Golda Meir Dies

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Former Prime Minister Golda Meir, the first lady of Israeli politics, died today in a Jerusalem hospital at the age of 80.

The state-run Israeli radio said Mrs. Meir died in the Hadassah Hospital — where she had been under treatment for jaundice. She had spent most of the past four months in the hospital.

She was spending most of her time sleeping in a room in the hematology ward of Hadassah Hospital, spokesman Azariah Rappaport said.

Prime Minister Menachem Begin telephoned the hospital immediately after his arrival in Oslo for information about her condition, the bulletin said. He is Israel's sixth prime minister; Mrs. Meir was the fourth.

Stock Offered

HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI) — United Technologies Corp. says it plans to purchase about 85 percent of the stock offered by Carrier Corp. shareholders in its attempt to take over the air conditioning giant.

UTC officials Thursday said it has received offers of nearly a million more shares of Carrier stock than it had estimated earlier this week, and revised its original plans to buy more than 80 percent of the tendered stock.

The Hartford-based UTC said its final count shows shareholders have offered the equivalent of 19,882,799 shares of common stock in the Syracuse, N.Y., air conditioner manufacturer.

UTC estimated it had received offers for about 19 million shares after its tender offer expired Monday.

Dollar Increases

LONDON (UPI) — The dollar opened marginally lower today in very quiet trading on European foreign exchanges. Gold rose about $2.

London dealers said most banks had acted on year-end considerations and business was largely confined to customer orders.

The pound rose to $1.9530 against the dollar from the overnight $1.9515.

In Frankfurt the dollar opened at 1.9175 marks against 1.9173 marks, against 1.7109 Swiss francs, and in Paris it was 4.3950 francs against 4.4025 francs Thursday.

Plans Announced

STRATFORD (UPI) — The Sikorsky Aircraft Division of United Technologies Corp. today announced plans to lease a building in West Haven for consolidation of tool fabrication and storage activities.

Sikorsky President Gerald J. Tobias said approximately 200 employees will be transferred to the 213,000 square foot West Haven facility from other company locations in Bridgeport and Stratford.

Tobias said the decision to lease the West Haven property owned by Donar Properties Inc. of New York City, coincides with Sikorsky's termination of a short-term lease of space in Shelton.

The helicopter manufacturer employs about 8,000 persons at its Stratford, Bridgeport and Norwalk facilities.

GOOD GRIEF! I HAVEN'T EVEN MADE UP MY CHRISTMAS LIST YET!

Iran Protestors Fire U.S. Plant

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) — Anti-American demonstrators today set fire to the headquarters of the Grumman Aircraft Co. as hundreds of wives and children of U.S. servicemen stationed in Iran were flown out on a voluntary basis.

Diplomats said several American citizens were working inside Grumman's three-story office building in Isfahan, the ancient capital of Persia, when demonstrators shouting anti-American slogans set it on fire. "Everyone inside escaped unharmed," one diplomat said. "But the American community in Isfahan has already dropped from 12,000 to 8,000 people and it's going down more now."

In the capital, hundreds of military dependents boarded Air Force cargo planes under heavy guard at Mehrabad military airfield.

Officials refused to say how many of the estimated 1,800 dependents of the 850 U.S. servicemen had joined the exodus, sparked by fears of new bloodshed in the "holy war" declared by opponents of the Shah.

One military source whose family was among those leaving said "about 80 percent of the wives and children decided to get out. This whole operation is taking place because of pressure our families and friends put on the government in Washington."

The military dependents were being flown out on Air Force jets which normally fly cargo to and from Tehran.

The latest airlift of Americans from the riot-torn nation followed a massive demonstration in Tehran's main cemetery, which raised fears of new bloodshed in the opposition's drive to oust the Shah.

The State Department has offered the same free trips out of Iran to dependents of civilian officials. It was not known how many of those joined the exodus.

But at the civilian air terminal, hundreds of American, German and Iranian families sat among piles of luggage waiting for flights to Europe and Israel.

"The atmosphere was chaotic, with all scheduled flights booked solid and those on waiting lists numbering at least 50 percent of those with confirmed bookings."

"It was very exciting and great fun living in Iran until they started shooting," said Joyce Lazar, whose husband works for American Bell International.

Mrs. Lazar said she and her 13-year-old daughter Michelle were going home to New York.

Hazel Hutt Ends Long Career

By CHARLIE MAYNARD

Herald Reporter
GLASTONBURY — Hazel Hutt leaned back in her chair, glanced out the window and summed up her feelings on 32 years as the town's Director of Social Services.

"It becomes a way of life for you. I'm going to miss it. I'll have a hard time getting unangled."

Although Hutt retired at first to recant some of her accomplishments ("This is like writing your own obituary"), she cited activities which showed her off-duty hours as well as her working hours were devoted to service to others.

She has — at various points in her life — been a member of the Hartford chapter of the Red Cross and active disaster service, a member of the Salvation Army, the founder of the South Glastonbury Girl Scouts council and an honorary life member of the Glastonbury Visiting Nurses Association.

Honors bestowed upon her include the Distinguished Service Award from the Rotary Club last April and the National Grange Community Citizen Award in 1977 from Goodwill Grange No. 1. She was the first woman in town to receive the Rotary award.

Mrs. Hutt has indicated she will retire, effective Jan. 1, although she added she will probably remain on a "contract basis" during the transitional period. Fellow town employees honored the town's lone female executive with a dinner party Thursday night at the Glastonbury Hills Country Club.

In an interview in her office Thursday afternoon, Mrs. Hutt said the twists of fate which led her to the town's welfare department in 1947 was an "odd sort of thing."

