

Nightingale-Papanic

Elaine Diane Papanic of Manchester and Ronald Nightingale Jr. of Coventry were married Oct. 7 at South United Methodist Church in Manchester.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence D. Papanic of Glastonbury. The bridegroom is the son of Ronald L. Nightingale Sr. of 2322 Boston Turnpike.

The Rev. Laurence Hill of South United Methodist Church officiated at the double-ring ceremony. David Morse was organist and Bill Liggett was soloist.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, Dennis Boyce of East Hartford. The bridesmaids were Judy Robertson of Grotton; Annette Fairchild of Andover, the bridegroom's sister; Sue Kowalsky of Glastonbury; and Charlotte Brown of Manchester.

James H. Nightingale of Coventry was his brother's best man. Ushers were Bruce Delmastro of Williamstown; Robert Fairchild of Andover, the bridegroom's brother-in-law; Alexis Tournaud of Manchester; and Ronald Litwin of Glastonbury.

A reception was held at the Army & Navy Club in Manchester, after which the couple left for Florida. They will reside in Manchester.

Connors-O'Neill

Patricia Ann O'Neill and Brian Patrick Connors, both of Manchester, were married Oct. 7 at St. Isaac Joseph Church in East Hartford.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William J. O'Neill of 17 Duane St. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Connors of 55 Scarborough Road.

The Rev. Kenneth Bonadies of St. Isaac Joseph Church celebrated the nuptial mass and performed the double-ring ceremony. The church was decorated with white spidery mums and English ivy. Ms. Anne Kilroy of East Hartford was organist and Horace Lyons of North Granby was soloist.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore her mother's wedding gown of ivory satin embroidered with a lace over sheer net at neckline and designed with a dropped waistline, long pointed sleeves and a cathedral train. She wore a matching chapel-length veil gathered on a band of pearls and orange blossoms and carried a cascade of orchids, stephanotis, baby's breath and English ivy.

Mrs. Sally-Anne Thatcher of Windsor was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Claire Giuliano of Hartford, Miss Candace Hurley of Avon and Miss Tina Krolshy of Stamford, the bride's cousin.

Martin T. Connors of Manchester was his brother's best man. Ushers were Dennis A. Dupino of Windsor Locks, John W. Keegan of South Windsor, and Roger W. Zito of Manchester.

A reception was held at the Glastonbury Hills Country Club in Glastonbury, after which the couple left for Ireland. For traveling, Mrs. Connors wore a wool tweed pantsuit. They will reside in Manchester.

On Second Thought

By Jan Warren

On Money and Mattresses

The other day I read a news story about an old woman who had $20,000 stashed in her mattress. The writer was incredulous to think that in 1978, with banks on every street corner, people were still resorting to this.

I don't think it's incredulous. In fact, after what happened to me at the bank yesterday, it sounds like a sensible alternative.

The frustration of long bank lines is a subject I've written about before. But yesterday was different. I didn't stand in line on my feet. I stood in line in my car to get "speedy window service."

We were having company for dinner and I just wanted to zoom in, deposit my paycheck, take out a few dollars, and get home. I drove into the bank lot, pulled up to the shortest of the three lines, and WHAM!

Before I could access the situation, I was locked into place. There was a red Pinto on my right, a pick-up truck on my left, a line of cars ahead of me, and as I watched helplessly through my rear view mirror, a motorcycle pulled up behind me and sealed off my only avenue of escape.

Now, when you're standing in a line you can always throw up your hands and leave. In a car there's no such option. Short of crawling up on the hood and screaming "fire" there was no way I could get out of there.

"This is terrible!" I yelled to the man in the red Pinto.

"You should have seen it last Friday," he said. "Twenty-five minutes it took me!"

"But I'm in a hurry," I said. "I have company coming for dinner."

"Relax, Lady. That's all you can do."

Well, I certainly couldn't relax, not with my stroganoff still in the freezer. So I cleaned my pocketbook, read the driver's manual, and arranged my credit cards in alphabetical order.

Seventeen minutes later I finally reached the bank window.

"I know it's not your fault," I said to the cashier. "But I'm beginning to think you people don't want my money. The inside lines are impossible. The outside lines are impossible. I'm ready to go home and hide my money in my mattress!"

The cashier looked up startled.

"You should have seen it last Friday," he said. "Twenty-five minutes it took me!"

"But I'm in a hurry," I said. "I have company coming for dinner."

"Relax, Lady. That's all you can do."

Sure. With my luck, the day I bank might mail the mail carriers will go on strike.

Fashion Show to Aid MDA

MANCHESTER — "Turning a New Leaf" is the title of an upcoming fashion show to benefit the Muscular Dystrophy Association. The show will take place Tuesday, Oct. 24 at 8 p.m. at Willie's Steak House on 444 Center St. Tickets cost $5 which will be donated to MDA.

The show will feature fall and winter women's fashions of August Max of Westfarms Mall and men's fashions from Tuesday's of Hartford as well as the hair designs of Spell of Beauty, Environment II in South Windsor. Tickets are available at these places or can be purchased at the door. Refreshments will be served.

Proceeds from this event will help the Northern Connecticut Chapter of the Muscular Dystrophy Association participate in MDA's world-wide network of research grants. Locally, over $130,000 of research grants are currently active at the University of Connecticut. MDA also provides an extensive patient service program which provides aid and comfort to individuals afflicted with any one of 35 muscular disorders.

More information can be obtained by contacting Gary Spell at 644-2563 or the MDA office at 288-1521.

WHAT'S NEWS

Underground

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Soviet defector Arkady Shevchenko went underground today after charging that Russian agents and the American media were exploiting his "close personal relationship" with a woman from an escort service he admitted supporting "generously" from personal funds.

In an unusual statement issued through a Washington law firm, the handsome former $57,000-a-year U.N. official said he was "deeply saddened" by statements made by Judy Chavez, "But at least I can guess at her motivation."

Miss Chavez said in an NBC television interview Monday that Shevchenko paid her between $5,000 and $40,000 in money and gifts since he defected last April — the highest-ranking Soviet ever to ask political asylum in the United States.

She also said she understood that the money the Russian gave her came from the CIA, which the agency has denied.

Surrenders

CHICAGO (UPI) — Jaime Herrera-Navarro, who, Vernon D. Meyer regional director of the U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration said, "... is the patriarch of the largest known drug organization operating in the United States," has surrendered to authorities in Guadalajara, Mexico.

Federal agents said the profits the heroin smuggling ring Herrera heads amount to an estimated $100 million annually and a network of 75 percent of the Fortune 500 corporations. They said Wednesday the arrest could lead to more arrests in a year-old effort to break up the brown heroin smuggling operation.

The state's sales tax can be confusing, as a Manchester area woman with a large year-old son has discovered. See page 12.

Sniper Jailed

SAGINAW, Mich. (UPI) — Keith Ray Pontseele, a 29-year-old Army veteran, was jailed Wednesday on charges of first-degree murder, assault with intent to commit murder and using a firearm in connection with a sniping incident last month that killed a young boy and wounded two other children in nearby Merrill.

Pontseele, who was nearing the end of three years' probation for a window-shooting spree, had found a steady job as a bartender and was about to become a free man. "He was one of several suspects fairly early on in the case," a police spokesman said. "But we are not releasing a motive right now. I'm not sure there was one."

Energy Bill Hits Senate Snag

Massive Fires in Beirut

Petrol and gas storage tanks in Beirut suburb burst in massive fires as a result of heavy fighting and artillery barrages in the area Wednesday. Today, sporadic attacks kept war-weary residents off the streets in the WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate took up a billion-dollar package of energy taxes and incentives today, but the considerably weakened bill immediately ran into a delay in the tense, clock-dragging congressional session.

Sen. James Abourezk, D-S.D., asked for a reading of every word in the detailed report of the energy tax bill that emerged Wednesday night from a Senate-House conference committee.

The energy tax bill is the last of President Carter's major energy initiatives to come before the Senate for a decision.

Should the Senate approve the tax package today, it would free the House to take up all five energy bills Friday. That vote on Friday the 13th would be a year to the day from when the five bills were sent to a Senate-House energy conference committee charged with reconciling differences in Senate and House versions.

Conferees completed energy taxes Wednesday night and sent the bill to the Senate — which then bogged down for hours of debate on an unrelated matter, and the energy tax decision was delayed.

House opponents of the natural gas pricing section of the energy package planned an attack on the package approach, hoping to get a separate vote on the proposed gradual deregulation of natural gas prices.

The Senate-House conferees spent much of Wednesday conferring on the phone or in scattered secret meetings, climaxed by a huddle of the Senate conferees in the office of Finance Committee Chairman Russell Long, D-La.

They emerged with an agreement on energy taxes, ranging from a billion-dollar list of home and business insulation and energy efficiency tax credits to a mild tax on fuel-wasting autos.

But an hour later, before the agreement was formally filed, conferees changed it once again, weakening further a proposed tax on "gas guzzler" autos in order to avert a filibuster threat.

The Senate already had approved bills for energy conservation, industrial conversion to coal, utility rate reform, and natural gas pricing. House leaders decided long ago to wait for all five bills, as a package for one vote.

Major points of the energy tax bill included:

• A tax credit, an outright subtraction from the income tax bill, of up to $200 for homeowners who spend as much as $2,000 for such things as insulation, storm windows and doors and weather-stripping.

• A credit of up to $2,200 on spending of up to $10,000 for solar, wind or geothermal equipment installed in homes.

• A 10 percent business investment credit, in addition to a 10 percent general credit already in the law, for businesses that install energy conservation equipment and techniques.

• A 10 percent tax credit for spending on equipment to produce oil from shale or gas from high-temperature brines underground.

• A "gas guzzler" tax that would first hit any 1980 model car that failed to get 15 miles per gallon of fuel. (See chart on page 6)

Carter Opens Final Peace Parley

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter is eagerly raising the curtain on the final round of Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty negotiations expected to bring an end to 30 years of bitter conflict.

Unlike the 13-day Camp David summit on the Middle East, Carter will not be a direct participant in the three-way ministerial level talks. But he apparently plans to be nearby, and to keep a watchful eye on the climactic talks with a red-carpet Israel's total withdrawal from the Sinai Peninsula.

Carter arranged to launch the climactic talks with a red-carpeted ceremony and remarks in the East Room today.

The two other delegation heads — Secretary of State Cyrus Vance and Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan and Egyptian Defense Minister Ali Hassan — also will speak briefly before they get down to business at Blair House, the president's guest house, across the street.

On the eve of the opening session, Carter met with the newly arrived Egyptian delegation Wednesday and said: "We're eager to start tomorrow. I'll be available anytime I'm needed."

