Land purchase tabled by EDC

By GREG PEARSON
Herald Reporter

The Manchester Economic Development Commission this morning voted to table action on the purchase of the remaining land in the town's proposed industrial park until a letter of commitment is received from the J.C. Penney Co. and reviewed.

J.C. Penney, which plans to locate a huge catalog distribution center in Manchester, would be the major tenant in the proposed 363-acre park. The firm already has indicated that it plans to purchase its 162-acre parcel in the park.

The letter of commitment, expected for today's meeting, was delayed because of illness. Town Manager Robert Weiss said. Alan Lamson, town planner, said that he was told the letter will be signed and mailed today.

Commission members decided not

Few support farm strike

United Press International

Striking farmers beginning the fourth week of their national boycott have mustered only non-committal support from supermarkets and food distribution centers, who offer encouragement, but refuse to shut down in sympathy.

Leaders of American Agriculture, the group heading the strike, today prepared for a Friday meeting in Omaha, Neb., where farmers will present demands to Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland. Little hope was held for the federal government to yield to the farmers' demands for break-even prices on their products.

American Agriculture farmers in Colorado were promised support by two supermarket chains and a meat wholesaler, but won no sympathy shutdowns.

Two farmers were arrested in a scuffle with police Wednesday during a demonstration in which striking farmers blocked entrances to Safeway Stores Inc.'s regional distribution center in Denver. The farmers later were released when they agreed to move their tractors.

Farmers encircled the center with 200 tractors when Safeway officials refused to close the center. The officials offered to place advertisements in newspapers saying they were "sympathetic" with farmers' concerns, and would allow the American Agriculture movement to distribute petitions in Safeway stores.

The farmers, who drove tractors and pickup trucks from Colorado, Wyoming and Nebraska to the center, halted food deliveries to a five-state area for only about five hours Wednesday.

Gasoline misuse probed by feds

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The apparently widespread practice of illegally filling cars with leaded gasoline when they require unleaded fuel is the target of an Environmental Protection Agency crackdown.

EPA officials say the lower cost of leaded gasoline appears to be the reason car owners have enlarged gas tank openings on vehicles designed for unleaded fuel. Once gas tank openings are enlarged, the cars can accept the larger nozzles of pumps delivering cheaper, leaded gasoline.

The practice has become so popular that Exxon is now including warnings in credit-card billing notices. Surveys in eight states showed about 10 percent of the cars required to use unleaded gasoline actually were being refueled with leaded gasoline, officials said.

Cars built during or after 1975 have catalytic converter anti-pollution devices that by law must burn only unleaded gas.

Just two tanks of leaded gasoline in a car with a catalytic converter can wreck the anti-pollution device and add to air pollution, EPA officials say.

"We are concerned that some drivers are asking gasoline station operators to put leaded gas in their cars, which require unleaded fuel," says Marvin Durning, the EPA's deputy chief of enforcement.

to purchase the park's remaining property until the letter is received and reviewed by town counsel. Thus, the EDC probably will conduct a special meeting next week to consider the matter.

"The town might get a letter that would be satisfactory to the town counsel but not satisfactory to me," John DeQuattro, a commission member, said.

Some of the remaining park property is owned by the Hartford Electric Light Co. Much of it, about 190 acres, is owned by private owners and is expected to be purchased through condemnation procedures. Weiss said that the town's appraisers value on the 190 privately owned acres at $1,136,850, a figure that can be expected to rise during condemnation proceedings.

The commission also voted to table another proposed expenditure that it viewed rather skeptically.

Weiss said that the town has agreed to pay $59,000 to L.B. Haas, a firm that had rented 41 acres within the park and 29 acres outside the park for tobacco growing.

A similar agreement was made last year with the Hartman Tobacco Co., which owns land in the park area.

Commission members, however, said that they did not recall the Haas firm being mentioned before as one that the town would have to negotiate with.

"If this has been in the works since last June, why didn't someone like the land acquisition subcommittee know about it," Jack Hunter, a commission member, said.

Weiss said that when the agreement was reached with Hartman, he had mentioned that other tobacco growers also might have to be considered.

Commission members also wondered if the town would have to pay any settlement to the firm since it is a renter and does not own the land. One town official involved in the park project said after this morning's meeting that he did not think such restitution was necessary for a renter.

The commission did approve a $30,000 addition to the engineering contract of Fuss & O'Neill to begin engineering work for renovations to Tolland Turnpike. The project will start June 1 and should be completed by mid-October. It should cost $400,000, Walter Fuss said.

Town officials assured Lawrence Noone, a resident of Burnham Street, that Burnham Street would be closed off by construction traffic as soon as work on a road within the industrial park is finished. Charts provided by Fuss had shown a two-month gap in between the two steps.

Sadat says he may end PLO support

ASWAN, Egypt (UPI) — President Anwar Sadat, in a major policy shift, says he would support Jordan's King Hussein as leader of the Palestinians rather than Yasser Arafat's Palestine Liberation Organization.

Sadat said Wednesday after meeting President Carter for 45 minutes that "for sure" he would support Hussein, abandoning his longtime support for the PLO as the sole representative of the Palestinians.

The Syrians and PLO immediately assailed Sadat's parley with Carter as a new step in the "sellout" of the Palestinians. The PLO said in a statement in Beirut that Sadat had "offered up the Palestinian card" to Carter.

Sadat is pressing for the creation of a Palestinian homeland on the West Bank of Jordan and the Gaza Strip, which Israel captured in 1967 Middle East War. In an attempt to ease Israeli fears, he is proposing that such a homeland be under Jordanian control at least for the time being.

Interviewed following Carter's departure, Sadat was asked if the peace-making process would be facilitated if the Palestinians threw their weight behind Hussein instead of Arafat.

"For sure, yes, for sure," Sadat replied. "The PLO has shown real irresponsibility in the last few weeks especially after my visit to Jerusalem. Well, if the Palestinians choose King Hussein, I shall agree."

The Jordanian monarch and the shah of Iran will visit Egypt next week for consultations with Sadat. Hussein is not eager to assume responsibility for the Palestinians he drove out of Jordan in a bloody civil war in 1970.

Carter said the parties involved in the Middle East conflict "must recognize the legitimate rights of the Palestinian people and enable the Palestinians to participate in the determination of their future."

In Jerusalem, Israeli Prime Minister Begin said he was glad Carter had not used the term "Palestinian state" after meeting Sadat but warned Israel would never agree to Sadat's request that Israel accept the right of Palestinians to "self-determination."

"We don't beat around the bush," he said. "The term self-determination means a Palestinian state, and we will not agree to such a mortal danger to Israel."

Israel is concerned that a Palestinian entity, whether linked to Jordan or independent, would be used by Moscow and Arab radicals as a "springboard for aggression" against the Jewish state.

The next step in the Middle East peace effort comes Jan. 15 with the meeting of two Egyptian-Israeli committees, one on political issues in Jerusalem and the other on military questions in Cairo.

District vote allows sewers

By SUSAN VAUGHN
Herald Reporter

Voters of the Eighth Utilities District Wednesday night agreed to allow the town to construct two sections of sanitary sewers within the district boundaries.

Between 50 and 60 district residents gathered for the meeting at the district firehouse on the agreement which the town and district have been negotiating for about six months.

Jay Giles, public works director for the town and also a district resident, answered questions and spoke in favor of the new sewer lines for which the town will receive a large federal grant. He said the sewers will be a great benefit to all residents of the town, particularly in regard to the new industrial park.

The new sewer sections will be along Tolland Turnpike and along New State Road and Adams Street into the town's new industrial park in the Buckland section.

A townwide referendum in November authorized the town to borrow up to $1,286,000 for the state and federal share of the projects, which will be reimbursable.

The town's share for both projects will be about $380,000 plus easements on the sewer projects.

The agreements include provisions for allowing residents and the district to tie into the new lines, John LaBelle Jr., moderator for the meeting, said.

There was only one dissenting vote on the industrial park sewer line.

Gordon Lassow, president of the district, said after the vote that it indicated the district is supporting J.C. Penney's plans to build in Manchester and that the district has no intentions of holding up the project.

Carter visits Omaha Beach

OMAHA BEACH, Normandy, France (UPI) — President Carter paid an emotion-filled pilgrimage today to Omaha Beach where American forces landed and died on D-Day — June 6, 1944 — and pledged that their sons would keep Europe free.

In a speech at the cemetery overlooking Omaha Beach, where 9,386 American crosses and Stars of David stand row on row, Carter said, "We are determined with our noble allies here that Europe's freedom will never be endangered again."

"We now have 200,000 fighting men in Europe to make sure that this threat is never before us again," he said.

Carter and French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing flew in separate helicopters from Paris to Normandy where the muffled beat of drums they laid almost identical wreaths at the bronze monument marking the site of the World War II invasion of Europe, the longest day of World War II.

Giscard, recalling the American Expeditionary Force of 1918 and the Normandy invasion of the second world war, said solemnly: "All this France remembers..."

Men, women and children gave Carter a wild welcome at every turn, waving the Stars and Stripes and the French tricolor and shouting "Jimmee! Jimmee!"

Later, in a short talk on the steps of the town hall at Bayeux, the centuries old city that was the first to be liberated by Allied troops in World War II, Carter, obviously moved, said, "Your warm welcome has lifted my heart."

He raised both arms and shouted, "Vive la France!"

Carter was the first incumbent American president to visit the Normandy battlefields and cemetery. Looking tired on the eighth day of his nine-day, seven-nation tour, he paid tribute to the American allies and their leaders in that tremendous day then recalled some of that fighting.

Thousands of people — American and French veterans and men, women and children from the surrounding villages — waved French and American flags and shouted "Jimmee, Jimmee" as Carter and his wife Rosalynn landed by U.S. Air Force helicopter.

Today's news summary

BATTLE CREEK, Mich. (UPI) — Instead of getting out of prison where he has been serving time on a forgery charge, Lionel Williams, 21, faces charges of murdering actor Sal Mineo in February 1976 on a complaint filed by Los Angeles County Sheriff Peter Pitchess.

An extradition hearing was set for today in Marshall, Mich., for Williams, who was due to leave prison in four days. Pitchess said Williams had been a suspect in the Mineo slaying since last April.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Unconfirmed reports by privately owned newspapers or broadcast outlets in Guatemala, Honduras and El Salvador say that 19 members of the West German Red Army Faction, better known as the Baader-Meinhof gang are in the Western Hemisphere. Efforts to obtain some kind of confirmation of the terrorists' presence by official Washington sources have been fruitless. But in a Guatemalan radio network broadcast Dec. 30, Interior

Minister Donaldo Alvarez Ruiz was quoted as saying, "The group is secretly meeting in Guatemala to prepare an international action plan."

PANAMA CITY, Panama (UPI) — Senate Republican leader Howard Baker, along with fellow GOP Sens. Jake Garn of Utah and John Chafee of Rhode Island, is in Panama to get firsthand impressions of the new Panama Canal treaties. "What I think is that the treaties, as they are presently written, and without amendment or change, have no chance to pass in the Senate," the Tennessee senator told a news conference afterward. Many opponents of the treaties are worried that the neutrality treaty does not specifically give the United States the right to intervene.

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Patricia Hearst, rebuffed Wednesday for the second time by an appeals court, will ask the U.S.

Supreme Court to reverse her bank robbery conviction.

Her attorney said that he has prepared a writ of certiorari asking the court to consider her case and will file it soon. He also said he has prepared Miss Hearst's appeal.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States has intervened forcefully in the world money market for the first time in nearly a decade to try to curb speculation that threatened serious consequences for Americans — including higher food and fuel prices.

The dollar had been hovering at record lows on international money markets for weeks, with speculators selling dollars to buy into currencies of other nations. The Treasury Department and the Federal Reserve Board said Wednesday they would buy American dollars "to check speculation and re-establish order in the foreign exchange markets."

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The most cherished symbol of Hungarian nationhood — the 1,000-year-old crown of St. Stephen — was en route to Budapest today after 32 years in American custody.

The crown, accompanied by a delegation of 25 Americans, including members of Congress and Secretary of State Cyrus Vance, was scheduled to arrive in Hungary tonight following a secrecy-shrouded departure from Andrews Air Force base dawn.

LONDON (UPI) — The assassination of the Palestine Liberation Organization's representative in Britain has triggered a PLO vow to avenge the slaying and "hold Britain responsible" until the killer is caught.

The shooting of Sted Hammami Wednesday in his basement office at the Arab League building came three days after two Syrian diplomats died in a bomb blast in the same neighborhood.

Piping oil to Texas

A plan by the Standard Oil Co. of Ohio to pipe Alaskan oil from Los Angeles to Texas is getting a sympathetic reception in Washington.

But what's needed now is a more receptive attitude toward the project in the state of California.

Both the Interior Department and the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission have approved a proposal by Sohio to pump Alaskan crude from Los Angeles to Midland, Texas, in a pipeline formerly used for natural gas.

The oil, which arrives in California by tanker, would be piped first to Texas and then to refineries in the South and Midwest.

The hitch so far has been the California Air Resources board, which is asking Sohio to finance expensive clean-air measures in the Los Angeles area before berthing its tankers there.

It's important that an agreement be worked out promptly, not only because California already has more oil than it needs, but because the alternative — shipping Alaskan oil through the Panama Canal to the Gulf Coast — is costly and inefficient.

In the latter case, the consumer will pay more than he should for the fuel he buys.

Remodeling and (in some places) extending the pipeline to Texas will take almost two years. The sooner the work begins, the better for states where American-produced oil is in short supply.

Why is it nobody ever finds anything wrong with liver and spinach?

Today's thought

At evening when the soul of day
On wings of splendor soars away,
When glory covers all the west,
And beauty touches earth with rest,
Prepare my inmost heart, O Lord
To catch thy ever-living word.

When swiftly sinks the reddening sun
And daytime's busy work is done;
When shadows spread and softly fall,
While evening hush is over all,
Then grant thy peace, O Lord, to me
Like twilight calm by Galilee.
And when the splendor fades away,
While gently close the gates of day,
Be thou, O Lord, in mercy near
And cause thy glory to appear:
Thy living truth to me impart
Like living bells within the heart.

An enjoyable evening

It is obvious from all the comments received that every one had a very enjoyable evening at the New Year's Eve Party held at the Lottie Flak building at Henry Park.

The evening got under way at about 8 with dancing and at about 9 a very delicious buffet catered by Mr. G's Catering Service was enjoyed with plenty to eat for everyone.

Then again more dancing, also during the evening a good number of door prizes were awarded.

At about 11 Mayor McCoy and his wife, who had a very busy evening, stopped by to wish everyone a Very Happy New Year.

Hats, horns and streamers were given out during the evening and it was a very wonderful occasion at midnight with every one wishing each other a Happy New Year.

The party ended shortly after 1 a.m. with every one saying that they had enjoyed a very wonderful evening.

Buyer gets little protection

By ANDREW TULLY
WASHINGTON — As I understand what a dispatch described as a "spokesperson" for General Motors, a fuel hose leak in a GM car is no more dangerous than getting out of bed in the morning.

GM, for those who were out to lunch, is recalling 133,000 Cadillacs built since 1975 to correct fuel hose leaks which have caused "at least" 100 engine fires. But GM's flick claimed "the danger is minimal."

The "spokesperson" went on to explain that "There's plenty of time to stop the car and get out. The driver might smell smoke or gasoline. If he does, he should just pull over to the side of the road and get out. And then, if there is a fire under the hood, he should not try to open the hood."

Well now. How much is "plenty of time." Suppose by the time the driver smells smoke or gasoline his bareless carriage is about to burst into flames? If for one don't fool about sniffing for dangerous fumes because driving in Washington requires the concentration of a guy defusing a bomb. And on the average freeway or super highway, pulling over to the side of the road is performed at the risk of being catapulted into the next county by the speed demons behind you.

As for opening the hood, that is not an easy chore to accomplish while running for your life. I need no warning from GM not to meddle with any vehicle with four wheels and a gasoline engine.

Indeed, it would seem that the modern automobile has become a dangerous possession that must be approached as one would extend a patting hand to a tiger. A few years back, for example, a federal consumer bulletin warned owners of eight million Chevrolets produced from 1965 through 1968 that there was a "potential" risk involved in the high incidence of broken engine mounts. When a mount breaks, there is a twisting effect that causes the car to go out of control.

An official communique from GM was hurried into print stating in effect that owners of those eight million Chevrolets need not worry about dying a sudden death if their driving skills qualified them for competing in the Indianapolis "500."

"A person driving a car should be a skilled driver," said the communique. "And if he can't manage a car at under 25 miles an hour he shouldn't be driving."

Let us not go into the circumstances that there are drivers on the highways who couldn't handle an ox cart at two miles per hour. I have encountered people whose cars I would decline to enter with the engine idling. In fact, serious accidents usually happen at speeds far in excess of 25 miles per hour, and at such speeds a broken engine mount or smelly engine beckons instant tragedy.

