive new case involving veterans and women and Supreme Court has agreed to hear.

At issue is a Massachusetts law that puts veterans — most of whom are male — ahead of all other applicants for state civil service jobs.

The state said the law was needed to reward those who served their country in time of war and to help rehabilitate lives disrupted by military service.

But women challengers won U.S. District Court rulings the statute unconstitutionally discriminated against them.

Classifications based on race are treated quite differently than those based on sex in constitutional law, and university admissions is a different legal matter than employment. But some parallels can be drawn between their case and Bakke's.

Like the Bakke case, in which a white challenged a university admissions program designed to help minorities get into the Massachusetts appeal involves efforts to help one group that may wind up putting a dent in another group's opportunities.

The Supreme Court ruled in Bakke's case last year that race may be one factor in deciding who gets admitted to medical school, but it may not be the sole factor.

Massachusetts Attorney General Francis Bellotti said Tuesday the commonwealth argues in this case benefit one class and has an incidental, but not intentional, impact on another, it is not unconstitutionally discriminatory."

On the other side, John Reinstein of the Massachusetts Civil Liberties Union Foundation said he doubted the state could "draw any support from Bakke, but that remains to be seen — I don't think voters fall into the category of an oppressed minority."

The Massachusetts law was challenged by Helen Feehey, who worked for the state from 1963 until she was laid off in 1975. She took tests three times seeking supervisory positions, but each time the job went to a male veteran who scored lower than she did.

Three Held In Burglary At Business

MANCHESTER — Police arrested three Hartford residents in the process of a burglary at Maine Coast Seafood late Tuesday night. It was the third burglary at the business in the past three nights and the fourth burglary in recent weeks.

Arrested were Ronald Blessing, 32, charged with first-degree burglary, Walter Bethea, 31, and Toni A. Meyer, 19, both charged with conspiracy to commit first-degree burglary.

Police said Officer John DiPietro, on a check of the premises at 55 Oakland St. at about 11:45 p.m., noticed a side window in the building which had been smashed. As he approached the building, a suspect, later identified as Blessing, ran out the front door. DiPietro chased him on foot and apprehended him. The other two suspects were apprehended nearby by additional police units which had been called. They had been waiting in a car for Blessing.

Police said an ice pick and some fish products were found in Blessing's possession. Police were not able to say how much fish Blessing had. In the two previous burglaries, over $2,000 worth of shrimp and crab claws were stolen.

Detective Captain Joseph Brooks said Blessing will be charged in the three previous burglaries at the seafood business. He was a former employee at Maine Coast Seafood, police said.

All three suspects were being held in lieu of $5,000 bonds for presentment in court today.

Manchester Police Report

Two more persons have been arrested by Manchester Police in connection with the theft of a collection of antique guns at a Seymour Street residence in September.

William Nazario, 25, of Hartford was charged with the theft of a firearm on a warrant Monday night. He was to be presented in court today.

Police said Nazario had taken two antique guns from the alleged thieves who had stolen a total of 17 guns from the Seymour Street home Sept. 18.

A male juvenile was also referred to juvenile court on charges of conspiracy in connection with the same incident. Three others have been previously charged in connection with the burglary.

Ronald Durler, 42, of 16 Lyness St. was charged with improper passing in a no passing zone, failure to obey a stop control signal, and operating under the influence of liquor. He was arrested after a brief chase from Center Street along Adams Street to West Middle Turnpike Tuesday night. He was released on a promise to appear in court Oct. 24.

Twelve other motor vehicle arrests were made Tuesday.

Nilda Melendez, 17, and Mirta Melendez, 18, both of 6 Burnham St., were charged with fourth-degree larceny in connection with a shoplifting incident at Calder on Tolland Turnpike Tuesday. They were released on non-surety bonds for court Oct. 23.

A burglary was reported at Bowers School on Princeton Street Tuesday morning. Police said the office of the school was entered, the desk ransacked, but only a key to a confidential file was taken.

Greenberg Resigns From School Board

MANCHESTER — Paul Greenberg, a seven-year veteran of the Board of Education, submitted his resignation from the board at Monday night's meeting.

He cited personal and family commitments as his reason for leaving the board. He said, "I have thought about it for a long time. It's something I have to do."

The resignation will be effective Oct. 23, but Greenberg said he would continue to work with the citizens committee on long-range planning until it completes its report early next year.

Vernon Firefighters Study Firehouse Site

VERNON — Some members of the 2 of the Vernon Fire Department Co. have formed a committee to study the location of a proposed new firehouse for their area but the Fire Study Committee, appointed by Mayor Frank McCoy, wants to settle the matter of combining the Vernon and Rockville Departments first.

The firemen's committee plans to give its findings and recommendations to the study committee and hopes that committee will take their suggestions into consideration.

The proposed new firehouse will replace the Dobson Road area station on Route 30. This station is the town's oldest and smallest and has been considered insufficient for new equipment.

The town has $40,000 set aside for the purchase of land for the building. A Fire Study Committee, formed in 1975, termed the Route 30 firehouse unacceptable.

The committee then recommended

UB Mediation To Start

BRIDGEPORT (UPI) — Federal mediator Hezekiah Brown says he expects the mediation panel at the University of Bridgeport to begin meeting by the end of the week. But the head of the faculty union isn't so sure.

Both sides in the dispute over a new contract agreed to let a three-member mediation panel try to resolve the differences between them, ending a faculty strike that began Sept. 22.

"This is wrong," Douglas said. "This should not be telling their students this. We hope to stick it out the whole 30 days of the plan."

Professors went back to class Monday under a 30-day extension of their old contract while the contract dispute is ironed out. The strike had forced suspension of classes for one week for the more than 8,000 full and part-time students.

Among issues still unresolved are salaries, faculty rights, control over academic matters and layoff procedures.

Fireman Resigns

MANCHESTER — Kevin Connolly, a firefighter for the Town Fire Department for four years, has recently resigned from the department.

He has accepted a position in private business, according to Chief John Rivosa.

Brock Says Democrats Steal Republican - Idea

HARTFORD (UPI) — Republican National Chairman William Brock Tuesday accused the Democrats of "rank politics" for trying to turn a Republican idea into their own $142 billion tax-slashing measure.

The Senate Monday approved the across the board tax cut that would be phased in over a five-year period. The Senate bill would require a balanced budget by 1982 and would only allow the tax cuts to take effect if government spending does not rise too rapidly.

Appearing at Connecticut Republican headquarters, Brock said the tax-slashing measure approved by the Senate on a 65-20 vote was "essentially the same plan" as the Kemp-Roth bill.

The Kemp-Roth bill, defeated in Congress last week, called for about $100 billion in tax cuts over three years. Republicans launched a nationwide media blitz to push the measure.

"The Democrats played a pretty smart game," said Brock, who had come to Connecticut to campaign for Republican gubernatorial candidate, Rep. Ronald Sarasin, R-Conn.

Brock said the Democrats stole their $142 billion tax cut idea from the Republicans.

"That's pretty rank politics," he said. But the national GOP chairman said he is hopeful the Republicans will push "renewed activity" for passage of the Senate bill because it's a sound concept. The measure now goes to House-Senate conferees.

By latching onto the tax-cutting idea, the Democratic-controlled Senate may have put President Carter on the spot, Brock said.

"We've presented President Carter with a very difficult choice," said Brock, who characterized the president as a big spending Democrat. Brock said Carter may be forced to veto the measure, a move the Republican chairman felt would irk the nation's voters.

On another front, Brock said Sarasin's fight to unseat Democratic Gov. Ella Grasso "is not untypical of a lot of races around the country."

He said the voters are looking for candidates who will curtail wasteful government spending and he said the Republicans can provide those kinds of "quality" candidates.

"They're (the voters) not unwilling to pay taxes," Brock said. "But they do resent it when they pay taxes and they don't get value received."

Cummings Says Joyner Doesn't Have Solutions

MANCHESTER — State Rep. Theodore Cummings responded to criticism of his voting record by his opponent, Republican challenger Walter Joyner.

"He makes charges of spending and spending. Yet, he doesn't know where the money goes," Cummings said.

He mentioned, for instance, that about 25 percent of Manchester's town budget is funded with state grants.

Cummings, who also is Democratic town Chairman, and Joyner both are running for the 12th Assembly District seat, which Cummings has held for two terms.

Joyner issued a statement this week that criticized Cummings' voting record, particularly on financial issues.

Cummings said that Joyner criticizes but offers no solutions.

