

Official Says New England Economy Is Bleak

AUGUSTA, Maine (UPI) — A Washington economic research group says New England's real per capita income, when adjusted to reflect cost of living, paints a much bleaker picture of the region's economy than federal officials like to admit.

"It has become fashionable among Washington policymakers to dismiss the decline of the Northeastern economies as exaggerated," Jeff Faux, co-director of the National Center for Economic Alternatives, said in a recent interview. "But when you consider the relative costs of living, it appears that the decline has actually been understated."

Faux said adjusting U.S. Census Bureau per capita income figures to reflect varying costs of living drops every New England state's position relative to the rest of the nation. Massachusetts moves from having the 14th highest income to the 27th and Maine is dropped right to the bottom of the list.

Connecticut has the second highest per capita income in terms of dollars, but the seventh as far as what the money can buy, he said. New Hampshire's income level compared to the other states in the nation dropped from 30th to 38th, Rhode Island from 26th to 43rd and Vermont from 44th to 48th.

Faux, who keeps a home in Richmond, Maine, said his group "is primarily an economic research organization but we have been involved in the effort to reopen the steel mill in Youngstown, Ohio, that closed down. Much of our work is on inflation. Just several weeks ago we were to the White House for a session with President Carter and Alfred Kahn on inflation."

He said while New England was adversely affected by its high cost of living, states like Texas, where the adjusted income moves the ranking 25th to 8th, and Nevada, which has the country's highest per capita income, appeared to be in a better position than at first believed. "Everyone knows how well off you are depends not only on the money you earn, but also on the prices you pay," Faux said. "Government income statistics do not take account of the cost of heating your home in South Dakota or buying food in Maine."

Faux said the cost of the basic necessities of life such as food and shelter are very high in New England. He said transportation costs drive up the price of food and housing costs are escalated by high energy bills and property taxes in Maine and Massachusetts.

"Some of the things that aren't a result of the region's location, but result from a federal policy like the energy crisis, are clearly where New England is taking it on the chin," he said. "The cost of electricity is higher and in Massachusetts the cost of natural gas is much higher than the rest of the country."

Faux said there is "no question the tax structure is a factor, where you have a reliance on the property tax, which is essentially a regressive tax particularly in Massachusetts — you get these very high housing costs."

He said the latest U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics show the cost of food in Boston for a medium income family of four is $734 more a year than in Austin, Texas, and the food costs in Portland, Maine, are $817 more a year than in Austin.

Faux was emphatic that the typical answer for fighting inflation — cutting government spending as a means of driving down wage pressure on inflation — will do New England little good because the region's problems are with the basic necessities of life, "inflation items that are not wage related."

The following shows the change in per capita income in New England when federal estimates are adjusted to reflect cost of living, based on National Center for Economic Alternatives computations.

Also shown is the state by state decline in ranking relative to the rest of the nation.

- Connecticut: $8,061 to $7,364, 2nd to 7th.
- Maine: $5,734 to $5,372, 46th to 50th.
- Massachusetts: $7,258 to $6,364, 14th to 37th.
- New Hampshire: $6,535 to $6,306, 30th to 39th.
- Rhode Island: $6,775 to $6,167, 26th to 43rd.
- Vermont: $5,823 to $5,734, 44th to 48th.

WHAT'S NEWS

PEKING (UPI) — Four senators said today Chinese Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-ping promised Taiwan would retain full autonomy after reunification with China, including its own armed forces and its free enterprise economic system. The Chinese leader said reunification would be peaceful unless Taiwan rejects the idea indefinitely, the senators said.

Teng also said China will assist ousted Cambodian communist leader Pol Pot in a guerrilla war against the Soviet-backed Vietnamese who swept through Cambodia last weekend.

The vice premier said China does not believe Soviet forces are strong enough to undertake a decisive invasion of China because Soviet military power is concentrated in Europe and the Middle East.

Teng also said China welcomes expansion of U.S. naval forces in the western Pacific and strengthening of the Japanese self-defense forces. But China wants the United States to withdraw its troops from South Korea and negotiate with communist North Korea on the country's unification.

Abortion Rule

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court today struck down a Pennsylvania requirement that doctors performing abortions must determine if the fetus might survive and, if so, try to bring about a live birth.

This affirmed a lower-court decision that the law's requirements for determining whether a fetus is capable of living outside the mother are unconstitutionally vague.

Justice Harry Blackmun, writing for the majority, said the law wrongly subjects doctors to criminal penalties for violations without regard to fault, setting "a trap for those who act in good faith."

Dissenters charged the ruling "withdrawing from the states a substantial measure of the power to protect fetal life" that was reserved for them in the high court's past abortion decisions.

Class Size Problem Has Many Aspects

HARTFORD (UPI) — The Hartford Classless Alliance said today Gov. Ella Grasso should divide what she discussed with Northeast Utilities President Leslain Silin in a private meeting at the Capitol in November.

Shortly before the meeting, Northeast asked the state for a $13 million rate hike — the largest in Connecticut history.

After the meeting, Mrs. Grasso said she would stay out of the rate hike fight after the meeting is premature, not in the best interest of the people that elected her and leads one to wonder about political pressure being applied by Northeast," the Hartford Classless Alliance said.

School Violence Subject of Bill

HARTFORD (UPI) — A teacher-leader group says he experienced school violence first-hand when he proposed a bill that would make mandatory for school administrators to report all physical assaults on teachers to police.

The measure was submitted Monday to the Legislature's Education Committee by Rep. Aloysius Ahern, D-Bolton. It also would require administrators to keep a record of all threats and assaults and report them annually to the State Board of Education.

Ahern, an East Hartford high school teacher and former Golden Gloves boxer, in the past has been a critic of what he called the state board's lack of concern about security and discipline problems in the schools.

Regime Claims Cambodia Rule

CAMBANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) — Cambodia's new government today claimed total control of the nation. Vietnam became the first nation to recognize the regime and the Soviet Union followed.

The Khmer Rouge leaders have been unhealed from since vowing last week to set up guerrilla resistance to a statement read by Radio Hanoi today in the name of rebel leader Heng Samrin said the "Pol Pot government ceased to exist" after the fall of Phnom Penh.

Non-Communist nations in Southeast Asia scheduled an emergency meeting of foreign ministers to discuss ramifications of the lightning takeover.

U.N. Council Has Dilemma

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — The U.N. Security Council today faces the dilemma of receiving a Cambodian prince and handling divergent requests from two Cambodian governments, both claiming to represent the war-torn nation.

While considering a request by the Khmer Rouge government to condemn a Vietnam-led invasion, the Security Council received word of the fall of Phnom Penh to rebel forces, staged a spectacular 15-day military drive.

The new revolutionary rulers of Cambodia then informed the council any U.N. debate on the topic would be not going to have $30 million to work with next year. We're probably going to have a little more than we had this year."

Because Monday night's meeting was a workshop, no formal action was taken.