Mrs. Hutt said the Director of Social Services was a political appointment in those days, and both the Glastonbury and East Hartford directors lost their jobs through "some political thing" in 1943.

The ex-East Hartford man became Glastonbury's director eventually. Mrs. Hutt was a member of the commission which hired the new director. But the director's wife became ill and so did he later on.

Mrs. Hutt acted as an interim director until the man recovered, trying to keep his job.

But he eventually retired, and Mrs. Hutt took over the department which consisted of her and a part-time clerk. Today, the department includes those positions plus one secretary and two social workers.

Mrs. Hutt is exiting after one of the busiest times of the year for the department. Since the early 30s, the department has held Christmas toy shops for the kids she refers to as "my children."

She said the toys are brought to the community hall in Welles Village and the mothers are allowed to choose toys for their children.

Mrs. Hutt said local civic organizations have donated the toys while children have also chipped in with canned goods as well. To her, this was always the special time of the year, and she said, "I'm going to miss it."

White Refereeing

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — The Democrats, who usually tune up for their battles with the Republicans by fighting among themselves, may have found another natural-born referee to lead their party.

Robert Strauss, who led the party back to the White House after its 1972 debacle, had that talent. So, apparently, has fellow Texan John White, who took over chairmanship of the Democratic National Committee a year ago.

White demonstrated his ability Thursday at party leadership meetings preceding the 1978 Democratic mini-convention, which opens for a three-day run with an appearance by President Carter tonight.

Crash Probe Begins

ENFIELD (UPI) — Federal authorities today began investigating a fiery plane crash which claimed the lives of two officials of a Massachusetts textile firm and an experienced company pilot.

Federal Aviation Administration investigators were sifting through charred wreckage and debris in the wooded area where the small twin-engine plane crashed Thursday during a business flight from Palmer, Mass., to Baltimore.

The Beechcraft Baron BE-55 plane crashed at 7:40 a.m., about 10 minutes after leaving Metropolitan Airport in Palmer. It went down about a mile from town, knocking over trees in its path.

HAFTFORD (UPI) — Sen. Audrey Beck, D-Manfield, thinks Virginia and Rhode Island have something to offer Connecticut.

She came to that conclusion Thursday after spending a full day exchanging ideas with legislators and fiscal experts from other states.

Mrs. Beck and a number of other Connecticut lawmakers participated in a conference at the Capitol sponsored by the National Conference of State Legislatures, the Department of Housing and Urban Development and the Advisory Commission on Intergovernmental Relations.

Virginia now has a law that requires local officials to print newspaper ads whenever property taxes are about to be raised.

"It's kind of a Proposition 13 approach," Mrs. Beck said. "It puts the brakes on it, forces them (municipal officials) to bring tax increases more aggressively to the attention of taxpayers."

Mrs. Beck said she was hopeful Connecticut would follow Virginia's lead.

At the conference, legislators and fiscal officials from Virginia, Colorado, Rhode Island, Massachusetts, Texas and Pennsylvania "compared notes" with Connecticut lawmakers on various fiscal management policies.

The conference was the fourth of four held around the nation by ACIR and HUD to promote better fiscal management.

Mrs. Beck, co-chairman of the Connecticut Legislature's Finance Committee, was particularly interested with the way Rhode Island handles the sticky issue of property tax.

The Mansfield Democrat liked what she heard from E.M. Miller, a staff attorney in the Virginia Legislature.

Mrs. Beck said she was hopeful Connecticut would follow Virginia's lead.

Sylester from Rhode Island's Department of Community Affairs. He explained how in his state a bill must include a fiscal note telling how much the legislation will cost a city or town.

Unlike other states, bills in Rhode Island must also explain to municipal officials and the public how those numbers were arrived at.

Mrs. Beck said Connecticut should adopt similar legislation so that "we can provide the reasoning behind the numbers."

She was less enthusiastic about an ACIR proposal that would require states to pay for programs that mandate for municipalities.

"I personally run on a platform that I won't mandate programs that the state can't pay for," she said. "But it would be a mistake to always guarantee it in a statutory provision. Sometimes it's just not practical."

ACIR is a 20-year-old federal agency that assists fiscal officials at the state and local levels.

Harley Duncan who works for ACIR explained why the conferences were held. "The federal government gives the states a lot of money and they would like to see it managed properly," he said.

Alternate Space Uses For School Presented

By SUSAN VAUGHN

Herald Reporter - Several alternate and compatible uses for surplus school spaces were recommended by a subcommittee on school planning Thursday night. The alternate uses included pre-school and day and evening care programs, senior citizens centers and programs, municipal and civic organizations offices, library, regional education programs and other arts, adult education and recreation programs. Charles Senteio, chairman of the subcommittee and principal of Keesey School, stressed that the educational needs of the students occupying the school by the first consideration in deciding if there should be alternate uses. Area Police Report

South Windsor - Three Hartford men were charged, about 4 a.m. today, with second-degree larceny, criminal trespassing and having a weapon in a motor vehicle. Police Chief John Kerrigan said an officer on patrol observed a car coming out of the driveway of the Hartford Arena on Route 5, the car was stopped and the officer saw some wheels in the back. The officer checked at Clifford Motors, to the rear of the arena, and discovered the wheels had been taken from a Cadillac parked there. The three men were held at the police station and were to be presented in court in East Hartford today. South Windsor Police are also investigating a complaint made by Central Record and Tape, 145 S. Crowd Attends Meeting On School Study Report

