

TV Cuts Down on Shoplifting

By LeROY POPE
UPI Business Writer

NEW YORK (UPI) — Television surveillance in retail stores is starting to make a substantial dent in losses caused by shoplifting, employee pilferage and looting by workers, an association of TV equipment dealers claims. The group is PhotoScan Associates, Inc., which is composed of 44 dealers who design, install and sell or lease such equipment.

The dealers expect their sales of the surveillance equipment to grow faster than those of the manufacturers — by 60 percent this year and possibly 100 percent next year. Olson said. He said there are about 21,000 PhotoScan satellites already in use. The satellite is patented housing for a multi-lens TV surveillance camera.

The surveillance equipment is relatively inexpensive and prices have dropped sharply in the past five years or so. A single camera system for a small store can be bought for as little as $600, half the price of six years ago.

MPOA Backs Suggestion That Weiss Leave Job

MANCHESTER — The Manchester Property Owners Association has said it feels Town Manager Robert Weiss should resign. It also voiced its support for the effort to have a referendum on the town's receipt of money from the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development.

The MPOA met last week and endorsed a recent editorial that said Weiss should resign because of the dispute involving the Buckland firehouse case. Other reasons the group feels Weiss should resign are "the indiscretion in negotiating with HUD, the indiscretion in hiring Wilber Smith (the town's equal opportunity coordinator) and secretly opening up discussions with the Metropolitan District Commission."

The MHOA backed the effort of the Concerned Citizens for Manchester to have a referendum on receipt of federal funds. It also criticized the Town Board of Directors for voting not to hold such a referendum at this time.

The concerned citizens group had presented petitions last month to the board and asked for a referendum on the town's receipt of present-year Community Development funds.

The group later decided to withdraw the petition and the Board of Directors then voted not to have a referendum at this time.

The concerned citizens have indicated that they expect to petition again about a referendum on Community Development funding.

Some residents are concerned that too many requirements are placed on the town before it receives the funds.

John Tucci, secretary of the MPOA, wrote that many communities have dropped their involvement in funding from HUD.

"If we keep our commitment to HUD, Manchester will not be the city of village charm anymore and our quality of life will be forever altered."

"We feel this is a very important issue and the people, not the liberals from Manchester Community College who dominate our board, should say which way Manchester goes," Tucci wrote.

The reference to MCC apparently includes two members of the board, Stephen Cassano and Thomas Connors, both teachers at MCC.

The MPOA also said it is not happy with the town's handling of the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA).

"The CETA fiasco is just another example of government mismanagement. The government gives us something for free — CETA — then it runs into problems and drops these problems on the taxpayers to pay for," Tucci wrote.

Order Appealed

CANTON (UPI) — An attorney for a firm which state environmental officials directed to clean up property and polluted some Canton wells said he has appealed the order.

New Drug Under Test To Replace Digitalis

BOSTON (UPI) — An experimental drug which has undergone successful preliminary testing is being hailed as a potential therapeutic advance in the treatment of congestive heart disease, a team of cardiologists reports.

The drug, called Amrinone, administered orally, is seen as a possible replacement for the popular drug digitalis — used to treat heart troubles for more than 200 years.

In a research report published Thursday in the New England Journal of Medicine doctors from Peter Bent Brigham Hospital in Boston and Harvard Medical School said Amrinone shows the potential of becoming a "major therapeutic advance in the medical treatment of congestive heart failure."

But the drug still needs about another two years of testing before it can be recommended for use by the general public.

An estimated 2 million to 3 million Americans suffer from congestive heart failure, characterized by an inadequate pumping of blood by the heart resulting in, among other things, a serious shortness of breath. It also causes blood to back up behind the heart, flooding the lungs.

Drs. William Grossman, Joseph Benotti and Eugene Braunwald said the drug, which had previously been tested only on animals, was used to treat eight male and female patients ranging in age from 52 to 65.

"In all the patients, substantial improvement in the pumping action of the heart was seen," Grossman said in an interview. "The amount of blood pumped by the heart each minute increased an average of 44 percent."

Grossman said the successful testing of Amrinone is important because other experimental drugs used to treat the disease have demonstrated potent and serious side effects.

"What we learned so far is that this drug does work on patients," Grossman said. "There is still a lot of work to be done before Amrinone is tested, at least another two years, but the situation looks good."

"The drug showed continued benefits when administered daily over a long period of time."

"It is the drug which could replace Digitalis, which has been around for 200 years. It has been the mainstay in the treatment of heart failure."

"It must be emphasized we are still a long way from knowing what role, if any, this drug will have in the treatment of patients with heart failure," the report said. "The clinical value of this drug in the management of heart failure will depend on the demonstration of persistent salutary... effects with continued oral administration in man."

Amrinone is manufactured by the Sterling-Winthrop Research Institute in New York.

Scholarship Offered In Memory of Pilots

STRATFORD (UPI) — Sikorsky Aircraft today announced a major scholarship grant to perpetuate the memory of 13 company test pilots who died during test flights over the past 39 years.

Gerald J. Tobias, president of the United Technologies Corp. division, said an initial $25,000 scholarship grant will be made to the American Helicopter Society's Vertical Flight Foundation of Washington.

He said current plans are to augment the fund with a $5,000 annual grant.

The foundation provides men and women with the opportunity to study vertical flight and to further advanced aerospace technology.

"All of the men who died during flight activities at Sikorsky made significant contributions to the development of the helicopter industry and I believe this grant will aid in perpetuating the memory of their deeds," Tobias said.

Sikorsky's most recent loss occurred in May when three test pilots were killed during a helicopter test flight near the Stratford plant.

Following the incident, the Bridgeport Telegram and Post newspapers published an editorial written by editorial page editor Joseph A. Owens recommending the creation of a "living memorial" in honor of the victims.

Aetna Revamp Rates

HARTFORD (UPI) — Aetna Life and Casualty Co. has become the first major insurance firm to publicly respond to a state order that the industry reorganize auto insurance rates.

Aetna officials said Thursday that only "modest changes" should be made in the auto insurance rates charged city and suburban residents.

State Insurance Commissioner Joseph Mike told the industry Monday it had until July 1 to reorganize what he called unfair auto rates throughout the state.