Principal Of 22 Years Will Retire

MANCHESTER — Robert E. Heins, who has worked in the Manchester school system for 22 years, is retiring.

The retirement of Heins, who has spent the past four years as principal of Washington School, was announced and approved at Monday night's meeting of the Board of Education.

The board approved other personnel changes including the retirement of Henrietta C. Sime, a math teacher at Manchester High School, and the assignment of Judith C. Libby as a full-time teacher at the high school for second semester.

Heins has served as a principal in Manchester for 18 years. He started teaching sixth grade at Bentley School in 1956 and four years later was appointed teaching principal at Beckland School.

In 1962, he became teaching principal at Robertson School and one year later was appointed supervising principal of the school.

During his 13 years at Robertson, he was involved in two building programs at the school. While at the school, Heins worked with others to involve many of the special education students in programs and classes for regular students.

"This was prior to any mandates for mainstreaming," Heins wrote in a recent biographical sketch of his years in Manchester.

He started in his present position at Washington School in 1975 and has spent much of his time working along with the building program at that school.

Heins also said he has had much interest in libraries. He helped set up a central library at Bentley School and also helped make the library at Robertson School the first one in an elementary school in town to be open all day every day of the school week.

During his years in Manchester, Heins also served as principal representative to the Math Curriculum Committee and as a member of the Manchester School Administration Association Negotiating Team.

His retirement became effective at the end of the school year. He plans to spend his time on many activities, including camping, fishing, gardening and "catching up on all the books I have not had time to read."

Dr. James Kennedy, superintendent of schools, said "I have always found Mr. Heins to be a kind and gentle man. In all of the dealings I have had with Mr. Heins, his paramount concern has been for students and teachers."

Mrs. Sime has taught math at the high school since 1964. Her retirement also will become effective at the end of the school year.

Mrs. Libby has worked as a part-time teacher at the high school for five years. This assignment has been changed to full time because of the retirement of Larry Perry.

She will teach four sections of biology.

The Board of Education also accepted the resignation of Karol Auer, a half-time math teacher at Bennett Junior High School for five years, and the appointment of Debra Nolan, who will be a one-fifth science teacher at the high school. Mrs. Nolan will take one-fifth of Perry's assignment.

Both the resignation of Mrs. Auer and the appointment of Mrs. Nolan become effective later this month.

Chad's Parents Seek Laetrile in Mexico

PLYMOUTH, Mass. (UPI) — The parents of 3-year-old, leukemia-stricken Chad Green say they want to take their son to Tijuana, Mexico, where he can be treated with the controversial cancer drug Laetrile.

Jerry and Diana Green of Scituate, Mass., Monday asked Plymouth Superior Court Judge Guy Voorn to reverse a previous order making the boy a partial ward of the state which was imposed last year when the parents opposed chemotherapy for their son.

For more than one year, Chad has been the center of a controversy over whether parents have the right to pick medical treatments for their children if those treatments are unorthodox.

All along the Greens had been opposed to chemotherapy claiming they could better care for their son with a special metabolic diet.

However, the parents Monday said they are now willing to keep the boy on chemotherapy, but that they now want the "care and protection order" lifted by the state so they can take the child to Mexico.

As a ward of the state Chad is allowed to live at home with his parents but they must let a social worker see him on a regular basis to make sure he is receiving the chemotherapy.

Mrs. Green said she and her husband will present at least four witnesses who will testify over the next two weeks on the use of Laetrile as a "good cancer treatment."

The first of those witnesses — Harvard-educated Dr. Ernesto Contreras — who runs a Laetrile clinic in Tijuana, testified Monday in the closed door session.

Board Gets Inside Look At Town's Water System

MANCHESTER — Along with viewing all four possible sites for the town's water treatment plant, members of the Town Board of Directors Saturday also got an inside look at other parts of the water system.

Some were not places you would bring someone receiving a tour of the best parts of Manchester.

The rundown Line Street water treatment plant seemed to disturb some of the directors because of the poor condition of the building.

The plant, located near the Manchester-Glastonbury town line, treats water for about 10 percent of the system's customers.

Floor boards creaked, ceiling paint peeled as the five directors toured the plant.

"You'd be well-advised to open this place up before a referendum," Mayor Stephen Penny said to Bob Young, water treatment manager. A public view of the building could provide a better idea of why improvements to the system are needed, he said.

A major part of those improvements is one water treatment plant that would treat all water in the system.

The directors also saw the Cooper Hill treatment plant, a more modern and more impressive facility than the one on Line Street.

Young told the five directors who attended — Penny, Betty Intagliata, John FitzPatrick, Joseph Sweeney and Thomas Connors — that part of the equipment at the plant could be transferred to the proposed new plant.

The directors also discussed possible future uses of the Cooper Hill building. They seemed to favor keeping the system operational, even if a new plant to service the entire town is built.

The Cooper Hill Plant then could be used as a backup or emergency system.

"If you have the facility already, it's cheaper to mull it than to dissolve it completely," FitzPatrick said.

Jay Giles, director of public works, said the building of a new plant, if approved, would not require an increase in the number of workers who handle water treatment.

All of the work would be located in one central spot, and the workers would not have to journey between two locations as they now do, he said.

Throughout the Saturday tour, the board members received a history lesson about Manchester's Water system.

"Street and Cooper Hill both were built when there weren't many treatment plants around," Giles said.

Both were built in the early 1900s, he said.

The directors also visited the wells at Charter Oak Street — Young said these provides water at a cheaper cost than any part of the system — and the filtering plant for Porter and Howard Reservoirs.

Dems Abstain On Grant

VERNON — The five Democrats on the Town Council Monday night, abstained from voting on a resolution to allow Mayor Frank McCoy to file a pre-application for a $600,000 federal grant.

The Democrats had previously opposed the priority list for grant use.

The $600,000 is for a single year. Small Cities grant and the resolution spells out the proposed uses for the money.

The Democrats originally opposed the application for two reasons. They said they felt the town should go all the way and file for a three-year, $1.2 million grant and also wanted the priority list to include money for a shelter for battered women plus some items requested by the Village Street Association.

By abstaining, but not voting against the motion, the Democrats allowed the town to proceed with the pre-application process.

The council unanimously approved a resolution to allow the mayor to ask the state Department of Transportation (DOT) to proceed to obtain the necessary approvals to allow the obtaining of Federal Interstate Trade-In funds for the widening of Windsor Street to Ann Street and the first 200 feet of Grove Street south of E. Main Street. The area is known as Amerbelle corner.

Town Planner George Russell said the town has been told that this latter project is being given high priority by the state.

The third resolution, approved Monday night, is to allow the mayor to also ask DOT to proceed with obtaining necessary approvals for the use of trade-in funds for improvements to the intersection of E. Main and Grove streets from Cottage Street to West Hartford.