By DONNA HOLLAND - Herald Correspondent - The school study report — in fact, the turnout for the second public forum sponsored by the Board of Education to keep townspeople informed of the school study report, surpassed all previous meetings. The crowd that gathered at Bolton Elementary School Thursday night numbered more than 150 and included parents, students and teachers. A significant number of high school and younger students were in attendance. One student said they had been encouraged by their teacher to attend the meeting. The meeting was quiet. Some updated information was given to townspeople but very few questions were asked and very few people spoke. Those at the meeting were obviously supportive of keeping Bolton High School open. There was no opposition. The tempo is increasing for support to keep the high school open. The people in support apparently have felt that what all along but now they are becoming vocal about it. And they are supporting and encouraging positive talk and newspaper publicity about the high school. School Superintendent Raymond Allen reviewed updated enrollment figures for the high school. He said that figures for the high school are accurate because of the new homes being built. The projected figures for high school enrollment next year is 222 — Allen felt it could be as high as 275. He also reviewed the amount of money that would be needed to run the school, a $37,000 deficit in the 1983-84 school year with 600 students.

Haloburdo said the report on the accreditation of Bolton High School should be completed by the end of the year. He said he was told by the chairman of the accreditation committee that it gave "a very positive overview of our situation." Haloburdo said the school board members are visiting other high schools as part of their data gathering process. Costs to transport Bolton students to three area schools were reviewed and handout sheets about transportation costs, projected enrollments, and the consultant, were distributed at the meeting. Haloburdo said help from local organizations will be sought in doing the townwide survey next year. Harold Smith said, "The people in this room will decide whether or not the school stays open. If you want it to stay open, get out and support it. He said, "We have an excellent school environment and it would be a crime to let it go." One student, Peter McCarriek, praised the high school and said its relationship reflects not only the school but out into the community. "Things never get out of hand at the high school. But if they do, they are small things and they can be settled on Halloween."

Main Breaks Again

MANCHESTER - For the second time in 24 hours, a water line has cracked on West Middle Turnpike, and a town official thinks the state installed the wrong kind of pipe at the site. The first break, a five-foot long split in the pipe, occurred Thursday morning and was repaired. Jodanis said, "I wish all the board members would attend all the public forums and BHSFAC meetings." One man said, "It seems nobody wants to close the school, so why are we wasting our time with the study?" Haloburdo said, "The board felt there were a lot of rumors in the community about closing the school and we thought it to be put to bed once and for all."

Cheney Historic Area To Seek State Funds

MANCHESTER - The Cheney National Historical District Commission Thursday authorized Town Manager Robert E. Weiss to apply for state funds to be used to develop the Cheney Mills section. Weiss will ask for $23,000, part of which will go towards consultants fees. The town has already allotted $23,000 in Community Development Funds for the redevelopment project. Commission Member William FitzGerald, chairman of the planning committee, said the commission will hire a consultant who will suggest ways of renovating the Cheney Mills area. When the commission has advised for a consultant, they will accept resumes from which three or four applicants will be selected by the commission. Francis Mahoney, chairman of the firehouse committee, said he has talked with officials from the Connecticut Firemen's Historical Society about converting the Pine Street Firehouse into a museum. The society, which has no place at present to display its 3,000 items of fire-related memorabilia, is interested in the site. Mahoney and other commission members plan to meet within the next two weeks with Arthur Seliack, Fairfield, president of the society and discuss a possible lease and financial arrangements for staffing and maintaining the museum. The old firehouse was built and maintained originally by the Cheney family until about 20 years ago when the town began paying for its personnel, according to Town Fire Department Chief John Rivosa. He said the firehouse has been inspected and is structurally sound. Vivian Ferguson, a town board member, said she thought most of the Cheney buildings were built fairly sound. "But there is a lot of air that gets into that building through holes in the wall," she said. The commission has decided to meet the first Thursday of each month at 4:30 p.m. in the municipal building.

Tax Break Lures P&WA To Make Parts In Maine

Town Work Included In Bonding

MANCHESTER — Gov. Ella Grasso today asked the state Bond Commission to approve $425,000 for preliminary engineering for 23 transportation improvement projects, including three in Manchester.

The money represents part of the state's share for the projects, which will be paid for primarily with federal turn-in funds. These are funds that had been set aside for highway projects that were later cancelled.

The three Manchester projects to be funded are improvements at the Main and Center streets intersection, estimated cost $665,000; reconstruction of downtown Main Street, estimated cost $1,375,000; reconstruction of Adams Street from the Hockanum River to New State Road, estimated cost $665,000.

The 23 projects have been recommended by the Capitol Region Council of Governments and approved by the state and the federal Highway Administration. Federal funds will pay for 70 percent of the cost and the state and the town will pay 15 percent each.

No other projects from area towns were included in Mrs. Grasso's request today.

Five GOP Lawmakers Want Gaming Curbs

HARTFORD (UPI) — Five Republican lawmakers who claim legalized gambling is growing too big to control want to temporarily halt any new sources of betting revenues and restrict current betting operations in Connecticut.

The five said Thursday they want to put a clamp on the growing "vice" of legalized gambling for two years while a blue-ribbon panel studies its social and economic impact on the state.

Rep. John Mannix of Wilton at a Capitol news conference proposed legislation that would have the blue-ribbon panel also look into "the involvement of any practices which might be considered questionable."

During the study, performances at the Plainfield dog track and the state's jai alai arenas in Hartford, Bridgeport and Milford would be reduced by 20 percent each year.

Mannix estimated the four communities would lose about $1 million in revenues and he proposed a payback through direct state grants.

War's a Loser, Experts Agree
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The generals, the admirals and the nuclear experts seem to agree that nothing but the bugs could win in a U.S.-Soviet atomic war.

Retired Lt. Gen. Arthur Collins, who was the No. 2 U.S. Army commander in Europe, said that while planners talk of controlling events on a nuclear battlefield, "I doubt very much whether it could be done."