Typically, urban motorists pay more than their suburban and rural counterparts for insurance.

Firm officials said although they agree with Mike's order to realign auto rates between urban and suburban motorists, they were concerned with the magnitude of the change.

The commissioner predicted auto insurance rates for city motorists would drop about 15 percent annually under the revised rate structure.

Betting Parlor Raided

WATERBURY (UPI) — State Police investigators say they expect to issue arrest warrants charging employees of Waterbury's state-approved off-track betting parlor with operating an illegal sports gambling operation.

Authorities said an undercover investigator from the security division of the Commission on Special Parlor at Colonial Plaza and seized an undisclosed amount of cash and betting slips from a cashier who was neither identified nor immediately arrested.

Coliseum Redesign Would Be Costly

HARTFORD (UPI) — Hartford officials say the capital city may have to redesign the interior of the Hartford Civic Center Coliseum unless it obtains waivers from certain provisions of state building and fire codes.

"We would have to go back almost to the beginning and redesign the coliseum," Public Works Director Jordan Rich told the city's Planning and Development Commission Thursday.

Hartford Fire Marshal Ralph J. Marone said he, the state fire marshal and the city's Director of Licenses and Inspections were reviewing the city's request for eight waivers.

Marone said no final determinations had been made yet but added the waivers would not be granted unless the three officials agreed the modifications would not pose a safety hazard.

Tensions Remain Despite SALT

MOSCOW (UPI) — Some time early in 1979 President Carter and Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev will sit down together and sign a long overdue strategic arms limitation agreement both sides view as crucial to better Soviet-American relations.

That they are able to do so bears testimony to the ability of both sides to divorce the critical need for control of doomsday weaponry from the very real tensions and problems that characterize relations between the two superpowers.

Along the road to SALT-2 the optimists lost some legs to the minifields of human rights, Africa, the Middle East, Cuba and the like. And President Carter will face one final obstacle in getting the SALT agreement ratified by two-thirds of the U.S. Senate — a process expected to involve three to four months of bitter debate.

Neither the signing of SALT nor its ratification is likely to produce the kind of American euphoria that greeted past Soviet-American summery as the dawn of some golden era of cooperation.

Not should it.

The signing of SALT-2 will not spring open jail doors for thousands of prisoners of conscience in the U.S.S.R., or end Soviet support for wars of national liberation in the Third World, or prevent the Soviets from fishing in troubled waters wherever opportunity arises itself, or open Russia to a horde of American salesmen.

The optimists can count themselves lucky if the next crisis between Moscow and Washington holds off until SALT has negotiated the Senate safely.

The new Carter Administration got off to a rocky start with the old men in the Kremlin in 1977 and plumbled the depths of trouble in 1978. The year began and ended with Soviet-financed Cuban expeditionary forces in Angola and Ethiopia and poised to play a larger role in the Rhodesian crisis.

It began and ended with the Soviets, miffed at being frozen out of the Egyptian-Israeli-American peace initiative, playing a spoiler role in the tenuous Middle East.

As President Carter gambled on Camp David, the Kremlin stepped up its support for Yasser Arafat and the Palestine Liberation Organization, and worked to piece together a new Iraq-Syria strategic front.

A pro-Moscow regime seized power in neighboring Afghanistan, and Vietnam lightened its bonds with Moscow in reaction to pressure from Peking.

Soviet-American relations touched bottom in the summer with the Moscow trials that wrapped up an 18-month Soviet campaign to crush domestic dissent in open defiance of President Carter's human rights campaign.

As Soviet courts handed down long harsh prison sentences for Jewish activist Anatoly Shebaransky, Solzhenitsyn Fund administrator Alexander Ginzburg and Helsinki group founder Yuri Orlov, President Brezhnev bluntly declared that the Soviet Union's treatment of its own citizens was its own private business.

American authorities caught two Soviet spies redhanded as they attempted to buy defense secrets — and violated an unwritten understanding by sending them to trial instead of quietly expelling them.

In a move that surprised almost no one, Soviet authorities picked an American businessman, F. Jay Crawford, and turned his life into a three-month nightmare of prison, interrogation and a farce of a trial on currency charges.

Simultaneously Soviet officials filed an unprecedented libel suit against two American reporters based in Moscow in an obvious attempt to silence Western press coverage of dissidents.

Washington reacted to the human rights outrages by canceling several visits to Moscow by high-level officials and imposing new licen-

Town, Union Reach Contract Agreement

By GREG PEARSON
Herald Reporter

MANCHESTER — The town and the union representing public works employees reached tentative agreement Thursday on a two-year contract that includes six percent pay increases per year and no change in the sick leave policy.

The union, the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, AFL-CIO, Local 991, is the last of the four municipal unions to reach such a tentative agreement with the town.

Two of the unions, those representing the police and fire employees, already have signed contracts. The third, the Municipal Employees Group Inc., has reached a tentative agreement with the town that the entire union is expected to vote on next week. MEG has rejected two previous proposed contracts. Thursday's settlement between the union and town's bargaining committee was the first reached by 991.

The union, which began negotiating with the town almost a year ago, has been working without a contract since July 1.

Local 991 represents workers in the Public Works Department and some maintenance employees in the Board of Education system.

Representatives of the town and union met for about three hours Thursday before reaching the tentative agreement.

The proposal includes a six percent pay raise in each year of the two-year contract and no change in the sick leave policy. John Jurewicz, vice president of the union, said the town, which believes the old contract system as abused, had sought a change in the sick leave policy. The existing policy permits a retiring employee to be paid for all accumulated sick days up to a maximum of 105.

The town had sought a change that would have a retiring employee be paid for half of the accumulated sick days with no maximum limit.

The tentative contract agreement for Local 991 would retain the present system of full payment with the 106-day limit.

The town and the union leaders still must sit down to work on the proper language for the contract proposal, but the two major issues — wages and sick leave — have been agreed to, Jurewicz and Steven Werber, the town's personnel supervisor, said.

Jurewicz said he hopes the entire union can vote on the proposed contract in early January.

Assination Evidence Startles Committee

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House assassinations committee spent two years and almost $5 million investigating the slaying of John F. Kennedy. Now, its findings — that Lee Harvey Oswald acted alone — have been thrown into turmoil.

