Citizens Brave Weather To Tell Their Concerns

By CHRIS BLAKE

Herald Reporter
EAST HARTFORD — Ten East Hartford and Manchester residents braved raw, cold weather Monday night to present concerns ranging from the lack of state mobile home legislation to justice to their elected representatives — State Sen. Marcella Fahey (D-3rd) and State Rep. Muriel Yacavone (D-8th).

A local man opened up the forum by telling the two lawmakers, "I hope you don't waste your time on that blue law fixer. With all the lawyers in the General Assembly, they should have been able to come up with a law that sticks."

Both Mrs. Fahey and Mrs. Yacavone said they don't think the blue laws will emerge in the Legislature again. "It's nearly impossible to write a constitutional blue law," Mrs. Yacavone said. "I'd be very happy to see the whole thing decided in the courts."

Fahey, Yacavone Serve On Spending Committee

Several residents expressed concern about what they see as lenient sentencing for juvenile offenders. "If they want to commit a man's crime, let them take a man's punishment," one man said. He added there should be mandatory sentencing for weapon possession. "A bill calling for mandatory adult sentencing for juveniles convicted of felonies didn't pass last year, partly because judges can do that now," Mrs. Yacavone said.

Handicap Access Costly in Bolton

BOLTON — At the current time, even though there are no physical handicapped children living in the town of Bolton, it will cost taxpayers $18,496 to bring Bolton schools into compliance with a law requiring towns to make public buildings accessible to the handicapped, according to school officials.

James Veitch, superintendent of school buildings and grounds, estimated the costs for Bolton Elementary School at $2,340, Bolton High School at $3,930 and Bolton Center School at $12,226.

School Superintendent Raymond Allen said the upper level of Bolton Center School would require extensive renovations to bring it into compliance with the law but he said it might not be necessary as programs could be adjusted to meet the needs of any handicapped students who come to Bolton.

Veitch said, "In order to get 60 percent reimbursement for work done, you must spend at least $10,000 per building."

He said, "I don't know where we could spend that kind of money at the elementary or high school building."

Andrew Pinto, the board's buildings and grounds committee chairman, said, "We can't identify $10,000 worth of renovations just to get 60 percent reimbursement."

There are learning disabilities programs at all the schools in Bolton. Other handicapped students are sent to other programs in the state for their education.

The Board of Education voted to spend $1,000 for items at Bolton Elementary School and Bolton High School pending research into the matter.

The board directed the superintendent to get clarification of the legal obligations, an assessment of community needs and to explore viable alternatives.

Questions like these have been brought up with regularity at groups of parents of nursery school age children who have met at the Community Child Guidance Clinic the past five years. Group members are parents of children at local nursery schools.

Guessing Contest Due In Annual Sales Days

GLASTONBURY — Guessing the correct temperature at 9 a.m. on the sign in front of Glastonbury Bank and Trust means a $100 gift certificate during the annual January Sales Days.

The contest takes place Sunday, Jan. 21 and you are invited to be there in front of the bank on Main Street to watch the reading. The individual closest to guessing the correct reading on the sign in Fahrenheit degrees will receive the gift certificate at any store or service participating in the Sales Days.

In case of ties, the $100 will be split accordingly. All entries in the contest must be completed before 5:30 p.m. Saturday, Jan. 20. Use the coupon (or a plain piece of paper containing the same information) and deposit in the box provided in any of the participating stores. Not more than one entry per store allowed and the contest is limited to adults.

The annual Sales Days are held by local merchants to clear inventory and let people discover the many fine shops and services in Glastonbury.

Merchants Division Chairman Tom Fanning said local merchants need the support of area shoppers and the Sales Days is one way of saying, "Thank you."

About the contest, Fanning said, "This is the kind of contest I like. You don't have to stop and write anything. You just have to be lucky."

Ex-NATO Head Warns Power Balance Shaky

NEW HAVEN (UPI) - Gen. Alexander M. Haig Jr., who recently resigned as commander of NATO forces in Europe, has warned that the international balance of power is threatened by the Soviet Union's massive military capabilities.

In his first major public speech in the U.S. since his Jan. 3 resignation, Haig Tuesday night also criticized what he called the Soviets' "illegal" intervention in Africa and other Third World nations.

The former Nixon White House Chief of Staff, whose resignation does not take effect until June, addressed the Yale Political Union, an 1,100-member student organization.

"The relentless growth in Soviet power has changed the nature of the threat itself," Haig said, adding NATO countries must honor their commitments to increase defense spending 3 percent annually for the next six years.

He expressed "cautious" optimism about NATO's rejuvenation and said it would be a "tragic setback" if any nation failed to meet its obligation.

Haig said the Soviet's massive military buildup was a product of 15 years of annual 4-5 percent increases in defense expenditures.

Russian armaments now "match or exceed" those of the Western powers, and NATO countries can no longer rely on qualitative superiority to overcome a profound quantitative disparity in forces, he warned.

Haig said the Soviet Union had "begun to mature as a military-industrial complex that is opening out high quantities of high quality military materials."

The Soviets answered the "plaintive calls" of Third World leaders with large volumes of modern military equipment, he said, noting Russian arms shipments exceeded the United States by over 50 percent.

Haig said the Soviet's "relentless growth" will effect the global balance of power. "What they have done is systematically, logically and rationally eliminated the deficiencies ... to operate effectively in a global context."

Haig said he feared detente was threatened by "the emergence of increasing illegal Soviet intervention in the continent of Africa today" and "the perversion of legitimate liberation movements."

Haig, 54, denied speculation he would take his views to the campaign trail, either as a Republican presidential candidate or as a candidate for the U.S. Senate, possibly in Pennsylvania.

"I, at this time, have absolutely no political intentions whatsoever," said Haig, who is considered one of the few top Nixon aides to escape the Watergate scandal unscathed. He did not rule out a future bid for public office, however.

He said the only way Western nations "who wish to preserve the values we cherish today" can counter the Soviet threat is to "pool their collective political, economic and security assets to ensure we can effectively resist (the) Soviet challenge."

He said the days when the U.S. could move into global crisis situations and "bring about outcomes that met with the collective interest of the western world" are over.

Soviets Forge Papers To Hurt U.S. Relations

WASHINGTON (UPI) - American officials have described what they say is a worldwide Soviet KGB "disinformation" campaign designed to damage U.S. relations with its allies in Europe and the Far East with a forged document.

The KGB circulated a "Top Secret" U.S. Army document purporting to have been issued March 19, 1970, by Gen. William Westmoreland, then Army chief of staff, concerning "stability operations" in countries where U.S. Army units are stationed. The American officials say it was forged.

It professed to recommend infiltrating U.S. Army intelligence agents into the armed forces of host countries and also into insurgent forces and extreme radical groups.

And the bogus document instructed Army intelligence to be prepared to launch special operations against host countries if that proved to be in the overall U.S. interest.

Covert Action Information Bulletin, an anti-establishment publication which has revealed the names of CIA agents using diplomatic cover abroad, published the "Top Secret" Supplement B' to Army Field Manual 30-31 in its latest edition.

It claimed the document was authentic and had been published already in Turkish, Spanish, Italian, Dutch and North African newspapers and periodicals.