In rejecting the suggestion that the eight million Chevis be recalled, GM's explanation was that a broken engine mount's results were "no different than having a flat tire or a blowout when you don't expect it." Possibly, but while a manufacturer presumably is powerless to prevent blowouts, he ruddy well can see to it that there are no defects that could cause a broken engine mount or a leaky fuel hose.

At any rate, the buyer gets little protection when he acquires anything these days. Just the other day, GM agreed to pay out $200 each to about 128,000 people who bought 1977 models of Oldsmobile, Buick or Pontiac cars equipped, without notice to the buyer, with Chevrolet V-8 engines. But it took six months of negotiations with attorneys general of 44 states before GM settled.

Mostly, we have only ourselves to blame. A friend bought a Mercedes Benz a few months ago and found that the manufacturer guaranteed the safety of the car's bumpers. It seemed the front bumpers were capable of withstanding a crash into a barrier at 5 miles an hour and the rear bumper could absorb such test crashes at 2 1/2 miles per hour.

Bar resists court ruling

By MARTHA ANGLE and ROBERT WALTERS
WASHINGTON — (NEA) — Some folks can't seem to take a hint — even when it comes, relatively unvarnished, straight from the Supreme Court.

Consider, for example, the response of the organized bar to the high court's ruling last June that the traditional prohibition against advertising is an unconstitutional abridgment of free speech.

To put it mildly, state bar associations across the country have been less than enthusiastic about reforming their rules to comply with the court's decision, which left open the precise scope of a lawyer's freedom to advertise.

Most of them are taking their lead from the American Bar Association, which is dominated by traditionalists determined to yield as little ground as possible to Madison Avenue.

At its annual meeting in Chicago last summer, the ABA debated two sharply conflicting proposals for new guidelines on lawyer advertising.

And a 1976 analysis by a University of Arizona professor established a similar pricing pattern for prescription drugs.

Sooner or later, most Americans need the services of a lawyer — to buy a house, write a will, obtain a divorce, etc. Without relatively unfettered advertising, it is difficult to compare the fees and qualifications of attorneys.

Over the past few years, the Supreme Court has been steadily expanding the list of professions which must permit advertising of services and fees. The handwriting on the wall is pretty clear, and lawyers — more than most — should be able to interpret it. The trend is toward freer commercial expression, and all the foot-dragging in the world by the organized bar isn't going to halt that development.

But advocates of less restrictive standards have a powerful ally in the Justice Department's antitrust division, which strongly supports advertising by nearly all professionals as a means of promoting greater competition.

The Maryland rules would permit a lawyer to advertise only his "maximum fee" for a specific service, rather than the "range of fees" suggested in the ABA guidelines.

The New York rules, according to Shenefield, are so narrow they "would appear to prohibit the very advertisement which the Supreme Alpha Zeta is a national fraternity for students of agriculture who have outstanding records in their college work. Two Manchester girls have achieved this distinction at the University of Connecticut.

Both have majored in horticulture and both hope for professional careers in landscape design. Stephanie Fuss of Timrod Road is ready now for employment in her chosen field when she can find a job. Stephanie completed her college program at the semester break in December but will wait until May, when other seniors have finished their work, to wear a cap and gown, walk in an academic procession and receive her diploma.

Stephanie, in the meantime, is doing office work for her father, Walter Fuss of Fuss and O'Neill, engineers. She has earned part of her college expenses by working during vacations for this company.

Marion Zeiner, the wife of Robert Zeiner and mother of two little girls, is a junior at the university and commutes from her home on Earl Street. She takes only such courses as fit into the family schedule. She leaves for Storrs after Sally, 8, and Abby, 6, have left for the Bowers School and gets home when they do at 3:30.

Marion's college program has been "mixed up," she says. As Marion Borawski of East Hartford, she completed one year of college study at Northeastern University in Boston. She was a journalism major and in Northeastern's cooperative program she worked six months at The Hartford Courant, reading copy and writing headlines for the state desk.

Marriage and children
She transferred then to the University of Connecticut for one semester. Then she took time to be married and have two children. When they were of pre-school age, Marion took courses on a part-time basis at Manchester Community College. In the fall of 1976 she went back to the University of Connecticut as a commuter, going to classes only when the children were in school. She expects to finish her college work in the fall semester of this year.

Marion says she first became interested in plants as founding member of the Down to Earth Garden Club of South Windsor. She worked at the Hartford Civic Center flower show two years ago, setting up exhibits, caring for the plants and then taking the exhibits down.

At the Zeiner home every window is filled with house plants. A few of them form the background for the picture of the two girls, an Arec palm, a rubber plant and a Boston fern.

Marion has an internship, starting this month, with a firm called Our Growing Concern that takes contracts for supplying plants and then caring for them in such public places as shopping malls and doctors' offices. She will work three days a week, part time. The university will give her college credit, but perhaps not very much. After graduation, Marion thinks this is the kind of work she could continue while her children are still growing.

While Stephanie would like to find work now with a firm in landscape design, she is considering further training and has asked about courses in landscape architecture at the University of Massachusetts, Cornell and Harvard. The program at any of these colleges would lead to an advanced degree in landscape planning, and she thinks in terms of outdoor planning, the selection and placement of trees, shrubs, lawns and gardens around a home or a public building. Marion's choice is indoor plants.

Women 'ag' students
Since these girls have been at the University of Connecticut they have seen tremendous growth in the enrollment of students in the College of Agriculture and Natural Resources. They, themselves, have been part of a spectacular increase in women students.

Dr. E.J. Kersting, dean of the agricultural college, said women now outnumber men in the proportion of about 55 to 45.

While many women study plant science, many others are interested in animal science. Some are taking courses in pre-veterinary medicine. Many elect studies in the field of natural resources, including conservation.

Dr. Kersting said that Alpha Zeta is an old fraternity, organized in Ohio about the turn of the century and long restricted to male students. The make-up of Alpha Zeta at UConn now follows the pattern of the student body, he thinks, with more than half of the members women.

Elvis birthday
MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — Less than five months after his sudden death, rock 'n' roll star Elvis Presley will be commemorated Sunday on the anniversary of his 43rd birthday. Thousands of fans are expected to flock to Memphis for film festivals, Presley impersonations, and souvenir extravaganzas marking the birth of the shagbark's son Jan. 8, 1935.

Popular culture next topic of Courses by Newspaper

The many voices, images and impacts of modern popular culture are the subject of Courses by Newspaper's spring series that will be published weekly beginning Jan. 21 in The Herald. Publisher Raymond Robinson announced today.

Entitled "Popular Culture: Mirror of American Life," the 15-part series looks at the ways popular culture both reflects and shapes social change, the mass media, entertainment, and life-styles.

Coordinator of the series is David Manning White, professor of mass communications at Virginia Commonwealth University and one of the first scholars to study and focus academic attention on this subject.

Topics include popular culture as big business and arbiter of change, the themes of popular culture that recur in movies, music, sports, and politics, and the heritage and future of today's popular culture.

Authors are Herbert Gans, professor of sociology, Columbia University; George Gerbner, dean, Annenberg School of Communications, University of Pennsylvania; Ray Browne, director, Center for Popular Culture, Bowling Green State University (Ohio); Robert Sklar, professor of cinema and chairman of the Department of Cinema Studies, New York University; Nat Hentoff, staff writer for The New Yorker and columnist for The Village Voice; and Robert Lipsyte, columnist for the New York Post.

Other authors include Andrew Hacker, professor of government, Queens College, City University of New York; Nathan I. Huggins, professor of history, Columbia University; Betty Friedan, founder of the National Organization for Women (NOW); Bennett Berger, professor of sociology, University of California, San Diego; and Alvin Toffler, futurist and author of Future Shock and The Culture Consumers.

Civics groups, service clubs, unions, religious and youth organizations and local libraries are encouraged to form their own discussion groups based on the Courses by Newspaper series.

Manchester Community College will offer a three-credit course based on the newspaper series. For additional information, contact MCC's Community Services Division, telephone 646-2137.

Courses by Newspaper was developed in 1973 by University Extension, University of California, San Diego, and is funded by the National Endowment for the Humanities.

This spring series, "Popular Culture: Mirror of American Life," is the eighth in a continuing series of timely educational features prepared by Courses by Newspaper.

Grasso says she'll seek cut in state sales taxes

HARTFORD (UPI) — Gov. Ella T. Grasso has for the first time hinted she will push for a cut in the Connecticut sales tax which takes seven cents from every resident for almost every dollar spent.

She related to say how much she might ask the Legislature to cut the sales tax, but said a 1 percent cut is "unlikely."

It is already clear tax cuts will be a major issue during the Legislature's 1978 session. Connecticut Senate Majority Leader Joseph Lieberman, D-New Haven, last week said the state should cut the sales tax from its present 7 percent to 6.5 percent.

And Sen. Michael L. Morano, R-Greenwich, Wednesday renewed the call for elimination of the tax on dividends.

On Tuesday, Comptroller Edward Caldwell predicted the state may have as much as $63 million left over June 31 when the current fiscal year ends. In December, the Legislature's Finance Committee predicted a $100 million surplus.

Sen. Robert Houley, D-Somers, a co-chairman of the Legislature's powerful Appropriations Committee, said cutting the sales tax only to 6.5 percent would be a "frivolous cut."

Mrs. Grasso, at a Capitol news conference Wednesday, said, "I can remember when a one-half percent raise in the sales tax was not considered frivolous."

She also said she will ask her aides to start studying whether to ask for an increase in the state's share of Connecticut legal gambling profits.

She did not give any other hints about what her budget message to the Legislature will contain. The Legislature convenes Feb. 8.

"We are looking at the projected revenues as well as projected expenditures so we can provide essential services, some increased services and hope for some modest tax cuts," she said.

"All of the figures are tied together. I would hope a sales tax cut would not preclude elimination of the tax on new business machinery," she said.

Mrs. Grasso earlier said the total budget request for all state agencies and departments totaled $2,055 billion and said she had ordered cuts in that total.

"We're still looking to make some reductions," she said. "The figures are still not available to me. We are studying the budget at this time."

She met with several state department heads and commissioners Wednesday to go over their budget requests.

Convicts charged in kidnap, rape

HARTFORD (UPI) — Two convicted murderers have been charged with kidnaping and sexually attacking two 15-year-old girls.

Superior Court arrest warrants were obtained Wednesday against Danny J. Dean, 31, and James Downey, 31, both of Middletown.

A state police spokesman said Downey and Dean, serving life terms for murder, were trustees who had received periodic furloughs from the Cheshire Correctional Center.

The Health Letter number 84, Fatigue: Feeling Tired and Heavy. Others who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of The Manchester Evening Herald, P.O. Box 326, San Antonio, Texas, 78292.

You can be sick and discouraged as a result of your illness, which can be a factor in fatigue. If your brother's emphysema is far advanced then he has ample reason to be fatigued. The key to improved energy is in how well he responds to treatment and how much, if any, his oxygen supply can be increased. Emphysema is a bad disease and it is almost always related to cigarette smoking. Avoiding such a disease is sufficient reason to never smoke or to stop smoking if you have the habit.

Citizen unit starts work on grant spending plans

The Citizens Advisory Committee met Wednesday night to prepare for the next six weeks, when the committee will decide how to divide the Town of Manchester's $404,000 community development block grant.

Alan Mason, community development coordinator, talked about some possible uses of the federal money and what the committee can expect during the six weeks—a period that will include discussion about storm drainage, housing rehabilitation and possibly even a zone change.

The plan for spending the community development funds has to be approved by the Town Board of Directors by Feb. 22, Mason said.

"Target neighbors" for this year's funding are those within the rectangular area bordered by Spruce, East, Center, West Center streets, and Campbell and Hartford roads, he said.

The downtown Main Street area is one of particular interest, according to Mason.

"We're concentrating on it because we hear from people in the community that's where we ought to be concentrating," he said.

Mason spoke of several possible changes and improvements that might be considered in the area.

He suggests that the committee might consider applying for a zone change for the area between Spruce and Main streets. The section is primarily in business zones, and a change to residential zoning might be considered, Mason said.

He also said that further storm drainage improvements to the Dry Brook area, which runs east of Main Street, might be considered. One possible approach to the drainage problem would be to build a large underground detention pond at the Purnell Place parking lot.

The pond could hold water temporarily during wet periods. It also could be paved over and an improved parking lot could be built, he said.

The idea was proposed by Jay Giles, director of public works, but the cost and feasibility of the suggestion has not yet been determined.

Another idea for community development fund uses on Main Street is a new senior citizens center. "The present senior center is a disaster in terms of mobility for the elderly," Mason said.

Two representatives of the Greater Manchester Chamber of Commerce spoke at the housing rehabilitation appeals committee. Residents who are interested in the program but do not quite meet its specifications may appear to this committee.

The Citizens Advisory Committee will meet again Wednesday at 7 p.m. The site has not yet been determined.

Water supply topic for directors, MDC

Members of the Manchester Board of Directors will meet tonight with representatives of the Metropolitan District Commission to discuss the future use of the commission as a supplier of town water.

The use of MDC water was included in four of 11 alternatives in a report from Weston & Sampson, a Boston engineering firm that studied possible water treatment improvements in Manchester.

The report did not recommend the use of any of the steps a Water Study Committee appointed by the directors also rejected by the use of MDC water by the town.

The committee recommended that a water treatment plant be located in the Globe Hollow area. Three sites—one at the Globe Hollow swimming pool, one north of Spring Street and one on Fern Street—are being considered and will be subject to an engineering study.

Members of the committee are expected to be present tonight. The meeting will start at 7:30 in the Hearing Room.

Despite the rejection of the proposal by the Water Study Committee, members of the Board of Directors felt that they should meet with MDC representatives to discuss the alternative proposals.

The directors said that in an issue as important and expensive as this, the board should cover all possible bases.

Manchester police report

Michael A. Smith, 22, of Rockville was arrested early today on charges of reckless endangerment and carrying a weapon without a permit in connection with an incident behind the Brass Hammer Cafe on Charter Oak Street.

Two police officers saw Smith leave the cafe and approach a car and draw a handgun. Police said he was running after a woman who got into the car and left. Smith was held overnight at police headquarters for presentation in court today on the charges.

Also held for court today after an arrest Wednesday night was Arthur E. Ashwell Jr., 24, of 456 Main St. He was charged with operating a motor vehicle while license is suspended and carrying a weapon in a motor vehicle. Police said the weapon was a seven-inch-long knife.

Darryl G. Hanson, 17, of 6 Lafayette Ave., East Hartford, was arrested on a warrant Wednesday charging him with three counts of third-degree larceny, criminal attempt at third-degree larceny and tampering with a motor vehicle. Police said the charges were in connection with thefts and attempted thefts from motor vehicles on Highwood Drive, Tolland Turnpike and Ambassador Drive in #500-December. He was released on $500 bond for court Jan. 18.

Also arrested on a warrant Wednesday was Carl W. Emt, 17, of Hebron, charged with second-degree larceny in connection with the theft of a car in September. He was released on $500 bond for court Jan. 23.

Alexander O. Davignon, 33, of East Hartford was charged with reckless driving. Court date is Jan. 24.

Police made 19 motor vehicle arrests Wednesday, six of which were for speeding.

Bolton barn burns

A barn on the property of Raymond Ostlund, French Road, Bolton, was damaged by fire this morning. Fire officials said it may have started from a wood stove but the cause is still under investigation.

The barn was originally a South Windsor tobacco barn and it was dismantled and brought to the Bolton site.

Assistant Fire Chief James Prouss said the Hebron and Andover departments assisted Bolton at the scene. North Coventry and Columbia departments were on standby.

Prouss said there was a minimal structural damage to the barn. The fire was all out by 10:30 a.m. Prouss said.

Fire Marshal Peter Massolini will conduct the investigation.

Area police report

South Windsor
South Windsor Police are investigating a reported holdup last night at the Gasland station, 540 Sullivan Ave.

Police said the attendant, Michael Secondo, reported shortly before 8 p.m. that he had been robbed by two white males. He said they showed a stick of some sort and demanded the money. Police said the attendant said about $250 was taken.

A South Windsor Police officer on routine patrol last night was checking out a car parked at the drive-in on Sullivan Avenue. The car had Texas plates and a further check revealed that it had been reported stolen from that state late in December.

Police said the driver was Randy C. Pruitt, 21, of Fort Worth, Texas. He was charged with second-degree larceny by possession of a stolen motor vehicle and third-degree larceny by possession of a stolen weapon in the vehicle.

Pruitt was held overnight in lieu of posting a $10,000 bond and was to be presented in court today. Chief John Kervians said Texas authorities have been contacted to see if Pruitt is a fugitive from justice and they were still awaiting word on that.

Vernon
Richard Pagni, of no certain address, was charged Wednesday with disorderly conduct, first-degree criminal trespassing and interfering with a police officer.

