WHAT'S NEWS

Sadat Travel

CAIRO, Egypt (UPI) - President Anwar Sadat, confident "peace will definitely be realized," plans to visit the United States, West Germany and Japan to ask their help in improving his nation's chronically backward economy.

Finance Minister Ali Lotfi, who announced Sadat's travel plans, also said Egypt's budget this year allocated only 14.2 percent of its total expenditure to war as opposed to an average of 30 to 35 percent in 1973, 1974 and 1975.

Lotfi said "the president announced he will try to visit the United States, Japan, and West Germany," where he will request $2 billion as a first step to develop Egypt's economic infrastructure. No date was set for the visits.

Sadat has not yet received a reply from Washington to a 16-page letter he sent to Secretary of State Cyrus Vance on the resumption of the stalled Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty talks, but he said Tuesday, "Let us wait for the next few days."

Rome Revenge

ROME (UPI) - Leftists firebombed the offices of a neo-Fascist party today to revenge a rightist attack in a radio station that left five women wounded.

Several thousand leftist students also marched through central Rome to protest the radio station attack that came during a live broadcast.

During the march leftists in a northwestern suburb firebombed an office of the neo-Fascist Italian Social Movement Party causing minor damage in the second straight day of political violence in Italy.

Near the southern city of Naples, police said a time bomb damaged a power line carrying electricity to an Alfa Romeo automobile factory.

In Rome, urban guerrillas bombed an office of the ruling Christian Democratic party and attackers traded gunfire with members of Italy's paramilitary police.

Cancer in Beer

HEIDELBERG, West Germany (UPI) - A West German magazine said today that beer may cause cancer and a newspaper said the report was "enough to disturb the sleep" of the entire nation.

The West German magazine Der Stern reported a study showed that some beers contain a substance called nitrosamine which it said can cause cancer.

German brewers, who yearly produce 2.4 billion gallons of beer, do not deny that nitrosamine is present in some beers.

"The report is enough to disturb the sleep of an entire nation," said the Essen newspaper Neue Ruhr Zeitung in an editorial.

The German Brewers Federation in a first reaction announced it has ordered a scientific study to determine how nitrosamine gets into beer so it can be eliminated.

Carter Back

WASHINGTON (UPI) - A well-rested President Carter is back from the sun and surf of Guadeloupe to Washington's icy winds and from the conviviality of allied leaders to the chills of diplomatic turmoil abroad.

The report came from Thai foreign ministry officials who said they met today with three Khmer Rouge officials in the Cambodian border town of Poipet and were handed a letter from a senior Cambodian communist.

The Thai officials told UPI Carter returned late Tuesday to Washington's freezing temperatures from a six-day sojourn in Guadeloupe, where he attended an informal four-nation allied summit meeting and took a two-day snorkel and fishing vacation with his wife and daughter.

Every Man for Himself

It was every man for himself in the suit department at Regal's in Manchester as the store's annual 2-for-1 sale began this morning. Although some wives do the shopping, they're more apt to stand by and hold coats while their husbands try on jackets, as is shown at the right. A store spokesman said that about 300 or 400, or maybe more, persons were waiting for the doors to open at 9 this morning. He said there were crowds of shoppers throughout the store. Wetlands Panel Sets Subdivision Hearing

By CHRIS BLAKE

EAST HARTFORD - Challenging the developers' contention that a proposed 49-lot subdivision off Long Hill Street does not constitute a significant activity in a designated wetland area, the Inland Wetlands Commission voted unanimously Tuesday night to bring the matter to public hearing Feb. 13 at 7 p.m.

Commission Vice Chairman J. Leslie VanCamp made the motion to declare the proposed subdivision a significant activity and bring it to public hearing. Commissioner Elizabeth Squires seconded.

In his presentation of the application, attorney Leonard Jacobs, representing H&J Builders and Developers, said the builder's disagree with the town's designation of wetlands in the area.

Jacobs said a soil expert hired by the developers took samples last July and determined the wetlands area to be smaller than that designated on town maps.

Louis Elgin, the soil expert, said there were two sections of land on the 25.48-acre parcel which he classified as wetlands. Both are under an acre and both are basically contained within the town's designated wetlands area.

Jacobs said a proposed 24-inch pipe would adequately handle storm drainage in the larger piece of wetland which Elgin identified.

Several residents spoke against the proposed subdivision. Charles Dana of 137 Long Hill St. said the proposed development is a significant activity and would aggravate existing drainage problems in the area.

Jacobs said the report by COMSIS Environmental Services of Glastonbury suggests educational and passive recreational use for the 25-acre tract.

Bradley also said the new town plan recommends the acquisition by the town of land located near schools and parks whenever possible.

The land, which is owned by George and Edward Stumpf, is located near both the Langford School and Nicholson Park.

A woman who lives on Alps Drive, west of the proposed development, said her property would be located behind the lot where the proposed retention basin would be installed.

The woman called the proposed basin "an eyesore" which will "cause frustration" for homeowners and everyone else.

Because the proposed 24-inch pipe has to discharge into the Burnham Brook to the east of the proposed subdivision, the developers have outlined plans to run a pipe along school property and are asking for permission and are awaiting a response.

Several commissioners objected to placing the pipe underneath a line of trees on school property, claiming the builders would have to cut down too many trees.

Jacobs said very few trees would be affected by the pipe.

Tuesday night's action means the developer's application before the Planning and Zoning Commission scheduled for next Wednesday night probably will not be heard.

Ousted Regime Still Fighting

BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) - Officials of Cambodia's ousted Khmer Rouge regime today claimed they are fighting "house to house" against Vietnamese invaders that have swept over the country.

The report came from Thai foreign ministry officials who said they met today with three Khmer Rouge officials in the Cambodian border town of Poipet and were handed a letter from a senior Cambodian communist.

The Thai officials told UPI Carter returned late Tuesday to Washington's freezing temperatures from a six-day sojourn in Guadeloupe, where he attended an informal four-nation allied summit meeting and took a two-day snorkel and fishing vacation with his wife and daughter.

Field reports said the first contingent of fleeing Cambodian soldiers arrived in Thailand's Ta Phraya district, 140 miles northeast of Bangkok. They offered no resistance either to the Thai guards or to the fast-moving Vietnamese invasion force behind them.

It was the first indication the offensive that captured Phnom Penh last Sunday was closing in on western Cambodia, UPI's Paul Wedel reported from the Cambodian-Thai border.

The three envoys of the deposed Pol Pot government handed the letter from Leng Sary to Thai officials, then returned to Cambodia.

The letter's contents were not known, but there was speculation whatever members of the Khmer Rouge administration remained were asking for asylum in Thailand.

Sources said Kringsak would discuss with the Vietnamese ambassador today to discuss fears in Bangkok of a "domino theory" that Thailand and Cambodia would be revived with the lightning drive through Cambodia.

The sources said an unknown number of troops loyal to the former Phnom Penh regime began crossing the Thai-Cambodian border early today. Thai soldiers disarmed and held them.

Oil Flowing As Iranians Resume Job

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) - Thousands of Iranian oil workers returned to their jobs in five major strike-bound refineries today after intervention by the opposition leaders, industry sources said.

"The workers are back on their jobs, production is picking up," an official of the National Iranian Oil Co. said.

Monday as a concession from Premier Shapour Bakhtiar, Bakhtiar's 5-day-old civilian government reeled today under the combined blow of defection by its key military supporter and sharp attacks from the opposition demanding that the shah leave.

Gen. Feridoun Jam declined a request by Bakhtiar to become war minister in a disagreement over the management of the Iranian military.

Diplomatic sources said Jam left Tehran for London after a meeting with the shah.

"The general wanted the commanders of air, ground and naval forces to report to him rather than to the shah, who is still the commander-in-chief," the newspaper Kayhan reported today.

Bakhtiar failed to convince Jam to drop his demand, the paper said.

Jam's participation in the civilian government, which replaced two months of unpopular military rule, was considered vital for Bakhtiar's success.

Bakhtiar had hoped Jam would offset the staunchly pro-shah hardliners in the Iranian military establishment.

It was not immediately clear if Jam's departure meant the Iranian military had scored a victory over Bakhtiar or if Jam had left purely as a result of disagreement with the premier.

The National Front Opposition, which denounced Bakhtiar and expelled him from its membership, has mounted a campaign to bring down his government.

Front leader Farim Sanjani said Tuesday, "The shah may have heard the voice of the revolution and has now got a new plan."

The Front attack reflected the radical position taken by the shah's arch-enemy, Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, which denounced Bakhtiar's government last week as "a dangerous plot by the treacherous shah" and "a last brick thrown by the regime against the people."

Production at the world's largest refinery at Abadan reached 240,000 barrels, less than half its capacity, an oil industry source said. He said crude production was expected to be down his government's target level of 220,000 barrels per day, refinery sources said.

A skeleton crew of Iranian air force experts continued to man the control towers as the strike by the air traffic controllers entered the 10th day.

A strike by the Iran Air national airline pilots, flight crews and ground staff kept the airlines fleet grounded for the 15th straight day.

Radio Iran reported today that "peaceful demonstrations" took place in a dozen cities including Shiraz, where martial law was lifted.

Contract Meeting Is Today

EAST HARTFORD - Town and police union officials were scheduled to meet today at 9:30 a.m. to discuss a new contract for police union employees.

Last week, the Town Council scuttled a fact finder's recommendation for settlement of the contract dispute. Council members felt the salary increase of 13 percent over two years was unfair considering it voted to give two other town unions lesser increases in 1978.

David Killian, secretary of Local 1089 of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, said the union will probably ask for the proposals recommended by fact finder James R. Brown of West Hartford.

Brown recommended the 13 percent hike over two years along with no change in the present work schedule and increased medical benefits.

Killian said the union wants to retain its present work schedule—four 10-hour days followed by three days off.

"Basically we're asking for what the union voted for," he said, referring to the union's vote to accept the fact finder's report in December.

Meanwhile, the town is expected to offer a 10 percent pay increase and medical benefits which include a drug rider and a home and office visit rider.

The town will reportedly propose a work schedule of five eight-hour days followed by three days off.

No Protection

HARTFORD (UPI) - The state auditors say it is "readily apparent" that Connecticut's first interest is not being protected by Treasurer Henry Parker.

In a letter to Gov. Ella Grasso, auditors Leo Donohue and Henry Becker said they have found at least two instances in which the Treasury Department has failed to promptly extend credit to brokers who had borrowed money from the state.

The auditors said in one case a borrower's letter of credit for $15 million expired on Oct. 10, 1977. The credit was not extended until two days later.