"A forgery," a Pentagon spokesman told UPI Tuesday, while conceding that some parts were "sophisticated." A House Intelligence Committee spokesman said the panel is looking into the matter and is in contact with the Defense Department and the CIA concerning it. An intelligence source called the directive clearly a "disinformation product" of Soviet KGB intelligence.

From other officials it was learned U.S. authorities have been aware of the latest Soviet effort since September 1978, when a copy of the bogus memo showed up in Bangkok.

The document with a covering letter, these sources said, was addressed to President Ferdinand Marcos of the Philippines and placed in a glass-enclosed bulletin board outside the Philippine Embassy, it never reached Manila.

"Supplement B' next turned up four months ago in the Spanish publication El Pais and the weekly El Triunfo, allegedly a reprint from what had appeared in a Turkish newspaper.

The sources said the Soviet deception role was more clearly evident than usual because the document was planted by a Spanish Communist who had close contact with a suspected KGB officer at the Soviet Embassy in Madrid. The Spaniard and the Russian were identified by name.

"Supplement B' next surfaced in the French newspaper Le Monde and then in Dutch, Italian, Greek and Portuguese newspapers.

In October, it was printed in the Japanese Communist Party newspaper Keishu which tried to connect the U.S. intelligence with the kidnap-murder of former Italian Premier Aldo Moro.

The sources described the forgery as "a rather sophisticated production involving high quality literary effort." The document was prepared on typewriters, paper and envelopes similar to those used by U.S. government agencies.

"Additionally, the standard Soviet technique of circulating rather dim photocopied documents is characteristic of Soviet disinformation," they said.

Death Attitudes Changing

In less than a decade, death education has made great strides in transforming the American attitude toward death from aversion to involvement and acceptance.

This observation on the "phenomenal" growth of death awareness in the 1970s is made by Robert Fulton, professor of sociology and director of the Center for Death Education and Research, University of Minnesota.

Fulton is the national coordinator of Courses by Newspaper's spring series "Death and Dying: Challenge and Change" that will appear in The Herald beginning Saturday, Jan. 20.

"Heightened consciousness has created a desire to be part of solving problems associated with death and dying," Professor Fulton explained. "Some Americans now are putting into practice what they have learned through death education by volunteering at a hospice, taking care of the dying at home, and publicly expressing their private feelings about death."

Striking evidence of this change is found in institutions affected by the millions of Americans afflicted annually by death - hospitals, organized religions, and the media, according to Professor Fulton.

"Hospitals are more attentive to the needs of dying patients and of the professionals who care for them," he says. "In an effort to maximize the aid available from the community, they also are more open to visitations by family and friends."

"In many churches, the rituals associated with death have been altered to allow more family participation and personal expression," he adds. "And in the media, there are television programs, like 'Brian's Song,' and articles like the Courses by Newspaper series that deal with death and dying."

Attitudes and social changes that grew out of traumatic World War II experiences spawned the modern death awareness movement, Professor Fulton points out.

"In the late 1940s, hospitals began to fill with elderly people dying, many of chronic diseases," he explains. "At the same time, the public refused to think about death because so many experienced profound loss during the war years."

While the public sought to bury such death-related social customs as mourning, academics in a variety of disciplines in the 1950s began systematic research into grieving, the process of dying, and other aspects of death.

However, it wasn't until 1970, when Elisabeth Kubler-Ross received national attention for her concern for dying patients, that the death awareness movement "went public," Fulton recalls.

After almost a decade of progress, Fulton believes the movement has peaked "in a good way."

"After the initial excitement, we now find ourselves in a period of consolidation and implementation," he states. "Professionals continue to explore death systematically in the classroom and the public is beginning to feel more comfortable expressing the deep feelings of loss associated with death."

"For the first time in 30 years, wreaths of mourning are beginning to appear on homes in the Midwest," he adds. "And during the 1978 World Series, the Los Angeles Dodgers all wore the number of their deceased teammate, Gilliam, on their uniform sleeves - a modern-day variation of the black armband of mourning."

MAP Land Documents Filed With Town Clerk

MANCHESTER - Documents for the possible transfer of property from the Hartman Tobacco Co. to MAP Associates were filed Monday in the town clerk's office.

The documents include notices of options and bonds for deed for the purchase of parcels in Manchester and South Windsor.

MAP Associates is the developer of the proposed Buckland Commons project, which would include residential, commercial and industrial development on property in the Buckland section of Manchester and in South Windsor.

Hartman owns most of the land that would be included in the project. The sale of the property is contingent upon certain steps being taken, including the installation of sewers and the relocation of the eastern section of Burham Street.

The parcels included in the bond for deed and the notices of options total about 507 acres, most adjacent to Buckland Street in Manchester and Pleasant Valley Road in South Windsor.

MAP could purchase some or all of the parcels, according to the documents, which did not include information about the proposed sale price of the land.

The options for sale give MAP Associates one year to buy the land, but there also is a provision to extend the option for another year.

Super Bowl Buildup Gaining Momentum

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — The buildup to Super Bowl XIII began in earnest Tuesday, the big news concerning Lynn Swann's foot and Thomas Henderson's mouth.

Swann, the Pittsburgh Steelers' leading receiver, suffered a bruised left foot in the Steelers' first practice in Miami, a one-hour, 15-minute workout at Biscayne College.

Swann was stepped on by rookie cornerback Ron Johnson as the Steelers worked extensively on their passing attack. Precautionary X-rays at Parkway Hospital were negative and the All-Pro wide receiver was expected to return to practice today.

Three years ago in Super Bowl X, Swann caught four passes for a record 161 yards, including a 64-yard touchdown, to help Pittsburgh beat the Dallas Cowboys in Super Bowl X.

A healthy Swann is one reason Pittsburgh is a 3 1/2-point favorite Sunday over the Cowboys for the first rematch in Super Bowl history.

According to Thomas Henderson, however, the Cowboys not only will beat the Steelers, they will shut them out. Swann or not.

Henderson, who doesn't like the name "Tom" and would rather be called "Hollywood," is the outside linebacker with the gift for gab. He has tried to entangle the Steelers the way he did the Los Angeles Rams before the NFL championship game.

But rather than stirring animosity, Henderson so far has only made the Steelers chuckle.

"I think the Steelers are more scared than they are putting out to," said Henderson, surrounded by about 40 reporters before the Cowboys' first practice at Yankee Stadium in Fort Lauderdale Tuesday. "I think they know they're in for a hard-fought Sunday. Let's face it, Pittsburgh doesn't have any depth."

"He's quite a character," said Pittsburgh tight end Randy Grossman with a chuckle.

Grossman is subbing for injured starter Bernie Cunningham, who will not be in uniform Sunday. Last week Henderson belittled Grossman by saying the Steelers must be in trouble if they must resort to him.

"This is a sport and everything, but when you get to the professional level, it's big entertainment," Grossman said. "Tickets are going for $150. Pittsburgh doesn't have any depth."

ILLING GIRLS — Illing varsity girls topped Glastonbury yesterday, 35-27. Nancy Curtin had 17 points and 13 rebounds and Denise White 12 points and 4 rebounds to pace the Rams, now 4-1. Laurie Bergeron also had 4 corams for Illing.

Crucial Turnovers are Vital For Tribe Girls in Setback

Crucial turnovers down the stretch proved to be fatal as slumping Manchester High succumbed to Simsbury High, 46-43, in girls' basketball action last night at Clarke Arena.