"When a person attacks and criticizes and offers no solutions, that means he or she would lay people off and he doesn't know where the money goes," Cummings said.

Party Slated For Swensson

MANCHESTER — Elsie "Big" Swensson, Republican candidate in the 13th Assembly District, will be the guest of honor at the champagne party to be given by Vivian Ferguson.

The party will be Friday, Oct. 13 from 4 to 6 p.m. at Mrs. Ferguson's home.

"I am honoring Big on Friday the 13th because she is the 13th Assembly District candidate," Mrs. Ferguson said.

"This is strictly a social function," she says, just a friendly gathering of women of both political parties as well as unaffiliated voters," Mrs. Ferguson said.

"I have known Big for many years. She is a devoted worker and friend. She will make a fine legislator because of her concern for all people, she said.

Connell Pedals Tax Cut

VERNON — Thomas Connell, who is running for congress from the 2nd District on the Republican ticket, has christened his bicycle the "Tax Cut" and said he plans to pedal it all over Eastern Connecticut.

Connell, who is running against Democratic incumbent Christopher Dodd, is running on a tax reform platform.

"I want to pedal across the district to peddle the tax cut. I think the ride will get me a lot closer to the voters and taxpayers than Chris Dodd has ever been," Connell said.

Connell's bike ride will begin Saturday morning in Stafford Springs and will end in Middletown five or six days later.

He said in between he will pedal/peddle through Rockville, Coventry, Willimantic, Norwich, Mystic, New London, Waterford, Niantic, Old Lyme, Old Saybrook, Centerbrook and Deep River. The route is about 130 miles long but Connell plans to take several side trips to attend special functions.

Connell will be staying with local supporters in each town along the way and tentatively plans to spend the nights in Coventry, Norwich, New London, Old Saybrook and Middletown.

In addition to the tax cut issue, Connell plans to spend a considerable amount of time along the shore area campaigning against Dodd's proposals to buy beach areas for conversion to public beaches.

Grenades Hit Beirut

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Rocket grenades exploded on the fringe of Christian East Beirut today in the first major exchange of rocket fire of the 4-day-old cease-fire in the battle of Beirut.

Some 20 rocket-propelled grenade blasts reverberated shortly before daylight between Syrian peacekeeping troops and Israeli-armed Christian militiamen who battled all last week in the city's heaviest fighting yet.

Witnesses said machine gun fire also was heard, but denied local radio reports that mortars or heavier weapons were involved.

There were no immediate reports of casualties in the firing between militiamen in the southeast Christian suburb of Ain Rummaneh and Syrians in the adjacent Moslem neighborhood of Chiah.

Sniper fire halted automobile traffic on the escape route for civilians trying flee battered East Beirut to Christian areas to the north, witnesses said.

Reporters visiting Chiah and Ain Rummaneh early today found only minor damage from the overnight clash. Residents appeared tense.

"The problem is, we never know if and when things will start up again," said one resident.

President Elias Sarkis sought Arab help to shore up the fragile cease-fire declared Saturday but violated Monday and Tuesday by fighting for two bridges over the Beirut River.

Syrian forces and Christian rightist militiamen, who last week battled for six days, Tuesday fought their fiercest duel since the cease-fire began.

Right-wing Christian Radio said the rifle, machine-gun and grenade fire that flared on the edge of Christian East Beirut killed seven Lebanese, raising to 18 the number of dead and 47 wounded since the cease-fire. No Syrian casualty figures have been released.

Official casualties in the battle for Beirut have been impossible to obtain. But Red Cross workers said the artillery, mortar and rocket barrages that raged last week through east Beirut and Christian hill resorts inland left at least 500 dead, 3,000 wounded and half a million people displaced. Some 36,000 homes or apartments were destroyed.

Lebanese President Sarkis, who arranged the truce with President Hafez Assad of Syria, Tuesday visited Saudi Arabia, Qatar and Kuwait to seek vital support for the truce between the Syrians and Israeli-supported Christian militiamen who want the Syrians out of Lebanon.

Sarkis today continued his talks with a trip to Jordan. He also plans to return to Syria before Sunday, his second visit there in a week in an attempt to firm up the cease-fire.

Sarkis Tuesday announced a meeting Sunday of foreign ministers from contributing states to Lebanon's Arab League peace-keeping force. An Arab summit in Riyadh in 1976 helped end Lebanon's 19-month civil war with deployment of the overwhelmingly Syrian 30,000-man peace-keeping force.

Court Will Accept Confession on Tape

HARTFORD (UPI) — A three-judge Superior Court panel has ruled that Richard G. Ostrowski's tape-recorded confession can be admitted as evidence into his trial for the fatal beating and stabbing of a 19-year-old Canton woman.

The judges, Leo Parskey, John J. Daly and Paul M. Foti, ruled Tuesday that Ostrowski's confession was "voluntarily and intelligently given to two policemen."

Ostrowski, also of Canton, is standing trial before the judges on a murder charge in the death of Kim Steacy. She was beaten on the head, stabbed ten times in the chest and suffered a slit throat.

Police said her body was discovered on her living room floor April 12 by her boyfriend and roommate, Donald Miller.

Ostrowski's lawyer, Assistant State Public Defender Michael A. Connor Jr., claims his client's confession was illegal because before it was given Ostrowski told police he was tired and wanted to go home.

In spite of this request, Connor argues, state police Capt. Thomas J. McDonnell and Canton Police Sgt. Stephen W. Cudworth continued questioning Ostrowski for about three hours and got him to admit to the murder.

Mary Cheney Library Finally Will Get Ramp

MANCHESTER — It has been more than a year since the plans were approved, but Mary Cheney Library finally will get a ramp for the handicapped.

Town Engineer Walter Senkow said Tuesday that bids will be opened Thursday, Oct. 19 for construction of the ramp at the rear of the Main Street Library.

In March 1977, the Library Board of approved plans for the construction of the ramp and an expanded parking area in the rear of the library. This plan, however, was opposed by three Conservation Commission and the Board of Directors because it would have required use of Center Park property.

The plan was shelved when it was learned that the deed for the park specified that the property could be used only for recreational purposes. Senkow said that there will be no expansion of the parking area. Only the ramp will be constructed, and it will not intrude on Center Park property, he said.

He estimated that it will take two to three weeks to complete the ramp once the contract is signed. Senkow

School Renovation Plan Will Go to Legislature

SOUTH WINDSOR — The state Department of Education has given the preliminary green light to the renovation of South Windsor High School — a project with a price tag of some $55,000.

The renovation plans are expected to go before the state legislature in December for final approval, and will be up for referendum approval for bonding in November.

If the legislature grants final approval, the state would fund either 50 percent of the total cost, or between 40 and 80 percent of the cost, depending on whether a town is considered affluent. According to the Department of Education, the more affluent a town is considered to be the less funding would be available.

The renovations to the high school are expected to solve the overcrowding problems in some departments, as well as create a high school annex out of a portion of the recently closed Wapping Elementary School.

Part of the former elementary school on Ayers Road will be used to house some town government offices, a portion to be used for the Community Service Council sponsored Child Day Care Center, and the remainder will be converted to house overflow from the high school.

In April, the Board of Education was given a preliminary estimate for the project of some $31,549, by the New England School Development Council of Framingham, Mass., which was hired in March to do a cost analysis of the proposed renovation and annex project.

The New England School Council, however, did not consider inflation and architect's fees, but dealt instead with only the cost of actual physical changes that will be made to the two buildings.

The new, half million dollar price tag is based on the cost estimate made by Jeter, Cook and Jenson Architects — the Hartford based firm hired to design the renovations.

The new estimate, which includes cost escalations on contingency funds, initially came in at $67,100.

Public Building Commission members, however, pared down the estimate by eliminating a plan to build a covered walkway between the high school and Wapping School — an expense said to be near $50,000.

Fitts said the PBC decided to drop the walkway plan because it did not contribute to the school system's educational program and because "the students were not elementary but high school level people."

The commission has also trimmed the original estimate by buying some of the equipment itself. Fitts said early purchase of some of the equipment would save as much as $15,000.

Shareholders on Taxes

Taxes and tax policy seem to be on everyone's mind these days. People are troubled about the increasing chunks of their incomes that go to the tax collectors — local, state, and federal. ### Better Than Money

It verges on heresy to admit it in this era of ERA and job equality, but there does appear to be a difference between the working man and the working woman.

It's more basic than salary differential or individual capabilities, according to the findings of a Minnesota firm reported in the Journal of Applied Psychology. Analyzing more than 50,000 job applications received during a 30-year period, the Minnesota Gas Co. found a significant difference in job priorities.