The reason is a new analysis of a police recording made at the moment shots were fired at Kennedy's motorcade in Dallas 13 years ago. An analysis showing "beyond a reasonable doubt" that at least two persons were involved in the shooting.

The committee, which was scheduled to cease existing Dec. 31, is in the process of putting the finishing touches on its "no-surprise" final report earlier this week when the re-evaluation arrived with its ominous implications.

Committee chairman Louis Stokes, D-Ohio, was out of town this week. But, when informed by staff of the development, he called an emergency executive session of the panel today and scheduled at least one public hearing next week on the reevaluation of the "bike tape."

The long-ignored tape originally was analyzed for the committee by the acoustical analysis firm of Bolt, Beranek and Newman.

During committee hearings in September, Dr. James Barber, the firm's chief scientist, was asked: "Is it accurate to say there is evidence of four shots?"

"Yes," he responded, carefully adding, "It is a possible conclusion."

At that time, the chances were viewed as 50-50 that the analysis was correct. The more intensive re-evaluation is given a 95 percent chance of being correct.

The "bike tape" is a recording from the radio transmitter of a Dallas motorcycle police officer in the rear of the presidential motorcade who accidentally left his microphone on at the moment bullets started flying in Dealey Plaza.

All previous evidence has led to the conclusion that Oswald, an erratic Marine who once defected to the Soviet Union, alone was responsible for Kennedy's murder, firing three shots from a window on the sixth floor of the Texas School Book Depository building in the plaza.

Informed sources said the committee's final report concluded it had found no evidence of conspiracies in either the Kennedy assassination or the murder of Martin Luther King Jr.

However, two committee members disclosed that a re-study of the bike tape showed "beyond a reasonable doubt" four shots were fired.

Rep. Harold Sawyer, R-Mich., a committee member, disclosed it was now virtually certain that three shots came from the book building and one from the famous "grassy knoll" opposite from Oswald's vantage point.

"There is a 95 percent plus probability that the third shot of a series of four shots was fired from the 'grassy knoll,'" he said.

Rep. Christopher Dodd, D-Conn., another panel member, said the new tape analysis "is significant evidence..."

He cautioned, however, a thorough examination of the finding was in order.

Hemorrhoid Surgery Considered for Carter

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter's doctors considered today whether he should undergo surgery for a recurrence of a painful hemorrhoid condition.

White House aides indicated the president would enter Bethesda Naval Hospital immediately if the doctors decide an operation is required.

The president was to be examined today by Dr. William Lukash, the White House physician, before a decision is made on whether the president should enter the hospital. He and Mrs. Carter had planned to fly to Plains, Ga., today to spend Christmas with their families.

"Carter, who has been suffering from the hemorrhoid attack since Tuesday, revealed at a White House Christmas party Thursday that an operation was a possibility," depending on what his physicians recommended.

He also said he was "feeling much better."

Press secretary Jody Powell told reporters that if Carter undergoes the operation, it "would not be of an emergency nature."

"Certainly if the president improves as he has, surgery would not be indicated," he said. However, he explained that Carter feels that "if surgery becomes necessary, it would be best to go ahead with it now in view of his heavy schedule over the next few months."

Powell said Carter was examined Tuesday evening by Dr. Leo Smith, the hospital's rectal and colon specialist. His Atlanta, Ga., specialist, Dr. Edwin Lockridge, also was consulted by telephone.

Carter was taking a routine painkiller and hot baths for relief, Powell reported.

His aggravated attack of hemorrhoids, a chronic ailment he has had since his college days, was revealed Thursday morning when he canceled all his official appointments. However, Carter did get a telephone report from Secretary of State Cyrus Vance on the strategic arms talks in Geneva.

His appointments for today, including budget sessions, also were canceled. Vice President Walter Mondale took over most of Carter's scheduled appointments Thursday.

Mrs. Carter told reporters that her husband was feeling "very sick" and was "miserable" and got no sleep Wednesday night.

Carter's hemorrhoid attack marked the first time in his presidency that he canceled appointments because of illness.

Powell said Carter had been in "considerable pain" for three days, and felt so bad he went to bed in the family quarters after his problem was diagnosed by Lukash, the White House physician.

"Look, he's hurting, but he's not going to die from it," Powell said.

Christmas Post Office Unofficial Letter Center

CHRISTMAS, Fla. (UPI) — Adults and children the world over bypass the North Pole, sending their gift lists straight to the post office at Christmas, Fla.

"I've made it my business to help them," said Postmaster Joy Chittum, 54, who assumed the job four years ago. Her predecessor, Juanita Tucker, remembers the year one letter writer asked where to find tiger lily bulbs, a special blend of syrup and a baby wildcat for Christmas.

"I located the syrup and the bulbs, but I couldn't get her a baby wildcat," Mrs. Chittum said. "I tried. She said she wanted to give it to her husband."

Mrs. Chittum said the flood of letters to be stamped with the yuletide postmark covered by collectors and children is as heavy as always. One day's mail in December equals the volume passing through the Christmas post office during any other month of the year.

"Most years you're talking about 100,000 letters in December," she said. "It doesn't look like 1978 is any different."

The name of the tiny rural town, population 3,000, originated during a siege in 1835. U.S. soldiers helping settlers fight of Seminole Indians equals the volume passing through the Christmas post office during any other month of the year.

"The prefix was dropped and the town became known simply as Christmas after a post office was established in 1892."

Report On High School

BOLTON — A four-day evaluation program was conducted at Bolton High School in November and the report of the New England Association for Secondary Schools and Colleges has been returned.

Joseph Fleming, principal of the school, said the success of the evaluation must be attributed in large part to the efforts of the high school staff.

He said he will be meeting with Linda Lanoue, co-chairman of the school's Steering Committee, and Richard Kiesel, chairman of the visiting committee, to review the report for factual accuracy.

State Workers Face Tough Task In Getting Pay Hikes This Year

HARTFORD (UPI) — With the union over Connecticut state employees face the difficult task this year of milking pay raises out of a bare-bone budget.

Like their counterparts in the private sector, union members working for the state will be looking for a fair wage increase if only to keep pace with inflation. And they will be relying on the negotiators of a number of unions to get it.

