Shah Leaves Temporarily Iran to Have Civilian Rule

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) — Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi, trapped in a bloody nationwide revolt that has plunged Iran into chaos, has agreed to leave Iran temporarily and hand over his powers to a regency council, highly placed sources said Friday. Sources close to the shah said that on Friday he asked Shahpour Bakhtiar, 63, leader of the anti-shah National Front political party to form a civilian government to replace that of Prime Minister Gen. Gholam Reza Asfari.

"The shah is not abdicating," a source close to the palace said emphatically. "He may just be leaving Iran temporarily."

The official spokesman of the shah's imperial court denied Saturday morning that the shah had agreed to leave the country or that there were any plans for his departure, but the highly placed sources insisted the shah would leave temporarily.

(ABC News said late Friday it has learned McGuire Air Force Base in New Jersey is "making preparations to receive the shah's mother and other members of his family." A spokesman for the network would not elaborate.)

The shah, 59, met Bakhtiar in surprise talks Thursday and offered him the premiership after Gholam Housseini Sadighi, the candidate-premier for the past two weeks, gave up his attempts to form a government.

The highly placed sources said Bakhtiar presented the shah with a series of proposals:

- That the shah leave the country on a temporary basis, investing his powers in a regency council composed of elder politicians;
- That the current parliament, elected in 1975 under a short-lived, one-party system, be dissolved;
- That the dread SAVAK secret police be disbanded;
- That powers controlling the Iranian armed forces be entrusted in the civilian government, with appropriate parliamentary intervention.

Political sources said a national day of mourning called for Saturday by Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, 76, the exiled leader of the majority Moslem Shiite sect and the shah's No. 1 enemy, could pose a "real danger" to the transition planned by the shah.

"If there is bloodshed again tomorrow (Saturday) it would really make it difficult for Bakhtiar and the shah to enter into an accommodation falling short of the shah's outright resignation," a high political source said.

The hardline National Front headed by Karim Sanjabi, who met recently with Khomeini in Paris, has called for the shah's outright abdication but Bakhtiar failed to echo his leader.

It would be the second time the shah left the country under political pressure. On Aug. 16, 1953, at the height of his struggle with the late Premier Mohammed Mossadeq, he flew to Rome. But he was back on his throne six days later, after demonstrators paraded through Tehran demanding his return.

Gen. Azhari took over the prime ministership on Nov. 6 in an effort to put down the violence that has taken more than 1,500 lives since the uprising began in November 1977, when leftist student demonstrations poured into the streets of the Iranian cities to demand the shah's ouster.

Their cry was taken up by Khomeini, who violently opposes the modern reforms the shah has brought to Iran. He has led the struggle from exile in Paris.

The surprise political developments followed another day of rioting in a dozen cities of Iran by wild-eyed demonstrators shouting, "Death to the shah" and "victory is near."

With the turmoil increasing daily and anti-Americanism on the rise nearly 1,000 American oil workers in southern Iran — greeted daily by angry shouts of "Yankee get out!" — prepared for a mass weekend strike, joining the thousands who have already fled the country.

Demonstrations and strikes against the shah have brought Iran's economy to the brink of collapse, crippling the oil industry, banks, government departments, airlines, postal services, some hospitals, universities and colleges and newspapers.

The bakeries on which the capital's 4.5 million residents depend for their bread staples were closing due to fuel shortages. Oil production in the past 24 hours was only 375,000 barrels — a fraction of the normal 6 million barrels a day.

Bakhtiar, a French-educated lawyer and former minister in the government of Mossadeq, met with the shah in a move seen by political leaders as taken to appease the National Front, which opposes continuation of the shah's 38-year rule.

Political sources said the shah's offer came after Sadighi, 73, a sociology professor, abandoned his efforts to put together a government of "honest veterans" aimed at ending a year of tumultuous revolt against the monarch.

The National Front, a successor to the extremist National Front Party led by Mossadeq before his dismissal in 1953, revived its activities last summer and now commands the largest following of any political group in Iran. It is now considered a centralist rather than an extremist group.

Troops firing automatic weapons chased anti-shah demonstrators through congested downtown streets and fired on rooftop protesters chanting "Death to the shah."

Witnesses reported four people were killed Friday in Tehran, including a middle-aged man whose head was blown off by a bullet from an automatic rifle fired by patrolling troops. Three others were wounded.

Soldiers fought off yet another attempt by screaming youths to crowd around the U.S. Embassy, whose parking lot was filled with an angry mob last Sunday. Troops riding in heavy trucks and jeeps raced across avenues that were virtually empty because of the shutdown of leftist student demonstrations.

In the riot-torn southern town of Ahvaz, troops opened fire Friday to flush out an estimated 1,000 protesters staging a hospital sit-in. Four people were reported killed and seven wounded. The shooting followed day-long disturbances in Ahvaz Thursday in which anti-shah demonstrators burned down the Iran-American Society Cultural Center and four banks.

Elsewhere in Iran, troops shot and killed nine anti-shah demonstrators in rioting that swept 13 major towns.

Refugees
HONG KONG (UPI) — Four more refugee boats steamed towards Hong Kong Friday and a spokesman for 2,700 Vietnamese stranded outside the colony begged for permission to land, saying many were sick and some were dying and that "all we want is a home."

Church and civic groups joined the refugees in appealing to Hong Kong authorities to reverse their decision barring the 2,794-ton freighter Huey Fong from landing its human cargo of frightened, hungry Vietnamese.

But an official spokesman said "the government has not changed its stand."

"We are afraid for our lives," said refugee spokesman Nguyen Thun Hon in a conversation over the freighter's ship-to-shore radio.