Type of work was the most important factor among women in rating a particular job good or bad. Men, on the other hand, placed job security at the top of the list.

Capital Fare

By ANDREW TULLY. WASHINGTON — I was still waiting for the two Rhodesian terrorist groups to say maybe they'd consider free elections and a civil right or two if they took over the Salisbury government, when Jimmy Carter dropped still another shoe.

Without a scintilla of proof, Young blamed the massacres of men, women and children in several missionary outposts in Rhodesia on the Smith government, although the guerrillas even then were boasting of their "victory."

Yesir. Andy Young did play a major part in arranging an agreement to black voters and especially Andy Young. And God knows Ian Smith's record as a racist is voluminous. But at least is trying to avoid chaos in Rhodesia, Jimmy Carter is doing American blacks no favor by announcing that our foreign policy in Africa is based on what they can do for him in 1980.

SO...IN CONCLUSION...LET ME SAY...THAT ALTHOUGH WE ALL TEND TO GET FORGETFUL AT TIMES...WE MUST TRY NEVER TO FORGET FIRE PREVENTION!!

Backer For Siebold

To the editor: I am concerned about the recent controversy with regard to Mel Siebold accepting the position of swim coach for the Manchester High Boys' Swim Team.

Mr. Siebold has worked with the youth in Manchester for many years. I do not believe he would neglect his duties as director of the Recreation Department. He spends many hours (not during the normal 9 to 5 business day) attending meetings, etc., all associated with the Recreation Department.

The MHS Boys' Swim Team is only active two-and-one-half to three months out of the entire year. We so often criticize our teen-agers because they do not participate in activities that keep them busy and "off the streets."

Very truly yours, Minna Noone, 327 Burnham Street, Manchester

Thought

In "The Living Bible" we read in Philippians 2:3 about the kind of attitude which makes for a better social and spiritual relationship in the life of any person.

"Don't be selfish; don't live to make a good impression on others. Be humble, thinking of others as better than yourself. Don't just think about your own affairs, but be interested in others, too, and in what they are doing.

Your attitude should be the kind that was shown by Jesus Christ, who though he was God, did not demand and cling to his rights as God, but laid aside his mighty power and dividends in Maine. The Cohen-Hathaway contest is also important because it and the race for Maine governor will determine whether the once solidly Republican state will continue its recent drift toward top Democratic officials, or return to a more traditional stance.

Carter's visit is important to Mrs. Grasso because it should help unite a badly divided Democratic Party, split by a bitter primary in which Mrs. Grasso turned back an unprecedented challenge from her own lieutenant governor, Robert K. Killian.

The president's mother, Mrs. Lillian Carter, campaigned for Mrs. Grasso Monday.

In Maine, Hathaway is thought a slight underdog to GOP Rep. William Cohen, an attractive three-term congressman who came to attention for his vote to impeach former President Nixon in 1974.

Cohen, a former Bangor mayor, is looked upon as a potential national GOP figure if he beats Hathaway. Both men have worked the backroads of the rural state with door-to-door campaigning that traditionally pay over Brooke.

Carter Coming to Trouble Spots

By PETER A. BROWN. BOSTON (UPI) — President Carter's itinerary for his one-day New England campaign blitz later this month is a road map of trouble spots where Republicans threaten to loosen the Democrats' solid grip on the region.

Carter's trip, coming just 10 days before election day, is a last-minute gamble that the president's improved popularity will rub off on three Democratic who desperately need the help.

Carter's expected Oct. 28 visit is primarily aimed at helping Gov. Ella T. Grasso in Connecticut, Sen. William Hathaway in Maine and Edward J. King, the party's conservative gubernatorial nominee in Massachusetts.

The president is passing up visits to other New England states where well-known Democrats are prohibitive favorites for re-election — most notably Sen. Thomas M. McNamara of New Hampshire and Claiborne Pell of Rhode Island — to concentrate on the states where he is needed most.

The Democrats are already in a position of dominance in New England, with the GOP only holding two of six governorships and is badly outnumbered in the region's congressional delegation and its state legislatures.

Carter will of course, try to boost other Democratic candidates in Maine, Massachusetts and Connecticut along the way. But those are the three who need the help most and are in races that are tight enough that he might make a difference.

The Republicans nationally are pouring in money and campaign help in those races, hoping to make them a key part of the GOP effort to rebuild nationally.

Democratic leaders are hoping Carter's recent successes at the Camp David summit and on Capitol Hill will boost his popularity in the region. He failed to carry Connecticut and Maine in 1976 and his support in Massachusetts, which votes for Democratic presidential candidates as a rule of autumn, was less than enthusiastic.

Mrs. Grasso, the nation's first woman governor who did not succeed her husband and only one of two in the nation right now, is locked in a tough battle with Rep. Ronald

Political Labels Decline

By IRA R. ALLEN. WASHINGTON (UPI) — If you are a typical citizen, when — or if — you go to the polls next month you will be voting in a different way than your parents did a generation ago.

While you may still have fewer same preference for a candidate of your religion or nationality, the chances are it won't make a bit of difference what party he or she belongs to.

Not as it was in the old days when voters marked a single X or pulled one lever to vote for a whole state or a wide range of issues could be predicted simply by noting their party label.

You will likely vote for the candidate who comes across best on television or who shares your view on gun control, abortion, Proposition 13 or union rights. And by doing so, you will be reinforcing twin trends just now getting the attention of political scholars — the decline of parties and the decline in voting.

Gossage, Dent and Forster Started Together In Minors Eight Seasons Ago At Wisconsin

LOS ANGELES (UPI) - Any one of them is capable of deciding this World Series, and although they no longer sleep together or play for the same ballclub, they still consider themselves closer than the Three Musketeers.

When they started out in professional baseball eight years ago, Rich Gossage and Bucky Dent, who are with the Yankees now, and Terry Forster, with the Dodgers, discovered they had a common problem. No money.

It was a little crowded, but we had a lot of fun. "Rich and Terry always gave up a blow single and Chris Chambliss and then struck out pinch hitter Cliff Johnson plus two more in the ninth."

Booters Top Penney, 4-0

By LEN AUSTER
Herald Sports Writer

Not up to the level of previous performances, Manchester High still had more than enough to blank improving Penney High, 4-0, in CCLL soccer action yesterday at Memorial Field.

The victory leaves the Indians still in a three-way tie for the league's top spot with Hall and surprising Enfield, the latter a 2-1 upset winner Tuesday over defending champion Conard. Each stands 7-1 with 35 points in league play. Enfield and Hall square off Friday in West Hartford while Manchester hosts East Hartford High at Memorial Field at 3:30.

"I couldn't get them up [for the game]," stated Manchester Head Coach Dick Danielson. "Neither team played its best soccer."

"I thought we had chances in the first half," voiced Penney Head Coach Jim Agnew, "but I didn't think Manchester played that well."

Penney came out very quiet, maybe hesitant. "The whole first half we played like we were standing around," remarked a bewildered Agnew—and it cost them as the Silk Towners struck quickly.

Jeff Lombardo on the left side. He dribbled, unchallenged, goalward, finally sliding it over to right wing, Tom Roach who nudged it home from close range with 1:35 expired. It was Roach's fifth goal of the season.

Roach's goal streaked through the intermission until the 13:21 mark of a drive off the right post.

The best Penney scoring opportunity came moments after Wilson's shot on a direct kick by Jeff DeAngelis. Manchester keeper Mark Copeland bobbed it momentarily but surrounded the ball before John Costello, the Black Knights' leading scorer, could get a foot on it.

Copeland and Ron Apter, who played the final 10 minutes, combined on Manchester's fourth shutout of the season and third in a row.

The Indians in their last three outtings have notched 17 goals while yielding none.

Consumer Commissioner Seeks Truth in Menus

By BRUNO RANNIELLO

HARTFORD (UPI) — Nutmeg might be a sure thing in Connecticut. But the state says diners should be little wary when they see Maine lobster, Virginia ham or Long Island duck on the menu.

Launching what she called a "truth-in-menu" campaign, state Consumer Protection Commissioner Mary Heslin said surprise inspections by her department found 76 percent of the 200 eating places investigated in the "Nutmeg State" had misleading menus.

She announced her department will give the eateries until March to fix their menus.

The chief complaints found by inspectors were that some restaurants couldn't prove their Maine lobsters were from Maine, their Virginia ham was from Virginia or their Long Island duck had even flown by the peninsula that juts out from New York.