Police said Pagni refused to leave a Regan Road apartment when asked to do so and he became disorderly upon arrival of police. He was held at the police station and later released on a $500 nonreturnable bond but returned to the Regan Road residence early this morning and was rearrested. He was held and was to be presented in court in Rockville today.

Russell Green, 17, of 140 Hoffman Road, Ellington, was charged Wednesday with fourth-degree larceny on complaint of the 24-Mart store at Vernon Circle. He is to appear at Common Pleas Court 19, Rockville, Jan. 23.

Larry Gauthier, 18, of 103 Brooklyn St., Rockville, was charged Wednesday with third-degree attempted burglary.

Police said he was arrested on a Common Pleas Court warrant on complaint of the superintendent of the Edgewater Apartments on Brooklyn Street. Gauthier was released on bond for court appearance Jan. 23.

Bolton
Bruce Ladd, 30, of 55 Talcott Ave., was charged Wednesday with first-degree criminal trespassing.

Police said Ladd had previously been warned to stay away from the synagogue on Talcott Avenue. After he was taken into custody he was brought to Rockville General Hospital and later transferred to Norwich State Hospital. No court date was set.

Nancy Harker, 34, of Hartford, was charged Wednesday with second-degree criminal mischief. She was arrested on a Common Pleas Court warrant after a complaint was received from the owner of a Village Street apartment house where Mrs. Harker had previously lived. Police said there was an extreme amount of vandalism inside the apartment.

She was released on a nonreturnable bond for court appearance Jan. 23.

Coventry
John P. Costello, 17, of Route 275, Coventry, was charged Wednesday with third-degree larceny by possession.

Police said the arrest involved an investigation into the theft of items from a motor vehicle. Costello was released on a $200 nonreturnable bond for court appearance in Rockville on Jan. 24.

Vernon audit report has new suggestions

By BARBARA RICHMOND
Herald Reporter

Vernon's audit report, filed Wednesday, reviews recommendations made last year and makes some new ones for the year just reviewed, with directives to immediately inform department heads about them.

Referring to use of a "direct charge" system as opposed to going through the process of using a regular purchase order, the auditors called for an immediate directive to all department heads calling their attention to provisions of the town charter.

The auditors feel using the "direct charge" system permits department heads the unwarranted luxury of deciding to charge purchases to a period other than the proper accounting period.

They said this results in the monthly budget reports being incorrect and makes it virtually impossible to determine the true status of departmental appropriations at any given time.

The auditors recommend that the revenue appropriation ledger be converted to the modified accrual basis immediately.

Referring to recommendations made in previous years, the auditors said one concerning establishing uniform procedures for maintaining financial records of various school activity funds has been followed through the records didn't disclose any significant improvements.

The report states that the finance charter states that the finance officer must record the amount of authorized purchases, and contracts for future purchase encumbrances. Another recommendation made against the appropriation from which they are to be paid.

The auditors said that all department heads should be informed that in the future all invoices must be submitted immediately and will be charged to the budget period during which the goods or services are utilized.

The audit report also recommends an immediate change in the method of keeping the revenues ledger and the appropriations ledger.

They said now the revenue ledger is being maintained on a cash basis and the appropriations ledger on an accrual basis, insofar as posting of purchase orders is concerned, but on the cash basis as concerns posting of direct charges.

They said this results in the monthly budget reports being incorrect and makes it virtually impossible to determine the true status of departmental appropriations at any given time.

have been told that new procedures were being instituted this fiscal year.

The auditors said satisfactory documentation has been assembled for most of the funds.

Also recommended last year was setting up a general ledger for the general fund, capital projects, enterprise and special assessment funds.

The auditors said such a ledger was set up for the general fund but not the others.

Last year the audit report carried a comment that the position bonds on the town collectors and tax collector were too low. During the year the Town Council voted to raise these bonds from $100,000 to $300,000 on the tax collector and from $75,000 to $150,000 on the treasurer.

Another recommendation made last year—that the computer system for the regular selectmen's meeting be reviewed to improve cash flow to the treasurer—did cause improvements, the auditors said. They said this provides additional interest earnings for the town.

The town's debt limit is $66,000,959. This figure is reached by multiplying the annual receipts from taxation by seven. The town's existing debt is $10,245,000.

Stanley Roester, director of administration, said the town would never get anywhere near using up the entire debt limitation amount.

Vying for state title

Susan Makowicz, of Ellington, right rear, and Deborah Gilbert, of Vernon, right front will be participants in the state Junior Miss pageant scheduled for Jan. 22 in Simsbury. Posing with them are Frannie Moties, of Stafford, left rear, and in front of her, Beth Jones of Enfield. The area girls are among 20 contestants who are now rehearsing for the Jan. 22 event in the Simsbury High School auditorium. They will be competing for more than $80,000 in scholarship offers and other awards.

Homemakers ask Bolton to increase allotments

The River East Homemaker Health Aide Service Inc. (formerly the Manchester Homemaker Service Inc.) suggested Bolton increase its annual allotment to that agency.

In a letter to the Board of Selectmen, the agency said its operating expenses to provide service to Bolton residents for the first four months of the fiscal year were more than Bolton's annual allotment to the agency.

The agency said it provided 350 units of service to Bolton residents from July 1 through Oct. 31 at a cost of $2,012. For the same period it charged clients $1,000, leaving a balance of $1,012. The town budgeted $350 for the year.

The agency said it would be happy to meet with the board to discuss the situation. The selectmen referred the problem to the Board of Health and asked that it determine the nature of the problem and recommend a solution.

The Board of Health was also asked to review a health systems plan for the area and send its comments to the selectmen.

The selectmen discussed the skating pond at Herrick Memorial Park. Selectman Joann Neath expressed concern about the condition of the ice, the building being closed and parents having to wait in cars while their children were waiting for a certain train.

Ryba said usually a certain drain at the park is covered and the area is flooded from the skating pond. He said this year someone neglected to cover the drain.

Ryba said he talked with the fire chief and told volunteers from the fire department would spray the pond Wednesday during their regular drill period.

The selectmen plan to contact the Democrat and Republican town committees for names of people interested in filling various positions in the town. There are openings for people to serve on the Economic Development Commission, Civil Defense Advisory Council, Capitol Region Council of Government (CRCOG) Housing Committee, selectmen's representative to various committees within CRCOG and the charter revision committee.

The selectmen will consider some appointments at their Feb. 7 meeting. Anyone who is interested in filling any of the positions is asked to call the selectmen's office, 640-8743.

Selectman Aloysius Ahearn requested and got board approval for a fourth category for the agenda of each regular selectmen's meeting. The category will be for standing committee reports, including but not limited to the first selectmen and road committee.

Ryba was authorized by the board to contact the first selectman in Andover to facilitate the renewal of Bolton's contract for its use of the Andover Disposal Area.

In other business the Board of Selectmen:

- Signed an agreement of understanding with the Tolland County Soil and Water Conservation District for technical assistance at no cost to the town.
- Will request a detailed breakdown from the assessor of all tax exempt land in town.
- Reviewed a budget report for the first half of the fiscal year.
- Approved an $85 appropriation for data processing and $408 for civil preparedness.
- Will discuss the establishment of a charter revision committee at its July meeting.

GOP says Coventry in black for Dems

Former Town Councilman Robert Olmstead told the Coventry Republican Town Committee that the GOP "let the pantry fall" when it lost the municipal elections to the Democrats last fall.

He was referring to a cash surplus of $220,835 turned up in a recent report by town auditor John McGrath of Kirkcaldy, Russell, and McNab of Westerfield. "The pantry was bare when we took over from the Democrats two years ago," Olmstead claimed, "but now the Democrats have plenty of money to spend."

Elizabeth Ryehing, town clerk and treasurer, said the surplus was made up of $105,203 from the fiscal year's operating budget plus any accumulated cash surplus of $115,632 from prior years.

Former Council Chairman Jesse Brainard, who failed in his bid for reelection, agreed with Olmstead. "The council has inherited a comfortable working capital," he stated. "We could have launched road programs, a cemetery commission, and land acquisitions if we had continued," he said in referring to the Republican Party.

Brainard added that the town's bonded indebtedness will also start dropping away next year and will have the effect of a potential drop in taxes. "In the next three years we should be able to meet our obligations with no increase in taxes," he speculated.

Olmstead lashed the Democrats for their lengthy executive sessions since they took over the council by a five-to-two margin. "We didn't go into executive sessions to discuss candidates for boards and commissions," he said, suggesting that this might be a possible infringement of the state's freedom of information laws.

Brainard questioned whether the new council posted notices for subcommittee meetings. The Democrats created three standing committees: Appointments and Liaison (for boards and commission), Finance, and Administration. The town committee voted to send a letter to Council Chairman Jack Myles asking that such meetings be posted so that the public might attend.

Thomas Wells noted that he had been removed as council representative to the Windham Regional Planning Agency and replaced by Democrat Daniel Manley. "You could well see some political moves by this new council," he said.

Olmstead protested the fact that Democratic Town Chairman Richard Cromie is a practicing attorney in town. "He is making recommendations for candidates for boards and commissions." Olmstead charged, "yet he represents plaintiffs against these boards and commissions."

Town Committee Chairman David Larry Knight set Jan. 24 at 8 p.m. as the date for a party caucus to elect 35 members to the town committee for a two-year term. He said all names turned in to him would be placed in nomination and that additional nominations may be made from the floor. Any enrolled Republican is eligible to attend the caucus.

Town Councilman Douglas Whipple reported that he had scheduled Feb. 19 for a Lincoln Day Dinner to raise funds to cover the GOP's $400 campaign deficit. Leonard Giglio is working with him to arrange the affair at St. Mary's Hall.

The Andover Board of Education and the Andover Teacher's Association have signed a two-year contract recently. The teachers organized about two years ago and operated under a contract with the board for the first time.

Under the new contract, the teachers will get a 6 percent increase in salary, have a 14th step on the teacher salary schedule, and ground rules for negotiations for future contracts.

Bolton
The Board of Education will have a special meeting tonight at 8 at the Bolton Center School. The meeting will be an executive session to discuss the board's operation.

The School Advisory Committee Subcommittee II will meet tonight at 7:30 at the Bolton Elementary School. The purpose of the meeting is to compile data from various meetings with area towns.

The Board of Selectmen will have a special meeting Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. at the Community Hall to discuss personnel functions.

South Windsor evaluates position of council clerk

A subcommittee consisting of four South Windsor councilmen will evaluate the position of clerk of the council and report back to the council.

Republican Councilwoman Nancy Catlyn, who asked for the evaluation of the Council Clerk position as well as the position of town attorney, said the costs for the clerk have more than tripled.

Mrs. Winifred Wilson, who holds the job, is paid a yearly salary of $11,000.

The town charter specifies only that the clerk of the council is to take and record minutes of the council meetings, however, Mrs. Wilson's job has expanded greatly over the past few years.

In addition to handling minutes for the meetings, Mrs. Wilson performs routine secretarial jobs including correspondence, purchasing, legal notices, press releases and arranging mayoral appointments.

She is also involved in administrative functions such as preparation of material for public hearings and working with the town manager in preparation of regular council meetings.

Mrs. Wilson said her involvement in that the clerk of the council is to take and record minutes of the council meetings, however, Mrs. Wilson's special projects such as researching and organization of townwits.

Mrs. Catlyn said other townwits of the council are responsible for the selection of a clerk to handle minutes of council meetings or pay a part-time person.

Plainville (population 16,000) uses the town clerk's official staff for the meetings' minutes, with no added cost to the town.

New Milford (population 16,300) hires a stenographer who is paid by the page for meetings with a salary range from $335-$650 per year.

Newington (population 27,600) has a clerk tape the meetings and is paid $100 per month.

Farmington (population 15,900) has the town clerk record minutes. He receives $900 extra for this service.

Republicans Lincoln Street and Joan Cushman, and Democrats Art Champagne and Jackie Smith will evaluate the position and report to the council.

Auditors sought
South Windsor Deputy Mayor Robert J. Myette announced today that the Town Council's committee for the selection of an auditing firm will be meeting over the next two weeks to interview auditing firms interested in doing the annual audit of the General Government and Board of Education. Myette indicated that the committee will review about six or six firms and then submit a recommendation to the Town Council.

The committee's recommendation will be that the firm be appointed for a two-year term, coinciding with that of the Town Council. The deputy mayor is chairman of the committee and has requested that any interested auditing firms contact the council office at the Town Hall, 644-2511, Ext. 12.

Guard cutbacks blamed for escapes at Somers

SOMERS (UPI)—The leader of the guards union at Connecticut's maximum security prison Wednesday defended security officers and blamed lack of help for the Dec. 23 escape of two inmates.

Union president David Rannikko said he won't let any officer become a "scapegoat" for the recent escape of two inmates who were captured two days later in Elizabeth, N.J., after they and a third man, Courtney J. Dow, 37, of Waterbury, Conn., allegedly held up a local bar.

All three have been indicted by a Union County grand jury on robbery charges and remain in the custody of New Jersey authorities.

Rannikko, who said he was speaking for the union's executive board, said, "We're not going to let an officer be a scapegoat for the administration's lack of vision or their authority programs."

David E. Collins, 37, and William E. Finley, 42, both of Hartford, escaped from Somers after sawing their way through steel bars and scaling two 20-foot fences.

Thoughts aplenty

By Len Auster

Range of topics

There are so many areas it's hard to know where to begin. How about Denver's victory over Oakland for the AFC championship? How about the fumble which wasn't a fumble (again) and the weird part is the Broncos deserved to win it? Oakland couldn't stop Denver's ground attack, how could it expect to shut down Dallas?

How about the college bowl games. Notre Dame looked good enough to beat some of the weaker pro teams but that's really unthinkable because of experience. How about Arkansas' upset of Oklahoma? The Razorbacks were 18-point underdogs and won by 25. Michigan, until the end, looked like it shouldn't have been invited to a bowl. And will somebody please tell the bowl committees when they hand out invitations to omit Ohio State. The big bad Buckeyes might beat on the poor eight of the Big Ten, but when they get into the real world, Woody Hayes' lunch is lost.

One of the most entertaining bowls was the Fiesta Bowl where Penn State and Arizona State took turns scoring on each other with Joe Paterno's cast prevailing. And how about poor San Diego State asks Herald political writer Greg Pearson? It had a 10-1 season, beat two clubs invited to post-season games, and was left home with nowhere to go.

On the local front

East Catholic basketball coach Jim Penders reports the paid crowd for the East-Manchester game at the University of Hartford was 800 and total in the house about 1,200, not as previously reported. If that's so, wouldn't it make more sense to play both cage games at 1,800-seat Clark Arena instead of making the long drive? And in the same context, how about both baseball games at East's Eagle Field which is a far better facility than Manchester's Kelley Field as far as viewing is concerned? That would make sense — but why do the logical thing?

People sure have short memories. After the Indians' 19-point loss to East, there were several who were calling for Tribe Coach Doug Pearson's scalp according to an informed source. It's ridiculous when you recall his teams have either won outright or shared the last two CCIL championships. Fans get spoiled

New coach, different style, old problems await Celtics

BOSTON (UPI) — A new coach, a different style and the same old problems await the Boston Celtics tonight when they host the Phoenix Suns at the Hartford Civic Center. The Celtics were to play their first game under quiet Tom "Satch" Sanders, who replaced volatile Tom Heinsohn Tuesday. "Obviously they're not doing their job, they're 11-23," Sanders said of the team. "You can't make any great changes at this stage of the season. The only things that count is game conditions and knowing what works."

"I don't care if it's a new coach or an old coach," said veteran guard Jo Jo White after a fast-paced club practice for five seasons. "Satch is there's no difference. The coach has to be respected by the players."

Cheney, who was a teammate of Sanders' for five seasons. "Satch is there's no difference. The coach has to be respected by the players."

Comeback by Miller on greens

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI) — Johnny Miller, who literally has made a living out of winning the Tucson Open, seems to have his game back together again, and if so, he is the one to beat in the $200,000 event which starts today to launch the 1978 PGA Tour.

Miller hasn't won a tournament since the Bob Hope Desert Classic nearly two years ago after winning 12 times the previous two years.

Tuesday, while playing a practice round on the long but flat Tucson National Golf Course, Miller shot a 6-under-par 66. Wednesday, in the pro-am, he had a 67.

Connors, Vilas paired tonight

NEW YORK (UPI) — "I'm No. 1." So say Jimmy Connors, Guillermo Vilas and Bjorn Borg. And if one of the three wins the $400,000 Masters championship at Madison Square Garden, he will become No. 1 in every world ranking — though probably not in the minds of the other two.

There are five other players in this five-day, round-robin gathering of the world's top eight men who feel they, too, have a shot at winning the $100,000 first prize, but only Brian Gottfried is considered more than a passing threat for an upset. None would jump to the top with a win.

Connors and Borg have been the big rivalry in men's tennis for several years now, but Vilas had an unprecedented year in 1977 as he won 14 of his last 15 tournaments, including the French and U.S. Opens. Now there is a tennis triumvirate.