Other experts warned the world is entering a period of greater danger of nuclear holocaust, especially with struggles over Third World natural resources and the antagonism between the Soviets and the Chinese.

Medical Student Feted

MANCHESTER — Angelee Diana a second-year student at the University of Connecticut Medical School in Farmington, was honored Wednesday night and named Preceptor of the Year.

The honor was given her by Dr. Ted Safford, a board member of the Connecticut Academy of Family Physicians, which with the Department of Family Medicine of the University of Connecticut, sponsored the program.

Two days of each week, Miss Diana spent with a community health service agency observing how they work closely with the physician's needs and recommendations.

These workers have shown convincingly that in patients whose infarction is preceded by repeated episodes of anginal pain... the infarction may be precipitated by coronary spasm.

Writing in the New England Journal of Medicine, the doctors said they tried to determine the relationship between the events leading up to angina and actual heart attacks.

To do this, they took a sample of patients who entered their cardiac unit as possible coronary risks.

A myocardial infarction involves the death of tissue around the heart because of the blockage of blood vessels. Many have considered infarction and coronary thrombosis (a clot which blocks the passage of blood to the heart) as synonymous.

The 187 patients were tested over a four-year period starting in 1973. They underwent examinations monitoring the flow of blood into the heart, blood pressure, and numerous electrocardiographic tests.

Spasms in the heart were detected in 76 patients who underwent all the tests during angina and in those cases the vessels leading to the heart became constricted and blocked the flow of blood to the heart.

Dr. Eugene Braunwald of the Harvard Medical School wrote in an editorial accompanying the article that an infarction, or blockage of blood to the heart, can sometimes lead to heart attack.

Braunwald said the Italian study concludes that the spasms during angina, which cause the blood vessels leading to the heart to become constricted and blocked the flow of blood to the heart.

Music and stories will be included.

Spasms Can Lead To Heart Attacks

BOSTON (UPI) — Coronary spasms which occur during angina are often mistaken for a heart attack, but can eventually lead to the real thing in many patients, a team of Italian doctors reported Thursday.

The study headed by Dr. Atilio Maseri of the University of Pisa in Italy, found that angina is often preceded or accompanied by heart muscle spasms which can block the flow of blood to the heart and trigger a heart attack if the blockage lasts long enough.

Angina is defined as a suffocating pain, which can move down the arms when it occurs in the heart. Sometimes its symptoms are mistaken for actual heart attacks.

These workers have shown convincingly that in patients whose infarction is preceded by repeated episodes of anginal pain... the infarction may be precipitated by coronary spasm.

Writing in the New England Journal of Medicine, the doctors said they tried to determine the relationship between the events leading up to angina and actual heart attacks.

Economist Says Dollar Supports Were Well-Timed

NEW YORK (UPI) — Improvement in the U.S. dollar in world markets is solid and probably would have occurred without the administration's support package, says the man who foresaw the 1971 devaluation of the U.S. currency.

Business

Browne, who has just published "New Profits from the Monetary Crisis" (Morrow), said that for the first time in 10 years the dollar was underpriced and other major currencies were overvalued when one compares the economies of the countries involved.

When the Carter administration announced its support measures on Nov. 1, the dollar rose sharply and has remained stronger. But Browne says because of Federal Reserve monetary restraint, the "cyclical" inflation rate would have lowered and the dollar would have recovered even without the measures.

Browne is probably most widely known for his 1970 book, "You Can Profit from the Coming Devaluation," which predicted the 1971 and 1973 devaluations of the dollar. Investors who followed his advice in that book were said to have come out of the upheaval with a profit.

Browne said, "It implies some kind of knowledge that is not available to others." He said he studied U.S. economic and monetary policies and concluded devaluation was inevitable unless measures were taken to change those policies.

Although the immediate future for the dollar is brighter, Browne feels the long-term trend is down. Can that trend be turned around? "It can be done. The Swiss did it. Prices could come down, but as long as wages are artificially propped up they won't. A lot of changes would have to be made and that would be very difficult."

Kurland To Head Chamber

EAST HARTFORD — B. David Kurland was elected president of the East Hartford Chamber of Commerce for 1979.

Kurland is a graduate of William and Mary College in Williamsburg, Va., and Columbia University Graduate School of Business.

He is employed by Connecticut Bank & Trust Co. as vice president and commercial area manager for East Hartford.

Kurland is also a member of Rotary International, East Hartford, University of Hartford Associates, and the Greater Hartford Arts Council.

He is chairman for the 1979 East Hartford United Way campaign and was a participant in the Friendship Flight to Israel last February.

David and his wife Joanne reside in Glassboro with their daughter, eight.

Thanks Merchants Chamber of Commerce has announced it would like to thank the following merchants who contributed their time, donations and dedication to make the Christmas light program a success:

Connecticut Bank & Trust Co.; Center Tavern; Berner & Sons; Beneficial Finance System; Frontiers Printers; Sherman's Men's Wear; Anderson Jewelers; Society for Savings; Olmsted, Carroll & Co. Inc.; East Hartford Sewing Center; Sage-Allen; Harman's; Hecker Branch Limited; Warner & Warner Opticians; Industrial Uniform Co.; Clark Jewelers; Arthur's Fine Foods; and Onefour Matizing.

Survey Shows Shopping Habits

NEW YORK (UPI) — On an average weekday, four out of 10 adults go to food stores and one in four shop for other merchandise, according to a National Advertising Bureau survey.

Forty-four percent of those questioned said they looked forward to seeing daily newspaper ads, but only one in 10 felt the same about radio and television commercials.

Less than three in 10 said they looked forward to magazine ads.