The list, compiled by about 400 claims inspectors, said fresh seafood and fruit was not always fresh and chopped sirloin was in some cases ground beef or hamburger.

Mrs. Heslin said some menus clearly violated the law by erroneously advertising Jell-O baby beef liver, all beef franks and solid white tuna.

Mrs. Heslin told a news conference not all of the claims have been substantiated by her department.

"We can't say whether it was pure outright deception or just plain ignorance," she said. "But it has become obvious to me in reviewing these menus that there is a need for more accurate menu descriptions."

Representatives of the Associated Restaurants of Connecticut, attending the news conference, said later they were conducting their own program to have restaurants reflect accurate menus.

Bernard Hickey, vice president of the association, said the state's program "is unnecessary. We want to police our own business and we can do it to everyone's satisfaction."

Mrs. Heslin said the restaurants will be given until March 1 to comply with a set of food description standards and if there is "a pattern of repeated non-compliance" she may seek legislation.

The commissioner said the investigators found diners got food of a lower quality than that stated on the menu, food billed as "homemade" was either commercially prepared or made on the premises and domestic products were substituted for items advertised as imported.

Some restaurants also served frozen foods in lieu of fresh food, falsely stated the manner of food preparation and substituted a specific cut of meat on the menu with another cut of meat, Mrs. Heslin said.

Board Nixes Hilliard Pond Purchase

MANCHESTER — The frequently discussed proposal to purchase Hilliard Pond came to an end Tuesday night when the Town Board of Directors decided not to seek federal funds for the purchase.

The board also asked that the town administration begin work on two other open-space proposals — a curfew for some town-owned property and consideration of a plan to change the assessment of property when there is a great difference between the assessment and the proposed sale price.

The board previously had approved proceeding with an application for a federal Bureau of Outdoor Recreation grant to pay part of the cost of the pond purchase. The Conservation Commission has recommended purchase of the pond, which is owned by Morris and Richard Bezzini.

The asking price for the pond, more than $90,000, is too high for board members.

"There's a point where we have to face reality," Director Stephen Cassano said. "I think we have made every effort to obtain the property at a reasonable price."

The board agreed unanimously, however, that the proposed price is not reasonable.

This led to a suggestion by Director John FitzPatrick that the town consider increasing the taxable assessment of property when there is a major difference between the assessment and the proposed sale price.

Charles McCarthy, acting town manager, said that he would discuss the proposal with the assessor's office and seek a report on it.

There really isn't an identifiable price for that kind of property," McCarthy said. He echoed FitzPatrick's words when he asked, "Who knows the value of the land better than the seller?"

Theresa Parla, chairwoman of the Conservation Commission, said that she was disappointed that the board finally decided not to proceed with the pond purchase.

Rub Rule Said Not Working

MANCHESTER — The ordinance regulating massage parlors in town is in place but has done little to stop the parlor activities, the originator of the ordinance said Tuesday night.

Director Vivian Ferguson wants to know why.

She proposed the ordinance, which was approved by the Board of Directors. It spells out what is not permitted in the business and requires licensing and training for employees.

"It's been some time. I'd like to see some action taken," she said.

Assistant William Shea, assistant town counsel, and Dr. Alice Turck, Police Chief Robert Lannan, both said that the ordinance is in the hands of the Police Department.

Shea said that the ordinance is in place. His office will in any way it can now, but the legal work has been completed.

"It's a police matter," he said.

Police Chief Robert Lannan predicted that checking of the parlor should begin soon, possibly within a couple of weeks.

"We're working out procedures with Dr. Turck," he said.

The Police and Health Departments have been meeting to discuss the routine of enforcing the ordinance, Lannan said.

Dr. Turck said that the departments have been working together, and she hopes enforcement starts soon.

She said that Mrs. Ferguson is right about the parlor still operating despite the ordinance.

"They're even advertising for new employees. The time is coming when we have to take a look at it," Dr. Turck said.

PZC Backs Lydall Plan To Expand

MANCHESTER — The town's Planning and Zoning Commission this morning approved a proposed expansion of Lydall Inc.

Lydall presented its plan for the first section of a four-phase development at the Oct. 2 meeting of the PZC.

The first building will be 9,400 square feet and will be located near the firm's present building off Parker Street.

The commission agreed to grant the firm a special exception, which is needed for any development of four or more acres of land.

The commission also requested that Lydall Inc. make sure all lighting is shielded so it does not disturb nearby residences.

There was no opposition to the proposal at the Oct. 2 public hearing. The PZC did not act then because it wanted time to consider the application and to seek answers for a couple of technical questions.

Unions Face Off — The Connecticut State Employees Association and the American Federation of Teachers will vie with each other for the right to represent about 840 state vocational technical teachers in a runoff election Oct. 23 and 24.

In the first election last week, the APT came in first, getting 336 of 705 votes cast. State Board of Labor-Relations agent John W. Kingston said Tuesday.

The secretarial union has been without a contract for two years. The union had asked for a 10 percent increase each year for the next 10 years. The school board has recommended an increase of 3 percent, in addition to regular increases received for seniority, estimated at 2 percent each year.

The tentative agreement between the union and the board went to binding arbitration after the secretaries rejected a state factfinder's report on Aug. 24.

A major contention between the union and the board has been the latter's proposed changes in the language of the contract. The board has stated that it has the right to change a job description in any classification or to transfer an employee to similar classification positions. The union has feared the changes because they fear a loss of job security.

Matthew Noon, 18, of Crystal Lake Road, Ellington, was charged early this morning with reckless driving, failure to obey an officer's signal, driving an unregistered motor vehicle, and driving while license is under suspension.

Police said Noon was operating a motorcycle and was involved in an accident following a chase on several Rockville streets. Police said he lost control trying to make a left turn on South Street into Crown Street.

Noon was treated at Rockville General Hospital and discharged. He was released on a $250 nonreturn bond for appearance in court in Rockville on Oct. 17.

Berster Defense To Call Webster

BURLINGTON, Vt. (UPI) — Claiming there is more to the case "than meets the eye," Kristina Berster's attorney said he will subpoena FBI Director William Webster to testify at the immigration of the West German fugitive.

William Kunstler said Tuesday he had made arrangements for the subpoena to be served today in Washington by Philip Hirschbopp.

U.S. Attorney William Gray said he will move to quash the subpoena.

Webster's attorney would not comment on why he wants Webster's testimony, except to say it is relevant to the defense.

"There is more to this case than meets the eye," he added.

Miss Berster, 28, and a co-defendant, Ray Kajmir of New York City, are accused of conspiring to bring her into the U.S. from Canada illegally at Albany on July 6.

Miss Berster has been described by the FBI as a marked terrorist, a charge she and her lawyers have repeatedly denied.

Tuesday, a protracted hearing on a defense move to suppress some government evidence continued with testimony from border officials involved in arresting the defendants.

Defense attorneys have said statements and documents taken from Kajmir and Miss Berster should not be introduced at the trial because they were improperly obtained.

U.S. Border Patrol Officer Donald Peck testified Miss Berster was held for 20 hours at immigration and customs offices in Albany and nearby Swanton before being transferred to a jail here.

He said there was no bed at the border offices and that he did not know whether Miss Berster was given a chance to call a lawyer at that time.

There was conflicting evidence as to when she was allowed to call a lawyer. Peck said Tuesday she tried to call a lawyer at 11:45 p.m. that evening, about two hours after her detention.

Gray said he introduced an earlier statement Peck made to the FBI in which he said she was not given a chance to call a lawyer until after her original detention.

Other border officers described the circumstances under which Kajmir and two companions were arrested several hours after Miss Berster.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: An old friend of the family, a widow with plenty of money does not realize that she has practically no friends because she is so tight with a dollar.

My wife and Mrs. Cheapate are about the same age (73) and when Mrs. Cheapate was laid up recently with a broken ankle, my wife did her shopping for her, and even drove her to a doctor in another city.

As a reward, Mrs. Cheapate treated us to lunch at a fast-food restaurant.

My wife sets a beautiful table and prepares delicious meals when we have guests. We had Mrs. Cheapate for dinner last evening, and when we took her home, she said, in parting, "We'll have to go out to lunch soon - Dutch treat of course!"

This woman complains that she is lonely and doesn't know what to do with her time. I say someone should tell her in plain English why she is so lonely. My wife says it would destroy our friendship and hurt her.

What do you say, Abby?

NO NAME IN GLENDALE

DEAR NO NAME: I suspect you're more leered with Mrs. Cheapate's cheapness than concerned about her loneliness.