He would not discuss Aaron's condition further. AFC top player award to Morton

NEW YORK (UPI) — The first major move Red Miller made up taking over as coach of the Denver Broncos last year was acquiring quarterback Craig Morton.

"We made the trade because we wanted someone with experience," said Miller. "We wanted something you can't draft. I always felt Craig could throw the ball as well as anyone and that's what you look for in the quarterback."

The Broncos got more out of Morton than anyone expected and today the 34-year-old veteran, who led Denver to a Super Bowl berth after being drummed out of New York as a failure, was named American Football Conference Player of the Year for 1977.

Morton, a favorite of boogie fans when he played with the New York Giants, went to Denver in an off-season trade for quarterback Steve Ramsey and a No. 4 draft pick. Morton finished as the No. 2 passer in the league.

Morton passed for 1,529 yards and 14 touchdowns and completed better than 51 percent of his passes. Never known as much of a runner, Morton still managed to score four touchdowns running.

frustrated." Morton said. "We didn't have any offense because we were always trying to go the length of the field. We didn't get the turnovers that we get in Denver. "The difference is that the guys here will give you the ball in decent field position. You're not going the length of the field every time you get the ball. They force the other team into mistakes and throw them off balance."

Griese, who has played with headaches before this year, became the only NFL quarterback to wear eye glasses and then became the AFC's leading passer. He hit more than 58 percent of his passes and threw for 2,322 yards and 22 TDs in keeping the young Dolphins in contention until the final day of the season.

Quebec outskates Whalers

Despite having nine players on the injured list, the defending WHA champion Quebec Nordiques had enough firepower to win last night's shootout with the Whalers at the Hartford Civic Center.

The Nordiques, the only team with an edge over the league leading New Englanders this season, skated off the ice with a 6-4 win before 5,454 fans. Quebec shows a 3-2 record against the Whalers.

Despite the absence of Serge Bernier, Paulin Bordet and Chris Tremblay and Curt Brackenberg, all injured Tuesday night against the Soviets, the Nordiques simply outskated the Whalers, breaking a 4-4 tie with two last period goals, the sixth into an open net in the final 53 seconds.

proved to be the winner. Marc Tardif, the No. 1 goal-scorer and point-producer in the WHA failed to score a goal but assisted on two tallies to his point total to 67 in 32 games, a most impressive figure. Gordie Howe had two assists for the Whalers and turned in another superb game.

The third place Nordiques now trail the Whalers by 13 points. Winnipeg is second, nine points back of New England.

The Nordiques and Whalers each scored twice in the first period. Norm Dube put Quebec ahead at 4:07 on a powerplay goal from the faceoff circle. Bryan Maxwell tied it for the Whalers 32 seconds later on a 30-foot slapshot.

Real Cloutier got his 25th goal of the year for Quebec at 6:51 on a shot that went off the hand of Smith. The Whalers then tied it at 9:08 on Larry Pleau's 10-foot rebound off a blast by Rick Ley.

The Nordiques went ahead 3-2 at 1:52 of the second period on a 15-footer by Bob Fitchner, only to have George Lofie tie it seven seconds later for the Whalers when he broke in alone on Quebec goalie Jim Corsi.

The Whalers took a lead for the first time on a 30-foot shot by Gordie Roberts at 8:23 during a powerplay.

Ski notes

By BILL SACHEREK
After skiing in Vermont for a week it was nice to get home.

With snow in abundance in the area it was a well-spent day at Mohawk in Cornwall, just 48 miles away found good snow with a 400-foot lift.

Mohawk was founded 30 years ago by Walter Schoenbeck, who was the founder and developer of Mt. Snow. Schoenbeck is no longer with Mt. Snow.

There are 4 lifts at Mohawk, including 3 double chairs, a poma and 6 rope tows. The novice chair serves as an easy beginner's slope and the 1/2 mile easy run to the top and gives access to all trails. Here you find a 1 1/2 mile easy run, 10 trails, 5 slopes, some wide trails and narrow chutes.

The new base lodge is warm and friendly. It has a fast food service, a bar and clean rest rooms. Armand Marchand heads the ski school with 24 full-time instructors featuring the G.L.M. method.

Southbound has a double chair, 3-lbars, a j-bar and rope tow to service the 8 slopes. Colby with eight points. Curry was sixth with seven points.

Points are awarded on a descending scale, with first place vote worth five points.

Sewer rates Industries invited to seek town help

Town Manager Robert Weiss told the Manchester Economic Development Commission this morning that he will write to industries in town to encourage them to seek help or discuss problems with town officials.

Members of the EDC said that they were disturbed about recent comments from industries that would be affected by a change in sewer rates. The rates this year will be changed to a flat-rate base that will eliminate a price discount for larger users.

The matter has been discussed in the past and was first mentioned in a story in The Herald in October, but some local industries said that they were not aware of the situation and had not been contacted by town officials.

Donald Genovesi, a commission member, suggested that the town contact industries to discuss the expected change in sewer rates. Other members agreed that such an approach would provide input from the companies about the rate structure and might help iron out problems.

Weiss said that he would send letters to all industries in town from himself and the EDC. After the meeting, however, he indicated that the letters would not mention the sewer rate changes. The letters, instead, would be general ones asking that town industries contact the town on any problems or concerns that they might have.

Penney beats Hall High

By BILL McAVOY Total domination of backboards and Lindsay James' 32 points paved the way as Penney High School's boys varsity basketball team capped their sixth straight win 71-51 over Hall Wednesday night in West Hartford.

The Penney Knights started quickly, led by the play of Carl Guzzardi. He hit for two opening layups sparking a 9-point initial outburst.

Guzzardi also had two blocked shots, three steals and three assists as the Knights went up by as much as 13 points, 15-2, before the Warriors made four points in the last minute of the quarter.

In the second period, Penney got into early foul trouble. Guzzardi was taken out with four and guards Scott Burns and Kevin Grady were playing with three aches.

Hall, now 2-4 in the league and 3-5 overall, was able to close the gap with foul shots. Nine of its 21 second quarter points came from the charity stripe. The game at the half was 27-27.

Co-captain James, held a bit in check in the first half with only 10 points, exploded in the second half. The league-leading scorer hit for 11 in each of the final two stanzas.

"Lindsay played just super for us all game, especially in the second half," said Coach Bernard Dandley. "He was almost unstoppable when he had the ball. And he did a good job on the boards, giving Mike (Kononchik) a lot of help."

Penney also kept out of foul trouble in the half as Hall went to the line but three times and never reached the bonus situation. Penney was up 52-38 at the end of the third quarter.

Kononchik led rebounding with 15. James added 9 more and Mike Picard, playing only one half, had 8 as well as 10 points.

The Knights are now 6-1 overall, 5-1 in the CCHL. They travel to Windham Friday to face the Whippets. The jayvee game begins at 6:15 p.m.

EMS unit blamed in paramedic rift

By MAL BARLOW East Hartford Reporter

"We don't need them anymore," said Santo Alleano Wednesday of the East Hartford Emergency Medical Services Commission.

"They did a wonderful job getting the paramedic program started. But they fulfilled their obligation."

Alleano, president of the union of fire fighters in the 131-man town fire department, said the commission has outgrown the current friction between the town's eight paramedics and the fire department of which they are members.

The paramedics run the only town paramedic program in the state. It takes all eight men to staff the two-man operation 24 hours a day, every day of the year.

The eight were regular fire fighters who volunteered to take paramedic training two years ago. Since the program got under way, their services have been in ever-increasing demand by residents. There were 3,500 calls for emergency medical service in 1977.

Mayor Richard Blackstone has told union members he is upset with some of the costs of the program. The main extra cost is overtime to paramedics. When one man is sick, another paramedic must fill in for him.

During contract signings in 1977, the mayor and union leaders exchanged remarks about the overtime costs. Both the union leaders and the mayor agreed an answer was to get more paramedics in the fire department.

The mayor announced this fall there will be a new paramedics school opening soon, probably at the state medical center in Farmington. He guessed then the town might send about six men although the figure is not set at this time.

About 15 fire fighters who are not paramedics have volunteered for the training.

The current friction between the paramedics and the department stems from the possibility some of the present paramedics will be shifted out of the program to make room for the new paramedics.

"They don't want to be rotated off the paramedics unit," said Alleano. "They don't want to be just fillers."

He said some of the paramedics now want out of the program. It is not what they want or expected, DeGregorio said.

Others do not want to return to regular duty as fire fighters. They are now dedicated paramedics and can't see doing anything else, Alleano said.

He blames the problem on the rush over two years ago by the eight paramedics and the town to get the program started. The union did not have time to hammer out with the mayor the details of job status.

Besides the eight's rights to remain paramedics or return to fire fighting, they did not discuss the rights of the mayor to change the status.

Alleano now sees the main irritant in the paramedics program as the emergency medical services commission set up to study the service, get it under way, and oversee it.

Richard Morrison, a department lieutenant and vice president of the union, agreed with Alleano about the commission.

"This town created the full-time paramedics program. The letters were not letters of resignation from the department but were, in effect, resignations from the program. The letters angered the mayor. He said the employees of the department will work where they are assigned or they will not work."

Mary Ellen Dagon, chairman of the commission, said Tuesday she is deeply concerned for the program. She said it has been a success in so many ways and the residents have welcomed it with enthusiasm.

She said she does not like the rotation system for the paramedics as announced.

Yule Festivity

MANCHESTER — Members of the Downtown Manchester Association will sponsor an Old-Fashioned Christmas festivity Thursday in front of St. James Church on Main Street.

The event will begin with lighting of the tree on the lawn at 5:55 p.m. followed by a carol sing. Participating in the musical portion of the program will be the Senior Citizens Choral Group directed by Ida Cormier; the Manchester High School Round Table Singers directed by Martha White, and the Bennet Junior High School Choral Group directed by Walter Gryb.

Jeff Jacobs, general manager of radio station WINF, assisted by his crew, will be the host and master of ceremonies. Watkins Store will supply an organ for accompaniment.

Santa Claus will attend the carol sing and pass out candy canes to the youngsters.

More Trouble

MANCHESTER — The stormy weather of Sunday and Monday has caused more problems for the town's leaf pickup.

"We're getting more leaf complaints than we are complaints about the roads," Frederick Wajec, highway superintendent, said Monday when roads were still in icy condition.

Some leaf collection work was done Monday, but residents still complained about their leaves not being picked up or being pushed back onto their lawns by passing road plows. The wet weather slows the pickup.

There were four sanders out working Monday on town roads because of the rain. No plowing was needed Sunday, but sanding and salting crews worked in the afternoon.

More Surplus

HARTFORD (UPI) — The state comptroller says Connecticut's latest projected surplus for fiscal 1979 is up to $42.5 million, marking an increase of nearly $33.3 million since the previous estimate.

Edward J. Caldwell Monday said the huge increase between the Sept. 31 and Oct. 31 projected surplus was due to a hike in estimated tax revenues and estimates of the amount of budgeted funds which will not be spent.

The estimated tax revenue increased $20 million and estimated increased lapses were $15.5 million, Caldwell said.

He said the increases total $35.5 million, but were reduced to the $33.3 million figure due to estimates of additional, higher unbudgeted spending.

Troops Die in Iran Protests

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) — The shah's military government is acknowledging for the first time that armed demonstrators have shot and killed soldiers in a potentially explosive escalation of Iran's civil strife.

Demonstrators battled troops after curfew for the fourth straight night Monday, power blackouts shut down several sectors of the city and oil workers walked off their jobs in a new strike — all in protest against Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi.

Three demonstrators were killed in a clash with troops at a bank in downtown Tehran Monday and automatic gunfire was heard in several sectors of the capital. Troops in general were reported firing into the air to disperse demonstrators chanting "Down with the shah."

Police kept a low profile at Tehran's walled cemetery where 2,000 mourners gathered to bury 20 people killed in Sunday's violence. Protest leaders claim hundreds have been shot in fighting that began Friday, but still there are no accurate reports of the death toll.

Gen. Gholam Ali Oveisi, Tehran's martial law administrator, said in a broadcast Monday an undisclosed number of troops had been killed in clashes and some demonstrators were armed — the government's first admission of this — raising fears of a tougher crackdown on protesters. He did not elaborate on what kind of weapons demonstrators were using, but troops have confiscated several caches of smuggled Soviet submachine guns in regional cities hit by the political turbulence sweeping through Iran.

Western diplomats said they expected the street violence to escalate considerably Sunday and Monday — days of special mourning for the Prophet Mohammed's grandson. On those days, faithful Muslims practice self-flagellation in the streets and passions run high. The U.S. Embassy Monday warned the 41,000 Americans in Iran "very discreet behavior is required" during the approaching Muslim holy days of Tessa and Ashura.

The new strike by oil workers cut Iran's daily oil production by 1.3 million barrels and diplomats said the work stoppage in the nation's most important industry was bound to hamper the shah's struggle to retain his throne.

Diplomats said two of Iran's five important oil companies were "completely shut down" and a third was "seriously affected by the strike." According to diplomats, production in the southern oilfields fell from 5.9 million barrels of oil to 4.6 million Monday as the strike took hold.

Diplomats warned that the shah must act quickly to end the latest oil workers' strike.

"If he doesn't quickly find a way to end this strike he will give the impression of having lost control of the situation — and in a country like this, that kind of impression is deadly," one diplomat said.

Legislators See Home

HARTFORD (UPI) — Some gawked at the grandeur of their new home. Others marveled at the multitude of services at their disposal, and at least one was just happy to find out where the plumbing was.

The Freshman Class of '79 came to the Capitol Monday for panel discussions, a tour of the 106-year-old Capitol, a special luncheon and a film on typical trials and tribulations confronting the first-term lawmaker.

In all, 45 of the 82 new faces in the newly elected Legislature showed up for "Freshmen Orientation Day."

"I feel like a college freshman all over again," said Michael Rybak, a Harwinton Democrat recently elected to the House of Representatives.

"I feel like a first grader going on a tour," added Dean Markham, an East Hampton Democrat elected to fill the House seat of William O'Neill, who will be sworn in as lieutenant governor in January.

Richard Lawlor and Thurman Milner, a pair of Hartford Democrats headed for the House, were impressed with the variety of services available to lawmakers.

These include the secretarial pool that types up speeches, and the elaborate computer system that keeps track of bills.

"I'm impressed with the professionalism of the services provided," Lawlor said. "This could be a full-time job if you were independently wealthy."

"Only thing I wish they had were interns for the newly elected legislators," Milner said. "We need them."

"Yeah, it seems to me the more senior leaders get the interns," Lawlor said.

Christine Niedermeier, a Democrat elected to the House from Fairfield, found the whole day "very interesting." The former aide to Gov. Elia Grasso and Rep. Christopher Dodd, D-Conn., appeared particularly intrigued with the ceiling of the lower chamber. It's caving in.

The freshmen House members were assured the scaffolding now in place will be gone when the Legislature convenes, and they could concentrate on learning how to operate their voting machines without fear of getting beamed by falling plaster.

HUD Still Denies East Hartford Funds

By CHRIS BLAKE
Herald Reporter

EAST HARTFORD — The federal Department of Housing and Urban Development has upheld its rejection of the town's application for $543,000 in community development block grant funds under the fourth-year application.

In a letter to Mayor Richard H. Blackstone, HUD assistant secretary Robert C. Embry said additional data submitted by the town last September did not justify changing the original decision to deny the funds.

This is the third straight year the town has lost its bid for community development funds. In three years, the town has lost $1.5 million in funds under the community development act.

Embry's letter supports HUD's contention that the town is underestimating the expected to reside figures — the number of persons who would live in the town if low income housing were provided.

The town has said 250 persons would be expected to reside, while HUD has maintained the figure should be closer to 300.

Blackstone said the dispute hinges on the source of those figures. The federal estimates are based on 1970 census data, which Blackstone calls "worthless."

The town has taken its own census of employers in East Hartford, he said. That census has included the number of persons employed in East Hartford, the salary levels and the town in which those who work in East Hartford live.

Based on these figures, the town came up with its 250 expected-to-reside projection.

Blackstone flew to Washington with this data on Sept. 21 to meet with Embry. In the letter, Embry said he considered the additional information, but it was not enough to sway HUD to change its original decision.

The town will begin to draw up a fifth-year application soon. Blackstone said the fifth-year application will use the three-year plans which were submitted in the fourth-year bid as a base.

Ironically, the federal regulations which caused HUD to reject the fourth-year grant may be revised to support the town's position, Blackstone said.

He said the town should receive the money next year with no problem.

"I'm sure the fifth-year application will work out just fine," he said. "We should pass with flying colors." The funds requested under the fourth-year application included: $150,000 for code enforcement and housing rehabilitation; $100,000 for rehabilitation of public housing; $150,000 for investigation and elimination of architectural barriers to the handicapped; $17,000 for bus shelters; $5,000 for fair housing promotion; and $56,000 for administration and staff.