In the other case, credit to another borrower for $3 million ran out last Aug. 23. The credit was not extended for another four days, the auditors said.

Cambodian Takeover Freezes U.S.-Vietnam Talks

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States, in an effort to pressure Hanoi into withdrawing Vietnamese troops from Cambodia, has put a freeze on talks aimed at establishing diplomatic relations with Vietnam.

There is no question of any move toward normalization of relations under the present circumstances," said Jack Cannon, spokesman for the State Department's Asian Bureau. He said the statement referred to the presence of a massive number of Vietnamese troops in Cambodia. U.S. and Vietnamese officials have met four times to discuss setting up normal relations, and "good progress" had been reported in the talks.

American officials estimate about 100,000 Vietnamese troops were involved in the original assault on Cambodia, and they appear to have overwhelmed the estimated 30,000-man Cambodian army.

The war posed a dilemma for the United States, which is sharply critical of the wholesale killings reported to have been ordered by the Pol Pot government.

However, U.S. officials believe the paramount goal is to restrict the fighting and keep it from spreading to the superpowers or to neighboring Asian nations.

The officials acknowledge their efforts to bring pressure on Vietnam are sharply limited.

Secretary of State Cyrus Vance talked separately Tuesday with ambassadors Anatoly Dobrynin of the Soviet Union and Chai Tse-hin of the People's Republic of China. Officials said U.S. concerns about the situation in Indochina were discussed in both meetings.

The Soviets back the Vietnam invasion and have publicly praised it in their broadcasts. The Chinese, who recently have built up their air and ground forces on Vietnam's border, back the Pol Pot government.

Vance, according to a spokesman, has not yet decided if he will meet

Prince Norodom Sihanouk, who has been sent to New York by the Pol Pot government to present Cambodia's case at a U.N. Security Council debate.

The Soviet Union opposes the debate, but U.S. officials believe the Soviets do not have the six votes in the Security Council needed to block a request for a debate.

However, the Soviets could veto any resolution, even a ineffectual one, that results from it.

Weicker To Probe Fishy Cult

HARTFORD (UPI) — Sen. Lowell Weicker, R-Conn., has ordered a staff investigation of charges that American fishing businesses can't compete with a multi-million dollar nationwide network of fish packing companies, boatyards and boats owned by Korean evangelist Sun Myung Moon and his Unification Church.

Weicker's staff Tuesday confirmed their boss had ordered them to check into charges the companies — which stretch from Alabama to Alaska — compete unfairly with small American fishing businesses.

Competitors allege the Unification Church's companies have an unfair advantage because their employees — half of whom are church members — turn over their earnings to the church or are paid substantial wages.

The church companies, including a fish-packing subsidiary plant in Gloucester, Mass., often afford to pay fishermen more for their catches and sell them for less, fishermen say.

"Our members can spend their hard earned wages in any way they like and if that means donating it to church, then it is none of Senator Weicker's business," said Aidan Barry, director of the Unification Church of Massachusetts.

"Church-associated businesses pay well over minimum wages, pay full taxes to the government and give healthy raises to its hard working workers when we established or took over these businesses."

Weicker, ranking member of the Senate's Select Committee on Small Businesses, conducted hearings in December 1977 on economic conditions in the fishing industry and heard testimony that "foreign investments" might be harming small processors and fishermen.

Weicker aide said the investigation began at the end of October with little publicity and stressed the staff is not looking into religious aspects of the operation, but whether church money is being used by heavily into the businesses and undercut competition.

Barry denied the charges, saying they pay "very good prices for fish."

"I feel very sad when certain government officials try to control the private affairs of American citizens. Please don't tell us what we can believe in or how our members spend their personal money. We resent very strongly any federal attempt to dictate over our private lives."

Weicker aides said investigators are still gathering evidence, which could eventually lead to legislation or presentation in congressional hearings.

Republican National Committee Chairman William Brock, testifying before the Senate Banking Committee Tuesday, defends his party's credit card solicitation plan against charges of conflict of interest.

Committee Chairman William Proxmire, D-Wis., questioned the propriety of both parties selling names of potential donors to banks, which would attempt to sign up the individuals as credit card customers.

CHICAGO (UPI) — John Wayne Gacy wants to auction off furniture and other possessions from his suburban Norwood Park Township house and garage where 27 decomposed bodies have been recovered, Cook County Sheriff's Police say.

"We won't let anything go unless we're sure it has no evidentiary value," Sheriff Richard Eitrod said Tuesday.

Gacy, 36, was to be arraigned today on charges he killed seven young men who had disappeared since July 1975. Medical examiners have identified 10 of 29 decomposed bodies linked to him. They believe he killed 32 young men and boys.

One questionable item, investigators said, is Gacy's movie film projector. Reels of pornography reportedly have been impounded from his house and the projector may be needed as evidence.

Possibles for the auction block are furniture, tools and television sets and a collection of clown's heads. Gacy often performed as a clown for neighborhood children.

Authorities have found 26 bodies buried in the crawl space of Gacy's house and one body under his garage. Two bodies pulled from the Des Plaines River have been linked to Gacy and three other bodies are being sought in area rivers. Gacy reportedly said he threw five bodies in the rivers after the crawl space became too crowded.

Investigators canvassed North Side and suburban night spots Tuesday from a list supplied by the accused slayer in efforts to learn the identities of the 19 remaining murder victims linked to him.

Concentrating in the neighborhoods of Old Town, New Town, the North Side and the Northwest Side as well as some suburban areas, investigators promised anonymity to anyone who might have information on people who were seen with Gacy. Investigators said a number of the establishments are considered hangouts for homosexuals.

HARTFORD (UPI) — The state Board of Education plans to ask the public tonight what it thinks of proficiency tests.

Last year, the Legislature passed a law requiring children in grades three, five, seven and nine to begin taking proficiency tests in the 1979-80 school year.

The board has adopted regulations to implement the law and will hold a public hearing tonight in Hartford to give the public a chance to respond to those regulations.

Oil Competition Sought

BOSTON (UPI) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., has called for a national energy policy that would increase competition in the oil industry and that would be free of costs that are crippling the Northeast.

In a speech Tuesday before the New England Broadcasters Association, Kennedy said the United States has not taken the opportunity to improve competition among oil producing nations.

He suggested the United States, Canada and Mexico unite in an effort to compete with Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries and said there was no reason to decentralize the price of crude oil in this country.

"I believe strongly in continuation of controls," he said. "I do not favor controls in a free market, but oil is not sold in a free market. It is sold in a market controlled by OPEC. I ask all the members of the New England (congressional) delegation to join me in opposing decentral, which would bring a tidal wave of new price increases that would be nothing short of disastrous for those of us in the New England region."

Kennedy noted a study released Monday by Washington by the National Center for Economic Alternatives found New England to be the poorest region in the nation because of the exorbitant costs of food, shelter, health and energy.

Hunter Contracts Plague

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (UPI) — A hunter hit his finger on a bone of a rabbit he had just killed and contracted bubonic plague, the "black death" that ravaged 14th-century Europe.

Eugene, Ore., man was infected during a rabbit-hunting trip with his brother near World, Wyo., in early December. Dr. Lawrence Cohen, State Health and Social Services administrator said Tuesday. The victim was successfully treated and has returned to his home in Eugene, he said.

The bubonic case was the first in Wyoming history.

Cohen said two other rabbits taken on the hunt also were infected with bubonic plague and advised hunters to take precautions in handling dead rabbits and their meat and to be sure the meat is cooked properly.

"There's no reason to panic, but at the very least hunters should wear gloves when cleaning rabbits and not handle them at all if they have any break in the skin that might facilitate the entry of disease-causing organisms," Cohen said.

He warned that freezing the meat will not kill the plague-causing bacteria and advised against handling frozen raw rabbit meat. But he said cooking a carcass so the internal temperature is raised to 160 degrees for 15 minutes would kill the bacteria and make the meat safe to eat.

Asked if he expected more cases of plague, Cohen said, "I hesitate to comment on that. I really have no idea. We're going to be looking and we're going to be warning people."

Cohen said U.S. health officials suspect the plague-carrying rabbits are an isolated case, but noted any fur-vested animal, particularly a hibernating one, that attracts fleas is suspect.

According to some estimates, several epidemics of "Black Death," spread by travelers, wiped out almost entire populations in some European towns in the 14th century.

Accreditation by the New England Association followed a year of careful in-depth self-study by the school staff led by Sister Margaret Rita McKay. The self-evaluation report covering all aspects of the school was prepared before the visit of a team of evaluators appointed by the association whose job it was to take a close and unbiased look at the institution and develop a written report identifying standards of the school along with a series of recommendations to improve further the quality of educational opportunities on the students enrolled.

MANCHESTER — East Catholic High School has received its first regional accreditation from the New England Association of Schools and Colleges. The formal presentation of the accreditation certificate was made recently at the 3rd annual meeting of the association by Association President John W. Chandler, president of Williams College in Williamstown, Mass., and received by Sister Margaret Rita McKay, vice principal of ECHS.

Biggest Spender Lost

HARTFORD (UPI) — The 187 politicians who landed seats in the 1979 Legislature spent about $800,000 on their successful campaigns, but the biggest spender lost re-election bid, campaign finance records show.

Records on file at the secretary of the state's office Tuesday showed former Sen. William E. Strada, Jr., D-Stamford, spent $26,605 on his unsuccessful attempt to retain his Senate seat.

Sen. Joseph A. Ruogerio, D-Torrington, pumped $26,000 into his campaign to top the list of winning Senate candidates' spending in the November election, the finance reports show.

Rep. Vincent A. Roberts, D-Bridgport, ran the most expensive campaign among his House colleagues spending $15,112.

The most frugal campaigner was the new House majority leader, Rep. John C. Groppo, D-Windset, who spent just $680 to win re-election to a 11th term.

The reports show the winners of Senate seats spent an average of $9,550 and house voters spent an average of $2,370 for their positions which pay $17,000 for the two year terms.

The averages were substantially higher than the median spending in 1976, the records show.

The four lawmakers whose finance reports were not on file yet were Sen. William E. Curry, Jr., D-Farmington, Rep. Thomas F. Sweney, D-Norwich, Rep. Vito M. Mazza, D-West Haven, and Rep. Thomas F. Wall, D-New Haven.

Policy Defended

Republican National Committee Chairman William Brock, testifying before the Senate Banking Committee Tuesday, defends his party's credit card solicitation plan against charges of conflict of interest.

Committee Chairman William Proxmire, D-Wis., questioned the propriety of both parties selling names of potential donors to banks, which would attempt to sign up the individuals as credit card customers.