Project Child Find Set in Manchester

MANCHESTER — The Manchester public school system is participating in the statewide Child Find Week Jan. 14 through Jan. 20.

The purpose of the effort is to find children from ages 2.8 through 21 who may have special education needs, according to Anne-Louise Fournier, special education supervisor.

The school system has a Child Development Team which evaluates the children. The team consists of a school psychologist, a social worker, early childhood education teacher, nurse and speech and language clinician.

Children as young as 2.8 years and who have hearing impairments can be evaluated and receive appropriate instructional program under the state law. For all other potential disabilities, children may receive the special evaluation and placements starting at age 3.8 years, Mrs. Fournier said. About 30 children have been evaluated since September.

The child find program has been expanded to include the former student up to age 21 who may have dropped out of school because of special education problems.

Parents interested in referring their children may call Dick Cormier or Mrs. Fournier, special education supervisors at 647-3484.

The Child Development Team meets twice a month at Martin School.

Subdivision Plan Delayed

SOUTH WINDSOR — A proposal for a 58-lot subdivision, scheduled to be heard by the Planning and Zoning Commission tonight at 8 p.m. in the Town Hall, will not be heard.

Town officials said the builder, Rene Villieux of West Hartford, failed to post the property 10 days before tonight's hearing.

The property is located on 60 acres of land between Abby and Nevers roads and is known as South Ridge Estates.

Clean Air Plans

HARTFORD (UPI) — The state's largest consumer group Monday endorsed the Department of Environmental Protection's plan to clean up Connecticut's air by developing mass transit.

He said the process is traumatic when the period is too long between the processes. "The revaluation process shouldn't be traumatic if it is done on a regular basis," Marcham said. He asked the mayor if he agreed.

Mayor McCoy said he did agree that it is better if it is done within reasonable periods. He said he has been trying to develop some information from some other towns that have been involved in the process.

"There are some alternatives we can look at. Maybe we can do it 'in-house' completely or partially. I hope to come up with some recommendations or alternatives and report to the council in February," the mayor said.

Lake Street PTO

VERNON — The Lake Street PTO will meet Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at the school. Following the business meeting Dr. Blaine Girard, language arts supervisor in the Vernon school system, will speak on the new reading curriculum with Vernon. The public is welcome.

Mayor Sees Alternatives For Vernon's Revaluation

VERNON — Mayor Frank McCoy feels there are some alternatives the Town Council can consider before making a firm commitment on plans for revaluation, which is required by state law every 10 years.

Stanley Roessler, the town's former director of administration, cautioned the council a year ago the town should start making arrangements for the process and he did some research as to the cost.

Roessler spoke with a representative of an East Hartford appraisal firm and was told the town should enter into a contract for revaluation, 20 to 24 months before the date the process should be completed.

Roessler said that Vernon's revaluation should be completed by Oct. 1, 1980 and therefore all necessary arrangements should have been made, according to Roessler, by last November or December.

Roessler said that the rule of thumb, to figure the cost, is $25 per house and assuming that Vernon has about 6,000 houses, the cost would be $150,000 and payment could be spread over a three-year period.

Councilman Stephen Marcham expressed the hope that the town can put something in the budget for the coming year for the program, as requested by Ben Joy, the town's assessor.

Marcham said he feels that some towns have had traumatic experiences with the revaluation process. He said he doesn't want to see Vernon postpone revaluation and get into the problems experienced by other towns and cities.

Noting that Vernon's last revaluation was in 1970, Marcham said he feels the council has to take some ac-

Some 1978 Problems Carry Over to 1979

Manchester, a caring community, did a lot in 1978 to ease the problems of its residents who are in need of aid. However, despite the efforts of the Housing Authority to provide public housing for the elderly and federal rental subsidies for low-income families, many families began 1979 looking for rents they can afford.

There are presently 246 of the elderly on the waiting list for public housing and 142 families on the waiting list for subsidized housing. There are also 24 families who have received certificates for subsidized housing who cannot find a place to live.

Cohen Due At Parley On Housing

MANCHESTER — Sol R. Cohen of 51 South St., retired public affairs reporter for The Herald and a member of Manchester's Community Development Advisory Committee, has been selected to participate this week in Washington, D.C. in a symposium on housing for the retired.

Cohen will leave Wednesday for the symposium which will be held Thursday through Saturday at the Capitol Hilton Hotel.

The symposium, known as Forum III, is being sponsored by the Federal National Mortgage Association and will focus on housing needs, preferences and ideas of moderate- and middle-income retirees.

Announcing the conference last summer, FNMA Chairman of the Board and President Charles Hunter explained that FNMA wanted the symposium to be "of and for retired people" and called upon retirees around the country to write him of their housing preferences.

From the more than 1,000 retirees who responded, FNMA invited 120 people to take part in Forum III at the corporation's expense. Those selected represent all 50 states and District of Columbia, and an age- and income group cross-section of the retiree population.

During the symposium, the participants will gather in round table groups to discuss an agenda of housing-related issues developed from the letters.

"Through their letters," Hunter stated, "retirees have let us know what they consider to be the primary issues. Essentially, they are concerned with maintaining their independence, which necessitates special considerations and a range of options in housing design, location and financing." As the discussions proceed, Hunter said, it is hoped that viable new approaches to meeting these concerns will become apparent.

After the conference, FNMA will make public the findings of Forum III, with special emphasis on the many segments of the public and private sectors involved in addressing the housing needs of retirees.

North Methodist

MANCHESTER — Two meetings are scheduled for tonight at North United Methodist Church.

The building committee will meet at 7 p.m. at the church, and the council on ministries at 7:15.

Rec Class Has Openings

SOUTH WINDSOR — There are still openings for the Recreation Department sponsored Introduction to Sports Class for six to eight year olds. Children involved in the program will learn the basics of basketball and street hockey. Class meets from 4:30 p.m. to 6:00 p.m. at Ell Terry School gym on Wednesday beginning this week, for eight weeks. Sign ups are in the recreation office at Town Hall.

expected that by the time these proposed units are built, they will not make even a dent in the waiting list for elderly housing.

Through most of its good support to a warm house and a home at night, there are some of our neighbors, as Mrs. Nancy Carr, executive director of Manchester Area Conference of Churches (MACC) has discovered, who need food and places to sleep.

There are even some living in homes with no front door and only a blanket covering a broken storm door to keep out the cold.

Although MACC has no funds of its own to care for emergencies, last year, its Project Service needs coordinator received about 600 requests from 400 families who needed various kinds of help. There were 109 families who needed money to pay their rent or for a security deposit.

Only 13 of these families received help from MACC. The human needs coordinator was only able to pay utility bills for 18 families and to provide fuel for 29 of the 93 families needing help to keep their homes warm. Some were able to find help elsewhere, but there were some who had no other place to go.

Money Donated
Money to help the many Manchester families in need is donated to MACC for its Human Needs Fund. Although the community is generous, more money is always needed to help the seemingly ever-growing number of low-income families. Mrs. Carr said.