The Silk Towners, who led until the final three minutes, dropped their eighth in a row and fell to 2-9 in the league and 2-10 overall. The setback comes in a game where Manchester girls, with seven games left to go in the slate, from tournament consideration.

Simsbury upped its mark to 6-5 in the league and overall.

Manchester had a 15-8 lead after the opening quarter and 25-21 advantage at the intermission. It clung to a 37-33 margin after three periods.

"We certainly had our chances but made just too many mistakes in the end," stated Tribe Coach Ginny Lind. "Lisa Griswold paced the visiting Trojans with 19 points with Marilee Evans chipping in 10.

Liz Neubert led Manchester with 14 points with Lisa Tilden and Cindy Mills each adding 9.

The victim, Eric Lemoine, 15, was playing basketball with several friends about noon Tuesday when the goal fell on him. Witnesses told police they had seen a young climbing on the goal before the accident.

Up-Again, Down-Again Season Remains for New York Knicks

NEW YORK (UPI) — The New York Knicks may continue to bump around the cellar of the Atlantic Division with their erratic up-and-down season, but they still know how to put on a show.

The 11,000 fans that bothered to show up at Madison Square Garden Tuesday night found that out — those that stayed around for the second half when Tom Knight led the Knicks in a sparkling comeback to steal the game from Detroit, 111-110, with two seconds left.

Knight scored 25 points and hauled in 14 rebounds, intercepted a Detroit in-bound pass and raced half the length of the court to give New York its only lead of the game, the winning one, with two seconds left.

The Knicks rallied from a pathetic first half, which gave the Pistons a 41-45 lead at intermission, to narrow the margin to three, 85-82, at the end of three periods and then got a victory out of a most exciting last minute of basketball.

With the Pistons ahead, 107-105, by 39 seconds left, Kevin Porter hit the free-throw line to stretch the lead to four, Bob McAdoo, who had 28 points, retaliated with a 15-footer, but when Leon Douglas hit one of two

Steelers' Joe Greene Matured over the Years

MIAMI (UPI) — For those who are intrigued by character studies and wonder how much, if at all, Joe Greene has changed lately, the answer is clearly provided in his general reaction to a young maverick in like Thomas "Hollywood" Henderson.

The word that best describes Joe Greene's feelings about Henderson is "amused." Five, six years ago it probably would've been an entirely different story. Joe Greene's very likely would have had an appropriate response for the Dallas Cowboys' left linebacker.

This is what you might call the maturing of Joe Greene, the 300-pound captain of the Steelers' defensive unit. Henderson, you may remember, is the free spirit who got sent to the Los Angeles Rams as overhauled before their NFC title meeting by publicly announcing the Cowboys were going to "kick their butts" in like Thomas "Hollywood" Henderson.

"He added some more indignity by saying the Rams 'didn't have the right to play in the Super Bowl. And then, as if that weren't hard enough, for the Rams to take, he intercepted a pass by backup quarterback Vince Ferragamo and ran it back 68 yards for the Cowboys' final touchdown in like Henderson."

Henderson hasn't zoned in yet on the Steelers, and there is nothing to smile again.

"Next question," Greene said, laughing.

From the way he said it, you could sense 42-year-old Joe Greene was thinking back a few years to when he was 25 like Hollywood Henderson and to when people — especially those who didn't know what he was really like — always referred to him as Mike Joe Greene.

The Steelers are so completely capable, so well-balanced, both offensively and defensively, that nobody on the team is indispensable. They agree on that. Similarly, they also agree that Greene, from his tackle position, is the one who holds them all together. To a man, the Steelers all say the same thing.

"Joe has been the foundation of this team the last 10 years," says Terry Bradshaw, the Steelers' volatile quarterback. "Joe is a good friend. He said what I wouldn't say when things got tough. He's been a brother to me."

Keep in mind this is an offensive player talking about a defensive one. Frequently, offensive players have an existence due to the completely different nature of their jobs. L.C. Greenwood plays alongside Greene at defensive end. He has been doing that for 10 years now and he sees a big change in him.

"When he was young, he used run all day," says Greenwood. "Now he's mature and he knows what he's doing. He takes short cuts without guessing. Personally, I would say he was having his best year. He does a lot of things you guys can't tell, but I know what he's doing."

Joe Greene knows what he's doing, too.

"I'd be foolish to go out there and try to play like a sprinter when I'm not," he says, honestly. "I don't attempt to do the things I know I can't do. I try to stay in my strength because I think that is the best way I can help the club."

For Joe Greene, who kept playing better and better with each succeeding game this season, football is a thing of complete joy now.

"The joy," he says, "is in being able to formulate the game plan and then being able to implement it."

Who is the NFL's Littlest Player? JUST ASK Murray Olderman

By Murray Olderman

The whole unpleasantness of the Chuck Fairbanks abduction from the New England Patriots who has been avoided if owner Billy Sullivan hadn't played it hard-headed. He should have realized a basic fact of sports: if a guy wants out, he's going to get out. There was never any doubt Chuck would go to the University of Colorado, even when he changed temporarily for the NFL playoffs.

Q. Are Dave Cowens and Bill Russell the only stars to have become player-coaches in the NBA? — Jeff Green, Philadelphia, Pa.

A. No, there's nothing new about being a player-coach. Among the current head men, Al Attles of the Golden State Warriors and Len Wiltse of the Seattle SuperSonics both began their coaching careers while still in uniform as active basketball men. Going all the way back, Buddy Jenette was the player-coach of the Baltimore Bullets when they won the NBA title in 1947-48. And there were others.

Q. I would like to know who on the average makes more money as a basketball, football or baseball player? — Don Whittaker, Fairfax, Va.

A. The guys in the short pants still rule the economic roost. The average NFL player makes $110,000 per annum (probably driven higher now by the $800,000 contract of David Thompson); baseball at $70,000 and football at $50,000. The latter two have also gone up, though the NFL management people have been laggardly in providing up-to-date information to the players association.

Q. What is the height and weight of the smallest player currently playing in the National Football League? — J. Carter, Oak Ridge, Tenn.

Q. Some people say Fran Tarkenton, the great 11-year veteran of the Minnesota Vikings, holds all quarterback records. How many does he really hold? — Jeff Parker, Cooper's Island, Idaho.

A. The major records he holds are for most career passes attempted, yards gained and touchdown passes — which is a fairly clean sweep. There are some other incidents, such as the season records for interceptions and completions, set just this year. And the Tarkenton record of 19 points in 16 minutes (he was really coming back in his 39th, the option year of his contract). The Vikings might up his 39th to a half a million.

Q. We have Monday night football and Monday night baseball. Why not Monday night basketball? Has anyone ever tried it?

A. It's time for pro football to give serious consideration to the adoption of Lamar Hunt's pet idea — the Monday night game. As a coach, I've been on this for a long time. It's a very good idea. It would be a heavy-duty guy, the not night guy to Robert Woods, the kick returner and wide receiver of the Houston Oilers who claims he's 5'7 and weighs 170, though he's really a runner. Walter Payton's little (but older) brother Eddie, a fudger, Detroit is just a shade bigger than Woods.

Celts Pin Hopes on Bird To Turn Struggling Team

BOSTON (UPI) — He flies to the hoop with the grace of a glider and with the destructive capacity of a Stuka dive-bomber.