Blackstone said part of the problem in past years is "HUD's unwillingness to recognize potential blight."

He said the town would like to use the money in "preventive work, but the law and its administration has had a terrible time recognizing that."

He said the original program contained a minimum of restrictions, but HUD has made the program more categorical in nature.

Mrs. Swenson said she would consider the party chairmanship if a divisive battle developed for the seat. But, she does not plan to actively seek it at this time, she said. Because of the suddenness of Ferguson's resignation as chairman, there are not yet any clear candidates for the post.

Mrs. Swenson said anyone wishing to be considered for either position should contact her so the full committee can consider all interested candidates.

In his announcement, Ferguson referred to his business plans. But, neither Monday night nor this morning did he offer specifics about his and his wife's plans.

The change will require some training, he said.

"I'm not going to have any sign out in three months," Ferguson said this morning.

In his formal announcement, he said, "In the past several months I have been contemplating a change in my personal business career which would demand time for study and training, and might conceivably lead to my absence from the community for a period of time."

Mideast Talks Could Collapse

By United Press International
Israel's expected rejection of the latest Egyptian blueprint for peace has caused a major setback in the negotiations between the two nations, sources said.

The Haaretz newspaper said the negotiations between the two nations could collapse. But the State Department said Egypt and Israel would definitely hold further negotiations to break their treaty impasse.

President Anwar Sadat, awaiting Israeli Prime Minister Begin's reply to his latest proposals, was reported determined to press his demand for "linkage" between a treaty and a timetable for giving autonomy to West Bank Palestinians — the sticking point of the negotiations.

The sources indicated that the negotiations are present in a serious crisis that is liable to turn into a situation with no outlet, it said. The sources added that Israel and Egypt must arrive at new decisions.

Sources in Israel said Begin's reply to the letter Sadat sent him last Tuesday amounted to a rejection, but Al Ahran said it clear Egypt was sticking to its position.

Top GOP Family To Quit Politics

By GREG PEARSON
Herald Reporter

MANCHESTER — The first family of Manchester's Republican Party is resigning from politics to enter the business world.

In a surprising announcement at Monday night's meeting of the Republican executive committee, Thomas Ferguson announced he will resign as GOP town chairman and his wife, Vivian, announced she will step down from the Town Board of Directors. Both resignations are effective Dec. 31.

Other Republican leaders who attended Monday night's meeting said this morning they had no previous indication of the Fergusons' plans until their announcements.

A committee headed by Elsie "Big" Swenson, vice chairwoman of the town town committee, will be formed to nominate candidates for both the town chairmanship and the Board of Directors position vacated by the Fergusons.

There are no clear indications this morning who will be nominated to fill those positions.

Speculation about the Board of Directors opening centered around the party's three candidates for the board who lost in 1977. All three — Peter DiRosa, David Call and Richard Weinstein — are young and

Board Airs Snow, Booze Rules

MANCHESTER—Ordinances on the removal of snow and the sale of liquor on Sunday will be among the public hearing items considered by the Town Board of Directors tonight. Nine public hearings, including six for proposed ordinances, will be conducted at the meeting, which begins at 8 o'clock in the Municipal Building's Hearing Room. The directors also have a business item to consider a referendum about the town's continuation in the Community Development program. This matter, however, may not be discussed until the board's second meeting of the month Dec. 12. Ordinances to be the subject of public hearings include the following: • Sunday liquor—An advisory referendum in November approved the sale of liquor on Sunday in Manchester. The directors also are expected to approve the Sunday sales proposal. They still will conduct a public hearing on the proposed change tonight. • Snow removal—The proposed ordinance would give the town the power to clear snow from walks if the property owner fails to do so. The town then would bill the owner for the snow removal. • Closing of roads—This ordinance would give the town the authority to close roads legally while construction work is being done on them. • Proposed additional appropriation of $120,000 to fund the Upper Hockanum River sewer project. The money will be provided by borrowing for the project. • A proposed appropriation of $25,000 in state funds to the Capital Improvement Reserve Fund. • A proposed appropriation of $2,162.53 to the Water Reserve Fund. The money is the unexpended balance of the Cooper Hill Treatment Plant account. Other items on this month's agenda include the Community Development referendum proposal, a proposal to require a referendum for the transferring of municipal services to any regional government, consideration of a curfew and a mid-management classification pay plan. These items may not be acted on until the Dec. 12 meeting. The directors also are scheduled to meet with attorney Gary Ginsberg at 7 p.m. He was the fact-finder for the police union negotiations with the town.

Stock Offers Exceed UTC Bid

HARTFORD (UPI)—Carrier Corp. stockholders have offered United Technologies Corp. more shares than it bargained for in its bid to takeover the Syracuse, N.Y. air-conditioning giant. A spokesman for the Hartford-based UTC said when its tender offer expired at 10 a.m. Monday, there were offers exceeding the firm's request for 17 million shares, or 49 percent, of Carrier. Under court order, UTC must wait until noon Friday before it can actually purchase any of the air conditioner manufacturer's stock. The delay is to give Carrier time to appeal a federal court decision allowing UTC to go ahead with its acquisition effort. UTC, an aggressive merger seeker, opened its tender offer Nov. 13. The company told Carrier shareholders it would pay $28 for each share of common stock and $50.82 cents for preferred shares. Under terms of the offer, shareholders who agreed to sell their Carrier stock can change their minds after Jan. 10, 1979, unless UTC has already paid for it. U.S. District Court Judge Howard Munson of Syracuse, N.Y., refused to issue an injunction against UTC sought by Carrier and the AmTrust Division of the Department of Justice. The federal agency and Carrier claimed a UTC takeover might create a monopoly. They said the merger would make the resulting corporation the 22nd largest in the nation. However, Munson late last week told UTC it could not buy any Carrier stock until Friday to give Carrier time to appeal his decision. Carrier has been fighting UTC's attempts to absorb it since the company first announced its plans Sept. 25. Carrier called the initial merger "antitrust of blackmail." Carrier recently took out full page newspaper advertisements telling shareholders to hold onto their stock because "in our opinion, this merger clearly violates federal antitrust laws." And in Tennessee, where Carrier has five plants, the attorney general has filed suit in Nashville trying to block the takeover, saying it would violate that state's antitrust laws. UTC, a veteran of merger skirmishes, had $5.6 billion in sales last year.

It isn't so easy to save money these days. What used to be a matter of simple interest has been compounded to such a degree you need quite an education to figure it all out. Now, in addition to the usual savings plans, banks offer many unusual ones. With varying interests, rules and regulations, penalties and rewards. You need help. Obviously, some savings plans are more appropriate for you than others. Long Term Investments are ideal if you have the money and can afford the time. But a Short Term arrangement might be more practical. Regular Passbook Account interest compounds differently from that of a Statement Savings Account. But the two types of accounts differ in other ways, as well. How can you make sense of it all? Talk to an expert. Our Savings Investment Specialists have many of the answers you need. They've been trained in the applications of all the savings services we offer. So they can help you make the choices that are right for you. Trip to Paradise True for Manchester Woman

By JUNE TOMPKINS Herald Reporter

MANCHESTER—Once upon a time there was a little girl who wanted to travel to far away places. She decided to sail away on a boat. When she and the captain of the boat met, they fell in love and sailed away to paradise. The story sounds like a fairy tale, but it's true, because essentially, it happened to Dale Kowell who grew up in Manchester, and later married Spyridon (Spiro) Vostitsanos, a Greek sea captain. Dale has always liked to go places, which explains why she probably chose to attend University of Mexico in Albuquerque where she majored in literature and languages, mainly French and Portuguese. There were other foreign students there who intrigued Dale with their criticism of Americans who don't seem to adjust to foreign cultures when living abroad. "They said Americans are too spoiled," Dale said recently while feeding her tiny baby who was born Nov. 11 at Manchester Memorial Hospital. She had accompanied her husband from their home in Athens, Greece, while he was on a voyage to North America and Africa. Dale came to her parents' home in Manchester where she is visiting with her baby for her husband's return, expected around Christmas. Dale worked at various jobs around the U.S. after college before she decided to travel to a foreign country and try living a foreign culture. She chose Greece. She says her knowledge of Greece came from a couple of Greek students she knew in college, and from reading the book, "Zorba, the Greek."

Sara Belinda Vostitsanos is cradled in her mother's arms in Manchester while her father, a Greek sea captain, who hasn't seen her yet, is on his way into New York harbor. Sara and her mother, Mrs. Dale Kowell Vostitsanos, are visiting with Mrs. Vostitsanos' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Kowell of 107 Helaine Road. (Herald photo by Strempler)

She arrived a day early on the freighter which would take her on a three-week journey to Greece. "I was sitting on the passenger's deck," she tells, "when an informally dressed man wearing a turtleneck sweater sat down beside me and began talking. We must have talked about two hours before he told me he was the ship's captain. That was low Dale first met Spiro, who, as he told her three days later, fell in love with her immediately. Spiro was scheduled to take another trip around Africa, but when he returned in June, wedding plans were made for the end of July when Dale's parents could attend. Life in Athens is very different from Dale's former life style, but she says she loves it. She has learned to speak Greek, which she says is difficult to learn. "When no one speaks English, you have to learn it," she says. Spiro, who has been a seaman for 20 years, speaks excellent English. He entered Navigation College in Greece when he was 18. "It is one of the biggest professions in Greece and the best paying," Dale said. She described many things that are different. Women are more conservative in dress, but the men and boys are not. "They wear very tight pants," she says. Most of the women in Greece over 50 wear black for mourning which is "terrible when the temperature is over 100 degrees." But she says the black dress is beginning to lessen in Athens. She explained that most husbands are about 10 years older than their wives, thus the early widowhood. The Greeks are inclined to be superstitious, Dale says. They believe strongly in the "evil eye" and young people wear blue stones which are supposed to ward off the evil eye. "Babies' fingers are often painted with red polish to ward off the evil eye," she says. Asked if she would paint one of her baby's fingers when she returns to Greece, she answered "Probably." When asked if she believes in the evil eye, she replied, "Who knows? There are unexplainable things that happen, and the Greeks live a lot closer to nature." It takes a special knowledge to cure the effects of the evil eye, a knowledge which is passed on from one possessing it to a younger person. Dale says her husband has this knowledge. Greeks tend to be of a warm nature, touching and embracing each other in friendliness. And they love to cook. "But very few Greek women bake anything, they don't have ovens," Dale said. She explained that if women want to cook a roast, they take it to a baker (there's a confectionary on nearly every corner) and return a couple of hours later to pick it up. "Eating is a social time," she continued. "Sidewalk cafes are popular throughout the evening till 3 a.m. too hot to sleep till nearly 4 a.m. Sestas are daily in the afternoon." "They don't understand the American work ethics—rush and deadlines," she added. Family life is a strong trait among

Weiss Still Writing HUD

MANCHESTER—Town Manager Robert Weiss is on his third draft of a letter that will be sent to the Hartford office of the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development. The letter will include the town's view that its Housing Assistance Plan is an estimate and not actual firm figures that must be met. The HUD lists figures for low construction and subsidy of low and moderate-cost housing in town. The Town Board of Directors last week voted that it should see and approve the letter before it is sent. Weiss felt he should be able to send the letter with no formal board approval, but the directors voted 5-3 that it approve it before it is sent. Originally, the board had asked Alan Mason, director of human services, to send such a letter. Mason never did send such a letter, and his failure to do so upset at least some of the directors. Weiss said he has received comments from a few board members about his first two drafts. "I'm going to keep writing drafts until they approve it," he said. He said he hopes to receive comments and approval of draft three Tuesday night at the board's meeting.

Sidman Backs Liability Bill

VERNON — Dr. Bernard Sidman, superintendent of schools, contacted area legislators recently to ask them to support a bill that would increase the maximum limit on parental liability for vandalism done by juveniles.

Now the maximum amount is $1,500. Vernon school officials would like this increased to $3,000. Dr. Sidman read at the school board meeting a reply from State Sen. Myron R. Ballen, Republican, of Fairfield.

Ballen said he will introduce legislation supporting the Vernon Board of Education's request. Dr. Sidman said eight area legislators have responded to his request for support.

The $1,500 limit was set by the 1972 session of the General Assembly. The school board feels this should be increased at least to keep up with inflation.

The schools have been the victims of much vandalism, especially broken windows which have to be replaced at increasing expense. Last summer the new section of Rockville High School was extensively damaged and with a 15-year-old youth and two juveniles were apprehended shortly after in connection with the vandalism. Officials said the town has been reimbursed by the parents of the three.

WATES Meeting

MANCHESTER — The Manchester WATES will have a ways and means meeting Tuesday at the Italian-American Club, 15 Eldridge St. A bake auction is planned. Weighing in will be from 7 to 9 p.m.

Reynolds Circle

MANCHESTER — The Reynolds Circle of South United Methodist Church will have a Christmas party and potluck Wednesday at 6:30 p.m. in Cooper Hall. Those attending are asked to bring a covered dish and a cash contribution for needy families. Hostesses are Mrs. Helen Diehl, Mrs. Virginia Beggs, Miss Virginia Perkins and Miss Virginia Ryan.

Christmas Seal Girl

Kimberly Ruel, 9, of Bolton, is getting a lot of attention these days, especially from Mike Rogers, left, and George Lyle, honorary chairmen of the state's Christmas Seal campaign. Kimberly designed this year's seal. Rogers and Lyle are members of the New England Whalers hockey team. Kimberly is in Washington, D.C., this week, accompanied by her mother and Karen Ziegler of Bloomfield, representing the Connecticut Lung Association. They will be visiting the White House and the official opening of the 1978 exhibit of Christmas Seal art at the new Humphrey Building.

PUCA Cuts Utility Request

HARTFORD (UPI) — The Public Utilities Control Authority has voted to cut $225,000 from a United Illuminating Co. request to pass on storm-related costs to its consumers.

The commissioners voted 3-2 Monday to eliminate the rate adjustment as recommended by the PUCA staff because summer storms "are of a normal nature."

The amount cut was about one-third of the costs incurred due to hurricanes Belle in 1976, and listed as maintenance expenses in U's annual report. The rate hike request for a $28.6 million rate hike now under consideration by the five-member PUCA.

Deliberations were scheduled to resume today. The commissioners tabled another staff recommendation to allow U to incorporate $91,000 in the rates for February's blizzard.

UI is seeking a 15 percent increase in residential electric bills that would increase the average monthly bill by about $3.50 for its 274,000 customers in 17 towns in the New Haven and Bridgeport areas.

Hearings on the company's request for its second rate increase since 1976 began more than two months ago. The five commissioners have until Dec. 21 to reach a decision by majority vote.

Much of Monday's deliberation covered PUCA's two-year review of U's operations regarding its involvement with construction of the controversial Seabrook nuclear power plant in New Hampshire.

More than 62 percent of UI's projected $604.8 million construction expenditures over the next eight years will go toward nuclear production plants.

The firm has already invested about $125 million in Seabrook, but some commissioners were concerned that operating costs would be prohibitive by the time the plant is scheduled to go on line sometime in the early 1980s.

Commissioner David Harrigan said Seabrook "has had a jaded history" and he said he would "like to see its construction program reduced substantially." He said he favored some kind of recommendation to UI that it voluntarily invest in or part of its 20 percent dividend in Seabrook.

Commissioner Thomas Standish said contrary to U's contention, there is a construction program between UI's $28.6 million rate request. He said the cost of construction at Seabrook would eventually be passed on to the consumer.

Andover PTA Sets Auction

ANDOVER — The Andover Elementary School Parent Teacher Association will have its holiday auction Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. at the school. Homemade and handcrafted items will be auctioned.

The school will close Thursday at 1 p.m. for a teacher in-service day.

The PTA will sponsor a family movie Friday at 7 p.m. at the school. The Apple Dumping Gang will be shown.

The school's annual Community Carol Sing will be Dec. 14. The event is being coordinated by Jacqueline Eagles, school music teacher.

Money Returned The Community Health Service Inc. of Columbia-Hebron-Andover-Marlborough has returned $1,709 in nursing service revenue to Andover for the last half of fiscal year 1977-78. For the first half of that fiscal year, $1,454 was returned to Andover.

Educators Oppose Garage

COVENTRY — The Board of Education has agreed to draft a letter to the Town Council protesting a proposal to construct a municipal garage on a five-acre site behind the high school. Board members fear the facility will cut into school athletic fields and also increase noise and traffic in the area.

Of the two alternate roads suggested to lead into the site, one would slice off a portion of the high school field that is used for girls' soccer and the other would reduce a field used by the middle school.

The council has been advised by the town planner and by the town engineer that the Ripley Hill Road location is the only centrally located site for a garage. The present location is on Main Street, at the base of a steep hill that highway department supervisors say is bad for the transmissions of fully loaded sand trucks. The garage is also rundown and causing pollution to the Mill Brook.