Her lack of friends is HER problem, and at 75 she's not likely to change. Your letter cannot lead to wonder why you and your wife would continue to cater to a person whose friendship is clearly all talk and no give.

DEAR ABBY: While cleaning our desk drawer, I came across a 1935 $5 bill from China. That was before China went Communist and became the People's Republic of China. It is a bill for 50 cents.

Can you tell me what this $5 bill is worth and where I can cash it?

CHINESE BILL HOLDER

DEAR BILL HOLDER: The bill is out of circulation and cannot be cashed. But one day it might be worth much more than $5 if kept as a collector's item.

In an ordinary bridge game West would lead three rounds of diamonds. East would ruff dummy's jack, declarer would overruff, draw trumps, cash the top clubs, ruff his last club, discard the deuce of hearts on the queen of diamonds, try the heart finesse and just make his contract when it lost.

Both declarers made game in the finals of the Spingold, but the play was Heathcliff - George Gately

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: An old friend of the family, a widow with plenty of money does not realize that she has practically no friends because she is so tight with a dollar.

My wife and Mrs. Cheapate are about the same age (73) and when Mrs. Cheapate was laid up recently with a broken ankle, my wife did her shopping for her, and even drove her to a doctor in another city.

As a reward, Mrs. Cheapate treated us to lunch at a fast-food restaurant.

My wife sets a beautiful table and prepares delicious meals when we have guests. We had Mrs. Cheapate for dinner last evening, and when we took her home, she said, in parting, "We'll have to go out to lunch soon - Dutch treat of course!"

This woman complains that she is lonely and doesn't know what to do with her time. I say someone should tell her in plain English why she is so lonely. My wife says it would destroy our friendship and hurt her.

What do you say, Abby?

NO NAME IN GLENDALE

DEAR NO NAME: I suspect you're more leered with Mrs. Cheapate's cheapness than concerned about her loneliness.

Her lack of friends is HER problem, and at 75 she's not likely to change. Your letter cannot lead to wonder why you and your wife would continue to cater to a person whose friendship is clearly all talk and no give.

DEAR ABBY: While cleaning our desk drawer, I came across a 1935 $5 bill from China. That was before China went Communist and became the People's Republic of China. It is a bill for 50 cents.

Can you tell me what this $5 bill is worth and where I can cash it?

CHINESE BILL HOLDER

DEAR BILL HOLDER: The bill is out of circulation and cannot be cashed. But one day it might be worth much more than $5 if kept as a collector's item.

Water Problems Continue

MANCHESTER — Problems with the town water system continued during September, Robert Young, water treatment manager, said Tuesday.

High bacteria counts were found in nine of 102 samples taken during the month, and the average bacteria count for those samples was above standards.

The department is required to notify the customers to inform the public of violations of the standards established in the federal drinking water act.

The violations for September included a high average of bacteria count per sample. The average was 3.22, well above the level of one permitted in the standards.

There were nine bad samples that were not harmful, and the state was notified of the problem when it developed, Jodanis said.

There have been many complaints from North End residents about the level of chlorine now in the water. This is the best method for controlling and caring for the water, however, Jodanis said.

"We have to burn it out of the system," he said of the problems.

Three reservoirs in town, Porter, Howard and Lydall Street, all had higher turbidity levels than permitted during September. Turbidity measures the number of particles suspended in the water.

Parents are reminded to bring with them the Thursday schedules that were prepared by the school.

Senior Citizens

Hello everybody. Well, how do you enjoy the long weekend? It sure was a little on the cold side, but nice to have the days off.

Big news for this week is our Thursday afternoon entertainment when Rev. Russell Camp will be our guest speaker. Rev. Camp is a retired chaplain from the Somers state prison. His topic will be "Question Who Cares" and from all reports it will be informative and enjoyable. A good suggestion will be to stop by for our noon meal and then you'll be here for the entertainment.

With Monday off this week the news is limited and we have only the results of last Friday afternoon's setback games. We had 48 players and the winners are: Arvid Peterson, 142; Robert Schab, 127; Bernice Martin, 123; Mina Reuther, 123; Ann Fisher, 123; Archie Houghtaling, 123; Olive Houghtaling, 123; Martha La Bate, 121; Betty Jesanis, 121; Mary Johnson, 120; Ada Rojas, 119; Paul Schuetz, 119; Josephine Albrecht, 119; Marjorie McLain, 119.

A reminder that the three buses for the foliage trip next Thursday will be leaving the center at 9 a.m. Don't forget that Wednesday, Oct. 18, is the day for flu shots here at the center from 9:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m.

The month is really moving along and before we know it Halloween will be here. That means that we will be having our Halloween Dance on Monday, Oct. 30, from 7:30 to 10:30. Tickets are now available here at our office.

Prizes will be awarded for those joining in the costume parade. We'll be jumping and jiving to the tunes of Lou Joubert and his band. There will be goodies to munch on and our usual door prizes. Our bus will run for this dance and I suggest that you pick up your tickets in advance because we will only have a limited number to sell at the door.

The town has a new phoning system called Centrex III, so we now have a new telephone number. Scratch out the old number and put this one down: 647-3211.

Homestyle and Hearty

When summer bows out, good old-fashioned home cooking makes a welcome comeback at the dinner table. In the days of satisfying hot and hearty foods that warm appetites and assemble the family for a shared meal.

It's time to bring out the Dutch oven and braise pot-roads and simmer stews and soups. Since these cookery methods call for less costly meat cuts, this seasonal shift in the character of family meals means economical as well as flavor-packed entrees.

Beans along with beef fit into the picture of mightier fall meals. Dry beans, which also benefit from long slow cooking, can be either baked in the oven along with a pot-roast or simmered in the same pot as beef for stew for a fine menu combo.

Although these entrees come to the table at a leisurely pace, it's the kitchen range that does the work, and they prove that a meal can require little actual preparation time even though it's not speedy. In fact, a slow-cooked meal can liberate a woman from cooking chores. You'll find this to be true when you use the recipes for Fine Flavor Beef Pot-Roast and Chili Beef and Bean Stew.

Convenient canned Bartlett pears are a refreshing addition to hearty fall menus. Their delicate sweet flavor blends well in numerous combinations and their creamy white coloring and smooth texture add a note of elegance whenever they are used. Juicy pear halves, glistening with a spicy glaze, top a bubbly pot of beans in Pear-Crowned Bean Casserole. Herbed Cheddar Pear Salads are an attractive and inviting menu addition to Chili Beef and Bean Stew.

You can take your pick when it comes to beans too. Related but possessing individual characteristics of shape, color and texture are Western dry, red, small white, pink, pinto, navy, kidney, lima, black eye, garbanzo and great northern beans.

Although beef and beans are both high in nutritive value, they do not in themselves make a meal. But with them as the heart of the menu, little else need be added save vegetables and/or salad and dessert.

Let these delicious tested recipes set the pace for cooking autumn style at your house.

Fine Flavor Beef Pot-Roast

3 to 4-pound beef blade roast or 7-lb. pot-roast
1/4 cup flour
1/8 teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons cooking fat
2 teaspoons instant beef bouillon
1/4 cup water
3/4 teaspoon celery seed
1 clove garlic, minced
4 small white onions, halved crosswise
4 cups 2-inch pieces zucchini squash
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup water

Combine flour and pepper; dredge meat. Reserve leftover flour. Brown meat in cooking fat in large frying-pan or Dutch oven. Pour oil drippings. Dissolve bouillon in 1/4 cup water; add celery seed and garlic and add to meat. Cover tightly and cook in slow oven (325° F.) for 1-3/4 hours. Place onion halves in liquid around meat; place zucchini on top of meat. Sprinkle salt over vegetables. Continue cooking, covered, 30 minutes or until meat and vegetables are tender. Remove meat and vegetables to warm platter. Blend reserved flour with 1/2 cup water; combine with cooking liquid and cook, stirring constantly until thickened. Reduce heat and cook 3 to 5 minutes. 6 to 8 servings.

Pear-Crowned Bean Casserole

1 cup (1/2 pound) Great Northern beans
1 cup (1/2 pound) pinto beans
6 cups water
1 large onion, chopped
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 can (29 ounces) Bartlett pear halves
1/2 cup catsup
2 tablespoons cider vinegar
2 tablespoons honey
1 tablespoon prepared mustard
1 teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon nutmeg

Rinse beans and soak overnight in water. Or for quick soak, bring beans and water to boil and boil 2 minutes. Cover and let stand 1 hour. Simmer beans, covered, 1-1/2 hours; drain. Cook onion in butter 2 to 3 minutes. Drain pears, reserving syrup. Add 1 cup syrup, onion and butter, catsup, vinegar, honey, mustard and salt to beans, mixing lightly but thoroughly. Turn into a 2-1/2 quart casserole, cover tightly and bake in a slow oven (325° F.) for 2 to 2-1/4 hours, stirring from time to time and adding more pear syrup if needed. Place pear halves, cut side up, over beans, spooning liquid from casserole over pears. Sprinkle pears with nutmeg. Bake, uncovered, 15 minutes. 6 to 8 servings.