Granted, collective bargaining rights two years ago, Connecticut's estimated 40,000 workers under union jurisdiction received about $48 million in salary adjustments over a two-year period that ends June 30.

The two most prominent unions are the Connecticut State Employees Association and the Connecticut Employees Union, Independent, led by Al Marotta and Salvatore Ferruccio, respectively.

Each union represents roughly one half of the 31,000 workers handled by the Department of Administrative Services.

About 9,000 other state employees, mostly in the higher education field, are represented by smaller unions, the largest being the American Association of University Professors.

The CSEA at one time had jurisdiction over the majority of the 22 employee bargaining units, but the CEUI has shown a steady advance.

This climaxed last month when Ferruccio's CEUI ousted Marotta's CSEA as the bargaining agent for the state's largest bargaining unit, the 8,500-member maintenance workers.

The CEUI's largest unit is the 7,500-member group made up of clerical workers.

The CEUI almost went out of existence except for a coalition formed with the CSEA in 1975 and maintained until it was dissolved earlier this year.

Earlier, 5,000 para-professionals at state hospitals voted to switch from the CSEA to Local 1199 of the Union of Hospital and Health Care Employees.

Ferruccio said Thursday "The least we'll seek is the 7 percent wage guideline" suggested by President Carter.

"But those guidelines are pretty well shot," Ferruccio adds.

"It will be tough" to get adequate increases

"but we're going to stand fast and get our fair share," he said.

Ferruccio said talks with the state will begin early next month.

Gov. Ella Grasso's budget makers say it's difficult to set a figure on how much is in the budget pie for salary increases. One reason is that non-salary costs such as medical and pension expenses are not considered salary adjustments and such funding is paid through different agencies.

Data from state officials show that as of Oct. 30, there was a record number of state positions established — 49,423. Of those, 44,299 are filled.

Anthony Milano, the secretary of the Office of Policy and Management and Mrs. Grasso's chief fiscal adviser, said about $28 million is set aside in the preliminary budget for state employee pay raises.

But no one is saying whether that will be enough to accommodate the workers' demands and it's fair enough to say that no figure can be established until negotiations for all the labor units are completed.

Arraignments Set in Counterfeiting

HARTFORD (UPI) — A North Haven High School student and his uncle will be arraigned before the end of the year on counterfeiting charges which began when the youth was arrested for passing bogus bills from a $3 million cache.

U.S. Attorney Richard Blumenthal said Joseph Willis, 18, who was nabbed Dec. 12 trying to pay a bill at a fast food restaurant with aphony $20 bill, was indicted Thursday for passing and possessing counterfeit money.

His uncle, James Bagliore, 48, of East Haven, also was indicted in Hartford federal court on one count of possessing counterfeit money and one count of possessing counterfeit plates, Blumenthal said.

The federal prosecutor Thursday said the two suspects will be arraigned within 10 days. Each of the four counts carries a maximum penalty of 15 years in prison, a $5,000 fine, or both, said.

The Secret Service and North Haven Police seized the counterfeit $3 million Dec. 12 stashed in the attic of the home of Willis' grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Bagliore, with whom the high school junior lives.

According to papers filed in U.S. District Court, Willis told authorities he helped his uncle move a printing press from a barn behind his grandparents' residence up to the attic.

Willis added he knew his uncle had used printing inks and paper when he worked in the at-

AFS Weekend Was Successful

More than 20 students connected to recently departed Manchester High School Field Service students.

The group consisted of exchange students from a year in the United States. American students and others from various countries and sister schools from other parts of the world.

Principal Louis A. Marlow had proclaimed the weekend as a success through the Field Service Message.

The guests arrived in the afternoon at Manchester High and met their hosts in the gymnasium where they were to spend the weekend.

Later that evening, a party was held at the home of Mrs. Marlow. The evening of both the exchange students and the hostesses.

Friday afternoon, the students were all the same and met Principal Marlow. They were welcomed to the school.

Throughout the weekend, the foreign students and

Merchants Happy About Christmas Shopping Volume

By The Herald Staff
MANCHESTER—Except for some stores in the K-Mart Shopping Plaza, merchants all over town were happy about the volume of Christmas shopping this year.

Many stores in the K-Mart Plaza on Spenser Street have been hurt because K-Mart has not reopened since its roof collapsed last winter. Elsewhere in town, however, the merchant reaction ranged from enthusiastic to ecstatic.

"Main Street is still alive and doing well." That's what two downtown merchants, Louis Apter of Regal Men's Shop and Fred Nassif of Nassif Arms said.

Other Main Street merchants must feel the same way, because, according to reports, holiday shoppers are plentiful and sales are ahead of last year, at least in some stores.

Apter said the holiday shopping started slow, but "we are doing very well. I'm very satisfied."

Nassif said, as far as he was concerned, "business was excellent.

People are pleasant and have the holiday spirit, by buying things for others. We are having record sales, better than last year."

He called downtown Manchester, the "backbone of the town," and contributed to the apparently successful holiday shopping to its "solid and stable stores, operated by responsible merchants for so many years."

Business at Marlow's Department Store is "still hectic," George Marlow, its proprietor, said. He called it a "typical season," and said that being closed on Sunday has not affected his business.

Joseph Garman of J. Garman Clothiers, said his business was good and ahead of last year.

Worth's sales were ahead of last season until last week when shoppers slowed down, Gladys Conroy, manager on the west side of Main Street, said. However, she thinks that "business is going along fine."

Jewelry must be a big item on shopping lists this year, according to Creighton Short of Short Jewelers. He said business was "booming this year, just fabulous."

"Customers are coming in and spending money. They're more selective this year—shopping for values. We are busy all day, but especially mornings and evenings," he said.

Business also must be booming at Harrison's Stationers and at Manchester Hardware, Phillip Harrison, was too busy to come to the phone when The Herald called, and the person who answered the phone at Manchester Hardware said that business probably was better than last year, but to call back after Christmas when they weren't so busy.

Frank Hennequin of House and Hale Department Store was less enthusiastic. He said the store was "doing our share of business, but it could be better."

Business on the west side of Main Street seems to be as good as on its east side, according to Mrs. Jean Baboury of Wilton's Gift Shop. She said holiday sales were "very good and past last year's."

