

Dems Name Candidates For Boards

COVENTRY — The Democratic Town Committee has sent the Town Council the names of endorsed candidates for local boards and commissions. Heading the list is Rita Zanel, a former vice-chairman of the town committee, who is interested in working on the Board of Health.

Joanne Corrigan, currently chairman of the Conservation Commission, is seeking reappointment for another four-year term. Her group is in the midst of activities designed to protect the water quality of Lake Waugumbaug.

John Casianello was recommended to the Board of Tax Review to fill the position of George Bolduc, who has resigned from that elected post. The term expires in November 1979.

Joel Drucker wishes to join the Planning and Zoning Commission as an alternate, following the resignation of Ursula Frye, who is moving from town, Republican commissioner Claire Connelly resigns her position as a regular member this week, and both the town committees are seeking a candidate to fill this vacancy.

Joanne Deegan is interested in the newly formed Cemetery Commission. A vacancy arose following the resignation of Arlene Fawcett, whose term was to end next October.

Richard Cromie, a local attorney and former Democratic town chairman, is seeking reappointment to the Insurance Advisory Committee, which serves the Town Council. The Democrats also endorsed Lionel Stan for that committee, to fill the post vacated by Sandra Marotte Ranney.

Walter Hurlock wants to serve on the Economic Development Commission, following the resignation of George Bolduc. Hurlock was active in a movement last spring that forced the council's annual budget to two referenda.

Finally, the Democrats have made endorsements for the Parks and Recreation Commission. Sandra Young, chairman of the commission, is seeking reappointment. Anthony Roberto and Richard Goodwin also wish to stay on. Newcomers Harvey Barrette and Alfred Parent are seeking appointment in the wake of the retirement of Bernard Gilbert and the resignation of Frances Godale.

In other business the town committee voted to ask the council to seek Gov. Ella Grasso's help in beginning a commuter bus program between Coventry and Hartford. The Windham Regional Planning Agency has been working with the state Department of Transportation on plans for a bus line for almost four years.

The Democrats also passed a motion concerning a proposal by the Legislature to impose a wage tax on non-Hartford residents who work in that town. State Rep. Robert Wald, a member of the town committee, said he opposes such legislation, which would penalize Coventry commuters.

The group argued about a sewer facilities plan for the town proposed by the Water Pollution Control Authority. Rick Cook, a member of the Planning and Zoning Commission, said he opposes large-scale sewerage of the lake area. But other Democrats said capacity should be designed to handle anticipated growth.

VERNON — The Greater Vernon Jaycees, in observance of National Jaycee Week, Jan. 21-27, have planned activities to culminate with the annual distinguished awards dinner.

The club will sponsor a bloodmobile Saturday from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. at Rockville General Hospital. The Mayor's Prayer Breakfast will be Sunday at 8:30 a.m. at Howard Johnson's, Route 30.

On Jan. 22 at 7:30 p.m. the Jaycees will have an orientation meeting at the Casa Nova Restaurant, Talcoville. This year's awards dinner will be at The Colony in Talcoville, starting at 6:30 p.m.

Three Lack Shots

VERNON — When the Vernon public schools opened after the Christmas vacation, nine students were excluded because they didn't have immunizations required by the state.

As of Wednesday, only three students were still excluded. Dr. Albert Kerkin, assistant superintendent of schools, said this count means that all other students have had required inoculations for polio, rubella (German measles), regular measles and a combination shot for diphtheria, tetanus and whooping cough.

Dr. Bernard Sidman, superintendent of schools, has sent letters to the parents of the excluded students, but there is no response the matter will be turned over to the town attorney.

Mayor Boycotts Party, Questions Roof Collapse

HARTFORD (UPI) — For Mayor George A. Athanson the first anniversary of the Hartford Civic Center coliseum roof's collapse was a time for more questions — but for hundreds of other officials it was a time to celebrate.

Athanson said Thursday he boycotted a Greater Hartford Convention and Visitors Bureau-sponsored "raise the roof" party and news conference because there was no reason for a party.

"I do not believe raising a glass of champagne is going to obviate the need to answer some fundamental questions that have been left kicking around," Athanson said. "If anything, that day... that cave-in, is symbolic that Hartford is in trouble."