The Project Service staff, all CETA funded, did much for the community. Through their efforts, an auxiliary to local convalescent homes was formed and clothing and furniture banks were started.

When CETA funds ran out, several of the Project Service staff stayed on for a time as volunteers; and those who used the clothing bank started to make Christmas gifts for the special appeals are made when someone desperately needs an item.

Joanne Mikoleit, human needs coordinator, worked part-time as a volunteer at her post until the Conference of Churches received a grant from the Hartford Foundation for Public Giving to continue her work.

The Emergency Pantry provided non-perishable foods for many low-income families in need. Donations of food, especially by school children, kept the pantry well stocked.

Last year had it's bright side. The Manchester community responded generously to every call for help during the year, especially during the Christmas season.

Many Received Toys
Probably more children of families in need during the holidays received more toys than ever before — again through the generosity of others. The more than 2,000 toys collected during the Toys for Joy collection drive appear in a short time at the Main Street distribution center. An appeal brought a large new supply of toys.

To make Christmas even more exciting for the children, the 7-11 stores and the Connecticut Army National Guard hosted probably the largest Christmas party in the state at the Manchester Army, with numerous gifts for children and the annual Seasonal Sharing Appeal set a goal of $5,000 for the Christmas food bank and teachers for warm clothing for the children of families in need. With money still coming in, Mrs. Carr is sure that the appeal reached its goal.

Other Events
Other events of the past year, which have and will affect the people of the town are:

The River East Homeowner Home Health Aide Service Inc. added a chore-handyman program this year designed to help individuals or families with health or age-related problems to continue to be maintained in their own homes.

The Manchester Memorial Hospital Auxiliary launched a community program called the Vial of Life in which a medical information sheet is contained in a plastic vial taped to the inside of a resident's refrigerator, handy access in emergencies.

The Advisory Board of Health appointed a committee to study the town's health instruction programs in an effort to provide comprehensive preventive health medicine for the town.

MANCHESTER — The town apparently will have to extend its retirement age from 65 to 70, but other questions about such a change still have to be answered.

Revised state and federal laws about mandatory retirement have gone into effect recently, and it appears that Manchester's Pension Ordinance will have to be updated to change the normal retirement age for town employees from 65 to 70.

Questions about changes in pension payments remain unanswered right now.

The ordinance, which is part of the Town Charter, sets retirement age at 65 for town employees, excluding those in police service.

The new state law about mandatory retirement went into effect Jan. 1. It abolishes mandatory retirement ages in most cases but does say state and municipal employees, including teachers, can be required to retire at 70, attorney Morgan O'Brien, a legislative legal advisor for the state said. He was involved in the drafting of the mandatory retirement law changes for Connecticut.

Thus, Manchester apparently will have to up its listed retirement age for employees, he said.

O'Brien said an exception to the new law is if a retirement age has been included as part of a contract negotiated with a union. Then, the age will stay in effect until the contract expires.

Steven Werber, the town's personnel supervisor, said the town's Pension Ordinance is a document that is negotiated between the town and the unions representing its employees.

Even so, however, he thinks the increase to 70 will have to be made by the town.

"We can't say anymore, 'Tomorrow you're 65, so you'll have to retire.' The age is something that's been taken care of (by the new laws). There's nothing we can do about it," he said.

The town is seeking information about questions related to the retirement age and the town's pension plan, Werber said.

For instance, will an employee who works past the age of 65 still have to make pension payments and receive credit for those years after 65 when the final pension is calculated.

Roger Negro, the town treasurer, MANCHESTER — Ted Cummings, Democratic town chairman, said the past use of Community Development funds has helped all town residents. This should be remembered while some residents seek an end to the town's involvement in the program, he said. The Concerned Citizens for Manchester presently is circulating petitions asking for a referendum vote on a proposal that the town discontinue its involvement in the program for two years.

The program provides funding to a community center and the money is to be aimed at helping residents of low- and moderate-income levels.

The concerned citizens and other town residents feel, however, that the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development, which oversees the program, has tied too many restrictions to receipt of the money.

Cummings does not feel this is the case. "Nowhere do I see that there's been a real intrusion of the federal government than an emotional intrusion," he said.

Cummings has issued previous statements on the subject and has mentioned the emotional factor before. He said that townspeople who are opposed to the Community Development program are raising fears unnecessarily.

He mentioned past uses of the money. These have included funding for pool repairs, ramping of the Nike Site, a day care center, the rehabilitation loan home improvement program and housing for the elderly.

A total of $200,000 of the present-year funds have been designated for conversion of the Green School to a senior citizens center. More funding probably will be needed in the future to complete the work, he said.

Other present funding is targeted for the legal aid program, improvements at Charter Oak Park and sidewalk repairs. "That's really spreading the money around to help everybody," he said.

Road Lobby and DOT Dispute Loss of Funds

HARTFORD (UPI) — The Connecticut Construction Industries Association Inc. is a lobby group for contractors, claims the state has forfeited more than $213 million in federal interstate funds.

But departing Transportation Commissioner James Shugrue said Monday Connecticut "hasn't lost anything."

"We really never lost a penny," he said. "We haven't been able to spend the money, true. But that money is still available to us. Interstate funds do not lapse. Funds in all other categories lapse in three years."

The association said Connecticut's interstate funds, collected from the four-cent federal tax on each gallon of gasoline, decreased from $387.1 million this year to $174 million because the state didn't use it.

A spokesman William Heuberger said most of the money his group claims was lost is sitting in a discretionary fund in Washington and will be distributed to other states.

"It means that every time we buy a gallon of gasoline, we are giving away four cents to some other state," Heuberger said. "The Connecticut state is losing $86.6 million in interstate funds for the same reason."

Shugrue, who is leaving office later this month, said well over $100 million is in limbo for the Interstate 291 project between Rocky Hill and Farmington. The Department of Transportation is trying to lift a court injunction obtained by environmentalists against the project.

Several other projects also are hanging fire, including the proposed extension of Interstate 84 between Hartford and Providence, R.I.

"I agree (with the association) Connecticut ranks high in not expending interstate funds," Shugrue said. The association said Connecticut came out of 50 states in its use of federal interstate money.

"It is true we actually had money that was apportioned to us and we did not spend it and it went to another state," he said. "Some states are having environmental problems, some are not. We had a lot of court cases here."

"But there hasn't been one single dollar that has been given to the state of Connecticut that won't again be made available," Shugrue said. The situation might change under future congressional action.

The association said the Surface Transportation Act of 1978 authorizes the interstate program for the next four years, but that after 1982, Congress will reassess the program.

"It is doubtful that Congress will make more money available for the completion of the interstate system," the association said.

Shugrue said he expects the system will be phased out eventually, "but not until far into the 1990s."