In other business, Captain Nathan Little School Principal Edward Mahoney told the board that new curtains were needed for classrooms and for the auditorium stage. Ceiling tiles are also in need of repair, he said.

Mahoney reported that vandalism was down at the school, although the middle school has been plagued with "bomb scares" in recent weeks, as has the high school.

The board voted to allow the Lions Club to use the high school on Dec. 16 for a holiday show for children in grades kindergarten through 4. There will be movies and a magic show and a visit from Santa Claus.

The board is encouraging high school students involved in athletics to sell discount tickets to all regular season basketball games for the current school year. The $2 discount tickets give the bearer 50 cents off the regular price at each of the school's regular games.

Tree Lighting Set

COVENTRY — The annual town Christmas tree lighting and carol sing ceremony will be Wednesday at 6:30 p.m. in front of the Town Hall on Main Street.

The event is open to the public and will include a visit from Santa Claus. After the ceremony, there will be hot chocolate, coffee, and cookies served in the Board Room.

Weatherproof ornaments provided by elementary school children will decorate the tree. Carl

Opinion Gasoline Shortage

The recent announcement by the Shell Oil Company that gasoline provided by the firm is being rationed brings several questions to mind.

A few years ago, Americans were threatened with gasoline rationing for the first time since World War I.

Although the point of rationing fuel to the public never arrived, motorists were forced to wait in lines for small amounts of gasoline and also forced to pay ever-increasing prices.

Once the prices were met and established, the supply of gasoline seemed once again to be plentiful and memories of waiting in line at gasoline stations were quickly erased.

Until the announcement by Shell Oil, everything seemed to be going fairly smoothly although the days of gasoline rationing for 39 cents a gallon were gone forever.

It seems that if gasoline was in so short a supply as to warrant rationing, there would have been more of a warning instead of just a statement from one oil company.

When the U.S. faced the energy crisis in 1973 and 1974 there had been plenty of warning about the shortage of imported oil and the increased prices the oil producing nations were requesting.

Until now there has been no other announcement by other firms gasoline will be rationed, although there has been some as that employed by U.S. Rep. George Hansen, one might argue that the armed forces would be abolished because the likelihood of war has increased, or that speeding laws be repealed because the incidence of violations has soared.

Despite all OSHA's misgivings, the principle behind the legislation is sound: American men and women are entitled to a safe and healthy working environment. The fact that that is not always the case is hardly a reason to abandon the law.

Portland (Maine) Press Herald. An Idaho congressman wants to abolish the federal Occupational Safety and Health Administration, widely known as OSHA, because of an increase in job-related deaths and injuries.

The logic behind the proposal eludes us. Others might well reply that the need for OSHA's continued presence is heightened precisely because of the increasing number of on-the-job injuries and fatalities.

Using the same sort of reasoning have been surpassed by the viewers-with-alarm. But the Christian, who is looking for the glorious appearance of the great God and Savior Jesus Christ, has the hopeful outlook because his is the Blessed Hope.

He is hopeful because he is hope full! He does not sorrow as those who have no hope and, having this hope in him, he purifies himself. It is a hopeful outlook because it is a hope-full outlook. Keep looking up!

Letters to the Editor

To the editor: The Steering Committee of the Concerned Citizens met last Monday night to decide their direction and what action to take on the fourth year grant from HUD through the Community Development Act.

It was decided not to request a referendum on the fourth year grant because the legal opinion of the Town Council said an advisory referendum can only be put on the voting machines at the same time as a binding referendum.

This meant a vote could not be made until next spring. At that time the money would already have been spent for six months.

The Concerned Citizens have always supported the improvements to the Senior Center and did not want a misunderstanding on this issue and they had been manipulated into believing otherwise.

We have been assured that there will be no interference with our zoning laws at this time, which is one of our main concerns.

A watchdog committee will be established to carefully study all HUD issues and to receive any reports of unreasonable pressure or coercion on the part of HUD, the equal opportunity coordinator or town officials.

The committee will check out any complaints and will keep the people fully informed on all matters relating to this issue.

There have been questions raised as to the truthfulness of the facts given to the people. The committee will work to learn the honest answers.

The Concerned Citizens are already expressed support for an advisory referendum. It was to be put on the December agenda.

We expect them to keep their word. There are still strings attached as long as we are forced to keep the equal opportunity coordinators.

He represents Manchester's involvement in the housing business and has caused divisiveness in the town. The committee does not work for the best interests of Manchester. The committee seeks to eliminate the brochure being sent to Hartford and Bloomfield.

A useless brochure because of our low vacancy rate of one percent. It is an insult to Manchester. Apartment rentals and home purchases are the responsibility of the private market.

The steering Committee also passed a resolution asking the Board of Directors to support and act on the proposed ordinance to prevent the town from joining any regional plans without voter approval through referendum.

This would be a strong step taken to protect the autonomy of Manchester. It is the duty of the directors, as representatives of the Manchester people to pass this ordinance. There are no justifiable reasons not to.

The committee also takes a firm stand on the question of improving the water supply.

Any negotiations with the MDC should cease immediately and only be initiated with board approval.

The Town Manager has made his worst questioning on this issue and close scrutiny will be kept on all future reports.

The committee will accept absolutely no zoning changes at HUD's request. If ever suggested, the community block grant should be dropped immediately.

There should be no subsidized low-income housing projects in Manchester. We will not agree to a regional approach that would help Hartford to lower its tax rate while raising ours.

Any proposed plans must be voted on by the taxpayer through referendum.

Concerned Citizens of Manchester.

Washington — "Sometimes it seems like the Washington federal bureaucracy does everything it can to make the taxpayers roar," said the General Accounting Office man.

The GAO is Congress' watchdog over the executive branch of the federal government. It is a job that keeps the watchdog busy, because hardly a day goes by without a member of Congress demanding that doggie look into this or that abuse, often of a criminal nature. It is, in fact, the GAO's function to arouse public indignation by filing detailed reports on the shenanigans it investigates.

This time it's parking spaces for those who feed at Uncle Sam's trough. Kindly do not scoff. There are 28,300 spaces set aside for federal employees, and the rental value of those spaces is $17 million a year. An estimated 17,700 spaces are to be set aside for car pools: one-third, or 9700 spaces, presumably are reserved for those who drive alone.

Moreover, the government charges for only one-third of the 17,700 spaces, at rates of approximately $10 to $15 a month. Commercial rates average $50 a month.

Anyhow, the GAO inquiry was requested by outgoing Sen. James Abourezk, D-S.D. (Why is that inquisitive, no-nonsense guy leaving us when we need him?) GAO's response produced the figures above. Its report also said there was a big but undetermined number of "phantom" car pools which employees overstate the number of occupants per car.

So what? So there are federal guidelines demanding that 90 percent of all those parking spaces be set aside for car pools. And due in part to Uncle Sam's generosity to its workers who drive to their jobs, Washington will be unable to meet the requirements of the Clean Air Act by 1982.

committee in evaluating the movie film that you have been examining in connection with your investigation of President Kennedy's assassination.

As I understand it, Mr. Chairman, the film was taken by an amateur photographer during the Kennedy motorcycle in Dallas. More or less by accident, he filmed the upper floors of the building from which the fatal shots were fired.

The footage shows some blurred shapes that appear to change or move from one film frame to the next. The question is whether the film proves that more than one person was present, or whether there is some other explanation for the blurred shapes.

From my own extensive accidents with home movies, I can attest without equivocation that human figures may indeed appear on film as blurred shapes.

I have at home one 50-foot reel composed entirely of blurred shapes. From notes made at the time, however, it can be established that the film was taken at my daughter's sixth birthday party, and that the blurred shapes are the honoree and her guests.

How is this possible, you ask? There are many different causes of blurred shapes, Mr. Chairman. Among them are falling to thread the film into the camera properly, accidentally exposing the film to sunlight, using outdoor film for interior shots and leaving the camera out in the rain.

I should caution the committee, however, that blurred shapes are not necessarily human figures.

In the summer of 1977, I went on a raft trip in the Grand Canyon, taking along my movie camera. Two years later, I repeated the trip.

Upon returning from the second trip, I discovered that the film I had used was the same roll I had used during the first trip.

If the committee would like to see a first class exhibit of non-human blurred shapes, I would be glad to offer this film in evidence.

As my accompanying commentary would explain, some of the blurred shapes are river rapids, some are interesting rock formations, some are waterfalls, some are caves in the canyon walls and some are sunsets.

To sum up, Mr. Chairman, interpretation of blurred shapes is a tricky business. My expert opinion is that those seen in the Dallas film were either the assassin's accomplice or an unidentified flying object.

Teacher Revives Appeal

MANCHESTER - The court appeal of a teacher who was removed from the Board of Education more than a year ago has been reactivated. Mrs. Joan Hoverman, a tenured teacher at Buckley School, drainage district 18, 1977 after a three-member arbitration panel upheld an earlier decision by the Board of Education. Edward Hartnett and John Hartnett, both of South Windsor, and Henry Hartnett of West Hartford, and three sisters, Mrs. Elizabeth Peake of South Windsor, Mrs. Michael Perrella of West Hartford and Mrs. Raymond Smith of Springfield, N.J.

The Board of Education's attorney, Thomas Sullivan of Hartford, submitted a brief in response to the appeal last week according to his office. Sullivan is on vacation and was not available to comment on the case.

Wilson E. Deakin, assistant superintendent of schools in charge of personnel, said today he believes Mrs. Hoverman's appeal is essentially the same as before.

The board, in making its decision to fire her, claimed that she was incompetent and inefficient in the classroom. Two persons in the three-member panel upheld that contention. However, the third panel member, Gayle Gordon of the Connecticut Education Association, said she was not convinced by the board's decision and selected by Mrs. Hoverman and issued a minority report claiming the administration had no cause to fire the teacher.

Citizens Voice Concern About M Zone Request

By JUNE TOMPKINS Herald Reporter

MANCHESTER - Mild opposition and concern were expressed by citizens at a Planning and Zoning Commission public hearing Tuesday on a request for zone changes for a commercial business when it was approved last week.

Acting PZC chairman John Hutchinson recalled that the applicant's original application for a proposed combination shopping and apartment complex seemed feasible for a commercial business when it was approved last week.

Strawberry Lane opposed the request on the grounds that, if granted, the PZC would be defeating the purpose of an M Zone, which permits multiple uses when he turns on his faucets and gets no water.

Although he is not opposed to the proposal, he said he is concerned that the water situation could be a safety and health hazard.

Most of the budgets in the regular learning programs reflected modest increases, as low as $67 for the art program and up to $710 in the language arts program. In the latter program, $72,448 is for increases in salaries, which have been by contract.

Board members questioned all proposed expenditures, such as a $10,380 allowance for replacement equipment for the business education program. That amount is for 20 to 23 new typewriters for the high school, according to Gerald Fitzgerald, Assistant Superintendent in Charge of the program.

He said that everything Giles suggested was agreeable to his clients, but there hadn't been time to discuss it with Giles.

The PZC approved an inland wetland permit on Tolland Turnpike building is expected to be completed today.

The pipe broke Monday shortly before 2 a.m. and caused some water damage in the apartments at 67 Wadsworth St.

The Town Fire Department and Manchester Police Department were called to the scene and reported a large amount of water coming through a kitchen ceiling. A light fixture was filling with water, and the power was shut off to permit repairs to be made.

There was other damage, such as seeping ceiling panels, in other parts of the apartments, the department reported. Some of these appeared to have been caused by previous problems, the report said.

Lester Jackson, 25, of Hartford was charged with failure to appear in court on a warrant Monday. He was presented in court Monday.

An East Hartford woman and her three-year-old daughter escaped serious injury when their car slipped out of control and slid off the slippery road on Love Lane Monday morning about 9 p.m. A 1969 Dodge was stolen from the Elks Club parking lot on Bissell Street Monday night.

About $300 worth of coins was reported stolen from a Green Road residence Friday. Center Congregational Church, 11 Center St., reported a burglary Saturday. Office desks and the kitchen were entered, but it had not been determined if anything was missing.

A stereo set, diamond ring, and some money were stolen in a burglary at a Delmont Street home Monday.

Auditor Asking For More Time

MANCHESTER - The town's auditor has asked for an extension for completion of the annual audit of the financial records of Manchester.

This is the second straight year the auditor, Jerome Baskin & Co., has requested an extension.

The request surprised Joseph Sweeney, a Democratic member of the Town Board of Directors, who has been involved in fiscal matters.

The delay in the audit apparently is needed because some town records are not up to date and need to be completed before the audit of the 1977-78 fiscal year can be done.

"It was stunned to be told there were problems in the controller's office records," Sweeney said.

The problems apparently are connected with personnel changes in the office.

Deputy Controller Lillian Rubin retired early in the year, and it took several months to replace her. Some of the record-keeping that should have been done wasn't because of the shortage of staff.

Some staff had year's delay in the audit was caused by conversion from manual to computer record-keeping in the collector of revenues.

He referred to a high density of apartments (Squire Village) already in the area. "If there are more apartments in the area, you're building a density," he said.

Frank Lupien, 21 Sunset St. said he had no objection to the area being an M Zone, which permits multiple uses when he turns on his faucets and gets no water.

Although he is not opposed to the proposal, he said he is concerned that the water situation could be a safety and health hazard.

Notes Off the Cuff

National Football League will offer Saturday doubleheaders on teevee for the next two weeks as well as the full Sunday schedule. Neither meeting this Saturday, Baltimore at Pittsburgh at 1 o'clock nor the meeting at 4 o'clock featuring Minnesota and Detroit teams as a "must" to view.

Only two weeks remain in the 1978 NFL schedule before the post-season playoffs begin Super Bowl Sunday will be Jan. 14. How much longer will NFL officials overlook cheap shots on the playing field which occur with regularity each Sunday, at least on video games piped into The Herald's circulation area. Despite an abundance of men in striped shirts on the field obvious referees are either being overlooked or escape the eyes of the men with the whistles... There are more controversial plays than ever in the NFL.

Apparently those polled during the Manchester High-East Catholic High football game in the balloting for the James Horvath Memorial Trophy, presented by the Central Connecticut Association of Football Officials, were not advised that the game's most valuable player would get the award. The committee was under the impression the award was for the best defensive player and so voted... Two pre-tentis stops on the annual tour, which included Hartford and Springfield, will most likely be scratched. The Bat State Classic, which failed to attract either a spring field or patrons at the Springfield Civic Center, is out of the sponsors' report and the United Technologies Classic at the Hartford Army is also headed for other parts. Attention was poor in Hartford with top names missing, although winner John McEnroe is still on his way to joining the worlds top five players.

Willing to compete with men on equal terms, Mari-ellen Vogt of Portland found that she was not in the same class in last weekend's Hip

Remember the man they called "Scrimming Herman" Wedemeyer, who was an All-America halfback with St. Mary's College in 1945 and later in the All-America Conference with Los Angeles and Baltimore? He's now a regular on the video series, "Hawaii Five-O" and answers to the name of Duke... Just about everyone agrees that Wesley Walker of the New York Jets is the best wide receiver in professional football. The Jets also feel the man at the other end of the line - tight end Jerome Barkum is right up on the front row at that position. Miami safety Tim Foley, who once played with the Jets, calls Barkum "the most dangerous tight end in football. He has the speed of an outside linebacker and the heart of a light end. He'll block you and he'll catch the ball over the middle"...

Boston Patriot followers like Russ Francis, who is the business and the West Coast, Dave Casper of Oakland has no peers at that important blocking-passing spot.

Recalls Charter Days Football Officials 50th Birthday

By EARL YOST Sports Editor

Fifty years ago - Dec. 7, 1928 - the Central Connecticut Association of Football Officials was organized by Tom Kelley of Manchester, Harry Ginsberg of New Britain and Johnny McGrath of East Hartford.

Thursday night the CCAFO will note its golden anniversary at the annual banquet at the Mosque Hall in Berlin.

Kelley and Ginsburg will be among the several hundred current members and guests on hand.

"We (Kelley, Ginsberg and McGrath) all met in the Springfield field and we wanted to start a chapter in Connecticut," Kelley recalled.

New Haven was the only Connecticut board at the time. New Haven didn't want to let us do this so we formed our own board with 22 members by adding recalling the chapter's birth.

Today there are 144 members listed on the roster including seven from Manchester - John Androski, Al Boggin, Paul Congrove, Don Davis, Dan Morline, Paul Pryor and Bill Sacherer, four from East Hartford - Jim Damaiz, Sal LaCitra, Dan Lodge and Frank Secra. Len Horvath is listed out of Bolton and five from Rockville - Stan Gill, Ray Hamsdel, Vin Shabene, Marino Silvestri and Ray Zemaek, Jack Holik is a member from South Windsor.

Charter members from Manchester were Edson Bailey, Jake Moske, Earl Wright and myself," Kelley said.

"Bailey wrote our first constitution," he added.