Perfect fall table partners are this flavor-packed beef pot-roast and Western dry beans, crowned with canned Bartlett pear halves and baked to delicious goodness.

Your neighbor's kitchen

By Betty Ryder

"You can take any recipe and adjust it to your own palate, it's an interpretation of a taste. A cook should use a recipe as a guideline and feel free to adjust ingredients or the amount used to satisfy his or her own particular taste."

Presenting a cooking demonstration and luncheon for the Manchester Auxiliary of the Child and Family Services, Inc., Steve Cavagnaro Jr. of Cavey's Restaurant, suggested variations to a recipe for Salade d'Epinaud Flambe'.

"You may want to use honey instead of sugar or use an orange-based liqueur instead of the brandy called for in the recipe. I use red onions for color and taste, but you may prefer another type of onion," he said.

Cavagnaro commented on the cuisine novelle concept of cooking where reduction of calories is considered to make dishes lighter in form and more refreshing.

"Try something different," he said. "Maybe it will be great. Great is only good if you suffered making it," he told a capacity audience in the restaurant's Sixpence Room.

Following the cooking demonstration, luncheon was served, which included a tossed green salad, a delicious seafood crepe, tiny whole potatoes and string beans with tomato. Dessert was a light chocolate mousse topped with whipped cream.

Mrs. John Telgner and Mrs. Aaron Cook were the ways and means chairmen arranging the event.

pan until it's nicely browned and crisp. Add the chopped bacon continuing to cook over a low flame until the onions are soft and lightly browned. Stir in the garlic, add a tablespoon or two of olive oil if you think that you do not have enough liquid from the bacon. Quickly blend the next three ingredients into and then add the brandy, set it aflame stirring until the flame is out. Add the vinegar and reduce over a hard boil to marry and intensify the flavors. While this is reducing, season with salt and pepper. Reduction should be complete in two minutes.

Pour the sauce over the spinach, reserving the bacon to cook more, to regain some of its crispness. Meanwhile, toss the salad. The mushrooms and onion slices can be added now to the salad, or you may prefer to garnish the salad just before serving with them. When the bacon is ready remove the pan from the heat, serve the spinach onto chilled plates and sprinkle the pieces of bacon over the spinach. Garnish with the cherry tomatoes. Yield: 2 to 3 servings.

Confronting Sexual Abuse

When you dial a certain number in Knoxville, Tenn., a female voice delivers a three-minute pitch detailing ways teenagers and children can cope with sexual abuse.

"You may feel scared," the voice says, "but help is available." The caller is urged to stay on the line to talk to a trained counselor.

The voice is an around-the-clock taped message that's getting many Knoxville teenagers to seek help for sex problems. It is part of an $85,000, one-year experiment financed by the federal government's National Center on Child Abuse and Neglect. It could be the prototype for similar services in communities across the nation.

Sexual abuse is a hush-hush subject. But it exists and most experts agree the best way to deal with it is to confront it — face-to-face if possible.

So George Thomas, president of the independent Regional Institute for Social Research, Athens, Ga., proposed the Knoxville test, getting the Tennessee Department of Human Resources to cooperate and assigning the work to Child and Family Services of Knoxville, Inc., a private agency.

The taped phone message service began Feb. 1 and in the first month drew 1,380 calls. Since then, calls have averaged 600 to 800 a month.

But the important figure is the follow-through — the number of people who stayed on the line to talk to a counselor. In the first four months after the system began, 225 callers spoke to counselors; 139 wanted more information, the other 86 wanted more general sex-related information.

Of the 139 complainants, 77 were adolescents, aged 12 to 18.

Thomas says one of the most surprising findings was that half of the sex abuse calls were from adolescent boys, covered by a mother, a stepmother or a neighbor into sexual relations.

The message makes it clear that anonymity will be preserved if the caller wants, and this anonymity can carry through to personal meetings with a counselor. But once a caller discloses to a counselor, the complaint must be referred under state law to a legal authority, the State Department of Human Resources.

"The idea is to ease youngsters into it," Thomas says. "The public agency has very good people seeking non-punitive treatment rather than jail terms."

For a town of 250,000 persons the system has turned up a phenomenal number of sexual abuse cases, says Thomas.

In the six months prior to Feb. 1, Knoxville had a total of 61 sexual abuse cases filed, of which 19 were "confirmed" — that is, certain.

In the five months after the system started 76 cases were filed, 42 confirmed.

Many people, especially teenagers, "won't report sexual abuse because of the stigma, the shame," says Janet Rosenzweig, one of the two counselors who cover Knoxville's telephone hot-line full time. "Sex abuse is harder to deal with than any other kind of child abuse. We provide information, guarantee anonymity and offer a direct line to a therapist without the usual procedures that frighten away people."

Somewhat surprisingly, she says, only two calls since Feb. 1 have involved homosexuality.

Ms. Rosenzweig, 32, holds a Ph.D. in health education from Penn State. Her home phone is tied to the hot-line. She's on duty 24 hours daily for a week, then gets a week off and does personal counseling and "a lot of teacher education... teaches new training on sex abuse."

Thomas says he's developed a manual so other communities can set up without backup counseling.

DEAR DR. BLAKER — I am 18 years old and plan to marry my childhood sweetheart within the year. We are very much in love and can hardly wait to live together as husband and wife.

In fact, everything would be perfect if it weren't for my mother's interference. She recently took her first job outside the home. As a result, she has been on the feminist kick that has driven everyone around her slightly crazy.

For example, she doesn't think I should get married until my boyfriend and I sign an agreement about what our life will be like after the wedding. She has suggested including how our money will be earned and spent as well as whether or not we want children.

That might be fine for a more liberated couple. But I am quite traditional — like my mother used to be. My boyfriend is an incurable romantic who would accuse me of anything in writing before the ceremony.

I wish my mother would just mind her own business.

DEAR READER — Your mother's business has been your happiness for more than 18 years. You can't blame her for trying to prevent you from repeating love tends to cool after about two years of marriage.

2. Only in marrying do people agree to a contract in which the terms, limitations and penalties are unspecified. Since there are no specific criteria for performance, a breach of contract is undefined.

3. An agreement between two equal people need not necessarily produce an equal rights contract.

After all, a person has the right to choose a subordinate role.

In other words, you could sign a pre-nuptial agreement based on traditional marital roles. That contract would give your marriage a strong foundation if romantic love wanes.

You might want to send for a copy of such a contract to use only for discussion between you and your boyfriend with no signatures required. If you are interested, send $3 plus 50 cents postage to Institute for Human Responsibility, 6200 Winchester Road,

Lexington, Ky. 40511. Ask for the "Equalog Contract."

You will receive just what the name promises: a prompt book for a discourse (log) between equals (legus).

Thank your newly liberated mother for introducing you to an idea that in the long run may strengthen the American family.

Train, Don't Strain

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a former weight lifter and jogger. Because of an injury, I was inactive for quite some time. During this period, I had a large weight gain. I have gone back to weightlifting but I am also trying to lose pounds. Local lifters advise me to eat quantities of protein and rougane. I often see your problem in former athletes. While they are physically active they are a distance runner, a champion swimmer or a football player, they use many calories. When they stop their exercise, they don't use nearly as many calories, but they keep on eating as many so they get fat and out of shape.

Excess protein will not help you. The rougane may enable you to maintain normal bowel function. Most foods that contain lots of rougane don't contain lots of calories, so that's a plus in your favor. You must limit your calorie intake while increasing your physical activity. By following such a routine for several months, you may be able to get back to a more normal weight level for you.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 47, Weight Lossing Diet. Others who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Address your request to me in care of The Manchester Evening Herald, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. It provides fewer calories than you are probably used to, but it's about right if you really want to lose some excess fat.

I wouldn't like for you to stick to this diet forever. Try it for six weeks and then stabilize yourself without trying to reduce your weight at all for about three weeks. Then go back to it.