President Buried
ALGIERS, Algeria (UPI) — President Houari Boumediene was buried Friday to a 100-gun salute in the cemetery of Algeria's national hero. His 2 million mourners went wild, collapsing with grief in the streets and trampling scores underfoot as screaming mobs tried to touch the coffin.

The roar of the crowds merged with the mournful wail of prayers from scores of mosques and the scream of ambulance sirens in a cacophony of sound that accompanied the heavily guarded funeral cortege on the slow march from the Great Mosque of Algiers below the Casbah to the El Alia cemetery on the eastern edge of town.

Real Estate Report Given To Glastonbury Council

GLASTONBURY — The latest real estate cost report to the Town Council showed the selection of houses sold between January and November of this year, but did not reflect the stock of housing in town.

That report will be forthcoming, Town Manager Don Peach says, as he and his staff compile figures on housing sales. Most homes were in the $60,000-$70,000 price range with only 36 selling for under $40,000 and the 38, 17 were sold in Tara Hills.

The housing stock could show a bell-shaped pricing curve with seven percent of the homes below $40,000 and seven percent above the $70,000 mark. One thing is certain — Glastonbury is similar to other towns with prohibitive prices for moderate income families.

Moderate income as defined by present Housing and Urban Development guidelines is $12,100 for a family of two and $17,350 for a family of seven or more. With this in mind, prices for moderate income families under Section 8 guidelines as $24,200 for two persons to $35,900 to $40,388 for seven and up.

During the first 11 months, the report said, only two houses were sold for under $30,000 there were 82 homes sold in the $40,000 to $60,000. Of the 912 single family homes sold, 719 ranged from $50,000 to over $100,000, with the eastern part of town commanding the highest prices.

Gaming Study to Begin

HARTFORD (UPI) — A New York management consulting firm will begin a $100,000 study next week on how effective Connecticut's gaming commission is in regulating and correcting abuses in legalized gambling.

The study was ordered in November by Gov. Ella Grasso after the nine-member commission complained it needed more security and staff help to police the state's burgeoning gambling industry.

The commission has been under fire for not exerting enough controls to prevent instances of abuses by parimutuel employees and so-called systems bettors. The commission at one time or another has also had to contend with allegations that players and games may have been fixed.

So far, the allegations have remained just that, although Hartford Jai Alai was fined and given a 10-day suspension by the commission for not reporting allegations of game fixing to the commission.

The New York firm of Cresap, McCormick and Paget Inc., was chosen by the Office on Policy and Management to evaluate the commission and submit a report by March 1.

Judge Rules No Damages Due Xerox-SCM Case

HARTFORD (UPI) — U.S. District Judge Jon O. Newman ruled Friday that the SCM Corp. is not entitled to any damages from Xerox Corp. despite a jury's decision earlier this year that Xerox should pay SCM $112 million.

SCM had been seeking up to $1.5 billion for what SCM claimed were antitrust violations by the Stamford-based Xerox Corp. in the plain paper copier business. The suit was first filed in 1973.

A jury in August ruled Xerox had violated some antitrust laws and should pay $112 million to SCM, but Newman ruled Xerox is not liable to SCM for any money damages.

Richard Sexton, SCM general counsel in New York, said the firm will appeal Newman's "novel and restrictive view of the antitrust laws." He said SCM is confident the jury verdicts in SCM's favor will ultimately be reinstated.

Newman, in a 118-page decision, Friday dismissed four of five general claims made by SCM and said no damages should be paid on a fifth claim in which SCM said Xerox excluded it from the plain paper copying business starting in 1969.

Newman was deliberating whether to grant SCM more than $37 million in damages and whether under federal law the damages should have been trebled.

C. Peter McCologh, chairman and chief executive officer of Xerox Corp., said the decision "represents a major victory for the U.S. patent system."

"We were confident of our position from the outset and the company has now been exonerated," he said.

"If claims such as those made by SCM had succeeded, every patentee would find himself at risk to antitrust liability if he exercised the rights given to him with the grant of a patent," McCologh said.

SCM had charged that Xerox monopolized the office copier market in 1964 and 1969 by illegally using patents and other business practices to exclude competition.

SCM said it lost millions of dollars in business and profits because Xerox would not grant the company licenses on patents Xerox held in the field.

After hearing testimony for more than a year, a jury in Hartford federal court found that Xerox had violated some antitrust laws. It also found SCM could not have entered the copier market in 1964, thus shooting down a major portion of SCM's argument.

In addition, the nine-member jury found there was no market Xerox could have monopolized in 1964.

The case was considered to be among the most costly in federal court history. SCM said earlier this year it spent about $20 million for litigation costs since 1973. Xerox has declined to say how much its legal costs have been.

SCM originally was seeking $500 million in damages but that amount would have been trebled under federal law to $1.5 billion had the ruling been in SCM's favor.

SCM had filed suit based on five general claims: that Xerox excluded SCM from the plain paper copying business beginning in 1964; that Xerox excluded SCM from the plain paper copying business beginning in 1969; that Xerox denied SCM the opportunity to market in the United States the Fuji-Xerox 2200 copier manufactured in Japan; that Xerox impaired SCM's marketing of coated paper copiers by use of two pricing plans known as MUP and XCP; and that Xerox impaired SCM's marketing of 6740 plain paper copiers by various practices.

The trial began in June 1977. The jury returned verdicts on 54 separate questions on Aug. 16, 1978. Newman dismissed all but the 1969 exclusion claim. He also said SCM should not receive any monetary damages from Xerox on the 1969 exclusion claim.

In his ruling, Newman said: "As a result of the jury's factual findings rejecting many of SCM's claims for damages and the court's conclusions of law that damage liability cannot validly be based on any of the jury's factual findings in SCM's favor, it is the ruling of this court that Xerox is not liable to SCM for any money damages."