The 1,400-ton computer-designed spaceframe collapsed under tons of ice and rain-drenched snow at 4:19 a.m. Jan. 18, 1978, only hours after 5,000 basketball fans left the sports arena. There were no reported injuries.

Democratic Directors Tell Accomplishments

MANCHESTER — Democratic members of the Town Board of Directors Thursday night pointed to what they have done in their 15 months in office as they responded to previous Republican charges that they were too inexperienced.

Four Democratic directors — Thomas Connors, John FitzPatrick, Betty Intagliata and Joseph Sweeney — spoke for more than an hour to the Democratic Town Committee about the board's work since it took office in November 1977. The other two Democrats on the board, Mayor Stephen Penny and Deputy Mayor Stephen Cassano, were unable to attend Thursday's meeting.

When the six Democrats ran in 1977, only one — Penny — had previous experience on the Board of Directors. The newness of the candidates was an often-discussed topic in the Republican campaign.

But, the Democrats who spoke Thursday night were the ones now mentioning the inexperience theme. They said the work they have done proved there was no truth to the Republican criticism.

Leading the defense was Ted Cummings, Democratic town chairman. "That inexperience resulted in a new get-tough tax collection, a prudent budget," Cummings said.

Sweeney said, "They were telling us we were a bunch of newcomers." He called the Republican approach during the campaign "halybush" and mentioned what he considered a couple of the board's more important accomplishments. He said the directors managed to take steps to create a budget surplus for the 1977-78 fiscal year, a year that had started with apparent fiscal problems for the town.

"What the Republicans tried to talk up as a $1 million deficit may end up being a half-million dollar surplus," Sweeney said.

He also talked about the party "teamwork" between the directors and the local state legislators that led to the revitalization phase-in. Sweeney, perhaps the most vocal advocate of the phase-in, again talked about the benefit to most Manchester homeowners.

And, just to prove the board is not anti-business, a similar phase-in was approved. The newness of the candidates was an often-discussed topic in the Republican campaign.

Death and Dying: The Issues Today

Editor's Note: This is the first in a series of 15 articles exploring "Death and Dying: Challenge and Change." This series was written for Courses by Newspaper, a program developed by University Extension, University of California, San Diego, and funded by a grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities.

By ROBERT FULLON

From front page headlines to back page funeral announcements; from the 6 o'clock news and the latest assassination to the 10-second commercial for cemetery plots; from horror movies to punk rock — death is everywhere. Whether it be the newspaper, radio, television, or the cinema, the communications media present the specter of death to us everyday.

The Denial of Death

Yet, paradoxically, until quite recently death has been a "taboo" topic in contemporary America. Our society has developed a "cult of youth" and a strong aversion to the idea of death. No social institution or group has been free from the attempt to deny our mortality. In the home, at school, from the church pulpit to the "slumber" room of the mortuary, we have attempted to shield ourselves from the prospect of our own death as well as from the death of others.

Such denial and avoidance reflect profound changes that have occurred in the character and structure of society. Traditionally in Western society the question of death was answered within a theological context. Death, as well as life was seen as part of a Divine plan. As such, death was acknowledged as an inevitable fact of life, accepted as the will of God, and confronted openly in a context of public rites and sacred rituals.

Today, in contrast, death has become, for a great many, a secular matter. It is a private disaster to be discussed only by the family or close friends. No longer is death the wages of sin. Today it is viewed almost exclusively as a physical matter.

the outcome of a disease process or the result of an unfortunate accident. And, as with contagious diseases, those who are caught in the throes of dying are isolated from their fellow human beings, while those who have succumbed to death are quickly hidden from view.

Changing Patterns
The many issues and problems associated with dying and death have taken on a new significance as the circumstances surrounding dying and death have changed in our society.

First, progress in medical science and the general enhancement of life in the past half-century have meant that the proportion of elderly persons in our society has greatly increased. Twenty-two million people, or 11 percent of our population, are currently over 65 years of age, and their number is growing.

Second, death is primarily the experience of aged persons today of those who will die in the United States this year, approximately two-thirds will be 65 years of age or older. On the other hand, children under 15, for whom mortality rates were once very high, now account for less than 6 percent of total deaths.