Deputy press secretary Rex Gramer later described their 50-minute meeting as "constructive" and said the format and procedure for the talks was discussed.

Secretary of State Cyrus Vance will sit on the initial sessions but his deputies will take over Friday when Vance travels to Africa and the Soviet Union.

Meeting with Hassan and Egypt's acting Foreign Minister Butros Ghali, Carter inquired after President Anwar Sadat, and told them "you have a wonderful boss."

Carter put Blair House off-limits to the press and imposed on the participants the same stringent secrecy rules observed at Camp David. A spokesman said Carter impressed on the negotiators the "importance" of not airing their differences in public.

"We would hope, obviously, that negotiations will take place inside the negotiating rooms rather than through the press," a State Department spokesman said. "We have expressed that interest to the Israelis and Egyptians and there is a general interest in that approach."

But U.S. officials acknowledge success of that goal will be up to the Egyptian and Israeli delegates, who will be staying in plush Washington hotels and moving freely around town during off hours.

In the Camp David "Framework for Peace," reached Sept. 17, Sadat and Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin agreed they would sign peace treaty within three months.

Under that blueprint, Israel agreed to withdraw completely over a 2- to 3-year period from the Sinai Peninsula lands it captured from Egypt in the 1967 war. Once that withdrawal is complete and U.N.-policed buffer zones are established, Egypt and Israel would establish full diplomatic, economic and cultural relations.

The president plans to fly to Egypt to attend the signing ceremony, expected in December.

HUD Housing Decision No Surprise

By GREG PEARSON
Herald Reporter

MANCHESTER — Town officials said this morning that they were not surprised by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development's housing project for moderate-income families. There also are two housing developments for elderly residents in the area.

The state Commission on Human Rights and Opportunities had written a letter expressing its concern about such housing projects being concentrated in one section of town.

This could lead to a segregation of low-income and minority residents in that one area, the state commission wrote.

Alan Mason, the town's director of human services, said that the concentration of such subsidized housing in one section of town had to be a primary concern of HUD also.

"I think it's a dilemma we're all in," he said. The town aims to provide such housing, but often the best areas for it already have similar-type housing.

He knew historically what happens when we concentrate one type of housing in an area," Mason said.

"I'm not surprised, not on the kind of reviews that were going on," Mason said of HUD's rejection of funding for the Meadows Village proposal.

Town Manager Robert Weiss also said that he was not surprised.

"In my letter to HUD, I essentially committed myself to the units, but I didn't say that was the best site in the whole wide world," Weiss said.

Although HUD has asked the town to meet subsidized housing unit goals, it decided not to provide the funding to these 63 units.

Mason said that even though HUD is seeking increased low- and moderate-income housing in towns like Manchester, it still has to judge each application for funding on its individual merits.

The proposed project also had led to a difference among town officials about the effect on school populations.

Mason had said that the minority population in the southeast area would be high compared to other parts of town but "would not represent an undue minority population for that neighborhood."

Dr. James Kennedy, superintendent of schools, said that the project would concentrate the minority population into three schools serving the southwest of Manchester and could result in a racially identifiable school.

Plastic Bags Offered by Workshop

The Manchester Sheltered Workshop has a good supply of plastic trash bags on hand for bundling up leaves, rubbish and debris from yard cleanups. Clients of the Sheltered Workshop have stepped up their packaging operation in order to accommodate the fall rush of customers.

The packaging operation provides paid work for the clients, at the same time making these high quality bags available to the public at a low price. The bags are 2-ply, 33-gallon capacity poly bags. They may be purchased at the Workshop located in Lincoln Center, or at any of the following outlets: Hollywood Service, 342 East Center St., Maple Super Service, 220 Spruce St., Dick's Exxon, 441 Hartford Road, Sherwin Williams, 901 Main St., Brown's Tire Shop, 333 Main St., The Tire Man, 357 Broad St., Anderson Bros. ## Adult Services Directory Offered

A comprehensive Directory of Senior Adult Services has been published by the Older Adult Committee of the Greater Hartford Jewish Federation announced Cookie Hauss, chairman.

The 38-page book, with an introduction in English and Yiddish, catalogues services available to seniors in the area of counseling, health and medical care, visiting nurses, consumer protection, legal and financial assistance, employment, companionship and homemaker services and housing.

Listed also are special and emergency telephone numbers in the 24 towns served by the Greater Hartford Jewish Federation. A directory of synagogues and rabbis and a convenient index system makes the book a useful guide for senior citizens and their families. The book was edited by senior adult volunteers Edna Atlas, Morris Robbins, Bess Roth and Samuel Simonowitz with the cooperation of staff members from the Jewish Family Service, Hartford Jewish Community Center and Greater Hartford Jewish Federation.

The book is free and available from the Hartford Jewish Community Center, 335 Bloomfield Avenue and the Greater Hartford Jewish Federation, 333 Bloomfield Avenue, West Hartford.

Reform Act More Than Was Sought

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The 1978 Civil Service Reform Act, now awaiting a presidential signature, represents almost all the changes President Carter had requested — and a bit more.

The act will bring a sweeping reform of the federal civil service — for the first time protecting "whistleblowers" allowing workers to be fired for rudeness or inefficiency, or providing promotions for other reasons than length of service.

While seeking the presidency, Carter campaigned strongly on the need for changes in the civil service that operates — and sometimes stalls — the American bureaucracy.

He said when he became president he found the situation even worse than he had thought, and the bill was one of his top priorities.

Jules Sugarman, vice chairman of the Civil Service Commission, and Wayne Granquist of the Office of Management and Budget, spelled out for UPI Wednesday their assessment of the legislation.

At present, an employee can be fired only if the government proves with a "preponderance" of evidence that the dismissal would promote the efficiency of the service.

Under the new law, the government must have only "substantial" evidence that an employee was unsuited for his job — for instance, that he or she failed to perform a critical element, such as a secretary who couldn't take shorthand.

Or if a supervisor makes four reports in one year of an employee being discourteous or rude to a member of the public, the employee can be fired.

An employee would not necessarily be fired for receiving four citizen complaints. The supervisor would have to rule on the validity of them.

Carter got even more protection than he asked for "whistleblowers."

At present, a whistleblower is protected only if he or she reports a violation of law. Under the reform, the whistleblower will be protected for reporting gross mismanagement, waste or anything that "endangers the national health."

The whistleblowers will be guaranteed anonymity and will be able to make their complaints either to the new Merit Systems Protection Board's special counsel or to the new inspectors general.

A separate bill that Carter is signing today creates 12 inspectors general, one each for most Cabinet departments, the scandal-ridden General Services Administration and the Veterans Administration.

Police Report

Bolton

A 27-year-old Bolton man was charged Friday morning with attempted murder after a stabbing incident at the man's residence.

Roderick Henault, 12 Carpenter Road was arrested after police alleged he stabbed a 21-year-old female several times in the back and chest with a steak knife.

State police investigated the incident after Troop K received a call from Henault about a stabbing at 1:39 a.m. Thursday. Richard Walsh made the arrest.

The victim was taken to Manchester Memorial Hospital and released this morning. Police said Henault was to appear in court in Rockville today.

Clean Air Grant

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The state Department of Environmental Protection has been awarded a $475,000 grant by the federal Environmental Protection Agency.

The grant was announced Wednesday by the Washington office of Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn.

Mail Unions OK Contract

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Neither rain nor sleet nor snow nor strikes will stay the postal couriers from the swift completion of their appointed rounds — at least for this year.

The American Postal Workers Union and the National Association of Letter Carriers — the nation's two largest postal unions — announced Wednesday their members voted better than 6-to-1 to ratify an arbitrator-settlement and end a nearly 6-month labor dispute that threatened to erupt into a nationwide mail strike.

Special mediator James Healy's settlement gave 500,000 postal workers unlimited cost of living increases matched to the rate of inflation, substantial job security and higher pay raises.

Healy's ruling was considered "final and binding," but the two largest postal unions had mandated their leaders to give members a vote on any contract — keeping alive chances of a strike.

Rev. Alphonse Labieniec of the East Hartford Citizen Action Group calls for a return to cruiser beats by the police department to offset what EHACG calls a mounting crime rate. The group met in front of Town Hall Wednesday for a noon news conference. (Herald photo by Maynard)

East Hartford Citizens Ask for Cruiser Patrol

By CHARLIE MAYNARD

HERALD REPORTER

EAST HARTFORD — They came armed with statistics, and carried posters and placards calling for action from the police chief.

The East Hartford Citizen Action Group (EHACG), citing FBI figures depicting a mounting crime rate, called for Police Chief Clarence A. Drumm to reinstate the "cruiser beat" method of police patrolling.

The group cited statistics revealing a 52.8 percent increase in crime in 1975, the year after Drumm eliminated specific districts for each cruiser to patrol. They said this was more than double the rate for communities of similar size in the state.

Drumm switched to a method based on geographical division of the town into two sections four years ago.

The town is divided into north and south sections with the Wilbur Cross Highway serving as the dividing line.

Rev. Alphonse Labieniec, a spokesman for the group, said EHACG was alarmed over the figures from the FBI's Uniform Crime Report, particularly after receiving assurances from Drumm that the rate was decreasing.

"He had given us a glowing picture of a crime rate that was going down," said Rev. Labieniec. "I'm afraid that the crime rate and Chief Drumm have to be addressed."

Rev. Labieniec said with the cruiser method, the patrolmen could detect criminal activity more readily by knowing each beat. He added assigned beats would lessen the response time and enable to survey all streets in town more frequently.

To back up their claims, the group had quotations from chiefs of neighboring police departments who said the cruiser beat was more effective.

Drumm is out of town this week and could not be reached for comment. However, other police officials say there are many reasons for the crime increase and the rate cannot be lowered at this time to the new cruiser patrol method.

A police spokesman released statistics of a new crime recording system which went into effect in 1975 and showed a new way of classifying offenses.

All major crimes were included in a "Total Part 1" category, which showed a 7.7 percent decrease in 1977 from the previous year.

The police data showed an increase in the calls for police help since 1975 and an increase in the number of arrests made for Part 1 crimes.

The figures also showed a 2.8 percent decrease through the first nine months of this year as compared to the same 1977 period.

Another officer said the patrolmen would be assigned to watch a certain area closely if there were any excessive vandalism or crime.

Wednesday the EHACG rally was "kind of surprising" and said the group is making police the "patsy" for crime.

"Police departments don't create crime. Society does," the mayor said. "Are they saying they are not responsible for the crime? What have we done to eliminate crime? They have blamed the police department."

Planners Eye Proposal On Planned Unit Zones

By CHRIS BLAKE

HERALD REPORTER

EAST HARTFORD — The Planning and Zoning Commission discussed a proposal from C.E. Maguire Inc. of New Britain — which is rewriting the town's plan of development — to establish "planned unit districts" for multi-use development on parcels larger than 12 acres at a Wednesday night meeting.