SCM Corp. is a conglomerate with more than $1 billion in annual sales. Xerox Corp. is a business machine manufacturer with more than $4 billion in annual sales.

Educator Eyes Future Use of Schools

By SUSAN VAUGHN
Herald Reporter
MANCHESTER — One more elementary school closing, increased use of the schools are in the foreseeable future for Manchester's public schools.

During a look into the future Thursday afternoon, School Superintendent James P. Kennedy said that although he does not anticipate any school closings in the short term, the school board will have to face the prospect of one elementary school closing within the next five years or so. This would be based on the projected decline of 1,000 students in the next five years.

Kennedy said the low point in enrollment will probably be in the early 1980's through the early 1990's. However, the students in the lower grades may begin to increase during that period if the slight increase in the birth rate which began to show up this year continues.

Kennedy said Manchester is unusual among suburban towns in that it is still building and some land available. The Manchester School District is presently about 17th largest in the state, but will be 7th, 8th or 9th largest in the near future because of the declining growth in other communities, Kennedy said.

Lincoln School into a municipal building, Green School into a senior citizens center, Buckland School into a private school, South School for the Head Start program and Robert School kindergarten rooms for a day care center.

Final Preparations Made For Area Inaugurations

BOSTON (UPI) — The invitations have been sent out and the finishing touches are being put on preparations for the inaugurations next week of six New England governors.

Three incumbent and three first time chief executives will take their oaths of office during public ceremonies — some of which will be simpler and more austere than in years past.

Some governors will begin their terms on Wednesday. Later in the evening other governors will host a round of inaugural balls featuring orchestras, tuxedos and dancing until midnight.

HARTFORD (UPI) — The state Department of Transportation Friday recommended the controversial Interstate 291 connector between Rocky Hill and Farmington be reduced to four lanes.

Dr. Boris lives with his wife, Elizabeth, and their sons, David, 9, and Paul, 13, at 3516 Drift Drive, Falls Church, Va.

More than 10,000 persons, including such luminaries as Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., and U.S. House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., have been personally invited to attend King's swearing-in ceremonies.

King has also planned five inaugural balls which will be held over a three day period across the state.

Gov. Meldrim Thomson, whom Gallen defeated, turned the lights off as an energy conservation move and Gallen said several times during his campaign he would turn them back on.

Ambulance-Cars Crash Injures Nine Persons

ENFIELD (UPI) — Nine persons, including two policemen, two nurses and a patient, were injured Friday in a four-vehicle accident involving a police ambulance which flipped over, authorities said.

The proposed corridor through Rocky Hill, Wethersfield, Farmington and New Britain has evoked strong opposition from environmentalists concerned about pollution as well as home owners fearing devaluation of their property.

A large part of the linkup has been under construction in New Britain for some time and citizens have complained angrily over the "Road to Nowhere" that has left the area continually torn up.

The spokesman said Friday that the proposed route would take from three to four years, the spokesman said.

Shugrue gave a number of reasons for a decision to modify the route.

The spokesman said Friday that the modified plan "in general, is a good plan" that should please some of the highway opponents.

Four years ago, with work already underway, opponents of the connector obtained an injunction from U.S. District Court Judge M. Joseph Blumenthal to block construction.

Blumenthal found that the state had prepared a faulty Environmental Impact Study and that it is necessary to allow construction to proceed in order to state to examine alternatives to the proposed route.

A DOT spokesman said Friday that the department is now in the process of finalizing the impact study based on the modified proposal in order to comply with Blumenthal's orders.

Lear Didn't Stand Out

By ALLEN M. WIDEM
We see by the papers that one Norman Lear — yes, the same chap who sparked a one-man revolution in American television mores, mold and manner — addressed the prestigious Harvard Law School the other day. To be sure, it was under circumstances far from his humble creative beginnings in Connecticut.

As Martin & Lewis prospered, so, too, did Norman Lear. Class of 1940, Weaver High, Hartford. He got into television when getting in, obviously. And the answer, the fine summing-up, is simply that Norman Lear adhered to what Henry J. Kaiser once said so succinctly: Find a need and fill it.

Efforts Pledged To Save City

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Business and community leaders pledged new cooperative efforts Friday to rescue Cleveland from default and city lawmakers voiced optimism about solving the city's financial problems.

The city narrowly escaped labor turmoil when Mayor Dennis Kucinich, in an abrupt turn-about, Thursday canceled most of 2,000 layoffs of city workers planned for next week. The layoffs would have cut police and firefighter forces nearly in half.

The mayor cited assurances by Cleveland Trust, which holds the largest share of $1.2 million in notes the city defaulted on, as the reason for calling off the layoffs, at least temporarily.

City Council President George Forbes, a bitter Kucinich enemy, said the move gave the city "some breathing room."

Holiday Patrols Started

Police beefed up patrols on the nation's major highways Friday, keeping special watch for tipsy drivers as millions of motorists set off for New Year's revelries.

The National Safety Council estimated 350 to 400 persons could be killed and another 16,000 to 20,000 could suffer disabling injuries in traffic accidents during the three-day holiday — which began at 6 p.m. local time Friday and ends at midnight Monday. Last year, 450 persons were killed and about 15,000 were injured in New Year's weekend traffic mishaps.

Snow and freezing rain concerns our drivers and our officers have been told to keep a special lookout for them, "a Wisconsin state police spokesman said.

A spokesman for the Illinois State Police said patrols on the most heavily traveled routes will be increased and officers will be especially watching for "people who celebrate too much and try to drive."

National Safety Council President Vincent Tofany said the nation's No. 1 highway problem is "not just a matter of the chronic alcoholic behind the wheel."

"It's a matter of the 'moderate' to 'light' to only occasional 'social' drinker — the decent, law-abiding citizen — who share a friendly toast to the New Year or on other happy occasions," he said.