He's a franchise builder, a drawing card, a Superman in shorts and sleeveless shirt.

And Larry Bird, Indiana State's prize forward, is the man the Boston Celtics are hoping can turn around the struggling team.

The Celtics drafted Bird last June, thinking he just might forget about his senior year and turn pro. Bird chose to stay at Indiana State, where he is currently leading the nation in scoring and drawing rave reviews.

Red Auerbach, whose drafting of Bird rates as one of his better coups, hopes the 6-foot-9 forward will be the Celtics' franchise player. "We're not that far away — only two players. We also used another big man."

Bird's one helluva player. Only time will tell if he's the franchise player.

Celtics opponents say the once-proud Kelly Green is tarnished, most notably by the Celtics' 1978-79 season. "My God it's gone, the magic's gone," New Jersey Nets forward Phil Jackson, told a writer after gazing at the empty seats at Sunday's game. Jackson and his former New York Knicks teammates use to pack the Garden in what used to be pro basketball's fiercest rivalry.

"It's a shame. They had such a great basketball system here and it's disintegrated. They just don't have the people anymore," he said.

Jim Connors 'Definitely' Returning to Risk Title

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Despite a painful blood blister he sustained last week, Jimmy Connors is "definitely" returning to defend his title in the $250,000 U.S. Pro Indoor Tennis Championships beginning next week.

Tournament director Marilyn Fernberger said she had talked with Connors' agent earlier and concluded that Connors' blood blister was "definitely coming" when play begins Monday.

"When I spoke to his agent he was practicing," she said. "The blister was excised Thursday night and has healed. He's practicing very lightly with a special cushion inside his sneaker. We're all very happy."

Fernberger was in attendance at the Grand Prix Masters tournament last Thursday night when Connors sustained the blister on the big toe of his left foot during a match against John McEnroe.

Down 5-7, 0-3, Connors was forced to retire from the match and default from the tournament, but Mrs. Jose Higueras, the Netherlands, Dick Stockton, Wojtek Fibak and John Alexander.

Boston College To Host UConn

Two teams off to fast starts in the New England college basketball sweepstakes will put their gaudy records on the line when the University of Connecticut visits Boston College Wednesday night at 7:30.

Although their records are similar, the teams' offensive philosophies this season have been polar opposite.

College relies on backcourt firepower, Connecticut on forward-line scoring.

Graeme Cobbs, a 5-11 senior guard, leads the Eagles in scoring with 21.3 a game. He is led by 6-0 junior guard Jim Sweeney, a pleasant surprise this season with 26 assists.

Cobb led Boston College in scoring in 13 of their first 15 games, never having a really spectacular night this season. He scored at least 18 in all 13 of the contests.

In contrast Connecticut's Cory Thompson, the 6-8 freshman baby basketball star, has had a more productive forward ball for the Huskies, scoring 18.8 points a game while his running mate at forward, 6-5 freshman Mike McKay, of Bridgewater, is averaging 15.9. They are the top two scorers.

Free man Williams popping in downtown jumpers. One can only think if Kevin Krummet might have been the backstop center that Dennis Awtry apparently has failed to be.

To add insult to misery, even the Celtics opponents say the once-proud Kelly Green is tarnished, most notably by the Celtics' 1978-79 season. Regal's sponsored squirt hockey team gained a split on the weekend. The locals were blanked by Suffield, 1-0, and then came back to top the same club at Bolton, 4-1.

The locals outshot Enfield in the loss, 14-3. Strong offensive efforts were turned in by Bill and Ted Fitzgerald, Chris Reichardt, John Lampon and Roger LeBlanc.

Mike Horn, Steve Gallagher, Ron Smith and Mark Cibowski were best on defense for Regal's.

Jim McKown and Kyle Backus one of the triumph. Assistants went to Bucks, Rothman, Cisowski and Dave Molin.

Duke Really Tough Guy

John Wayne - living the tough-guy role he's played so often - is recuperating from surgery faster than his doctors dreamed he would.

President Carter sent a telegram and former President Richard Nixon called the UCLA medical center in Los Angeles to relay best wishes.

But the 71-year-old "Duke," whose cancerous stomach was removed

Friday, was released later in the day and Tuesday he swallowed his food since the operation, taking small sips of liquid a day earlier than doctors had expected.

They were married in 1970 and have two children - a 6-year-old Linda and 12-year-old Christian.

They're two of the quartet that hit the top of the charts worldwide with "Waterloo" - and they're getting divorced.

Newsweek magazine says Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev greeted U.S. senators visiting Moscow last week with a plaintive plea - "If any of you smokes, sit close to me and smoke constantly."

The 72-year-old Brezhnev is under a doctor's orders to kick the habit.

Quoted of the Day

Tennessee Secretary of State Gene Crowell, answering outgoing Tennessee Gov. Ray Blanton's comment that it "takes guts" to extend executive clemency before he leaves office to 52 felons - nearly half of them convicted of murder - despite public outrage at the act: "Yeah, well, some people have more guts than they've got brains."

Glimpses

Elleberg Publishers of Cologne, West Germany, has purchased German-language rights to former President Richard Nixon's memoirs and plans to publish a slightly condensed version in August.

The ballet "West Side Story," produced at the West German State Opera by American ballet master John Neumeier, has been such a success in the two months since its premiere in the repertoire at least until 1982.

Neil Simon will be in New York next month for opening night of his new Broadway musical "They're Playing Our Song," starring Robert Klein and Jack Amaro.

Scott's World Heston Becomes Author

By CHARLTON HESTON HOLLYWOOD (UPI) - Charlton Heston is an extraordinarily private man by movie star standards despite the fact he has written a best-selling day-to-day account of his work and play in "The Actor's Life."

After reading this lengthy, detailed and intimate account of his life the reader is left curiously ignorant of Heston's true political persuasion, religious tenets and emotional responses.

He is a complex man who doesn't advertise his complexities. He is, by nature, serious, uncomfortable in the face of frivolity. He appears ill at ease among strangers and at social functions.

Heston's book is a compilation, refinement and tightly edited volume of his personal journals from 1956 to a 20-year span of the man's growth as an actor, husband and father.

When Dalton came to terms with the actor, Heston faced the prospect of plowing through three-quarters of a million words. He had to boil down two decades of material to a reasonable length.

Heston is delighted by its success and surprised that his journals have been turned into an enormous profit, even before foreign sales and paperback publication.

"The book tells more about how I feel about my work than I normally go into," the actor said. "I don't think it is very revelatory of my personal life except in my relationships with Lydia (Mrs. Heston) and Fraser and Holly (his kids)."

"Why was its success important? Because during my career as an actor if a play or a film did not succeed, I knew there would always be another play or movie. But this is the only book I'll ever write. I wanted it to be successful."

Heston's film career has been a crucial event for me. I traveled to 20 cities in five weeks to promote it. "The book tells more about how I feel about my work than I normally go into," the actor said.

Magazine Says Moon Programs Cult Suicide

NEW YORK (UPI) - New West magazine says followers of the Rev. Sun Myung Moon have been programmed to commit suicide in defiance of opposition to their cult.

The magazine quotes a former member of Moon's Unification Church - followers of which popularly are known as "Moonies" - as saying Moon teaches his followers that death by their own hands is preferable to "deprogramming" or life outside his church.