By DONNA HOLLAND Herald Correspondent

BOLTON — The vandalism at Herrick Memorial Park continues to be a problem but this time it appears the culprits have been caught.

Stanley Bates, park director, left a notice on the girls' bathroom door that read, "To Henry Hyba and other concerned citizens — All of the graffiti, most of the dirt on the walls of this room was done by some other than the local Girl Scouts last evening."

proper party." Bates said this morning when he checked the building after the function was over. He said he was quite shocked at what he saw in the women's restroom.

He said there was graffiti on the wall and in some cases it had been cut into the plywood with some kind of instrument and apparently cigarette ashes were mixed with water and smeared on the walls.

He said there were a lot of black marks on the floor of the men's room and a loose roll of toilet tissue

Junior Recalls Prom

Success was a common word at the Junior Prom held on Friday night. After four weeks of hard work and numerous meetings the prom came and then quickly exited.

The cafeteria was the site of the prom, but through decorations and a spinning mirror ball, it looked like a dance hall. As people entered the prom they were presented a scroll, containing a lovely poem written by Martha Kenehl.

The group "Hartford" performed many new songs, and some old classics. The best music of the night was a swing song of the 40s, by Duke Ellington, which "Hartford" performed brilliantly.

Midway through the prom the lights were brought up. Mr. Mocadlo held everyone in suspense as he announced the Junior Prom Queen and her court. The court was composed of Katrina Walsh and Wendy Taylor. The Junior Prom Queen was Jon Pierce.

The three girls were presented with white roses. At this time they began the dancing to the theme, "Sharing the Night Together."

Following this dance, every girl was presented a blue carnation.

As every good thing must come to an end, so did the prom, at midnight. For many it was only the beginning of the night as they headed for various parties.

This prom must go down as one of the best. From all available information it was the largest Junior Prom ever. This was due in part to the hard work of Jon Pierce, Marc Edelen, and Sally Nasaka who made more than 60 percent of the decorations and put them up. "The Junior Prom, Sharing the Night Together," is a night that will always be remembered, and we know that everyone had a great time. — Jeff Lombardo

When, in the course of human events, it becomes necessary for high school seniors to take the SAT and break communication with sanity, some feel as though they have taken a beating, when all that has been challenged is the "game."

I refer, of course, to the college admissions game. The "game" is one that I agreed to enter upon birth into suburbia; one into which I was thrust even before cherubhood.

Gaining admission into even the least competitive college is a mass of paperwork, sweat, testing, and boredom. The process begins when the average student is very young.

I was asked to "start thinking about colleges" when I was in the third grade, or thereabouts.

I was told that in order to become a future Harvard prep, I must work myself into oblivion, even to the extent of skipping recess. The sacrifice, at the time, was too large to make. Time change.

The real "game" commences in the junior high year in high school. Students are given the opportunity to take the PSAT, a test that is designed both to prepare and frighten college bound students.

It is an unbelievably difficult assembly of queries, for which the company administering the test is paid a neat $3.50. After a while, the guidance office receives the test scores and informs the students of their relative stupidity.

Those who are less stupid move on into a competition for scholarship sponsored by who-knows-who. These tests are really not very important.

A cooling off period of about five months is then taken by the students in the game. At the end of the resting period, the SAT is "administered" — kind of like an injection. The SAT is a much of questions that are considerably less difficult than those on the PSAT. The Friday night before the SAT is given is the only weekend night of the year when students feel compelled to get some sleep.

For three and a half weeks following the magic Saturday, the players in the game leave their girlfriends, boyfriends, and enemies so they can rush home to the mailbox to find their scores. When the blue envelope finally arrives, there is joy — until it is opened. So much for excitement.

However, the marvelously congenial company that administers the test is kind enough to offer it several times. In this way, students are given the chance to do even worse than before.

Perhaps I shouldn't be so hard on the testing company. They do provide a few free services, such as distribution of scores and total breakdown and interpretation of the same.

When the player is finally satisfied with test grades received, the actual form for choosing a college arrives. Many students sit at a table with their scores in their left hand and their college handbook in their right, figuring where they can or cannot get in. The schools are then broken down into favorite locations, best possibilities for admission, and price ranges.

The player knocks the total down to three, and the race is on. There is usually a first choice school, one at which the players about a 50-50 chance. Next comes a backup school — one that the student considers an easy "yes."

The most interesting of the three choices is called the "dream" college. The player probably has little or no chance of gaining admission here, even to the point of drawing degrading chuckles from people who ask where he has applied.

Applications are filed — but only after they have been pawed by guidance counselors, teachers, friends, and parents. The school sends out the transcript of the most excruciating part of the game begins. The wait.

Most schools offer an early decision plan, in which students, sure of their first choice, can avoid a long wait. But most of the players apply in December or January — and are notified in April.

I am a player. I entered the game early this semester when I applied for early decision at a Massachusetts University. "I've got them beat," I thought. For the first time, I felt as though I was ahead of the game.

However, as the time before notification went on, I grew increasingly wary. "What if they say no? What if they hate me? What if...?"

I was trembling. Will they say no? Yes? Accepted? Excepted?

Finally, the envelope came. My hands were shaking too much to open it, but the sweat pouring from my skin pierced right through the white paper. I opened the all-powerful letter (a mere tree at one time), and scanned it for affirmation. It wasn't there — but neither did it say no.

After careful examination, I found the word "deferred." In effect, "Maybe, you will be notified in April with the rest of the class."

You can't win. — Mile Wilson

MHS Student Reviews New Rock Group

You turn on the radio, tune it into station number one and hear a fabulous new song called, "Hold The Line," which sounds like a cross between Kansas and Boz Scaggs.