"If you drink, don't drive," said Tofany.

He urged New Year's celebrants to take public transportation or ride with someone else.

Tofany also urged all motorists on the road to keep an eye out for tipsy drivers and to give them a wide berth.

Long Appointed to Public Safety Post

OLD LYME (UPI) — State Police Commissioner Donald Long Friday landed the highly sought after post of the commissioner of the new Department of Public Safety. He also managed to keep his current job.

A special screening committee established by Gov. Ella Grasso reviewed more than 40 applicants before recommending three candidates to the governor. Mrs. Grasso said she made her decision to choose Long Friday morning.

Long, 41, became state police commissioner last May when his boss, Edward Leonard, resigned.

The other two finalists submitted to Mrs. Grasso were State Police Lt. Richard J. Hurley, who heads the special gaming squad and FBI Deputy Assistant Director John H. McDermott of Washington.

In announcing her selection, Mrs. Grasso said, "Donald Long comes with outstanding credentials. He has held just about every job in the state police department and he has distinguished himself."

When Leonard resigned in May he said he was doing so for health problems and a desire "to pull the department out of politics."

Leonard was embroiled in the controversial Peter Reilly case and came under fire when he insisted that Reilly was still the prime suspect in the 1973 slaying of his mother, Miss Barbara Gibbons in Falls Village.

Diplomat Sad On Last Official Day

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The last ambassador from the Republic of China on his last day in the United States was diplomatic and restrained until the end. "All I want to say is that I'm very sad," Ambassador James Shen said Friday.

Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., standing at Shen's side also was sad, but he was angry and his voice shook as he denounced President Carter for "lying for burning his nose at the Constitution and the U.S. Congress, and for selling out Taiwan" to the greater profit of Coca-Cola and the large international banking interests.

Goldwater, as a member of the Committee of the Friends of China, had become part owner of the building where he and Shen met to say farewell.

The Taiwan government turned the Victorian house and 10 acres of lawn behind it about $3 million to the committee for a nominal $10 in an effort to keep it out of the hands of the Peking government.

On New Year's Eve, after Shen has left the country, the Republic of China's blue and red flag will be lowered at the embassy for the final time.

New Items Added to School Menu

EAST HARTFORD — As promised in December, by Interstate United, the firm that services the school lunch programs, several new items will be featured during January.

Puppet Day will be observed on Jan. 9 and the menu will be: Pinocchio pizza bread (cheese and sauce on roll), Punch and Judy potato puffs, festive fruit cocktail and marionette milk. A free hand puppet will be given to each student participating in the lunch program.

For "Ethnic Day," Jan. 12, chicken chow mein with gravy, chilled peaches, toboggan bread (corn bread) and milk.

During January representatives of the food service will be meeting with high school students and advisors to form a committee whereby the problems and preferences concerning the nutrition program can be discussed at the high school level.

Students and parents are reminded that menu items are subject to change because of storms, snow days and such.

Dismissal Asked In Gacy Case

DES PLAINES, Ill. (UPI) — A defense attorney Thursday sought dismissal of the only murder charge against suspected mass sex-killer John Wayne Gacy, who was barred from the courtroom and lay strapped to his bed in a jail hospital.

While lawyers argued Gacy's case at a preliminary hearing, investigators, guided by a crudely drawn map Gacy gave them indicating 27 gravesites, sifted through the mud beneath his suburban home where they have unearthed 21 bodies.

Gacy, charged with murder in the slaying of 15-year-old Robert Piest of Des Plaines and suspected in the slayings of as many as 32 teen-age boys and young men, had been expected in court for his preliminary hearing in the Piest case.

But Cook County Circuit Court Chief Judge Richard Fitzgerald sent word shortly before the hearing that, for security reasons, Gacy would be kept in his room at Cermak Hospital, where he reportedly attempted suicide Saturday.

Gacy, who has a history of heart trouble, has been strapped to his bed to prevent any attempt to escape or commit suicide.

As 200 spectators jammed the Des Plaines courtroom, defense attorney Sam Amirante asked Cook County Circuit Court Associate Justice John L. White to dismiss the murder charge against Gacy. He said the charge could not stand because Piest's body has not been found.

The motion was continued until Jan. 10 and the case was assigned to Fitzgerald.

Investigators armed with trowels and garden tools continued the grisly search for bodies in the muddy crawl space beneath the Gacy home in Chicago's northwest suburban Norwood Park Township.

Gacy, 36, a convicted sodomist and part-time clown, also has been linked to a body removed from the Des Plaines River last month and investigators were trying to determine if he is linked to yet another body recovered from the river Thursday.

Investigators said Gacy told them he killed the Piest boy and dumped his body — and four or five others — in the Des Plaines River.

Piest's parents, brother and sister sat 30 feet from White as he explained why Gacy was not being allowed in the courtroom.

Amirante, who has said it will be impossible for Gacy to get a fair trial, objected to the decision to bar the defendant from the courtroom.

"This action was certainly uncalled for. It's a tragedy," Amirante said. "This man...deserved the right to be here in this court today."

White approved a motion by Amirante that police and officials be prevented from releasing any prejudicial information regarding Gacy and that a defense representative be allowed at the Gacy home during excavations.

Judge Fitzgerald, contacted later, said Gacy can be transferred from Cermak Hospital to his Chicago courtroom through a tunnel, which will require much less security.

He also said that because the Des Plaines court room is close to Gacy's home, his life might be threatened if he appeared in the suburban courtroom.

Fitzgerald said Gacy cannot be indicted on any other murder charges unless the bodies found under his home are identified.

Investigators have found "remnants" in the Gacy home — drivers' licenses, class rings and other items — of young men they suspect may be lying under Gacy's 30-inch crawlspace, but none of the 21 bodies have been identified.