CHICAGO (UPI) — John Wayne Gacy wants to auction off furniture and other possessions from his suburban Norwood Park Township house and garage where 27 decomposed bodies have been recovered, Cook County Sheriff's Police say.

"We won't let anything go unless we're sure it has no evidentiary value," Sheriff Richard Eitrod said Tuesday.

Gacy, 36, was to be arraigned today on charges he killed seven young men who had disappeared since July 1975. Medical examiners have identified 10 of 29 decomposed bodies linked to him. They believe he killed 32 young men and boys.

One questionable item, investigators said, is Gacy's movie film projector. Reels of pornography reportedly have been impounded from his house and the projector may be needed as evidence.

Possibles for the auction block are furniture, tools and television sets and a collection of clown's heads. Gacy often performed as a clown for neighborhood children.

Authorities have found 26 bodies buried in the crawl space of Gacy's house and one body under his garage. Two bodies pulled from the Des Plaines River have been linked to Gacy and three other bodies are being sought in area rivers. Gacy reportedly said he threw five bodies in the rivers after the crawl space became too crowded.

Investigators canvassed North Side and suburban night spots Tuesday from a list supplied by the accused slayer in efforts to learn the identities of the 19 remaining murder victims linked to him.

Concentrating in the neighborhoods of Old Town, New Town, the North Side and the Northwest Side as well as some suburban areas, investigators promised anonymity to anyone who might have information on people who were seen with Gacy. Investigators said a number of the establishments are considered hangouts for homosexuals.

HARTFORD (UPI) — The state Board of Education plans to ask the public tonight what it thinks of proficiency tests.

Last year, the Legislature passed a law requiring children in grades three, five, seven and nine to begin taking proficiency tests in the 1979-80 school year.

The board has adopted regulations to implement the law and will hold a public hearing tonight in Hartford to give the public a chance to respond to those regulations.

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (UPI) — A hunter hit his finger on a bone of a rabbit he had just killed and contracted bubonic plague, the "black death" that ravaged 14th-century Europe.

Eugene, Ore., man was infected during a rabbit-hunting trip with his brother near World, Wyo., in early December. Dr. Lawrence Cohen, State Health and Social Services administrator said Tuesday. The victim was successfully treated and has returned to his home in Eugene, he said.

The bubonic case was the first in Wyoming history.

Cohen said two other rabbits taken on the hunt also were infected with bubonic plague and advised hunters to take precautions in handling dead rabbits and their meat and to be sure the meat is cooked properly.

"There's no reason to panic, but at the very least hunters should wear gloves when cleaning rabbits and not handle them at all if they have any break in the skin that might facilitate the entry of disease-causing organisms," Cohen said.

He warned that freezing the meat will not kill the plague-causing bacteria and advised against handling frozen raw rabbit meat. But he said cooking a carcass so the internal temperature is raised to 160

Hebron Fire Calls Rise

HEBRON - The Hebron Volunteer Fire Department responded to an average of more than one call a day during the past year according to the department's yearly report.

The department recorded a total of 385 emergency responses as compared to 342 during the previous year. This reflects a six percent increase.

Additionally there were 12 monthly meetings as well as 43 regularly scheduled drill sessions.

The 1978 calls included 12 structure fires, seven smoke investigations, 11 brush, woods, and grass fires, one electrical fire, 19 vehicle fires, seven search and rescue calls, two house collapses, 22 service calls, four appliance fire calls, three bomb scares, 10 for standby, eight false alarms, nine malfunctioning alarms, 17 chimney and wood stove fires, four calls to the dump, four calls for downed wires, 46 automobile accidents, 159 emergency medical calls, 31 mutual aid fire calls, and three rescue calls.

The Hebron Department received mutual aid assistance from other towns in 43 and the Hebron Department responded to help other towns, 45 times.

Nine firefighters were injured in the line of duty during 1978, less than half the number injured during 1977. During the year the department acquired two new vehicles. In March the department acquired a federal excess four-wheel drive 1969 Jeep pickup. This was converted to use as a forestry truck by the department and the town's highway department.

In July, a 1978 1,000-gallon tanker was delivered.

The "911" emergency dialing system was implemented during the year for the 228, 337, 267, and 295 exchanges.

The first dry hydrant was installed near Rham High School. Two others will be installed this coming spring. Also, Hebron's first municipal fire alarm tie-in system began operation this year. The system provides for building fire alarms to be connected directly to the dispatch center.

The department also sponsored a two-day rescue course which qualified 27 members in vehicle rescue and a structural fire drill was conducted at the former Camp Collins on Martin Road.

Flooding At Park Relieved

MANCHESTER - A slight flooding problem at Charter-Oak Park had been taken care of by Tuesday afternoon, Kenneth Irish of the Park Department said.

Heavy snow and rain in the past few days resulted in the Hop Brook flowing over its banks. This, along with water from the skating rink at the park, resulted in the water reaching the park's parking lot.

The problem was solved by blocking an inlet that leads from the brook to the skating rink. This blockage was continued until the pond reached its normal level Tuesday afternoon.

The inlet then was reopened and skating should return to normal once the water freezes again, Irish said.

No other flooding problems affected the skating areas in town, he said. There was a slight blockage problem of an inlet at Center Springs Annex, but that has been taken care of, Irish said.

Communication Tops School Poll Concerns

By BARBARA RICHMOND
Herald Reporter

VERNON — Communication about children's development is the area that was of the most concern to parents and school staff who responded to a survey conducted by the Vernon school system. The Public Relations Committee of the Board of Education was authorized last May to conduct an opinion survey. Dr. Margaret Kent from the University of Connecticut, a research analyst with the state Department of Mental Health, worked with the committee on the survey. While parents and teachers expressed strong concern with communication about students' development, the students themselves were concerned about the quality of school management and services. School staff felt reporting to parents of children's progress was very satisfactory, while parents were moderately satisfied with it and more students were dissatisfied than were satisfied, the survey report states.

Out of this came the recommendation that the school staff and administrators make an effort to attain a better communication with students at the high school by use of class and extra discussion groups and by questionnaires and requests for student suggestions for improvement in this area.

Another set of questions showed that the quality and effectiveness of teaching was considered to be high by staff, parents and students.

The only area of disagreement, the report states, was from the high school students who noted they do not look forward to going to school most days. The report says, "Even here the disagreement was mild."

Students expressed considerable doubt, but parents and staff agreed that the quality of administrative leadership is high and that school rules and regulations are fair.

Only 40 percent of the students agreed that the quality of administrative leadership is high; only 21 percent of them thought the rules and regulations are fair; and only 21 percent thought that parents and school administrators are in good communication. 58 percent of the staff thinks that teacher morale is good and 53 percent of parents and students agreed.

One area where all three groups had a strong feeling was more vocational and college selection counselors should be hired and more career information incorporated into the school instructional program.

The report says that students were more vehement about this than the others. Parents strongly endorse the schools, the work of the school board, of the administrative leadership and the quality of teaching.

In questions concerning the school budget, students indicated they felt a lack of information and parents indicated they felt better about the job the board is doing with the budget than either the students or the staff.

All agreed that the quality of special education programs is acceptable, that bus service is satisfactory but all three groups agreed they do not like the lunch served in the high school cafeteria.

Sparse Coventry Turnout Approves Spending Items

COVENTRY — A sparse turnout of voters Monday night unanimously approved five appropriation proposals sponsored by the Town Council.

Another $27,500 will be added to the $65,000 already approved for drainage work on Flanders Road.

The insurance account will receive $11,300 to cover premium overruns, recently explained to the council by Leonard Benjamin, the town's agent.

Temporary repairs to the Flanders River Road Bridge will be funded by $10,000 from the unappropriated cash surplus. A total of $36,500 had already been allocated for the work.

Finally, town officials were authorized to enter into an agreement with Columbia selection for reconstruction of the Pucker Street Bridge. The structure collapsed in 1977 under an overloaded oil truck.

Town Manager Frank Connolly last month reported to the council that estimates for the bridge repairs have jumped to $187,000 due to inflation. The towns will share the cost remaining after the use of government funds.

Connolly said the lowest bid for the drainage project came from Milton Beebe of Storrs at $91,752. Both the manager and Town Engineer Donald Holmes recommended acceptance of Beebe's terms.

Following the special town meeting, the council held an update from Connolly on the extension of benefits to the town under the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA).

"We have just received notification that the CETA program will be extending to September 30, 1979," Connolly said.

"However, the rate of funding has been cut drastically."

Connolly said the new funding allocation provides for the continuation of only six positions. He also has received notice from Executive Director Olive Sheehan of the State Labor Department that a project proposal under Title VI of CETA has been approved.

SWHS Meeting Slated

SOUTH WINDSOR — The counselors of South Windsor High School will meet Jan. 18, from 7 to 9 p.m. with parents and students in the junior class.

Water Line Repairs Will Be Contracted

MANCHESTER — The town apparently will hire a private contractor to repair a water line that broke on West Middle Turnpike.

The break occurred last month underneath a culvert just west of the Channel Home Center store in the Manchester Shopping Parkade.

It was the second break within 24 hours, and Frank Jodaitis, water and sewer administrator, blamed the state for not installing the proper pipe in the area. The section of the turnpike was part of a road improvement project administered by the state.

The area where the break occurred has been segregated by turning off water flow on both sides of the break. This creates two dead-end lines so there is no water being lost through the pipe break.

No customers have lost water service because of the shutoff, but it does limit fire fighting capabilities, Jodaitis said.

Because the break occurred under the culvert, it makes it harder to repair. Thus, the town has decided to swing the line out around the culvert and install a new underground line.

Jodaitis said a private contractor would have to be hired to do the work because the town does not have the capability to make such an installation.

The town will buy materials, but the actual work would be done by the contractor.

The project would have to be put out to bid or the department would have to obtain a bid waiver, Jodaitis said.

It also is possible that the work done by the contractor will cost less than $2,500. If this is true, the town would not have to seek a bid for the work.

Assessor Honored

VERNON — Jack VanOudenstove, assistant assessor for the Town of Vernon, has been elected president of the Hartford Area Assessor's Association. The group deals with problems that occur during the year.

The purpose of the organization, which meets once a month in various towns throughout the area, is to keep uniformity in the assessment field.

Four Face Expulsion; Lacking Immunization

MANCHESTER — Four high school students may face expulsion later this month because of failure to obtain required immunization.

The state's new immunization law provides that students who have not received vaccinations for certain disease may be kept out of a school system.

Allan Chesteron, director of pupil personnel services, said four Manchester High School students have not received proper treatment to prevent measles.