Third, the context in which dying and death are experienced has also undergone a significant change. At the beginning of the century, most were virtually disappeared as signs of mourning in North America. These changes parallel a growing dissatisfaction with traditional funeral practices. Since the publication of Jessica Mitford's "The American Way of Death" in the early 1960s, the values of embalming, caskets, and elaborate and expensive funerals have been brought into question.

In the face of these developments another change in the health care professions continue to observe the traditional directive: protect and prolong human life. Yet society's new emerging philosophies and attitudes often conflict with traditional medical practices. Medical personnel, for instance, go to extraordinary lengths to preserve the life of an elderly patient; but when confronted with his or her death, they often avoid the patient.

Complicating the situation further is the increased ability to postpone death through technical and scientific advances. We are thus faced with the premature of a "broken heart" when to "let" a patient die by terminating treatments that might sustain his or her life.

New Dilemmas
These social, demographic, and technological changes call for a reappraisal of what constitutes an appropriate response to death on the part of both the individual and society generally. Today we must deal with the ethical dilemmas posed by new technology, such as the right to die and euthanasia; with the special problems of widows in a society that is oriented toward couples; with the premature of a "broken heart" when to "let" a patient die by terminating treatments that might sustain his or her life.

Impact on the Elderly
Out of these changes emerges a social milieu in which the elderly find themselves isolated. Moreover, the young reject the elderly as constant reminders of our brief mortality, and the elderly sense that rejection.

While many problems are associated with old age per se in the United States, they are frequently aggravated to an intolerable degree by the death of a spouse. Rich memories are shouldered aside by financial worries, health problems, personal insecurity, as well as loneliness, filling the life of an elderly widow (or widower) with chagrin in our vigorously youth-oriented society.

Furthermore, research indicates that widows are at mortal risk three times greater than their married counterparts, as the result of the stress and other factors associated with their bereavement. It is indeed the fate of many widows to die prematurely of a "broken heart."

The problem is not a negligible one: more than 10 million women — one out of every six adult women in the United States — are widows.

Changing Customs
American society is experiencing rapid social change with regard to death and death customs. We are currently in the process of redefining grief, bereavement, and loss, as well as death itself. The trend toward the diminishment of the funeral and the abandonment of mourning customs is a further manifestation of this upheaval.

The black tie, black hat, and black armband as well as the floral wreath have virtually disappeared as signs of mourning in North America. These changes parallel a growing dissatisfaction with traditional funeral practices. Since the publication of Jessica Mitford's "The American Way of Death" in the early 1960s, the values of embalming, caskets, and elaborate and expensive funerals have been brought into question.

Thought

The Inclusive Community
Our world is a vast mixture of young and old, rich and poor, yellow, black, white, red, and brown and hundreds of languages and cultures. Much of our country's strength has come from welcoming a variety of persons who have a common goal: a better life for themselves and their families. To the extent we work together for the benefit of all groups who come and accept and value their contributions to our society, we are an inclusive community.

Are we in Manchester a community which is economically, culturally, and racially inclusive? Do we project that image?

When we decided to buy a house in Manchester six years ago, we had a choice of a half dozen homes within reach of the purchasing power of our single wage-earner, public service job. Today we probably would not be able to buy a home in Manchester. Renting would be no easier for two reasons: High cost and four children.

I gain balance in my life by having both the perspective of my children and that of my elderly neighbors. Do we intentionally exclude new residents who place value on children and caring for them? Do we intentionally exclude our young adults who are unmarried and do not command the salaries necessary to buy or rent in Manchester? Do we intentionally exclude our town employees who may also wish to contribute to the town in their off-work hours? Do we exclude or isolate our elderly citizens on fixed incomes? If this is not our intent, how can we become inclusive?

Model Airplane Engines Made in Manchester

By RUSS MACKENDRICK
This model airplane engine was made right here in Manchester by the Woodridge Manufacturing Co. some time in the middle 1940's. It was called the "Scraper." The company, doing business in the North End, near Apple Place, had a write-up in a 1946 booklet: "The Gas Modelers' Guide," that described an advanced production named the "SuperScraper." That one never actually reached the marketplace although it is said that some individuals may have put one or two together after the company folded.

The owner of the Scraper, who lives down country, is eager for any similar engines or parts that might be used to make one. He has 125 or more model engines at present. The noise of them all is a five-cylinder radial that is worth upwards of $500. The old-time one-lungers need a battery, spark plug and coil, and the five-cylinder also has to have a distributor.