Communities Join Forces For Annual Rose Parade

Months of planning, hard work

Life-style Editor

When the annual Tournament of Roses Parade begins Monday in Pasadena, Calif., it will bring back some happy, as well as hectic memories for Mel Seibold, recreation director for the Town of Manchester.

Seibold, who spent much of his youth in Pasadena area used to work preparing and trimming the float sponsored by the City of Pasadena, where he was born.

"Most of the people in the community, organizations, even some individuals, enter floats in parade competition," he said.

"Some groups use professional designers, others may have artists on their staff. College art departments also enter all interested in winning an award," Seibold said.

Each year when the theme for the forthcoming year is announced, Seibold recalls when he and a group of friends drove their cars as close as possible, parked all the cars except a small MG into which five of them piled and then drove even closer with the small car.

"When we found the right spot, we just picked up the car, set it on a back lot, and had a great vantage point for parade viewing," he said.

Driving a float in the parade is no bed of roses (if you'll pardon the pun) and Seibold said the drivers sit in very enclosed areas.

"They have a seat, a steering wheel, and many look down through the bottom of the float watching the line in the middle of the road for direction. Some corners where there are usually no lines are hurriedly painted just before the parade to give the drivers a course to follow."

Traffic problems are terrific, Seibold says. Parking is the main problem.

"People sit on roof tops to watch the parade, or hang out of windows. A few apartments along the otherwise commercial area parade route, actually rent out roof space for viewers. Of course, the same applies to homes with front or backyards along the way; space is at a premium."

Seibold noted that back then, the Rose Queen usually came from Pasadena College.

"I don't know if that still holds, but then girls would enroll in the college just to be eligible to compete for the Rose Queen title."

Students work around the clock as parade time draws near. Some are from Pasadena City College, Glendale College and Los Angeles College, now a university," he said.

"Some of the florists in California do nothing all year but grow flowers for the parade, and still other florists are shipped in from various parts of the United States."

Seibold, who last participated in the parade activities more than 24 years ago, says viewers started lining the parade route as early as 3:30 a.m. on parade day.

"Some arrive armed with A-frame ladders, vans, trucks — anything that would give them height to get a better view of the two-and-one-half to three-hour parade."

Seibold recalls when he and a group of friends drove their cars as close as possible, parked all the cars except a small MG into which five of them piled and then drove even closer with the small car.

Senior Citizens

Hi neighbor! Well, this is the weekend when everybody lets it all hang out and suffers a few days trying to put it all back together again.
Just a word from a young-liner and he is to sort of behave yourself and if you're going out to celebrate, be sure you're able to find your way home safe and sound.
We want you back here for the coming year in the best of health. So do your thing and enjoy throwing this puzzle over your head and we're going to need you seniors more than ever to help put this country back on the right track once again.
This has been a short week for us because of Christmas falling on Monday. It will also be a short one next week as we celebrate New Year's Day.
Here at the center the action starts on Tuesday afternoon at the Parade Lanes where our Senior Bowling Leagues were busy banging the heck out of the hard wood. Some were sporting new Christmas gifts. The results of the afternoon's work is Class A high triple, Bea Cormier, 439; Frank Kiosmas, 554; high single, Bea Cormier, 204; Bob McCormick, 231; Class B high triple, Dorothy Brass, 326; Bill Castelluccio, 442; high single, Polly Kenway, 140; Tom O'Neill, 156.
On Wednesday morning we had nice tables for ur pinocle games and the winners were: Sam Schors, 633; Jennie Fogarty, 606; Mike DeStimone, 539; Nadine Malcolm, 580; Kitty Byrnes, 578; George East, 576; Bill Stone, 570; Arvid Peterson, 564; Bea Moanan, 555; John Phelps, 552.
In the afternoon we had 12 members playing bridge and the prize winners were: Nadine Malcolm, 5700; Marge McLaine 3590; George East, 3310.
This wasn't a bad turnout considering that our bus wasn't in operation for both Wednesday and Thursday.
The action should start to get back to normal again this coming week. For operators our fun day will feature some exciting sides of our own members with a few special surprises supplied by our good friend "Mr. Camera Man" himself, Niles Carlson. This all starts right after our delicious baked stuffed manicotti dinner served at noon here. So why not stop by for show and then stay for the slides because you may be in some of them.
Last Wednesday I mentioned about the Shrine Circus and we will be signing up for this trip on Monday, Jan. 8.
The circus will be at the State Armory in Hartford and is scheduled for Thursday, Feb. 15.
We must sign up at this time to assure us decent seats and the price for the show and transportation is $7.75.
I mentioned before about a sale to Hawaii and just now got some information on it. The deal includes a two-night stay in San Francisco, seven nights in Waikiki and end up with two nights in Reno. The trip is scheduled for 11

Youth Soccer Group Honored in Parade

EAST HARTFORD - The American Youth Soccer Organization (AYSO) will be recognized and honored by the city in the 90th annual Tournament of Roses Parade as the first such organization in its field, said Frank DeGregorio of East Hartford, regional AYSO commissioner.
On Jan. 1, more than 100 million persons through hundreds of television and newspaper outlets will see the AYSO float.
Support for AYSO in their effort has come from Pepsi Cola, Carl's Jr. and Tour Atlantica, who have donated corporate contributions for the float.
The float is 16 feet wide, 50 feet long, 16 feet high and weighs close to 14,000 pounds. The soccer ball in the front of the float is 10 feet in diameter and will revolve to display the red, white and blue polygons of the AYSO ball.
The AYSO symbol will be highlighted in gold and red and blue polygons.
There are 21 flags flowing away from the ball identifying the 21 states which participate in the program.