Unfortunately you don't know who sings it.

Then you switch the station to station number two and you hear the same guitar riffs and piercing vocals as those you heard on station number one.

By this time you are really wondering who the group is.

So you switch the radio dial to station number three and once again you hear the words, "Hold the line, love isn't always on time."

When the song is over the DJ tells you the new group and its album are called "Toto."

The name doesn't sound familiar. The only thing you can relate it to is "The Wizard of Oz."

This well-produced album will soon be familiar everywhere. The group, Toto, consists of six very talented musicians who performed as the backup musicians for Boz Scaggs on his two latest albums.

These albums, "Silk Degrees" and "Down Two, Then Left," owe much of their success to these six men.

The next day you are in your favorite record store with a few dollars. As you search through the new releases section of the store, you come across the nicely-designed album with four letters on top, TOTO.

After purchasing this album you rush home and put it on your stereo.

The first song you hear is the well-orchestrated instrumental called, "Child's Anthem."

Next you hear the strong guitar riff and the exciting melody of "I'll Supply the Love."

After listening to the next three songs, "George Porgie," "You Are the Flower," and "Mamela Run," you decide that your favorite song of side one is "Mamela Run," written by David Paich, who wrote many songs for Boz Scaggs.

You flip the record over and decide that the first three songs on the side, "Giri, Goodbye," "Takin' It Back," and "Rockmaker," all could be hit AM singles.

Then the next group you listen to is the fantastic song that you found yourself humming all day.

While, "Hold The Line," is playing, your sister comes into your room and tells you that it's the song she's been in love with, and she can't remember the name of the group. Only that it has something to do with "The Wizard of Oz."

You tell your sister that the name of the band is Toto. You also tell her that they're a band that is going to be around for a long time.

She then goes to the record store and buys the album, and the next thing you know the whole school is talking about this fine debut album that is climbing the charts. — Todd Whitney

Oktoberfest Scheduled

After going without for two years, Manchester High students and their relatives were once again given the chance to attend the German Club's Oktoberfest.

November 17th turned out to be a success, with 130 people turning out at the Illing Junior High School cafeteria. Joining with the night's eating, singing, and dancing was Jacob Ludes, Manchester High's principal, and his family.

The Oktoberfest, directed by Mrs. MacLerny and Mrs. Lincoln, was put on by students from the first to the fourth year classes. Entertainment came in the form of the usual skills, dancing and singing in which everyone was asked to participate. A typical German dinner, prepared by Mrs. MacLerny and the cafeteria ladies, was followed by Mrs. Lincoln's ninth grade students from Bennet Junior High acting out a short skit of Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs, performed in German of course.

Thomas Demko, a third year student and an excellent piano player, played two selections from the audience, one of which was written by himself and further demonstrated his superior possession of talent.

A second skit, Little Red Riding Hood, was put on by German students from Manchester High and proved to be a source of much laughter.

Further entertainment came from first and second year students who performed some popular German folk dances. Following an assortment of delicious German desserts, door prizes in the form of Hummel candies, white elephants, and a bottle of wine were awarded to the holders of lucky ticket stubs.

The highlight of the evening came near the end of the festivities with the famous Grand March, in which not one person was seen to be sitting on the sidelines simply watching.

The evening was a lot of fun, and if you happened to miss it this year, don't pull your hair out, just make sure you go next year. As they say, the best get better. — Leann Stauffer

High School World Notes

Former co-captain of the MHS wrestling team, Chris Lut, is faring well in his exploits in college grappling. Now wrestling in the 150-pound class, the UConn freshman recently defeated a University of Hartford opponent by the score of 13-5. Chris wrestled in the 138-pound group while at Manchester.

Jim Richardson wrote an important article for The HSW several weeks ago. The piece concerned the danger imposed by the door of the faculty lounge. The editors of The World have been informed that the door will be rehung to open inward over Christmas vacation. Power of the press.

The members of the rock group "Kiss," have come out with solo albums. All four members of the band have had their albums released simultaneously by Casablanca. I can only hope that their individual efforts are better than their combined.

Speaking of rock groups: The best new group on the scene (if you're into "weird") is DEVO. The name is short for de-evolution, a process that brings man back to his beginnings.

The group performs eerie inter-pretations of popular music, and has some pretty crazy stuff of its own.

Brochures have been received on the New England Regional Student Program and are available from counselors.

This regional program makes it possible for Connecticut students who qualify for specific programs offered at other state colleges to receive preference in admission among out-of-state applicants, and to be charged a reduced tuition rate upon admission to the program. To be eligible, students must apply for a study program at another state college that is not available at their own state college system.

We have received copies of "Summer Jobs," which lists opportunities in the federal government for next summer. Guidance counselors have copies of this brochure.

New Feature Next Friday

Ardian, Manchester High School's art and literary magazine, has, in recent years, had trouble making ends meet.

We feel that if more exposure is given the organization there will be no problem of this type in the future. With the joint effort of Ardian and HSW an attempt to achieve this exposure will be made.

Next Friday the High School World will not appear for the first time this year. In its place will be the initial publication of Ardian in The Manchester Evening Herald.

This edition will contain poetry, photography, and art work all done by Manchester High School students. It will represent only a limited spectrum of Ardian's potential for future issues to be published in magazine form.

We hope that this public display of talent will inspire future interest in Ardian.

We hope you enjoy this special feature next week and we certainly think it to be worthwhile. — The Editors

Bolton Students May Study Here

Recently five members of the Bolton Board of Education visited Manchester High School with the intent of studying the building's capabilities and the students' attitudes toward the possibility of Bolton High School (BHS) students being based here in the next five to ten years.