The proposal would be implemented under a special section of the zoning regulations, which Maguire is also reviewing for the town.

"PUD is an attempt to give developers with a large piece of land the ability to be a little more flexible than zoning regulations permit," said William Donohue, director of planning and architecture for Maguire.

"At this point I think it is imperative for your town," he said.

Donohue explained that watercourses and other natural obstacles limit future development in East Hartford. And, he added, most of the developable land has already been developed, leaving precious little land for future development.

"Planned unit districts would permit the PZC to play an 'involved role' in the planning of these districts," he said.

All parcels in all zones larger than 12 acres which are under a single owner could become planned unit districts, he said.

Donohue said developers find a PUD setup attractive because it reduces "infrastructure costs" — the costs of putting in roads, sewers, water utilities, drainage and other facilities that make the land suitable for development.

In planned unit districts, he explained, the developer can concentrate buildings with shared driveways, parking, roads and sewer facilities. This saves money on construction costs for the developer, he said.

"This is literally simply two parties down at a table (in public) to negotiate," he said. "If you don't like their plan, you don't have to accept it."

He said the PUD is "an opportunity to try to develop a specific program for a specific tract of land based on the zoning regulations."

"How arbitrary can we be in turning down a PUD application?" Donohue said.

"You can be very, very arbitrary with this new plan I am writing now," Donohue said.

Mayor Richard H. Blackstone, who attended the session Wednesday night, asked Donohue if an owner with existing buildings in a tract could make that tract part of a PUD.

"The definition says 'single ownership.' You can assemble more than one building as long as the property is under single ownership," Donohue said.

C.E. Maguire is shooting for mid-November as the target for public hearing of the Comprehensive Plan of Development.

Nursing Homes Get Pay Despite Poor Services

HARTFORD (UPI) — Some nursing homes are "reaping extra payments despite poor quality service because of a defect in the state's new system for setting their rates."

"We haven't quite got our full act together yet," said George J. Conking, designer of the payment system. "We'll have it all nailed down next spring, when the nursing homes come in for another rate review."

"But there is a problem now," he said Wednesday.

Under the system, nursing homes can earn incentive payments if their costs for nursing services, dietary services, housekeeping and laundry are below those of most homes.

But the system does not take into account the quality of the services, and some homes are keeping costs down by cutting services to the point where the state Department of Health is issuing citations.

The state Commission on Hospitals and Health Care says the homes continue to earn incentive bonuses nevertheless.

Three Share Nobel Prize for Medicine

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (UPI) — Two Americans and a Swiss today won the 1978 Nobel Prize for medicine for their genetic discoveries that could help in prevention and treatment of cancer, diagnose the cause of birth defects and play a key role in the process of test-tube baby births.

Sweden's Caroline Institute announced the $147,777 prize will be shared by Drs. Daniel Nathans and Hamilton Smith of Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore, Md., and Dr. Werner Arber of Basel University, Switzerland.

The three were cited for their "discovery of restriction enzymes and their application to problems of molecular genetics." The restriction enzymes provide the "chemical knives" that chop chromosomes into their component genes.

The research of the three scientists has been important to the study of how to prevent cancer, birth defects and the study of the human aging process. It has been useful in the field of test-tube babies because it can detect possible defects in the eggs before it is fertilized in the test tube.

Nathans, 50, is director of the Department of Microbiology at Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine. He has been at Johns Hopkins since 1962, but in 1969 was an American Cancer Society scholar in the Department of Genetics at the Weizmann Institute in Rehovoth, Israel. He is married and the father of three.

Smith, 47, has been at Johns Hopkins since 1967, apart from a one-year sabbatical at the University of Zurich Molecular Biology Department from 1975-1976. He is married and the father of five.

Arber, 49, is married and has two children. He was a research associate at the University of Southern California Medical School from 1958-59 and was visiting investigator at the Molecular Biology Department of the University of California at Berkeley from 1970-71.

He was appointed professor of microbiology at the University of Basel in 1971, where he works at the Biotzentrum sponsored by the state and Switzerland's largest pharmaceutical industries.

"I'm absolutely delighted," Nathans said today at the Johns Hopkins School of Medicine. "And I'm delighted to share it with a very close colleague Hamilton Smith and of course 'Ith Dr. Arber who provided the groundwork for the study."

"I got kind of busy very suddenly," said Nathans, who said he had learned just moments before that he was named as one of three men to win the prize.

"I really must run now I have to get to the lab," he said.

The Medicine Prize, "the medical world's top achievement, is the second of six Nobel Prizes for 1978.

Handicap Facilities Subject of Survey

MANCHESTER — The Commission on the Handicapped in the next few months may start surveying local businesses and industrial buildings to determine facilities which make them accessible to the handicapped.

The surveys would only be conducted at the request of the local businesses and would be intended to encourage businesses to comply with criteria established by the state.

Richard Lawrence, commission member Wednesday night, also proposed that the businesses which comply with the standards be given special recognition by the commission.

Commission members were agreeable to the proposal and liked the idea of positive incentives to encourage businesses to comply with handicapped requirements.

Lawrence also said that another incentive to businesses is that they can deduct from their taxes up to $25,000 the cost of figures also showed a 2.8 percent decrease through the first nine months of this year as compared to the same 1977 period.

Another officer said the patrolmen would be assigned to watch a certain area closely if there were any excessive vandalism or crime.

Wednesday the EHACG rally was "kind of surprising" and said the group is making police the "patsy" for crime.

"Police departments don't create crime. Society does," the mayor said. "Are they saying they are not responsible for the crime? What have we done to eliminate crime? They have blamed the police department."

School Enrollments Close to Prediction

MANCHESTER — The total enrollment in the Manchester public schools at the end of the year will be 8,062, just as predicted by school officials.

School officials had estimated for the 1978-1979 budget that the enrollment would be 8,062 this year. Official enrollment data for the state is taken each year on Oct. 1.

The Oct. 1 figure did not meet the predictions of a higher enrollment made in September. The total enrollment on the first day of school this year was 8,061. School Superintendent James P. Kennedy said that he expected the Oct. 1 projection to be exceeded because the schools normally pick up an additional 100 students during September.

The breakdown of the figures includes 4,800 elementary and special education students, 401 secondary and special education, 100 in the Regional Occupational Training Center and 561 in Head Start.

The latest figures indicate that the standard persistence formula used in the projections describes Manchester "pretty well and is pretty accurate in short range projections," Kennedy said.

Kennedy also noted that the largest class in the schools is the third grade, with the second grade being the second largest. He said that figures indicate that it will be quite a while before additional schools are closed.

Fahey Pledges Backing For School Funding Bill

EAST HARTFORD — Democrat Marcella Fahey, third senatorial district candidate, said today if elected to the State Senate she would sponsor legislation calling for the state to reimburse additional school expenditures during the current year rather than a year later as is currently being done.

"Mrs. Fahey stated this position in a letter to the East Hartford Town Council and the Board of Education, which would alleviate some of the problems schools have in funding the special education program."

The result, she said, "would ensure that the kind of deficit our Board of Education has at this time will never be repeated."

The board has reported an estimated deficit in the special education account of $200,000, primarily because of costs mandated by the state. In recent months, some East Hartford students have been categorized as needing special education and have been transferred out of the district to more expensive private institutions. The state reimburses the towns for 65 percent of the costs, but only a year after the board has appropriated the funds.

"This puts an overwhelming burden on the town," Mrs. Fahey said. "That is why I feel it is necessary to mandate that the cost over the current cost be funded in the same way."

East Hartford will lose money, she said. "We know that the state will reimburse two-thirds of the money spent for special education next year. I think that in light of the public's response to the Board of Education's deficit, it would be fiscally responsible to advance the Board that money."

Mrs. Fahey said she would call for legislation to fund this legislation over three to five years to relieve the financial strain on the towns.

"My plan is fiscally responsible for the State and educationally sound for our children," she said. "Special education is necessary for certain students. Students who need outside help can have a destructive impact on other students. Expenditures for special education can not always be anticipated, but I feel it is money well spent. I am committed to quality education and I will support it at the state level."

Sacks Nominated

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter has nominated Howard Sacks, a former dean and presently a professor at the University of Connecticut School of Law, to a three-year term on the Legal Services Board.

The board sets policy for the nation's federally-funded legal services program for the poor.

Sacks, who was nominated Wednesday, was recommended for the post by Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn.

City Police Wear Vests

HARTFORD (UPI) — Police departments in some of Connecticut's largest cities are using bullet-resistant vests that failed an independent test funded by the federal Law Enforcement Assistance Administration.

Police in Hartford, Bridgeport, New Haven, Stamford and New Britain said officers there are wearing vests made by different manufacturers, all of which failed to meet standards set by the National Bureau of Standards.

The test results were released this week at the International Association of Chiefs of Police conference in New York City.

New Haven Patrolman Harry De Benedet, the department's assistant armorer, viewed the test results skeptically.

Rhodesia's Smith Seeking Support

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith, rebuffed by the administration, has turned to former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger in his efforts to gain U.S. understanding and support.

A spokesman for Kissinger said Smith asked to pay a brief courtesy call today on the former secretary, but the location of the meeting remained undisclosed in hopes of avoiding the teams of demonstrators following Smith around Washington.

Smith claimed in several public appearances in Washington that Kissinger assured him of an end to U.S. economic sanctions against Rhodesia if Smith would move his country toward one-man, one-vote rule.

Smith told UPI Kissinger sent him a cable in 1976 with the assurance the other parties in the Rhodesian dispute — including the Patriotic Front and the Frontline presidents — agreed to that arrangement.

But when he was later persuaded by Kissinger to drop his opposition to black majority rule, Smith said the United States did not live up to its end of the bargain.

Kissinger's statement issued by his office said: "There were no secret understandings or agreements. The British and American governments have all the documents to show what was agreed by Mr. Smith and myself."

State Department officials said the bargain that was suggested by Kissinger was to "understate to get the agreement of the other parties" to accept the basic principles of Rhodesia's transition to majority rule.

Although that presumably would be followed by an eventual end to the economic sanctions, the officials said there was no formal agreement to drop sanctions.

A former member of Kissinger's State Department team, however, said: "Legally, the State Department is right. There was no formal agreement to that arrangement."

"Morally, Smith is not right in assuming the United States would do certain things if Smith came around to our point of view."

Striking Teachers Set Second Look at Offers

By United Press International

Off the job for five weeks and without a pay raise for two years, Cleveland's 10,000 striking public school employees are going to take a second look at an 8 percent pay increase offered by the nearly bankrupt Board of Education.