New West quotes former Moonie Virginia Mabry, 24, as saying she attended a lecture at the Moon House in San Francisco in which anatomy lessons were given instructing where to cut with a razor in the event any member was kidnapped by parents bent on deprogramming.

The best thing would be to throw ourselves in front of the programmer's car, because then he'd be charged with murdering. The New West said, "second, depending on how much time we had, we were told to slice either our wrist or our jugular vein. The jugular, they said, was quicker."

The magazine also quotes verbatim transcripts from a publication titled "Master Speaks," a collection of Moon's speeches.

In one of them, Moon tells his followers: "Will you complain against me at the moment of death? Without me, on earth everything will be nullified. So who would you want to die - me or you?"

New West comments, "The answering sound rings forth: 'Us.'" The magazine says Moon's Unification Church - followers of which popularly are known as "Moonies" - as saying Moon teaches his followers that death by their own hands is preferable to "deprogramming" or life outside his church.

Top Court Ruling Upholds Teamsters Pension Fund

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The Supreme Court ruled 8-0 Tuesday that private pension funds in which more than 30 million industrial workers participate are not subject to anti-fraud provisions of federal securities laws. The court reversed a 7th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals decision saying workers who were defrauded by non-contributory funds, which control assets of more than $150 billion nationwide, could file suit charging violation of securities laws. "We hold that the securities acts do not apply to a non-contributory, compulsory pension plan," Justice Lewis Powell wrote for the high court.

Today's ruling is a victory for unions and management, which feared the lower-court decision, if upheld, would interfere with the collective bargaining process and spark a stream of retroactive suits by workers or former workers charging misrepresentation or fraud in industrial, non-contributory pension plans. Under such pension plans, employers automatically contribute money to a union-negotiated fund, and the employees pay nothing. The case was started by John Daniel, a Chicago truck driver for 23 years who died last month at age 69 after having a leg amputated. While he was working, his employers contributed on his behalf to a Teamster local pension fund.

Foreigners Buy U.S. Industry, Stocks, Real Estate

NEW YORK (UPI) - Foreigners bought America in 1978: in industries, stocks and real estate. The French are acquiring a stake in American Motors Corp., a Latin American purchased a farm in Virginia's hunt country for almost $2 million, and a West German bank wants to buy the World Trade Center's twin towers in New York. The British own Gimbel's and Saks department stores and the French are in the process of taking over E.J. Korvettes discount chain. The smaller foreign investor is putting money into U.S. farm land, restaurants, and orange groves. In the first nine months of 1978, the net inflow of foreign direct investment into the United States totaled $2.9 billion - far ahead of the $1.8 billion plummeted down by foreigners for U.S. interests in the full year 1977, according to the U.S. Department of Commerce.

But there are subtler factors behind the discovery of America as one of the best havens for foreign funds. "What brings most foreign investment to the United States is the relative political stability, the lack of fear that assets will be expropriated, big markets in which to sell products, the skilled labor pool, and our vast natural resources," said William Gaede, national director of client services and development for Touche Ross & Co. Gaede dismisses the uneasiness expressed by some Americans that the United States is falling into foreign hands. "We're far from approaching the point where we're owned by other countries," he said. "It's a lot better to import capital than to import goods." Gaede observed. "Foreign investment in the U.S. economy creates and sustains jobs that keep Americans employed." Despite the splashy publicity surrounding several Arab purchases of U.S. real estate, the members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries account for less than 1 percent of the foreign direct investment in the United States, according to Commerce data. "The Arabs are interested in equity participation in small American industries such as electronics and farm products, but most Arab money that has come to the United States is

Finns Sell Experience

NEW YORK (UPI) - The energetic Finns are staging three seminars in the United States this month trying to sell American communities on Finnish technology to produce and use energy better. They are concentrating on three fields: district heating, using peat as a fuel and the development of economical, small hydroelectric generators. The first seminar is being held in Washington this week the second in New York, Jan. 23 and the third in Chicago, Jan. 25. The Federal Department of Energy is co-sponsoring the programs. None of the technology the Finns will be describing is radically new, but because of the geographical peculiarities of their country, the Finns have developed expertise and hardware in these areas that they feel the United States could make use of.

Here Is Recommendation For MHS Campus Policy

MANCHESTER - Following is a copy of the recommendation by Jacob Ludes III, principal of Manchester High School, concerning modification of the open campus plan.

It was submitted to James P. Kennedy superintendent of schools, who intends to recommend the change to the Board of Education.

Background

When I arrived in Manchester on July 4, 1978, the two questions I was asked most frequently were:

- 1) What are you going to do about the football team?
- 2) What are you going to do about the open campus?

The football team took care of itself. But now the time has come for all of us to address the question of the "Open Campus."

I began my evaluation of the "open campus" system in May, 1978, from my office in Fredonia. I have formulated and re-formulated recommendations at least a dozen times in the last seven months. I have made up my mind, changed it repeatedly, and gone full circle and a half. It is only in the last several days, buttressed by reports and input from faculty, community, and student groups, that I have finally reached conclusions and recommendations that I am comfortable with.

Process

These conclusions and recommendations are the end product of more than seven months of probing and analysis on my part. During that seven months, I was aided by:

- a) Many letters, phone calls, and personal visits from numerous people, both supporting and opposed to the "Open Campus";
- b) Two coffee hours which enabled parents to share their feelings on the open campus directly with me;
- c) An M.E.A. - Board of Education informational meeting on the subject;
- d) The Enormous Memorandum from George Emmerling, former MHS principal on the history of the "Open Campus";
- e) The efforts of a Faculty Committee on the "Open Campus" which thoroughly analyzed the problems and carefully explored six different options;
- f) The efforts of the Principal's Committee which included the open campus in their exhaustive analysis of the climate of the high school;
- g) The input of a student Open Campus Committee which examined many of the problems associated with the Open Campus;
- h) An analysis of room and staff utilization for a partial closing of the campus which I requested from Dr. Blaine Miller and Mr. Conrad Strelmeier of the High School Data Center staff;
- i) The "Early Release Report at Newton High," a state-wide survey completed by Robert F. Patz during September-October, 1978;
- j) As the re-evaluation of the open campus progressed, several factors became apparent to me:

- a) Since the campus was fully "opened" in 1971 there has not been a sustained, coordinated effort to acquaint students with campus resources designed to meet their specific needs;
- b) Duty assignments for supervision of the open campus had not been re-examined by the faculty involved;
- c) To a certain extent, all of the ills of Manchester High School have been ascribed to a single source or scapegoat—the open campus. Class cutting, breaches of discipline, cafeteria litter, and racial tensions have been problems at Manchester High School. The open campus has to some extent complicated the

Bolton Post Stays Vacant

BOLTON — The reading consultant vacancy in the Bolton school system will not be filled until September.

Instead the school board voted to employ a certified reading teacher to provide reading instruction.

The vacancy resulted from the recent resignation of Robert Hamm.

School Superintendent Raymond Allen said he received one application for the position from a Bolton High School teacher. He said two people expressed an interest in teaching reading for the remainder of the year.

Allen said, "I want a field of candidates in May or June and he would be the best possible person he could find to teach the high school teacher."