Bailey is a retired principal at Manchester High, a school that Kelley coached and taught for 10 years. He was also a former director of athletics.

The Distinguished Service Honor Roll of the chapter lists Kelley as Honorary Life President and Christie McCormick as Honorary Life Secretary. The latter, also a long-time Manchester resident, joined the board soon after it was organized and served as secretary for more than a quarter century.

The Honor Roll also includes Chick Toomey, Joe Bell, Andrei, Sacchere, and the late Jim Horvath among Manchester men.

Central Connecticut members from Manchester who went on to greater heights and assignments with the New York Chapter of the Eastern College Athletic Football Officials group working major college games, were Kelley, Toomey, Andrei and McCormick.

Kelley served a two-year term as president in 1933-34. Sacherer was the proxy in 1952. Toomey in 1958-59. Andrei in 1961 and Horvath in 1966.

Six Penn State Players Spice UPI All-America

NEW YORK (UPI) - It was almost as if Chuck Fusina would have felt uncomfortable being the only Penn State player named to the United Press International 1978 All-America college football team.

"Now I feel better," the quarterback said Monday night after learning five of his teammates join him on the squad in what is becoming a glorious season for the top-ranked and Sugar Bowl-bound Nittany Lions.

"Those guys getting on sure make me great."

"I'm really honored. It's super for the whole program, not just for the players."

Five defensive tackles Bruce Clark and Matt Miller, anchors of Penn State's powerful defense, were named to the defensive unit by teammate Pete Harris, a junior safety who led the nation in pass interceptions. Tackle Keith Dorney and kicker Matt Bahr were selected to

Pearson Catches Snapped

IRVING, Texas (UPI) - In the 11th week of the 1978 season, during a game in which Dallas beat the Houston Oilers, 10-0, Drew Pearson did not catch a pass.

That did not happen again until Sunday in Texas Stadium, when Pearson was shut out without a catch for the first time in 38 games.

"It upsets me that I was not able to catch a pass against New England's secondary," said Pearson, a free agent flanker who has made some of the most critical catches in Cowboys' history.

"They have a bunch of good athletes, but I don't consider them to be a good secondary."

Pearson had two passes thrown to him in the opening quarter of Dallas' 17-0 victory, but neither was close enough to catch. No passes were thrown to him during the final three quarters.

"I didn't realize that he had not caught a pass until late in the game," said Coach Tom Landry. "It kills me when I realize it. But, we could risk throwing late in the game. It was a tough situation, and I regret it."

Quarterback Roger Staubach said that a tight end in the third quarter that tied the game, both Pearson and Tony Hill were open. But, Hill was more open than Pearson and when Staubach first looked Pearson's way he saw Pearson pointing toward the opposite sidelines where Hill had escaped behind the Patriots' secondary.

Chargers Impressive In Whipping Chicago

SAN DIEGO (UPI) - Coach Don Coryell was raving on the sidelines through most of the game, bursting with enthusiasm as his San Diego Chargers' impressed a nationwide television audience with a 40-7 victory over the Chicago Bears.

"It was a great Monday night," Coryell said, after the win that kept the Chargers' slim AFC wild-card playoff chances alive.

It had been billed as a battle of the running backs - Chicago's Walter Payton and San Diego's Lyell Mitchell. But it turned out to be a one-sided aerial and defensive show with Charger quarterback Dan Fouts in command.

"Some days everything happens and things go your way," Coryell said. "Last week we dropped interceptions (in a 23-0 loss to Kansas City) - this week we caught them. Last week we dropped passes - this week we caught them. The guys were fired up, they were excited and they played well. We worked hard in practice and it paid off."

Chicago Coach Neil Armstrong said his team felt good coming into the game but the Chargers played well and gave them "an old-fashioned whipping."

"Everything we did was not very well coordinated," Armstrong said. "We had a good feeling coming into the game but San Diego is an explosive team. Everything they did worked well."

San Diego mathematically remains in the wild-card picture for the AFC with a record of 7-7, but would have to win its remaining games to retain even the slimmest of hopes.

Fouts threw two touchdown passes and accumulated 300 yards passing, while the tenacious Charger defense contained Bears' running backs Roland Harper and Payton.

The Chargers scored 17 points in the first period and ran their lead to 23-0 at the end of the first half. The lead grew to 33-0 before Chicago's

Auditor Asking For More Time

MANCHESTER — The town's auditor has asked for an extension for completion of the annual audit of the financial records of Manchester.

This is the second straight year the auditor, Jerome Haskin & Co., has requested an extension.

The request surprised Joseph Sweeney, a Democratic member of the Town Board of Directors, who has been involved in fiscal matters.

The delay in the audit apparently is because some town records are not up to date and need to be completed before the audit of the 1977-78 fiscal year can be done.

It was stated to be told there were problems in the controller's office records," Sweeney said.

The problems apparently are connected with personnel changes in the office.

Deputy Controller Lillian Rubin retired early in the year, and it took several months to replace her. Some of the record-keeping that should have been done wasn't because of the shortage of staff.

It was stated last year's delay in the audit was caused by conversion from manual to computer recording in the collector of revenue's office.

Six Penn State Players Spice UPI All-America

NEW YORK (UPI) — It was almost as if Chuck Fusina would have felt uncomfortable being the only Penn State player named to the United Press International 1978 All-America college football team.

"Now I feel better," the quarterback said Monday night after learning five of his teammates join him on the squad in what is becoming a glorious season for the top-ranked and Sugar Bowl-bound Nittany Lions.

Those guys getting on sure make it great. I'm really honored. It's super for the whole program, not just for the player.

Nutter Dume, which has placed a player on the first string UPI All-America squad for 16 consecutive years, named center Dave Huffman and linebacker Bob Golic to the team. UCLA was represented by linebacker Jerry Robinson and sophomore defensive back Kenny Esley and Southern Cal named junior running back Charles White and offensive guard Pat Howell.

Rounding out the offensive squad were wide receiver Kirk Gibson of Michigan State, tight end Kellen Winslow of Missouri, tackle Matt Miller of Colorado and running back Ted Brown of North Carolina State.

Completing the defensive unit were Al Harris of Arizona State and Hugh Green of Pittsburgh, linebacker Tom Cousineau of Ohio State and deep back Johnnie Johnson of Texas. Green is a sophomore and Johnson is a junior.

Kinlaw, Robinson and Cousineau are repeaters from last year's squad. Alabama, the nation's second-ranked squad, did not have a player named to the All-America first team but the Crimson Tide placed three players on the second unit. Named to the second team were center Dwight Stephenson on offense and tackle of wide receiver Emanuel Tolbert of Southern Methodist as well as receiver: Mike Brammer of Michigan State at tight end; Anthony Manzo of Southern California and Jeff Toews of Washington at the tackle; Joe Bostic of Clemson and Steve Lindquist of Nebraska at the guards; Stephenson at center; Rick Leach of Michigan at quarterback; Charles Alexander of Louisiana State, Willie McClenon of Georgia and Eddie Lee Ivory of Georgia Tech at running backs and Tony Franklin of Texas A&M as the kicker.

Citizens Voice Concern About M Zone Request

By JUNE TOMPKINS
Herald Reporter
MANCHESTER — Mild opposition and concern were expressed by citizens at a Planning and Zoning Commission public hearing Tuesday on a request for zone change from Business Zone to Residence M Zone for property at Bidwell Street and Hartford Road.

Acting PZC chairman John Hutchinson recalled that the applicant's original application for a proposed combination shopping and apartment complex seemed feasible for a commercial business when it was approved last June.

Attorney Thomas Fitzgerald, representing Martie, said that the zoning situation could be a safety and health hazard.

Most of the budgets in the regular learning programs reflected modest increases, as low as 4% for the art program and up to 8% for the language arts program.

Board members questioned all proposed expenditures, such as a $10,360 allotment for replacement equipment for the business education program. That amount is for 20 to 23 new typewriters for the high school, at about $400 each, according to Assistant Superintendent Gerald Fitzgibbon.

Education Proposal Up 5.8%

MANCHESTER — School Superintendent James P. Kennedy presented the Board of Education with a preliminary budget for the 1978-79 school year Monday night with a modest increase of 5.8 percent.

The percentage increase is in keeping with the Board of Directors' Nov. 28 vote that all town budgets increase by no more than six percent next year.

Kennedy has been compiling data from the principals and other school administrators on recommendations for improvements. He said he should have some "preliminary thoughts" on improvements in about two weeks.

The line-by-line budget review by the board started earlier than ever this year. Eleanor Colman, chairman of the personnel and finance committee, said. Board members had requested the earlier review. There are several new members who have not gone through the budget process before.

Pearson Catches Snapped

IRVING, Texas (UPI) — In the 11th week of the 1978 season, during a game in which Dallas beat the Houston Oilers, 10-0, Drew Pearson did not catch a pass.

Pearson had two passes thrown his way in the opening quarter of Dallas' 17-10 victory, but neither was close enough to catch. No passes were thrown to him during the final three quarters.

"I didn't realize that he had caught a pass for the first time since I caught Tom Landry," it killed me when I realized it. But, we could risk throwing late in the game. It was a tough situation, and I regret it."

Quarterback Roger Staubach said Brian Barshagel coughed up the ball when Staubach first looked Pearson's way he saw Pearson pointing toward the opposite sidelines where Hill has escaped behind the Patriots' secondary.

Police Stage Raid at Game

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI) — Plainclothes officers arrested 23 persons in a raid on a group of disorderly marijuana and cocaine users during the Oakland Raiders-Denver Broncos football game at the Oakland Coliseum, police reported.

The halftime raid Sunday evening marked the second week in a row police arrested participants in a drug party on the bleachers at the stadium's north end. On Nov. 26, 25 persons were arrested or cited for drug and disorderly conduct charges.

Police said some persons began fighting with the 25 plainclothes officers, and there were charges that the officers used unnecessary force in subduing the crowd.

Earlier in the day, a $70,000 television camera belonging to the American Broadcasting Co. was stolen from a van in the club parking area. After the game, the victorious Denver team was delayed two hours at Oakland airport because of a telephoned bomb threat. No bomb was found.

Winning Football Title Penn State Goal with Alabama

NEW YORK (UPI) — Penn State has been saying all year long it wants to decide the national college football championship on the field. And that's just the way it will be done.

Penn State, No. 1 in the final UPI Bowl of Coaches rankings until after the bowl games, will face No. 2 Alabama in the Sugar Bowl — and the winner likely will be national champion.

"I think we're very fortunate to be in the position we're in," said Penn State defensive tackle Matt Milten, named Monday a UPI first-team All-America. "I think it's a great matchup. I like to think Penn State has some class and I know Alabama does. There is great tradition on both sides. It should be a very classy game."

Weather and Irish Too Much for Rice

NEW YORK (UPI) — It was a bit disconcerting for Rice's basketball team to leave the warm, sunny climate of Houston, Texas for the snow and freezing temperatures of South Bend, Ind., when the Irish turned around and walloped the Owls, 105-61, well, that was a bit much.

"It's been a tough trip," admitted Owl Coach Mike Schuler, whose team lost to Northwestern, 93-71, in equally chilly Evanson, Ind., on Saturday. "It's very difficult for a young team like ours to come in here and play the third-ranked team in America. It will be good to get back to the weather in Houston and our home court."

The young, inexperienced Owls had stayed within five to seven points of the No. 3 Irish through the first half, but with 4:48 to go Notre Dame came alive and gained a 50-26 advantage. Then, at the start of the second half, the Irish went on a 14-0 tear and the Owls never came close after that.

Bruce Flowers scored 17 points for the Irish and Rich Branning added 14 points and Kelly Trippuca 13.

Ebbert Darden led the Owls with a game-high 18 points as Rice dropped to 1-2.

"Rice did an excellent job in the first half, keeping with us and keeping that intensity," commented Notre Dame Coach Digger Phelps, whose team faces Northwestern Wednesday night.

Notre Dame, however, had little difficulty handling the Owls and Phelps said he was impressed with Flowers' play.

Phil, Rose Ready To Sign Pact Today

Phil, Rose Ready To Sign Pact Today

ORLANDO, Fla. (UPI) — From the very beginning, Pete Rose set his cap for the Philadelphia Phillies, and that's the one he'll put on officially today as the newest member of the club.

The announcement will be made in a special news conference at the baseball meetings where the bustling, 37-year-old switch-hitting superstar will be honored as baseball's Man of the Year after his season in the evening.

Rose's decision to accept a $3.2 million, four-year contract with the Phillies Monday followed a month of intense soul searching after becoming a free agent with Cincinnati two months ago. His decision was reached with the help of his attorney, Reuben Katz of Cincinnati, and was anything but an impulsive one.

Two years ago, while locked in a tense salary struggle with the Reds' front office, Rose stood alongside one of the club's spring practice fields in Tampa, Fla., and told me that if he decided to go for his free agency two years from then, the Phillies would be the club he wanted to play for.

"The reason for that," he said, "is because I'm an offensive player and they're an offensive club, so I'd fit in with them. Also, they're always a contender and I wouldn't want to play for some club on the bottom."

Another reason Rose kept looking toward the Phillies was because two very close friends of his, shortstop

Ford No Longer in Twin Future

ORLANDO, Fla. (UPI) — There is no longer a Ford in the Minnesota Twins' future and before the winter baseball meetings are over they may be without their Rolfs Royce — superstar Rod Carew.

There's a good chance Rod won't be back with us next year," admitted Twins' Manager Gene Mauch Monday only moments after the Twins dealt disgruntled Dan Ford to the California Angels for third baseman Ron Jackson and infielder Danny Gooden in the first trade of the meetings.

Ford and Carew had both expressed a desire to get away from Twins' owner Calvin Griffith, and Ford even had been happier with the deal.

"I didn't want to play in Minnesota any more," Ford said by telephone from his West Covina, Calif., home. "I tried to bid everything out of my mind last year."

In another trade, the Detroit Tigers also took steps to bolster their outfield by obtaining right-handed hitter Jerry Morales from the St. Louis Cardinals in exchange for right-handed pitcher Bob Sykes and Jack Murphy. Detroit also got relief pitcher Aurelio Lopez in the deal.

The Angels are delighted to have Ford. "We have a quality player who can run and hit with power," said Angels' Manager Jim Fregosi. "Dan Ford has never been a good first line and has better baters than we've had before," Miller says. "Most of them have come up through our youth program."

"We should improve on last year's record," Miller reported there will be a special discount rate for the opener for high school students.

Schedule: Dec. 6 Hall H, 9 Wethersfield H, 16 Farmington H, 20 Enfield H, 22 Maloney A, 23 Hall A, 27 Concord H, 28 Wethersfield A, 30 Glastonbury H, Jan. 5 Simsbury A, 11 Windsor A, 13 Enfield A, 18 Glastonbury A, 20 Concord A, 25 Farmington A, 27 Windsor H, 31 Simsbury H, Feb. 3 Maloney H, 7 Fermi H, 12 Fermi A, 17 East Catholic H.

Mancheater High ice hockey team skates into its 1978-79 season Wednesday night against Hall High at the Bolton Ice Palace at 8:15.

The Indian picketers play all home games at the Ice Palace.

Mancheater has a compilation of 16 players including nine returning lettermen. Clyde Miller, team publicist, hopes this will enable the locals to remain fresh through the third period.

Mancheater will skate junior Bob Garretts and senior Tom Roach on the wings and senior Kelly McSweeney at center on the first line. Sophomore Scott Brown and junior David Thibodeau are the wingmen on the second unit with senior Mike Mumford at center.

McSweeney is captain and Roach and Mumford alternate captains. Juniors Glen Alcei and Rich Bidwell form the first defensive pairing with senior Marty Weinbaum and Michael Schoenberger, a sophomore, making up the second pair.

Junior John Mumford will be between the pipes as starting goalie.

Freshman Dwight Anderson and LaVon Williams scored 17 points each as the Wildcats raised their record to 2-0.

Leading by only a point at the half, LSU racked up 70 second-half points as Al Green scored 24 of his 29 points to lead the charge.

Darnell Valentine scored 10 of his line and finished with 20 to lead the Jayhawks.

The Tar Heels, led by Mike O'Brien's 26 points, outscored South Carolina over Harvard, 65-71; Drake beat Iowa State, 66-77; Purdue downed North Carolina, 91-57; Vanderbilt defeated The Citadel, 78-63; Baylor edged North Texas, 109-102; Mississippi State defeated Southern Mississippi, 87-78; Mississippi over Bowling Green, 100-78; Nevada-Las Vegas trounced Maryland, 94-88; Pepperdine got by Oregon, 74-58; Washington topped Utah, 74-56; Washington handed Montana, 84-44; DePaul ripped the Eastern Michigan, 96-68; and Furman edged by North Carolina-Charlotte, 91-73.

Washington has now lost seven straight and Coach Danny Bellisle has no answer to the problem.

"This is the low point of the season," he said. "It's built up to this gradually. When it rains it pours."