Decaying Cities Top State Issue

HARTFORD (UPI) — The most pressing issue facing Connecticut in the immediate future is the restoration of a healthy economic climate in the state's decaying cities, says a Grassco administration report.

The Conservation and Development Plan for 1979-1982, released Monday, recommends the state concentrate on restoring existing inner-city housing rather than pumping money into new construction projects.

The 90-page report prepared by the Office of Policy and Management contains scores of recommendations that are designed to strike a balance between the state's future economic and environmental needs.

Many of the recommendations have been made before by various state agencies and task forces. Five public hearings will be held around the state in January to get public reaction to OPM's report.

Ultimately the plan will be presented to the Legislature for its consideration.

The report recommended the state concentrate on expanding Gov. Ella Grasso's $190 million, 10-year urban jobs and tax relief program, and, whenever possible, state and federal funds should be targeted to cities.

Furthermore, the government should work to eliminate "major disparities in property taxes" in different communities. The report suggested.

Transportation plans should be developed to see that inner-city workers can get to jobs in the suburbs and the state's deteriorating rail system should be updated, the report said.

While the state works to improve the business climate in urban centers, it should also be discouraging "haphazard" development of suburban and rural areas, the report recommended.

The report also suggested the state continue the $5 million farmland preservation pilot project passed by the Legislature. Under that program, the state buys the development rights to farms to prevent precious land from disappearing under the blades of lawnmowers.

Other recommendations include the report were:

- Strengthen enforcement of equal opportunity and affirmative action statutes;
- Promote alternative sources of energy like solar, hydro, wind and wood;
- Explore with industry and business the possibility of staggered work shifts to reduce rush hour traffic jams;
- Develop a joint air pollution control program with New York, New Jersey and the federal government;
- Investigate the possibility of tax credits and subsidies for industries that spend a lot of money meeting air quality standards;

Competency Test Measure

HARTFORD (UPI) — Sen. Regina Smith, D-Northford, has proposed a competency test for students to pass proficiency tests before they can move up a grade.

The first term legislator also proposed a bill that would exempt teachers from jury duty during the school year.

"It is very important to make sure our children are being educated and that our teachers are teaching when the state is going to spend more money on education," Smith said Monday.

John Foremeister, 17, of John Fitch Boulevard and Greg Vachuska, 18, of 38 July Lane, both of South Windsor and Todd J. Cyr, 16, of Westfield, Manchester, were all charged Saturday night with third-degree criminal mischief.

Utility spokeswoman Susan Metzler said Monday workers had repaired a faulty valve and a leak in the system which returns purified water to the plant's reactor.

The facility was shut down Friday due to a faulty diaphragm in a valve which operates a water pump in the reactor system.

Ms. Metzler said during a routine check workers also discovered water had leaked from a pipe onto the floor and into a sump pump.

It was pumped into a radioactive waste system where it went through routine purification procedures, she said.

The spokeswoman said the leak was contained within the dry well and the radioactivity which may have leaked posed no hazard.

"It was unknown how long the leak had gone unnoticed, she said.

Classrooms Needed For Child Program

SOUTH WINDSOR — Portable classrooms may be brought back to Wapping School in order to allow for an expansion of the Child Care Program.

Howard Pitts, chairman of the Community Service Council has written a letter to School Superintendent Robert Goldman asking for additional rooms at the Wapping School.

Although Goldman has indicated that some five or six classrooms will be needed in the district for the 1979-1980 school year, the Community Council would prefer to keep the Day Care facilities at one location rather than to split the program into two separate locations.

According to Pitts, the one location allows for better use of equipment and staff.

Goldman has indicated that no additional rooms could be allocated to the Day Care at the Wapping School, but there was the possibility of bringing back portable classrooms so that the Child Care program could still be maintained.

In order to qualify for possible state funding, a letter of intent must be submitted to the Community Service Council by the Board of Education. Goldman said that the letter of intent did not obligate the board to provide the room but would simply indicate that the Board of Education wished to cooperate if it possibly could.

The Day Care facility is now full, with a waiting list of some 40 children, according to Director Sandra Murrin. The Child Care Center is open from 7:30 a.m. to 6:30 p.m. to provide child care for working mothers.

Persons interested in information should call Morgan at 975-8756 or 688-1911, Ext. 2319.

Grads Serve Hemlocks

HEBRON — Ten graduate students of the University of Connecticut physical education department's master's degree program will earn credit toward their degree by serving as full-time staff members next summer at the Hemlocks Outdoor Education Center.

Graduate students will receive in-service training throughout the winter and spring. Larson said, and they will be involved in pre-planning for the summer camping program.

The Hemlocks facility is located in Hebron and serves as a year-round recreation center for the state's handicapped population. It is owned and operated by the Easter Seal Society.

Rham Board Sets Goals

HEBRON — The Regional District 8 Board of Education has established and approved a list of goals for the superintendent of schools for the 1978-79 school year.

One of these goals is to review the six-year plan with the board, staff and interested citizens, to update and correct the plan as necessary and to submit revisions to the school board by its regular August meeting.

The superintendent has also been asked to work with the board chairman and members to improve both the content and effectiveness of future board meetings.

The superintendent is being asked specifically to consult with the board chairman in developing a checklist for evaluation of the board meeting effectiveness and the checklist is to be approved by the board before its implementation.

The target date for presentation to the board is the regular June meeting.

Another goal will be to have the superintendent work with the Policy Committee to review board policies to update them and to create more concise policies with corresponding amplification of administrative regulations. The revisions are to be included a study of the newly available

WICHITA FALLS, Tex. (NEA) — Kitty O'Neil isn't afraid of anything. She has survived crashes from atop 13-story buildings, crashes speeding cars and motorcycles into brick walls, tumbles from galloping horses and staggers engulfed in fire from burning vans just after they explode.

"I've never been afraid... I grew up with speed. I love to be on fire, to wreck, to go fast," says the daring stuntwoman.

"Except for the time she sped down a steep hill on a bicycle at age 12 and got 'all scratched up,'" O'Neil says she has never been hurt — and she's performing stunts and driving while not while attempting to break the sound barrier.

Two Hour CPTV Special Will Probe Child Abuse

By Betty Ryder

In any given year more than a million American children are abused by their parents. Some 7,000 cases were registered in Connecticut last year, and many other suspected cases were written off as accidents simply never reported or brought to medical attention.

The tragic aspect of child abuse is that the child is often the only one who knows what is going on. The child is often the only one who knows what is going on.

The first hour of "Raised In Anger" offers a candid perspective of 50 parents who became abusers. As a group they are highly articulate, hardly corresponding to the stereotypical image of the abuser.

National Laurels Due Vanderbilt

NEW YORK (UPI) — Vanderbilt Coach Wayne Dobbs was ecstatic, and deservedly so. His Commodores are about to get some national recognition, with a record of 10-1 and a Monday night upset of fifth-ranked LSU, 88-87.