New Year Cards Have Long Past

By RUSS MacKENRICK

"Blessing on thee, ...
 "Peace and Love and gentle joy!
 "May the coronal they twine
 "Through the dream of life be thine!" (Frances Ridley Havergal)
 ("Coronal" is a nice touch, better than plain old "crown.")
 The older New Year cards may convey just good wishes like this, or they may show a more positive awareness of the passage of time with clocks and watches and calendars.
 There can be a design with a clock in a belfry, or a mammoth watch in a wreath, or a garland of tiny watches — all these point to the fact that by their steady ticking away they have produced the New Year.
 The card shown here is not a mailing card, it is plain-back like the old-time Christmas card of last week's column. New Year postcards, and others of that ilk, got a break in 1898 when an act of congress permitted them to be mailed for one cent like the government's postal cards of the time. There was still a string attached in that there could be nothing on the back except the name and address and a stamp. That means we will find cards used between 1898 and 1907 with the artwork marred by personal messages inked in the front.
 At that time it was usual for a manufacturer to have stock designs to be run through the presses with added material appropriate to the occasion. Most of the early cards could be used for New Year's, Christmas, Valentine's Day or Easter.
 In May of 1907 the United States permitted the use of the divided-back card which we see now with the message on the left and the address and stamp on the right. Then the lid was really off for artistry to flourish and we had an explosion of greeting ideas.

New Year postcard collectors are always eager to run across any with the year in large numerals running the length of the card. These would have the four numbers of the date made up of forget-me-nots or snowballs or little faces, ad infinitum. Nothing could be dearer to a dealer's shelves than a batch of these when their time had passed, so they were not stocked heavily and are rather scarce. A really hard-to-find item would be one of these with a stamp cancelled on January first — either something mailed early that morning or a late afterthought.

Now it is the usual thing to have the greeting a Merry Christmas and Happy New Year combo — with the special New Year card (Father Time and Babe), a hurry-scurry to reply to a Christmas well-wisher you had forgotten.

It may seem lopsided, but the New Year greeting came long before the Christmas ones in the halls of history. Something of the nature has been found in Egypt from the 6th century B.C. and the Romans made a Roman holiday out of the coming of the new year.

Church for Retardates

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — Several years ago when Ellen Ward asked a priest about First Communion for her little girl, she was told, "It isn't necessary. Miami has Christ already." Miami is not.

"I figured that I have Christ already, too," Mrs. Ward said, "but I still belong to a church. The clergy say it differs in ways. Some say, 'You have a blessing, a little saint,' and some say, 'You have a cross to bear.' But the fact is, they do good and bad. They can learn there is a right and wrong way like any other person and that it's not just OK to do whatever they want because they are retarded."

Parent-teachers in the class are working on a lesson about morality. "Our kids have feelings. They have desires, so they need this."

Religious education for the retarded is overdue, says Mark Salter, a Columbus Diocese consultant on educating the mentally handicapped. "The church is just awakening to the need of the retarded," Salter says.

Coliseum Collapse Rivalled By Snow, Sub Plot, Election

By JAMES V. HEALON
United Press International

It was rivalled in impact by a blizzard, a plot to hijack the nuclear submarine Greagon, an election victory by Gov. Ella T. Grasso, the capture of one of the FBI's 10 Most Wanted fugitives, and the shooting death of a teacher on duty.

But the thundering roar of the coliseum roof lingers to this day. Many, if not most of Connecticut's 3 million residents, attended events there at one time or another. They said it was remarkable it happened when there was no one in the 10,647-seat coliseum.

The 1,405-ton flat roof — 80 feet high and longer than two football fields — caved in under a massive buildup of ice and snow at 4:19 a.m. on Jan. 17, only hours after 5,000 basketball fans left the coliseum at the center, a $70 million convention and shopping complex.

An engineering firm said later the collapse was caused by a design deficiency involving inadequate bracing of the space frame roof. No criminal charges have been filed. Travelers Insurance Companies voted to collect every nickel of its $12.3 million settlement with the city.

The timetable to reopen the coliseum by Jan. 1, 1980 might be altered, City Manager John A. Salda said Dec. 15, because of delays in obtaining steel for the $27.5 million reconstruction project.

There was one bright note, David Heil, who promotes tourism and convention business at Hartford, said. "This has helped us put Hartford on the map."

Blizzard
Connecticut looked like a photograph from the Blizzard of 1888 when the swirling snow with hurricane-force winds began piling up on the night of Feb. 6. By the time the storm ended, the state was swathed in up to 30 inches of snowy grays.

Nine persons died in storm-related incidents, and thousands of people spent two nights snowbound in office buildings or hotel lobbies.

Gov. Ella T. Grasso rose to the occasion, unlike her predecessor, Gov. Thomas J. Meskill, who took his ski in Vermont while the state was crippled by an ice storm in 1973.

Mrs. Grasso abandoned her official vehicle in a snow drift, and walked a mile to her office, as photographers recorded her every step. She then supervised the state's storm cleanup.

She declared a travel ban for 38 hours so work crews could clear the roads, and about 2,000 abandoned cars were hauled off interstate highways and town roads.

Schools
Dissatisfied with the Legislature's progress, a Superior Court judge ordered the lawmakers to find a constitutional cure for Connecticut's education funding woes by the spring of 1979.

In 1977, the state Supreme Court declared Connecticut's system of funding education unconstitutional because it relied too heavily on property taxes. Last summer, Judge Jay Rubin ordered the Legislature to remedy the problem by May 1.

A special task force has devised a complex formula that would more than double state educational aid to cities and towns over the next five years. It remains to be seen if the Legislature will approve a funding plan that will ease the crisis.