The Kings tried in four goals in the first period and five in the third as they bombarded rookie goaltender Rollic Boutin, who was starting his first NHL game.

Los Angeles Coach Bob Berry was

Larry Bowa and Greg "The Bull" Luzinski, were with them, and more than that, he had always liked the city of Philadelphia and the emotion shown by their fans.

Rose, who played third base for the Reds this year, will handle first base for the Phillies. Richie Hebner, the Phil's first baseman this past season, will move on in a trade, possibly to the Cubs for Manny Trillo or to the Mets in a deal involving Jerry Kosman.

He's too good a hitter to sit on the bench," said Phillies' General Manager Paul Owens.

At the start of their meeting with the Phillies offered him $1.8 million for three years and by the end of the session they were up to $2.1 million for three, which Rose still didn't consider enough.

Mean while, Rose continued listening to offers from the St. Louis Cardinals, Pittsburgh Pirates, Kansas City Royals and Atlanta Braves. In the end, however, Rose decided to go with the team of his first choice, the Phillies, even though they were not the highest bidder.

Rose's salary with the Phillies next year will be more than three times what it was this year with the Reds, who paid him $265,000.

Baseball

didn't make out too badly in the swap. Both Jackson and Gooden are young players with potential.

Before they signed Pete Rose, the Philadelphia Phillies had expressed an interest in obtaining Carew. They were putting together a package offer that might have interested the Twins, but now it appears Minnesota will offer Carew elsewhere.

The Twins are practically forced to trade Carew this year or risk losing him to free agency after next season. Detroit has been searching for a right-handed power-hitter and thinks it has found the answer in Morales.

Morales, an All-Star with the Chicago Cubs two years ago, was traded to St. Louis at last year's meetings but hit only 236 with four homers for the Cardinals.

However, a return to a park like Tiger Stadium, which is more suited to his power, is expected to rejuvenate him.

"I predict he will be one of the top outfielders in the American League this year," said Tigers' Manager Les Moss. Moss said he plans to play Morales in right field.

Sykes, 30, was 6-4 with Detroit last year and 4-0 at Evansville of the American Association. Cardinals' Manager Ken Boyer plans to use him as a spot starter and long reliever.

Murphy, 21, spent the entire season at Evansville and posted a 5-1 record. In obtaining Lopez, a 30-year-old Mexican, the Tigers have acquired a relief specialist who posted a 6-4 record at Springfield, Ill., and a 4-2 record with the Cardinals.

With the Rose situation settled, the trading activity is expected to end by late Friday or Saturday.

Fired by Cincinnati only seven days ago, the Reds' hyper, popular little ex-pit is practically in the same boat as his old switch-hitting third baseman, Pete Rose, who will become an overnight multi-millionaire any minute now.

Anderson has the finest overall record of any manager around today. He's a free agent, can pick his spot and write his own ticket.

What puts him in such prime position is that a number of clubs are drooling over the idea of having him manage for them and although all have their managers signed for the upcoming season, there's no rule that says a ball club can't pay off a manager. It's been done hundreds of times before.

Soon after arriving at these baseball meetings, I came upon the information that two clubs already had relayed word to Anderson that they would like to have him manage next season. Not in 1980, but in 1979.

Speaking with him over the phone in a call to his home in Thousand Oaks, Calif., I asked Anderson about it. The silence on the other end was deafening. He didn't say a word, either yes or no, and knowing him as I do, I automatically realized without him even telling me that his silence was a form of acquiescence.

Dick Wagner, the Reds' president, has been catching all kinds of hell for his surprisingly sudden firing of Anderson, who led Cincinnati to two world championships, four pennants and five division titles and has the best winning percentage of any manager in history outside of Joe McCarthy.

Wagner, who has a great deal of personal regard and affection for Anderson, isn't flinching a bit in the upcoming season, there's no rule that says a ball club can't pay off a manager. It's been done hundreds of times before.

Anderson feels the same way about it. "You can never go back home," he said.

The Reds are paying him for the 1979 season and when I asked Anderson whether he intends staying out the whole year, he said no.

"I'll be at a game every single night," he said, meaning either a Dodgers or Angels game. "I'll be managing both clubs myself, not to give my thoughts to any writers, but strictly for myself. Right now, the 26 clubs all have managers. What right do I have to say I'll return? Yes, I'll return someplace — in 1980, but not now."

Anderson is due in Cincinnati today. He's going back to Riverfront Stadium to pick up his belongings with the help of his best friend, Bernie Stowe, the Reds' equipment manager, and to say goodbye to friends.

Indian Skaters Open Wednesday

By LEN AUSTRER Herald Sports-writer

Looking to improve on last year's 2-16 mark, Mancheater High ice hockey team skates into its 1978-79 season Wednesday night against Hall High at the Bolton Ice Palace at 8:15.

The Indian picketers play all home games at the Ice Palace.

Mancheater has a compilation of 16 players including nine returning lettermen. Clyde Miller, team publicist, hopes this will enable the locals to remain fresh through the third period.

Mancheater will skate junior Bob Garretts and senior Tom Roach on the wings and senior Kelly McSweeney at center on the first line. Sophomore Scott Brown and junior David Thibodeau are the wingmen on the second unit with senior Mike Mumford at center.

McSweeney is captain and Roach and Mumford alternate captains. Juniors Glen Alcei and Rich Bidwell form the first defensive pairing with senior Marty Weinbaum and Michael Schoenberger, a sophomore, making up the second pair.

Junior John Mumford will be between the pipes as starting goalie.

Freshman Dwight Anderson and LaVon Williams scored 17 points each as the Wildcats raised their record to 2-0.

Leading by only a point at the half, LSU racked up 70 second-half points as Al Green scored 24 of his 29 points to lead the charge.

Darnell Valentine scored 10 of his line and finished with 20 to lead the Jayhawks.

The Tar Heels, led by Mike O'Brien's 26 points, outscored South Carolina over Harvard, 65-71; Drake beat Iowa State, 66-77; Purdue downed North Carolina, 91-57; Vanderbilt defeated The Citadel, 78-63; Baylor edged North Texas, 109-102; Mississippi State defeated Southern Mississippi, 87-78; Mississippi over Bowling Green, 100-78; Nevada-Las Vegas trounced Maryland, 94-88; Pepperdine got by Oregon, 74-58; Washington topped Utah, 74-56; Washington handed Montana, 84-44; DePaul ripped the Eastern Michigan, 96-68; and Furman edged by North Carolina-Charlotte, 91-73.

Washington has now lost seven straight and Coach Danny Bellisle has no answer to the problem.

"This is the low point of the season," he said. "It's built up to this gradually. When it rains it pours."

The Kings tried in four goals in the first period and five in the third as they bombarded rookie goaltender Rollic Boutin, who was starting his first NHL game.

Los Angeles Coach Bob Berry was

Larry Bowa and Greg "The Bull" Luzinski, were with them, and more than that, he had always liked the city of Philadelphia and the emotion shown by their fans.

Rose, who played third base for the Reds this year, will handle first base for the Phillies. Richie Hebner, the Phil's first baseman this past season, will move on in a trade, possibly to the Cubs for Manny Trillo or to the Mets in a deal involving Jerry Kosman.

He's too good a hitter to sit on the bench," said Phillies' General Manager Paul Owens.

At the start of their meeting with the Phillies offered him $1.8 million for three years and by the end of the session they were up to $2.1 million for three, which Rose still didn't consider enough.

Mean while, Rose continued listening to offers from the St. Louis Cardinals, Pittsburgh Pirates, Kansas City Royals and Atlanta Braves. In the end, however, Rose decided to go with the team of his first choice, the Phillies, even though they were not the highest bidder.

Rose's salary with the Phillies next year will be more than three times what it was this year with the Reds, who paid him $265,000.

Pronovost Fired By NFL Sabres

By BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI) — "Gentlemen, its been nice working with you. I've just been fired."

With those words, Marcel Pronovost told his Buffalo Sabres players that he had been fired as coach after two years.

Shortly before, during the Monday morning practice, he told the players that Sabres' president and head chairman Seymour Knox III had fired General Manager George "Punch" Imlach.

In a brief statement, Knox said he had made his decision "after careful thought."

Knox said a new coach would be named "in the next few days" and a general manager "at a later date."

In the meantime, team scout Bill Inglis would supervise practices, he said.

The Sabres next game is Thursday against the Los Angeles Kings.

The firings came in the wake of bad trade weekend losses to the Montreal Canadiens. The Canadiens outscored Buffalo 12-2 in the games.

The Sabres also bowed last Thursday to Boston Bruins, 4-2.

Many players expressed shock and disbelief at the news of the firings.

"I'm still stunned," said winger Zack 10 for the winner, Craig Phillips (36), Walt Bogar (15), Dave McKenna (15) and Bob Hartnett (12) paced Western.

"We've had problems the last few years, but I don't think you can blame him for all the problems," Ramsay said. "He got the players here and we've just had trouble getting together as a team."

Imlach was not in his usual Memorial Auditorium seat Sunday night as the Sabres dropped a 4-1 decision to the Canadiens. He watched the game on television in his office as the lans sang "Goodbye, Imlach" late in the game.

Pronovost, 48, guided the Sabres to a 44-19 record during his first season as coach last year. The former all-star defenseman with the Detroit Red Wings and Toronto was inducted into the Hockey Hall of Fame last June.

Anderson Sounded Out for New Job

By MILT RICHMAN ORLANDO, Fla. (UPI) — On the beach less than a week, Sparky Anderson already has been invited back in the water.

To be more specific, he's been sounded out about a couple of new managing jobs for this coming season and very likely will accept one when the climate is a little better — maybe even before the season opens.

Fired by Cincinnati only seven days ago, the Reds' hyper, popular little ex-pit is practically in the same boat as his old switch-hitting third baseman, Pete Rose, who will become an overnight multi-millionaire any minute now.

Patriots Wasted Opportunities

IRVING, Texas (UPI) — New England Patriots wasted several golden scoring opportunities Sunday in their 17-10 loss to the Dallas Cowboys.

"First of all, I want to give credit to Dallas," Patriots Head Coach Chuck Fairbanks said after the game. "They deserved to win."

"But, several things happened that were important in the outcome of the game. The call-back of (quarterback Steve) Grogan's touchdown run at the end of the first half was a big thing."

"You bet I was on it," Conn said. "You bet I was on top of me. I had the ball under me, and then I fell movement so I grabbed it harder. The official was saying, 'Let's go, let's get up.' Then, they gave the ball to Dallas," by (Mike) Hayes was another."

The fumble by Hayes ended New England's last real hope of coming up with a tying touchdown and throwing the game into overtime.

New England's Dick Conn had actually recovered the ball Hayes fumbled.

Vernon Mulls Charge For Sewage Treatment

By BARBARA RICHMOND
Herald Reporter

VERNON — Federal regulations require that the entire cost of running a sewage treatment plant must come from the users. Joseph Belanger, chairman of the Sewer Authority, said at a public hearing last night.

The hearing was on a proposed ordinance to set user charge rates to accommodate the much higher cost of running the town's new $16 million plant which was built mostly with federal money.

The plant isn't in full operation yet and Belanger said he expects the costs will go up. The charges being considered are to be levied on the bills can go out in the January tax bills.

The average bill now would be about $70 per year as compared to the $21 now being charged.

The three hearings conducted by the Town Council Monday night lasted until midnight. The council met briefly afterwards in regular session, took care of a few essential items, and then recessed the meeting until next Monday in order to have time to digest comments made at the hearing.

Belanger said the users will be billed semi-annually and the town expects to collect $300,000 in this first billing but it will be more in the second half, even staying with the same rate, because the first half is not going to be for a full half year.

Charles Pitkat, superintendent of the treatment plant said he estimates it will cost $300,000 in this first billing but it will be more in the second half, even staying with the same rate, because the first half is not going to be for a full half year.

The Department of Environmental Protection forced the town to build the new plant and said it has to have 90 percent removal and should be sufficient to accommodate the area for at least the next 20 years.

Milton Sorokin, attorney representing the Amerbel Corp. of Rockville, said his client had the unfortunate distinction of sharing the major burden of the cost and could be paying more than $283,000.

He said in July 1956 an agreement was made with Amerbel, then American Dyeing Corp., that the firm be allowed to release sewage without charge so the plant has no obligation to pay. The agreement was made between the firm and the then government of the City of Rockville.

He said the firm has, however, been paying an assessment for a number of years, under protest, but the amounts were relatively modest compared to the proposed costs.

He said the problem is if the firm refuses to pay because of the past agreement it would mean the costs would have to be passed on to the other customers. He added that the proposed cost is so enormous that the firm doesn't have any other course but to study alternatives and "this puts us in a dilemma," Attorney Sorokin said.

Steve Lamont, representing the ad hoc Sewer Study Committee of the Rockville Area Chamber of Commerce, cautioned the council that if the increase in rates is approved it would have far-reaching effects on the town, including the loss of industry. He said he thinks the town should look for other ways to handle the situation.

Erik Santini, a local builder, who said he is chairman of the Landlords Committee for Fair Sewer User Charges, also objected to the new rate scale. He urged the council to do something and "don't keep shoving this under the rug."

Councilwoman Lena Theriault suggested that maybe metering would be fair. Belanger agreed to consider this but not for six months because the money is needed now, and a meter system would take time.

The ordinance states that for all residential structures and transient lodging facilities the charge will be $35 for each dwelling unit.

For other than residential users, the charge will be determined by multiplying the average daily flow by $140,000 per thousand gallons per day.

Santini made a plea to the council "not to adopt a flat fee system but rather to develop a system that is fair to all."

Dear Abby
By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I've heard everything. Our lawyer son plans to marry a young woman lawyer. But instead of her taking our son's name, HE is going to change HIS name to HERS! They plan to set up a law office together as "Blank and Blank" (The blank being her maiden name). I asked them what name their children would have, and they said they'd deal with that if and when it came up. My question: What about perpetuating our family name? He's our only son, and if he doesn't pass our name on to his children that will be the end of the line. Do you blame us for feeling hurt and upset?

BURNING IN SAN DIEGO
DEAR BURNING: Appeal his decision to let her wear the shag in the family. Plead your case again. He has the right to change his name, but you have the right to try to change his mind.

DEAR ABBY: I would appreciate a published reply to my problem so that others who share it will benefit. I recently underwent surgery for the removal of a tumor which proved to be malignant. I have every reason to believe that the surgeon removed every trace of the tumor and that there will be no recurrence. I have many people who think every cancer victim is "terminal." I choose not to mention it in connection with my surgery. I don't want to worry my friends and family, nor could I tolerate their constant queries about my condition. My problem is what to tell those well-intentioned friends who ask, "Was it malignant?" I don't want to lie. But if I tell the truth, I know they'll worry even though I try to reassure them. They will believe I will live with my tumor. Mum is 54, divorced, is good health and does part-time work when she feels like it. She drives her own car and has no money worries. Mum makes no effort to make friends of her own, but expects me to include her in everything I do. If I make plans without her she puts and won't speak to me for days. She also finds something wrong with every man who shows an interest in me. I would like to move into a place of my own, but my mother has a difficult time letting go. She accuses me of being ungrateful and selfish. She raised me alone, having divorced Dad when I was 5. I South started right when he was on the first beat in his own hand and should play three rounds of trump, stopping in dummy. Then he should be in and lead a red card. South would win in dummy and lead a second club. If East ducked South would check a diamond. If East played his king, South would ruff, get back to dummy with whichever red king South had, and discard his losing diamonds.

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: I am a 33-year-old legal secretary and I don't mind telling you I feel plenty foolish writing to Dear Abby, but here goes: I still live with my mother. Mum makes no effort to make friends of her own, but expects me to include her in everything I do. If I make plans without her she puts and won't speak to me for days. I have every reason to believe that the surgeon removed every trace of the tumor and that there will be no recurrence. I have many people who think every cancer victim is "terminal." I choose not to mention it in connection with my surgery. I don't want to worry my friends and family, nor could I tolerate their constant queries about my condition. My problem is what to tell those well-intentioned friends who ask, "Was it malignant?" I don't want to lie. But if I tell the truth, I know they'll worry even though I try to reassure them. They will believe I will live with my tumor. Mum is 54, divorced, is good health and does part-time work when she feels like it. She drives her own car and has no money worries. Mum makes no effort to make friends of her own, but expects me to include her in everything I do. If I make plans without her she puts and won't speak to me for days. She also finds something wrong with every man who shows an interest in me. I would like to move into a place of my own, but my mother has a difficult time letting go. She accuses me of being ungrateful and selfish. She raised me alone, having divorced Dad when I was 5. I South started right when he was on the first beat in his own hand and should play three rounds of trump, stopping in dummy. Then he should be in and lead a red card. South would win in dummy and lead a second club. If East ducked South would check a diamond. If East played his king, South would ruff, get back to dummy with whichever red king South had, and discard his losing diamonds.