He said there would be more applicants in May or June and he wants the "highest qualified, best possible person for the kids in

Vernon Fire Panel Backs Consolidation

By BARBARA RICHMOND

VERNON — The Fire Study Committee Tuesday night used the previously avoided word "consolidation" and reaffirmed action taken at a previous meeting that had the intent of consolidating the Rockville and Vernon Fire Departments.

Last month the committee voted to recommend to the Town Council that there be one chief and one chain of command for the department and one fire marshal but did not specifically state that the departments would be consolidated. This drew some criticism from various sources.

Jane Lamb, chairman of the committee, said she has had many definite answers yet from the town attorney as to what process will be used to eventually accomplish the consolidation. The attorney, William Breslau, has been asked to give his opinion as to whether the proposed reorganization will require a charter revision or just a charter amendment which could be accomplished by ordinance.

Mrs. Lamb also asked the committee to discuss the reorganization of the proposed joint department "because some firemen believe it will be a loss of jobs."

She said some department members had expressed the fear that those who no longer have positions of authority may no longer have them.

The committee has already agreed about the one chief and one fire marshal but not about the method to be used to do them. It was recommended by Mrs. Lamb, that Donald Maguda, chief of the present Rockville Department, be named chief of the combined department and William Johnson, chief of the Vernon Department be the full-time fire marshal.

Committee member Stephen Marcham said he concurred with the idea, but thought it was premature to name names at this time. He added, however, that he had no quarrel with the names mentioned.

Mrs. Lamb, who is also a Town Council member, said she would not support putting money in the coming budget to do this work.

Area Man Notes 90th Birthday

COVENTRY — William J. McKinney of Cedar Swamp Road works six days a week at Allen's Package Store in the shopping complex on Route 4A. That alone is not unusual. What is extraordinary is that McKinney will be celebrating his 90th birthday Thursday and has no plans of retirement.

The Manchester native moved to town in 1921 to become a dairy farmer. "I remained milk in Manchester for 30 years," McKinney explained.

He also worked as a town official in Coventry. In addition to his farm work, McKinney served as tax collector during the late 1930's and early 1940's. He later became a justice of the peace, issuing summons and holding court. "There was no municipal court at that time," McKinney noted. "There was no police department either. We were assisted by constables."

McKinney's wife Helena is 88 years old. Together they have had four children — two boys and two girls. "I have nine grandchildren and nine great-grandchildren," McKinney said, adding that he plans to keep on working at Allen's.

Fire Commissioners

With many misgivings, the committee agreed to recommend the establishment of a Board of Fire Commissioners, made up of five members with staggered five-year terms.

None of the members is to be a member of the fire department but two of the five should be fire knowledgeable, the committee said.

Kelly questioned the need for such a commission when the committee emphasized that it would only act in an advisory capacity and wouldn't have any "clout."

Kelly said, "If it (the commission) is to have no clout and if the department set up properly, the chief will have all of the help he needs."

Zahner suggested that the committee appointed to be chief should have at least eight years in the fire service, two or three of them as a fire officer or higher.

This would mean that 20 or more members of the two departments would be eligible.

It was also agreed that the chief should be selected on the basis of a written exam, as being a sounding board for the chief.

The Fire Study Committee will meet again on Jan. 30 at 7:30 p.m. at the Nye Street Firehouse to finalize the wording of the recommendation which will go to the Town Council meeting on Feb. 5.

Blood Expert Due For Chad's Trial

PLYMOUTH, Mass. (UPI) — A blood specialist from New York testifies today in the continuing effort by the parents of 3-year-old Chad Green to free their son from state custody so they can treat him with the controversial drug Laetrile.

Victor Herbert, chief of hematology at Veterans Hospital in Bronx, N.Y., was to testify in Plymouth Superior Court for the state, which is seeking to keep the boy under the care and protection of the Massachusetts Department of Social Services.

On Tuesday, Dr. John Truman, chief of pediatric hematology at Massachusetts General Hospital where the boy is being treated with chemotherapy, testified that the boy's blood is not as toxic as the state claims.

Truman, who has been supervising Chad's treatment since 1976, also warned of potential hazards associated with the metabolic diet of special natural foods which the Greens have been feeding the boy as part of their alternative treatment.

Truman said the diet could result in accumulation of Vitamin A which may produce toxicity in the liver and increase pressure on Chad's brain.

The Scituate, Mass., couple is fighting to free the infant from state custody so they can take him to Mexico for Laetrile treatments rather than chemotherapy which they contend has painful side effects.

The Greens contend the Laetrile, a derivative of apricot pits, is effective in fighting the cancer, but most medical authorities disagree.

Attorneys for both the state and the family say the trial could become a national test case for Laetrile.

Last week, several other cancer specialists testified on behalf of the Greens, saying they favored the use of Laetrile and the metabolic diet.

The couple's blond, blue-eyed son was placed in state custody by the courts last year at the request of MGH doctors who claim he will die unless he continues to undergo chemotherapy.

Under the order, Chad has been allowed to live at home as long as his parents continue chemotherapy. The Greens are willing to continue chemotherapy if the court will lift the "care and protection order" so they can take him to Mexico.

Also Tuesday, the results of court-ordered lab tests to determine the possible presence of low level cyanide poisoning had to be sent back to MGH and Boston Medical Laboratories to be recalculated.

The two separate sets of tests apparently were calculated differently so the results could not be compared.

The Greens' attorneys asked Superior Court Judge Guy Volterra to vacate the care and protection order. But the judge denied the motion, saying he would make no decision until he had heard both sides in the case.

Muslims Free Hostages From Hijacked Airplane

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Five Lebanese Shiite Muslims released 82 terrified hostages from a hijacked jetliner today, saying all they wanted was to focus world attention on the plight of their missing religious leader.

The gunman released 73 passengers and nine crew members of the Middle East Airlines Boeing 720B about 6 1/2 hours after it was flown on a flight from Beirut to Amman, Jordan.

They surrendered only after being allowed to hold a news conference and see the disappearance of the Imam, Sayid Muhammad al-Hakim, a Lebanese Shiite Muslim community leader.

Sadr and two associates mysteriously dropped out of sight last August while on a visit to Libya and the hijackers charge Libya with kidnapping Sadr and denounced Libyan leader Col Muammar Khadafi as "an American agent."

All of the passengers and crew were released unharmed shortly after 1 a.m. today (6 p.m. Tuesday EST).

"We were about to land at Amman when suddenly a hostess screamed and ran out of the first-class section," said Abdul Wadud Hajjaj, 34, a Lebanese journalist on the plane.

"Then I saw gun waving in the front and rear of the plane and realized it was a hijack. They tried to keep us as calm as possible, but women started crying and fainting, other people began throwing up and other needed oxygen."

The aircraft was diverted from Amman to Cyprus, but Cypriot authorities refused to allow it to land. The hijackers then told the pilot to fly back to Beirut, where it landed.

Following hours of negotiations, the hijackers agreed to a suggestion by Shiite Muslim Lebanese parliamentarian Hussein al-Husseini that they hold a news conference and then surrender.

A thin man in dark clothes emerged from the plane.

"Our people tried their best, with peaceful demonstrations and lawful means, to solve this tragic problem," he said of Sadr's disappearance. "More than four and a half months have passed without any result. ... We apologize to the whole world for resorting to violence."