You should increase your daily walking activity and then you can return to your weight lifting program at a reasonable level. Your muscle stiffness means you are overdoing your exercise program. The practical exercise programs are those that train and don't strain. Continue your stretching exercises, but decrease your level of weight training so that you don't have a lot of soreness and stiffness each day.

You aren't any different from anybody else. If you do one to two pills a day when someone is sick. We have about 500 pills left.

DEAR READER — Throw it away. The problem is that vitamin C can convert chemically to oxalate. The older the vitamin C is, the more likely it has already undergone this chemical change even if it does taste the same to you.

The fact you have taken some of it doesn't necessarily mean you are going to develop kidney stones, but certainly, if you are taking massive doses of old vitamin C, as you might be if you were trying to treat an acute illness, it is not really a good idea. As a general rule, anyone who has vitamin C sitting around that's nine months old or older should discard it.

Antiquing Brings Panache to Pieces

The big thing in refinishing old or unfinished furniture in recent years is a process known as antiquing.

The process has been known and used for years and years, but recently paint companies have put together antiquing kits that contain everything you need for the job in a simple, instant-to-use package.

The kit has introduced people to a means of refinishing that is easier than any other. You don't have to remove the old finish. And the results are different and interesting enough that the pieces are at home almost anywhere.

The process, however, is not for rare and fine pieces of furniture. If these need refinishing, they should be done by the traditional methods and, if the pieces are really valuable, then they should be handled by experts.

But the antiquing we are talking about is for nonexperts dealing with very ordinary furniture that you would like to give a new lease on life.

A typical kit will contain a can of semigloss enamel, the antiquing liquid (a glaze), a couple of brushes (one for painting and the other for glazing), sandpaper, cheesecloth and steel wool.

Quite simply, what you do is to apply the base coat of enamel first. Spray it on or paint it on and do it right over the old finish.

When that is dry apply the glaze. This is a mixture of pigment and varnish and you just spread it on without worrying about being neat about it.

Then, before the glaze dries, wipe off most of it. As you work at it you will notice that various methods achieve certain results. You're the boss. There is no wrong way to do it.

Remember to cover the entire surface with glaze. Wiping over a dry spot will smear it. Wipe hard on high spots since if this were a real antique those would be the spots with most wear. If you wipe across the grain some of the glaze will remain in the grain. Use a stiff brush or steel wool and you will get the effect of wood grain. Use a sponge and the effect is stippled. Take the glaze off slowly. It's easier to take more off than to put some of it back. Don't be worried about the brightness of the base coat. The glaze will tone it down and the more glaze you leave on the more subdued the result.

While it is true that surface preparation is not really necessary you will always do better with a clean surface. If the old finish is glossy a light sanding will provide tooth for the new base coat.

Shopping By Mail

Mail order catalogs are beginning to arrive at your home. "Beat the rush and order now." "Orders received by Nov. 30, knock off five percent." This is the time of the year that early shoppers think about ordering Christmas items from mail order houses, since ordering early simply assure that the gifts arrive in plenty of time for the holidays.

A Federal Trade Commission rule sets guidelines for shipment of merchandise ordered through the mail. Here's what you should be able to count on if you order through the mail:

If an ad or brochure says that the manufacturer will "rush" your order to you within a week, for example, your order must be shipped within that time. However, if the seller doesn't give a date of shipment, you can expect that your merchandise will be shipped within 30 days. You have the right to cancel the order if the seller doesn't ship your goods within the stated time or within 30 days.

If the seller finds that your merchandise can't be shipped within the time previously stated or within 30 days, the company must notify you of the delay and offer you the chance to get your money back. If you don't take advantage of the postage paid reply card to request return of your money, the seller can assume you agree to the delay.

Shipping delays of more than 30 days beyond the original shipping date require that you give your consent by the delay; otherwise, it means order cancellation and the seller must return your money. If you do request a refund, the seller must mail it to you within seven work days after your order cancellation. If the item was changed, the seller has one billing cycle to correct the account.

There are some mail order services where this FTC rule does not apply; photo finishing, magazine subscriptions (other than the first issue) mail order seeds and growing plants, c.d. orders, and credit orders where the buyer's account is not charged before shipment of the merchandise.

They were a childless couple in their sixties. When they heard about a baby boy available for adoption, they decided to put in an application. But in a courtroom hearing, the judge counted their age against them.

"An adopted child," said the judge, "should not have the psychological burden of an unrelated parent (old enough) to be his grandparent."

Many factors are weighed in the balance before a court will place its stamp of approval on adoptive parents. Advanced age is considered a significant drawback.

Nevertheless, it is usually not conclusive. In a particular situation, it may be outweighed by other factors.

In another case, the child was three-and-a-half, the petitioning husband was 73, and his wife was 51. But the couple pointed out in court that the child had been living with them ever since she was four days old.

The court thereupon approved the adoption, rather than break the strong emotional ties that had developed. The court said a child "cannot be suddenly transplanted like a dogwood tree without running a dangerous risk of frustration and bewilderment."

Still another factor that may overcome an age gap is a blood relationship between the child and the would-be adopters. For example: A husband and wife, aged 52 and 53, were seeking to adopt their own grandson. County officials intervened, objecting on the basis of their age. But the court overruled the objection.

"The age of the grandparents," said the court, "is offset by the fact that they can give natural love and affection and are inclined by ties of blood and human nature to raise this child in his interests."

'Y' Sets Indian Program

MANCHESTER — They meet in homes and do craft projects together. They learn Indian lore, play games, sing songs, and tell stories. They go on cookouts or camping or places of interest to youngsters. They have fun, share new experiences together. That's the Y-Indian Guides and Princesses, a YMCA program for fathers and the sons or daughters age five through eight.

The program is now being organized by the Indian Valley YMCA by Arthur Dauer, chief of the Manchester Longhouse.

There will be an orientation meeting Oct. 17 for those planning to participate in the program.

The meeting will be at 7:30 p.m. at the Indian Valley YMCA, 100 Vernon Circle. A national program, Y-Indian Guides-Princesses Club, has been operating in Manchester for the past 10 years. Last year there were 13 tribes with 150 fathers and sons or daughters involved in the Manchester area.

Fathers and sons or daughters who are unable to attend the "Pow Wow" should call the office of the Indian Valley YMCA, Vernon Circle, 872-7229 for information on how to join.

Awards Offered In Area

Two annual award programs are being conducted by Soroptimist International of Hartford for area residents. A Youth Citizenship Award of a $100 savings bond will be given to a high school senior in recognition of high standards of citizenship, leadership and achievement. The local winner will then be eligible to compete for the regional award of $1,000.

A Training Award is offered to qualified, mature women who wish to undertake part-time or full-time study or training to improve their occupational status. The local winner will receive $50, and will then compete for several $1,000 awards and one of $2,500. The program is funded by the Soroptimist Foundations and the McCall Life Pattern Fund.

The deadline for entries is Jan. 1. For information or applications for the Training Award, call Mrs. Harry A. Shook at 523-8258 during business hours. Forms for the Citizenship Award will be available through the guidance departments of local high schools, but further information may be had by phoning Miss Myrtle M. Porter at 521-0823.

Foreign Overnight

As late as 1959 there were no speed limits on British roads except in congested areas, a fact that caused some embarrassment when a British auto club came to America for a well-publicized motor tour. #### Club Planning Crafts Sales

The Manchester area alumnae club of Pi Beta Phi, a national Panhellenic Society, will hold an Arrowcraft sale Saturday, Oct. 14, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Roger A. Woodbury, 26 Nye St., Manchester.

In 1912, as a memorial to its founders, Pi Beta Phi established a settlement school in Gatlinburg, Tenn., in the foothills of the Great Smoky Mountains. From this beginning came the Arrowcraft Shop in 1925 which furnished an outlet for the crafts produced in the area.

The sale is open to the public.

Professor Claims Unemployment Is Overstated

By LeROY POPE

NEW YORK (UPI) — The unemployment rate in the United States is seriously overstated, says Prof. Peter Gutmann of New York City's Baruch College.

This, he said, causes federal and local policies to follow mistaken conclusions that, among other evils, contribute to inflation.

Gutmann attracted much attention a few months ago with his article on the subterranean economy, the vast number of people who are working "off the books," paying little or nothing in taxes and who may actually be listed as unemployed.

His new article, which appears in the Financial Analysts Journal, says balance of payments are affected adversely by the impact of the distorted unemployment level.

Gutmann says the serious overstatement of the jobless level last April apparently caused the Carter administration to pay too much attention to unemployment and not enough to fighting inflation.