"Words can never describe my feeling tonight," Dobbs said. "I suppose this is the biggest moment in my life. We deserved to beat them. We paid the price. We deserve to be on top of the SEC tonight. I don't know if we can stay there, but tonight we deserve it."

LSU Coach Dale Brown said, "We tried not to come into this game arrogant because we had beaten Kentucky on Saturday. After winning at Kentucky, you have a tendency to coast. But Vanderbilt put the pressure on us all night."

Mike Rhodes hit two free throws with 42 seconds to play for Vanderbilt's winning points. Rhodes scored six in the SEC tonight. I don't know if we can stay there, but tonight we deserve it.

Looking for his fourth consecutive win, which would represent his longest winning streak in three years, Manchester High entertains neighboring East Hartford High tonight at Clarke Arena in a CCLL basketball tussle.

For East Catholic, it'll be going from a giant-size problem to a king-size headache as takes on unbeaten Rod Foster-led St. Thomas Aquinas in New Britain.

Cheney Tech, which has dropped five in a row after opening the campaign with two triumphs, is also on the road tonight as it travels to Hebron to oppose once-beaten CCR rival Blue Hills.

Two of the top CCLL clubs will collide in East Hartford to highlight area state. Pennsy High, 52 in the league and 72 overall, hosts 61-

Simsbury High in what should be a top-flight attraction. Elsewhere, 5-3 South Windsor High is at unbeaten 7-6 Frame Tech in Hartford, 2-3, 4-4 Rockville High entertains 2-2, 3-3 Windsor High in a CVC bout and 0-5, 0-7 Bolton High visits 1-4, 2-3 Coventry High in CVC play.

"There's always a danger going in against a club which hasn't won a game," Pearson responded. "East Hartford has an all-league player in Tyler Jones and will beat someone. I just hope we go out and play our game."

Last Friday at the University of Hartford, East, 0-2 in the HCC and 5-3 overall, couldn't contain 6-foot-8 John Finney. He tossed 32 points and grabbed a career-high 28 rebounds as the Eagles fell, 84-69.

The task tonight will be to try to harness highly regarded, much-sought-after 6-foot-11 Rod Foster. Aquinas is unbeaten in eight outings, 3-0 in the HCC, with the radar-accurate shooting of Foster (37.3 ppg) showing the way. His season-high is 57 points with a season-long 23-dary at 0-7, the prime drawback for Coach Neil Guerin's charges in youth and inexperience. Manchester will have to guard against overconfidence.

On the distasteful side, 2-6, 2-7 Manchester High is at 2-5 East Catholic High while the East Catholic girls, 6-2, entertain Hartford Public at the Eagles' Nest.

Coach Doug Pearson's quintet sports a 4-3 league and 4-4 aggregate docket after three successive triumphs. It has averaged over 75 points and 50 percent from the floor in five in a row after opening the campaign with two triumphs, is also on the road tonight as it travels to Hebron to oppose once-beaten CCR rival Blue Hills.

Aquinas, which has topped the century point mark three times already, features a full-court press with John Jones and Dave Farrell a couple of key players.

Cheney has run into some rugged competition and fallen on hard times after tapping off Coach Phil Crockett's first season at the helm with two wins. Senior Captain Dave Gustamachio (19.9) has been the lone consistent scorer for the Beavers.

Top scorer Mary Neuhel (10.0) is expected to miss her second game for Manchester. She suffered a knee injury in the opening quarter against Farm last Wednesday. East dropped the first meeting to East Hartford, 48-47, in overtime.

East Catholic girls have won three straight, exhibiting a high-powered offense. Three Eagles—Monica Murphy (14.9), Sue Dailey (10.9) and Ellen Peckakis (10.3) average in twin figures. East is scoring at a 59.9 point clip while allowing a 42.2 norm.

NCAA Considering Way To Decide Grid Champ

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Alabama, Oklahoma and USC fans may never get to see in America in 1979, but similar disputes in the future could be settled under a playoff formula being considered by the NCAA.

An NCAA committee at the organization's convention is proposing that the national championship be decided by a four-team playoff involving bowl winners and the first four teams in the playoff would be chosen by a special committee. All bowl teams would be eligible, and the playoffs would be held at predetermined sites.

Dave Strack, athletic director at the University of Arizona, said Monday the NCAA Extra Events Committee, which he heads, is unanimously in favor of the playoff idea.

"We want to know if we can get it off the ground," Lett said. "I can't see how we can't. It's a matter of time."

Pro and con camps were held at predetermined sites.

Rhody No. 1 Michigan State Holds Top Spot

BOSTON (UPI) — Despite an overtime loss last weekend to Detroit, the University of Rhode Island continues to dominate the weekly UPI coaches poll as New England's top college basketball team.

Rhode Island, 9-2, was a near-unanimous selection as the region's top team, drawing 14 of 18 first place votes for 74 points. Far behind in second place is Yankee Conference rival Connecticut, 8-2. The Huskies finished with 49 points.

Boston College, 10-3, drew the other first place vote, but could only finish third with a total of 45 points. Fairfield, 8-4, which won the boys Club Classic, finished fourth with 23 points. Holy Cross, 6-4, came in fifth with 14 points.

LSU Coach Dale Brown said, "We tried not to come into this game arrogant because we had beaten Kentucky on Saturday. After winning at Kentucky, you have a tendency to coast. But Vanderbilt put the pressure on us all night."

Michigan State picked up an additional 10 first-place votes from the UPI Coaches' Board Monday, retaining the No. 1 position with 665 overall points and 33 first-place votes from the 42-member board.

The Spartans, led by poised sophomore guard Earvin Johnson, defeated Big Ten rivals Wisconsin, 84-55, and Minnesota, 69-62, to top their record for the season to 9-1.

There were no changes in the next three positions as Notre Dame remained second with 529 points; Illinois, also from the Big Ten, held third with 513 points; and North Carolina remained fourth with 481 points. Notre Dame and Illinois each received three first-place votes and four second-place votes.

Louisiana State, the only other team to secure a first-place vote, was 11th with 244 points. Duke remained seventh this week

Disciplinary Procedures Of NCAA Claimed Unfair

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The NCAA has been told its disciplinary procedures are unfair and it may face federal intervention unless the situation is straightened out.

The House Subcommittee on Oversight and Investigations, after a year-long investigation, gave the NCAA another chance at self-reform by calling on it to set up a new "blue ribbon" committee for the purpose.

The congressional report, released Monday while 1,000 delegates met at the annual convention of the NCAA, is the governing body for college sports.

The NCAA's disciplinary powers are "exercised without observance of minimal standards of fairness," Rep. James Santini (R-Nev.), majority leader of the subcommittee, said at a news conference.

He cited what he called the "ad hoc" nature of the NCAA's procedures, in which school or athlete is guilty until proven innocent. He also said that NCAA investigators always hold a "home court advantage" because they dictate the terms of the proceedings.