The up-to-date model engines use something else called "glow plugs." These have to be energized at first by a 1 1/2 volt dry cell and then they will be kept operative by the heat of the engine "exhaustion." This violent activity can take place in a cylinder with a displacement of a hundredth of a cubic inch — in the Cox "Teedec," where the bore is .237 inches and the stroke .225.

For the Scraper to be complete, besides the battery and coil (the spark plug can be seen in the photo), it would also need a propeller about eight inches long. The engine itself measures 4 1/2 inches from tip to tip to the end of the gas tank. This tank held a mixture of gasoline and mineral oil. Present-day models burn methyl alcohol plus either castor oil or a synthetic.

The Scraper, outfitted and powering a plane, would make the noise of a dozen handsets. This sort of thing has been taken care of nowadays by equipping the piston engines with miniature mufflers. As with most hobbies, there are clubs to bring the aero-modelers together — at least by mail. One that covers all phases, and claims to be the world's largest sport aviation organization, is the Academy of Model Aeronautics, 815 15th St., N.W., Washington, DC 20005. Another, this one strictly for engine collectors, is "MECA" (Model Engine Collectors' Association). The nearest local get-together club seems to be the Glastonbury Modelers.

CD Panel Offers Ideas on Housing Code Checks

By JUNE TOMPKINS
Herald Reporter

MANCHESTER—The Community Development Advisory Committee came up with some suggestions Thursday night which would help the Town Health Department enforce the town's housing code.

After hearing Ronald Kraatz, town health administrator, and John Salomon, housing inspector, relate difficulties in getting property owners to comply with recommended solutions for housing code violations, the committee however commended the health department for its plans to have landlords prosecuted in a Housing Court established this month in Hartford.

Heretofore, Kraatz said it has been almost impossible to get a violation case on the court calendar.

The current process for housing code enforcement, after inspection, includes notifying landlords of the violations, meeting with them and discussing the situation, and repeated inspections and demands, if the landlord doesn't comply.

Kraatz said the health department has $23,000 in Community Development funds allocated this year for housing code enforcement. If this funding is terminated next year, Kraatz said, two health department staff members would have to be laid off and no housing inspections could be done other than responding to specific calls and complaints, unless the federal funds could be replaced with other funds.

He is also concerned about the application of the code to single family, owner-occupied dwellings, and whether occupants should be advised that an inspection may lead to an order to correct violations.

As an inducement to get the code violator to comply with the housing inspector's notification, committee member Robert Sklenar suggested issuing fines, "like a traffic ticket."

Kraatz said that during the past two years, most of the violators have complied.

The code classifies housing code violations as serious, substantial and minor. According to Kraatz, most of the serious code violations include malfunctioning furnaces, leaky roofs, toilets that don't work, overfusing and exterior structures in danger of collapsing.

Committeeman Sol R. Cohen said he felt like he was living in Alice in Wonderland. "Here we are talking about spending CD funds and yet we're talking about a referendum which may result in our not having them to spend."

For 1979-80, the principal's account shows a budget of $51,788, an increase of $3,388.

The teacher salary account is set at $557,737, an increase of $40,757.

One new position—a reading teacher at Gilead Hill School—is proposed. The projected enrollment for 1979-80 is 727 students, down 20 from this year.

The substitute teacher account is budgeted for $12,500 to reflect the board increase in rate of pay to $25 per day. It is a $3,500 increase.

The continued congestion on the channels and the projected growth in usage are underlying factors in the decision to open a new area of the spectrum.