Business has been "horrid" at Cards, Etc. shop in the K-Mart Plaza, according to Mrs. Susan Levine, manager. "We're running 40 to 50 percent off from what we did before the K-Mart store catastrophe. The K-Mart has been closed since its roof caved in last January."

"We've survived," Mrs. Levine said, "but business has been disastrous." Business for the few stores on the plaza has been so poor that "one of the stores plans to pull out after Christmas," she said, but she declined to say which one.

Business at the Two Legs Jean Store has "picked up" in recent weeks, but Kim Prell, salesperson, said that sales are not as good as a year ago. She blamed it on K-Mart not being open.

Another store in the area suffering from K-Mart situation is Tagway Shoes. John Barro, manager, somewhat noncommittally said that

"We're not doing quite what we expected."

Business at the Blue Liquor Store in the plaza is off, also because of the closed K-Mart, although it has picked up some during the holiday season. Mike DiBella, co-owner, said. But he intends to stay on until K-Mart reopens, "even if I have to hang in there by my teeth," DiBella said.

Across Spenser Street from the K-Mart Plaza, businesses contacted on the Shop Rite Plaza were doing "fantastic" at Shop Town, and at the People's store manager, Chet David didn't have time to talk on the phone because he was "up to his ears" taking care of customers. "Call me back after the holidays and I'll be glad to talk then," he said.

Shoppers at the Burr Shopping Plaza brought "excellent" business to Caldor's, according to Philip Luty, manager. The Caldor chain is up 17 percent in sales over last year, and Luty said the Manchester store's increase was about equal to the chain's.

Sales in electronic games were outstanding this year, he said.

Sales in ladies wear at Harvey's is better this year than last, Mrs. Janet Kelley, manager said. Skirts are the big seller with sweaters a perennial popular item, she said.

The Inside-Outside at Caldor's is going well even though it is not a Christmas store, Robert Hall, manager, said. He added that he's selling a lot of floor coverings and rugs.

Frank Dantz, manager of the delicatessen department at the A&F, said he has been overwhelmed with order for party trays. "Today, a lady ordered $25 worth of cold cuts," he said.

The manager at the Radio Shack at Burr Corners Plaza would not say how their business has been without approval from Radio Shack headquarters in Fort Worth, Texas. "That would be considered confidential information," the manager said.

Bob Bowers, owner of Tech Stereo at the Burr Plaza said holiday business is excellent, "the best year so far." Tech Stereo has been at the plaza 2½ years. This is one of six very big sellers, Dale said.

Tech Stereo stores Bowers owns in the Greater Hartford area.

Business at Sears in the Manchester Parkade has been "very

Rham Board to Hear Of Library Program

HEBRON—The members of Regional District 8 Board of Education have agreed that a presentation concerning the Rham Library program should be included on the agenda for its January meeting.

At this week's meeting the board also accepted the resignation of Mary Reynolds, bookkeeper, effective Jan. 2 and that of Peter Osterford, Grade 9 science teacher.

Patricia Taylor was hired to teach science on the Grade 7 level and Kathy Shapazin was granted a maternity leave, effective Jan. 26 through Aug. 31.

The board also approved a Title IV-B application in the amount of $5,000 with board member Francis Danaher voting against the motion.

Bruce Gallant, chairman of the Junior High School Building Committee, reported that the State Department of Health had approved the proposed septic tank system for the new facility.

David Cattamach, superintendent of schools, told the board that a grievance hearing conducted for Brian Brown, will go to arbitration hearing on Jan. 11, 3:30 p.m. in the guidance office at Rham.

The board set Jan. 29, Feb. 5, March 12 and 26 and April 2 for meetings to discuss the educational budget for the coming year.

Library Receives Gifts

HEBRON—The Douglas Library has received some Christmas presents a little early this year.

Jeanne Ford, librarian, said that the library has received more than 400 classical records, a stereo, and a 50-volume set of the "Chronicles of America" which is the work of Ronald Mastrorande, a former Hebron resident.

Mrs. Ford said the gift will be used to create a music center in the library and the volumes will enhance the American History books available to library patrons.

Another gift, 10 new book cases, was presented to the library by Thomas Kelly of Gilead, on behalf of the Javvices who made them. George

Library Receives Gifts

Alen of the library's Board of Trustees, adding his efforts to the project by sanding and staining the book cases.

The library was closed Tuesday and will be closed through Dec. 28 in order to put the new bookcases in place and to reorganize the adult section of the library. Books may be returned by depositing them in the book drop in the front door during this period.

Additionally, the library staff has declared the period from now through Jan. 2 as Amnesty Days. All overdue books may be returned during these days with no fines to be charged and no questions asked.

Warm clothes and other warmth items are also big sellers according to Sears and Weathersave. Sporting goods, small table appliances and microwave ovens have been big sellers this year, Drummond said.

Electronic games have been the number one best seller, according to Ed Kelly, manager of King's.

Next to bicycles, the big seller at Farr's sport store, 2 Main St., has been down vests and jackets. One company came out this year with zip-in sleeves and has been a better seller than Farr's anticipated. Ice skates aren't moving as well as previous years, he said. Altogether, Farr said that the holiday business has been above last year, about 25 percent higher so far this month.

Opinion: Lasting Peace

Once again is the time of year when peace and joy abound. It is a happy season. In the past year, steps have been taken to insure a continuance of world peace throughout the year and for years to come.

Andrew Tully Raises Criticized

WASHINGTON — In times like these I try to take comfort in one of H.L. Menck's commentaries on the egotistical trace of politics. He asked that trade: "Does it appear to be unqualifiedly ratty, raffish, sordid, obscene, and low down, and all salient virtues of a gang of unmitigated scoundrels? Then let us not forget its high capacity to soothe and tickle the midriff, its incomparable services as a maker of entertainment."

Thought

John the Baptist is a good patron for Advent, because he shows us how best to witness to Jesus. His task was to prepare the hearts of the people to receive the Lord when he came. He spoke of the coming Kingdom, and led the people to open their eyes and hearts to the reality of that Kingdom.

Headed for apparent victory, East Catholic lost all rhythm and would up on the short end of a 48-46 score to arch-rival South Catholic in a turnover-infested HCC girls' basketball clash last night at the Eagles' Nest.