Santini said the group's rules are "excessively technical and often times impractical and petty."

Santini warned that if the NCAA decides on an "indifferent or superficial cosmetic whitewash response" he will go back to Congress and plug for some sort of legislative intervention.

Santini, whose interest in the NCAA disciplinary tactics was spurred by sanctions involving the University of Nevada, spoke for the Democratic majority on the subcommittee.

Rep. Norman Lent, R-N.Y., representing the minority view, said the investigation, which took more than two years, was a waste of money. He said that while some of the suggestions in the 60-page report were reasonable and some in fact were already on the NCAA's agenda, he opposed placing the NCAA under threat of legislation.

"The heaviest hand of the federal government's intervention in college sports, he said, "was in fact placed on the day when intercollegiate sports is run with the same efficiency

Expensive Clothes Not Needed to Ski

IOWA CITY, Iowa (UPI) — The growing popularity of cross-country skiing is causing many people to buy expensive and unnecessary clothing, according to at least one ski expert.

Jim Ebert, director of the Iowa Mountaineers' cross-country skiing and winter survival course, said this weekend skiers can be very comfortable wearing layers of clothing instead of expensive down-filled jackets, and get as much protection.

"A lot of people think that in order to enjoy winter sports they must have expensive down-filled clothing, so they hesitate to get involved in winter activities because they feel they aren't properly equipped," he said.

"But in fact, many people find they can get along just as well with the same clothing they have been wearing every day during midwestern winters."

He said the trick is converting everyday sweaters and jackets to ski clothing depends on a technique called "layering."

Ebert recommended beginning with a layer or two of long underwear and adding two or three insulating woolen shirts or sweaters under a windbreaker.

"Using this method, one can dress comfortably for a variety of skiing conditions," he said.

When a trail becomes more difficult or as the weather warms up, a skier can shed layers of clothing and still be comfortable, he said.

Madden Big Winner Heading up Raiders

By MILT RICHMAN
NEW YORK (UPI) — Have you ever sat there in your warm living room, watching someone on the tube like big shirt-sleeved John Madden anxiously pace the sidelines, and wondered what it was like to be a pro football coach?

You don't have to anymore. Here's what it's like — with John Madden in a job that's never been offered some of the details himself.

"During the season, I usually get three to four hours of sleep if I'm lucky. The way I approached the job was to take it one day at a time. I'm not a low-key guy. I'm John Madden. You get to a point, you have to step aside."

And after 10 years of coaching the Oakland Raiders, that's what the affable, 42-year-old Madden did Thursday afternoon: he announced his retirement from football at a news conference in Oakland.

Generally, when someone making good money and doing a job that says he's quitting, he's not. Most of the time, he's being pushed out.

Wesley Walker, a speed-burning, game-breaking leading ground gainer in the NFL, joins Zorn in the offensive backfield.

Zorn Heads NFL All-Pro

HOUSTON (NEA) — About the time the National Football League draft list was being unveiled, the Houston Oilers selected Jim Zorn as their 10th overall pick in the first round of the draft.

Zorn, who played college football for the University of Tennessee, was selected by the Oilers in the second round of the draft.

The Oilers' selection of Zorn is a surprise because he is considered a defensive end, not a wide receiver. However, Oilers coach Tom Moore said Zorn is a versatile player who can play both offense and defense.

Zorn is a 6-foot-6, 250-pound player who has been a standout in college. He has won several awards, including the Heisman Trophy.

HOUSTON (UPI) — About the time the National Football League draft list was being unveiled, the Houston Oilers selected Earl Campbell as their 30th overall pick in the fourth round of the draft.

Map Thief Admits Life Now Ruined

NEW HAVEN (UPI) — A Tulane University professor, conceding he has ruined his life by stealing more than $200,000 worth of rare maps from a Yale University library, has been sentenced to a year in prison.

Andrew P. Antipas, 37, had pleaded guilty Nov. 24 to a charge of interstate transportation of stolen property.

I indeed ruined my life and career," Antipas said as he fought back tears before being sentenced Monday by U.S. District Judge Ellen B. Burns.

Antipas allegedly took six maps worth more than $20,000 from a small barred room within Yale's Sterling Library seventh-floor map room Jan. 3, 1978.

The tenured English professor and poet was also accused of removing another 39 maps from books in the library's general stacks.

John Wilson Reed, his New Orleans attorney, had asked the federal judge to be lenient.

"He will never teach again," Reed said of his client, who is currently on a sabbatical from the New Orleans university. "In all certainty he will be dismissed."

Antipas, who students once voted the most popular professor at Tulane, will remain free on $5,000 bail until March 15 when he faces disciplinary proceedings by the University.

He will then surrender to serve his sentence in the federal prison camp at Eglin Air Force Base in Florida. The disciplinary hearing at Tulane begins Tuesday.

Antipas claimed he was doing research at the time of the thefts. Among the maps taken from Yale were a map of New England published in the 1670's and worth $10,000, three maps of Texas published about 1840, and a map of the world published in Japan in 1783.

Antipas allegedly sold some of the maps to a New Orleans antique dealer in March.

U.S. Attorney Richard Blumenthal said about 20 of the maps are still missing.

Antipas has also admitted stealing maps from the Newbery Museum in Chicago. FBI agents have recovered seven.

Law suit Filed On Herbicide Used in War

NEW YORK (UPI) — When Paul Reuterhan filed a $10 million suit against the Dow Chemical Co. last year, he said he was fighting for all Vietnam veterans, not just himself.

Reuterhan, 28, died last month of abdominal cancer which he claimed was caused by the herbicide "Agent Orange" before the suit could be settled.

Monday his lawyer carried on the fight by filing a class action suit on behalf of all Americans who may have been exposed to the powerful chemical, either in Vietnam or the United States.

The action against Dow and two other makers of the herbicide is the first of its kind in federal court history and could affect 4.2 million servicemen and others, Attorney Victor Yamacone said.

Reuterhan had filed his $10 million personal suit against Dow Chemical last spring after he found out he had cancer. He died in a Norwalk Conn. hospital Dec. 14.

"Agent Orange" contains dioxin, a suspected carcinogen.

Yamacone Jr., of Patchogue, N.Y., filed the new class action complaint upgrading Reuterhan's suit in U.S. District Court in Manhattan.

Named as defendants in the class action are Dow Chemical Co., Hercules Inc. of Wilmington, Del. and Northwest Industries Inc. of Chicago.

Yamacone said more companies may be named later on.

The suit includes all persons who may have been exposed to the herbicide either in Vietnam or by its extensive use by public utilities in the U.S. and asks for an order requiring the firms to create a fund to pay the medical and economic costs of cancer and other diseases suffered by the exposed victims and their families.

The request also calls for reimbursements to the Veterans Administration, the Social Security Administration, and stockholders and members of public utilities for expenses associated with dioxin use.

The ultimate cost could be hundreds of millions of dollars, Yamacone said.