Following the news conference, two orange, yellow and white Middle East Airlines buses pulled up the airliner and the remaining hostages got off, along with the gunmen, who gave themselves up.

Carol

Your Neighbor's Kitchen

By BETTY RYDER

If you're traveling through Germany, make it a point to visit Dusseldorf, the captivating city of the Rhine.

And when it comes time to dine, try one of Gunter Scherrer's specialties at the Dusseldorf Hilton. The hotel, and its impressive Congress Center, are situated between the Kennedy Dam and the Rhine River, a short distance from the business and cultural center of Dusseldorf. It is conveniently close to the city's new exhibition grounds and only 10 minutes by car from the International Airport Dusseldorf-Lohausen.

Dining facilities there are varied and visitors from the United States will be especially pleased with the San Francisco Restaurant. It particularly appealing to the gourmet and is famous for its authentic American steaks and its fine culinary creations by Scherrer, the executive chef, and Kurt Aeberhard, maitre'd.

The restaurant represents the atmosphere of San Francisco at the turn of the century. The Hoigarten Restaurant is decorated in the manner of a summer garden from one of the grand European palaces and serves continental dishes, Rhineland specialties, light snacks and homemade pastries.

For sports enthusiasts, try the Grand Prix Bar, with its unusual motorsport decor. Original designs of elegant racing cars, old-time models in designs in showcases and collectors' items enhance the attractive room. Famous car firms such as BMW, Porsche, Ford, Deutsche Renault, etc., have made possible the use of original items in the decor.

For the elegant lamps, for example, motors of 13 old cars were taken apart to obtain the original crankshaft for the bases.

Even the beverage card is designed as a black and white starter's flag and is a "take-off sign" for the first drink.

A special attraction is the original bucket seats, serving as bar stools and on special request, the bartender will supply guests with a safety belt harness.

The Dusseldorf Hilton with its 383 guest rooms on 12 floors is the largest hotel in the city and one visitors shouldn't miss.

It offers all the comforts demanded by the modern traveler and the cuisine will please even the most fastidious gourmet.

Chef Scherrer was kind enough to share his recipe for Filet of Baby Turbot in Deinhard Tradition with us. I will do my best to interpret the chef's culinary terminology so that the recipe will be adaptable to your kitchens.

Filet of Baby Turbot
Clean one-fourth head of Romaine. Blanch the leaves and chill.

For each fillet you plan to serve, you will need three-fourths ounces each of leek, carrots and celery cut julienne-style.

Use two ounces of cream and one ounce of Deinhard Tradition Champagne (or champagne of your choice) and one bay leaf.
Place vegetables on a Romaine leaf, add fillet and sauce, bring to a boiling point and then braise covered for 12 minutes in the oven.

Take the fish out and continue cooking until the stock has been reduced by half. Add butter, salt, MSG (monosodium glutamate) to taste.

The fish is served on a leaf in a soup bowl topped with the vegetables and stock. A dash of Deinhard Tradition is added just before eating. Serve with french bread and sprinkle with Risotto cheese, if desired.

Standing behind a table filled with a selection of delectable seafood, meats, fresh produce and wines, Gunter Scherrer, executive chef at the Dusseldorf Hilton in Dusseldorf, Germany, at left, and Kurt Aeberhard, maitre'd, plan a variety of menus for the hotel's restaurants.

Ann Taylor Branches Out

For the Young Fashion-Crazy Lady

By Ellie Grossman

NEW YORK (NEA) - A pily Ann Taylor isn't around to see her new store on 5th Street off Fifth Avenue. It's three floors of stainless steel and glass surrounding an open gallery, or well. With a glass-enclosed elevator, which is self-operating because you won't find anything here that isn't modern and modular, mauve or gray. So there's no human elevator operator to call out, as he does.

Main floor: watch your step, then try on dresses, accessories, suits and sportswear by Perry Ellis, Carol Horn, Will Smith and the likes. Going up, watch the closing door.

Second floor: to the front, the Joan and David Helper Shoe Salon: sporty and crazy shoes starting at $44, boots elevating to $250. To the rear, the leather and fur nook. Check out a little fur jacket for $60, a tan leather jacket with matching cigarette jeans, also for $60.

And finally - don't

GLIMPSED ONE day in the self-operating, glass-enclosed elevator in the new Fifth Avenue store, some of the enterprising young fashions for which Ann Taylor has become noted. At left: tan lines coat ($82), pants ($50) and skirt ($42) by Jac. Hat ($22). Right: Fortbelle jacket ($110) and skirt ($88) worn with suede green belt ($25), straw hat ($22) and snakeskin clutch ($130). Shoes are Foreign Affairs by Joan & David.

above, ladies - the third floor: "skin" yourself in clinging disco duos and designer jeans or, if you can get a table, sit on the Sobchak's and sample chic salads and dishes, made fresh every day.

There's the layout Ann Taylor is missing. Actually, she wasn't even there in 1964 when Richard Liebeskind started the first Ann Taylor store in New Haven.

She hasn't been anywhere, says Mimi Liebeskind, Richard's wife, a small, chic, dark woman who is also vice president of fashion and sales promotion for the 31 Ann Taylor stores 'cross country.

"My husband's family has always been in retailing," she said, beginning the "Has anyone seen Ann Taylor?" story. "My father-in-law had a store and his best-selling dress was a shirtwaist he called the Ann Taylor. When Richard opened his first fur jacket for $60, a tan leather jacket with matching cigarette jeans, also for $60.

"And finally - don't and John Meyer clothes, which sold so well Liebeskind finally had to give them up.

Mrs. Liebeskind explained, "Everything trickles down from a specialty store to public domain and the clothes began selling so well in department stores that Richard decided to go 'fashion' about 10 years ago."

What's up with idols

You probably would not find Billy Graham and Pope Paul VI in the same church pew. Nor would you find Jacqueline Onassis and Golda Meir patronizing the same dress designer.

But you would find all four on Public Opinion magazine's compilation of American idols of the past 15 years. The list is based on annual polls of the living men and women Americans admire the most.

Top 10 men for the 1963 to 1977 period were:

1. Dwight Eisenhower.
2. Billy Graham.
3. Lyndon Johnson.
4. Robert Kennedy.
5. Richard Nixon.
6. Edward Kennedy.
7. Pope Paul VI.
8. Hubert Humphrey.
9. George Wallace.
10. Harry Truman.

Most admired women for the same period were:

1. Jacqueline Onassis.
2. Mamie Eisenhower.
3. Golda Meir.
4. Lady Bird Johnson.
5. Pat Nixon.
6. Rose Kennedy.
7. Indira Gandhi.
8. Queen Elizabeth II.
9. Margaret Chase Smith.
10. Ethel Kennedy.

A VARIED ITINERARY awaits Chinese Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-Ping upon his scheduled arrival in the United States Jan. 23. Besides visiting cities on both coasts, Teng is expected to view oil drilling in Texas and farming in the South.

Joe, an ardent surfer, took used to make a serious political umbr... at a county regulation statement, may also qualify for hearing, surfing along certain constitutional protection stretches of beach in a court.

In a case that arose from the challenge he invoked the First State, several high school students sued the County Board of Education for denying them the right to surf on the beach. The court, in its decision, stated that the county is suppressing its plumed by school authorities, the freedom of speech.