The Eaglettes had a 21-9 advantage after one quarter on the strength of Monica Murphy's 12 points and Laurie Barry's 5 assists effort.

South also took the jayvee contest. 6-24 Chris Harvey netted 10 points for the young Eaglettes, now 2-2.

AFC Coach of Year Honors to Michaels

NEW YORK (UPI) — Walt Michaels played under one Hall of Fame coach and served as an assistant under another. The training is beginning to show.

Michaels, a star linebacker for Paul Brown with the Cleveland Browns—and later an assistant to Yeg Ezbank, took on the NFL's toughest schedule with the youngest and most inexperienced club in the league and brought the New York Jets to the brink of the playoffs. Michaels' Jets were one of the surprises of the NFL season and Thursday he capped the year when he was named UPI's American Conference Coach of the Year for 1978.

Michaels received 24 votes from UPI's selection committee of 56 writers, four from each AFC city, and barely edged Seattle's Jack Patena, who received 21 votes. Houston's Bum Phillips finished a distant third with eight votes.

The Jets were named the league's toughest schedule this season, and to add to Michaels' problems, he lost his quarterback, Richard Todd, in the fourth game and a few weeks later saw one of his top defensive players, linebacker Greg Buttle, also go down for the year with a knee injury.

But second-year man Matt Robinson proved a more than adequate substitute for Todd, Wesley Walker developed into one of the most feared receivers in the NFL and the Jets refused to buckle. They twice defeated Miami, a playoff club, and upset AFC West champion Denver with a devastating second-half rally. They also came within a wind-blown field goal of upsetting New England, the AFC East champion, and were in the playoffs, contented until eliminated with a week left in the season.

New York, predicted to win anywhere from one to four games, was 8-4 in Michaels' second season as head coach.

"I never really worried about how tough the schedule would be," said Michaels. "I said before the season we'd get better only if we played the best and we played the best in the league. Eight out of 16 games were against teams in the playoffs."

"But I never let the schedule worry me. The games still start at zero-

Maxwell Awards To Quarterbacks

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Growing up in western Pennsylvania, Chuck Fusina became an admirer of Pittsburgh Steelers' quarterback Terry Bradshaw.

"I've been a fan of his through the good times and the bad times," Fusina said. "The press in Pittsburgh put him down a lot. But I admire the way he took the pressure. It was really something to watch the way he came through it."

As for the pressure associated with a national championship game, Fusina said, "I don't think we feel the pressure people think we do," adding that Coach Joe Paterno wasn't changing his policy that bowl games are a reward and should be fun.

Bradshaw, saying he was "certainly honored and humbled" by the award, led the play-off-bound Steelers to the NFL's best record, 14-2, while having the best statistical season of his career.

At the same time, the club named Bradshaw as the winner of the Bert Bell Award, given to the best pro football player.

While both players were chosen for their abilities at quarterback, Fusina said it was impossible to compare his style with that of the more dramatic Bradshaw.

"He's a much better athlete than I am," said Fusina. The Heisman Trophy runner-up, "Really, I don't like to compare myself with anybody. There's no comparison with someone with a style that different."

With a Sugar Bowl and national championship matchup against second-ranked Alabama ahead, Fusina has compiled a 23-3 record in games he has started, and he's posted 17 passing and total offense records.

Eagles Hid Engles In Violating Rules

TULSA, Okla. (UPI) — Rick Engles says he was hidden twice during his brief tenure as punter for the Philadelphia Eagles so the professional football team would not violate NFL roster limits.

Dropus Offer Scholarship

STORRS (UPI) — A Dropro Brothers Scholarship will be presented to the University of Connecticut Athletic Development Fund Saturday.

The gift stipulates that income from the endowed fund be used annually to provide a scholarship to a UConn athlete from Connecticut who has made a contribution to baseball.

Milton and George Dropro, class of '55, and George Dropro, class of '55, will present the scholarship at a special ceremony prior to the UConn-Maine basketball game.

Both George and Milton Dropro were standouts in baseball and basketball at UConn.

Waller Dropro's 13-year professional baseball career included service with the Chicago White Sox, Cincinnati Reds, Baltimore Orioles, Boston Red Sox and Detroit Tigers.

Sabres Overcome Deficit To Tack Loss on Atlanta

NEW YORK (UPI) — It was beginning to look like the coaching genius of Billy Inglis had worn off quickly. Then the Buffalo Sabres went out and won him a hockey game.

"I think as the season goes along we'll find that this game was worth a lot," Inglis said Thursday night.

The Sabres had fallen behind the Flames, 3-0, on two goals by Tom Lysiak and one by Bob Lalonde and it didn't look good for Buffalo.

But they played with more determination in the second period and evened the score on goals by Ric Seiling, Derek Smith and Jerry Korab.

The decision relected Atlanta's loss of intensity as much as it showed Buffalo's improvement. The Flames simply aren't the team that went undefeated in its first 12 games this season.

"We tried to sit on a three-goal lead and you can't do that against Buffalo," said Flames' goalie Dan Bouchard.

In other games, Montreal erased Chicago, 5-1, Philadelphia hammered Washington, 4-4, Boston beat Colorado, 4-2, and the New York Islanders handled St. Louis, 5-1.

There were no games scheduled in the World Hockey Association.

Paintment Relieved

DENVER (UPI) — Will Paintner, the Colorado Rockies' leading scorer the last two seasons, said he was relieved no criminal charges will be filed against him in a fight with Detroit's Dennis Falcucci Oct. 12.

"It's a little pressure off my mind. It's not a happy about it," he said Wednesday. He was fined $700 and suspended for 15 games by the National Hockey League. The suspension was the longest in league history.

Lloyd 42nd in Tennis World But No. 1 in Heart of Chris

DANIA, Fla. (UPI) — Chris Evert, who is usually ranked at the top of her profession, Britain's John Lloyd, at 24, is ranked 42nd in the world among the men tennis players.

But he rates No. 1 today in the heart of Chris Evert, whom he's loved since spring on a date to be announced later. The couple announced their engagement Thursday at Miss Evert's 24th birthday party at a Dania restaurant.