MHS is one of three schools being taken into consideration for such a move.

The other two are E.O. Smith of Mansfield and Rockville High School.

All BHS students will be bused to the same school regardless, should the decision to move be made by the Bolton Board of Education.

Bolton High School faces one very big problem: enrollment has decreased to the point where it is no longer economical to keep the school in operation.

Built more than fifteen years ago, BHS is capable of holding 450 students. Present enrollment totals at 254 students. The building now holds ninth through 12th grades.

There are some options available to Bolton rather than bus the high school students to other towns. One of these would involve including the seventh and eighth grade students along with the regular ninth through 12th grades at BHS.

Another would be to modify curriculum for the remaining students, such as cutting elective classes.

The decision whether or not to close BHS will be made by the Bolton Board of Education by April of 1979.

Even if the decision to move is made, MHS is the rejected school, and if all the state and local red tape is cut through, the BHS students would not arrive until at least 1984. It would be impossible to guess how many BHS students may arrive here, but only high school students would be sent.

Coventry Council Renews Town Attorney Contract

COVENTRY — The Coventry Council has renewed the contract of Town Attorney Abbot Schwebel on a five-to-one vote. Only member Karan Nash voted against the reappointment.

Schwebel has been asked to write legal opinions on questions involving a municipal charter revision. For these services he receives an annual retainer of $5,000 plus legal fees for $150 for his successful defense of a case brought against the Planning and Zoning Commission by developer Richard Breen, who was protesting a new zoning regulation.

Another $412 was awarded to the attorney on a grievance brought to arbitration by a local teacher. Here Schwebel prepared a brief for the Board of Education, reviewed and analyzed the union's brief, prepared correspondence, and held telephone conferences. Schwebel has been town attorney under both Republican and Democratic councils. In addition to serving the council, he is legal adviser to several boards and commissions and to municipal personnel.

Schwebel's performance has been the topic of several closed-door sessions of the council in recent months. Councilman Douglas Whipple has criticized the attorney for not consulting sufficiently with the council and for being late in rendering opinions.

But councilwoman Roberta Kozintz was satisfied with Schwebel's work and pointed to two recent zoning cases he had won for the town. The attorney also has successfully defended town officials in complaints brought before the state's Freedom of Information Commission.

Council chairman Jack Myles noted that Schwebel was currently litigating numerous cases for Coventry. Among the most well known is an appeal by two town policemen to the State Labor Board. Disciplinary action was taken against them last summer by Chief Robert Kjellquist and Town Manager Frank Connolly.

Another case involves a suit brought against the M&M Oil Co. of Bolton for damage to the Pucker Street Bridge. Last winter another case involving the company plunged through the bridge after failing to meet posted load limit signs.

Other cases involve regulation of the water level of Coventry Lake, zoning matters, negligence, and dam condemnation.

Whipple abstained from the vote to renew the attorney's contract. He recently prevailed in a tax assessment suit brought against the Board of Tax Review concerning property he owns on Daly Road.

Whipple owns the old Zollo's building there, which he plans to convert into a restaurant, as well as a small coffee shop across from it.

FBI Raid For Tapes A Success

NEW YORK (UPI) — The FBI says half the nation's producers of pirated eight-track stereo tapes may have been put out of business by a series of raids on manufacturers and distributors in five states.

An estimated $100 million worth of audio recording equipment was seized by FBI agents in New York, Connecticut, New Jersey, Georgia and North Carolina.

The FBI said agents raised 19 manufacturers and distributors of pirated eight-track stereo tapes in the five states and confiscated mastering machines, duplicators, winders, shrink wrap machines and labelers as well as photographic equipment to produce counterfeit album covers.

No arrests were made pending presentation of the evidence to a federal grand jury in Brooklyn.

Lee Laster, special agent in charge of the Brooklyn-Queens FBI office, said music industry sources believe the raids will shut down about 50 percent of the nation's illegal manufacturers of eight-track tapes.

The recording industry estimates that unauthorized duplicates of popular recordings — ranging from current hits like "Saturday Night Fever" and "Grease" to oldies like "Sergeant Pepper's Lonely Hearts Club Band" — cost the industry $50 million a year.

FBI supervisor Tom Cunningham said the pirate manufacturers, 13 of whom were located in the New York City metropolitan area, were part of a "very organized group" some of whom may be in the upper levels of the music industry itself.

Exercise-Minded Seniors Like the Faster Dances

By SUSAN VAUGHN
Herald Reporter

MANCHESTER — They keep time to music with Frisbies. They move around on the floor on pieces of carpet. And they do the cha-cha, the twist and disco dances.

No, they're not a group of kids in a dance or gym class. They are senior citizens having a lot of fun and getting valuable exercise at the same time.

The peppy music is turned on and 15 to 20 seniors converge on the Manchester Senior Citizens Center on Linden Street twice a week. The six-week class has been going on for the past few weeks at the center.

According to Laura Dunfield, supervisor from the Town Recreation Department who leads the classes, the seniors are not content with just slow, easy-going music or exercise. They like the fast numbers, she said.

What may seem like gimmicks are actually valuable tools designed to promote specific exercise. The Frisbies, moved in time to fast music, are used to strengthen the arms and shoulders and promote coordination, Ms. Dunfield said.

The carpet pieces are used in various ways to exercise arms and legs. Even when they seniors sit down in chairs for awhile, they continue with exercises for the calves, ankles, shoulders and neck.

They conclude the session with the medley of dance routines. Ms. Dunfield said they seem to really enjoy it.

As a precautionary measure, nurses from the Manchester Public Health Nursing Association take pulses before and after each class. The program is sponsored by the Geriatric Clinic Program of MPHNA.