Jacob Lades, principal of the school, has met with the parents of the students but has not succeeded in having the students receive the required treatment, Chesteron said.

If the required immunization is not done by the Board of Education's Jan. 22 meeting, Chesteron will recommend the students be banned from school attendance, he told the board at its meeting Monday.

Another eight students also have not presented proof of proper immunization, but Chesteron said all of these cases appear to be matters of "record-keeping." He expects all to be straightened out by the Jan. 22 meeting.

The board received a report from Anne Louise Fournier and Maureen Lackey, who handle instruction for visually impaired students.

The teachers told the board of some of their teaching methods and showed some of the tools they use in their instruction. They handle 10 students between the ages of four and 17 in the school system.

Dr. James Kennedy, superintendent of schools, reported two $500 gifts given to Iling Junior High School for the purchase of a universal gym, which is an apparatus used for various weight-lifting exercises.

The Board of Education did not fund the purchase, so the school started a fund-raising drive.

The $500 gifts were received from Mortuary Brothers and Multi-Circuit. Kennedy thanked both firms for the contributions.

He also reported on progress at Washington School and said the school system expects the contractor to repair a roof leak at the school. If the contractor will not take the repair action, the town will do it and bill the firm, he said.

The Board of Education approved a dozen textbooks for use in courses at Manchester High School and Iling Junior High School.

It also approved a philosophy for the high school that is part of the school's preparation for the New England Association Evaluation.

Bells on Display

BOLTON — A collection of bells owned by Mrs. Richard Olmsted will be on display at Bentley Memorial Library throughout January. There are about 60 bells from all over the world in her collection and they are made of many different materials. Mrs. Olmsted is a member of the American Bell Association.

Brazil Has Room for Everyone

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (UPI) — Skeptics who scoff whenever someone mentions a far-fetched scheme in Brazil are likely to be convinced with a shrug and a finger-pointed skyward.

"Ask, ask, my child," runs the standard reply. "Don't you know God is a Brazilian?"

This is only a semi-joke.

In Brazil, which often seems like a nation of 125 million optimists, you are allowed to try practically anything once. There is room for everyone and an accommodation can always be made.

If you want to retrace a huge river for a couple of years so you can build the biggest dam in the world, then come to Brazil.

If you want to buy a Connecticut-sized chunk of jungle, clear it and plant the biggest tree farm in the world, then come to Brazil.

If you want to build a brand-new capital city in the middle of the wilderness, then come to Brazil.

And if you need a bit of supernatural help and would like to make some offerings to Iemanjá, the Uruguayan goddess of the sea, then Brazil can provide that as well.

Because the impossible is possible, because opposites are complementary because of its sheer size, diversity and vastness, Brazil is a country knocking at the gates of world superstardom.

But it's not all milk and honey.

Brazil, with a population of 125 million and occupying half the South American continent, now has the 10th largest economy in the world.

expunged from census forms.

The other Brazil contains what may be the largest number of blacks outside Africa, but no one is keeping count and it is difficult to ascertain whether—as some people suspect—racism pervades practically every aspect of Brazilian life.

One Brazil prints column after column of newspaper copy about the possibility of President-elect Figueiredo turning the country over to civilian government in 1985 and describes in great detail the activities of politicians.

Millions Need Jobs

The other Brazil needs 1 million new jobs a year and will take them from a technician general in Brasilia, a left-leaning union leader in Sao Paulo, a feudal plantation owner in the dry dusty flatlands of northeastern Sergipe State, or a German immigrant rancher in southern Santa Catarina. Never mind the politics.

One Brazil is fully attuned to the latest in computer technology and can issue an airplane reservation, a bank statement or a parking ticket in seconds.

The other Brazil requires that you have identity cards and working papers but makes it almost impossible for you to get them without the aid of a "dispatcher," an expert in a bureaucracy so byzantine that it often seems impossible to buy, sell, travel, marry, have children, apply for a job or die without a notarized document.

The Brazilian Legion for Assistance distributes food to starving children at 10 centers in Nilopolis, a slum city built atop what used to be a garbage dump outside Rio de Janeiro.

Yet the 250,000 people who live in Nilopolis manage to scrape together millions of dollars each year to win the world-famous Rio Carnival parade for their Beija-flor samba school, the reigning kings of Brazil's national music.

Diet or Hunger?

In Copacabana a young working girl will order a glass of water at a sidewalk cafe, larger than the 48 contiguous United States and occupying half the South American continent, now has the tenth largest economy on earth and fully expects to become a superpower by the year 2000.

In the 14 years since the armed forces ousted President Joao Goulart and set up the country's so-called "revolution," growth has averaged 8.2 percent per year. The gross domestic product leaped from $5.6 billion in 1963 to $16.4 billion in 1977 — an increase of 201 percent.

Agricultural production — the country's traditional export mainstay — expanded by 93 percent but industry ballooned by 211 percent. Brazil's major trade problem these days is thinking up ways to breach other countries' tariff barriers.

Given this rosy picture, as painted by the government in a study released last September, attainment of superpowerdom seems well within reach. But even God's proprietary interest has not helped make basic changes that are needed — and needed quickly.

Notwithstanding the military dictatorship's solid economic achievements, Brazil — in social, political and human terms — continues to be unquestionably and uncomprehensively Third World.

The government study made much of the fact that real per capita income grew by 103 percent between 1963 and 1977, from $15 to $1,462.

But a World Bank report published in October found that the richest 5 percent of the population still held 39 percent of the wealth while the poorest 50 percent held only 11.8 percent.

Young Population

In 1980, government planners predict, 52 percent of Brazil's population will be under 20, reflecting the high 2.9 percent annual rate of population expansion and the low life expectancy of 69.7 years.

While the U.S. infant mortality rate in 1974 was 20 per 1,000, the latest figures available peg the Brazilian rate at 98 per 1,000 — and that did not include infant deaths in the countryside.

One official finding showed that more than one in four of the babies born in the northeastern Brazilian city of Recife in 1974 died before their first birthday.

And the figures continue: 28 percent illiteracy; 66 percent of the country's households without running water and 73 percent without sewers or septic tanks.

These are all hard-core developing country statistics, showing that if Brazil has jumped into the front rank of the world's economic powers, socially and politically it is in many respects lagging behind even its Spanish-speaking neighbors in Latin America.

Knows and Cares Less

In fact the average Brazilian, living in a country that has not had a direct presidential election since 1960, probably knows and cares less about politics than the simplest peasant in Bolivia, a country usually cited as the standard bearer for underdevelopment on the continent.

The government does not try to hide the country's social problems, and the quantity of its statistics — a rarity in South America — is one reason why Brazil's problems may be solvable.

Decisionmakers say they know what is wrong.

President-elect Joao Baptista Figueiredo, rubberstamped by an electoral college in October and getting ready to take over from President Ernesto Geisel in March, recognizes the income distribution problem. He tells reporters, "If there is someone who can solve this problem in the short term, then I will vote for him for president."

Economist Adalberto Moura da Silva of the University of Sao Paulo says, "To grow with social tension is better than stagnating at such a critical time."

"Tension" or "stagnation," "long term" or "short term" — these are alternatives often voiced by the planners, politicians, churchmen, social scientists, technocrats and military officers all searching for the right mix of policies that will lift the vast majority of Brazil's 125 million citizens into the modern world without damaging the frail structures that permit continuing economic progress.

One Brazil, proud of its ability to absorb people from all origins and backgrounds, declares that there is no racism in the country and orders the item "race" pour four tablespoons of sugar into it and drink it down, telling you that "I'm on a diet." It's over. It's over. Looking at her that she doesn't need to lose weight and could use 10 sandwiches right away — if she had 40 cents to buy a sandwich.

In the lush country of northeast Brazil a ranch foreman claims that his laborers clearing land "aren't much good after 2 p.m." But he admits "you might have something there" when you suggest that perhaps his men, hauling tree trunks around under a tropic sun on one meal a day, may simply be running out of gas.

The people of one Brazil are in the higher echelons of society and status seekers who imitate anything foreign.

And the people of the other are comfortably and indignantly Brazilian, possessing a rock bottom nationalism that far transcends the xenophobic paranoia that characterizes much of Latin America.

Portuguese Relations

The relationship with Portugal, the mother country, is close on the official and cultural levels. But in the street there is a mood of amused tolerance, understandable when one realizes that Portugal is about the same size as the smallest Brazilian state of Santa Catarina.

When Portuguese President Ramalho Eanes visited Brazil last year one Brazilian barfly watching Eanes' speech on television was overheard to remark, "Why can't that guy learn how to speak Portuguese? I can't understand a thing he's saying."

In language and culture Brazilians are purely Brazilian, possessing a happy-go-lucky friendliness coupled with an unquenchable optimism expressed as a tendency to think of everything in terms of "the biggest," "the newest."

Brazil is the 17-year-old illiterate woodsman in the Amazon jungles of Para State who cuts brush for $2 a day and food, but who is called a "Paulista," because he is trying to save enough money to go south to Sao Paulo and get a better job.

He has one pair of shoes, one good shirt, a comb and 1,500 miles to travel. He probably will make it eventually.

Brazil is the fat fellow with the mustache at Rio's Galeao Airport who stamps passports for arriving passengers and who breaks into an enormous smile when he notices a foreigner with a permanent residence visa.

"Hey Charlie," he yells to his buddy. "We got an immigrant here."

Charlie comes over and takes the foreigner's chest x-ray, inoculation card and medical questionnaire, examines the passport and hands it back.

"Congratulations," says Charlie, smiling along with the rest of the airport staff. "You'll like it here."

Brazil at a Glance

Brazil, discovered April 22, 1500, by Portuguese Admiral Pedro Alvares Cabral, has 125 million people spread out over 3.3 million square miles that range from lush Amazon jungles to pampas flatlands.

It covers almost half of South America and is the world's fifth largest nation in terms of population and geographical size.

Eight Brazilian cities have more than 1 million people — Rio de Janeiro, Sao Paulo, Brasilia, Belo Horizonte, Recife, Salvador, Fortaleza and Porto Alegre.

With 91 percent of its people listed as Roman Catholics, Brazil is the largest Catholic nation in the world. But hundreds of thousands of Catholics also practice Macumbe, a religion similar to Voodoo.

Sixty five percent of Brazilians are Caucasian. Some 25 percent are black or of mixed blood and there are sizeable communities of Japanese and Chinese.

Fifteen years of sustained economic growth — an average 10 percent a year — brought Brazil's gross national product to $16.4 billion in 1978, making it the world's 10th biggest economy. Brazil is the world's largest producer of coffee.