They met at Wimbledon last June.

Open Season on Chuck Fairbanks

By MILT RICHMAN
NEW YORK (UPI) — Suddenly, it's open season on Chuck Fairbanks, and to me it looks as if he'd like to say a few words in his own defense, but can't.

Neither can I. I think he's getting everything he deserves.

To me, his action in jumping a contract with the New England Patriots for one year with the University of Colorado was a pre-emptive, self-serving show of conduct, completely symbolic not only of all that is wrong with sports today but of all that is wrong with our entire society.

If a man's word doesn't count for much, if it doesn't have any substance, how much substance can he have himself?

Colorado's Athletic Director Eddie Crowder, in his announcement that Fairbanks was coming to coach at the school, tried to make his listeners believe that Fairbanks' decision had "little to do with compensation."

And it certainly had nothing to do with published reports of Fairbanks getting $1 million by becoming part of a golf course and real estate development headed by Wichita oil man Jack Vickers.

Fairbanks, he said, "has chosen to come because he loves Colorado, loves college coaching and because of his interest in bringing his family to a western area."

Oh, sure. I don't doubt for a minute that Fairbanks loves Colorado because of a salary dispute, Fairbanks, in his capacity as general manager, sided with ownership, reminding the players of the legality of their contracts.

And when Oklahoma was found guilty of a recruiting violation by the NCAA and had to forfeit eight games it had won shortly after he took over the Patriots in 1973, Fairbanks said he had no knowledge of the particular transgression in which a prospective player's high school record was altered, but he said he had to "eventually accept the responsibility."

So you have it from him—he's on the side of what he morally right. When John Hannah and Leon Gray, both all-pro, refused to play at the start of the 1977 season because

Colorado Confident Fairbanks to Move

BOULDER, Colo. (UPI) — University of Colorado Athletic Director Eddie Crowder says it is only a matter of time before his long-time friend Chuck Fairbanks becomes the new CU football coach.

Crowder, reacting to an announcement from the New England Patriots that Fairbanks rejected Colorado's offer, said it was a question of semantics.

"Coach Crowder has not rejected our offer," said Crowder. "This time, we do not need to negotiate or sign a contract with him."

The Patriots suspended Fairbanks Monday for accepting the Colorado offer, but withdrew it Wednesday when Fairbanks agreed to end contract negotiations with CU officials.

"I'm sure that we will be able to reach an agreement with him," Crowder said. "We want to sign a contract with him."

Crowder said he was delighted Fairbanks would remain with New England this year, but he said he would like to see him in a coaching duties at Colorado.

"We want that for him all along," he said.

Is NFL Czar Pete Rozelle Set to Quit?

By MURRAY OLDERMAN
The tipoff: That's not idle smoke wafting around: the rumors that Pete Rozelle will yield the top NFL post to head the 1984 Olympic Games in Los Angeles. Besides the challenge, which would permit him to ease gracefully into retirement or into another top post in '85, there's the fact that his wife Carrie wouldn't mind living on the West Coast again.

Q. Who was the best year and record of the New Orleans Saints as a football team? — P.J. Bridges IV, Mobile, Ala.

A. The Saints topped the San Francisco 49ers, 24-13, on Dec. 3, they achieved six victories, a team record in one season. This beleaguered franchise has never had a winning year, going back to its debut in 1967. The top previous mark was 5-9. But Dick Nolan has the Saints turned around, and with Archie Manning restored as the quarterback, they'll be tough.

Q. Who are some of the outstanding college basketball players to look for this season in relation to how they'll be drafted by the pros? — George White, Indianapolis.

A. The prize prospect is Larry Bird of Indiana State, who's envisioned as a bigger Rick Barry. He's 6-9, Rick is 6-4. Bird has the same kind of multiple skills. Centers Bill Cartwright of San Francisco and James Bailey of Rutgers are next in line among the nation's seniors.

Q. What is your candidate as the most valuable player in the National Football League this year? Who was the honor last year? — H. Newman, Cincinnati.

A. The 1978 MVP was Tom Brady. He has to be given serious consideration for the Jim Thorpe trophy, symbolic of the outstanding performer in the NFL. He has been the one constant on the Steelers this season, and they have compiled the best record in the league. The Louisiana-bred center is a bigger Rick Barry. He's 6-9, Rick is 6-4. Bird has the same kind of multiple skills. Centers Bill Cartwright of San Francisco and James Bailey of Rutgers are next in line among the nation's seniors.

Q. Through the Cincinnati Reds' history, who do you think is the best all-around player? — Chester Nakatani, Watsonville, Calif.

A. For what it's worth, my pick as the best of all the Reds is none other than that recent defector Pete Rose, simply because of his consistency over 16 years and his versatility as a second, third and left fielder. I was tempted because of Jim Thomey, who dominated his position as an outfielder and swung a more productive bat in terms of homers and RBIs. But niggling injuries have cut him down recently. The old timers might want to argue for Hall of Famer Ed Roush, who hit .323 over 18 major league campaigns.

Ousted Grid Coach Likes Court Move

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Ousted Oklahoma State football Coach Jim Stanley and his attorney say they consider a federal judge's decision to grant a preliminary injunction against the Big Eight a breakthrough for college coaches.

"I really think it was a victory for all college coaches," Stanley said at his home in Stillwater. "It will help collegiate ball. No more kangaroo court rulings."

Stanley's attorney, Jim Linn of Oklahoma City, said, "We're very happy. It's a good thing not only for Stanley but all college coaches and athletes. There's no question that it is a breakthrough."

Linn said he believes both the conference and the NCAA will be bound by the ruling if it stands.

"The ruling certainly will change hearing procedures and will give some significance of fairness to the hearings," Linn said. "No question but that the application of due process lessens the dictatorial powers of the conference and NCAA. There are some rules now that the conference will have to follow. This is a landmark decision."

Stanley, who was fired last month with two years remaining on his contract, was granted a temporary restraining order in November in the suit he filed seeking to prohibit the

Computer System Due for Olympics

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (UPI) — Keeping track of the athletes and events at the 1980 Winter Olympics will be as easy as pushing a button—provided the right button is pushed.