A week ago, the city's teachers and support personnel rejected a similar proposal by a 90-40 percent margin. But union leader James O'Meara said today's ratification vote should succeed.

"It will be akin to if the 8 percent raise will be locked in as of Wednesday," O'Meara said Wednesday. "This is what we've been waiting for. I don't see that there is a big 'if' any longer."

In Memphis, Tenn., officials prepared to notify striking teachers' union leaders to appear in court Friday to attempt hearings.

The Cleveland strike has idled 101,000 students since the 7 and 1/2 day strike began Oct. 1.

Memphis strike has curtailed classes for most of the 113,000 students in that city since Tuesday. Strikes in seven other states idled 400,000 students at midweek.

On Tuesday, Ohio officials assured the Cleveland school board it would be able to meet the $10 million pay increase it has promised.

Wolcott School Board Will Rescind Closing

WOLCOTT (UPI) — The school board plans to rescind its order to close schools next week, because the mayor has said his directive to cut the budget wasn't meant to be taken literally.

The board voted Tuesday night to close the town's six schools Monday after Mayor Joseph Lang sent a directive ordering them to trim the school budget by 15 percent, making it $700,000 less than last year.

But school Superintendent Nicholas D'Agostino said Wednesday the mayor explained he was trying to "warn everyone to be careful of expenditures."

Lang acted in light of attempts by one group to force 10 percent budget reductions.

"We wanted the board to go back to the Town Council and tell them they couldn't live with the budget cut," D'Agostino said following a special board meeting. "He's sending a clarification and we will meet Friday night to rescind the order."

State Education Commissioner Mark R. Sheehy said if the matter was not resolved locally, the state would go to court to ensure the schools would remain open for the town's 3,400 students.

Voters Aug. 21 rejected the $8.1 million budget increase to $1.1 million for education. They also authorized the Town Council to borrow money so the town could operate last year's expenditure level until a new budget was drawn up.

D'Agostino said only 19 of Connecticut's 188 towns spend less per pupil than Wolcott spends.

Those attending Wednesday's meeting included Lang, D'Agostino, members of the Town Council, members of the Board of Education, and tele business manager of the school system.

Welsh Builder Explains Unique Concrete Block

MANCHESTER — His building blocks may look a little strange, but Welshman Arthur Cooper thinks they are neater, faster and easier to use than the conventional concrete block.

Cooper comes from the village of Felinfoel in Wales. He is staying in Manchester — his second visit here — at the Wicowicki residence, 94 Cambridge St.

He has designed a special type of concrete block that does not require mortar as an adhesive for the blocks. Each of his blocks actually is two separate parts joined by metal ties. Each is indented at the top, and the protrusion at the bottom of each block locks into the indented groove of the block below.

This interlocking system is strong and also eliminates the mess and time of using mortar, Cooper said.

He enjoys Manchester and the people he has met here.

"I've come back the second time because I like it so much," he said. Cooper is hoping to interest local companies in his block. He has met with Francis Conti, Manchester's chief building inspector, to discuss his invention.

Board of Directors Takes Many Actions

MANCHESTER — The Town Board of Directors Tuesday night took the following actions during its three-hour meeting:

- Approved by an 8-1 vote the purchase of a pickup truck for the Highway Department. Carl Zisser cast the only no vote.
- Approved a sanitary sewer agreement with South Windsor.
- Tabled action on appropriation of a Youth Services Department grant. The tabling action was taken and Charles McCarthy, assistant town manager, was asked to find out if that grant is in hand and whether the action can be taken yet.
- Purchased 3.5 acres of land from the Hartman Tobacco Co. for the Buckland Industrial Park.
- Appropriated $6,976 to the education budget. The funding comes from rental income from two school buildings.
- Approved $11,500 in state funding for the continuation of the Traffic Services Bureau.
- Took steps to provide funding that will permit completion of the townwide survey project, which is funded through the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act.
- Reappointed Eleanor S. Rubinow to the North Central Regional Mental Health Board Inc., Catchment Area Council 15.
- Approved $3,500 for sewer pipes and $400 for engineering of improvements at the Woodland Street railroad crossing.

Panel Ignores Lament About Ads for Lottery

WETHERSFIELD (UPI) — The gaming commission is dismissing an election year gimmick, a threat by a legislative leader, who says he'll try to strip the panel of its regulatory powers if it doesn't clean up its lottery advertising.

The gaming commission decided Wednesday to rattle off a letter to the legislative protegee — Sen. Louis Cuttito, a Waterbury Democrat who chairs the General Law Committee which handles all gaming legislation.

Gaming commission chairwoman Beatrice Kowalski opened the panel's weekly meeting by reading Cuttito's letter and an editorial from a Waterbury newspaper that apparently got a copy of it before the gaming commission did.

"I have found a growing concern over the method of advertising various state lotteries," Cuttito wrote.

"Catch phrases such as 'You have a brand new chance to win' or 'If your number is right you win tonight' may be along the finest advertising agencies have to offer, but the commission has lost sight of fairness to the better in its vigor to make money for the state," he continued.

Cuttito, never considered a close friend of the Republican-controlled commission, said he expected the panel to include the odds of winning in all of its advertising.

"If the commission does not fulfill its obligations to protect the lottery better against false advertising, I will," Cuttito said. "I will submit legislation that will direct the commission by statute that, in essence, will take away the regulatory powers you now enjoy."

The gaming commission heard complaints last year that its advertising encouraged Connecticut residents who can least afford it to gamble. But Mrs. Kowalski was furious with Cuttito's beef.

She said the gaming commission's brochures on the daily, weekly and instant lotteries already include the bettor's chances of winning.

"It would be virtually impossible for us to print all of this information in a 30-second television ad," she said, adding that Cuttito had plenty of time to complain about the lottery ads during the past legislative session.

"It seems to me that during an election ... I don't care if it's a Republican or a Democrat ... I take exception to it," said the angry chairwoman.

Mrs. Kowalski asked the rest of the commissioners to help her draft a letter to Cuttito, denouncing his accusations. The panel agreed.

In other action, the commission decided to call a meeting next Wednesday to begin discussing possible 1979 race dates for Connecticut's gaming facilities.

The panel also agreed to send a resolution of condolence to Al Terzi, a long-time television anchorman in the Hartford area who was injured in a plane crash in Florida earlier this week.

Mahoney Taps Campaign Head

MANCHESTER — Herbert Stevenson has been named campaign manager for Francis Mahoney, who is seeking re-election to his sixth consecutive term in the 13th Assembly District.

Stevenson is Manchester's Democratic registrar of voters and has been a long-time party worker.

Other committee members are Jerome Baskin, treasurer; James McAuley, campaign coordinator; James Reardon, voting district coordinator; Gail Fuller, absentee voter coordinator; Ed Colman, publicity coordinator.

Gene Connors, Joan Gates, Marion Lebel, Rose O'Brien, Ruth Pemberton, Irene Pisch and Lynn Stevenson will serve as the voter turnout committee.

Alumni Award

WEST HARTFORD — John G. Lee, first chairman of the board of regents at the University of Hartford in 1967, will receive the university's Alumni Association's Honorary Alumni Award for 1978.

Lee will be honored at the annual alumni homecoming dinner Friday at the Geogras Student Union.

College-Bound Seminars Set

MANCHESTER — The guidance department at Manchester High School will conduct a series of seminars next week for parents of students who are planning post high school education. Students are also invited.

Parents and students are asked to attend the seminar presented by the student's counselor.

On Thursday, Oct. 24, a financial aid seminar is planned for a discussion of the various forms of financial aid, local sources of financial aid, the Basic Educational Opportunities Grant, and the financial aid application process.

Jaycees Organize Group

COVENTRY — The Jaycees have taken a step toward forming an umbrella organization that would bring together representatives of various town groups.

A recent meeting attracted members of the town's PTO's, garden club, recreation and conservation commissions, and other local organizations.

Jaycees spokesman Anthony Roberto, a member of the Parks and Recreation Commission, said he hopes to have the groups coordinate their projects to avoid duplication of effort and to provide mutual support.

Several representatives said their organizations could do more for the community if volunteer help was available. Roberto felt the Jaycees could provide workers for a variety of projects.

Last year the Community Education Council attempted to establish a similar umbrella organization. The first meeting brought together about 15 local activists, but attendance dropped off sharply at subsequent meetings, leaving only those specifically interested in the town's adult education program.

MANCHESTER — The annual meeting of the Manchester Public Health Nursing Association's Board of Directors is scheduled for Oct. 19 at noon at the Manchester Country Club.

The program this year is titled, "Focus on Services." Clients of the association and the staff will explain the services being offered by the association.

The annual meeting, including the election of officers, will follow the program.

Mrs. Jack Mercer, hospitality chairman, is in charge of the annual meeting.

Persons interested in additional information may call 647-1461.

ROTc Plans Events

MANCHESTER — An open house at the Regional Occupational Training Center, located at the corner of Hilltown and Wetherell streets will be conducted Oct. 18 from 7:30 to 9 p.m.

A Halloween dance will be presented at the center Oct. 30 from 7 to 10 p.m.

Prizes will be awarded for the best costumes and refreshments will be provided by Manchester Community College.

Dennis Sheridan will serve as disc jockey.

The center will also sponsor a tag sale and Christmas Fair Nov. 18 from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Contributions to the tag sale should be delivered to the center by Nov. 11.

WINTERIZE NOW!

Have you seen the chilling reminder from the Connecticut State Energy Office of last year's blizzard? The Connecticut Outdoor Advertising Association has donated 100 billboards available throughout the State to remind us all that NOW is the time to prepare our homes for the winter weather ahead.

You may have already received offers of assistance from your gas or electric utility dealers or your fuel supplier for a Home Energy Audit. The State Energy Office is heartened by the cooperation of these forward-looking companies in providing energy conservation assistance to their customers.

What is a Home Energy Audit? It is an energy use survey of your house which suggests ways to make it more energy efficient; it also indicates how long it will take for recommended measures such as increased insulation, and storm windows, to be paid for out of the energy savings achieved.

The National Energy Act now before Congress would require many energy suppliers to offer home energy audits to their customers. It would also authorize tax credits, possibly going back to April, 1977, for expenditures made for conservation and solar devices. A Home Energy Audit will enable you to use this allowance to best advantage.

There are several kinds of Home Energy Audits. A Class A audit provides on-site inspection in the home by a qualified auditor; a Class B audit entails a questionnaire completed by the homeowner, with data then analyzed by a computer; a Class C audit is based on a "do it yourself" manual which identifies conservation measures for the homeowner and gives instructions for carrying out these measures.

While any one of these approaches can help you identify a wide range of energy saving measures, only the Class A audit includes a thorough check of the efficiency of your furnace.