Carr Case
Volunteer firemen discovered the nude body of 13-year-old Dawn Anderson in an abandoned cellar about a mile from North Windham home just after midnight on March 26, 1978. Her skull had been crushed by a large rock. State Police routed Dawn's 15-year-old next-door neighbor, Andrew John Carr, and in a makeshift police station they stripped, photographed, removed body hairs, and interrogated him. He was not told he could have his parents present, talk to an attorney, or decline to turn over his clothes.

His murder trial testimony revealed state police had apparently ignored several possible suspects. Key evidence used to determine Dawn's time of death was discarded by a pathologist, and a medical examiner said he calculated the time of death while standing atop a cellar wall in the dark.

Superior Court Judge Joseph Danahay ruled Carr's constitutional rights were violated during his initial questioning and said Carr's attorney should be allowed to see the evidence.

The jury deliberated two hours and 40 minutes on Feb. 23 and acquitted Carr.

Teachers
The 261 striking Bridgeport teachers jailed for refusing a strike's back-to-work order were upset because Mayor John C. Mandanici doubted his own salary to $42,000 just before slashing the school budget.

The 19-day walkout by 1,550 teachers began Sept. 6, giving an extended summer vacation to the city's 23,000 public school students. At issue were wages and the question of class sizes.

When the Bridgeport Education Association argued to end its illegal strike, Superior Court Judge James Henery imposed a $500 per day fine against each teacher and a $10,000 per day penalty against the union.

A mobalised Connecticut National Guard camp in Windsor Locks, not far from Gov. Grasso's home, became a makeshift prison while negotiators held marathon bargaining sessions.

Two weeks later, the BEA overwhelmingly ratified a two-year pact calling for a 6 percent salary increase during the first year and a 7.12 percent increase for the next school year.

Bob Killian
There was never any love lost in Gov. Ella T. Grasso's official marriage to Lt. Gov. Robert K. Killian. But their divorce was one of the messiest in Connecticut political history.

During their battle for the Democratic nomination, Killian halved the governor into court on charges she violated state election laws with deceptive campaign advertising during the New Britain Democratic primary.

A Superior Court judge ruled the advertising was deceptive, but refused to give Killian a new primary.

At the party's summer convention, Killian asked just enough votes to win the right to challenge Mrs. Grasso in the state's first Democratic gubernatorial primary Sept. 21.

After a bitter campaign, she sent Killian back to his law practice by a more than 2:1 vote margin.

Ella Grasso
Gov. Grasso crowned the silver anniversary of her unbeaten political career with an awesome re-election victory Nov. 7. The incumbent Democrat rolled up a 100,000-vote margin as she demolished Ronald J. Sarasin, a three-term Republican congressman from Beacon Falls.

Voter turnout for the governor's race was the lowest in Connecticut's modern political history. Nevertheless, the one-sided nature of Mrs. Grasso's victory almost equaled her landslide performance in 1974 when she beat another Republican congressman, Robert Steele.

She was elected to the state legislature 25 years ago and Mrs. Grasso — the first woman in the nation ever elected governor without the aid of her husband's name — never lost an election since.

Teacher Slain
Anthony Annunziata, a New Haven business education teacher for 19 years, told colleagues at Wilbur Cross High School he did not feel well on Thursday, Dec. 14. But the 56-year-old teacher refused to go home.

At about 1:15 p.m. Annunziata went to the school store where he worked each day. He was holding a gun as he went into the store. He was shot once in the chest with a .38 caliber revolver. He died less than two hours later at Yale-New Haven Hospital.

Three other Haven youths were charged in the slaying. State education officials said it was the first time a Connecticut teacher died in a violent manner while on duty.

Sub Plot Con
Other FBI agents sometimes ask Bernard Feeney if it's true Woody Allen is going to sue the prosecutor in the Feeney case. It's not true, according to Feeney.

The three alleged plotters were to board the 292-foot Trepang at New London, kill the crew, and fire missiles on New London and Washington. Then they were going to hold a bargain sale for submarine enthusiasts on the high seas.

Wire fraud charges were substituted for conspiracy counts against two defendants. The third became a witness for the prosecution — and it took a U.S. District Court jury in St. Louis just 17 minutes Dec. 15 to convict the first defendant.

Wings of Morning

By CLIFF SIMPSON

God in Man
I would like to add a personal note to the "Wings of the Birds." The explanation of why God had to come to earth as a man was used two weeks ago. Many people have commented on the quality of his writing. I believe that God is all powerful and could communicate with us in any way he desired, but he chose to come in the form of a man who we could understand. His purpose was to show us that God is not something far away and incomprehensible, but that he is very real and very close to us. He is the "God in Man." This is a very important concept. It is the foundation of our faith. It is the reason we can have a personal relationship with God. It is the reason we can have faith in him. It is the reason we can have hope in him. It is the reason we can have love in him. It is the reason we can have life in him. It is the reason we can have joy in him. It is the reason we can have peace in him. It is the reason we can have salvation in him. It is the reason we can have eternal life in him. It is the reason we can have a home in him. It is the reason we can have a father in him. It is the reason we can have a brother in him. It is the reason we can have a friend in him. It is the reason we can have a helper in him. It is the reason we can have a comforter in him. ## Parades & Games

CBS kicks off the morning and the New Year with two parades "The Cotton Bowl Festival Parade" from Dallas, Texas, and the "CBS Tournament of Roses Parade" from Pasadena, Calif. Bands, elaborate floats and lovely young ladies help build suspense for the ensuing games.

For the sixth consecutive year, actor William Conrad will host one of the Lone Star State's most star-filled spectacles, the annual "Cotton Bowl Festival Parade." Loretta Swit of "M*A*S*H" and Judy Norton-Taylor of "The Waltons" will be with him for the 23-year-old event.

The live show will be sprinkled with surprises, such as the incredible "supercycle" manned by 25 people, in addition to appearances by hosts of other personalities, including the Southwest Conference Princess and, of course, the Cotton Bowl Queen and her royal court.