TV Dial-ogue

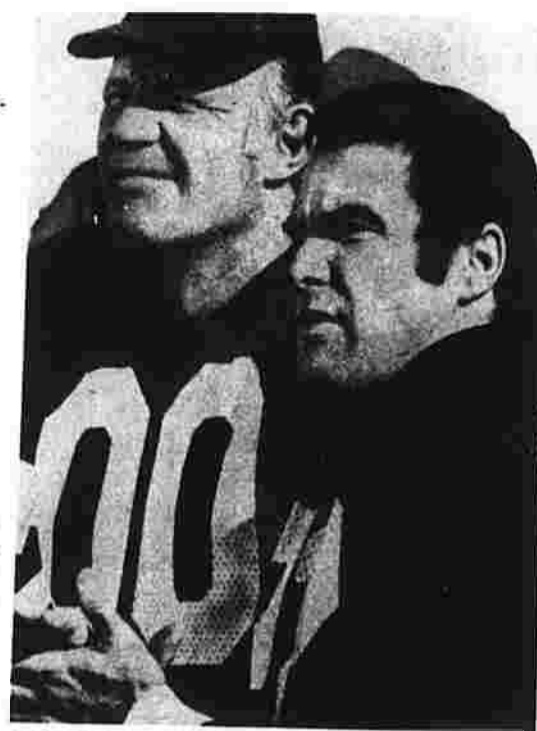

WRONG SHOW — Which one of the members of "The Jeffersons" sings the theme song for the show? Also, where can I write her for a copy of the song? — Mitch Cantwell, Hollywood, Calif.

One of the ghetto dwellers of "Good Times," Janet DuBois, stepped up in class to sing and co-author (with Jeff Barry) the theme to "The Jeffersons." CBS Records has not recorded the song, but you can try writing DuBois or the show's producers for further information. The address is CBS-TV, 7800 Beverly Blvd., Los Angeles, CA. 90036.

HONKY-TONK — Wasn't there a TV-movie remake of the Clark Gable movie, "Honky Tonk" made not too long ago? I remember the movie, but not the stars. — Mrs. Julie Cusper, Gastonia, N.C. I guess it wasn't all that memorable after all, huh? Richard Crenna, Stella Stevens and Margot Kidder (the new Lois Lane in "Superman") took over the Gable, Lana Turner, Claire Trevor roles in the 1974 remake of the con man/good girl/bad girl triangle plot.

(Send your questions to TV Dial-ogue, Pepper O'Brien, NEA, 200 Park Ave., New York, N.Y. 10017.)

Michael Conrad (left) and Burt Reynolds watch a football game that threatens to become a football war in "The Longest Yard," a modern drama of prison life, which has its television premiere on "The ABC Sunday Night Movie," Jan. 21.

Lending an ear

PBS launched "Rainbow's End," a special series for hearing-impaired children, on Friday, Jan. 8. The six-part series provides positive role models and teaches basic reading and language skills for children. Set in a fictitious television studio run by the hearing-impaired cast, the program includes captioning, voice-over narration, and American sign language.

FILMETER
A capsule look at cinema

FILMETER is compiled by Dick Kleiner in Hollywood and the N.E.A. staff in both Hollywood and New York.

INVASION OF THE BODY SNATCHERS (PG) — Donald Sutherland, Brooke Adams, Leonard Nimoy. Science fiction/horror. A remake — really a sequel — of the classic 1956 film. For once, a re-make (or sequel) is as good as the original. This is a totally scary, but very logical and intelligent, story, and done with great taste and skill. GRADE: A.

BRINK'S JOB, THE (PG) — Peter Falk, Peter Boyle, Gene Reynolds, Warren Oates. Crime. This is the recreation of the famous Boston armored car robbery, but if you want a rip-'em-up, cops-and-robbers film, stay home. Director William Friedkin plays this more for gentle humor and compassion. It works if you want that, but if you like action, this will bore you. GRADE: B.

CALIFORNIA SUITE (PG) — Jane Fonda, Alan Alda, Maggie Smith, Michael Caine, Walter Matthau. Comedy and drama. Neil Simon's play, like his "Plaza Suite," is a group of stories united only by the fact that they all take place in one hotel — this time, the Beverly Hills Hotel. Director Herb Ross is much more successful with the dramatic stories than with the comedies, which become embarrassing. Fonda and Smith are superb. GRADE: A (for the dramas), C (for the comedies) and, thus, B (overall).

LORD OF THE RINGS (PG) — Animated fantasy. J.R.R. Tolkien's works come to the screen, animated by Ralph Bakshi of "Fritz the Cat" fame. If you are familiar with Tolkien's creations — hobbits, black horsemen and the rest — this could be exciting. But if you're not, it's gibberish. The art work is beautiful, but the story is impossible for aliens to follow. And Caution — animated or not, it is so violent that it's not for kids. GRADE: B for Tolkien fans; D for the rest of us.