The nation also is a major exporter of textiles, soybeans, sugar and cocoa, and has growing steel, petroleum and paper industries. Its orange production is second only to the United States and it is a key source of commercial diamonds.

There Are Two Brazils

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (UPI) — In the end there are two Brazils.

One is a vigorous modern nation of innovators seeking creative, unusual and sometimes brilliant means of grabbing Brazil's designated place in the international spotlight.

But the other lives in a grinding, brutal world of poverty, crime and vice. Dehydration and malnutrition at age 10 are far more to be feared than cancer or arteriosclerosis at some unimaginable time in the future.

One Brazil builds the stupendous new capital city of Brasilia in the grassy wilderness of the central high plains, a marvel of space-age architecture and urban planning.

The other Brazil lives in tin-roofed shacks in "satellite cities" surrounding the capital and spends two hours in a bus each morning to work at a civil service job. A President Carter visiting Brasilia never sees this Brazil.

One Brazil, worried about paying $4 billion each year for imported oil, delours the Parana river to build the $2.7 billion Itaipu dam, spends another $8 billion on a controversial nuclear power deal with West Germany, and launches a huge experimental manioc-growing program designed to replace 80 percent of the gasoline used in Brazil's cars with alcohol.

The other Brazil wonders where to find the money to put gas in a truck at $1.40 a gallon and go to work that day.

One Brazil boasts of economic minds who pioneered a complex but workable system known as "indexing" to systematically devalue the Brazilian cruzeiro and balance the standard of living.

The other Brazil works as a household servant for $5 a day and has to ask for a pay increase every three months to keep in step with inflation running at more than 40 percent a year.

One Brazil sells American billionaire Daniel K. Ludwig a huge piece of the Amazon jungle so he can build a tree farm on it, employ thousands of Brazilians and bring $800 million into the country.

The other Brazil asks travelers to bring back a soccer ball from the United States, believing that it must be better than a ball made in the country with the most illustrious soccer pedigrees in the world.

One Brazil has a Roman Catholic Church with leaders in the forefront of the human rights movement and weiv wield major international influence in keeping with the country's status as the biggest Catholic nation in the world.

The other Brazil believes in exorcising evil spirits with Christian-style crucifixion and conducts day-by-day relations with a variety of voodoo deities.

One Brazil spends $5 a shot for imported Scotch at bars along Rio's white sand beaches. Copacabana for $300 a month to be close to the Petropolis, and contemplates buying a $500,000 condominium apartment in a new complex going up near the Grand Prix automobile race track in Jacarepagua.

The other Brazil shares a cold water one-bedroom apartment with three friends in Copacabana for $300 a month to be close to the action, goes to see John Travolta in "Saturday Night Fever," and reads in the newspaper how to do the hustle, hoping to muster enough cash to get a breath of the good life at an Ipanema disco.

DiRosa Takes Over Post As Newest Town Director

MANCHESTER — Peter DiRosa Jr. was sworn in Tuesday as a Republican member of the Town Board of Directors. Superior Court Judge John Shea, a Manchester resident, administered the oath-taking ceremony, held before the board's regular meeting. DiRosa replaces Vivian Ferguson, who resigned Dec. 31 after eight years on the board. The ceremony was brief but did provide a few moments of laughter. Mayor Stephen Penny, who is an attorney, introduced Judge Shea and spoke of the number of outstanding judges who have come from Manchester.

G. Fox, Macy's Bring Suit To Bar Sunday Sale Arrests

NEW HAVEN (UPI) — A major department store chain has filed suit against two state officials and eight local police chiefs to bar enforcement of the state's Sunday closing law pending a state Supreme Court ruling on its legality. The May Department Store Co., which owns G. Fox & Co. and Macy's of New York Inc., Tuesday requested court injunctions to prevent state and local officials from prosecuting its stores for defying the so-called "blue" law. New Haven Superior Court Judge William L. Hadden Jr. has scheduled a hearing on the request Friday. The ban on Sunday sales was passed by last year's Legislature and went into effect Oct. 1. It was to replace a statute struck down as unconstitutional by state courts in 1976. In November, New Haven Superior Court Judge Nicholas Ciotti again declared the law unconstitutional for the time for the holiday "grace" period, which permits stores to stay open during the Christmas shopping season. The suit claims enforcement of the Sunday closing law will result in "irreparable harm" because employees are subject to arrest and the stores will lose business. It names Chief State's Attorney Austin J. Mc Guigan, State Public Safety Commissioner Donald J. Long, and police chiefs from Enfield, Hartford, Meriden, Waterbury, Farmington, Trumbull, West Hartford and defendants. G. Fox has branches in the eight towns, and Macy's operates a store in New Haven. Mc Guigan, who instructed local police departments to begin enforcing the law Sunday for the first time since November, was unavailable for comment Tuesday. A spokesman in his office said a staff member has been appointed to handle the confusion over enforcement of the closing law. A show cause hearing on a similar suit is scheduled for Jan. 16 in New Haven Superior Court. Barry Drazan, owner of Thrifty's Home Centers in Milford and New Haven, is also seeking an injunction to prevent officials from enforcing the Sunday closing law. Mc Guigan's instructions to clamp down on merchants who remained open prompted a variety of strategies by police departments — including applications for arrest warrants, written warnings and no action at all.

Pohl Resigns Legion Post

MANCHESTER — Michael Pohl has announced his resignation as commander of the Sons of the American Legion, District 10-1, which is the American Legion Detachment of Connecticut, effective March 1. This is Pohl's fourth year serving as commander and first year as chaplain. He said he will remain on the Youth Commission. Pohl said he is resigning so that he can devote more time to the Young Democrats, a group he organized recently and which holds its first meeting Monday, and to the Democratic Party as a whole. Cigarette Sales HARTFORD (UPI) — The Connecticut Lung Association says the sale of cigarettes in the state fell slightly last year compared to 1977. The association said 965 million packs of cigarettes were sold in 1978, about 488,463 less than sold in 1977. Cigarette sales nationally increased 0.9 percent over the previous year's total, the association said.

State Trying To Save Fund For Jobless

HARTFORD (UPI) — In the past seven years, Connecticut has leaned heavily on Uncle Sam to clean up its unemployment compensation mess. But the state is hoping to stay off the federal tab this year. The state went into back to the federal government in 1970 when it desperately needed money to pay its unemployed. Connecticut has been running up its borrowing bills ever since. During the past seven years, Connecticut has received more than $24 million in federal loans. At the same time, employees in this tiny, but highly industrialized state, have coughed up another $94 million to pay for unemployment insurance.

Individuals Help Drive For MCC Baseball Field

MANCHESTER — The fundraising drive for improvements at Manchester Community College's baseball field has been supported by substantial contributions from several individuals. One is Sam Crispino, president of Supreme Foods in Manchester, who gave $500. "I liked Pat Mistretta's plan for improved facilities at MCC," Crispino explained, "especially because the facilities would be available to groups from area towns as well as Manchester, so I decided to give it my support." "When I was young," Crispino said, "I enjoyed participating in sports whenever I could. I think it's important for young people to have good athletic facilities to use," he said. The improvements planned — dugouts and scoreboard — comprise the first part of long-range plans to upgrade the field to a professional level. The fund-raising drive has netted $3,500 toward the goal of $22,000. If the campaign is successful, construction of dugouts will begin in the spring. Persons wishing to make tax-deductible donations may send them to the MCC athletic office. Checks are made out to Manchester Community College Foundation Inc.

Beck Sees No Possibility Of Decrease in State Tax

HARTFORD (UPI) — Connecticut residents hoping for tax cuts this year can't look for relief from the 1979 Legislature, says a chairman of the legislative committee that looks at how the state collects its money. "There is no room for a tax cut," Sen. Audrey Beck, D-Manfield, Senate chairman of the Finance, Revenue and Bonding Committee, said Tuesday. "I think the pressures are to maintain the base." Gov. Ella Grasso has asked the Legislature to refrain from adding or increasing taxes. Several lawmakers have suggested the state could do one better and cut some of its existing taxes. But Mrs. Beck, following an organizational meeting of the Finance Committee, told reporters the state will need all the money it can get to solve the funding problem and to meet new legislative demands. The Legislature, by court order, must come up with a new school funding formula by May 1. The present system of operating public schools, mostly with local property taxes has been ruled unconstitutional. Mrs. Beck supports passage of a state income tax, believing it's the fairest of any taxes. But she said this legislative year is not the time to try and push one through. She said she "strongly supports" Mrs. Grasso's no new taxes campaign pledge.

Portland (Maine) Press Herald — We already know that burning oil is killing us in the pocketbook. Now we start off the year with the knowledge that it may kill us for real in 30 years or so. That cheery piece of news was announced by a scientist studying the earth's polar regions. He unveiled a doomsday scenario of coastal areas throughout the world flooded by the precipitous melting of the ice cap in west Antarctica. If nothing else, the Mercer report should add a little more urgency to this country's efforts to develop alternative energy sources, such as fusion or solar power. If we don't apply ourselves and continue polluting the atmosphere, the world may suffer a grievous flood for our sin. Is all this starting to sound familiar? — at the kitchen stove. There was a time when hamburger was the "lowliest" of meats, and there was a day when a shopper would ask for it in hushed tones. The soaring cost of ground beef could bring about other changes in our "system." News accounts of banquets, for example might read, "...and a catered hamburger dinner was served." We have to treat the 50-cent hike humorously — because if we didn't we'd cry. Maybe Frank Perdue can bail us all out. And those chili beans are looking more glamorous each day.