A computer system aimed at providing up-to-the-minute Olympic results donated to the Lake Placid Olympic Organizing Committee by Texas Instruments Inc. was demonstrated this week at the committee's headquarters.

The complex system, which reportedly was valued at about $2 million, although Texas Instruments spokesman said it would not confirm the figure, will link nine competition sites with electronic precision.

As members of the press corps looked on, officials demonstrated how the device would record a cross-country ski race, providing virtually instant information on the status of each competitor at various stages of the event.

The system, which utilizes several video display terminals, also will help register athletes, provide background and keep track of available hotel accommodations.

Tennis Coach

Tom Rodden has been named tennis coach at Manchester Community College. He replaces Tom McDonald who resigned due to a job transfer to New York State.

Rodden, an outstanding player, has been active for several years teaching tennis and holding clinics in Manchester and Glastonbury. He is on the Manchester Youth Services Center staff and resides in East Hartford.

Assistant Coaches In NFL May Unite

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Is it functional for an NFL coach to be both an assistant coach and a union holdover assistant coach? That could be the situation if a plan put forth by the NFL Players Association to unionize the league's assistant coaches comes about.

Assistant coaches apparently are in favor of a proposal put forth last week by the NFLPA to form the Coaches Association. The union would send letters to NFL assistant coaches and, according to NFLPA Executive Director Ed Garvey, the response has been favorable.

"We just question whether there is validity to the old routine of automatically firing assistant coaches just because the head coach is fired," said Garvey. "If the president of a corporation changes, the entire front office doesn't necessarily change. How valid is the new coach's evaluation of the players who remain?"

The NFLPA would be formed with assistance from lawyers, pension consultants and other staff members of the NFLPA. Garvey said the coaches then would become a self-governing union, establishing its own rules and electing officers from its ranks.

If 100 or so of the league's more than 200 assistant coaches initiate an interest in forming the union, Garvey said they will seek official recognition from NFL owners. Should the owners be unwilling to recognize the union, the National Labor Relations Board would be petitioned to conduct an election to determine if a majority of the assistant coaches wish to be part of the NFLPA as a bargaining agent.

"Assistant coaches are people, too, with families, commitments to the game and to the local franchise," said Garvey. "We are just challenging the basic assumption that they have no rights."

"Not Severe Enough"

DETROIT (UPI) — Wayne County Prosecutor William Cahan, saying, "No jury would have convicted him," has decided not to file criminal charges against Will Paiment of the Colorado Rockies for injuring Dennis Falcucci of the Detroit Red Wings in an NHL game at Olympia Stadium.

Cahan, whose office was considering filing felonious assault charges, said although Paiment's action went beyond normal hockey misconduct, it was not severe enough to warrant prosecution. Paiment struck Falcucci in a stick-wielding melee with Paiment in a Oct. 25 game between the Rockies and the Red Wings. Later, Paiment was suspended for 15 games and fined $50 by the NHL.

American Motors Vows To Stay in Business

DETROIT (UPI)—American Motors Corp. has challenged a prediction it will phase itself out of the passenger car business by 1985 and said it is in the automotive business to stay.

The smallest of the Big Four automakers today attacked the government-funded study as "misleading" and said it will give "sufficient weight to the needs of the smaller manufacturers to stay in business."

The study by the National Highway Traffic Safety Board predicted that all of the major companies will cease to exist by 1985 unless they produce 10 million cars per year by 1980. It predicted that American Motors will be the last to go.

American Motors Chairman Roger Smith said the study is "misleading" and said the company will continue to invest in new models and aggressive plans for the future.

AMC's national sales manager said the study is "misleading" and said the company will continue to invest in new models and aggressive plans for the future.

The book has sold over a million copies since its publication in 1977.

In the novel, the author depicts a military attack on the Middle East states and the subsequent collapse of the dollar.

The book has been translated into several languages and has been adapted for the screen.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 17-year-old girl, but I'm very mature for my age. I really dig this dude I call Buddy. He's a musician. My father checked up on him, and he won't let me go out with him anymore, but I do anyway. My husband can't play any instrument so Buddy is my musician. Is that right?

Also, my father found out that Buddy isn't 23 like he said he was. He's really 31. Another thing he found out that Buddy isn't divorced like he said he was—he's only separated. I can't see that it makes any difference as long as he isn't living with his old lady.

So I have two questions to ask. If I am a drummer musician or isn't he? Is as long as a guy is a gentleman, don't you think I should be allowed to go out with him?

Buddy's Chick

DEAR CHICK: A drummer is a musician. But Buddy says he's a liar. And a liar is a musician. I vote your father. Buddy should take his drum and beat it.

indication that the diamond ace was in back of him. As he said later on, "West may be stupid but he isn't insane."

Therefore, after winning the club lead with dummy's ace he developed a plan of camouflaging that let him bring home the hand.

He called dummy's king of clubs, ruffed a club high, entered dummy with a trump, ruffed a diamond high, entered dummy with a second trump noted that trump had been drawn, cashed dummy's ace of spades since the queen jack might drop, discarded his nine of diamonds on the last club, ruffed the diamond to West's hand and showed West his hand.

It didn't matter what West did. A spade lead would be ruffed in South's just as a diamond lead would give a ruff and discard.

Opening lead: ♠ 9

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sonsteg

The motto "Silence is Golden" applies to many bridge hands. If West had observed this motto the odds are that South would have tried to establish his king of diamonds for a spade discard from dummy and would up one trick short since West held the ace of that suit.

West's no-purposive spade overcall gave South a strong

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 17-year-old girl, but I'm very mature for my age. I really dig this dude I call Buddy. He's a musician. My father checked up on him, and he won't let me go out with him anymore, but I do anyway. My husband can't play any instrument so Buddy is my musician. Is that right?

Also, my father found out that Buddy isn't 23 like he said he was. He's really 31. Another thing he found out that Buddy isn't divorced like he said he was—he's only separated. I can't see that it makes any difference as long as he isn't living with his old lady.

So I have two questions to ask. If I am a drummer musician or isn't he? Is as long as a guy is a gentleman, don't you think I should be allowed to go out with him?

Buddy's Chick

DEAR CHICK: A drummer is a musician. But Buddy says he's a liar. And a liar is a musician. I vote your father. Buddy should take his drum and beat it.