Another first is the request for the courts to designate the chemical companies as trustees of the public welfare because of their "disproportionate share of social and political power," Yamacone said.

As trustees, they would be required to disclose to consumers all information they have on the toxic qualities of dioxin products.

The attorney said he has a three-page list of the effects of dioxin exposure on humans and animals. They include latent cancer, a disfiguring skin disease, deformed fetuses, nausea and personality changes.

High Court To Hear Desegregation Cases

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court, indicating it may have clarified a 1977 ruling, Monday granted hearings to education officials in Columbus and Dayton, Ohio, who are fighting systemswide school desegregation orders.

Its action on the Ohio cases, which are expected to be argued jointly this spring, will be closely watched by civil rights groups and other school systems.

Among hundreds of orders issued on its return from a month-long recess, the high court also:

• Announced it will consider whether a scientist may sue Sen. William Proxmire for libel because "Golden Fleece" award for wasteful spending to federally funded research on animal aggression. Lower courts threw out the suit.

• Stepped into a dispute over interpretation of the 1973 law barring discrimination against the handicapped in programs that get federal financial aid. At issue is a lower-court ruling that a nursing school may not consider an applicant's hearing disability in determining qualification for admission.

• Agreed to consider whether consumers who pay higher prices for goods or services as a result of antitrust violations can sue the manufacturers for triple damages.

• Declined to consider a constitutional challenge to Louisiana's policy of allowing spectators to smoke in the New Orleans Superdome.

The school cases give the justices a chance to clarify a 1977 ruling in which it said court desegregation orders must be drafted to remedy past intentional violations.

In the Columbus case, a federal judge also ordered a systemswide remedy, requiring reassignment of 42,000 children, including 37,000 who would have to be bused, and alteration of the grade structures of elementary schools.

The 6th Circuit affirmed the orders last July 14.

Shortly before the opening of justice schools last fall, however, Justice William Rehnquist blocked implementation of the Columbus desegregation plan pending high court review. Rehnquist said he felt the 6th Circuit had misinterpreted the high court's Dayton ruling.

Police Report

Manchester
MANCHESTER — Lesley Edwards, 36, of 107 Spruce St. was arrested Sunday night and charged with operating under the influence of liquor. Police said Edwards lost control of his car at the intersection of Center and South streets and struck a HELCO pole. The car was towed away.

Police said a motor vehicle driven by an unidentified driver went across the Tolland Turnpike Saturday night sideswiping a car driven by Richard Fluet, 16, of 594 Rockwood St., East Hartford, and kept on going. Police said Fluet tried to follow the officer, but lost sight of it. Damage to Fluet's car was extensive, police said, but it was operable.

Cheryl Despard, 19, of 505 Burnside Ave., East Hartford, received injuries when the car she was driving on Edgerton Street early Sunday morning struck a Town Fire Department fire hydrant and destroyed it. Police said Despard was looking for an address and while she looked away from the road, her car veered off the road. Despard was taken to Manchester Memorial Hospital where she was treated for a fractured nose with lacerations and bruised ribs, and discharged.

Friday night, James Fitzpatrick, 40, of 215 Briarwood Drive was taken to Manchester Memorial Hospital where he was treated for facial lacerations and released after the car he was driven ran into a HELCO pole. Police said Fitzpatrick was driving west on Hackmatack Street when another car headed in the opposite direction pulled into Fitzpatrick's lane, forcing him to take an evasive action into the utility pole. The driver of the other car didn't stop, police said. Fitzpatrick's car received front-end damage and was towed away.

Saturday at 10:15 a.m., Mark O. Ekenberg of Bradley Circle, Enfield, said on a snowy curve at the intersection of Buckland Road and Burnham Street, lost control of his car, crossed the center line and struck a utility pole, driven by James W. Snow Jr., 46, of 1019 Strong Road, South Windsor. Police said Ekenberg's car continued on and struck another car driven by Leo F. Nelson, 35, of 60 W. Middle Turnpike.

After the accident, police said Ekenberg was limping but showed no visible injury, and he refused an ambulance. Snow was taken to Manchester Memorial Hospital where he was treated for a laceration on his forehead. Ekenberg was issued a verbal warning and charged with failure to drive in the right lane, police said.

A sign in the K-Mart driveway was struck Saturday afternoon and an electrical outlet box moved as the result of an auto collision. Police said Susanne W. Barrows of 138 Grand Road, East Hartford, pulled in front of an oncoming K-Mart driveway van that believed she had enough room. Police said the oncoming car, driven by Anna Bonas of 129 Plain Drive, East Hartford, struck the van and the sign. The Barrows car was towed away.

Three men were arrested in connection with a speeding offense and an investigation with an A.D.M. Apple window at the Parkade.

Richard G. Postenski, 20, of Mansfield Ave., Willimantic, was charged with criminal mischief and breach of the peace. The passengers in Postenski's car, Michael Knapp, 21, and Riecky A. Chou, 22, of Old Willimantic Road, Columbia, were both charged with breach of the peace, according to police. Police said they were driving in the Parkade, when they were struck by a car driven by two passengers to leave the car, and that they were abusive to police. Postenski was released on a $1,000 non-surety bond, and the others were released on $500 non-surety bonds, police said. Court date for all three is Jan. 22.

Davis, 17, of 111 Cider Mill Road, Bolton, were both charged with fourth-degree larceny in the theft of cigarettes, gum and sun glasses from the 11-Eleven Store at Grove Road. Police said Court date for all three is Jan. 22.

Police arrested Brenda A. Barrett, 38, of 412 Hilliard St. on a warrant charging failure to appear in the second degree. Court date, Jan. 22.

Police also arrested Robert T. Generis, 18, of 456 Burnside Ave., East Hartford, on a warrant charging failure to appear. Generis was released on a $250 cash bond. Court date, Jan. 22.

Doctor Says Family Fought With Killer
NEW HAVEN (UPI) — Guillermo Aillon's estranged wife and her parents tried to fight off the assailant who shot and killed their son in a case that police say was a family feud. A medical examiner has testified in Aillon's retrial.

Dr. Elliot Gross Monday showed a New Haven Superior Court, jury slides of the victims Aillon is accused of slaying. Aillon is accused of slaying his son in his hands which he said are called "defense wounds."

Gross said people generally grab for the knife when they try to defend themselves from an attacker.

Defense attorneys said Aillon was sentenced to 7 years in prison in 1973 for the fatal slaying, but the state Supreme Court ordered a new trial after ruling Superior Court Judge Simon Cohen improperly conferred with a juror.

Gross was the medical examiner called by the North Haven home of wealthy lumber executive J. George Montano and his wife Bernice when they were found stabbed to death with Aillon's wife Barbara, 26, on Aug. 14, 1972.

The medical examiner insisted he had the experience to back his estimate of the time of death. He said he prepared the statements right after his investigation, but didn't sign them until later.