Opinion History Lesson

Vietnam is once again in the forefront of the news. This time however, it does not involve American troops and American-backed government troops fighting against Communist insurgents. This time it is the Russian-backed Vietnamese Communist against the Chinese-backed Cambodian Communists. Instead of American troops making forays across the Cambodian border, it is Vietnamese troops capturing an entire country. It seems like these actions have taken place before only with different names. First it was the French involvement and ultimate defeat in the long Indo-China and then the long involvement of the United States which lasted through the 1960's and into the 1970's. It is hoped the latest action will not result in a major confrontation between Russia and China with Southeast Asia as a common battleground. While apparently there is no easy answer to the situation perhaps history should be used as a teacher in order to avoid a resurrection of the problems that have plagued the entire area once known as Indo-China. With some 3 billion of the mood-altering pills prescribed each year, Valium is not only America's most popular prescribed tranquilizer, it's far and away Roche's most popular prescription drug. Roche grosses a quarter-billion dollars a year from Valium, more than half of the company's total sales. Valium and other benzodiazepine tranquilizers enjoy an excellent reputation for effectiveness and safety. But there is growing concern that the drugs are being misused. For example, Valium can be extremely dangerous when taken in combination with alcohol. According to estimates by the National Institute on Drug Abuse, Valium by itself or mixed with alcohol or some other drug accounted for 54,400 emergency room visits and 900 deaths between May 1976 and April 1977. Apparently worried about the increase in unfavorable publicity for their top money-maker, Roche executives decided to sponsor a nationwide educational program on stress, aimed at physicians and the general public. Although the program has a definite tilt toward the use of drugs to treat stress. And though Roche's financial backing of the educational program is disclosed on promotional literature sent to medical writers, there is no mention of the fact that the company manufactures a drug that is used to treat stress. Roche's role is further obscured by a classic example of the technique when properly handled, results in favorable publicity for the company's product. The carefully selected experts who are persuaded to take part in the educational campaign can wind up as unwitting shills for the sponsor's merchandise. A classic example of the technique was recently presented by Roche Laboratories, maker of the tranquilizing drug Valium. With some 3 billion of the mood-altering pills prescribed each year, Valium is not only America's most popular prescribed tranquilizer, it's far and away Roche's most popular

By United Press International Today is Wednesday, Jan. 10, the 10th day of 1979 with 355 to follow. The moon is moving from its first quarter to a full moon. The morning stars are Mercury, Venus, Jupiter and Saturn. The evening star is Mars. Those born on this date are under the sign of Capricorn. Early American patriot Ethan Allen was born Jan. 10, 1738. On this day in history: In 1861, Florida seceded from the Union. In 1920, the League of Nations came into being as the Treaty of Versailles went into effect. In 1925, Miriam "Ma" Ferguson was sworn in as governor of Texas, the nation's second woman state chief executive. Five days earlier, Mrs. Nellie Taylor Ross had become governor of Wyoming. In 1970, a nursing home fire killed 31 people in Marietta, Ohio. A thought for the day: Ulysses S. Grant, 18th president of the United States, said, "Labor disgraces no man. Unfortunately, you occasionally find men deserving labor."

Thoughts

The third pitfall leading us away from God's guidance is our unwillingness to suspect ourselves. We hate to be realistic about ourselves. Often we do not know our own minds that well. We recognize rationalizations and wesseling in others but overlook them in ourselves. We need to ask ourselves why we feel a certain course of action is right and make ourselves give reasons. The Psalmist was a realist when he said, "Search me, O God and know my heart; try me, and know my thoughts; and see if there be any wicked way in me, and lead me in the way everlasting." Psalm 139:24. There is much to be gained by a healthy skepticism of ourselves. Rev. Richard M. Gray Pastor The Presbyterian Church

Jack Anderson Endorsements Often Cultivated

WASHINGTON — In the public relations game, an unsolicited objective endorsement of the client's product is a pearl of great price. And while such endorsements, like pearls, can occur naturally, the culture of variety is far more prevalent. Scratch an objective endorsement and you'll generally find it was carefully cultivated by a flack. One particularly effective gimmick used by corporate image builders is an "educational campaign" that is supposedly sponsored as a public service but which, when properly handled, results in favorable publicity for the company's product. The carefully selected experts who are persuaded to take part in the educational campaign can wind up as unwitting shills for the sponsor's merchandise. A classic example of the technique was recently presented by Roche Laboratories, maker of the tranquilizing drug Valium. FBI Charged With Ethnic Slurs

WASHINGTON — I believe it. Apparently, anything can happen in our poor country. This particular anything is a wire service dispatch reporting that some guy in California wants to sue the FBI for identifying certain criminals as members of the Mafia. The would-be litigant's argument is that any mention of the Mafia in matters criminal is "libelous to the image of Italian-Americans." He also wants something done about books and movies about bad guys who are unmistakably of Italian origin. The Californian's exhibition of paranoia recalls the fuss made several years ago by the Italian-American Civil Rights League about the film, "The Godfather." That organization actually persuaded its producers to delete any mention of the Mafia or Cosa Nostra from the script. And previously, the American Broadcasting Co. capitulated to the league's protests and decreed that the labels Mafia and Cosa Nostra should never be mentioned in the TV series, "The FBI." All this ridiculous bowing and scraping would be hilarious if it were not so unrealistic. Such hysteria says in effect that the role of Slylock should be outlawed from "The Merchant of Venice," or doctored to make him a Laplander. With the professional Irish periodically up in arms, heaven knows what they'd do to Joyce's "Ulysses," which, by the way, might be banned as a monumental bore. Was Al Capone really a philanthropist cum machine gun? Perhaps film folks should straighten Genesis Khan's eyes, and drop "Hun" from Attila's name. Not in this space will you read that the vicious criminals on both sides of Ireland's troubles are merely agrarian reformers. Certain Catholics and Protestants alike too often behave like animals, and I reject the argument that I should refer to them as anything but Irish. (Although it is only fair to note that some Ulstermen descend from Englishmen dispatched to the life of Cromwell to steal all the best land.) Italian-American protesters, meanwhile, overlook a fact of life. It is that the primary victims of the Mafia are Italian-Americans, not errant bystanders whose antecedents came over on the Mayflower. Italian names are attached to those who are bumped off regularly for "crimes" against their tribal chiefs, just as ghetto blacks suffer most from black criminals. However, we seem to operate under a new set of rules. These proclaim that it is all right for performers on stage, screen and TV to heap insult on the American flag, the president, priests, ministers, and nuns, but dirty pulp to say a cross word about organized thieves and murderers. It is a valid argument that America's new persecuted minority are the White Anglo-Saxon Protestants, who seem serenely disinclined to protest performances that show them in a bad light. So far as I am aware, no organizations of Episcopalians, Lutherans, or Methodists has ever brought pressure on any producer for casting a WASP in a villain's role. They even seem rather fond of Macheth and Henry VIII. Confound it, I suppose I shouldn't have written that. Everybody seems tottering on the neurotic brink today, and I may have given some nut an idea. But I'll flee to Moscow if the WASPs get into the act and the performing arts are required to make it clear that every rascal is an immigrant from Mars.

The Lighter Side By Dick West

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A river of ink, or at least enough to fill a small Jacuzzi, has been devoted to dissecting, assaying, plumbing and parsing the 14.5 percent OPEC oil price increase for 1979. But weeks of analytical treatises have evolved from the report that the world's hamburger-producing countries expect to raise prices about 25 cents a pound this year. Leaping into that void, I submitted a series of questions to economist John Kenneth Turnipbush, who specializes in gauging the impact of fast food price fluctuations. A transcript follows. Q: Will the extra charge cause consumers to seek hamburger substitutes? A: "At the present time there simply is no broadly acceptable substitute available. "The price boost undoubtedly will stimulate research in this field. One promising project is the so-called spinachburger. Cheap and abundant supplies of spinach are available. If the spinach that people leave on their plates could be recycled into burger patties, that would go a long way toward making consumers less dependent on costly, take-out hamburgers." Q: What about turning to alternative fast food sources to replace the hamburger? The hot dog, for instance? A: "Hot dogs, of course, are being around for years, and are available in meaningful quantities. Essentially, however, they still have the drawbacks that they keep them from keeping pace with hamburgers. "Their main shortcoming is their elongated, cylindrical shape. If nudged slightly, being encased in a bun, a hot dog tends to roll off the grill or table." "Hamburgers, having two flat surfaces, offer a degree of stability that hot dogs can never match." Q: Couldn't hot dogs be reworked into patties? A: Yes, but then they wouldn't fit the bun. Q: The zooming cost hits particularly hard at young people. What will they do if they no longer can afford hamburgers? A: "Hit their parents for a bigger allowance."

Scott's World
Connie Stevens Is Back

By VERNON SCOTT
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) - Connie Stevens, her blue eyes sparkling in the sunlight at an outdoor cafe in Beverly Hills, gave no sign of having survived a mid-life crisis which came perilously close to destroying her career.

One is assailed by the thought that a successful, youthful looking movie-TV-nightclub star cannot genuinely suffer anything too traumatic.

Connie is rich. She lives in a showcase home at Malibu. She wears expensive gowns and jewels. She is in demand professionally.

She is also human and celebrating her 40th birthday this year, an unsettling milestone in the lives of many women, especially performers.

Though Connie looks much like the bouncy ingenue Cricket in "Hawaiian Eye," the hit series in which she started four years back in the 1960s, she is a mature, intelligent woman coping with major changes in her life.

Connie is not one to over-dramatize herself, but she found herself a bit despondent over her lifestyle and career. The death of her father, to whom she was very close, added to her despair.

"My life seemed to fall apart," she said. "For the first time I was progressively being confronted by the fact that the foundations of my life were shaken. Maybe it's because I'd had life too good for too long.

"Last year I felt I couldn't communicate well on stage. My speech became halting. I lost confidence in myself and felt I'd lost my charisma in my nightclub appearances.

"My mind was filled with ideas that my career had peaked and that I was no longer pretty. All that kind of lady stuff."

"I was stagnating with a successful act. I wasn't on the path that was taken me where I wanted to go professionally."

Connie frowned prettily and ordered a fresh green salad. She sipped from a glass of wine.

"I've grossed millions of dollars over the years but I wasn't happy," she continued. "Three years ago I spent only three weeks at home with my daughters. That's no way to live a life."

"I needed a new plateau for growth. My girls (Jolie, 11, and Tricia, 10) needed me. I moved to the beach and did a lot of thinking.

enrolling at Pepperdine University to study composition and orchestration.

Connie isn't married but has been involved in several serious romances. She thinks the men in her life have contributed to her own growth and enriched the life of her daughters.

"I live my life honestly and the girls appreciate it," she said. "I've quit trying to be both mother and father to them. I do all I can to be the best mother possible. Not having a husband hasn't disrupted our home life."

Connie will star in "Side Show," a two-hour NBC-TV movie in which she plays a Hungarian trapeze artist. Thereafter she will star in her entirely new nightclub act in Las Vegas.

"There's a new spark in me now," Connie said. "I've come to grips with a mid-life crisis that I suspect every woman has to deal with. My confidence in myself as a woman and as a performer has returned.

"I'm not running with the pack anymore. I'm doing things for myself and my family instead of just working for the sake of work. I have a new image of myself and so my audience."

"And period of growth is difficult. It's something I've learned over the years and now I can deal with it. My personal crisis is over."

"I've fallen in love with music. I'm communicating well on stage. My speech became halting. I lost confidence in myself and felt I'd lost my charisma in my nightclub appearances.

"My mind was filled with ideas that my career had peaked and that I was no longer pretty. All that kind of lady stuff."

They Do It With Mirrors

Houston (UPI) - In a new approach to converting sunlight to electricity, a space agency engineer suggests placing hundreds of mirrors in orbit to reflect sunlight day and night to a network of ground collectors.

The orbiting mirrors would keep a dozen or more spots several miles wide around the world basking nearly continuously in "high noon desert sunlight."

A vast array of solar cells, which convert sunlight directly into electricity, or other conversion devices would be able to generate enough electricity at one location to equal the output of several nuclear power plants.

The idea was presented to a meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science by Kenneth W. Billman of the Ames Research Center in Mountain View, Calif.

Ex-Bolton Official Supports I-84 Link
BOLTON - Stanley Patnode, a former selectman, has notified the current Board of Selectmen that he is completely in favor of completion of Interstate 84 in the shortest time possible.

In a letter to the board, Patnode said, "Our town has outgrown our present road system. Our own town roads are as good or better than a lot of nearby towns. Our problem is the through traffic - people going to and from work, either side of Bolton.

He said the pollution in Bolton is mostly caused by the tie-up of traffic in the Notch area. He termed it very dangerous.

Patnode said, "I have lived and worked in this immediate area for a very long period of time and have seen many accidents at the Notch."

Selectmen Consider Parking Law Update
BOLTON - The Board of Selectmen is considering updating a 1984 ordinance concerning parking motor vehicles on the road.

Henry Ryba, first selectman, said persons have been parking their vehicles on the roads during winter storms causing problems for the highway crews.

Ryba said there are "two areas that are especially bad, Carpenter Road and Mount Sumner Drive." He said he will contact Jerome Walsh, town attorney, to see about rewriting the ordinance.

In the meantime, Ryba said, the board will call an emergency meeting and initiate an emergency ordinance as allowed by the town charter, if necessary.

Ryba said the board is considering imposing a $25 fine for each offense and having the vehicles towed at the owner's expense.

Under the current ordinance, motor vehicles are not allowed to park on public roads for more than two hours between midnight and 6 a.m. and during storms no parking will be allowed or for five hours after the storm has stopped. The current ordinance calls for a $5 fine for each offense.

Supper of the Month
COVENTRY - The First Congregational Church will sponsor a supper of the month on Saturday from 5 to 8:30 p.m. in the church vestry on Main Street. Proceeds will go to benefit the debt reduction fund.

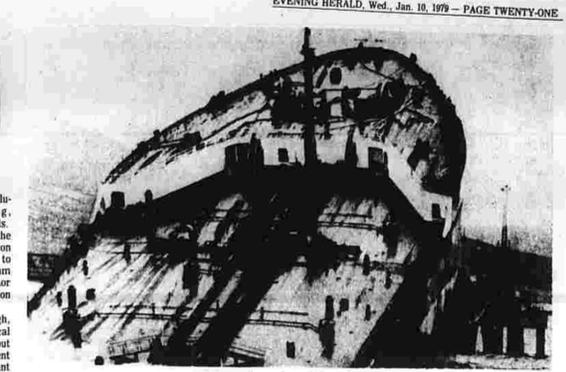

According to supper chairman Herbert Crickmore, the menu will include an appetizer, turkey and stuffing, mashed potato, vegetables, dessert, and a beverage.

History Group To Meet
SOUTH WINDSOR - The Historical Society will meet Thursday at 8 p.m. in the Wood Memorial Library, Main Street.

Herman Marshall of Coventry will be the guest speaker. Marshall and his wife are caretakers of the Nathan Hale Homestead in Coventry where Marshall has done some of the restoration work.

He has done restoration work in more than 15 towns and will show slides depicting the total restoration process.

The public is invited. Refreshments will be served. The society is still accepting membership for the year. For information call Carol Birken, 528-3365.

HEW Suggests Drug Law

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The administration Tuesday proposed a model drug substitution law that would encourage pharmacists to substitute cheaper generic drugs for brand-name medicines prescribed by doctors.

HEW Secretary Joseph Califano told a news conference the proposal could save consumers $400 million a year - about 5 percent of their annual drug bill.

He urged individual states to adopt the outline, which would not become federal law. It is partly based on a two-year study of generic and other drugs by the Federal Trade Commission.

Under the proposal, pharmacists would have the choice of substituting generic drugs for advertised and more costly brand-name products. The prescribing physician could prevent such substitution by writing "medically necessary" on the prescription.

The patient could also refuse to accept what the government terms "therapeutically equivalent" generic drugs.

The Pharmaceutical Manufacturers Association immediately attacked the federal proposal. The PMA has claimed throughout the controversy that many generic products are simply not as effective as their more costly brand-name counterparts.

But Califano charged that government investigations have "repeatedly demonstrated that consumers needlessly pay huge premiums to purchase brand name drugs instead of their generic versions."

"For example, the wholesale price for one common tranquilizer is $7.50 per hundred for the leading brand name, and just 94 cents per hundred for the generic version," he said.

Another common tranquilizer is $6.87 per hundred by brand name and $1.50 per hundred for the generic version, he added.

the Manchester Parkade JANUARY CLEARANCE Average Citizen Profiled

WASHINGTON (UPI) - In 1977 - if you're an average American - you ate 272 eggs, 16.3 pounds of cheese, 17.8 pounds of apples and 125.9 pounds of beef, used 9.4 pounds of coffee beans and drank 32.07 gallons of beer.

That data, and a lot more, comes from the "Statistical Abstract of the United States," 1,057 pages of tables, numbers and small print that look at first glance like dull reading.

Actually, they tell Americans all about themselves - what they do, for how much, where, how often, for how long, at what age - and much more.

The 1978 edition is the Bureau of the Census' 99th annual collection of statistical information about the United States and other nations.

A sample of the facts and figures: -American passenger vehicles used 79.7 billion gallons of gasoline in 1976, averaging 13.93 miles per gallon.

-Of 1,909,400 Americans who died in 1976, 19,600 were murdered. And of 100,800 that died accidentally, 47,000 died in automobile accidents.

Another 14,100 were killed by falls.

-A little more than 2 million marriages and 1 million divorces took place in 1977. Of marriages that ended in divorce, the median duration, for 1976, was 6.5 years.

-The average lifetime of men in the United States is 67.04 years; for women it is 74.64 years. The state with the highest average lifetime for males is Hawaii where they live 71.02 years.

For females, Minnesota is best with an average life span of 76.80 years. The state with the lowest average, both for males and females, is South Carolina: 63.85 and 72.29 respectively.

-Some 28 million Americans played amateur softball in 1977.

Court Rules Teacher Has Right to Gripes

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The Supreme Court ruled unanimously Tuesday that a Mississippi school teacher violated a teacher's right to free speech in dismissing her because of her privately expressed complaints.

The justices overturned a lower-court ruling that it was permissible for school district officials to fire Bessie Givhan, a black, who complained of racially discriminatory conditions in the school system.

Ms. Givhan was a junior high school English teacher, who was transferred to Glen Allan school near Greenville in 1970 at a time when the school district was attempting to comply with court orders to remedy racial imbalance at the schools.

In a series of meetings, she suggested to the principal that job opportunities for blacks within the school system be upgraded.

When her contract was not renewed in 1971, she sued to regain her job. The high school's principal said she had been fired because she made "petty and unreasonable" demands in an "insulting," "hostile," "loud" and "arrogant" manner.

Monopoly Ends

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The virtual monopoly of the domestic long-distance telephone market by American Telephone and Telegraph Co. will end soon.

The Federal Communications Commission has approved the entry of International Telephone & Telegraph Corp. in the market, and the chairman of the regulatory commission has high hopes that the competition will benefit the consumer.

"It adds a new dimension to the potential in competition in long-distance telephone service," Chairman Charles Ferris said of the FCC's action Thursday.

Car Sales Rise

DETROIT (UPI) - American motorists bought more cars last year than in any year since 1973, when sales of U.S. and foreign-built cars reached their highest point in history.

The industry Thursday reported combined sales of domestic and imported cars in 1978 totaled 11.3 million units, second only to the record 11.4 million.

U.S. automakers had their third best year with sales of nearly 8.3 million cars. Import sales, although strong, slipped to just under 2 million and accounted for 17.6 percent of the market - down from the record 18.5 percent share in 1977.

The Big Four car firms said they also sold more trucks, Jeeps and commercial vehicles last year than ever before, prompting renewed predictions that 1979 would be even better for the industry.

Combined sales of passenger cars by General Motors Corp., Ford Motor Co., Chrysler Corp. and American Motors Corp. totaled 9,284,981, up 2.3 percent from 1977 figures. Truck sales totaled 4.15 million, up more than 12 percent from last year's previous record.

House Costs Climb

WASHINGTON (UPI) - If inflation continues at its current pace, the house you paid $50,300 for in 1978 will be worth $125,000 in 1988.

On the West Coast, the median price of a home will climb even higher, with an estimated median price of $200,000, the latest issue of Journal 78, a publication of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, said.

Current housing prices represent a three-fold increase during the past 10 years, Journal 78 said.

Dear Abby By Abigail Van Buren

Either 'I Do' Or You Don't!

DEAR ABBY: I am an attractive, educated, self-supporting woman of 25. I want to marry and settle down, but my 27-year-old boyfriend, whom I've been dating for over two years, does not. He insists that the men in his family this farther included do not marry. They take common-law wives. He said no one outside the family knows this, so there is no scandal. He claims that marriage kills love—that if two people really love each other, a few words mumbled by a minister won't make the union any more sacred. I can see myself going in for this kind of relationship. He says he loves me and wants to live with me, but it must be on his terms. I don't want to lose him. What should I do? LIKES IT LEGAL

DEAR LIKES: Tell him that if two people really love each other, a few words by a minister will not make the union any LESS sacred, and if it's all the same to him, that's the only way YOU'LL have it. If he doesn't see it your way, lose him and find a fellow whose father was married.

DEAR ABBY: Whenever we have a big family gathering, which is about once a year, my father's wife (she's 40) always sits around crocheting or knitting by herself in another room. She gives the impression that she finds us totally boring. I think this type of behavior is very impolite. What is your opinion?

DEAR ABBY: I would have to know the lady's motivation. Perhaps she feels unwelcome, out of place, insecure, shy, or just plain afraid to be in the family group for fear she won't know what to say. Perhaps it's just a way for her to make her own little world and feel more comfortable and less like an outsider. She'd put her needles away. (Got the point?)