After the streets are cleared, the Dallas Cotton Bowl will fill up for the Cotton Bowl classic between Notre Dame and the Houston Cougars, also on CBS-TV.

ABC carries the ball in the early afternoon with the 45th Annual Sugar Bowl telecast live from the New Orleans Superdome. Top ranked Penn State, the only undefeated major college team, takes on No. 2 ranked Alabama. The outcome will decide the national championship.

Bob Barker and Phyllis George will host the "CBS Tournament of Roses Parade." Loretta Swit of "M*A*S*H" and Judy Norton-Taylor of "The Waltons" will be with him for the 23-year-old event.

Continuous abnormal eating is called bulimia. Some victims of this rare disease have to spend 15 hours a day eating.

When the Amoco Cadiz ran aground off Brittany, the French army and civilians worked together to clean the oil off the beach.

Ecological Disaster

On March 16, 1978, the Amoco Cadiz, an American owned supertanker, broke up off the coast of Brittany and spilled 68 million gallons of Arabian crude oil into the English channel.

"Nova," WGBH-Boston's science-documentary series, reached the scene within a week and chronicled the ecological effects and the attempted clean up of this increasingly common 20th-century maritime disaster.

The Amoco Cadiz and other recent spills are described in "Black Tide," the first episode of "Nova's" sixth season on PBS. The show will air on Thursday, Jan. 4; be sure to check your local listings for the time and channel.

"Nova" traces the oil that spilled into the ocean and spread into a 100-mile slick, which washed up onto the beaches of France. The oil mixed with sea water to form a chocolate mousse-like mixture that suffocated everything in its path. Lighter, more toxic components of the fuel dissolved in the sea; further investigation showed that another 40 or 50 thousand tons of oil remain trapped in silt on the ocean floor.

The French army cleaned the mousse-mixture off scenic tourist beaches, thus rescuing one local industry. But, the oil that settled to the ocean floor smothered the plankton that feeds crabs, lobsters and fish.

Local fishermen bemoan their meager catches; they find only three or four crabs in a bed where they used to catch a ton. One oyster farmer expects his oyster beds will be closed for at least five years.

Brittany's fishing industry, tourist trade and seaweed-chemical business - all mainstays of the region's economy - are seriously crippled for years to come.

"Black Tide" insists that enormous spills, such as the Amoco Cadiz, are becoming less and less likely. Supertankers carrying 68 million gallons of oil are holdovers from the oil boom years of the early 1970s.

As shipping oil in oversized tankers becomes less and less profitable, more and more oil travels in smaller, independent tankers the size of the Argo Merchant, which was responsible for America's largest spill when it ran aground off the Massachusetts coast and oozed seven million gallons of oil into the sea.

These smaller tankers are often aged and decrepit, on their third or fourth owner, with maintenance cut to the bone, crewed to minimum standards.

After the Argo Merchant spill, the U.S. Coast Guard began boarding and inspecting tankers coming into U.S. ports. Although no supertankers come into American ports - they're too large - the Coast Guard program is driving marginal tankers away from our shores.

What's up in golden apples?

Golden apples were recently handed out to those who had made 1978's greatest contributions to the cultural life of New York City — and, coincidentally, to that of the nation. Among the winners of the Cue magazine-sponsored awards were:

Playwright: Neil Simon, who "found a way to combine humor with an understanding of the human heart" in his autobiographical new play, "Chapter Two."

Television: "Saturday Night Live," the whacky comedy show now in its fourth year.

Fashion: Halston, who took time out from designing gowns for Liza Minnelli and Elizabeth Taylor to devise new uniforms for New York's finest.

Film actress: Jill Clayburgh, for her characterization of New York singles life in "An Unmarried Woman."

Film actor: John Travolta, for establishing "an appeal that cut across generations and tastes" in "Grease" and "Saturday Night Fever."

Dial-ogue

ROGER ON ROGERS — You recently answered a question about Roy Rogers that was not all true. Roy married Arlene Wilkins June 14, 1936. In 1941 they adopted Cheryl Darlene. Roy and Arlene's first natural child, Linda Low, was born in 1943. Arlene gave birth to Roy Jr. in 1946 and died eight days later of an embolism. So you were in error when you said they had five children. When Roy and Dale were married in 1947, she already had a son, Tom, by her first marriage. Robin was born to Dale in 1950, but died two years later. They adopted both Sandy and Dodie in 1952. Marion, at age 11, became their ward, but they never adopted her. They adopted Debbie in 1955, and she later died in a church bus accident. My information comes from books written by Dale Evans Rogers. — Gwen Pitre, Rogers, Ark.

Thank you for setting the record straight.

WHEELER DEALER — Who played the lead singer of Rapid Fire in the Ron Howard movie "Cotton Candy"? Where can I write to him? — Jane Morita, Long Beach, Ms.

Mark Wheeler was the dastardly Torbin Bequette who sang "I Shot the Sheriff" ad infinitum. Wheeler is married and lives in San Francisco, but I'm afraid printing home addresses is forbidden.

What's up in science fiction?

Even before "Star Wars" and "Battlestar Gallactica," "star" was a big word in science fiction.

According to George Elrick in "Science Fiction Handbook" (Chicago Review Press), these were the words that appeared most frequently in the titles of the 1,020 science fiction books he analyzed and the numbers of times each was used:

|       |    |                |    |
| Star  | 57 | Moon           | 25 |

What's up in mail?

Maybe your mailman doesn't look overburdened. But he and his co-workers handle about 90 billion pieces of mail annually — or 422 (per capita) for each American, according to Herron House's "The Book of Numbers" (A&W Publishers).

These are the numbers of letters, postcards and other pieces of mail annually (per capita) in other countries:
