Budget Highlights

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Highlights of President Carter's proposed $531.6 billion budget for fiscal 1980:

Defense

Seeks a 3 percent increase to $125.8 billion. He said of the lone non-inflation increase in the overall budget that the nation needs more firepower in Europe and more new weapons to maintain equality with the Soviets.

Taxes

No immediate cuts for individuals, although the plan includes a proposed $2.5 billion proposal for real wage insurance, part of Carter's anti-inflation package. Under it, groups of employees whose pay raises are within the Carter anti-inflation guidelines generally would be eligible for a tax credit if inflation exceeds 7 percent.

Social Security

Would specifically reduce a very few benefits, including limiting the number of work years that may be disregarded in computing benefits and do away with the death benefits that have gone to families of Social Security recipients. No Social Security tax rollback now, but he said it may be considered in 1981.

Cuts

In addition to reducing some Social Security benefits, the budget would cut youth employment programs and set a stricter eligibility standard for welfare recipients. Millions of children would have to pay more for school lunches. Welfare payments to families with dependent children would go down $240 million.

Energy

Would spend $9.6 billion a 4 percent reduction from this year. Solar energy is the only planned increase, climbing from $639 million to $804 million.

Health

Some big cuts, including $18 million less for researchers at the National Institutes of Health. The Health Resources Administration, which assists states, localities and universities in training nurses and other health professionals, would lose $79 million. But increased funding is proposed in family care and primary medicine training programs.

Communities

Proposed $7.3 billion in community and regional development funds, a $1.7 billion cut from last year, largely due to phasing out of anti-recession and disaster assistance programs.

Housing

Seeks $5.3 billion for housing assistance for poor and moderate income families, an increase of $900 million.

Resources

Proposes $11.5 billion in 1980 for preserving natural resources and improving the environment. The Environmental Protection Agency budget would grow to $4.7 billion from the present $4.1 billion.

Consumers

Outlays for consumer safety activities would grow to $644 million in 1980 from $637 million at present.

Pork

Despite Carter's earlier battles with Congress over water resource projects, he now appears to be proposing the biggest "pork barrel" program in history. He is asking for nearly $3.1 billion for the Corps of Engineers' civil works program.

Subsidies

Some indirect subsidies would end. For example, use of National Parks has been generally free or available at minimal fees. The Park Service wants to increase camping and entrance fees by 70 percent. In the transportation area, the budget warns that programs benefiting "individual firms or individual localities" will be "viewed from a national perspective."

Carter Sets Lean Budget

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter today sent Congress a $531.6 billion federal budget for 1980, calling it "lean and austere" to fight inflation and proposing defense increases, many domestic cuts, and the lowest deficit in six years.

The budget will help shape political debate leading to the next presidential election. It covers the fiscal year that starts next Oct. 1 and ends Sept. 30, 1980, a month before election day.

Carter kept a promise he made last fall to propose a deficit under $30 billion. The figure he came up with was $29 billion — half the amount just before he took office.

And he projected that if everything falls into place and taxes are not cut, by 1982 the budget could have a $32 billion surplus — the government's first black ink in a decade.

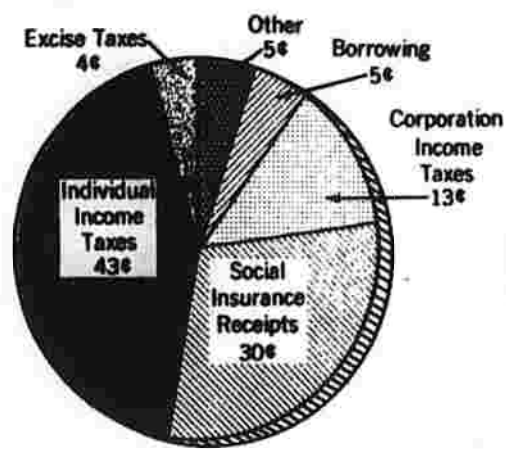

Carter proposed a 3 percent "real" increase in defense spending — that is, above what would be caused by inflation — saying it was needed to bolster NATO and maintain the strategic nuclear balance.

In drafting the budget, he then had to take into account automatic and unavoidable increases such as benefit payments for retirement, disability and health care, which rise because of inflation and because of increases in the number of beneficiaries.

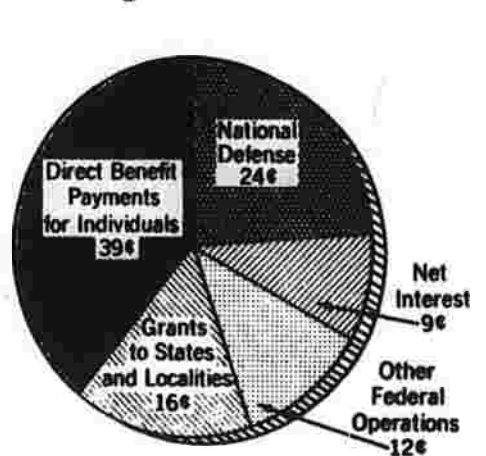

To allow for these increases, and still keep the deficit down, Carter proposed to hold spending below inflationary levels for programs including jobs, supplementary fiscal aid to states and municipalities, labor-intensive public works, energy supply, agricultural price supports, national forests, rail transportation, aid to school districts affected by federal installations, higher education, and military and civilian pay.

Federal civilian employment would be reduced by 35,700, and federal civilian pay would be held to 5.5 percent.

Carter said he budgeted "adequate" funds for the poor, listing $4.5 billion more in such programs as food stamps, Medicaid, subsidized housing, education of disadvantaged children and "block grants" for community development. Programs for the poor in general would increase slightly faster than inflation.

One thing Americans will not find in the budget is a general tax cut. Treasury Secretary Michael Blumenthal told reporters: "Until we succeed in bringing inflation under control it would be very risky to entertain a general tax cut."

"The spending restraint in this budget means that in some areas the government will simply not be able to do as much as it has in the past," Carter said.

"Inevitably, real sacrifices must be made if we are to overcome inflation," he said, adding that he had made "every effort to spread that burden fairly and objectively."

"I have sought," Carter said, "to reconcile the need for extraordinary restrictions on government spending with the need to maintain a strong defense, to implement a national energy policy to assist people in need and to continue important public services and investments."

Sen. William Roth, R-Del., took issue with the president's characterization of the budget: "To describe Carter's budget as lean is like looking at the package of bacon in the supermarket," Roth said. "You don't see the fat until you open the package."

The budget is only a set of proposals. Congress will write the definitive federal budget — first a target version in May, then a final one in September. All legislation enacted for the fiscal year is supposed to fit within this budget, although in practice that does not always happen.

Carter based his entire budget on a series of relatively optimistic economic assumptions — for example, that unemployment would linger at about 6.2 percent and inflation would fall from 9 percent during 1978 to 6 percent by the end of 1980.

He is likely to get an argument on that from some more pessimistic members of Congress. This dispute will have huge consequences for the budget. A 1 percent difference in the unemployment estimate translates into a $16 billion difference in the deficit because it means less money in taxes and more in jobless compensation and welfare.

Some reductions by which Carter arrived at his lowered deficit will depend on Congress enacting legislation, which may or may not happen. For example, he is counting on $9.8 billion in federal savings by 1982 from legislation to contain hospital costs.

He listed a $200 million saving in 1980 from legislation to limit federal aid to school districts affected by the presence of federal facilities. Congress has killed every effort in the past to cut such impact aid.

Carter hopes to save $240 million in 1980 by reducing fraud, waste and abuse in welfare programs.

Mideast Bargain Moving

JERUSALEM (UPI) — U.S. envoy Alfred Atherton and Israeli negotiators made "slight progress" today in bargaining aimed at reaching a compromise on a "when-to-wage-war" clause in the Egyptian-Israeli draft peace treaty.

Eliahu Ben-Elissar, the head of the Israeli delegation, reported the negotiations were moving at a brisk pace, saying, "There is no critical stage in the talks — it's a cruising speed."

He also said there had been "slight progress" in the talks.

The talks adjourned because the ambassador said he had to consult with Washington. The negotiations were expected to resume by mid-evening and Israeli spokesman Dan Fattir said they may continue Tuesday.

The American Middle East envoy has been directing his negotiation efforts to Article 6 of the draft treaty — the major obstacle to concluding the pact, official sources said.

The clause restricts Egypt from waging war against Israel because the treaty takes precedence over prior Egyptian defense commitments to its Arab allies. Egypt insists it has the right to keep those commitments. Washington, in a legal opinion, sided with Egypt.

"We've continued our work and this work is being performed in a warm and friendly spirit," Ben-Elissar said. "The American delegation has judged it necessary to consult with Washington, and that is their right."

Atherton told reporters the negotiations will resume after he talks to Washington. He went to lunch with Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan, possibly to brief him on the talks. Dayan has not been directly involved in the negotiations.

Israel no longer demands that Washington withdraw its legal opinion on article 6, the sources said. But it wants further clarifications to ensure Egypt could not wage war against Israel on the pretext of Israeli aggression.

Plenty of Excess Water

As at many other locations in town, there was plenty of excess water this morning at the J.C. Penney Co. construction site. The water flooded the bypass road and caused some erosion at the site, but there were no serious problems, Oscar Paschke, project director, said. There were no work delays caused by the water, he said. (Herald photo by Pinto)

Weekend Was Wet

MANCHESTER — The weekend, in a word, was wet.

Cellars flooded, roads were covered with water and streams came close to bursting their banks.

Manchester, however, managed to escape the blast of snow and rain with few permanent scars.

The weather started as snow, turned to freezing rain and ended with several hours of rain Sunday. The town received 2.7 inches of rain, George Murphy of the Water Department reported. The amount is substantial considering it fell in less than 24 hours, he said.

Rain melted some of the snow, and the entire package kept town departments busy late Saturday and all day Sunday.

The Town Fire Department received more than 60 calls Sunday from persons with flooded basements. The department still was working today pumping the cellars out.

The Eighth Utilities District Fire Department received 18 calls for water problems in basements in its district.

Other problems also developed. The European Health Spa roof flooded, and the district department pumped 16 inches of water from it Sunday.

Some roofs, including the one at the Shop-Rite store on Spencer Street, developed leaks. There was no permanent damage, a spokesman said.

Some interior flooding also occurred at the Manchester Racquet Club on West Center Street.

When asked how the weekend went, Frederick Wajcs, highway superintendent, replied, "Outside of rotten, not bad."

Plowing began around 6:30 p.m.

Saturday. Highway crews worked through most of the day Sunday. Work included plowing snow back to the curb to free catch basins.

"There were spot flooding problems all over town," Jay Giles, director of public works, said. He said much backyard and cellar flooding was reported.

Some streams rose almost to their maximum limit. The closest call was the stream that flows near the Parker and Jordt streets intersection, Giles said.

At least five persons died in the state in weather-related accidents. Ida Ramelmeier, 52, of Stratford apparently drowned when a car driven by her father, Martin Ramelmeier, stalled on Main Street, Stratford, and was engulfed in water. He was pulled to safety.

Sewer Break Ironic

By GREG PEARSON
Herald Reporter

MANCHESTER — The timing of a sewer break that occurred Saturday on Hollister Street had an ironic twist to it.

The Eighth Utilities District has hired a private contractor to help repair the 14-foot deep line, and work still is being done today to fix the problem.

The irony is that the sewer line is the main line that services the Charles Apartments, whose owner sued both the Town of Manchester and the Eighth District Thursday because of an ongoing tax-collection problem.

Sewer breaks normally come at surprising and inopportune times. But, the timing of this break could not have been more coincidental since the two incidents undoubtedly are unrelated.

Charles Ponticelli owns the Charles Apartments, which are located on Charles Drive and West Middle Turnpike. His property is near the boundary line that separates the town and the district.

Because of his proximity to that line, he has been taxed in the past by both governmental bodies. His suit is asking for relief from that situation.

The break occurred right in front of Bentley School on Hollister Street, which is in district territory. The line is a main one and is 14 feet deep at the point of the problem.

Jay Giles, director of public works, said it appears that the problem is a collapsed line, but he has no idea of the cause.

At first, Eighth District officials had thought the town might have caused the break when it did a water repair in the area. That idea was disposed of because of the deepness of the sewer line, Giles said. The town has no equipment that could come close to a line that deep.

Gordon Lassow, district president, said the district has hired Reed Construction Co. to repair the line.

In the meantime, overflowing sewage from the break is being pumped into tank trucks and carted away.

CD Statements Planned

MANCHESTER — Both local political parties have scheduled press conferences this week and apparently will discuss the federal Community Development program. The town's future participation in the program is expected to be the subject of a referendum question this spring. The Concerned Citizens of Manchester group has obtained enough signatures on petitions seeking a referendum question that would ask for a two-year ban on town participation in the program.

The Community Development program provides annual federal funding to communities. Opponents of the program in Manchester feel the federal government has set too many requirements for the town to meet before it receives its money.

Five of the six Democratic members of the Town A Board of Directors support continued participation in the program. The five have scheduled a press conference at 5 p.m. Tuesday to talk about the program.

Betty Intagliata, secretary of the board, announced the scheduling of the conference.

In response, the Republican board members are expected to have a similar press conference Thursday.

"They're having a press conference Tuesday?" Fine. We'll have one Thursday," Republican Director Carl Zinsser said.

He said the topic of the Republican press conference will depend on what the Democrats say at their session Tuesday.

Model Housing Code Bans Snacks in Bed

EAST HARTFORD (UPI) — If the town council adopts a proposed model housing code, it could be illegal to eat a snack in bed while watching television or to be served chicken soup when you're home in bed with a cold.

Building Inspector Frank Barone is all for the model code itself, but plans to make sure the proposed ban on eating in bedrooms is eliminated.

Barone and the town building department say the 1970 version of the Building Officials and Code Administrators International Inc. code fits the town's needs almost exactly.

BOCA is a non-profit municipal service organization of building officials from towns across the country.

The code, a revision of one adopted by a group in 1965, would allow inspectors to be fussy about a building's exterior aesthetics, for example suggesting a new coat of paint if they thought one was necessary.

The current code, and the proposed new one, would also prohibit cooking in "any sleeping room in any dwelling or dwelling unit," which Barone said was a great fire hazard.

He said that section was aimed at preventing the town's 38 rooming houses from allowing hotplates in bedrooms. But the new model code also says there will be no eating in bedrooms of those dwelling units.

"This is unenforceable," Barone said. "If you went by the letter of this regulation, if you weren't feeling well and somebody wanted to serve you in bed, they'd be violating the law."

He speculated the BOCA definition of "dwelling unit" could be the problem. A one-family dwelling, for instance, is defined as a building housing "not more than five lodgers or boarders," which implies rooming houses.

"In our zoning regulations, you're not allowed to have lodgers in certain zones. But because of the wording, even though it might mean something different, it would apply to (residents in) East Hartford."

To keep eating in bedrooms from becoming illegal, Barone said that portion of the clause and expects it will be passed by the town since the code is a model and does not have to be adopted verbatim.

"I think the council will go along," he said.

The ordinance committee of the council will discuss the matter Tuesday and make a recommendation to the full council.

Guest Speaker

MANCHESTER — Gary Van Voorhis, a staff member at Manchester Community College, will be guest speaker for the 7:30 meeting tonight of the Buckley School PTA. His topic will be "Parents, Children and Alcohol."

Van Voorhis is coordinator of the Drug and Alcohol Rehabilitation Counselor Training Program. He has served as administrator of the Connecticut Alcohol and Drug Training Center.

Area Girl Gets Title

SIMSBURY (UPI) — Sheryl Lee Dunn of East Hartford, a karate expert who plans to major in psychology at Yale University, has been named 1979's Connecticut Junior Miss.

Miss Dunn, 17, was one of 20 contestants, all high school seniors, whose songs, dance numbers and drama performances were presented Sunday at the Farmington Exchange Club before an audience of more than 800 people.

The new Junior Miss performed an acrobatic jazz dance. As state winner, she is entitled to up to $13,440 in scholarships offered by six colleges, including the University of Hartford.

Miss Dunn will represent the Nutmeg State at the national contest to be held in Mobile, Ala. in May. The four runners-up, beginning with first runner-up, were Mary F. Coleman of Vernon, a Rockville High School student; Janice C. Mueller of Madison, Daniel Hand High School; Dana S. Bennett of Torrington, Torrington High School; and Jill Jean of Windsor, Windsor High School. Lisa Lazzotte of Winsted was selected by her fellow contestants to receive the Spirit of Junior Miss Award, a $500 scholarship.

Attorney Bids $852,000 For Manchester Motors

By SUSAN VAUGHN Herald Reporter

Jeffrey M. Mines contemplates his next bid Saturday at the auction of Manchester Motor Sales, 512 W. Center St. The Hartford attorney was the successful bidder in behalf of an unidentified client at a price of $852,000.

Mancheser opened the bids at $387,000. Mines could not be reached for comment today on the purchase. Another attorney at his office said Mines was out of state until Thursday and that the office would not make any comment on the purchase for him.

The former owner of the four-acre property at Hartford Road and West Center Street is William R. Schaller. His debts include $36,000 in local property taxes, about $50,000 in bank mortgages and $100,000 to the estate of his father, the late Robert Schaller.

Robert Schaller opened the Oldsmobile dealership on Brainerd Place and Main Street in 1935. The business moved to its present headquarters in the fall of 1938 and expanded to its present size with a two-story sales agency and a one-story service and repair building in 1958.

Mines did not reveal to Thomas what he was representing or what he or his client intends to do with the property. He has the right to take it as trustee, Thomas said. Mines also signed the sales agreement on the property Saturday.

Town May Force Firm To Hold to Project Bid

MANCHESTER — The town may hold an East Hartford firm to the bid it submitted for a sewer project, even though the contractor said it made a $115,000 mistake in the price.

The matter concerns a bid for storm sewer work that would go from the pond at Adelaide Road to Porter Brook.

The apparent low bidder for the work, Frank A. White Co. of East Hartford, submitted a price of $83,222.

That price was a bit higher than what the town had estimated the project would cost. But, it also was $185,000 lower than any of the other four bids submitted.

After the bids were open, the contractor contacted Jay Giles, director of public works, and said it had underbid the project by $115,000. It had failed to include the cost of reinforcing the sewer trenches, it said.

Giles said the town plans now to proceed with the bid awarding at the price the firm submitted. He pointed out that the bid includes an opening statement that says the contractor has inspected the site and the work involved.

The town still has to decide whether an honest mistake was made by the firm. Giles has asked for proof of an error, and the company is supposed to submit certified copies of its work sheets to determine if the mistake actually was made.

If such an error can be proved, the town might decide not to proceed with the bid awarding at the estimated price.

"If the guy is really telling the truth, he's going to be losing money. It's going to be an uphill battle all the way," Giles said of the situation if the contract is awarded and the firm actually did err in its calculations.

SST Lands at Bradley

WINDSOR LOCKS (UPI) — The 72 passengers who paid more than $915 each to fly from London to New York via the sleek-nosed Concorde jet landed instead in Connecticut and rode a bus into the Big Apple.

Gov. Ella T. Grasso gave British Airways permission to land its Concorde at Bradley International Airport in Windsor Locks Saturday night after Kennedy Airport in New York closed down due to bad weather.

It was the first time a Concorde jet had set down in Connecticut.

Two other supersonic jets flying the London to New York route have been routed instead to airports at Philadelphia and Baltimore.

The Concorde departed Bradley Airport at 6:45 p.m. Sunday

Auction Hearing Tonight

MANCHESTER — The Zoning Board of Appeals meets tonight and will conduct one public hearing for an auctioneer seeking permission to conduct his service at the Knights of Columbus Hall.

The meeting will start at 7 o'clock in the Municipal Building's Hearing Room.

A second application scheduled for a public hearing tonight, has been withdrawn. Lloyd G. Gustafson had applied for a variance to permit a business use at 179-181 W. Center St., a Residence B Zone. He has withdrawn the application, however.

The one public hearing scheduled for tonight will be for Auction by Cameron, a firm operated by R.J. Cameron of South Windsor.

He has had auctions in the past at the KofC Hall at 138 Main St. Ernest Machell, the town's zoning enforcement officer, has talked to Cameron and told him a variance from the ZBA is required to conduct such auctions at the site.

The ZBA also is scheduled to elect a new chairman and its other officers tonight. The former chairman, Bernard Johnson, did not seek reappointment to the board.

Town Council To Fill Vacancy in Coventry

COVENTRY — The Town Council may appoint Democrat Joyce Carilli to its membership at a special meeting tonight at 7:30 at the Town Hall. Patricia White resigned from the council last week, and the Democratic Town Committee endorsed Mrs. Carilli for the post.

The South Street resident has lived in Coventry for two decades and has held several local posts, including justice of the peace. Her husband Albert served one term on the council several years ago but failed in his bid for re-election.

She said her prime interest would be in helping to formulate the town's budget for the upcoming fiscal year if she is appointed by the council, which is presently controlled by the Democrats by a 4-2 margin. When an elected position becomes vacant, a member of the same political party, as the resigning member, must be selected.

Tonight's council meeting was postponed from last week after three delays. Monday was canceled because of the state holiday, Tuesday was ruled out because some council members said they would not be available, and Wednesday's meeting was dropped because of the snow storm. On Thursday the council failed to raise a quorum and set tonight's meeting as an alternative.

Among the items on tonight's agenda is a report on the town's police department prepared by a council subcommittee. The group, headed by Karen Nash, was appointed last summer after friction within the

Bennet Yearbook Cited

MANCHESTER — The Bennett Junior High School's yearbook for 1977-1978, "Impressions," has been awarded a third place certificate by the Columbia Scholastic Press Association.

More than 1,000 entries for the yearbook contest were recorded. Manchester and Westport were the only Connecticut junior high schools receiving awards.

Mrs. Frances Lombardo has been the faculty advisor for the Bennett yearbook for the past five years, but this was the first yearbook submitted for the contest. Mrs. Betty Messier assists Mrs. Lombardo with the business and financial aspects of the publication.

Prosecutor Pursues Gibbons Death Case

NEW BRITAIN (UPI) — Paul J. McQuillan, the special state's attorney in charge of a new investigation into the unsolved 1973 killing of Barbara Gibbons in Falls Village, says he will vigorously pursue the case.

McQuillan Sunday said he met with officials over the weekend and was given a copy of a witness' sworn statement naming two men in connection with the slaying.

He said the purpose of the meeting concerning the statement released last week was "to assure the people that we were concerned and that the state of Connecticut would vigorously pursue this."

One of the men named in the statement Saturday told WTNH-TV he was nowhere near Miss Gibbons' two-room cottage in rural northwest Connecticut when she was sexually abused and slashed. McQuillan said both he and chief state's attorney Austin J. McGuinn said he was not a member of the church, but he was a member of the congregation.

MACC News Annual Week of Prayer Concludes

By NANCY CARR
Executive Director

Every year from January 18-25, Christians around the world join in prayer during the Week of Prayer for Christian Unity. The prayer recalling Jesus praying for them in the hours before his suffering and death "that all might be one even as you and I are one, so that the world might believe."

The theme for the 1979 Week of Prayer (sponsored by the Commission on Faith and Order of the National Council of Churches and the Graymoor Ecumenical Institute) was "Serve One Another to the Glory of God," a scripture passage taken from 1 Peter 4:7-11.

Peter tells us that each of us has received a special grace, so we must, like good stewards be responsible for all these different graces and put ourselves at the service of others.

If we are speakers, we are to speak in words that come from God, if we are helpers, we are to help as though every action was done at God's order, so that in everything God may receive the glory, though Jesus Christ since in him alone and to him alone belong all glory and power.

The philosophy of MACC stated in the beginning of each annual report states, "The churches of Manchester have formed the Manchester Area Conference of Churches as witness to their shared response to Jesus' prayer that they may be perfected in unity, and that the world may know that thou has sent me." John 17.

They pledge themselves to being their combined strengths, insights and resources in dedicated service to the will of God and caring of God's people.

McQuillan, who served as special assistant to one-man grand juror Superior Court Judge Maurice J. Spozzo in the case, said he would

Council Decorum Eyed

SOUTH WINDSOR - Mayor Nancy Caffyn has asked that decorum of Town Council meetings be discussed when the council meets in a work session tonight at 7:30. The review will be made following Deputy Mayor Robert Myette's reading of a report regarding a family who received aid from the town after their home was burned on Christmas Eve. Myette was ruled out of order because other council members felt the family's privacy was being invaded by the report. The four-page statement was the result of an "investigation" Myette had conducted following a complaint from a citizen. The citizens had reportedly questioned why the town had issued a check for payment of rent for the family. Town Manager Allan Young said this week Town Attorney Richard Rittenband issued an opinion the manager had acted properly in issuing the aid check which is to be repaid with insurance monies. Also included on the work session agenda is a request from the town's development commission to transfer $8,000 to cover the cost of a report from the Pleasant Valley Road Advisory Committee, the procedure to be used in formulating ordinances, and the formation of an Energy Committee. The Town Council will discuss the possibilities of joining Windsor in sponsoring a symposium on coping with drug and alcohol abuse. The symposium is scheduled for Feb. 8 at the Windsor High School. The program would cost $1,500 and participating towns would be asked to contribute $200 toward the project. The symposium would include lectures by drug abuse prevention authorities.

Vacancy Leads Agenda

VERNON - When the Town Council meets tonight at 7:30 in the Memorial Building it will be asked to act on the appointment of Republican Michael A. Catarino to fill the vacancy on the council caused by the resignation of John Giulietti. The council will also discuss information from Connecticut Bank & Trust concerning the Vernon Cemetery Trust Fund. The council asked for the information after a local resident questioned the manner of investing the funds. In other business the council will discuss waiting bids for a public works vehicle; the revised Citizen Participation Plan; a request concerning the School Activity Funds; a request for a tax refund; and requests for intradepartmental transfers. The following appointments will be acted on: John G. Fiske to the Permanent Municipal Building Committee; Robert J. Breda, Parks and Recreation Commission; Peter A. Powers, alternate to Zoning Commission; and Earl H. Beebe Sr., Cemetery Commission. Alberti Kerkin, assistant superintendent of schools, will report on the program for students with multiple handicaps, at the meeting of the Board of Education tonight at 7:30 at the Middle School. Dr. Kerkin will also report on the school immunization program and on a proposal to change health policies. Dr. Kerkin will also update the listing of outside placements and ask the board to approve the transfer of funds for a teacher aide for a special education student. The board will hear reports from the Transportation and Personnel Policies Committees. DALE CARNEGIE COURSE Accredited by The Continuing Educational Council. *New Self-Confidence and Poise *Think and Speak on Your Feet *Speak Effectively *Control Fear and Worry *Sell Yourself and Your Ideas *Be a Better Conversationalist *Be Your Best With Any Group *Develop Your Hidden Abilities *Remember Names. CLASSES STARTING SOON IN MANCHESTER-VERNON AREA TEL. 672-4321 Presented by R.M. Nixon Aide Won't Talk

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Ron Ziegler, the White House spokesman who once called the Watergate break-in a "third-rate burglary," says the events that led to Richard Nixon's resignation in disgrace are "far more complex" than usually painted. It has been six years since the break-in and more than four years since Nixon resigned, but Ziegler still doesn't want to talk about it. Watergate was only hours old when Ziegler tried to dismiss the break-in at Democratic headquarters as a "third-rate burglary." It was much older when he acknowledged to the White House press corps that some of his earlier replies to their questions were now "inoperative." In a weekend interview with UPI, he said: "I don't want to get into those historic events. They're far more complex than taking an act of circumstances out of the whole Watergate period and its aftermath and commenting on one act that should or shouldn't have been taken. I've really tried to stay away from that period since I left the White House," he said. Ziegler, 39, is now a senior vice president of an engineering consulting firm in Washington. Ziegler said he doesn't miss the White House - especially during the coverage months - and has not kept in touch with many of his associates in that part of his life. Except for Nixon himself, that is. He spent a year as Nixon's press aide in San Clemente, Calif., after the resignation Aug. 9, 1974. And the two got together in New York after the former president's trip to France and England in December. "I think he's going to continue to speak out on foreign policy," he said. "But from a standpoint of returning to political life, as such, I don't think he has that interest." "He's highly respected in Europe and other parts of the world I've traveled (as a consultant)," Ziegler said. "It's amazing the respect he holds in a lot of parts of the world, and to some degree here, I guess."

GOP Mulls Confab Site

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Dallas and Detroit are viewed as the leading contenders as the Republican National Committee meets this week to pick the site of the 1980 presidential convention. New York and New Orleans also have a chance at the convention, according to party sources, with Miami, Minneapolis-St. Paul and Kansas City virtually ruled out. The final review of all the convention bids will be made by the GOP site selection committee tonight. The committee will vote its recommendation Tuesday and the full RNC will act an hour later. The argument will boil down to whether the Republicans can politically afford to overlook the ERA problem to go to a city that is both attractive and has all the needed facilities. Miami Beach has all the facilities, but Florida also has the ERA problem and there isn't much enthusiasm among Republicans to return to the city where they twice nominated Richard Nixon for president. Kansas City was the site of the Republicans' 1976 convention and there is a feeling they would rather go to somewhere else. Missouri also has not ratified ERA. Dallas also has adequate facilities, but its convention hall is not free on the Republican's preferred date of July 14. If the GOP picks Dallas, it will have to be for its backup date of Aug. 11. Many in the party would like to go to Texas to celebrate the election of the first Republican governor of the state in 185 years. The argument will boil down to whether the Republicans can politically afford to overlook the ERA

Genealogy Detailed at Meeting

By OLGA SULLIVAN
MANCHESTER - At a recent meeting of the Manchester Historical Society, Gilmore Cole's presentation of his family genealogy, interesting people in his career and historical facts of his New England proved to be both informative and humorous. Mr. Cole acquired a copy of a book of unusual names from a Connecticut newspaper. As most names carry some form of family tradition, one can understand why only 15 copies of this book were printed. After mentioning several names, it is little wonder that some people preferred to use only initials or be known by a nickname. Not so in the Cole family, of which Gilmore Nicholas Cole is an 11th generation descendant of Daniel Cole. Names such as Nichols, Kelley, Ballard, Washburn and Gregory comprise the one thousand people descending from the original Cole settlers. John and Daniel Cole were part of 196 passengers who departed from England in 1633 for Plymouth, Mass. Seven years later, Daniel Cole settled in Eastham on Cape Cod on a 50-acre spread granted to him by the governor. He lived 60 of his 80 plus years in the community, serving in many capacities. Gilmore Cole has tried to locate the land on which his early ancestors lived in Eastham but found that land records were lost in a fire in Barnstable 100 years ago. Perhaps one day a descendant of early Eastham settlers may be able to help locate the land. As the early settlers moved west across Connecticut to New York State, one Adolph Phillips acquired land by patent in Putnam County from the governor of New Amsterdam. This land was just over the Connecticut border and east of the Hudson River. Due to a variation between the western boundary of Connecticut and the eastern boundary of New Amsterdam, the narrow oblong piece between the two states was given to New Amsterdam for equal exchange of the "horse's neck" which is now the extreme southwestern shoreline area of Connecticut.

It was at this meeting that Mr. Cole learned that Edward N. Cole was also a descendant of Elisha Cole. Mr. Cole is one who enjoys talking to people and has learned many facts about his descendants scattered many miles apart. While attending an antique show in Riverton and noting an exhibitor from the New York area, Mr. Cole found that the exhibitor knew members of Mr. Cole's family in New York. Yes, it is a small world. Mr. Cole is the former Eleanor Downing. Being of English ancestry, she was particularly interested in Downing Street in London. While informing a guard at No. 10 Downing Street that she had the same name, he willingly posed for a photo with her. Downing Street was named after Sir George Downing, head of the Bank of England. He was a member of the first graduating class of Harvard College. The study of one's ancestry can be a time-consuming and rewarding task, each fact important to the development and survival of our country.

Anniversary of Decision Sparks Abortion Debate

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Lobbyists on both sides of the abortion issue converged on Washington today to mark the sixth anniversary of the Supreme Court's ruling that resulted in liberalizing the nation's abortion laws.

The anti-abortionists planned to see members of Congress in all of the House and Senate office buildings, delivering roses and making their arguments for a constitutional ban on abortion.

If it's one thing we don't need, it's another blue ribbon committee to study some problem in Connecticut. But that's not the only reason we don't like a bill proposed by Rep. Michael Morano, a Greenwich Republican.

Thoughts

Perhaps it takes years to acquire, but a truly mature human virtue is tolerance. It means respect for the views of others even when they conflict with, or are contradictory to one's own.

WASHINGTON — Favors are part of a president's stock in trade. He is expected to produce government jobs, White House appointments and public works projects for the people who helped elect him.

WASHINGTON — "If 50 divisions came across the Czechoslovak border tomorrow the United States is not prepared for them."

The individual Ready Reserve, hardest hit, has dropped from 1.6 million soldiers to 350,000. Yet these are the forces that would be called on to fill the 28-week wartime gap until inductions would be available to fight.

The good news, according to Hunter, is that the all-volunteer forces "have provided the military services with a full-strength active force of a quality equal to or superior to that achieved under the draft."

Havana Retains Traditions

HAVANA, Cuba (UPI) — Anyone who thinks that 18 years of Marxist rule has turned the people of Cuba into drab Caribbean versions of Russians should take a look at a misinterpreted Havana cop.

Or listen to three 12-year-old kids banging a conga rhythm out of a tin can, a gourd and two bars of steel, or watch the loud backslapping conversations between friends over tiny cups of syrupy coffee at the corner bar.

The role of women in the military is also increasing rapidly — in the definite benefit of the nation, Hunter says. The Pentagon says military women will double from 1977 to 1984. They are expected to number 208,000 in the latter year — 12 percent of the armed forces.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are in our 50s and have two unmarried sons, 25 and 30. They don't live at home. Each prefers to have his own apartment, but we are still providing them with money, food, clothes, etc. The oldest is a college graduate and employed, but seems to be broke all the time. The youngest had only one year of college, and goes from job to job. He's always broke due to poor judgment and minor scrapes with the law. Right now we have a lawyer trying to get his driver's license back, so here we are, bailing him out again. We love these boys, but I am tired of having to constantly rescue them from their mistakes. At our age, my husband and I should be looking out for our own welfare, but our sons are a constant drain on us financially as well as emotionally. What do other parents do in such a situation, Abby? Am I what you suggest?

TIED PARENTS
DEAR ABBY: My daughter is in the third grade and recently had a birthday party. She took the invitations to school and passed them out to the classmates she wanted. There were 29 kids in her class and she wanted only 23 of them at her party. After the party her teacher called me and told me that my daughter should not have passed out her invitations to school unless she invited all of the kids in her class. Since when does a schoolteacher have the right to tell a pupil whom to invite to her birthday party? I would like your opinion in print.

DEAR ABBY: I know a couple who live within blocks of his widowed 80-year-old mother. They never visit during the year. They call her on the phone maybe a couple of times a year. On Mother's Day they send her a card with some money in it. On the card is written: "Buy yourself something." If you were that mother would you accept the money?

DEAR CLOSE: That would depend on how I felt about the giver. Getting married? Whether you want a formal church wedding or a simple do-your-own thing, get Abby's new booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." Send $1 and a long, stamped, 22 cent postage envelope to: 152 Lake Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Dear Abby
By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are in our 50s and have two unmarried sons, 25 and 30. They don't live at home. Each prefers to have his own apartment, but we are still providing them with money, food, clothes, etc. The oldest is a college graduate and employed, but seems to be broke all the time. The youngest had only one year of college, and goes from job to job. He's always broke due to poor judgment and minor scrapes with the law. Right now we have a lawyer trying to get his driver's license back, so here we are, bailing him out again. We love these boys, but I am tired of having to constantly rescue them from their mistakes. At our age, my husband and I should be looking out for our own welfare, but our sons are a constant drain on us financially as well as emotionally. What do other parents do in such a situation, Abby? Am I what you suggest?

TIED PARENTS
DEAR ABBY: My daughter is in the third grade and recently had a birthday party. She took the invitations to school and passed them out to the classmates she wanted. There were 29 kids in her class and she wanted only 23 of them at her party. After the party her teacher called me and told me that my daughter should not have passed out her invitations to school unless she invited all of the kids in her class. Since when does a schoolteacher have the right to tell a pupil whom to invite to her birthday party? I would like your opinion in print.

DEAR ABBY: I know a couple who live within blocks of his widowed 80-year-old mother. They never visit during the year. They call her on the phone maybe a couple of times a year. On Mother's Day they send her a card with some money in it. On the card is written: "Buy yourself something." If you were that mother would you accept the money?

DEAR CLOSE: That would depend on how I felt about the giver. Getting married? Whether you want a formal church wedding or a simple do-your-own thing, get Abby's new booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." Send $1 and a long, stamped, 22 cent postage envelope to: 152 Lake Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.