DEAR ABBY: I recently lost my precious fiancée in an auto accident. I loved him very much, but I must go on. I have a problem I need help with. At the time of our engagement he gave me a beautiful diamond ring which I have worn since the night he put it on my finger. I've had many people tell me that now that he is dead I should take the ring off. They say it is an "engagement" ring and I can't be engaged to a dead man. Abby, that ring symbolizes his love for me. It comforts me to look at it.

DEAR ABBY: As long as it gives you comfort, wear it, and don't worry about what people say.

Win at bridge Importance of using ARCH

He opened the queen of hearts. South studied the hand. Applied the code word ARCH. Analyzed the lead as from a five-card suit. Referred to the bidding to decide that West held both missing aces. Counted to 10 winners if he took time to play thoughtfully and maintain control. If not, he could only count two hearts, two clubs and four diamonds for a total of just eight winning tricks.

Where could he get the ninth? The logical way would be to go right after diamonds. West would have to do a lot of discarding and might well let a heart go in order to keep three clubs and the ace of spades.

South gave up that idea. He knew West well enough to know that West would hang on to both hearts, come hell or high water.

South knew something else about West. West was greedy. So South won the heart in his own hand and led the jack of spades. West should have risen with the ace. A little point counting would show that East couldn't hold a queen and West ducked. South had stolen one spade trick. Now he went after diamonds and had his nine tricks.

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sonsteg. If Shakespeare had been a bridge player he might well have said: "That fools these West players be." Of course, we have substituted "West players" for "fools." But we are writing about bridge, not characters who sport about in England on a midsummer night.

West didn't bid like a fool. He waited patiently until the opponents reached three no-trump, and then he doubled happily.

A Warm Meal for Winter Night

No last-minute meal preparation chores need concern the hostess who lets the oven do the cooking and counts on refrigerator-ready salads and desserts.

- Glazed Smoked Pork Shoulder
- 1 smoked pork shoulder roll (2 to 3 pounds)
 - 1/4 teaspoon ground cloves
 - 1/4 teaspoon allspice
 - 2 tablespoons honey
 - 2 tablespoons cider vinegar
- Place smoked pork shoulder roll on rack in a glass-ceramic open roaster. Insert meat thermometer so bulb is centered in thickest part and is not resting in fat. Do not add water, do not cover. Bake in slow oven (325°F) until thermometer registers 140°F to 150°F. Meanwhile combine brown sugar, ground cloves and allspice in small saucepan. Stir in vinegar and cook slowly 10 minutes. Spread glaze over meat and continue baking to 170°F. (Allow 35 to 40 minutes per pound for roasting.)
- Crunchy Apple Salad Bowl
- 2/3 cup plain yogurt
 - 2 green onions, chopped
 - 2 tablespoons lemon juice
 - 2 tablespoons snipped fresh dill
 - 2 small heads romaine lettuce, torn in pieces
 - 2 red apples, diced
 - 1/2 six-ounce package Pepperidge Farm Cheddar cheese croutons
- Combine yogurt, lemon juice and honey. Mix romaine, radishes, apple, raisins, onions, dill and parsley. Add croutons. Pour yogurt mixture over salad and toss. 8 to 10 servings.
- Pumpkin Chiffon Souffle
- 1 package (6-3/4 ounces) Borden's Cookies (crisp rectangular cookies)
 - 1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
 - 1/4 teaspoon allspice
 - 1/4 teaspoon ginger
 - 2 tablespoons butter or margarine, melted
 - 1 cup milk
 - 3/4 cup brown sugar
 - 4 eggs, separated
 - 2 envelopes unflavored gelatin
 - 1 can (29 ounces) pumpkin
 - 1/2 cup sugar
 - 1/2 pint whipping cream
- Reserve 10 cookies. Crush remaining cookies to make crumbs and mix with melted butter. Combine brown sugar, gelatin, cinnamon, nutmeg, allspice, ginger and salt in saucepan. Add milk mixture, cook over low heat, stirring until gelatin is completely dissolved and mixture thickens slightly. Chill, stirring occasionally until mixture mounds slightly when dropped from a spoon. Beat egg whites until soft peaks form. Gradually add sugar, beating after each addition, until stiff. Fold into cooled pumpkin mixture. Beat whipping cream until stiff and fold into pumpkin mixture. Pour just enough pumpkin filling into a 2-quart clear glass souffle dish to cover the bottom. Stand reserved 10 cookies around sides of dish, spacing evenly. Carefully add remaining filling, keeping cookies pressed around sides of dish. Sprinkle reserved cookie crumb mixture over top of souffle. Chill 4 hours or overnight. 8 to 10 servings.

Empanadas Hail from Spanish Coast

America's eating heritage was influenced by the early German-Scottish-English settlers and by those who followed in waves from various other parts of the globe. One would think all the interesting dishes from ancestral homelands would be now be familiar. However, we continue to discover new foods from other countries that Americans of all ages and ethnic backgrounds can enjoy.

Spanish dishes, for example, offer ample opportunity for experimentation. By the way, these dishes differ considerably from their Latin American cousins.

The cookery of Spain usually is not peppery — a characteristic often associated with the cuisine of Mexico and other Latin American countries. Spanish food is delicately seasoned and imaginative.

Meanwhile, in a large bowl, dissolve yeast in warm water. Add cooled milk mixture along with 2 eggs. Beat in 3/4 cup flour to make a soft dough.

Turn dough out onto lightly floured surface and knead in remaining flour. Knead 3 minutes or until dough is smooth. Form dough into ball. Place in a large greased bowl. Turn dough so greased side is up. Cover and let rise in a warm place until double, about 1 1/2 hours. Punch down dough. Turn out onto lightly floured surface. For large empanadas, shape 3/4 of dough into a large rectangle. Fill with ungreased 10 1/2-by-10 1/2-inch baking pan. Place tuna-vegetable filling or tuna-olive filling in center of dough, spreading so that filling remains 2 inches from edge of dough.

Shape remaining pastry into rectangle large enough to cover filling. Place on top layer of pastry. Brush with beaten egg. Bake in 350-degree oven for 25 to 35 minutes or until golden.

For small empanadas, divide dough into 10 pieces. Roll 5 pieces into circles large enough to line 6-inch individual casserole dishes or individual pie pans. Fill pastry-lined dishes with 1/4 cup of tuna filling. Roll out remaining pieces of dough to cover tops of casseroles. Trim and seal edges.

Slash through top pastry and brush with beaten egg. Bake in 350-degree oven for 20 to 30 minutes or until golden.

Makes 1 large empanada or 5 small empanadas.

TUNA-VEGETABLE FILLING

- 3 tablespoons salad oil
- 1/2 cup sliced celery
- 1 medium onion, chopped
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- 1 small green pepper, chopped
- 2 cans (6 1/2 or 7 ounces each) tuna in vegetable oil
- 1/2 cup sliced almonds
- 1 cup chopped pimiento-stuffed olives
- 2 cans (6 1/2 or 7 ounces each) tuna in vegetable oil
- 1 can (3 ounces) mushrooms, undrained
- 1/2 teaspoon salt

Heat oil in medium skillet. Add onion, parsley and almonds. Cook until onion is tender.

French Pot Roast

The French may call it "boeuf au daube," but it's really a classic pot roast that goes well with freshly cooked vegetables.

This pot roast with a French accent differs from most American versions of the dish. Although the French, too, tenderize a more economical cut of beef by simmering, they add more flavor by marinating first. Sleeping for a couple of hours in a fully-seasoned marinade has the added advantage of breaking down fibers for extra tenderness. This is an easy dish to prepare, even for the novice.

Serve with a fresh and fruity Beauloia, which you also will find makes a good marinade for the beef. Crusty bread and a hearty green salad make this meal more economical cut of beef.

Remove roast to a platter. Drain meat and reserve marinade. Heat butter in a Dutch oven. Brown beef on all sides. Add marinade and bring to a boil. Lower heat and simmer for 2 to 2 1/2 hours or until meat is tender.

Skin excess fat from pan juices. Mix tomato puree with cornstarch and thicken slightly. Slice beef and top with gravy. Makes about 8 servings.

Slow Down and Lose

How — not what — a person eats is the major consideration in an expert weight-loss program for young people.

The directors of the new program, Dr. Kelly D. Brownell and Albert J. Stunkard of the University of Pennsylvania Medical School in Philadelphia, are optimistic about its future.

"We are not striving to deny the youngsters (from age 6 through adolescence) any particular food," explains Brownell. Instead, the overweight youths are taught — "with great professional patience" — to eat more slowly. That, in itself, will help them lose some weight.

The root of the youngsters' weight problems "is not that large piece of chocolate cake, and not the coke that washes it down, and not another pizza," claims Brownell. "No, it is the continuous eating of these things, one after another, that threatens the youngsters with many more pounds than he or she can happily bear."

Surveys have shown that up to 25 percent of the nation's youngsters are overweight. Childhood obesity can have devastating effects: abuse from peers, family problems, even discrimination when applying for admission to college.

"Their lives," says Brownell, "are burdened by too much flesh."

Colonial Olive-Corn Bread

Is inflation cutting into your weekly food budget? One way to stretch your dollars is to reduce portions of more expensive items, such as beef or pork.

Instead, serve more vegetables, selecting those that are fresh and less expensive while in season. Round out a nutritious meal with homemade bread.

This colonial olive-corn bread is ideal with ham and beans. Or serve it with a hearty pea soup and salad for a complete lunch. Add fresh fruit for dessert.

COLONIAL OLIVE-CORN BREAD

- 1 cup yellow cornmeal
- 2 tablespoons sugar
- 2 teaspoons baking powder
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1 egg, slightly beaten
- 1 cup canned cream-style corn
- 2 tablespoons salad oil
- 1/2 cup Spanish stuffed green olives

In medium bowl, stir together flour, cornmeal, sugar, baking powder and salt until well mixed. Combine egg, corn, milk and oil. Stir into dry ingredients just until moistened.

Spread half of batter in greased and floured 9-by-5-inch loaf pan. Arrange olives on top of batter. Drop remaining batter by spoonfuls over olives to completely cover. Bake in 400-degree oven about 40 minutes or until done.

Remove from oven. Let stand 10 minutes. Loosen sides and turn out onto wire rack. Serve warm with butter. Makes one loaf.

STRETCH your dinner budget with a filling colonial cornbread.

No Laughing Matter

By Karen Blaker, Ph.D. DEAR DR. BLAKER - quite entertaining. Now I am sure you are glad your friends might have been laughing at me because I am so superstitious. Not only do I avoid walking under ladders and get upset when a black cat crosses my path, I also believe I really want because it will only be taken away. That makes me always sound very negative.