For advice on weatherizing your home, get in touch with your fuel supplier or your local Cooperative Energy Extension Service of the University of Connecticut, which has Energy Associates in eight convenient locations throughout the State.

You will also have the opportunity to learn about a wide variety of energy-saving ideas at the Home Energy Show to be held at the Hartford Civic Center, November 3 and 4.

Mystery Disease Strikes Philippines

MANILA, Philippines (UPI) — A mysterious disease has killed 40 persons in 24 hours in a remote fishing village, health authorities said.

The outbreak was reported in Pangilagan, a tiny island with about 800 residents 400 miles south of Manila. An undetermined number of people were reported stricken by the disease, prompting military authorities to seek help from Manila.

A five-man medical team was to fly to Pangilagan Thursday to look into the disease and treat those affected.

"It's a mysterious disease," said Dr. Edilberto Fernando, a regional director of the health ministry. "Most of the victims suffered fever before they died Tuesday. We can't tell what this is all about but we're anticipating it might be a viral disease."

A small islet near Pangilagan was hit by a cholera outbreak last month. At least 15 persons were killed, but a medical team flown to the area has been able to control the disease.

Fernando said the medical team will look into the sanitation situation in the area. He said an anti-malaria unit will make a separate investigation into the mysterious disease.

Coventry Seeks New Bridge Bid

COVENTRY — The Town Council has directed Town Manager Frank Connolly to seek a third bid from an engineering company for the design and reconstruction of the Pucker Street Bridge.

Besier and Gible of Old Saybrook and Fuss and O'Neil have already submitted bids of about $10,000 for preliminary engineering work. However, Lee Pare and Associates of Norwich declined to submit a bid, recommending that Lenard Engineering of Storrs be used.

Lenard had done a feasibility study for the town, suggesting that the bridge be posted for five tons and collapsed last winter under an overweight oil truck. Town Attorney Abbot Schwebel has started litigation against the MEM Oil Co. of Bolton to recover damages of about $10,000.

Lenard's plans call for a new structure costing more than $81,000 in addition to engineering fees. The cost would be shared with the Town of Columbia, since the bridge links Coventry with that town.

Among the engineering duties to be performed, by the firm whose bid is accepted, are review of shop drawings, approval of contractor requests for payment, and reporting on any special tests required by the project.

In other business Connolly told the council that four area towns have expressed interest in participating on a study committee for a satellite clinic that Manchester Memorial Hospital has offered to set up. The towns are Tolland, Columbia, Hebron and Andover.

At a recent public hearing on the proposal, about 50 residents expressed mixed feelings on the need for such a facility. There are three hospitals already in the area, some said, and no Coventry resident is more than 20 minutes away from emergency help.

The manager also reported that the town was facing substantial increases in Blue Cross rates for both general government and the Board of Education. "Coventry is on a merit plan in that each year there is a review of the claims versus the premiums that are paid," he said, "with a subsequent adjustment relative to the premiums themselves."

During the fiscal year 1975-76, Connolly reported, the family rate was $28.88. This has jumped to $50.28 effective November 1.

"The increase required for the eight months in the current fiscal year for general government would be $1,896," Connolly noted, "which on an annualized basis would be $2,843. On the Board of Education side, the increase involves $8,105, which translates to $12,157 on an annualized basis."

GOP Candidate Says Tax Cut Was Farce

VERNON — The recently passed tax cut enacted by the U.S. House of Representatives is a "cruel hoax" according to Tom Connell, Republican candidate for Second District congressman.

"That tax cut is a farce. It doesn't even provide a large enough cut to offset the increase in Social Security taxes and the tax increases caused by inflation," Connell said.

He charges that Dodd is a part of the problem, "and definitely not part of the solution," he said.

"Dodd voted against the Kemp-Roth tax reform act that would have provided for at least a one-third reduction in individual federal income taxes. That reform would have provided enough relief to actually lower the individual's federal taxes," he said.

He noted that Dodd voted against the bill and "he's refused to take any sort of initiative to offset the tax increases caused by inflation," he said.

Connell said wage increases in response to inflation push workers into higher tax brackets that often result in a loss of purchasing power.

Connell supports a system of tax indexing where tax brackets are adjusted each year in accordance with the inflation rate, so that wage increases are not taxed at a higher rate.

"But instead of helping out the overburdened taxpayer, Chris Dodd and his Democrat colleagues in the House have passed a tax cut that is too little too late," he said.

Planners Approve Plan For 20-Lot Subdivision

By CHRIS BLAKE
Herald Reporter

EAST HARTFORD — A 20-lot subdivision application which the Planning and Zoning Commission tabled last month was approved Wednesday night by the PZC. The planned subdivision is located west of Timber Trail and south of Jeffrey Drive, near the Glastonbury town line.

The PZC had tabled the request because it feared the possibility of tie-ins to a proposed street stub which would have ended one of the streets on the planned subdivision.

The old plan called for the extension of Timber Trail to meet a proposed extension of Brandon Road at a right angle. Brandon Road would have continued and ended with a street stub.

But, the PZC tabled the request after members pointed out the possibility of Timber Trail becoming an east-west route from Oak Street to Forbes Street or the possibility of tie-in from Glastonbury.

The new plan solves the problem by ending the Brandon Road extension with a permanent cul-de-sac.

The 9-acre parcel will be sold to Developers Harry James and Edward Hoberman of H&J Builders for development, said Raymond Willocks, a Glastonbury engineer who represented the owners.

The owners of the property are John Querido Jr. of East Hartford, Hilda Esteves of East Hartford and Evelyn Querido of Glastonbury.

Construction will start by late winter. Road construction is scheduled to begin next week. Houses will be in the $85,000 to $90,000 price range.

Charles Sheehan, the town engineer, said traffic increases on Timber Trail will be "of a residential nature" and should not create any problems for residents.

In their PZC action, the commis-

Referee To Lose Position

HARTFORD (UPI) — Connecticut's four active federal district judges have refused to reappoint Hartford's U.S. Bankruptcy Court Referee Saul Seidman.

The judges said Wednesday they have named Hartford attorney Robert L. Krechevsky of the Hartford firm Killian, Gould and Krechevsky to the post beginning Nov. 1, when Seidman's third six-year term expires.

Chief U.S. District Judge T. Emmet Clark said the judges agreed that a new appointment was in order. "He did not comment further."

The 74-year-old Seidman, a former president of the national association of bankruptcy referees, has been criticized by some lawyers and by a federal judge as being arbitrary, granting some exorbitant awards to friends and giving the appearance of impropriety with legal figures.

Seidman has said his overall record is based on competence and fairness. "Don't get the idea that this is a patronage mill — no way," he said last spring.

Seidman, who first became associated with Hartford's bankruptcy court as its clerk in the 1920s, said Wednesday he was surprised the judges made a decision before federal legislation that might extend his appointment is signed.

Congress Friday passed the first reform legislation of the bankruptcy system in 40 years. It contains the provision that would automatically extend terms of sitting bankruptcy judges until 1984.

A House Judiciary Committee spokesman said Wednesday he believes if President Carter signed the bill before Nov. 1, the president would appoint a local three-member committee which would rule on whether Seidman could continue in his post.

Krechevsky, 56, was a Democratic town councilman in West Hartford for 10 years. His law firm includes L. Gov. Robert Killian.

Moose Lodge Plans Glaucoma Screening

EAST HARTFORD — The Loyal Order of Moose, 604 Prospect St., East Hartford, will conduct its semi-annual Glaucoma Screening Program on Thursday, Oct. 19, from 2 to 4 p.m., said civic affairs chairman William Hughes of East Hartford.

The lodge strongly advises anyone over 50 who has not had an eye examination in the past two years to take advantage of this opportunity — at no cost to them.

Glaucoma can be halted but the damage done is irreversible. This simple, painless test can be conducted in less than three minutes.

Walk-ins are welcome, but it is suggested that appointments be made through nurse Mary Nelson of the Connecticut Society for the Prevention of Blindness by calling 524-5700. Ms. Nelson has made arrangements for a noted ophthalmologist from East Hartford to handle the examinations.

The lodge is easy to find. From Hartford, any B, O, Y, H or Z bus from Morgan Street stops at the corner of Connecticut Boulevard and Prospect Street. The bus routes can be reversed from Glastonbury, Manchester, Vernon and South Windsor.

Interstate 84 travelers can take the Governor Street exit, turn right at the stop sign and right again at the first light.

The Loyal Order of Moose has over 6,000 members in 22 Connecticut lodges. The organization emphasizes community service as one of its most important goals.

Rockville Chamber Panel Studies WACAP Proposal

VERNON — Directors of the Rockville Area Chamber of Commerce Wednesday approved the appointment of a committee to work with a Town Council committee to look into the possibility of Vernon joining the Windham Area Community Action Program (WACAP).

Director Glen Roberts said WACAP has huge federal funding and a huge payroll. He expressed misgivings about becoming involved in the program because "it looks like a lot of duplication."

The Town Council last week expressed the same misgivings. The council decided it would not abide by the timetable because it wasn't enough time. In the letter to Mayor Frank McCoy it said that lack of response would be treated as an acceptance of the application and agreement but the mayor notified them to the contrary.

The mayor said, in the letter, that he had met with WACAP officials on Sept. 13 and questioned when the 30-day period actually started as that was the time period that was given.

He said as chief executive of the Town of Vernon he wouldn't be receptive to services which are questionable as to need of duplications of other services already being economically and expeditiously offered.

The economic and development committee of the chamber reported it is reviewing the survey it did last year in which 12 area businesses responded that they were either to expand their existing businesses or would be moving. The committee is especially checking back with those people.

The bylaws committee reported it is in the process of revising the bylaws and hopes to have a copy of the proposed revisions so the directors can review them at the next meeting and they will then go to a referendum of the general membership for action.

A new map of the three-town area is being compiled, William Repoli reported. He said the committee is changing and correcting the existing map with the help of Connecticut Light & Power and the postmasters in the three area towns.

The board also took action on the acceptance of one new member. This was Sambo's Restaurant at Vernon Circle and it was unanimously accepted.

KKK Planning Protest In Favor of Seabrook

DENHAM SPRINGS, La. (UPI) — The grand imperial wizard of the Ku Klux Klan, which favors nuclear power, says he will lead a counter demonstration at the Seabrook nuclear power plant in New Hampshire during a rally Saturday by an anti-nuclear citizens group.

"It's more pro-American than pro-nuclear," Bill Wilkinson said in a telephone interview Wednesday from his Denham Springs, La., home.

Wilkinson said he was invited to Seabrook by a "number of construction workers who are fed up with the Clamshell Alliance." He accused the anti-nuclear group of being motivated by the Communists' and said its main goal is to "maintain U.S. dependence on Arab oil."

The Clamshell has organized several protests at the construction site of the $2.3 billion atom plant since it was first proposed six years ago.

Seabrook, which was finally approved by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission in August after a series of court battles and federal delays, has been a national target of anti-nuclear forces.

Meanwhile, bail reduction hearings were scheduled today in Rockingham County Superior Court for 15 members of the Boston chapter of the Clamshell who have been staging a hunger strike since being jailed last Saturday. They have said they will keep fasting until they are released without bail.

The protesters were among 42 persons charged with criminal trespass after scaling two fences at the Seabrook plant site last Saturday. The remainder were released after paying bail ranging from $100 or $200.

Donations for the bake sale may be left at the Community Hall Friday or may be brought to the green Saturday morning. Arrangements to have items picked up for either the tag or bake sale may be made by calling Polly Harris at 649-8174.

Senate OKs SBA Funding

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate has approved and sent to the White House a four-year $6.6 billion authorization for the Small Business Administration.

Sen. Edmund Muskie, D-Maine, said he would urge President Carter to veto the bill on the basis of the low-interest disaster loans.

The compromise bill was approved Wednesday by voice vote. It was cleared by the House.

Sen. Lowell Weicker, R-Conn., the floor manager of the bill, called the measure "landmark legislation" and said it was the "most significant small business" measure passed in 10 years.

"The SBA will become more business development-oriented as a result of these changes, and that's a long overdue change," he said. "For too long, SBA has been just a lending institution."

In an attempt to shift the emphasis from lending to providing help and advice, the bill authorizes a pilot program establishing small business development centers in numerous states designed to provide managerial and technical expertise to small businesses.

The bill bolsters the agency's recently created Office of Advocacy which gives small businesses a spokesman within the government and also provides for the creation of a data base to supply information vital to discerning economic trends.

Muskie, chairman of the Senate Budget Committee, said the disaster loan provisions in the bill would pierce the budget ceiling and called the program "costly and wasteful."

"If it is passed by Congress, I will urge the president to veto it," Muskie added.

Buyer's Billboard

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Should the government pay for surveys of automobile repair shops to let consumers know which ones do a good job?

Krugoff's magazine does that already for his circulation area, Washington, D.C. He estimates the cost of establishing a similar system in every major area of the country at about $5 million a year.

In his Washington ratings, Krugoff said, he has found no correlation between how much a shop charges and how good the work is; shops listed by the National Institute of Automotive Service Excellence as having tested, competent mechanics did not have more satisfied customers than shops without the rating; and dealerships are about twice as likely to be rated as inferior by customers as independent shops.

The same congressional hearing was also told of a new government survey that indicates consumers are far more likely to have a problem with a car than almost any other product they buy under warranty, and to have a harder time getting it fixed.

That Federal Trade Commission survey indicated about 25 percent of car buyers who suffered problems were dissatisfied with the outcome, compared with about eight percent for all other products.

In addition nearly 30 percent of motor vehicles are delivered with a problem covered by a warranty, compared with seven percent for other under-warranty products; and 30 percent of car problems took more than one month to resolve, compared with about 14 percent for other consumer products.

Clinic Uses Lunch Therapy

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Spending lunchtime gossiping with a group of friends is an enjoyable activity for most teenage girls. But to those enrolled in the Johns Hopkins University Weight Disorders Clinic, the noon hour can be frightening.

That is the hour when patients suffering from anorexia nervosa — self-induced starvation — talk about the problem that has reduced some of them to as little as 70 pounds.

Dr. Arnold Andersen, the clinic's director and a psychiatrist, said anorexia nervosa is a disorder characterized by fear of fatness and loss of monthly periods. It has a 10 percent mortality rate.

Andersen said the patients have four characteristics: a vulnerable personality, a family in crisis, a usually dieting, or a major disappointment like a romantic problem.

After a patient's weight is stabilized and she has completed psychotherapy, she again starts ordering her own meals, and a follow-up program is prescribed.

Andersen said the disease is becoming increasingly recognized because the one-to-three year delay in diagnosing the illness has changed recently as families of the girls are reporting the problem more quickly.

Andersen described the typical anorexia nervosa patient as a girl who is a "perfectionist, but not very insightful, who comes from an upper middle class family and is often the so-called perfect child."

But the family, he said, is often in a crisis of some type, and the patients have a "fear of losing control; they almost back off one cliff in order to avoid falling off another."

Rockville Group Hears Of 'Frightening' Drugs

By BARBARA RICHMOND Herald Reporter

VERNON — Phencyclidine is not a new drug — it just keeps having its name changed. It's been called Angel Dust, PCP, Peace Tabs, "T," Hog, THIC and a number of other things.

Dr. James O'Brien of the University of Connecticut Health Center explained the drug and its effects to a group of representatives from Rockville General Hospital and other social service organizations, Tuesday in Rockville.

The program was organized by Harold DeLisle, head of the Vernon Police Department's juvenile division. DeLisle recently returned from a drug seminar out west.

Dr. O'Brien said the use of the drug started during the Vietnam War and that's where it got one of its names, Peace Tabs. He said in this area marijuana is the number one drug used and phencyclidine is number two.

DeLisle spoke of the problems the police have in handling a person who has taken phencyclidine. He said in one instance locally, it took five police officers to handle one youth. He said the next day the user doesn't remember anything that happened. "I'm afraid somebody is going to get hurt but we've been lucky so far," DeLisle said.

He said he feels the hospital staff and other social service workers should know what to expect. He said, "I'm concerned not only about the availability of the drug but also its widespread effects, there are certain dangers for all of us as well as for the patient."

Dr. O'Brien said the drug came into vogue in 1965 as an animal tranquilizer and was used for humans in some forms. He said it's still available to veterinarians in some forms.

The drug, Dr. O'Brien said, is a central nervous system depressant and it has a wide variety of psychological and physiological effects.

He said it causes a feeling of being removed from reality. He said if the user touches something hot or agitates against something hard they do not feel any pain. He said the user will most likely be paranoid and thinks everyone is out to get him. He said they are depressed and preoccupied with death and dying.

Dr. O'Brien said the drug produces somewhat of a sense of ecstasy deprivation which is markedly different from the effects of drugs such as LSD. He said it produces sudden, unpredictable outbursts of violence which may subside and then start up again.

He told the hospital workers that it causes tremors and convulsions and that is a pretty good tipoff to medical staff that the drug used was PCP. To complicate the problems, Dr. O'Brien said most of the drug users combine it with the use of some form of alcohol.

He told the hospital staff to look at the patients eyes and if they are using the PCP their eyeballs will jump.

State Survey Says Elderly Defrauded

HARTFORD (UPI) — A year-long state survey has found that unscrupulous out-of-state insurance companies have been defrauding Connecticut's senior citizens by selling them policies they don't need, Gov. Ella Grasso said today.

At her weekly news conference, Mrs. Grasso announced she will seek "clear language" regulations to try to curb the abuses.

Flanked by three of her commissioners, Mrs. Grasso said the survey by the Consumer Protection Department "found that the elderly are confronted with a great deal of confusion and misinformation in their attempts to secure private supplemental insurance coverage."

Insurance Commissioner Joseph Mike said his agency has uncovered "20 to 25" cases of fraud by out-of-state insurance companies.

"We suspect there are a lot more," he said.

He did not name the states where the insurance firms are located, but said the cases involved selling the elderly policies to explain and clarify that Connecticut insurance companies have not been involved in Child Day Care Being Expanded

MANCHESTER — Day care services provided by the Northeast District Office of Child and Family Services, is being expanded to include the communities of Vernon and Rockville.

Additional day care personnel are needed for the expanded program. The office is currently seeking women who have a warm interest in and a liking for children and who are able to understand and encourage the child's social, physical and intellectual growth.

Persons interested in additional information may call Linda Van Dine at the district office, 110 Main St., at 643-2761.

Grasso and Sarasin Differ on Farming

HARTFORD (UPI) — Gov. Ella Grasso and Rep. Ronald Sarasin, her Republican opponent for governor, have given their views on the problems of Connecticut farmers.

Both candidates responded to questions by farmers for over an hour at a Connecticut Farm Bureau meeting in Hartford Wednesday.

Sarasin said he was in favor of increasing the weight limits of trucks on Connecticut highways to 80,000 pounds per truck. The farmers have complained the current weight limit of 72,000 pounds per truck makes it more expensive to haul food.

The farmers complained the state's 7 percent tax on replacement parts for equipment and noise and pollution requirements for farm vehicles. Mrs. Grasso did not pursue the issue of the tax and merely told one farmer, "Your point is well taken."

But the governor pointed to recent legislation aimed at protecting Connecticut's dwindling farm acreage.

One measure is a pilot program to

Osborn Assails Tax Record

VERNON — "Why should the people of Vernon turn tax reform to the same legislative body which has acted so irresponsibly for the past four years?" is the question asked by Nancy Osborn, Republican candidate for the General Assembly from the 56th District.

Mrs. Osborn assailed the current Legislature for its performance in the area of tax reform, contending that legislative actions might become the springboard for enactment of the controversial state income tax proposal.

"The current Legislature has passed a budget of $2.25 billion, an increase of 14.4 percent over last year. The Connecticut Public Expenditures Council and the Connecticut Conference of Municipalities predict an overall budget shortfall of $300 million," she said.

She said that her opponent, Chester Moran, who is seeking re-election to the General Assembly, voted for that budget but "so far, we have no word

Amin Ready to Retaliate For U.S. Trade Embargo

NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI) — Uganda's President Idi Amin today said he is on the verge of retaliating against a U.S. trade embargo by taking "very drastic" action against the 300 Americans who live in his country.

Amin's threat, broadcast by Radio Kampala, gave no hint of what steps the dourly dictator contemplated.

The U.S. congressmen who sponsored the trade embargo said their action also was retaliation, against the "ferocious, institutionalized brutality" that has killed tens of thousands of Ugandans under Amin's rule.

After Amin was stung by U.S. criticism last year, he rounded up all Americans living in Uganda and held them in a series of camps.

Faced with a stern response from the Carter administration, however, he later released them.

There was no immediate U.S. response to today's Radio Kampala broadcast, which came before dawn in the United States. The United States and Uganda have not severed relations, but the U.S. Embassy in Kampala has been closed for years, and the U.S. government tries to discourage all Americans from traveling in the landlocked East African nation.

The trade embargo signed by Carter earlier this week actually was an amendment to other legislation. It bans the United States from importing Ugandan products or sending American goods to Amin's regime.

The ban primarily would affect Uganda's $250 million-per-year coffee trade with the United States.

The sponsors of the embargo accused Amin of the "unprovoked" slaughter of between 100,000 and 300,000 Ugandans.

"The world has not seen such ferocious, institutionalized brutality

Catholic Cardinals Narrow Pope Search

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — The Roman Catholic cardinals who will choose a successor to the late Pope John Paul I say they have narrowed their search and are debating the specific merits of a small group of candidates.

Church sources and statements by the cardinals themselves indicate the 111 cardinals are moving toward a consensus: they want a theological conservative, institutionalized, doctrinaire and disciplined, as well as a man who can control the unruly Vatican bureaucracy.

American Cardinals John Dearden of Detroit and John Carberry of St. Louis admitted Wednesday that discussions about specific papal candidates were under way.

"Once in a while a name comes up in a friendly way," Carberry said. "We are all trying to enrich our understanding."

Though Dearden and Carberry would not say which specific candidates are being considered, their remarks and those of other cardinals indicated the candidates were conservatives with broad experience in the ways of the Vatican.

Church experts say two cardinals among the papal candidates who fit that mold are Giuseppe Siri, 72, archbishop of Genoa and 25 years a cardinal, and Pericle Felici, 67, prefect of the Vatican Court of Appeals.

The experts cautioned, however, that Cardinal Giovanni Benelli, the powerful former Vatican diplomat, most instrumental in electing John Paul, could not be counted out.

Also being considered were the so-called "minor" candidates: Cardinal Corrado Ursi, 70, archbishop of Naples, and Cardinal Salvatore Pappalardo, 60, archbishop of Palermo, Sicily.

Pappalardo and Ursi were most often mentioned as successors to John Paul immediately after the late pontiff's death, when the newly arriving cardinals said they wanted another pastoral pontiff to lead the church.

After two weeks of formal discussions at the Vatican and a weekend of informal and frank talks, however, the cardinals have been pointing more toward a capable administrator than a pastoral archbishop.

Class by Education

Education — not income level or occupational status — is now the "key factor in defining today's class divisions" in America, according to an intriguing political analysis by Everett C. Ladd Jr. in the new issue of "Public Opinion," a monthly published by the American Enterprise Institute.

Examining a wealth of polling data, Ladd concludes that the chief social and ideological schisms of the 1970s no longer occur between the "haves" and "have-nots" as in the New Deal era, but between Americans who have some college education and those who do not.

'Short Form' Charity

BY MARTHA ANGLE AND ROBERT WALTERS WASHINGTON (NEA) — "Charity never fails," proclaims the Bible. Perhaps charity will "endure all things," but that optimistic assessment was offered long before the Treasury Department began promoting "short form" tax returns.

The ubiquitous 1040A "short form" for individual taxpayers allows a generous but fixed standard deduction as a substitute for the various itemized deductions — including those for charitable contributions.

Legislation authorizing itemization of charitable donations on the IRS "short form" was introduced this year in the House by Reps. Joseph L. Fisher, D-Va., and Barber B. Conable Jr., R-N.Y., and in the Senate by Sen. Daniel P. Moynihan, D-N.Y., and Bob Packwood, R-Ore.

Those proposals were rejected by both the House Ways and Means Committee and the Senate Finance Committee, but the sponsors of the legislation — convinced that there is an idea whose time has come — will reintroduce the measure next year.

Opponents of that approach argue that the standard deduction already includes an allowance for charitable contributions; the additional line will complicate a tax form whose principal virtue is simplicity and that change will set a precedent for the addition of other itemized deductions.

But the "short form" already allows itemization beyond the standard deduction — for such items as political contributions, alimony payments and moving expenses.

More significant is the special rule voluntary giving and private charities traditionally have occupied in a country whose citizens are rightly proud of their compassion for the oppressed, the sick and the needy.

For decades, much of the burden of alleviating the misery of those less fortunate people has been borne by the United Way, Salvation Army and other privately owned charities.

If those groups' financial base continues to be eroded, their responsibilities undoubtedly will shift to federal, state and local government agencies.

There already exists a national consensus critical of government for engaging in too much meddling in too many people's lives. The failure of Congress to pass the needed remedial legislation next year will only exacerbate the situation.

From the state houses to the White House and halls of congress, those in power might like to listen to "Century III Leaders" — the 102 top high school seniors from each of 1978 speaking out on problems in America's third century.

In only one area do the old New Deal alignments still hold — trade unionism. "While high school and grade school graduates are notably inclined to more conservative views, they are also notably supportive of unions," Ladd writes. "College trained professionals, with some notable exceptions among public employees, are not a trade union class ..."

DeConcini Tough, Independent

By ARTHUR LINGLE TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI) — Sen. Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz., thinks the bad things that people say about the "Eastern Establishment" press are true.

"The Eastern liberal press is just not in touch with the country," says the feisty former prosecutor who was propelled into the national limelight when he expressed reservations about the Panama Canal treaties during Senate debate.

Firehouse Confusion

To the editor:

I attended a meeting of the Ad Hoc Committee of the Board of Directors of the Town and the 8th Utilities District on Wednesday, Oct. 4th at the Town Hall at which time several matters were discussed including the disposition of the Buckland Firehouse.

Chairman Connors had much to say but he conversed in a low, low voice with his head turned away from the audience and at times placed his hand to his face so that it was very difficult for the people to hear what he was saying. There were only 6 members of the public present but those persons were interested or they would not have been there. I would suggest that in the future Mr. Connors sit facing the audience and speak so that he can be heard.

With regard to the firehouse, there was a lengthy discussion regarding the danger of emergency vehicles colliding while on official duty and also the morale of the firemen stationed in the Buckland structure. It must be very frustrating for two men, on each of three shifts, to spend all day and night waiting for calls which seldom come because of the limited territory it covers. It would seem that the Maytag Repairmen have competition for "The Lonliest Men in Town."

The directors of the 8th District own the Buckland Firehouse, territory under the jurisdiction of the District and they ask that the town vacate it.

Two members of the Town Board of Directors, Connors and Fitzpatrick, are great difficulty in determining what the word "vacate" means.

It was explained in detail but they still questioned it. They were given the "Webster" definition but still could not comprehend the meaning until it was explained in rather crude language, then they understood!!!

According to the newspapers the report was given to the mayor and evidently he doesn't understand the meaning of the word "vacate" either. It is evidently assumed by the Town Board of Directors that they own the Buckland Firehouse, however, they own it only in the proportion of their tax dollars that went into the building. Every taxpayer in Manchester contributed to the cost of their "white elephant" and the decision should rest with the people as to its disposal.

The residents of Buckland, Tolland Turnpike, Byron Farms, 8th Utilities District and South Manchester own that firehouse, not nine directors, a town manager, a paid fire department and a political boss.

The town could save a great deal of taxpayers' money by turning the building over to the 8th District to be manned by volunteer firemen. The area beyond the District could be covered as it was for many years on contract.

By United Press International Today is Thursday, Oct. 12, the 256th day of 1978 with 80 to follow.

The moon is between its first quarter and full phase.

The morning stars are Saturn and Jupiter.

The evening stars are Mars, Venus, Mercury.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Libra.

Elmer Sperry, American inventor and electrical engineer, was born Oct. 12, 1860.

This is Columbus Day in many states, although Monday was the official federal holiday.

On this day in history:

In 1492, Christopher Columbus discovered the New World known as "America." The first landing is believed to have been made in the Bahamas, southeast of what now is Florida.

In 1960, Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev removed one of his shoes and pounded on his desk with it during a speech before the United Nations. General Assembly President Frederick Boland lost his Irish temper and spit his gavel trying to restore order.

In 1970, President Nixon nominated House Minority Leader Gerald Ford for the vice presidency to replace Spiro Agnew who resigned two days earlier.

In 1976, swine flu inoculations were halted in nine states after three persons died shortly after taking the shots.

A thought for the day: American President Franklin D. Roosevelt said, "There is nothing I love as much as a good fight."

well, and because of their strong faith in Christ.

"And now just as you trusted Christ to save you, trust him, too, for each day's problems; live in vital union with him. Let your roots go down into him and draw up nourishment from him. See that you go on growing in the Lord, and become strong and vigorous in the truth you were taught. Let your lives overflow with joy and thanksgiving for all he has done ... so you have everything with you who have Christ. He is the highest Ruler, with authority over every other power."

Walsh Returns to Gridiron And Sparks Indian Offense

Bob Walsh

BY LEN AUSTER
Herald Sports Writer
He was destined for stardom, some people thought, as a sophomore. He emerged from the junior high ranks with tremendous credentials.

Some where along the line, however, matters went amiss and the career of Bob Walsh did not get untracked. But the story now appears headed for a happy ending as Walsh, after a year away from the sport, has returned with a loud bang as an integral part of the Manchester High football team from his tailback post.

The 5-foot-8, 182-pound senior has scored seven touchdowns, including runs of 57, 65 and 93 yards, and rushed for 544 yards on 87 carries, an 8.1 yard per attempt average in the three Indian victories. Manchester, with Walsh a key to the team's early success, is already guaranteed its best record in six seasons.

"He's quick, people aren't going to catch him," stated Indian Head Coach Jack Holik with a smile. "He's strong, breaks a lot of tackles. Bobby also has real good balance and compactly built, he has a low center of gravity. You combine all those with the fact he is a real competitor. He won't give into anybody," cited the third-year coach.

The blonde-haired Walsh, who played soccer as a junior but returned to the gridiron because "I always liked football the most and since it was my last year..." credits the offensive line for his early starts.

"The line (center Clyde Reid, guards Jim Taylor and Don Beckman, tackles John McMahon and Mickey Columbe, and tight end Jim Paggioli) is really working together," Walsh complimented.

When we come out of the huddle, everyone is looking at the defense and then talking what they'll do on the line," he continued. "You look at the line and it seems they're doing everything right. The downfield blocking has been great. When I'm running I see a lot of red shirts, more than the other colors."

"What sets him aside is he thinks of team first and consequently everyone knows that and appears to put out extra," Holik commented. "A line when it knows it has a good back behind it generally blocks a little bit better. It knows he's capable of breaking one any time. Bobby gives us a breakaway threat which we didn't have."

Walsh was not a "star" as a sophomore. "I don't think I should have been playing all that much," he now admits. The difference, between then and now, he feels is "Age of himself" and the line. And the team is now more together."

He took a year off from the sport, which may have been for the best but the heralded Walsh is living up to previous billing. Walsh is running like people thought he would, and with every step Manchester football gains.

Just for starters: the Buffalo Braves are now the San Diego Clippers and play in the Pacific Division. Detroit moves from the Midwest Division to the Central Division and Washington moves from the Central to the Atlantic Division.

Marvin Webster is now with the New York Knicks and Lonnie Shelton is at Seattle. Marvin Barnes, Nate Archibald and Billy Knight are now in Boston uniforms while Kevin Porter is playing for Detroit and Eric Myers is playing for the New Jersey Nets. Rich Barry is with Houston, John Lucas is with Golden State, George McGinnis is with Denver, Bobby Jones is with Philadelphia.

Red Sox to Raise Bleacher Tickets

BOSTON (UPI) — Even though the 1978 season was one of the most profitable the Boston Red Sox have ever seen, club management plans to boost prices on about 40 percent of the bleacher seats at Fenway Park next year.

A Red Sox spokesman said Wednesday bleacher seats with chair backs would be sold for $5.50 and would be available on a reserved-seat basis for season ticket-holders.

"We had chair-backed bleacher seats in the lower bleacher section during the last season and there was a lot of interest among fans to get those seats under season ticket plans," the spokesman said.

About 40 percent of the 7,400 bleacher seats are included in that

UConn Booters In Upset Loss

Dartmouth College upset the University of Connecticut, 3-2, in a New England college soccer action yesterday in Storrs in a matchup of two of the regions top clubs.

Dartmouth, 4-0-1, got two goals from Mark Schneider and the winning tally with 5-23 left by Tim Ekstrom on a direct kick lofted over the head of reserve UConn goalie Bob Salvo.

Wilbert Cadet and Joe Morrone tallied for the Huskies. It was Morrone's eighth goal.

The Big Green was fourth ranked in New England while UConn, which saw a six-game winning streak stopped and slipped to 8-3, was top-ranked in the region and No. 9 nationally.

Grasso's Smile Returns

BY ANDREW NIBLEY Hartford (UPI) - There was a bounce in her stride and a twinkle in her eye. Ella had come to chit-chat, gossip and smile - a tell-tale sign she has caught the sweet scent of victory.

Suddenly Wednesday afternoon, the door to the Capitol press room flew open. In pranced the governor. She was up on her toes, dancing almost - the way a prize fighter does when he's felled a weaker opponent. The last time the governor bounced into the press room for one of her patented, but rare, chats was just before Connecticut's first Democratic gubernatorial primary on Sept. 12.

Her challenger in that affair, Lt. Gov. Robert Killian, had been complaining that the press was not adequately getting his views across to the voters. At the time, Mrs. Grasso said she didn't want to talk about that. She just wanted to see how everybody was doing.

A few days later, she demolished her upstart lieutenant governor in the Democratic primary by a more than 2-1 margin. Tuesday, Ronald Sarasin, the three-term Republican congressman who wants Mrs. Grasso's job, accused her of the press of not giving him the same front page treatment it afforded Killian during his attempt to out her boss.

The Republican also bemoaned a recent poll that showed him trailing the governor by 13 percentage points. A few weeks before, he said he was pleased with the results of a poll done by the same outfit that showed him virtually neck-in-neck with the governor. Wednesday, Mrs. Grasso came to visit. Again, she appeared reluctant to talk about her challenger's comments. Instead, she flattered from reporter to reporter like a gladiator child unwrapping a living room full of presents on Christmas day.

No shop talk. Let's just shoot the breeze. After a bit, she pulled up a chair and reeled off a couple stories about what a wonderful woman Lillian Carter was and how much fun she had when she went to Rome last week. And then as rapidly as she appeared, she vanished.

A veteran political writer stopped typing for a minute and turned to some of the junior members of the press corps. "She always comes when something good happens to her."

Board OKs School Plan

ANDOVER - Final plans and specifications for the gymnasium addition at Andover Elementary School were unanimously approved by the Board of Education Tuesday. The plans were presented by Peter Abel, architect.

Tonight the plans will be presented to, and hopefully approved by, the School Building Committee. If the plans are approved by the committee, they will be sent to the state for approval and then bid documents for the project will be prepared.

Beatrice Kowalski, school board chairman, said the project may go out to bid in November. The board accepted the resignation of Irene Collins as cafeteria cook/manager and the transfer of Yvette Pelletier from cafeteria aide to that position. The board appointed Barbara Benson a cafeteria aide and Patrick Kane a bus driver.

Two items pertaining to transportation were turned over to the board's transportation committee to review and report back to the board at a future meeting. The first item of study will be the possibility of assigning seats on the elementary bus runs. William Kowalski, bus driver, assigned seats on the Grades 7 and 8 bus run and his action was praised by Judith Willard, resident.

The board voted to participate in the Area Cooperative Association for Special Education. The board accepted the resignation of William Yetz and it passed. Following a discussion, Joseph Paradis, president of the board, proposed an amendment that nine of the applicants be voted on as a unit but this idea was rejected as being discriminatory.

Nine of the names on the list were voted on separately and action was deferred on the other name and the matter was referred to town counsel for an opinion. During a discussion board members agreed that the objectives of the chamber and membership eligibility requirements were voted on and should be revised. They also, on the other hand, agreed that specific criteria might lead to embarrassment of the chamber and to do nothing would be the applicant no grounds on which an applicant is rejected and would by no means insure against lawsuits. Some felt that the fact that the chamber votes on accepting members affirms its right to say yes or no to an applicant otherwise voting is a useless and meaningless formality.

The directors also discussed the fact that just because an applicant is admitted to chamber membership does not necessarily constitute an endorsement and the bylaws don't provide for election of a member. They feel to reject an applicant on accusation alone would be to abridge his civil rights and to admit the applicant and have him use "chamber member" in his unorthodox advertising would be an embarrassment to the chamber and to do nothing would be the applicant no grounds on which an applicant is rejected and would by no means insure against lawsuits. Some felt that the fact that the chamber votes on accepting members affirms its right to say yes or no to an applicant otherwise voting is a useless and meaningless formality.

Business

Gerber Scientific Changes Its Name

SOUTH WINDSOR - The Gerber Scientific Instrument Co. has announced that it received approval from its shareholders to change the name of the company to Gerber Scientific Inc.

"The firm's board of directors recommended that the firm change its corporate name because it was believed that the new corporate name is in keeping with the internal restructuring of the company's current principal activities," said H. Joseph Gerber, president.

The company recently transferred all of its operating assets to a wholly-owned subsidiary, as approved by shareholders at its annual meeting a year ago. The subsidiary, to adopt the company's old name, the Gerber Scientific Instrument Co., will continue to develop, manufacture, sell and service computer controlled drafting equipment, Interactive Design Systems and other products acquired from the parent company.

Gerber Scientific Inc. will thereafter own real estate and stock in its subsidiaries and will perform financial, general management and other services for its subsidiaries.

Distributor Named

EAST HARTFORD - Pet Switchboard, a nationwide emergency toll-free communications service for lost, stolen, and injured animals, has appointed Joseph LaPre as an independent distributor for its service in the Hartford area. La Pre will handle retail and fund-raising sales for the company in Hartford and surrounding areas.

La Pre will be working with individuals and civic groups in registering and registering for a license registration fee. Upon registration, each animal is issued a Pet Switchboard tag which states that the owner of the animal can be reached at no charge and at any time of the day or night, through the toll-free numbers listed, from anywhere in the United States.

Pet Switchboard will register more than a quarter million animals this year in an effort to help animal lovers cope with the growing problem of lost and injured animals. La Pre is located at 51 Pershing St., East Hartford, telephone 568-8635.

Banking Graduate

VERNON - Michael R. Tomaneli has graduated from the Vern National Installment Credit School sponsored by the Installment Lending Division of the American Bankers Association.

Tomaneli, assistant vice president of Vernon National Bank, was one of the 275 bank officers to graduate from the two-week, resident session at the University of Oklahoma. The school utilized lectures, case work and seminar discussions to educate new and experienced bank employees in consumer lending. The faculty comprised banking officials, businessmen, attorneys, government officials and academicians.

Chaired Convention

Robert P. Lynch, president of First Federal Savings and Loan of East Hartford, and president of the $3.6 billion Savings and Loan League of Connecticut, was the featured speaker at the annual convention in Florida recently. The Savings and Loan League of Connecticut is composed of 38 member associations throughout the state.

Promoted at Aetna

HARTFORD - Richard A. Bolin of Manchester is being promoted to director, pension operations, in the life division of Aetna Life & Casualty.

A graduate of the University of Vermont, he joined the company in 1961 as an underwriter trainee. He became director of administration and personnel at the office. He is a member of the Scottish Rite Bodies of Connecticut, Sphinx Temple and Manchester Lodge of Masons. He resides at 80 Carpenter Road.

Software Manager

BRISTOL - Karl W. D. Seifert has been promoted to software manager of Management Information Services at Associated Spring - Barnes Group Inc.

In his position, he will be responsible for all software functions in both the minicomputer and maxicomputer operations. Seifert joined Barnes Group in September 1977 as software specialist. He had been software consultant for four years at General Digital Corp., and had served in several positions at Aetna Life and Casualty during the previous years. He also was a lecturer at Central Connecticut State College in the department of mathematics, computer science.

Seifert holds a bachelor's degree in mathematics from Washington and Jefferson College, and a master's degree in computer science from Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute. He also has a diploma in broadcast engineering from the Cleveland Institute of Electronics. He is married and lives in Manchester.

Business Meeting

STORRS - One of the largest concentrations of corporate buying ever assembled in Connecticut will participate in a two-day conference titled "Business Opportunity '78" this month at the University of Connecticut.

Top purchasing officers from 20 major firms are scheduled to explain what they buy, who does their buying and how medium and smaller businesses can sell their products and services to the giants.

The conference will begin at 8:30 a.m. Oct. 24 at the UConn Bishop Conning Education Center here in the two-day gathering for representatives of business firms of all sizes is sponsored jointly by the UConn Office of Conferences, Institutes and Administrative Services, U.S. Rep. Christopher J. Dodd and the Smaller Business Association of New England.

Registration and fee information may be obtained from David Kinsman, Office of Conferences, Institutes and Administrative Services, Box US-6, University of Connecticut, Storrs, Conn. 06268, telephone 686-8531.

Itek Gets Contract

LEXINGTON, Mass. (UPI) - The Air Force has awarded a $6 million contract for production of radar warning equipment to the Applied Technology Division of Itek Corp., the company said Tuesday.

Fire Prevention Week Oct. 8-14

STOP THEM BEFORE THEY START

PLAY IT SAFE

FIRE PREVENTION WEEK OCT. 8-14

Practice prevention and make it a daily routine. Fire related tragedies can be avoided when you are alerted to the possible hazards. In the home: Keep stoves and furnaces in good working order. Check electrical wiring regularly. Do not smoke in bed. Outside: Keep storage areas free from clutter...gasoline and other "flamables" properly contained and handled with caution. Remember: Prevention is Protection. Avoid the grave consequences.