Phyllis Saich, geriatric nurse practitioner for MPHNA, who organized the program, has attended all the classes and said seniors have responded favorably. "Many of them really love the vigorous activity," she said. The purpose of the program is to keep the elderly active, although they can participate to the extent they want to, Mrs. Saich said. They can sit out for some of the activities during class if they choose to, she said.

The only other really active programs sponsored by the center are bowling and square dancing. Mrs. Saich noted, partly because of limited space. This may change with the new Senior Citizens Center at Green School, she said.

Mrs. Saich hopes to start similar exercise classes for the residents of the other town elderly housing projects and continue the one at the Senior Citizens Center after the first of the year, although plans are still incomplete.

A group of senior citizens raise their arms in response to direction from Laura Dunfield, leader of their bi-weekly exercise class at the Senior Citizens Center. About 15 to 20 residents over age 60 have participated in the program sponsored by the Geriatric Clinic of Manchester Public Health Nursing Association. (Herald photo by Pinto)

District Cancels Winter Carnival

MANCHESTER — The Eight Utilities District Winter Carnival will not be held in January because of low water levels in Union Pond and Salter's Pond.

The Town Public Works Department informed the District Union Pond will remain drained because of the pollution problem last summer and the Union Pond Annex (skating rink) will not hold enough water to make ice for skating, according to Evelyn W. Grogan, public relations director for the Eighth District.

Salter's Pond is also at a low level because wells used by Lydall Inc. have dried up, causing the company to draw water from the pond. The pond was to have been stocked and used for the ice fishing derby. Mrs. Grogan said the District directors regret having to cancel the event.

The third annual carol sing sponsored by the District will still be held Dec. 18 at 8:30 p.m. at the Christmas tree in Robertson Park, on North Main Street. Ida Cormier and Beatrice Maher, active members of the Sunshiners, will lead the singers. Coffee and cake will be served to all participants following the sing.

Other Editors Say

Sen. Daniel Moynihan was one of those who felt that if families were given a guaranteed yearly income they would become more stable and in no time at all work themselves up into the middle class, no longer requiring society's help.

Well, he has had a shock. A few years ago the government set out to prove his theory and spent $100 million on control groups of families in Seattle, Denver, New Jersey and North Carolina.

Letter to the Editor

Inflationary Hikes Blamed on Greed

To the editor: I would like to voice my sentiments about inflation. I have read a lot and heard a lot about the cause of inflation but it seems to me, they have all missed the point.

everything was set back to the way it was 15 or even 20 years ago we would all be better off in many ways, as those days you could afford to go to a doctor or dentist or even the hospital if necessary, and you could hire a plumber or carpenter or any other tradesman or professional person at a reasonable price, and you could get a decent rent to live in for $50 or $60 a month instead of $200 or $250 you pay today for the same rent.

Don Graff

Research Not Immune To Cost

Inflation, no more a respecter of institutions than of individuals, is becoming an increasingly costly factor in the multidisciplinary research programs carried out in the nation's universities.

But if a federally sponsored effort to aid the public to aid itself catches on, there could be some welcome moderation of escalating costs in one area — surgery.

"Maybe we should review the job description for riding shotgun."

Music Event Set at Temple

MANCHESTER — The Manchester B'nai B'rith, in conjunction with Hadassah, the Sisterhood, and the Mr. and Mrs. Club of Temple Beth Shalom, will present Dr. David Koffman in a musical program Tuesday at 8 p.m. at the Temple.

Dr. Koffman's program will include excerpts from his Friday Evening Folk Rock service, which he wrote in 1968, titled Shabbat Shalom/Sabbath Peace, and for which he was awarded honorary membership in the Jewish Liturgical Music Society of America.

Also included on the program will be classic and Israeli music, as well as popular Yiddish and American songs.

While studying at the Cantors' Institute of Jewish Theological Seminary, Koffman formed his Hebrew Folk Rock group, "The Voices Four." For the next four years, he led the group on a tour of 400 concerts in the U.S. and Canada.

Koffman was Cantor of Temple Beth Or in Clark, N.J., where he served four years while studying at the Columbia Institute of Chiropractic in New York City.

The public is invited to attend the Festival of Music, sponsored by the local Salvation Army Corps, according to Capt. Arthur Carlson, its commanding officer. After the program, there will be a fellowship hour in the Citadel's Youth Center.

The program will include "The Joyful Sound," with words by Priscilla Owens and music by Lynn Ballantine, "My Jesus I Love Thee," by Ballantine, and "Wonderful Loving Savior" by Mrs. Smith's father, Maj. Lloyd Scott.

Trumpet solos will include "And Let the Bright Seraphim Cheerful Voices" by Philip Catelet and "The Reason" by Ernest Rance.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith are both Salvationists. She has received a bachelor of music education degree from Hartt College of Music, Hartford, as a soloist, she has performed throughout the United States and Canada.

Smith was appointed co-principal trumpet with the New York Philharmonic last October. He had played with the Chicago Symphony before joining the philharmonic. He received a master's degree from Juilliard School of Music in New York City.

From 1969 to 1974, he traveled extensively with the New York Salvation Army Staff Band. In 1973, he was guest soloist with the Salvation Army's International Staff Band during its tour of Switzerland, Germany and Holland.

Farrah Imperiled
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Director Richard Sarafian reports from location filming of "Sunburn" that his star, Farrah Fawcett-Majors, almost drowned during an underwater sequence in the Pacific Ocean near Acapulco, Mexico.

Sarafian said Farrah required resuscitation after doing an underwater scene in which she fought off movie villains.

The star responded to first aid ministrations and after several hours rest continued the scuba scenes.