He cited a statement by economist Philip Cagan of Columbia University that, under the government's present measurement level, 6.6 percent is a viable figure for unemployment and anything under that will create some labor shortages, but Gutmann said a 6.6 percent jobless level under the present government measurement really is only 5 percent.

Gutmann listed what he sees as three main distortions in the government's present way of measuring unemployment:

• The government counts people who want only part-time work as full-time unemployed.

• A significant portion of those listed as full-time unemployed are really working "off the books," many of them full time. This includes many people engaged in illegal activities.

• Many people listed as unemployed are not looking for work at all and may, in fact, be unemployed but the law requires them to register as jobless in order to become eligible for food stamps, supplemental family welfare and certain other aid programs.

Gutmann said Prof. Kenneth Clark and Prof. Roger Meiners, had suggested that as many as 24.8 percent of all persons officially registered as unemployed actually are unemployed welfare recipients who have been required by law to register in order to get help. Such a figure, Gutmann said, grossly overstates real unemployment and has a seriously distorting impact on many government policies.

Gutmann also estimates that a minimum of 1.96 million the number of persons who are working full time or part time underground but have dropped out of the labor market altogether. These come on top of those who are working underground but are officially registered as jobless.

He concludes that until this distortion is corrected, the government will be making policy in the dark with serious consequences to the economy, the money and securities markets and the national balance of payments.

New Computer Device Guards Cars Against Theft

DETROIT (UPI) — A small Detroit firm has come up with a device it says disproves the belief there is no sure-fire way to protect a car from a professional thief.

Officials of Keycon Corp. say their new computerized device locks and disables a car so effectively it renders other anti-theft devices "virtually obsolete."

"We even consulted with some ex-cars thieves, and they said the system would delay a thief so long he probably would give up and go find another target," company president Donald D. Richardson said at a recent demonstration of the device.

The Keycon system consists of a small electronic computer fitted behind the instrument panel which automatically locks the doors, hood and trunk, disables the engine, raises all windows and closes the sunroof when the driver emerges from the car.

The system is activated when the driver removes the ignition key, gets out of the car and closes the door. If the keys are left in the ignition, the device sets off the horn and prevents the doors from locking.

The car becomes operable again only when the driver unlocks the door with the regular key and slips a specially coded plastic card into a slot on the dashboard.

Richardson said Keycon improves upon the "limited features" of anti-theft devices offered by auto manufacturers and could go a long way toward reducing car thefts which total more than a million a year.

"None of the others," he said, "automatically locks the doors, raises the windows, closes the sunroof, double-locks the trunk or activates the horn and prevents the doors from locking when the keys are left."

Richardson said other systems which lock the hood and disable the engine can be defeated by a "zealous, skilled thief who can crawl beneath the car and attempt to disconnect it."

The Keycon system, he said, disables the engine from the top and can be tampered with only by opening the hood — which is locked.

The system, which the company said took 10 years to develop, is designed primarily for luxury cars — the most frequent targets of professional thieves — equipped with automatic windows and central locking systems.

Cars with manual windows and locks still could be equipped with a scaled-down system that would disable the engine.

New Book Offers Help On Beating Bureaucracy

"Beat the Bureaucracy," a taxpayer's guide to federal government benefits, has been published by this newspaper and Newspaper Enterprise Association.

A series of excerpts from the book will begin shortly in this newspaper.

"Beat the Bureaucracy" is the first book of its kind to appear since the nationwide tax rebellion caught fire with California's passage of Proposition 13.

"Not only do Americans want lower taxes," says the book's author, Howard K. Ostenshein. "They want to get more for the taxes they are now paying."

"Beat the Bureaucracy" details free and low-cost federal benefits in such areas as student financial aid, employment, small business, housing, health care, consumer protection and Social Security.

"Uncle Sam is ready, willing and able to provide hundreds of little-known services," says Ostenshein. "All the taxpayer has to do is ask."

Hisself a bureaucrat of many years' standing, Ostenshein offers an entire chapter of tips for cutting through official red tape.

"For one thing," he suggests, "conduct your business with the government early in the day when offices are less busy. Most bureaucrats are at their desks by 8 a.m."

"Beat the Bureaucracy" provides addresses and telephone numbers for headquarters and regional offices of a number of federal agencies. Many of the offices can be reached from outside areas by special toll-free numbers, Ostenshein notes.

Ostenshein is special assistant to the personnel director of NASA's Goddard Space Flight Center in Greenbelt, Md. He has written a newspaper column on the bureaucracy and teaches a class, "How to Get Your Money's Worth From the Federal Government," at a Maryland community college.

Copies of Ostenshein's 166-page book can be purchased for $2.25 at this newspaper's public service

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of venise silk lace on chiffon over white satin and a picture hat with venise lace and a veil. She carried a bouquet of white daisies with baby's breath and ivy.

Marianne E. Packard of North Dakota was her sister's maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Elizabeth Ann Cowles of Manchester, the bridegroom's sister, and Nancy McGowan of Billerica, Mass.

Richard Anton of Manchester served as best man. Ushers were David Packard of Salem, James Aldrich of Manchester, and Mark Regan of Granby.

A reception was held at Wildwood Villa in Salem, after which the couple left for Booth Bay Harbor, Maine. They are residing in Manchester.

MVD Info

Q. When another driver tries to pass you there are many collision courses. He may cut lanes sharply in front of you. You may change lanes just as the other driver is trying to pass you on that side. Or you pull out of a parking space just as another vehicle is going by. Perhaps you are making a right turn at an intersection, and someone squeezes another car that has slipped in between you and the curb. What's the best defense?

A. According to the National Safety Council:

1. Help Out. Help the other driver pass and you protect yourself. As you are being passed, check oncoming traffic. Then slow down if the passing car will need more room to get back in line in front of you.
2. Check The Rear. Before you change lanes check your rear view mirrors and glance back to make sure your blind spot is clear. Use your turn signals then move over only when the lane is clear.
3. Keep Right. Get into the proper lane for a turn EARLY. When turning right, stay close to the right and hand curb, to block anyone from passing on the right. Use your turn signals early.
4. Check, Then Move. Don't nose out of a parking space to look for oncoming traffic. Take a good look before you move. Wait for a break in traffic, then pull out promptly.

Michigan

What is now the state of Michigan was first visited by French fur traders and missionaries in 1616. A mission was established at Sault Ste. Marie in 1641 and a permanent settlement in 1669. The entire region was transferred to Britain in 1763, following the French and Indian War. The British returned briefly during the War of 1812.

VA News

Q — I know I have an overpayment from my training. Is it possible to have a portion of my monthly entitlement withheld to apply to repayment and continue my education with the remainder?

A — This may be possible. If immediate full repayment would cause undue hardship, you may request this monthly repayment method. Upon VA approval, a withholding will be established to liquidate the overpayment within a defined enrollment period.

Q — What happens to the Veterans Group Life Insurance if the insured veteran failed to name a beneficiary?

A — If no beneficiary has been designated, payment will be made in the following order: (1) widow or widower; (2) child or children in equal shares with the share of any deceased child being distributed among the descendants of that child; (3) parents (s) in equal shares; (4) a duly appointed executor or administrator of the insured's estate; (5) other next-of-kin.

Q — How is my educational entitlement computed while I am enrolled in a correspondence course?

A — Payment is based on 90 percent of the total charges for the course. One month of entitlement is deducted for each $111 paid.

YWCA Accepting Registrations

MANCHESTER — The Nutmeg Branch of the Hartford Region YWCA is accepting registration for several of its October programs. These are open to the public.

Arts and crafts activities will include a breadmaking workshop, meeting Wednesday mornings for three weeks beginning Oct. 11. Participants will be given demonstrations of breadmaking techniques, and will participate in the creation of various yeast breads — white bread, wheat bread, and rolls. The instructor is Gerry Harvey.

There will also be a sketching workshop, led by Rita Betko. This will meet Monday mornings for three weeks beginning Oct. 16. The program will give participants an opportunity to learn or improve charcoal sketching skills.

In the area of career development, Your Job Campaign will be held on four Monday mornings beginning Oct. 16. Lynne Eckerle, of Pratt & Whitney of the United Technologies Corporation, department of personnel, will help participants to prepare for entry or re-entry into the employment market. The focus will be on writing resumes, interviewing techniques, and job search strategies for the job search.

Vocational counseling for individuals is also available by appointment. Celia Robbins, M.Ed., will help with personal exploration of career possibilities and planning.

For more information about YWCA programs, call 647-1437 or come to the YWCA office at 78 North Main Street.