"We cannot accept the view that an apparently limitless variety of conduct can be labeled 'speech' whenever the person involved is engaged in expressive conduct...," said the court. "It is the type of symbolic act that is within the First Amendment's protection."

But symbolic speech, while protected, is not protected to the same extent as pure speech. One man, arrested for burning an American flag in a crowded park, claimed the shelter of the First Amendment. Rejected this defense, the court said.

"Emotions are no linked to (the flag) that its destruction in public is an invitation to violence, not because of the ideas symbolized but because of the nature of the act itself. Such an act is not essential to any exposition of ideas."

A public service trustee of the American Bar Association and True, Joe had a point. Courts have recognized that the First Amendment does cover more than pure speech. Symbolic acts, when

To Stiffen Crochet

POLLY'S PROBLEM

DEAR POLLY - I hope someone can tell me what to use to stiffen crocheted snowflakes. The boiled sugar solution (equal parts of sugar and water) does not do a good job. What else could be used to make them stiff and help keep them white looking? - MRS. F.B.

DEAR MRS. F.B. - Perhaps the following letter from a reader will help with your problem. Good luck! - POLLY

DEAR POLLY - Perhaps my formula will help the reader who wishes to stiffen a crocheted basket. Mix one pound of flour, one pound of cornstarch and two-thirds cup of salt with one cup of water. Let this come to a boil, remove from the fire and let it partially cool. Rub the paste into the basket thoroughly, stretch, pin the points to a cardboard and dry the same as when using sugar starch. The item could be stretched over a form or dish that is near the right size. Keep shaping as it dries and when dry it should stand alone. - MRS. M.S.

DEAR POLLY - I use wrote that she could never get the last part of a lipstick out of the tube and ends up throwing it away. I suggest that rather than wasting the end she reach inside the tube with a cotton-tipped stick to get the required amount and then apply it with the stick. - CATHY

DEAR POLLY - When you hang coats, suits or better dresses on the outside clothesline to air, slip the hook of the hanger the garment is on through a rubber fruit jar ring even on a windy day. - BETTY

DEAR POLLY - When it is time to trim my little boy's hair so as to get their bangs straight I place a piece of cellophane tape with the top of the tape where the bangs are to be cut and stick it to the hair that is to be cut off. I trim the bangs and the hair that is cut off comes off with the tape so none gets in their eyes. - BETTY

Polly will send you one of her signed thank-you newspaper coupon clippers if she uses your favorite Pointer, Peewee or Problem in her column. Write POLLY'S POINTERS in care of this newspaper.

Social Security

Help for Disabled, Survivors fourteenth of 18 parts)

By Howard K. Ottenstein
 If a lengthy and severe medical condition keeps you from working, you may be eligible for Social Security disability benefits.

To receive such payments, you must be fully insured under Social Security and you must have worked for five years during the decade before you became disabled.

If your disability occurs at age 31 or younger, less work credit is required. (The requirement of substantial work is waived for persons who become blind.)

Of course, anyone applying for disability benefits must provide evidence of the severity of the condition. Disability can be physical or mental, but it must be "medically determinable" and of 12 months or longer in duration.

The law requires that even those who are found eligible for disability payments must wait five months before they start collecting. Therefore, it's important to file for benefits as soon after the disability occurs as possible.

Payments are the same as the worker would have received if he or she had not become disabled. The spouse and offspring of a disabled worker are entitled to additional benefits under the same conditions as the dependent of a retiree.

The average monthly disability payment made by the Social Security Administration in August 1977 was $263.

A person receiving work-related compensation may also be eligible for disability benefits if his or her total benefit payment does not exceed 80 percent of his or her pre-disability income.

Depending on their ages and health, the survivors of a worker may reap Social Security benefits for many years after the worker's death.

Upon the death of each insured worker, his or her family receives a one-time payment of up to $250. Children of the worker are eligible for monthly payments if they are under age 18 (under 22 for full-time students) or were permanently disabled before reaching 22.

The worker's surviving spouse is entitled to payments if he or she is responsible for the care of a minor (under 18) or disabled child.

If the spouse works, he or she can earn as much as a 65-year-old Social Security recipient ($4,000 in 1978) without losing benefits.

However, a family's total benefits cannot exceed a specified maximum amount.

Widows and dependent widowers of workers again become eligible for benefits when they reach old age. If the deceased worker was supporting his elderly parents, they, too, may be entitled to payments.

The Vicious Cycle

By Karen Blaker, Ph.D.

DEAR DR. BLAKER— I lost my father five years ago in a flaming car crash a few blocks from my house. He was on his way to visit me for the first time since I had married a man he had always hated. I had been pleading with him for months to drive over and finally he said yes. Then he was killed.

Of course, I felt very guilty. It took more than two years for me to resume fully my normal life—normal, that is, except for a moderate phobia of fires.

I have talked at length with my friends and family about my father's death. Now I really believe I was not responsible for his accident. I even saw a psychiatrist for six months. All that helped me tremendously. However, I am still very frightened of fires. If I really have accepted my father's death—I associate my fear of fire with his car, which was engulfed in flames when I arrived on the scene. I wouldn't be the phobia have disappeared?

DEAR READER— Not necessarily. Although phobias are often touched off by traumatic events, they usually do not stick unless the event was superimposed on an already stressful life situation or a debilitated state of physical health.

To help you better understand phobias—as well as the most effective means of coping with them—I am sending you a copy of my new hotline, "If You're Phobic." Other readers may order copies of this newsletter by sending 50 cents plus a stamped, self-addressed envelope to my care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 17, Lindisfield Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. Please request the hotline by name.

At the time of the accident, for example, it could have been that your recent marriage without your father's blessing was taking its toll on your mental health.

The phobia may not go away if you have not resolved the marital situation in your mind. Your father was on his way to your house, but he never actually walked in to demonstrate his acceptance of your marriage.

It is also possible, however, to have resolved the psychological trauma surrounding the accident while remaining phobic.

When you see a fire, you must likely experience the usual phobic symptoms: breathlessness, pounding heart, dizziness or faintness, tenseness, sweating, feelings of remoteness, perhaps even the urge to defecate or urinate.

Anticipation of these feelings has probably made you even more sensitive to fires. After all, who wants to experience those terrifying sensations? Thus, you may have become more phobic in your efforts to avoid the panic feelings.

Once this phobic cycle is established, it often persists long after the problems that caused the panic have been resolved. You have become caught in a vicious cycle that caused the panic have been resolved. You have become caught in a vicious cycle that caused the panic have been resolved.

Write to Dr. Blaker in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 17, Lindisfield Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. Volume of mail prohibits personal replies, but questions of general interest will be discussed in future columns.

Critic-at-Large Tribute to the Carryall

By Norman Nadel NEW YORK (NEA) - Almost anything can function as an art medium; look what Benvenuto Cellini did with a saltcellar. Nevertheless, "The Shopping Bag: Portable Graphic Art" at the Cooper-Hewitt, probably is the first museum exhibition of these ubiquitous carryalls.

On display through Jan. 27 at the Cooper-Hewitt, which is the Smithsonian Institution's National Museum of Design on upper Fifth Avenue in New York City, are 121 bags, collected from Paris to Tokyo, with most from shops in the United States.

In a rich purple, and a Tokyo store achieves a dramatic effect simply with its name in Japanese characters in white on a charcoal bag with a white rope handle.