MOMENT BY MOMENT (R) — Lily Tomlin, John Travolta. Romance. "Hour By Hour" would be a better title, because this seems endless. It is the old cliché of the rich lady and the young, brash kid. It proceeds at a snail's pace and even the snail is bored. Poorly acted (except by Travolta) and directed. GRADE: C-minus.

MOVIE, MOVIE (G) — George C. Scott, Trish VanDevere, Red Buttons. Comedy, musical. Double-bill salute-cum-spoof of '30s and '40s light films and musicals that has it all down pat, right down to the last cliché. You can still get the real thing on the late show, but this is worth a few chuckles and a tap dance down memory lane. GRADE: B. (O'Brien)

OLIVER'S STORY (PG) — Ryan O'Neal, Candice Bergen, Ray Milland. Romantic drama. This glibly written sequel to "Love Story" has a warm performance by Candice Bergen. But the plight of two rich young lovers does not tend to capture up depth of feeling. A film with not much on its mind. GRADE: C. (Miller)

Dial-ogues

PAST SUMMERS — Do you recall the TV series they made of "The Long, Hot Summer," the Paul Newman movie? Can you tell me who starred in it, and what ever became of him? — Anne Slettery, Kalispell, Mont.

William Faulkner television-style didn't score very well with viewers back in '64-'65 when Roy Thinnes starred in "The Long, Hot Summer," based on Faulkner's short stories. I'm surprised you don't recall Thinnes. He went on to star in one of my all-time favorites, "The Psychiatrist." He's done several TV movies, a few features ("Airport '75," "The Hindenburgh") and is set to co-star in NBC's remake of the Montgomery Clift classic, "From Here to Eternity." They are also planning to continue the saga as a regular series next fall, with Thinnes continuing his role.

MAJORS NO MINOR — Could you please tell me how old Lee Majors is? My grandmother says he is at least 50 years old and I say no older than 40. — Pam Gurka, Andover, Mass.

This is one instance when Granny's wisdom is awry. Majors claims to be 38, but you can probably track on a year or two to that.

Budget High

WASHINGTON
 Highlights of President Carter's proposed $531.6 billion fiscal 1980:

Defense
 Seeks a 3 percent $125.8 billion. He said non-inflation increase overall budget that needs more firepower and more new weapons to maintain equality with the Soviets.

Taxes
 No immediate cuts for individuals, although includes a proposed proposal for real wage part of Carter's anti-inflation package. Under it, employees whose pay within the Carter guidelines generally eligible for a tax credit that exceeds 7 percent.

Social Security
 Would specifically limit the number of beneficiaries that may be disregarded in computing benefits and do the death benefits that go to families of Social Security recipients. No Social Security rollback now, but he said it should be considered in 1981.

Cuts
 In addition to reducing Social Security benefits, the budget would cut youth employment programs and some eligibility standards for recipients. Millions of people would have to pay more for lunches. Welfare payments for families with dependent children would go down $240 million.

Energy
 Would spend $9.6 billion for a 10 percent reduction from the current level. Solar energy is the only source of increase, climbing from $100 million to $804 million.

Health
 Some big cuts, including $1 billion less for research. National Institutes of Health Health Resources Administration, which assists states, and universities in training and other health programs would lose $79 million. Increased funding is planned for family care and medicine training programs.

Community
 Proposed $7.3 billion for community and regional development funds, a $1.7 billion cut from the current year, largely due to phase-out of anti-recession and assistance programs.

Housing
 Seeks $5.3 billion for assistance for poor and low-income families, an increase from $900 million.

Resources
 Proposes $11.5 billion for preserving natural resources, including improving the environment. Environmental Protection Agency budget would grow $1 billion from the previous year.

Consumers
 Outlays for consumer activities would grow to $6 billion in 1980 from $637 million in 1979.

Pork
 Despite Carter's earlier support for conservation with Congress over resource projects, he now is proposing the biggest "barrel" program in history, asking for nearly $3.1 billion for the Corps of Engineers' works program.

Subsidies
 Some indirect subsidies end. For example, use of federal lands for National Parks has been generally available at minimal cost. Park Service wants to increase camping and entrance fees to 10 percent. In the transportation area, the budget would cut programs benefiting firms or individual localities. "viewed from a perspective."
